By MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Warning of dangers to personal privacy, a federal crime commission is urging tough new limits on the collection and distribution of criminal history files.

Criminal justice agencies at all levels should purge their files of obsolete, inaccurate and incomplete information and should shield computer file centers in fortresses beyond the reach of outside snoopers, said a new report by the National Advisory Commission on Criminal Justice Standards and Goals.

Through urging the collection of more complete statistical data about crime, the commission warned against the compilation of unnecessary information about individuals.

The 286-page report was prepared by a commission task force headed by Col. John R. Plants, director of the Michigan State Police.

The report may fuel a long-running debate over the security and privacy of criminal records stored in computers for instant availability to law enforcement agencies.

The National Crime Information Center maintained by the FBI is gradually adding criminal history files from information fed to it by state and local criminal justice units.

"The citizen's right of privacy is considerably more vulnerable in this age of electronic eavesdropping, recorded lie detector testings, tapped telephones, telescopic lenses, long-distance listening devices, photographic coverages, and various other techniques that can effectively deprive a citizen of his privacy," the commission said.

Compounding the risk is "the permanent storage, rapid retrieval and national coverage of a computer-based criminal justice information system that will never suffer from apathy, charity or a bad memory," the report continued.

The commission urged each state to establish a Security and Privacy Council empowered to regulate computer record systems in criminal justice and other government agencies.

Urging a significant departure from the prevalent practice, the commission said individuals should be guaranteed the right to review their own files and to challenge any part they considered inaccurate.

Critics of the computerized crime records have objected strongly to the collection of arrest records without subsequent notations concerning the disposition of the case.

VILLAGE INN
DRAKE
LOWENBRAU OKTOBERFEST
ON DRAFT
Restaurant Open 'til 2 a.m.

Most Editorials Challenge, Criticize Nixon's Standings

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Several newspapers have called for President Nixon to resign because of growing entanglements in the Watergate case, while others have challenged suggestions that the President is losing the ability to govern.

The New York Times, citing what it called "the visible disintegration of President Nixon's moral and political authority," said Sunday Nixon should resign before the nation is forced to go through "the traumatic and divisive process of impeachment."

Others carrying editorials that urged Nixon to resign included three newspapers which supported him in the past: the Detroit News, the Denver Post, and the Atlanta Journal.

Meanwhile, the Indianapolis Star and the Omaha World-Herald were among newspapers disputing arguments that Nixon has lost the ability to govern.

The New York Times, a frequent administration critic, said: "The deceitful manipulation of the presidential warmaking powers, the deliberate violations of the law in the national security investigations and the abuse of the impoundment authority have all created in the minds of the people the enduring conviction that Mr. Nixon has little respect for the restraint of the law and no real understanding of constitutional checks and balances...

"The one last great service that Mr. Nixon can now perform for his country is to resign...As long as he clings to office, he keeps the presidency swamped in a sea of scandal and the American public in a morass of concern and confusion."

The Detroit News, which supported Nixon in his three presidential campaigns, said Nixon should resign after Rep. Gerald R. Ford has been confirmed as vice president.

"If he does not resign, serious consideration should be given to his impeachment," the newspaper said.

The Denver Post, which supported Nixon in the 1972 election, said: "If President Nixon chooses to resign after a qualified successor is in office, it would be easier for the country and better for him in the history books..."

The Atlanta Journal, which also supported Nixon for re-election, has called for Nixon to have the patriotism to resign from office, saying impeachment was too divisive a process for the nation.

CAMPUS INTERVIEWS
SCHOOL OF MANAGEMENT
Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute
Graduate Degree Programs in:
— Private (Industrial) Management
— Public Management
— Management Engineering
— Operations Research and Statistics
Prof. D. W. Karger, Ford Foundation
Professor of Management will be on campus
Tuesday, November 13, 1973
Please make appointments at Placement Office

The Energy Crisis And The Auto

Safety Administration Moves To Limit Speeds

By G. DAVID WALLACE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's highway safety administration plans to revive its efforts to limit the speed of automobiles, agency sources say.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration first proposed three years ago that 1973 model cars be restricted from going faster than 95 miles an hour and that speedometers register no speeds over 85.

But the response — 24,000 mostly critical formal comments — led the agency in effect to consign the proposal to limbo by quietly setting back the effective date to 1976.

But now, under a new administrator, agency sources say the safety administration is prepared to move again before the end of the year by proposing implementation of the speedometer calibration standard and entertaining further study on the speed restrictions.

Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., prodded Administrator James B. Gregory in September to eliminate "the preposterous system of calibration presently used on most automobile speedometers in this country."

"Speedometers marked for maximum speeds of 120, 140, or 160 miles per hour constitute an obvious safety hazard," Percy said.

Gregory assured Percy of his "personal and priority interest" in the matter, but cautioned that because of the tremendous response to the original proposal, "a number of changes were found to be necessary." He did not specify the changes.

Although the proposal drew initially strong criticism as going too far, an organization of insurance industry attorneys recently urged the agency to go even further and mandate a 70-mile-an-hour speed limit on cars.

President Phillip W. Knight of the Federation of Insurance Counsel argued that the 70-mile-an-hour limit would not "create substantial inconvenience to the motoring public," yet, according to Transportation Department staff studies, the lower limit could mean 4,000 lives saved every year. The nation's traffic toll is about 55,000 deaths every year.

Knight cited a 1972 Federal Highway Administration survey as showing that even on main rural roads, including interstate highways, only 14 percent of the traffic goes faster than 70.

The insurance lawyers suggested exemption from speed restrictions for vehicles involved in public health or safety.

(AP Wirephoto)

As fireplaces are forced back into our lifestyle

CAMBRIDGE, MASS — Barry Caswell, right, and partner Thomas O'Brien, both of Revere, unload fireplace wood at a Harvard dormitory.

In The Netherlands

A Sunday Ban

By KEN JACOBSON
Associated Press Writer

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) - Children roller skated on the streets and teen-aged cyclists zig-zagged down the highways as Dutchmen turned a Sunday driving ban into an impromptu holiday.

Whole families of cyclists went for rides and forgot all about traffic or exhaust fumes. In downtown Amsterdam groups of young people garlanded their bikes with flowers and rode around in processions.

The Sunday ban was serious business-an effort to conserve fuel to help offset an oil embargo on the Netherlands by eight Arab nations upset about Dutch policy in the Middle East.

But the nation took it in a carnival spirit, and a spokesman for the national traffic police called it "an outstanding success."

"We always drive out of town on a Sunday," said a telephone technician with his wife and two daughters in Amsterdam's Rembrandt Square.

"But this time, we've come in from the suburbs on our bikes. It's the first time my two girls have ever biked into the center of the city and we're having a good day. So who's angry about the oil embargo?"

Dozens of extra trams and buses were put on the routes of major cities. Trains ran with 30-50 per cent more passengers as only taxis, buses, motorcycles and vehicles with foreign license plates were allowed on the roads.

Officials said there were probably fewer than 20,000 cars on Dutch highways, most driven by foreigners or persons in exempted categories. An estimated 800,000 Dutchmen go joyriding on a normal Sunday.

Police reported 15 hours after the ban began at 3 am. that 50 violations had been logged across the country. Officers in the Hague said they confiscated two cars from young Dutchmen who defied the ban in the early-morning hours.

"It appears that they just wanted to see what would happen," a spokesman said.

Traffic rules return to normal Monday for the rest of the week. The driving ban will be in effect again next Sunday as part of a Dutch effort to cut consumption of petroleum products by 10 per cent.

Oil companies estimate the Sunday ban could yield a 19 per cent saving in gasoline use and a 3 per cent drop in total petroleum use.

Public vehicles - such as those used by police and fire departments, public utilities, maintenance crews and the military - are exempt from the ban, as are some private vehicles owned by doctors and invalids.

But many private vehicles entitled to exemption remained idle. The National Traffic Inspection Service, which rules on exemptions, has been deluged by more than 100,000 applications. It was unable to study more than half before Sunday.

The vast majority of Holland's estimated 3,050,000 privately owned automobiles thus were garaged. Their owners faced stringent penalties for any violations.

Deliberate infringement could bring a jail term of up to $40,000 and possible permanent loss of the vehicle. Those using motorboats during the ban are subject to fines of $200.

(Staff Photo - Ben Clancy)

The trend in transportation. Doubling up on the bicycle and walking to save fuel.

dvp

DVP is financed and operated by the undergraduates of UMass for the purpose of keeping the university community sensitive to the world in which it exists. It seeks to bring to campus those persons whose experiences in domestic and international affairs, sciences, arts and humanities qualify them to interpret, explain and raise questions about life in all its dimensions.

Applications at Student Activities and DVP Offices

Deadline Mon., Nov. 12.

We are now accepting applications from Freshman and Transfer Students.

"SECRET LIFE OF HERNANDO CORTEZ"
film by john chamberlain November 8, 1973
Herter Hall 231 7:30p.m. and 9p.m
Tickets: $.50 to UMass Students with IDs, $1 to all others
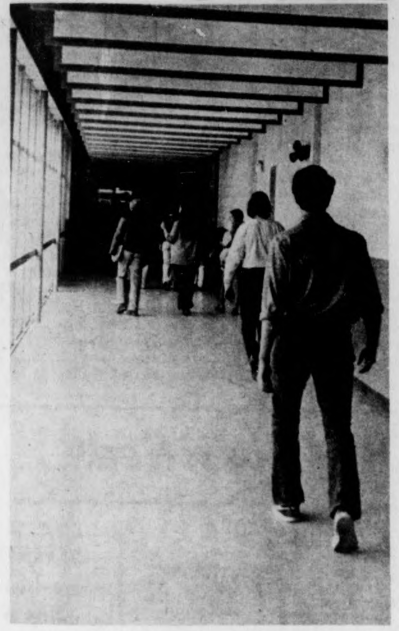
Available at the door, or at the Fine Arts Council Box Office, 125 Herter Hall
telephone 545-0202, Mon-Fri, 9a.m. - 4p.m
Sponsored by the University of Massachusetts Fine Arts Council

---

Another Way Of Life:

Student Teaching



Student teaching is relating to another generation or two. Remember the times of cafeteria food, jammed lockers, and fifth period study halls?

Student teachers serve as both facilitators of information for the students that they teach and as an easy contact to the University for their sponsoring school.

As the sun rises on another week of classes, for most students this may mean another 10:10, a stop at the Hatch for a cup of coffee in the morning, and the Bluewall in the afternoon. There is a group of 52, however, that has a different way of life, at least for a semester-the student teachers.

For some this change begins in the morning, at 5:45 a.m. The drive to the sponsoring school can be as far away as Longmeadow or Greenfield. The photos you see here were taken at Greenfield High School, a public school north of Amherst.

There is also an adjustment to be made in terms of sitting on the "other side of the desk". Lessons have to be prepared well in advance, classes run five days a week and the average intern load of classes can be from three to five, depending upon the subject area of the student teacher and the teaching positions available.

Turning your head to meet the onslaught of varying age groups can also be a new and different experience. Facing the kids, the community, and leaving, for awhile, the never-never land of UMass gives the intern a demanding and rewarding look at what teaching is all about.

By
KRISTEN R. THOMPSON

Classes in high schools have changed. Here a sociology student teaches her own lesson for the day.

The supervising of the secondary program is under the direction of Dick Clark and Judith Spidel from the School of Education. Here interns meet informally with Fran O'Connor, advisor to the Greenfield System, to discuss their experiences.

All grade levels are represented within most of the school systems. Here-a Senior class at Greenfield High.

Friends To The End

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP)-An Orlando physician says he will leave home Monday to take 12,000 signatures of President Nixon supporters to the White House, hopefully collecting more names on the way.

Dr. E. Michael Gutman says he collected the names in a little over a week after founding a non-profit group, "The President Friends," and buying space in Orlando newspapers to run coupons for people to sign and send to him.

"We have received 6,000 pieces of mail in which there were 8,000 coupons containing a total of 12,000 signatures and $1,300 in cash, Gutman said. "We will use the money to purchase more ads as we journey northward."

Gutman said he is hopeful that by the time he reaches Washington he'll have 30,000 to 50,000 signatures.

Colonel Sanders Big Chicken Feed(s)
Monday and Tuesday Only

Feeds 4 to 6
Big Chicken Feed $4.99
— Twelve tender, tasty pieces of finger lickin' good Kentucky Fried Chicken
— One pint of the Colonel's special cole slaw
One pint of mashed potatoes
One pint of special gravy
Six hot biscuits
clip the coupon

Feeds 5 to 9
Super Chicken Feed $6.99
Eighteen tender, tasty pieces of finger-lickin' good Kentucky Fried Chicken
-- Two pints of the Colonel's special cole slaw
— Two pints of mashed potatoes
— One pint of special gravy
Nine hot biscuits
clip the coupon

Chicken-In Chicken-Out

Seating for 54
Free Delivery
256-8745

Kentucky Fried Chicken.
Rte. 9 (across from Zayre's) Hadley
256-8745

The un-dormitories.

Great off-campus living—indoors and out—at either of two modern apartment complexes, only minutes away by car or bike from Amherst College, downtown Amherst or UMass. Now accepting applications for September.

Brittany Manor
AMHERST
- courtesy bus to UMass and town
- 1, 2, 3 bedrm apts.
- heat & air conditioning
- wall-to-wall carpeting
- applianced kitchens
- master TV antenna
- laundry facilities
- parking, cars & bikes
- 2 swimming pools with sundecks
- 2 pro tennis courts
- lawns for softball, football, badminton

RENT: $200/MONTH
(utilities included)
Directions: East Dudly Rd.
oppos. Grist Mill off Rte. 116

Mount Sugarloaf
SUNDERLAND
- 2-bedrm apts.
- heat & air conditioning
- roomy closets, storage
- wall-to-wall carpeting
- master TV antenna
- modern kitchens
- self-cleaning ovens
- electric ranges
- stainless-steel sinks
- dishwashers/disposals
- 2-door refrigerators
- laundry facilities
- swimming pool

No Lease Required
RENT: FROM $185
CALL 413-256-8534
Directions: On Route 47.

Careers Day In CC

Reception Lounge, Room 165, 8:30 A.M.–4:30 P.M.

Morning Programs

9:00 A.M. - Room 163 - PLACEMENT - "Services offered by your placement office." Mr. Clarkson S. Edwards.

9:00 A.M. - Room 164 - GENERAL BUSINESS - FINANCE - "The Potential for the College Graduate in the Brokerage and Investment Business" Mr. Dennis Jancsy. "Employment Expectations and Job Roles in Real Estate Finance" Mr. John Swart.

10:00 A.M. -Room 163 - MARKETING - "Opportunities in Marketing" Mr. C. W. Carriuclo.

10:00 A.M. - Room 164 - ACCOUNTING - "The Big Eight CPA Firm-What it offers; Present and Future" Mr. Fred Stern. "Public Accounting - Opportunities in Small Firms" Mr. Gerald N. Aubrey.

11:00 A.M. - Room 163 - MANAGEMENT - "Production Management" Mr. Edgar Messing. "Personnel Management in Flux" Mr. Richard I. Weise.

11:00 A.M. - Room 164 - MARKETING - "Opportunities in Sales" Mr. Donald Eichman.

12:00 P.M. - Room 1009 - BUFFET LUNCHEON - "Understanding the Recruiter's Methods--A Guide to Competitive Student Interviewing" Mr. Harold E. Roush - RCA.

Afternoon Program

1:30 P.M. - Room 163 - GENERAL BUSINESS-FINANCE - "Urban-Regional Planning & Related Careers in General Planning" Mr. D. M. Gossland. "Bradley: A City Within A City" Mr. Herbert Preisener.

1:30 P.M. - Room 164 - MANAGEMENT - "Personnel Management" Mr. Arthur J. Stevens.

2:30 P.M. - Room 163 - ACCOUNTING - "Systems Analysis: An Alternative to Public Accounting" Mr. Nathan Hod. "Alternatives to Public Acctg. Governmental Accounting" Mr. Thomas Kaminskas.

2:30 P.M. - Room 164 - GENERAL BUSINESS-FINANCE - "Types of Positions Available in the Financial Area of a Large Company" Mr. Willard R. Powell. "Banking: A Career Opportunity" Mr. James H. Coffey.

3:30 P.M. - Room 163 - GRADUATE SCHOOL - Business--Mr. R. W. Kaiser. Law--Prof. Samuel Goldman. Sports--Prof. H. J. Vanderzwaag.

3:30 P.M. - Room 164 - GENERAL BUSINESS-FINANCE - "Women's Careers in Business" Ms. Sheila Connors Grove.

For the SBA Careers day, Wednesday, November 7, prominent leaders from business and industry have been invited to provide students with information that will be helpful in planning their educational programs and in securing appropriate placement after graduation.

The conference to be held in the Campus Center is open to all students. It is sponsored by the Undergraduate Advisory Council and the Business Club.

Two seminars are scheduled for each hour from 8:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m.

SBA classes have been cancelled so that all who wish might attend.

Sights Three Alternatives

Brooke For Nixon Resigning

NEW YORK (AP)-Sen. Edward W. Brooke called upon President Nixon to resign Sunday, saying it would be for the good of the nation and the Republican party.

Brooke is the first Republican senator to call openly for Nixon's resignation.

The Massachusetts Republican said he believed the President's credibility was so damaged "it might be impossible for him to recover" it.

Brooke said there seemed to him to be only three possible alternatives to resolution of the current Watergate-related crisis in the government.

The alternatives, he said on ABC television's "Issues and Answers" program, are the President's impeachment, or that he "limp along" in office, or that he resign.

In favoring resignation, Brooke said he had "reluctantly come to that conclusion" because he felt there was "no question President Nixon has lost his effectiveness as a leader of this country, mainly because he has lost the confidence of the people of this country."

"And I think therefore in the interests of this nation that he loves, that he should step down, should tender his resignation."

Brooke, who has said in recent weeks that he felt the House of Representatives should go ahead to consider impeachment proceedings, told his interviewers that he thought resignation more desirable.

"Impeachment is a very long and tortuous process," Brooke said. It could take months and possibly years." During that time, he said, "the country could be seriously harmed."

The senator, whose state was the only one of the 50 to vote for Democrat George McGovern against Nixon last year, said his mail was running against President Nixon by 7,558 to 441 as of last Wednesday. They are overwhelmingly for impeachment, he said.

The confirmation of House GOP Leader Gerald Ford as vice president, Brooke said, should precede any resignation or impeachment. He said also that it would be a mistake to hold hostage the nomination of Sen. William Saxbe, R-Ohio, to be attorney general.

Passenger Lost At 40,000 Feet

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Police began an air search Sunday for a man who, fellow passengers on a jetliner said, was sucked out a window when an engine blew up Saturday night at an altitude of nearly 40,000 feet.

The passengers on the National Airlines DC10 said the exploding engine ripped a hole in the side of the three-engine airliner, and a window over the right wing popped out.

Mrs. Mark Smith of Las Vegas, Nev., said a sobbing stewardess told her husband "she had just served the man a drink and saw him go out the window."

The crippled airliner turned back and made an emergency landing at the Albuquerque airport. Ten of the 125 persons aboard the plane were hospitalized, and 15 others were treated and released. Most were injured sliding out emergency exit ramps.

A New Mexico State Police plane and two National Guard helicopters searched the mountains and plains area southwest of Albuquerque for the passenger's body.

The missing man was identified as G.F. Gardner of Beaumont, Tex., on Flight 57's passenger list, National Airlines said Sunday.

The flight began in Miami and stopped in New Orleans and Houston, en route to Las Vegas and San Francisco. It carried 113 passengers and 12 crew members.

National made no further statement on the incident. Earlier, in Miami, National spokesman Kenneth Turpin issued this terse statement: "We have reports that a male passenger was ejected from the plane as the result of decompression."

Another passenger, Miami Beach lawyer David Drucker, said he did not see the man fly out of the window but talked to others who did. "They said he was hanging by his belt, and they tried to pull him back in, but he went on out.

MDC Classifieds

(MDC Photo by Jim Pappas)

An over-zealous pinball fanatic pays the price for attacking an innocent pinball machine: cleaning up the mess.

ADVERTISE FREE

Western Massachusetts Only

Super Ad List

FAIR EXCHANGE

A New Ad Weekly

Articles For Sale by Private Owners

10 per cent of Advertised Price only IF and WHEN you sell 10,000 ACTIVE Buyers

NO DEALER ADS

SPECIAL 2 WEEK OFFER
No Commission Charge 25 word limit —
Ads must be received before Mon. noon, Nov. 19
FAIR EXCHANGE
P.O. Box J
N. Amherst, Mass. 01059
CALL 256-0236
Clip and Mail

Cop Murders, Then Suicide

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) - An off-duty patrolman who reportedly told his father "everything was down on him" shot and killed his wife, daughter, son and four upstairs neighbors before taking his own life Sunday morning, police said.

Police said Cyril J. Rovansek, 31, a policeman in suburban University Heights, apparently killed his wife and their two children and then went upstairs in the two-family house and killed a husband and wife and their two children.

In addition to the eight persons killed in the outburst, a Cleveland policeman responding to a call was critically wounded. Cleveland police said the wounded officer, Floyd Kidner, was shot in the stomach.

Cleveland detective William Leppelmeier said Rovansek had called his father about 8:15 a.m. Sunday and "complained that everything was down on him."

Leppelmeier said that the elder Rovansek heard someone say, "Sonny, don't shoot," and then heard a shot. The elder Rovansek said he immediately went to his son's home, about 25 blocks away.

Rovansek, who had been a University Heights patrolman for 10 years, lived in a northeast section of Cleveland, in an area composed of two-family homes with neatly trimmed lawns and tree-lined streets.

Did you enjoy these events?

"Slaughterhouse-Five"
"Easy Rider"
"The Other"
"Superfly"
"Five Easy Pieces"
"Last Picture Show"

"A Mid-Summer Night's Dream"
Clean Living & NRBQ
John McLaughlin and Mahavishnu Orchestra
Art Exhibitions in S.U.
Chess - Bridge - Bowling

Have you thought of joining Program Council?

If you work some programs, you see them free!

Program Council Meeting

Monday, Nov. 5 8 p.m. Campus Center 163

In Mercy Killing

No Contest

By ALONZO CANNADY
Associated Press Writer

FREEHOLD, N.J. (AP) - The case of Lester Zygmaniak, the son of Polish immigrants whose love of family is said by psychiatrists and friends to be great, is set to go to the jury Monday.

Lester could spend the rest of his life in prison if the jury returns a verdict of guilty. The charge is murder. The case is clear-cut as far as the facts are concerned: Lester killed his brother, his only brother, his lifelong buddy.

Lester, 23, admits he killed his brother George, 26. He and others insist it was a mercy killing, an act of love taken at George's request because George did not want to live after being paralyzed from the neck down in a motorcycle accident.

The Superior Court jury of six men and six women is to hear final arguments Monday, and then is expected to get its final instructions from Judge M. Raymond McGowan.

There is no provision in New Jersey for mercy killing. The judge has rejected arguments that the case should be thrown out, and the prosecution says the jury should consider only the law.

In the testimony completed Friday, Zygmaniak's lawyers attempted to show their client was innocent because of temporary insanity.

George's wife said George made Lester promise he would not let him go on living the way he was. "Swear to God for me that you're not going to let me life like this," she quoted George as saying.

Not Much To Tell

EAST FALMOUTH, Mass. (AP) — After 46 years of staring at the ocean as the last civilian lighthouse keepers in New England, Joseph and Charlotte Hindley have an observation: It was all pretty boring.

The years atop the off-shore beacons were "very uneventful," Mrs. Hindley said after her husband retired last week. "People always try to romanticize it."

Except for a couple of close calls in a rowboat and a humorous brush with a rum runner, the years blend together for the Hindleys. About the biggest problem was learning to live with the fog horn.

"You just talked between the blasts," Mrs. Hindley said. Her husband added, "At first, they used to keep me awake, but now I'm having a hard time getting to sleep without them."

Since 1926, Hindley has been a lighthouse keeper, cleaning the towers and making sure the beacons stay lit. Now all the lighthouses are automated or manned by Coast Guardsmen.

The rum runner incident still sets Hindley to chuckling. As he tells it, he was painting the Butlers Flat light off New Bedford at the time. A rum runner sped by and splashed him with water.

"Be darned if that fella didn't turn back and come tell me he was sorry," Hindley said.

The two rowboat incidents also occurred while Hindley was at Butlers, a lighthouse without family living quarters. His wife lived on shore, and Hindley had to row in for his two days off each week.

On one of those trips, he almost got caught in the ice, but managed to maneuver his way in. On another, this time back out to the light, his rowboat capsized, and he lost his groceries.

Beyond that, there's not much to tell, but Mrs. Hindley says she doesn't regret marrying a lighthouse keeper.

Eric Splits

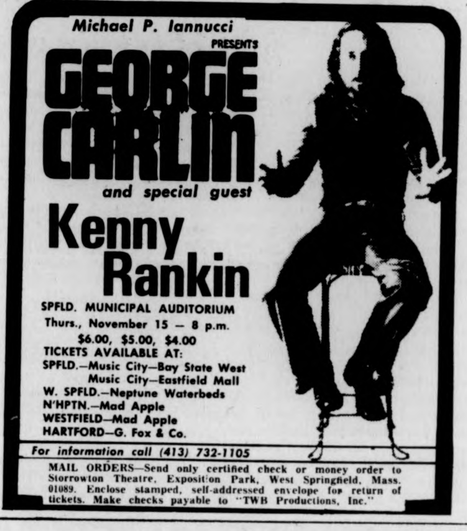
NEW HAVEN (AP) — Erich Segal, the author of "Love Story" resigned from Yale University last June 30 according to a list released over the weekend by the institution.

An associate professor of classics, Segal is reportedly working on a book about comedy at Stanford University in California.

Segal was on leave of absence last spring to the University of Munich.

Segal failed to gain tenure at Yale after a heated controversy a year and a half ago.

The university offered Segal a senior lectureship in April, 1972. The move was viewed as a compromise that would allow Segal to continue outside activities precipitated by the success of his book without the added duties of a tenured position.



Michael P. Iannucci PRESENTS
GEORGE CARLIN
and special guest
Kenny Rankin
SPFLD. MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM
Thurs., November 15 — 8 p.m.
$6.00, $5.00, $4.00
TICKETS AVAILABLE AT:
SPFLD.—Music City—Bay State West
Music City—Eastfield Mall
W. SPFLD.—Neptune Waterbeds
N'HPTN.—Mad Apple
WESTFIELD—Mad Apple
HARTFORD—G. Fox & Co.
For information call (413) 732-1105
MAIL ORDERS—Send only certified check or money order to Storrowton Theatre, Exposition Park, West Springfield, Mass. 01089. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope for return of tickets. Make checks payable to "TWB Productions, Inc."

CAMBRIDGE TEA AND SPICE
50% off everything except food & selected items
126 MAIN St. Northampton

Coffee
AND SPICE

Massachusetts Society of Professors

American Association of University Professors

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 8th

Speaker David Bartley

(Massachusetts House of Representatives)

Senator John Olver

Representative James Collins

Representative Edward McColgan

at

CAMPUS CENTER 1003

4:30 p.m. - 6:30 p.m.

Refreshments will be served

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF	Stephen G. Tripoli
MANAGING EDITOR	Mary T. Vorderer
BUSINESS MANAGER	Gilbert W. Fullerton
EXECUTIVE EDITOR	Jerald H. Lazar
NEWS EDITOR	Joan Fassnacht
SPORTS EDITOR	Stephen W. Crowe
PHOTO EDITOR	Alan H. Chapman
FINE ARTS EDITOR	Patrick Coffey
ADVERTISING MANAGER	Brent A. Wilkes
ASST. MANAGING EDITOR	Geoffrey L. Kurinsky
ASST. EXECUTIVE EDITOR	Dean P. Tucker
ASST. NEWS EDITOR	Sharon Hughes
ASST. SPORTS EDITOR	Steven DeCosta
ASST. PHOTO EDITOR	Stephen A. Ruggles
ASST. FINE ARTS EDITOR	Joyce Kosofsky

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR	Jim Lavrakas
NIGHT STAFF	Alan Chapman
EDITORIAL	Dean Tucker
SPORTS	Yogi & Tim
AD LAYOUT	Vicki Newman

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administrators read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons, and letters represent the personal views of the authors.

The Collegian subscribes to the Associated Press and the Liberation News Service. Publication of their material does not constitute endorsement.

Nixon Must Resign

President Nixon has almost entirely lost public confidence in his office. Whether or not he is guilty of misleading the nation is no longer the main issue. It is becoming increasingly evident that Richard Nixon is no longer capable of leading the nation.

Even if Mr. Nixon is eventually exonerated of his alleged wrongdoings, the fact remains that we presently have a man in the highest office in the country, and perhaps the world, who lacks the respect and trust of even his formerly staunchest supporters.

America, and the rest of the world, is going through a period in history which requires strong leadership. Mr. Nixon has lost the chance to supply that much needed leadership.

He repeatedly urges us to turn our attentions away from Watergate and towards other major national and international issues. And we should. But as long as Mr. Nixon is President, we will not be able to do so.

Those who viewed impeachment as the ultimate solution are now beginning to realize that the lengthy procedings will further cripple our nation. The only immediate remedy, then, is resignation.

Therefore, the Collegian implores Richard Nixon to act in the best interests of his country. We ask him to resign the Presidency of the United States.

Charles Camelopard

Zit Conference

The New York Times revealed Sunday that Julie Nixon Eisenhower has been on a lecture tour recently. It stated that she had spoken to Republican Groups, Chambers of Commerce and Little League Groups.

Insiders in the D.C. area have known this for sometime, but because we have been so busy running after the President there has been little time to observe his daughter swing her political bat in defense of her father.

I did manage to catch one of these Julie rallies held in Ecthyma, Nebraska, a town of 2,500 that supports itself by manufacturing complexion aids for people over twenty-five. Mrs. Eisenhower was there on a shopping trip and decided to turn it into a political rally.

She held a press conference for the Ecthyma Zits, a little league team that has in the past been strong supporters of President Nixon.

Mrs. Eisenhower wore her traditional pink chiffon dress and Mary Jane pumps with nicely turned down white ankle socks. She carried wrist length white gloves and a patent leather change purse. The first princess fielded questions from the baseballers after she made a short introductory speech.

In the speech she said she was glad to be talking to the Zits and that she always enjoyed her trips to Ecthyma. She made it perfectly clear that support for the President from Little League groups was on the rise and the nation had every right to be proud of their miniature baseballers, who although only nine to twelve years old could see through the malicious, vicious, and distorted press given the Chief Executive recently.

She also stressed that Mr. Nixon was going a little batty from all the telephone calls he was receiving, and that his friend Bob Abplanalp had called to tell him he wanted to kiss the TV set. "I guess," she said, "the pressure is affecting everyone."

The first question came from Elrod Hammerstringer, shortstop for the Zits:

"You certainly know how to dress for twelve year olds, Mrs. Eisenhower," said Hammerstringer, "my first question is what does the President do to keep his mind off his troubles these days?"

"Thank you for the compliment — these are my favorite clothes. I have thirty more sets just like this one. In answer to your question my father, the President, has been playing the piano a lot lately. He plays a lot of sad songs like "Oh Where or Where has my Honesty Gone," or, "Nothin' Could Be Finer Than To Be In Carolina." (Or anywhere else). He also watches a lot of movies. Just the other night he saw "Pink Flamingos". It was kind of a gross-out but he watched it right to the end. He was particularly enthused when the star ate a mouthful of dog yukky. He said he hoped that's what would happen to all the people that deserted him."

Mrs. Eisenhower answered some other questions from the ballplayers concerning mostly her plans to involve Brownies and Girlscouts in supporting the President.

It must be nice to have a daughter that plays an important role in her father's work.

Charles Camelopard is the Collegian Washington D. C. correspondent.

Fred Weiss

Let Them Be Heard

> "To refuse a hearing to an opinion because (people) are sure that it is false is to assume that their certain is the same thing as absolute certainty. All silencing of discussion is assumptuous of infallibility. Its condemnation may be allowed to rest on this common argument, not the worse for being common."
>
> —J.S. Mill On Liberty

There is a movement of hate and suppression going around. Clothed in the garb of enlightenment, it is being supported by many who consider themselves libertarian and progressive individuals. Its name: The Committee Against Racism (CAR). Its purpose: to repress any type of debate, publication, or teaching of a doctrine which they consider "racist".

The doctrine in question is one that is advocated by a small coterie of Professors around the country. Briefly, they believe that genetically white people are more intelligent than black people. To prove their theory they point to tons of research and tests (measuring I.Q.'s) concerning intelligence. Despite all their tests I think that their theory is worthless trash worked up by moot minds.

However, this is not the central issue at this time. Rather, what is at question is whether people, despite the ignorance of their ideas; or even the sincerity of their intentions, have the right to freedom of expression. The CAR published a half-page ad in the New York Times two Sundays ago, entitled "A Resolution against Racism." In it, various members of the academic communities around this country who signed the ad (including 16 from UMass-Amherst) urged their colleagues to support their ideas concerning "racism in the academic community", and agree with the following four declarations:

"1) Urge their University Senates to adopt measures designed to eliminate classroom racism.

"2) Urge professional organizations and societies, academic departments and editors of scholarly journals to condemn and REFUSE TO DISSEMINATE (emphasis my own) racist research.

"3) Expose the unscientific character of racist ideas so as to deny them the appearance of legitimacy provided by academia.

"4) Organize and support racist practices and ideas wherever they occur."

Despite the fact that I share the indignation of these people, I must deplore their solution to the problem. The only demand that is at all reasonable is to get these professors out of the classroom. I say this only because in a situation where the professor has a captive audience in students or power over them (grades) such a situation could be an abuse of freedom of expression.

However, when there is a movement to prohibit people from debating others who can counter their theories (such a debate was called off at Harvard a few weeks ago after organized threats of violence made the Administration regrettably scared.). When a movement comes up that tries to deny people the right to print in University publications, the anger in my heart beats the tingle of fear in my spine and causes me indignation towards those whose memories are so short.

Racism. Racist thought. Racists. What is racism anyway? It seems as though "racism" has become a idiological word in the 70's the same way "communism" was in the 50's!

It has become a cliche, overused and underdefined, abstractly referred to, and mentioned indiscriminantly. These days "racism" is abused as a term to define all sorts of action that certain movements find "harmful" or "useless".

———

To all of those who signed the petition I ask boldly: What gives you the right to determine what I have a right to read; who I have a right to hear? You who are for censorship (and don't mix it up with any pretty definitions); where were you twenty years ago during the Dennis case, during the other numerous other cases where people were not permitted to teach because their doctrines were "dangerous" because of leftist or Communist ideas), or their "sympathies" were suspect?

Don't you understand that you have no more right to censor these Professors than the right-winged red baiters had in getting rid of leftist Professors twenty years ago? Some of you will retort, "That was different.". THERE IS NO DIFFERENCE. You want to censor people. If you admit that in some cases people should be censored because their thoughts are "dangerous" then you have slipped as much into the repressive forces that for so long you said that you were fighting against.

PRECEDENCE. That soulful word. Look at it from a selfish point of view. If you "progressives" now go on record as believing that in some cases censorship is justified, then what will you say when the pressure goes the other way? What will you do if and when certain communities and some members of the academic circles try and stop Herbert Marcuse from writing, speaking or teaching? Why stop there? Maybe they'll move to get rid of Galbraith, start their crusade once more against the writing of J.D. Salinger, move to remove the early writings of Malcolm X from the University bookstores because they are "racist". Don't you see what would happen? You will have sacrificed your moral right to fight such censorship, to talk out against this kind of "blacklisting".

And what about the refusal of debate halls to those whose views you don't like, in this case because they are "racist"? Or the stopping (i.e. at Harvard) of those debates that you have no power to refuse? Will you be any better than the scum that stoned Paul Robeson with big chunks of concrete, when he tried to perform a concert in Peekskill N.Y. over a decade ago? Will you be more moral than the myriad American Legion Halls and D.A.R.'s who made life so miserable for folk singer Pete Seeger for over twenty years by denying him a place to perform?

Justice and civil liberties are not things that you can turn on and off. The only protection against repressive policies is to defend them all the time throughout the nation. I agree that these professors are foolish, but let their ignorance be scored in the trial of public opinion. Don't try and cancel their debates. Join them and beat them at those debates. They have been accused of abusing "academic freedom", yet the only real abuse so far has come from those disrupting their debates, and those trying to curtail their freedom of expression.

———

Many of the people who signed that petition to "stop racism" undoubtedly were fond of quoting John Stuart Mill when they were resisting suppression from the right in the academic world of the 50's and 60's. It is important that they remember him now. He said, "....if all mankind minus one were of one opinion, mankind would be no more justified in silencing one person than he, if he had the power, would be justified in silencing mankind."

At this time when people are getting carried away with enthusiasm and rage, it is important that they remember the words of this great libertarian, as well as the sad precedence of its violation during the McCarthy period. Freedom of expression in general, and academic freedom in particular, are both too sacred to be compromised by these zealots, carried away by the mood of the moment. Don't compromise yourself! Stand-up against this repressive movement.

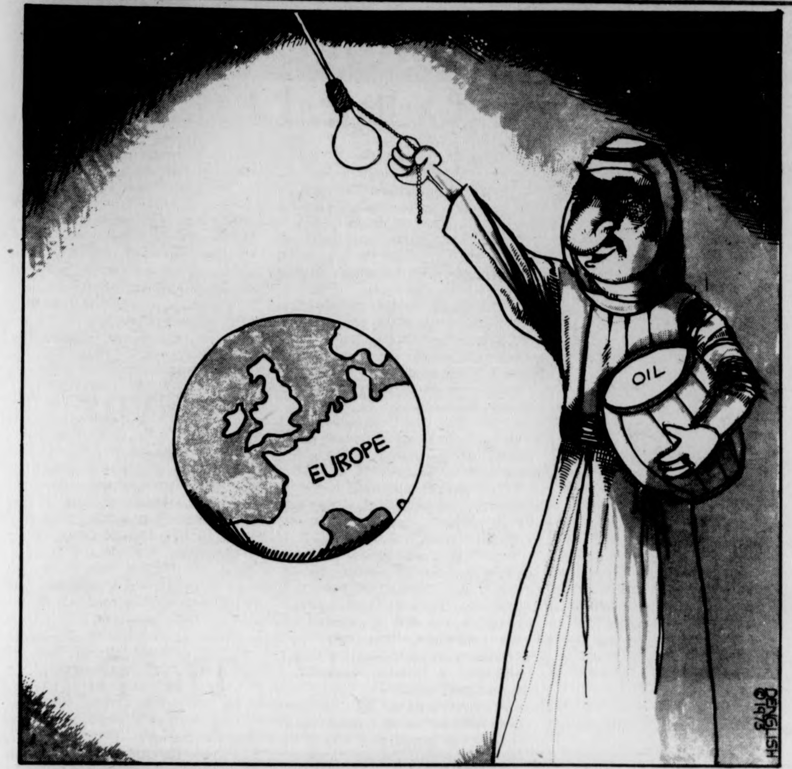
Fred Weiss is a Collegian columnist.

Letters Policy

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian welcomes all letters to the editor. They must be signed, and include the author's address and phone number. Also, all letters must be typed, double-spaced, at sixty spaces per line, and no more than two pages.

Organizations may submit letters, but they must include a name and phone number for reference purposes.

All letters are subject to editing, for either content or space, according to the judgement of the editors. Due to space limitations, there is no guarantee that all letters received will be printed.



"Lights Out."

Letters To The Editor

Impeach The President

To The Editor:

I am a past Republican, and worked for Nixon against John Kennedy in that election. Since that time I have begun to realize there are many inconsistencies in what Richard Nixon says, and the differences between what he says he stands for and what he really stands for.

It seems that Nixon maintained the Vietnam War far too long, and never really achieved "peace with honor."

Nixon has done a satisfactory job with foreign affairs, but only at the expense of the domestic issues, and the foundations of law in our country. The Russian grain deal caused food prices to soar, money has been cut from most social problems for war uses, and Nixon has always stood with the large industries against the working man in virtually every instance.

Agnew, the great patriot who could not see paying taxes, followed in Nixon's footsteps. Nixon exploits political myths and uses them to convince the middle class masses of his policies. This was shown by Nixon's campaign against McGovern's welfare policies, against Ed Muskie, and the news media. Public opinion works in slow cycles but the American public is finally starting to see the true side of Richard Nixon. Nixon does not have a new idea in his head, so I would lable him a conservative.

Nixon carries out his War on Poverty by crushing and humiliating the poor, while he and his comrades reap big dividends.

How can someone be so brazen as to declare himself a law and order candidate when he has committed every known type of white collar crime and many other types as well. Some are afraid to impeach the President due to the Mideast Conflict, but I see this as all the more reason to get rid of such a poor leader.

Nixon has never got what he deserves from the press; he deserves much worse. The press realized Nixon's trickery in his last campaign but failed to bring Nixon to task on the issues.

It is time for liberals, who forsee a someday Utopia in America, and the true conservatives who want to go back to the real principles of the founding fathers, to form a holy alliance and impeach the President.

Mark Dlugosz

The Most Destructive Creature

To The Editor:

This letter concerns the legal killings of Pelham Beavers.

Why must people place themselves above all other creatures on the earth just because of the superiority of their minds? Knowing the value of life in a way which no other animal understands is a reason in itself for humans to allow fellow creatures to live naturally; governed by the laws of nature.

Isn't it true that human beings are the most destructive creatures on earth? Haven't we polluted the air and waters to the extent that our preservation is at stake? Don't we contain in our power, the ability to destroy the earth and other planets with the nuclear arsenal we have produced? Haven't we driven more species of animals to extinction than any other force on earth? Haven't we used up most of the earth's natural resources in order to live in luxury? Who, in Hell's name, do we think we are — God?

"It's purely an aesthetic thing," said Professor MacConnell. "Discolored water is not pleasing."

Big shit! The water's a little browner than usual. In order to keep the water from turning color (it is probably perfectly safe to drink), the beavers of Pelham must be killed. Meanwhile, human beings continue to pollute the waters of the world to such an extent that one cannot even wade in many, many lakes, rivers, streams and ponds. A beaver instinctively builds a damn in order to live in the only manner he knows of. Human beings kill him because their (though it isn't only theirs) water is a bit brown. Christ, why don't they cut all the trees down so that leaves can fall into the water and decompose. I wouldn't be surprised if they did just that.

"To Hell with animals; to Hell with our enemies; to Hell with the earth's resources; to Hell with.....someday it will be our turn.

Peter C. Peterson

Arab Role In Slave Trade

To The Editor:

In response to Menachen Rosenberger's letter entitled "Blacks Should Not Support Arabs," the historical facts of the initial role of the Arabs in the transatlantic "slave" (war captives is the appropriate term) trade is elementary.

Human bondage resulting from conquest was not singular to nations north or south of the Sahara nor was it unique for that matter in the history of man. But what did make this form of bondage peculiar in all the history of the world was the nature of the bondage, which began with the preparation of my foreparents for the Middle Passage by the hands of the integumented western imperialists. Never before or since have so many people from one group been destroyed physically or subjected to a nefarious dehumanizing psychological process of which the decorticating of my heritage is but one aspect. And it is for this reason among others that I align myself with my Arab brothers (much of whose writing I have to thank for preserving my heritage) in the current Mideast crisis to stamp out the seeds of demogoguery that have begun to sprout in an atmosphere reminiscent of that yester in the heritage.

Yvonne Jackson

Money Talks

By SAMUEL HASSAN

Almost all commentaries, columns and letters I've read since October 6th praising Israel have one thing in commons. They have condemned and slurred the Arab people for being everything from barbaric to, "notorious for sitting on their behinds and letting life pass them by." This can be expected and is a direct result of deceptive newsreporting; not necessarily telling untruths but not telling all of the truth.

There is little question in the minds of Americans as to how the current outbreak in fighting came about. It is generally assumed and furthermore propagated that the Arabs attacked on the most sacred of holy days in the Jewish year. In fact, the resumption of fighting was viewed by most Americans as a sneak attack. This is simply not true!

For days, and even weeks, and on a broader scope for months and years the war has continued. Since 1948, whether on the battlefield, in the briefing room, or at the conference table, the Arab-Israeli conflict has been fought, strategically.

To say what happened on Yom Kipper was anything but a new outbreak of fighting is bending the truth. There were new strategic moves on both sides days. before. When war broke out, it was no surprise to anyone but Americans who had not been reading of tension building during the Moslem and Jewish holy days.

Labeling the resumption of hostilities as a ruthless, sacrilegious act is like calling a kick-off, a pass interception. Bill Cosby paints the picture well in his, "Toss Of The Coin" cut from his "Bill Cosby Is A Very Funny Fellow" album.

Unlike many other religions, Islam recognizes and respects all other beliefs in the oneness of God. The tossing around of charges such as sacrilege is something a good Muslim wouldn't do, and is a display of disrespect by anyone. But of course how sacred is war and killing?

How religious was it when Israel took over the city of Jerusalem, blowing up Mosques and tearing down buildings? What right does anyone have to cover the sacred streets of Jerusalem with blacktop? Why is westernized civilization replacing the agrarian and nomadic lifestyles of many Arabs? Why should the automobile replace the Camel? And if he so chooses to, why can't the Arab sit on his Camel, or his ass for that matter, and eat dates and Jaffa oranges that, by the way, have been growing since long before the state of Israel was created?

Why is there war? I can't tell you, but money talks.

Samuel Hassan is a Collegian commentator.

Another World

By TOM G. BRINE

Whether we want to accept it or not, living on a University is like living in another world. After many years of facing the real world, one easily becomes enchanted by living on a University. Most of the problems we had to face in the real world just don't exist when we live here. Are biggest problems become hassling with a professor, a graduate student, or getting along with roommates. Soon ordinary problems in the real world become gigantic affairs here. How soon we forget that this is only a temporary life for most of us. Soon we will have to go out into the real world and supposedly become a superordinary being. But unfortunately the real world does not bend to our needs. We must bend ourselves in order to survive in the real world. The real world becomes no pattsie for anyone thinking so.

Getting more to the point, this world that we live in isn't just tainted because it is deficient, it is also tainted because the two worlds oppose each other. Take the average student that is in a University and you will find that most of them had a variety of problems to tend to before coming here. In order to cope with these normal pressures, the person had to have some defenses. But after coming here, it becomes at first very obvious that most of these pressures simply no longer exists. As a result, the normal defenses built up by the person dissapates to a degree depending on the person. When the time comes fro the student to pack up his things and move on. This is when this unseen growth becomes a living nightmare. The defenses of the person are so weak that getting use to the problems of the real world can be a horendous experience.

The ironic point of a school system similiar to UMass is that one of the biggest goals is to educate the student menatlly through many ways. But because of this fake world that we really live in, it tends to contradict and to some extent, destroy this important goal that all educational institutions hope to accomplish.

Truly when we finally push ourselves to leave here, hopefully to a successful life in the real world, we will always be proud of what we have gained, but can we ever be proud of what we will have lost?

Tom G. Brine is a Collegian commentator.

Conte's Political Dodge

By ROBERT S. WEINER

As a result of President Nixon's firing of Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox for being as independent as he was told he could be, I sent a telegram to Congressman Silvio Conte and others. I then and now called for the impeachment of the President. Nixon has gone beyond all laws and placed himself above them. This is not a partisan issue, but a grave national legal crisis. Our system of laws means nothing any more if Nixon remains.

I received a letter from Congressman Conte in which he included a statement calling for investigation of the motives for Cox's firing but completely skirting and avoiding the issue of impeachment.

This is not a time for a political dodge by Congressman Conte or any other Congressman. President Nixon has shown his desire to go as far as he can until public pressure against his illegal actions becomes insurmountable, when he reverses as he did in surrendering presidential tapes. Yes, we are in a major international crisis, but recent months have shown that the legal fiber of our own country has been challenged by the actions of President Nixon.

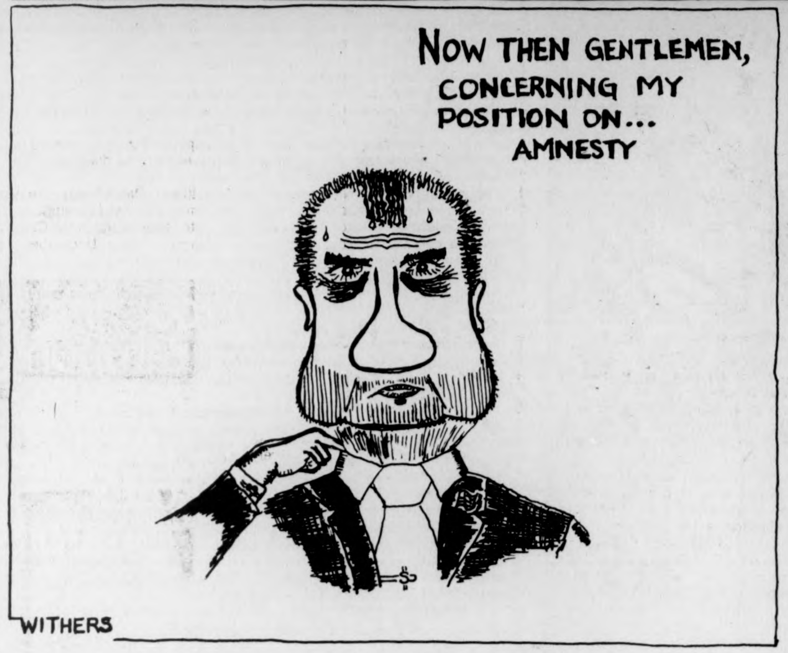
This is a system which a frustrated and deceived America can tolerate no longer.

I am mad that Congressman Conte has decided to play the game of wait-and-see-what-is-expedient on this central issue, and I call again on Congressman Conte to come out strongly for the impeachment of President Nixon.

Robert S. Weiner is former National get-out-the-vote media coordinator for McGovern Presidential Campaign at Watergate Headquarters in Washington; currently graduate student at UMass and Western Vice-President, Young Democrats of Massachusetts.

More Letters, see page 12

More Letters To The Editor



NOW THEN GENTLEMEN, CONCERNING MY POSITION ON... AMNESTY
WITHERS

Watergate Teach-In

To The Editor:

The revelations of the past year or so concerning "Watergate," related events, and various state scandals have occasioned a growing public awareness of the extent of corruption and the uses to which power is put in our system of government. The Nixon administration, because of its public record of deception, intrusions on privacy, and its involvement in everything from burglaries, tax evasion, and shady real estate transactions to bribery, foreign adventures, and suspect dealings with ITT and the Dairy organization, has become the target of the first large scale investigation since Teapot Dome and of the first serious attempt at Presidential impeachment since Andrew Johnson.

While the Nixon administration certainly is culpable for its actions, and while there are good grounds for Nixon's impeachment and removal from office, it would be extremely unfortunate if we were to view impeachment and the various other trials of Administration officials as a catharsis and cure for our system of government. Despite liberal protests to the contrary, while the present extent of corruption and misuse of power may not be a way of life for the entire government, it is neither a rare occurence, a sometime thing, or the sole property of the Republican party. What has been done to the Democrats and mainstream opponents of the Administration has been systematically done for years against the left in this country. "Watergate" is not remarkable for its existence, but rather for the fact that its purpose was to deny accepted routes to power to groups and people who regard as a matter of right their share in the running of this country.

The significance of "Watergate" and related events is the public exposure of a way of political life inherent in the present structure of American society. The corruption may not apply across the board to all government officials and social elites, namely those who are well enough off to resist the opportunities for bribery that are built into our system of government, bribery either in the form of plain brown envelopes or campaign contributions. The misuse of power does apply across the board, though, in domestic as well as foreign affairs, to Democrats as well as Republicans, to the Eastern Establishment as well as the new money and power of the West.

In light of recent and not-so-recent events, then, we are announcing the formation of a committee to coordinate a teach-in on the implication of Watergate. Especially at a time when the public media have begun to notice and celebrate the political quiescence of students, it is important to counteract the impression and reinforcement of the situation which the media create, both by organizing political activity and by bringing home to students and the public the implications of Watergate for our politics and for the kind of moral life we in this country lead.

Among the various workshops tentatively suggested for the teach-in are: Women and the Nixon Administration, the Political Rights Defense Fund, Education and Watergate, Congress and the Politics of Impeachment, Multinational Corporations and Watergate, and other workshops relating racism, labor, and detente to Watergate. There will be a meeting of the organizaing committee on Tuesday, November 6, from 11:30 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. in the sixth floor lounge of Thompson Tower. Any students and faculty interested in speaking, teaching, or helping to organize the teach-in are invited to this meeting or should call 545-0485 for further information; an announcement of the teach-in date will be made later on. There is a need for action now, and we urge all to take part in this teach-in.

Bob Higgins,
Watergate Teach-In Committee

What If You Are Wrong?

To The Editor:

I am writing this letter from Israel after a 4 months stay as a New Immigrant and Professor of the Hebrew University, as a religious agnostic, a socialist of long standing and as an active (twice imprisoned) opponent of the kind of imperialist war that was waged in Viet Nam.

I am writing this letter to the members of the academic and intellectual community who stand at the Political Left and who have begun to equate the position of Israel to that of the United States in Viet Nam and worse and to act politically on that supposition.

What I have seen in these 4 months has confirmed my beliefs. Israel is a Democratic State which is acting responsibly and humanely to improve the conditions of its disadvantaged citizens, particularly among the Sephardic Jews and Arabs. It is the fitting repository of an intellectual, spiritual and ethnic tradition that has remained viable for thousands of years and within the space of one century produced a Marx, a Freud, and an Einstein. It is forging unbreakable links with the people of the occupied territories — Gaza and the West Bank — and with Jordan itself, through encouragement of industry and trade, training in scientific agricultural methods, organization of trade unions, and encouragement of unrestricted travel throughout territories and across the Jordan River. These relationships have already sparked a true revolution among the Arabs — in economic status, in the liberation of women, in the enlargement of economic and cultural horizons. Given the gift of Peace, they would inevitably lead to a harmonious community.

But now we are at war. The governments of Egypt and Syria played an elaborate charade with the Russians. They mobilized in October of 1973 just as they had mobilized in June of 1967 and as they were ready to attack then, they were ready now and did attack.

We are at war against the governments of 100 million Arabs backed by the Russian Monolith. On the side lines sit several cynical European governments who watch the ticker tape of oil prices and equally cynical African governments who trade Jewish lives for votes in the U.N.

We say that the leaders of Egypt and Syria, Iraq and Libya, Algeria and Saudia Arabia really do want to dismember Israel, wipe its name from the roster of nations, kill its people and scatter the survivors — as Jews have been killed and scattered through the centuries. We say that they mean every word of their rhetoric.

WHAT IF WE ARE RIGHT AND YOU ARE WRONG?

IF THEY SUCCEED, HOW WILL YOU LIVE WITH YOURSELF?

Maurice Sussman
Professor of Biology
Hebrew University of Jerusalem

Cultural Exchange

To Donald M. Austern:

Re: "Political Music", Nov. 1:

Yes the Leningrad Philharmonic is coming, "direct from the Soviet Union", yes "philharmonic" means lover of harmony, and yes those unjust things do happen in the Soviet Union, but what's the big deal?

You speak as though the U.S. were a virginal paradise which should be protected from these prowling bears, but can you actually think that your government doesn't promote wars and extinguish freedom?

The U.S. has armed South Vietnam for a war that cost much more than 50,000 North Vietnamese lives, the C.I.A. fucked with Chile and managed to get its democratically elected government taken over by a fascist military junta, but this is silly! If you haven't heard this before, then you're not bound to read my advice. And if you assume the power to ignore, then how can I expect to convince you that musicians are not politicians, that they don't represent the state but their music, and that a Russian does not a communist make?

A government by its own definition has to be repressive, be it theirs or yours, but within all, under all governments, there are decent people who are just trying to live in peace and perhaps enjoy themselves a little.

But even then, would a little cultural exchange hurt you so much? Would a little assimilation hurt your national identity? Would a little good will instigate the Kremlin into more dastardly acts?

And while we're at it, where were you last year when Carlos Montoya entertained, surely in the name of that fascist Franco?

So, when the philharmonic comes, if you enjoy that type of music, why don't you go down and hear them? And if they're good at their art, why don't you give them an applause as musicians and bring a smile to their lips?

It might just make the world a little easier to live in.

Francois A. Bonneville

Nyuk

To The Editor:

I want to see Moe Howard on this campus. DVP has the chance to sponsor a speech by one of the greatest comedians of all time. I want to hear Moe. Nyuk, nyuk, nyuk, nyuk.

Bob Estellle

The Best

To The Editor:

I would like to strongly urge the Distinguished Visitors Program to bring Moe Howard, of Stooges fame, to the UMASS campus. One think that has been severely lacking on this campus is real humor, and now it seems that the UMASS community could get it from the best there is. If nothing else, maybe we will all learn to laugh again.

Paul J. Hamel

Vote Yes For Moe

To The Editor:

An an ardent Three Stooges fan I vote yes for Moe Howard. There is no doubt in my mind that he is a deserving recipient of the DVP funds.

Last year at Haverhill High School in Haverhill, Mass., a Three Stooges Film Festival was held. For the entire evening, the capacity audience filled the air with side-splitting laughter. The evening was highlighted with a pre-taped interview of Moe Howard in which he expressed his enthusiasm and his gratitude to the students involved.

One of the coordinators of the Film Festival aired another interview with Moe over the local radio station. In this interview Moe related some of the uproarious incidents that the film viewers were never able to see. Needless to say it was received with great success.

I look forward to seeing him.

Stephen J. Smulski

UNIVERSITY WOMEN
Kappa Alpha Theta is Good To The Last Drop!
"COFFEE HOUSE"
TONITE
778 North Pleasant St.
(across from WOPE)
Call 5-2735 for rides
DROP IN

Amnesty Debate Tonight

James Reston, Jr. and William Rusher square off tonight under the auspices of the DVP.

Amnesty for American deserters and draft dodgers of the Vietnam War will be the topic of a debate sponsored by the Distinguished Visitors Program (DVP) tonight at 8 in the Campus Center Auditorium.

Featured in the pro-amnesty position will be James Reston, Jr., a former political speech writer, former Chicago Daily News reporter, three year veteran of U.S. Army Intelligence and author of "The Amnesty of John David Herndon."

Reston strongly contends that, "universal amnesty for the more than 100,000 Vietnam War deserters and draft dodgers is founded on the belief that American guilt over Vietnam rests with those who planned war policies."

He also feels, "that amnesty is a key factor in effecting re-unification of the country and a restoration of faith in government."

Debating for the case against amnesty will be William A. Rusher who has served for 16 years as publisher for and contributor to William F. Buckley's National Review.

Rusher went to National Review in 1957 from the Internal Security Cubcommittee of the U.S. Senate, the body charged by the Senate with the investigation of domestic Communism.

He served for several years as co-chairman of the American Conservative Union and launched the draft of Barry Goldwater for the Republican Presidential nomination in 1961.

Rusher is one of the two regular "Advocates" on the Emmy-winning educational television-program of that name. He is one of the three co-authors of "Amnesty" a hard-cover debate on that issue.

Rusher will speak at a seminar on "The Press and Watergate" at 2:30 this afternoon in the sixth floor lounge of Thompson Hall.

School Of Ed. News

A film presentation and discussion of Outward Bound will be given by A. Don Kesselheim on Monday, November 5th at 7 p.m. in rm. 128 at the School of Education. All members of the School of Education and the larger University community are welcome.

***

The Aesthetic Center of the School of Education is sponsoring An Evening of Making Things: Batik, Masks, Sock Puppets, Musical Instruments, Creative Cooking, Super-Junk Sculpture, and much much more.

Come make things, and make things happen! Tuesday, Nov. 6, at 8 p.m. in Farley Lodge. Please bring supplies or a 50 cent donation.

***

Applications close November 5 for the Milton C. Davis Freshman prize which will be awarded to the UMass freshman with the best high school record in Latin. Applications are not restricted to students in the Classics Program. The $100 reward will be announced in early December. Applications can be picked up in Herter 537.

Study Puerto Rican Plants

A horticultural expedition to Puerto Rico is being tentatively planned for some time during intersession. The flora and fauna of the sub-tropical rain forest and other ecologically significant areas of the island will be explored.

All agricultural and biology students who are interested should inquire to Dr. George Goddard, French Hall, Telephone, 545-2249. Hopefully academic credit will be given for the trip.

PENGUIN BOOK
SALE
6,000 Penguin paperbacks
— all subjects, most titles —
Reduced in Price
TO AN UNBELIEVABLE
3 / $1.00
- SPECIAL SALE TABLES -
NOW IN PROGRESS
at
The University Store
Campus Center

Your first tampon should be a Kotex tampon.
Because only Kotex tampons have soft, rounded ends ... gentle insertion guides instead of two bulky tubes ... and more protection than the leading brand. But the only way to be convinced is to let a Kotex tampon be your first one.
If it wasn't, here's a second chance.
For a trial size package of Kotex® tampons (5 tampons), a pretty purse container, and a very explanatory book entitled "Tell It Like It Is", mail this order form with 25¢ in coin to cover mailing and handling to:
Kotex tampons
Box 551 CN1
Neenah, Wisconsin 54956
Name
Address
City
State Zip
Allow 4 weeks for delivery. Offer expires December 31, 1973. Limit one per customer.
Femininity today from Kimberly-Clark

Of Interest...

The Student Development and Career Planning Center is offering a four-session seminar for students interested in pursuing career exploration.

The seminar will focus on career goal-setting, resume building, surveying vocational interests, tracking down vocational information, and other pertinent topics related to career exploration.

The first session will be held on Nov. 8, Thursday morning, from 9:30-11:30, in room 218 of Berkshire House. Following sessions will take place on Nov. 15 and 29, and the final session on Dec. 6th.

The program is under the direction of Don Banks and Susan Krivatsy of the Center staff. If you are interested in the seminar but can't make the designated times, call in and indicate the times that would be more convenient for you. The staff will make every effort to accomodate all interested students.

* * *

Tonight at 10 P.M., WMUA (UMass radio, 91.1 FM) will broadcast a preview of tomorrow's area municipal elections.

The program is being presented as a special feature of "Focus," WMUA's weekly public affairs series produced and moderated by Kenneth Mosakowski.

Tonight's live, 60-minute program will highlight races in the Pioneer Valley cities of Holyoke, Northampton, Springfield, and Westfield.

One segment of the program will include an interview with UMass graduate student Heriberto Flores, who is a candidate for alderman-at-large in the city of Holyoke. Other segments will spotlight the subjects of flouridation and charter review, which will be appearing as referenda on election ballots in Holyoke and Northampton.

* * *

This year's SWAP Conference is being held the weekend of November 30 through December 1 at the Northfield Inn. General themes for this conference are Student Services and University Governance, to cover such topics as Housing and Food Services, Alternative Programming, and the idea of unicameral government; that is, one governing body representing the whole campus community, including students, staff, and faculty, thereby eliminating the now separate governing bodies.

Student delegates to SWAP are being chosen on a decentralized basis; applicants submit their applications to appropriate areas or organizations as designated on the application. The areas' own selection committees make their alloted number of choices and submit the names to the SWAP Committee.

Applications may be picked up at the various Area Government offices, the Student Union Lobby, the Campus Center Information Desk, and the Student Activities Office in the Student Union. The fee for SWAP is $7.50 for UMass undergraduates, and $45 for all others. Time is running short, however, and applications must be submitted by Friday, November 9. For further information, contact Sheila at 545-2351, Ari at 546-9978, or Michael at 546-6645.

* * *

A talk by Dr. Edward Teller scheduled for Monday, Nov. 5, at UMass has been postponed. It will be rescheduled at a date to be announced.

Dr. Teller is one of a number of distinguished speakers visiting the UMass campus this term through the department of mechanical and aerospace engineering Seminar Program.

The next speaker in the series is Dr. Edward Saibel, associate director of the Army Research Office in Durham, N.C. He will talk on "Tubulence in Lubrication" Thursday, Nov. 8, at 4 p.m. in Room 10 of Gunness Laboratory.

The series is made possible by a grant from the Eastman Kodak Company. The public is invited.

* * *

On the recommendation of a Five College Committee on Lecture Coordination, the Directors of Five Colleges, Inc., have authorized the establishment of an annual joint lecture fund of $5,000 to help a few five college groups with scarce resources to hold lecture series, organize symposia, or attract outstanding lecturers to the Valley. The purpose of the fund is to support five college groups--faculty and student--in mounting projects together which they could not normally do alone. The amount of a grant will not usually exceed $1,000 for an individual request. Events sponsored by the Five College Lecture Fund will be expected to involve all five colleges by equitable distribution of speakers and workshops on the five campuses and-or demonstration of full participation in planning and access to all events for those interested people from the other colleges. The Five College Committee on Lecture coordination would welcome application from qualified groups for the academic year 1973-74.

For further information concerning the fund and application information, contact Pat Crosson, Provost's Office, 545-2181.

* * *

The Commuter Lounge will open officially today. It is located in the basement (Hatch Level) of the Student Union behind the Games Room

The Commuter Assembly (C.A.) hopes that commuters will use the lounge as a study area and equally as important as a place to meet other commuters. Future plans include painting a large wall mural, installation of a gas operated fireplace, adding more furniture, and in general, warming its present austere features.

Located in the front of the lounge is the C.A. office where commuters with problems, questions and even answers can come to talk with their representatives. Office hours are posted on the front window.

C.A. meetings are held in the lounge area Wednesdays at 5:30. Some of the more important business discussed this semester has been: the expanding the bus system, purchasing additional lockers, financial assistance for the North Village Day Care Center, and how to improve communications between the Commuter Assembly as an area government and its over 7,000 constituents. Everyone is welcome to attend these meetings and to join in the discussions.

The C.A. Executive Council will be making appointments to several University and Student Committees in the near future. These committees are: the Student Union-Campus Center Governing Board, the Public Safety Policy Council, the Commuter Assembly Ways and Means Committee, and the C.A. Housing Committee. If you are interested in any facet of commuter life and in voicing your opinions on your own future, come down and talk to one of the members of the C.A. Executive Council.

Minutes of the meetings and other nnouncements will be posted outside the lounge. If you come down and no one is there, leave any questions, comments, suggestions, or four letter words in the box on the outside wall.

* * *

The Philadelphia Composers' Forum will present a concert at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 6 in the Buckley Recital Hall in the Music Building at Amherst College. The concert is open to the public without charge.

The program will consist of the following works, which have been recorded by this distinguished group: "Songs, Drones, Refrains of Death" by Crumb, "Aria" and "Fontana Mix" by Cage, and "Time Spans" by Joel Thome, who directs the group.

MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL - Hadley

Finast
FIRST NATIONAL STORES
Prices in This Ad Effective thru Nov. 10

CHECK THESE BUDGET STRETCHER VALUES

Center Cut Chuck Steak or Roast USDA CHOICE
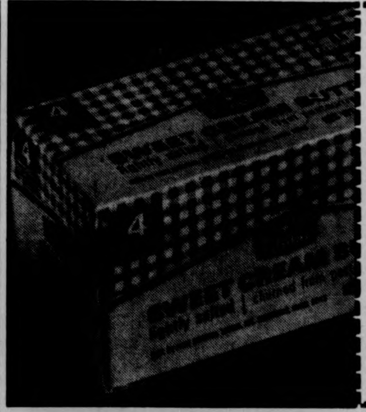
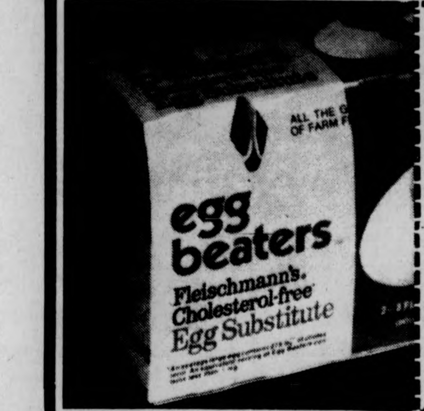
Bone In
69c lb
Cut just the way you and your family like it. . . So tender and juicy!

1st Cut Chuck Steak
USDA CHOICE
Bone In
59c lb

California Steak or Roast
Semi-Boneless Chuck
89c lb



Finast Sweet Butter
Quarters 1 lb pkg
69c
WITH THIS COUPON and $5 purchase
Limit one
FN Valid thru Nov. 10
Finast



Fleischmann's Egg Beaters
Egg Substitute 16 oz pkg
69c
WITH THIS COUPON and $5 purchase
Limit one
FN Valid thru Nov. 10
Finast

We Reserve the Right to Limit Quantities
MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL - Hadley

Maharaj Ji Is The Guru

In contradistinction to the chaos and confusion which engulfs the world today, the youth of America have turned toward various meditative techniques for a new sense of significance. One such phenomenon which has swept across this country is that of Guru Maharaj Ji who, besides amassing a huge discipleship, has aroused a great deal of interest within the press, college campuses and homes of America. Consequently a film was prepared which was subsequently honored at the Atlanta Film Festival as the best documentary and best religious film for 1973.

The film which is presently playing in Boston movie theatres, has been procured and will be shown for the benefit of the Five-College community today at 7:30 in Merril Science Center, Amherst College. Whether from a phenomenolgical, religious or personal perspective the event should be a rewarding experience for all who attend.

Rio Study All Set

One of the highpoints of the study-tour to Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, which will take place this January, will be a visit to the Museum of Sound and Images to contemplate the special collection of Carmen Miranda memorabilia. The Portuguese-born Hollywood entertainer made several films with Brazilian settings in the 1940's and set the popular image of Brazilian women in the American mind. Ever since "Flying Down to Rio" most Americans think Brazilian ladies wear bananas on their heads. The special collection consists of the films, recordings and photographs of the actress during her entire career.

The study-tour will consist of a charter flight to Rio de Janeiro leaving from New York on January 1 and returning on January 22, hotel and breakfast, and a three-credit Multidisciplinary Introduction to Brazilian Civilization. The price of the charter flight is $280, hotel rooms cost $140 for twenty-one days, and tuition for the course is $75.

Professor Roberto White is organizing the venture and will be showing slides in the Main Lounge of Grayson House at Orchard Hill on Tuesday, November 6, at 9:00 p.m. All interested students are invited to attend.

Poco Coming To N.A.S.C.

Pocco will be in concert at North Adams State College on Friday, November 9 at 8 p.m. Appearing with Poco will be Chad Stewart, formerly of Chad and Jeremy. Tickets are $4.50 and are on sale at the New Record Store in Amherst, and on the North Adams campus.

TONITE
Penny Nite
with Daddy Long Legs
at the
Rusty Nail Inn
Rte. 47, Sunderland
665-4937

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

The Sagittarian succeeds by following dictates of "inner voice." These persons seem capable of sensing trends, of being prescient about cycles, of knowing how to prepare for the future. But too often Sagittarius gets "talked out" of beliefs, becomes sidetracked, falls into trap of trying to be "practical." Sagittarius definitely is better at telling rather than being told what to do.

- - - -

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your concern about long-distance communication could be waste of emotional energy. Much is being decided in way which will not directly involve you. Key is to maintain independent stance without being arrogant. Cycle favors success.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Intuitive intellect is active. You get hunch about people, places. Efforts to close deal may be temporarily delayed. Use that time to tie loose ends. Check for loopholes. Friend may not have all necessary information. Do some personal checking.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Don't be in too much of a hurry to affix signature to document, agreement. Leave self room to investigate. Highlight versatility. There is more than one way, more than one opportunity. Know it — and expect additional offers.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Go slow. Check details. Soft-sell approach is now likely to achieve best results. Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio persons could figure prominently. You may be doing some revising, rebuilding. Get priorities in order.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Creative abilities are accented. Your ability to analyze also is brought to forefront. Gemini, Virgo persons are likely to be involved. You need balance. Avoid extremes. Don't change merely for sake of change. And don't expect perfection from loved one.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You may be seeking through rose-colored glasses. Be optimistic without becoming a Pollyanna. Family member seeks more harmonious atmosphere. Be considerate, receptive. Otherwise, you could lose what means most. Make concession in order to make home a happier place.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Perceive subtle nuances. Take nothing for granted. Double-check, especially where services are concerned. One who makes promises may be whistling in dark. Know it and review information. Relative may be completely misinformed.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Don't spend for something which is "too breakable." Tendency exixts for you to act on impulse and to have later regrets. Money is involved. Fragility seems in picture. Go for the solid, in products and persons.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You are seeing only partway. You are seeing the smoothness while the rough edges and scaping your view. Get rid of proposition which is weighty, deceptive and costs and costs. Stop procrastinating.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): New ways of looking, seeing and perceiving are necessary. Some around you are tired, lack enthusiasm and sing the blues. But you can snap out of doldrums. Do so individually, not as part of a group. Retain identity.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You make right moves; result is gain, collection, the obtaining of what you need. Leo could be in picture. Accent is on evaluating, summing up, perceiving and detecting what might be obscured. Good money news indicated.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You may be telegraphing punches. Means try not to be too obvious. A bit of discretion now becomes your ally. Give yourself choices. Refuse to be painted into corner. One in authority pulls strings to your advantage.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are dynamic, active, attractive and have a temper. You seldom do things halfway — it is all or nothing. Social activity accelerates in December. Many born under Gemini and Virgo gravitate to you. You are attracted to writing, drama and to general conflict. When things are too easy, you lose interest. Teacher has had a great influence on you and perhaps changed direction of your life.

Copyright 1973, Gen. Fea. Corp.

Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS

1 Distant
4 Shakespearian character
9 Man's nickname
12 Exist
13 Benefit
14 Macaw
15 Testify
17 Checked
19 Ingress
21 Inquire
22 Word of sorrow
24 Number
26 Liquefy
29 Distance measure (pl.)
31 Seed
33 Click beetle
34 Part of "to be"
35 Scottish cap
37 Cheer
39 Compass point
40 Pose for portrait
42 Remuneration
44 Portions of medicine
46 Let it stand
48 Caress
50 Possessive pronoun
51 Catch (colloq.)
53 Lure
55 Cushioned
58 Passageways
61 Beverage
62 Condescending looks
64 Period of time
65 Cover
66 Smallest number
67 Communist

DOWN

1 Novelty
2 Exist
3 Amend
4 Rage
5 Apparent
6 Parent (colloq.)
7 Goddess of healing
8 Genus of olives
9 Inclined laterally, as airplane
10 Native metal
11 Evil
16 Beginning
18 Doctrine
20 Affirmative
22 Collect
23 Boundary
25 Conjunction 27 One defeated
28 Lock of hair
30 Weaken
32 Small lump
36 Chart
38 Basketball targets
41 Cared for 43 Still
45 One who follows an army and sells provisions to troops
47 Youngster
49 Rips
52 Warning device
54 Light rain
55 Crony (colloq.)
56 Mohammedan name
57 River in Scotland
59 Before
60 Mournful
63 Babylonian deity

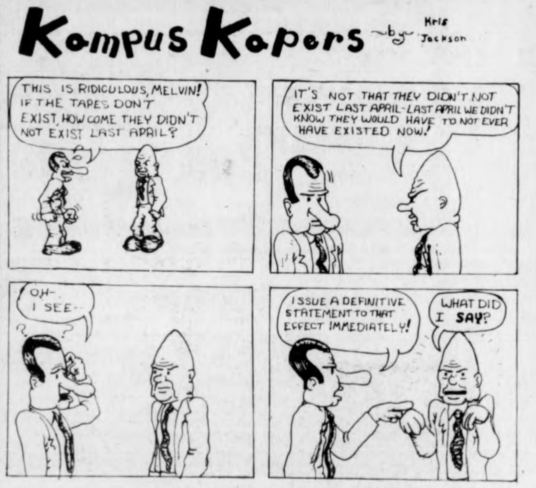
Answer to Friday's puzzle

P	O	P	■	P	A	S	T	E	■	I	S	M
E	R	R	■	A	L	A	R	Y	■	N	E	E
W	E	E	■	R	A	M	I	E	■	V	A	T
■	■	V	I	A	■	P	A	S	S	E	■	■
A	F	A	R	■	H	A	L	■	E	S	S	E
N	O	R	■	P	E	N	■	P	A	T	E	R
■	R	I	P	E	N	■	R	E	M	I	T	■
O	C	C	U	R	■	A	I	T	■	G	O	P
B	E	A	R	■	S	N	A	■	V	A	N	S
■	■	T	E	S	T	S	■	E	A	T	■	■
R	H	O	■	T	O	W	E	R	■	I	S	T
E	E	R	■	E	L	E	M	I	■	O	P	A
E	R	S	■	T	E	R	S	E	■	N	A	G

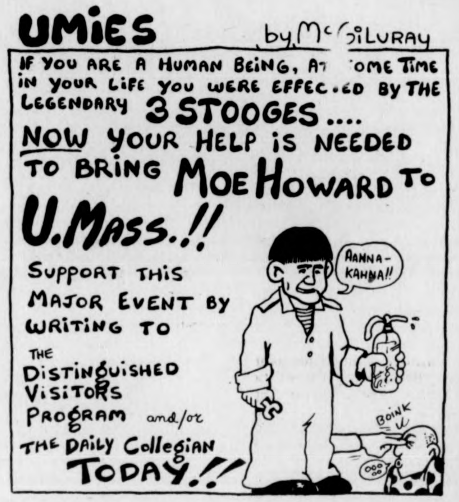
5

1	2	3	▨	4	5	6	7	8	▨	9	10	11
12			▨	13					▨	14
15			16			▨	17		18
▨	▨	19				20	▨	21			▨	▨
22	23			▨	24		25	▨	26		27	28
29				30	▨	31		32	▨	33
34		▨	35		36	▨	37		38	▨	39
40		41	▨	42		43	▨	44		45
46			47	▨	48		49	▨	50
▨	▨	51		52	▨	53		54			▨	▨
55	56				57	▨	58				59	60
61			▨	62		63			▨	64
65			▨	66					▨	67

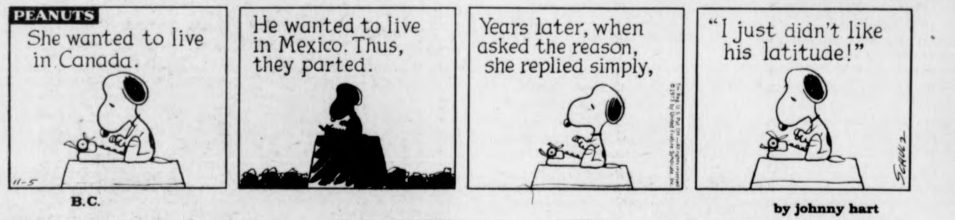
Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 5



Kompus Kapers ~by~ Kris Jackson
THIS IS RIDICULOUS, MELVIN! IF THE TAPES DON'T EXIST, HOW COME THEY DIDN'T NOT EXIST LAST APRIL?
IT'S NOT THAT THEY DIDN'T NOT EXIST LAST APRIL - LAST APRIL WE DIDN'T KNOW THEY WOULD HAVE TO NOT EVER HAVE EXISTED NOW!
OH- I SEE-
I ISSUE A DEFINITIVE STATEMENT TO THAT EFFECT IMMEDIATELY!
WHAT DID I SAY?

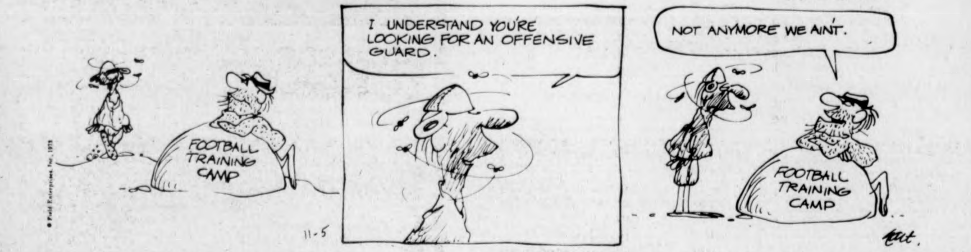


UMIES by Mc Gilurau
IF YOU ARE A HUMAN BEING, AT SOME TIME IN YOUR LIFE YOU WERE EFFECTED BY THE LEGENDARY 3 STOOGES....
NOW YOUR HELP IS NEEDED TO BRING MOE HOWARD TO U.MASS.!!
SUPPORT THIS MAJOR EVENT BY WRITING TO THE DISTINGUISHED VISITORS PROGRAM and/or THE DAILY COLLEGIAN TODAY.!!
AANNA-KAHNA!!
BOINK

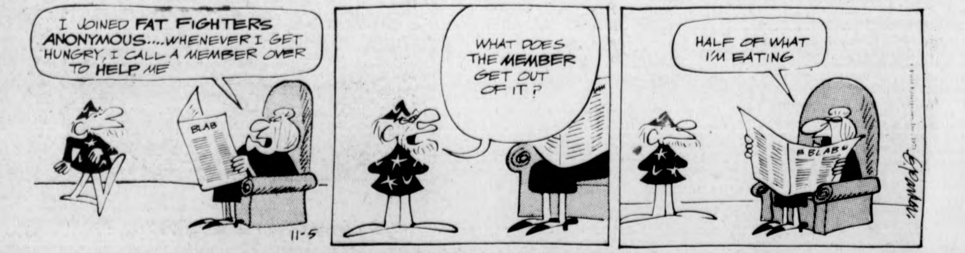


PEANUTS
She wanted to live in Canada.
He wanted to live in Mexico. Thus, they parted.
Years later, when asked the reason, she replied simply,
"I just didn't like his latitude!"
11-5
SCHULZ

B.C. by johnny hart



THE WIZARD OF ID by Brant parker and Johnny hart



I JOINED FAT FIGHTERS ANONYMOUS....WHENEVER I GET HUNGRY, I CALL A MEMBER OVER TO HELP ME
BLAB
WHAT DOES THE MEMBER GET OUT OF IT?
HALF OF WHAT I'M EATING
BLAB
11-5

Notices

ATTENTION NURSES
The Hartford Hospital will be on campus on 11-9 to talk to interested nursing students. If interested, come to the Career Planning Office, Berkshire House and sign for an interview.

BUILDING COMMITTEE OF THE BOG
Meeting today at 1:00 in 802 C.C.

CHRISTIANS
Come and fellowship with us. I.V.C.F. Rm. 903 every Mon. night in C.C. at 7:30.

COCKTAIL PARTY
Political Science Majors are invited to a social hour 11-7 T.O.C. starting at 4:00 p.m.

COUNSELING TASK FORCE
All interested persons are invited to today's meeting at 3:00 p.m. in 319 Hampshire House.

ECOLOGY SLIDE SHOW
Tonight at 6 p.m. in 428 S.U., C.E.Q. will have a slide show "Nature's Beauty" before the regular meeting.

ENVIRONMENTAL ACTION
C.E.Q. will meet tonight in 426 D S.U.B. Discussion of possible new projects to follow the Alternate Energy Converence. New people and ideas welcome.

FENCING CLUB MEETING
Meeting Monday night 7-9, WOPE, Rm. 8. Everyone come! Let's get going! Fencing every Mon. and Thurs.

FINANCE COMMITTEE OF BOG
Meeting today in 809 C.C.

FOOD SERVICES COMMITTEE OF BOG
Meeting today at 3:00 in 805 C.C.

FREE MOVIE
Satre's "No Exit", 7:15 Thompson 102, Tues. 11-6. Discussion on movie Thurs., 11-8, 8:30 Greenough House downstairs.

GRADUATE STUDENTS
Veterans Affairs Office needs more veteran grad students to tutor undergrad veterans. Standard rates paid. Apply 241 Whitmore.

GSS MEETING
Meeting tonight, 6:30 Memorial Hall. Pledges will meet at 7:15, same place. All members please attend.

INTERNATIONAL FOLKDANCING
Folkdancing today in the Cape Cod Lounge. Teaching starts at 7:30. Open international folkdancing until 11 p.m. Beginners are as welcome as others. Note new location.

J.O.E. PAROLE VOLUNTEERS
Important meeting for all volunteers, Tuesday at 7:00 in 103 C.C. Please attend for we can begin to assign kids to you!

OH RESIDENTS
May pick up SWAP applications in the Area Gov't Office, 103 Dickinson. Deadline: Nov. 9.

OHAG MEETING
Area Gov't meeting gonight, 9:30 pm in Dickinson Main Lounge. All should attend.

OUTING CLUB
General meeting tonight 6:30, 168 C.C. Trips going out Nov. 10-11: Mt. Chocohua backpack, Long Trail backpack. More information at the meeting. New Locker phone number 545-3131. Call during locker hours only.

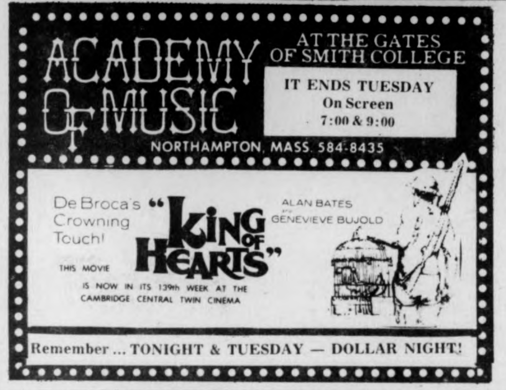
PHILOSOPHY MAJORS
Meet faculty and discuss radical changes in Dept. concerning you. Tues. 11-6, 4 p.m., Rm. 2601 Library. Refreshments.

OPEN RUSH
All UMass men invited to an open rush at Phi Mu Delta, Fraternity-Sorority Park. Tuesday, 11-6 at 8:30 p.m.

POETRY AND FICTION
Tuesday 11-6 Colonial Lounge, S.U.B., 8:00 p.m. poets Larry Russ and Marcia Hastie and writer Monte Loreneet read their work. Everyone invited. Free.

(Continued on P. 17)

A Butterfield Production
NIGHT of the LIVING DEAD
Nov. 6 7, 8:30, 10 p..m. CCA



ACADEMY OF MUSIC
AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
IT ENDS TUESDAY
On Screen
7:00 & 9:00
NORTHAMPTON, MASS. 584-8435
De Broca's Crowning Touch! "KING OF HEARTS"
ALAN BATES GENEVIEVE BUJOLD
THIS MOVIE IS NOW IN ITS 139th WEEK AT THE CAMBRIDGE CENTRAL TWIN CINEMA
Remember ... TONIGHT & TUESDAY — DOLLAR NIGHT!

"A JOY! STUNNING! BEAUTIFUL! GREAT! PICTURE OF THE MONTH! PASSIONATE! PERFECT! BEAUTIFUL! BREATHTAKING!"
A film to see again and again . . .
FRANCO ZEFFIRELLI
ROMEO & JULIET
PG
Wed., Thur., Sun. At 8:00 Only
Fri. 8:30 Only
Sat., mon., Tue. 7:15 & 9:45
ONE WEEK ONLY!
"THE WHISTLE BLOWERS"
7:15 & 9:15
RATED X
Campus Cinemas 256-6411 AMHERST-HADLEY LINE
DOLLAR NIGHTS! MON. & TUES ADMISSION $1.00 HELD OVER • DON'T MISS IT!
HEAVY TRAFFIC
3 Shows 7:15 - 8:40 10:00

MDC CLASSIFIEDS

FOR SALE

Zenith 21" console color, $150; RCA black & white console t.v., $65. Television Center, 55 N. Pleasant St., Amherst, 253-5100.
tf11-5

Zenith 21" Console Color TV $150. Philco Black & White Console TV $50. TV Center - 55 Pleasant St., Amherst, 253-5100.
tf11-5

Stereo 50 watt Lafayette, Garrard 40B, Criterion 25 Speakers, $100. or best offer. Paul 253-9700, 8:30-4:30 Mon.-Fri.
tf11-6

1963 Willy's jeep with plow $1800. 256-8896.
tf11-6

Stereo Buffs! If you want name brand stereo equip matched and sold to you at wholesale prices, call Dick at 253-2786, after 6.
tf11-9

Tape deck — Sony TC366, new cond., $160; movie camera — Yashica super 800E, new cond., $60. X-Country skis, poles for person 6 ft., new cond., $35. X-Country boots, 9 1/2, new cond., $15. Sneakers — Converse, hi, black, new $10. Hike boots — Dunham Tyrol, new cond., $10. All prices negotiable. Call Rich, 367-2880.
tf11-7

S & L Camera Imports has new cameras, lenses & other photo equip. at slashed prices. Full warranty, all makes and models. Call Ken, 6-9723.
tf11-30

Panasonic receiver & 8-track 12W & 12WRMS, $100 & Harmon Kardon cassette deck, model CAD-4, $75 or both for $150. 546-5050, Jeff.
tf11-6

Aria 12 string, yr. old, excel., good case. Want $250. Make offer. Call Bob at 7 p.m., 6-6539.
tf11-6

FOR SALE

Pot-belly stove (Globe), in perfect condition with removable top plate & foot warmer lip, 4 ft. high, cast iron. Call after 6 p.m., 586-2020.
tf11-7

35mm Pentax Spotmatic camera — 55mm F1.4 lens, Weston light meter, case, top condition, 1½ years old, $160. Stuart, 1-283-9731.
tf11-9

Toyo 8-track recorder-player with 9 push buttons, 2 VU meters, auto-level control, list $139, will sell for $80. 256-6271 evenings.
tf11-9

LOST & FOUND

Man's wedding band, 16k white gold, KEK-RGG-6-26-71. Contact Bob, Chem. Tower 1311 or call 665-3949. Reward!
tf11-8

Can't find a film that makes sense? You've found the answer ! . Art 111.
tf11-5

INSTRUCTION

The Arms Race: A 1 credit Minicourse, Phyics 190D. No prereq. MWF 11:15, HAS 121, Nov. 12 - Dec. 12. Call Prof. Guyer, 545-0933 for details.
tf11-14

Learn to love going to the movies — just like old times, only better. ! . Art 111.
tf11-5

WANTED

5 to 6 bedroom house in Wendell, 2 kitchens, 2 bathrooms, full cellar with fireplace. 256-8896.
tf11-12

Late 60's Valiant or Dart, pref. 6 cyl., must be in excellent condition, up to $1,000 for right car. 546-4572.
tf11-9

AUTO FOR SALE

1967 V.W. Squareback. Needs transmission, will sell for parts, has inspections sticker, good engine and body. Make offer, call Dave 549-0353.
tf11-7

64 Austin Healy Sprite, good mech. cond., new trans. and brakes. $500, invested. B.O. or $300. Jack 546-4753.
tf11-5

1967 Chevrolet Bis. Mechanically compl. Revised new tires $600. Reasonable! Call 549-6397 after 4 p.m.
tf11-6

1966 Ford Gal.; 6 cyl. 240 engine good condition. Must sell. Call Bruce, 256-6021.
tf11-6

1966 Dodge Dart, 6 cyl., r. & h., sticker, standard trans., 2 good snows, very economical, $400. Call Ralph, 546-7941.
tf11-6

1968 VW Squareback, excellent condition, recent engine and brake work. Call 586-1350.
tf11-6

9 passenger Dodge, 1970 wagon, doorgate, air, 318 V-8, 40,000 mi., excellent mech. & body. Must see, $1,700, will bargain. 665-3222.
tf11-7

67 Barracuda, smashed front end, 383 4 sp. Mallory distributor, 4 barrel carburator, new starter, motor, $225 takes it. Sandy 581-2019.
tf11-6

1972 MGB-GT 26,000 miles Abarth exhaust, AM-FM stereo, luggage rack, driving lights, Michelin Xas. 549-0716. $2750.
tf11-6

AUTO FOR SALE

1969 Cortina, new shocks, rebuilt trans., needs brake work, $300. 546-4572.
tf11-9

Stick six Pontiac, good heater, sticker, $325; Porsche conv., needs work, best offer; Saab 965, $400. 323-7327.
tf11-8

1968 VW Bug, many miles but runs well, asking $400. 549-0102 at dinnertime.
tf11-9

1972 Datsun 510, 2 dr., auto, radio, 15,000 mi., rustproofed, snowtires with rims, $1,700 or best offer. Call after 5 p.m., 267-3984.
tf11-7

1964 VW, good condition, $150. Ask for Tom, 549-1506 after 5 p.m.
tf11-16

1972 Javelin SST, must sell quickly, moving to NYC, V-8 auto., p.s., radio-tape, 4 new tires and snows, $1,500 or best offer. Call 253-9668.
tf11-9

1967 Barracuda, smashed front end, 383 4-speed, Mallory distributor, new starter, motor, $225 takes it. Sandy, 584-2019.
tf11-16

1966 Toronado, air, & full power. Also ~~1966~~ Impala SS, both in ex. cond. Call after 5, make offer. 549-0924. They must go this week.
tf11-6

1965 Inter. Travelall, new clutch, 6 great tires (2 snows), 4 on floor, huge heater, new front brakes. Incredible deal for $525. Call 549-1528, David.
tf11-7

TRAVEL

Going by air? Let us handle your pre-flight, in-flight and post-flight arrangements at no cost to you. Call campus rep., 253-3162 evenings.
tf12-12

ENTERTAINMENT

Need a band? Call Stan's Bands, represents all area groups. For musical entertainment call 256-0316.
tf11-7

Hey groovy guys and gals — I can play your favorite music just the way you like it. Call Steve the D.J. for your party, 467-2842.
tf11-9

M. vocalist wanted immediately for recording date. Contact 773-3591 for more info.
tf11-6

ROOMMATE WANTED

Rm avail Dec. 31. Female to share apt. with 2 others in Puffton, $73-mo includes heat. Call 549-6197 bet 4-6, keep trying.
tf11-5

Roommate wanted for furnished apt. near campus. $100 per month. Lease until May 30. Call 253-9863.
tf11-7

Female to share 1 bdrm. Presidential apt. beginning Jan. Semi-furnished, $87.50 - mon., incl. utilities. Call 549-4463.
tf11-16

Roommate to share spacious 4 rm. apt., quiet, relaxing atmosphere, $60 per mo. Call after 6 p.m., 527-5466.
tf11-9

Roommate wanted for furnished apt. near campus, $100 per month, lease until May 30. Call 253-9863.
tf11-7

Roommates needed — three singles, own entrance, interesting neighbors. Call Howie, 256-0643.
tf11-9

ANNOUNCEMENT

Film festivals that make sense. First run art films and best classics. Popular prices. ! . Art 111.
tf11-7

Notices Cont.

(Continued from P. 16)

R.N. STUDENTS
Important meeting of RN students group, with election of officers. Please come! Monday, 11-5 at 7 p.m. Morrill IV Converence Rm.

SPECTRUM DEADLINE
is November 17, if you haven't stopped to see us, S.U. 407 already. 545-2023. How about a call??

TELEVISIONS
Color and B-W, Calculators, Electric typewriters, 10 speed bicycle, Boston Bruins tickets, Fifths. UMass Veterans Organization Raffle. C.C. Tues-Fri, 11-2 p.m.

UNIVERSITY JUDICIARIES
University Judiciaries will be meeting tonite in 811 C.C. at 7:30. All advocates and judges are requested to attend.

WHO IS GURU MAHARAJ JI?
Honored as the best documentary and religious film for 1973, will be shown only today at Amherst College in Merril Science Center at 7:30. We've seen the posters; we've heard the rumors; now let's learn the facts.

LOST
One orange flowered case containing four rings of sentimental value. Call 546-6649 anytime. Reward!

Name: Violin, ½ St. Bernard, ½ Golden Retriever. Orangey coat, has brown leather collar, big black nose, big smile, and rabies tag (says Montclair, N.J.) call 584-8605.

FOUND
Detail map of New York in black plastic bag. Call 5-2773 or come in to the Textbook Annex.

Last week wandering around Moore House. A basset hound, female, about a year old. Call Carl 665-3428.

FOLKLORE SOCIETY
The Valley Folklore Society will hold a Ceilidh on Thursday, November 8, at 7:00 p.m. in 911-915 C.C. Everyone invited to bring your voices, instruments, whatever to join the fun and sing.

Corrections

The hike for the benefit of residents at Belchertown State School planned for Saturday, Nov. 17 will be a 20 mile hike; not 25 as reported in last Friday's COLLEGIAN.

* * *

Due to a mix up in the printing the hours that Amherst Chinese Food, 162 Main Street were incorrect in last Friday's "Poor Richard's".

The restaurant is open: Monday and Tuesday: from noon till 10:00 P.M. Closed Wednesday. Open Friday and Saturday from 12:00-12:00. ACF is also open on Sundays from 4:00 till 10:00.

MDC Classifieds
75¢ first day
50¢ each additional day

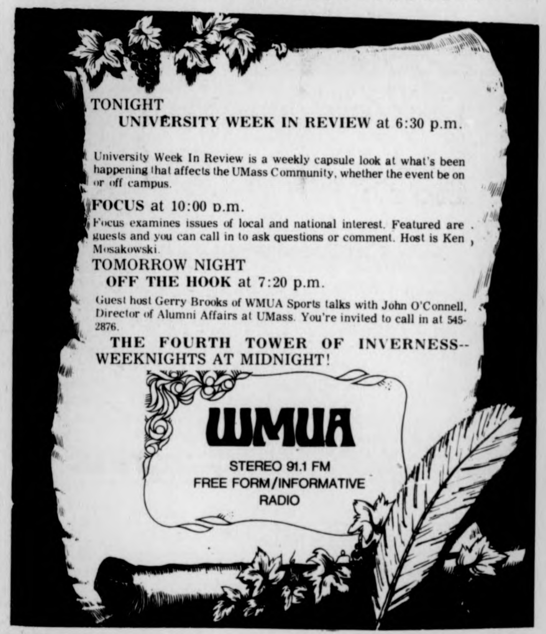
24 HR TEL 733-5131
SHOWCASE CINEMAS 12345
We Honor MASTER CHARGE
ROUTE 5 RIVERDALE RD WEST SPFLD
R SEVEN BLOWS OF THE DRAGON
Eves. — 7:30-9:20
Sat.-Sun. — 2-3:45-5:25-7:35-9:15
LAST DAYS Electra Glide IN BLUE PG
Eves. — 7:30-9:40
Sat.-Sun. — 1-3-5:10-7:30-9:50
CHARLES BRONSON The STONE KILLER R LAST DAYS
Eves. — 7:30-9:30
Sat.-Sun. — 5:30-7:30-9:30
WALKING TALL JOE DON BAKER R LAST DAYS
Eves. — 7:20-9:45
Sat.-Sun. — 2-4:20-7:20-9:40
WE'RE ADDING A NEW CINEMA WATCH FOR GALA OPENING

Television Tonight

5:00 ENSIGN O'TOOLE "Operation: Daddy." (18)
5:30 THE REAL McCOYS "Money In the Bank." (18)
THE LUCY SHOW "Lucy and Bob Crane." (22)
THE ELECTRIC COMPANY (24) (57)
HOGAN'S HEROES "The Booty Prize." (27)
HOGAN'S HEROES "The Flame Grows Higher." (30)
NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS (40)
5:55 WHAT'S HAPPENING UPDATE (3)
6:00 NEWS (3) (8) (22)
I SPY "Pinwheel." (18)
ZOOM! (24) (57)
PETTICOAT JUNCTION "Spare That Cottage" (27)
TO TELL THE TRUTH Garry Moore, host (30)
WILD WILD WEST "Night Of the Underground Terror." (40)
6:30 NEWS (3) (22) (30)
ABC EVENING NEWS (8)
CHILDREN ARE PEOPLE, TOO (24)
SAFARI TO ADVENTURE (27)
LOUIS LYONS: NEWS AND COMMENT (57)
6:55 NEWSBEAT NEWS (40)
7:00 MOVIE "In Like Flint." (3)
TRUTH OR CONSEQUENCES Bob Barker, host (8)
DICK VAN DYKE SHOW "Sol and the Sponsor." (18)
NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS (22) (30)
YOUR FUTURE IS NOW (24)
MOVIE "D. Q. A." (27)
ABC EVENING NEWS (40)
THE REPORTERS (57)
7:30 POLICE SURGEON (8)
GREEN ACRES "The Deputy" (18)
THE HOLLYWOOD SQUARES Peter Marshall, host (22) (30)
WOMAN "Alternatives to Traditional Marriage." (24)
POLKA With Frank Knight (40)
WALSH'S ANIMALS (57)
8:00 THE ROOKIES "Code 261" (8) (40)
NOTRE DAME FOOTBALL (18)
LOTS OF LUCK "The Shrimp." (22) (30)
NEWSPORT JAZZ FESTIVAL NEW YORK: A TRIBUTE TO LOUIS ARMSTRONG (24) (57)
8:30 DIANA "Take My Father, Please!" (22) (30)
9:00 HERE'S LUCY (3)
NFL MONDAY NIGHT FOOTBALL GAME (8) (40)
MOVIE "Yours, Mine and Ours." (22) (30)
TIME'S LOST CHILDREN (24) (57)
BORIS KARLOFF PRESENTS THRILLER, "The Poisoner" (27)
CAMPAIGN '73 (57)
9:30 THE CARROLL O'CONNOR SPECIAL "Three For the Girls." (3)
BOOKBEAT "A Thousand Summers" (24)
10:00 ELECTION PREVIEW (24)
NEWS (27)
MARTIN AGRONSKY: EVENING EDITION (57)
MANTRAP (27)
WOMAN (57)
11:00 NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS (3) (18) (22) (27) (30)
11:30 MOVIE "Trial" (3)
JOHNNY CARSON SHOW (22) (30)
11:45 NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS (8) (40)
12:15 COLLEGE FOOTBALL '73 (8) (40)
NEWS (18)
1:00 TOMORROW Tom Snyder, host (22) (30)
1:15 NEWS (8) (40)
1:35 NEWS, WEATHER (3)
2:00 NEWS (22) (30)



TONIGHT
UNIVERSITY WEEK IN REVIEW at 6:30 p.m.
University Week In Review is a weekly capsule look at what's been happening that affects the UMass Community, whether the event be on or off campus.
FOCUS at 10:00 p.m.
Focus examines issues of local and national interest. Featured are guests and you can call in to ask questions or comment. Host is Ken Mosakowski.
TOMORROW NIGHT
OFF THE HOOK at 7:20 p.m.
Guest host Gerry Brooks of WMUA Sports talks with John O'Connell, Director of Alumni Affairs at UMass. You're invited to call in at 545-2876.
THE FOURTH TOWER OF INVERNESS-- WEEKNIGHTS AT MIDNIGHT!
WMUA
STEREO 91.1 FM
FREE FORM/INFORMATIVE RADIO

MDC CLASSIFIEDS

HELP WANTED

Innovative persons to teach undereducated adults, inner city dropouts, Spanish speaking and Indian children in the U.S. Must be able to work outside traditional, classroom. If you're a senior getting a degree in education, English, languages, Sociology, etc. talk to a VISTA representative in the Placement Office on Nov. 5-9.
tf11-8

In your job search, you'll run across all kinds of glossy pages and promises that so-and-so company wants graduates with liberal arts degrees. Last year's seniors who chose either VISTA or Peace Corps ARE AT WORK in hundreds of projects both here and in 59 countries overseas. Teaching English as a foreign language; working in tuberculosis control programs, smallpox, and malaria eradication projects; acting as agricultural extension agents; developing alternative schools; counseling in drug crisis centers and many more. Demand for these assignments is, of course, great. It's extremely important for you to apply before December. To underscore this, VISTA & Peace Corps representatives will be here during this semester only; on Nov. 5-9 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., go to the Placement Office and sign up for an interview.
tf11-9

Teach Math & Science where the Earth is flat rocks are evil, and turtles are sacred. As a Peace Corps teacher, you'll get some tough questions like: How does the turtle Vishnu swimming in his sea of milk and pushing up the tree of life fit into your theories of the world, Mr. Bob? You don't put legends like these down because they are a vital part of your student's culture. One of the challenges of teaching Math & Science in a devloping country is to create acceptance for these subjects within the frame work of ancient traditions. A Peace Corps, VISTA representative will be in the Placement Office on Nov. 5-9. Sign up now for an interview.
tf11-8

Poster Stuffers for Hampshire County area. Car is preferable but not necessary. Call Dave. For Friday and Sat. 256-0236.

HELP WANTED

Jobs in Business Consulting — Frequently the difference between a margical & a going business in the inability of the former to hire consultants. Business graduates working for VISTA & Peace Corps are helping to change that situation. If you have a BBA, MBA or MPA, you should look in to VISTA & Peace Corps. it's experience you'll get with no other organization. A representative will be in the Placement Office on October 11 & 12. Sign up now for an interview.
tf11-8

Civil Engineers, Overseas: to advise on dam construction, irrigation systems, water works. At home: to prepare cost estimates on housing, develop funding proposals, review architect's plans, etc. Peace Corps - VISTA engineers get much more responsiblity and experience than their peers who go to work for private engineering firms. Talk to a representative in the Placement Office on Nov. 5-9, sign up today for an interview.
tf11-8

VISTA & Peace Corps have hundreds of job openings for seniors. From Agriculture to Zoology. Get experience you can find in no other organization. Reps will be in Placement Office soon. Sign up now in Placement for an interview.
tf11-9

Nurses. If you're graduating soon and want to break away from the regiment of training for a year or two, talk to VISTA & Peace Corps. a representative will be in the Placement Office on Nov. 5-9. Sign up today for an interview.
tf11-8

Student Employmt in Yellowstone & all US Nat'l Parks. Send for booklet $2. Arnold Agency A206 E Main, Rexburg, Idaho, guaranteed.
tf11-9

HELP WANTED

While organized recreation is generally regarded as frivolous in this country, the reverse is true in most developing nations. As a Peace Corps volunteer you will develop programs, train teachers, teach coaching techniques, coach national teams. You'll be regarded as someone with an important skill to share. Get more information. Peace Corps will be in the Placement Office on Nov. 5-9. Sign up now for an interview.
tf11-8

Jobs for French & Spanish Majors — Spanish speakers to work as VISTA's in barrios in the Southwest & as Peace Corps teachers & resource people in Latin America. French speakers to work in African Franchophone countries with Peace Corps. These are positions of responsibility and sensitivity. Talk to a representaive in the Placement Office on Nov. 5-9. Sign up for an interview.
tf11-8

Students pt. time & full time available, apply in person United Paper Box, 528 Water St., Foot of Cabot, Holyoke, Ma.
tf11-12

WANTED TO RENT

Wanted 1 or 2 bed room apt. close to U.M. Would like to move in anytime between now and Jan. Call 256-0303.
tf11-6

Dream house, three or more bedroom house, close to campus or bus lines. Jan. or Feb. Call 546-5136 or 6-5131.
tf11-5

FOR RENT

Apt for one — Avlbl. imm. lg brm. sm kit. full bath. storage, pkg. 220 N. Pleasant, 2 nd fl of lg house. All utl. incl. $145. 549-3736, 253-8742.
tf11-14

PERSONAL

A Workshop in Yarn making and Natural Plant Dyeing will be held Nov. 3, 2 p.m. at Friends Meeting House Rt. 63, Leverett. Call 549-3635.
tf11-5

If You Think He's Guilty — Honk! Bumper Stickers — Also, Behind Every Watergate is A Mill House; Nixon Has a Staff Infection; Impeach With Honor. 75c each; 3 for $1.75. Freedom Center, 355 Boylston, Boston 02116. List available.
tf11-4

Impeach The Cox Sacker. Bumper stickers. Also — One Down - One To Go; Don't Blame Me, I'm From Mass; Impeach Nixon. 75c each; 3 for $1.75. Freedom Center, 355 Boylston, Boston, 02116. List available.
tf11-4

Do you spend precious time hitching to a part time job to help support a messy roommate who eats your food, blasts hard rock, interrupts your privacy? If you can be a neat, quiet, conscientious housekeeper & cook in an older home, you can change your environment to a private room with board. 549-0641.
tf11-9

Stony Brook! Will the guy who has the bag of sweaters marked Ellen 702 Field, please get in touch with her, 546-6866.
tf11-6

Support your local bus driver.
tf11-12

PERSONAL

5 Coll. Canada ski trip — 4 days, 3 nites. Hotel, breakfast, dinner. Transportation Apres ski party, all for $85. Jan. 22-25. B. Baggins Travel, 256-0146.
tf11-15

I love Fellini, Costa-Gravras, Bogart, Daffy-Duck, Kubrick, Orson W. — U. Art 111.
tf11-7

METEP/Integrated Day Teacher Ed. Program interviews for next semester, Fri., Mon., Tues., Nov. 2, 5, 6. Sign up at Room 210, School of Ed.
tf11-6

SERVICES

Photos — passports, visas, etc., 48 hour service! Sizes and number negotiable, $3.00 minimum! Call Steve at 546-5443.
tf11-30

Get a load off your mind. Truck for hire, call Gary or Joyce, 256-6376.
tf11-7

Research — thousands of topics, $2.75 per page. Send $1 for mail order catalog. Research assistance, inc. 11941 Wilshire Blvd., Suite 2, L.A., Calif. 90025.
tf12-12

SPEED TYPIST
In Ware, at Collegian printer.
8:30 p.m.-1:00 a.m.
Call Charlotte
967-6888

Typing — dissertations, theses, term papers etc. Fast, accurate, references, IBM Selectric, good rates, call Tom 546-1165.
tf11-12

Experienced electronic and electrical repairs. Reasonable rates. Call 545-2308, Mark 415 or Bill 401. Keep trying.
tf11-15

(Collegian - AP Wirephoto)

RUDE?--YOU BET IT'S RUDE!! Three sports giants "deuce" WUMV's Marty Kelley at a recent conference. Kelley's rude face, dotted with ecthymas, is almost as rude as his red rash. Kelley is currently in the final semester of his BDIC in Sanitary Engineering.

Sunday Night Football:

"It's Crude...It's Rude"

By MIKE KNEELAND

Sunday night football has struck UMass and most fans say there has never been a more unique sport's broadcast in media history.

The varsity games are aired by WUMV-TV in the Blue Wall on Sunday nights. The play-by-play action is called by none other than the infamous Marty Kelley, easily the most controversial student on campus.

His "color man" is Earle Barroll, a smooth talking senior with a good knowledge of the game. He admits, however, that he hasn't memorized the starting squad members.

Kelley and Barroll provide their spectators with a better comedy show than the Jonathan Winters Comedy Hour.

It's the beginning of the UConn game and Kelley is characterizing the game as a great rivalry. "You've heard of Army-Navy......you've heard of Boston College-Holy Cross......and you've heard of St. Joseph's School For The Blind-Clark School For The Deaf!"

Many Blue Wall spectators are caught off guard by Kelley's crude, yet comical comparison. One man is laughing uncontrollably. He spills his beer on his lap.

Kelley and Barroll call the game straight until it becomes apparent that the UMass team is going to embarrass itself. A high center snap shoots over punter Andy Dutkanicz's head and he tries to run the ball to salvage a few yards.

"Oh my Christ," Kelly yells while laughing. "I don't know if Dutkanicz's parents are off the boat yet but they'd like to see this!"

A few plays later a UMass back breaks through the UConn defensive line and appears to be on his way to a 15-yard gain.

"I don't believe it," quips Kelley. "I think he gained......wait a minute.....he fumbled!....he fumbled!" At this point both Kelley and Barroll are laughing from their pot-bellies. So aren't the Blue Wallers.

The game, from a UMie's point of view, is getting even duller. Yet Barroll and Kelley are getting more funny......and more crude.

Kelley: "I don't think they could draw flies to next week's Vermont game."

Barroll: "Marty, you're jock rash would draw more flies."

The game is nearly over. Kelley asks his audience to excuse him for a minute since he has to urinate.

This game they have "gone easy" on their favorite joke, football manager Mike Brophy.

"He's a 55-year old man who's actually 20," says Kelley while off camera. Barroll says that one of the season's highlights occured during the Harvard game when Brophy tripped with the water bottles on the 40-yard line.

During the final tense seconds at Rutgers a time-out was called. Brophy ran to the team with the water bottles.

"Oh, no!" Barroll yelled. "It's Brophy to the huddle. What's Brophy doing in there?! Oh my God, what's he going to say to them?"

At a recent press conference Kelley asked Coach MacPherson what he tells Brophy to say when he enters the huddle with the water bottles. "Nothing you can write about," the coach answered.

In a rare serious moment Kelley and Barroll say they're very earthy because they're dealing with Blue Wallers. "We laugh at UMass because it deserves to get laughed at."

Spyker Leads Booters

(Continued from P. 20)

at the end of the first half. UMass goaltender Paul Peloquin was called for charging with under a minute left, setting up a penalty shot for Vermont. Time was running as the free swipe was being set up. Bob Cleverdon took the kick and was frustrated as Peloquin made a diving save. The goalie could not hang on to the ball and it came squirting out on the rebound.

Cleverdon got his foot on the bound and this time pushed it past Peloquin who was on the ground after his initial effort. As fate would have it, however, the goal did not count, as time had run out just after Peloquin's first key save.

Vermont did manage to avert a shutout at 10:41 of the second half on a tally by Greg Bartlett. On the play, Doug Rose took the initial shot and, as Peloquin came out of the net to grab the roller, he was hit by Bartlett. The ball slithered away from his grasp to settle at the Vermont attackman's foot. With an open net in front of him, Bartlett couldn't miss, and he banged it home.

Again, much of the credit for victory goes to the defense for its steady play against almost overwhelming odds. In the first half, the wind was almost strictly cross-field, with a slight advantage to UMass on several gusts. The breezes played a different tune in the second half as a switch in direction gave Vermont the decided advantage. With the Cats bombing away, the defense maintained its poise consistently turning away scoring bids.

The game was marred by injuries by both UMass goalies. Starter Carl Vercollone was hurt in the first half, as he was kicked in the side while making a save. He was replaced by Peloquin who was injured on the UVM scoring play, bringing Vercollone back into the fray. Though obviously hurting, Vercollone was superb, turning away 11 shots. Peloquin garnered four saves in his short appearance, including the key one on the penalty kick.

The next game for the booters is Wednesday when they take the hike down Route 91 to take on Springfield College.

(Staff Photo - Joe Martins)

The steady play of the UMass defense was once again the key factor in Saturday's 3-1 victory over Vermont. Another important test for the Minutemen takes place Wednesday when they take on Springfield College, rated sixth in New England.

Not A Libber; Just A Nut

NEW HAVEN (AP) - She's not doing it for the sake of the women's liberation movement. She's doing it because she's a football nut.

Judy Carlson, a 5-foot-4-inch blonde, is Connecticut's first certified football official.

"I'm about as far away from a Women's Libber as you can get. I still appreciate a gentleman opening the door for me," said Miss Carlson in an interview.

The idea of officiating started at her Super Bowl brunch last January when, she quipped:

"Wouldn't it be fun to be a football official."

Miss Carlson studied hard and this fall the Yale-New Haven Hospital x-ray technician passed the New Haven Football Official's Association examinations with perfect scores.

"I think that I will stick with the midget leagues and freshman games that are assigned to new officials. I've got a lot to learn," said Miss Carlson, who counts skiing as her only participation sport.

"Books tell you the rules, but I think a man's logic for football is much better than a women's logic for football. Most of the male officials have played the game."

Officials were concerned that the foul language that often eminated in the course of bone crushing play on the gridion might be offensive to Miss Carlson.

"When you x-ray broken bones and work in a doctor's office, the language you hear isn't always church-like," she answered.

Crew Winds Up Fall Season

By MARK DLUGOSZ

The spirited UMass Crew braved cold winds and rough water on Sunday in holding their annual Hadley-Henley Meet at their boathouse on the Connecticut River Sunday afternoon. This meet was an intersquad contest involving the men's, women's, and freshmen crews. Some UMass crew alumni were also involved in the meet.

The first race of the day involved eight boats representing all the classes except freshmen, and included an alumni boat. It was a close race between the alumni boat and the senior boat, and the senior boat won.

The second race involved three but the freshmen boat triumphed. freshmen boats. The freshmen who practiced in the morning made up one boat, while the other two boats were comprised of afternoon practicing freshmen. It was a close race but one of the afternoon freshmen boats won with the morning boat close behind. One of the oarsmen in the morning boat had lost his mobile seat at the start of the race so he and his complementary oar partner could not row very hard. Since the race was close anyway, the morning freshmen feel they would have won except for the mishap. But they will have to prove their point in the spring.

The third race involved the freshmen with the best practice attendance (who by a strange coincidence turn out to be the best oarsmen), against the varsity woman's team. It was a good race The girls showed better form, but the freshmen more strength.

Coach Vespoli said that this was one of his "better" groups of freshmen if not his "best." As far as physical size goes they are the best but Coach Vespoli says that "their future hard work and practice will bear out their mettle." The freshmen had a stiffer program in their introduction to rowing and Coach Vespoli feels it paid off.

The UMass crew will now train indoors until March when they will hit the river again. The object of any crew is to get good size oarsmen to start with, and then develop their maximum strength per size and increase their skill with the boats. The winter conditioning is thus an important aspect of the UMass crew if they are to repeat as Dad Vail Champions.

Notice

There will be a meeting for all candidates interested in trying out for the Stockbridge basketball team on November 8th (Thursday) at 5:30 p.m. in 249 Boyden.

1974 Calendar Pads
and Date Books

A. J. Hastings,
Inc.
Newsdealer & Stationer
AMHERST, MASS.

Baba Ram Dass to speak

Mon., Nov. 5 7:30 p.m.

Mahar Aud.

sponsored by Room to Move

A Debate on dvp
AMNESTY
James Reston Jr.
and
William A. Rusher

Mon., Nov. 5, 8:00 p.m.
Campus Center Auditorium

(Staff Photos - Steve Ruggles)

FRANKIE AND THE UMIES.....Halftime entertainment at the UMass - Vermont was provided by that latest hit rock group. "Frankie and the UMies." Frankie McInerney, left, Randy "Rocco" Bromery, center, and Yogi "Yogo" Berra sang "Sidewalks of New York" to the roar of the UMass crowd.

Eaglets Prey On Pups, 20-10

By GEOFFREY KURINSKY

Could this be the year the BC Eagle jinx returns to UMass?

Well, if yesterday's game between the two squads' freshman gridders was any indication, it may be here already. The score was 21-10, the Eagles perched on top.

It must have been the jinx. The little Minutemen played an excellent football game, especially defensively. In fact the Eagles spent the entire first half (with the exception of the last play of the half) on their own side of midfield.

The defense was that good.

The Eagles tallied in the first half on a blocked punt return and that was it.

Linebacker John Toner was all over the field. He was the individual standout of a standout unit. If only he had picked up the towels in the locker room, it could have been said he did it all. In the course of the afternoon he intercepted a pass and forced two fumbles among other things.

Toner got things started for the Pops as he picked off a Ken Smith aerial. A few plays later and Bob Peck (an offensive standout of the afternoon) rambled in from the five yard-line. Following the conversion, the score was 7-0.

The Minutemen moved the ball well in the first half, using screens and draws to balance off the defensive rush extremely well. Ironically, however, the only other tally of the half was by BC as they blocked a Brian McNally punt.

Gary Weller picked up the pigskin at the 20 and was not to be denied. To be consistent with their first half offensive performance, they failed on the two-point conversion attempt. (Mike Godbolt couldn't get to the outside.)

The Eagles began flying in the third period. They got set up in golden field position after John Ingram intercepted a Brain McNally pass at the UM 23. A face-masking penalty on the interception made things even rosier (first and ten on the 12). Ken Smith ran the option to the 1 yardline, then snuck it into the endzone on the next play and, after a successful two-point conversion (Smith-Godbolt) the Eagles were ahead to stay 14-7.

The Minutemen moved again after kick-off. The biggest chunk of yardage being chewed up by Bob Peck's 35 yard burst up the middle, setting the Minutemen up at the BC 35.

A Brian McNally-Stan Zaksowicz pass (15 yards) put the Minutemen at the 10. Two short runs and an incompleted pass later, left fourth-down. Greg Sprout responded with a 17 yard fieldgoal.

The fourth quarter was a nightmare for the Minutemen as they constantly found themselves operating from the shadows of their own endzone. Twice they held the Eagles on the UMass 2, once on a fumble recovery and once on a QB sacking exhibition.

J. R. Mullen was the key on the back-breaking third BC touchdown. First he picked off a McNally pass, literally stealing the ball from receiver Stan Zaksewicz on the BC 40. Three plays later he scampered around right end for twenty-one yards, setting the Eagles up with a first-and-goal on the one. From there it was easy. Kenny Smith burrowed in to ice the game 21-10.

For the 1-1 Minutemen it's on to Storrs next Friday afternoon to face UConn.

Football Scoreboard

PRO	COLLEGE
Philadelphia 24, New England 23	UConn 27, Rutgers 19
Oakland 42, NY Giants 0	Harvard 34, Penn 30
Dallas 38, Cincinnati 10	Rhode Island 40, New Hampshire 16
Chicago 31, Green Bay 17	Maine 14, Bucknell 0
Houston 31, Baltimore 27	BU 30, Northeastern 14
Denver 17, St. Louis 17 (tie)	Ohio State 30, Illinois 0
Minnesota 26, Cleveland 3	Michigan 49, Indiana 13
New Orleans 13, Buffalo 0	Alabama 35, Mississippi State 0
Atlanta 15, Los Angeles 13	LSU 51, Mississippi 14
Miami 24, NY Jets 14	Oklahoma 34, Iowa State 17
Detroit 30, San Francisco 20	USC 50, California 14
Kansas City 19, San Diego 0

UMass Sportsweek

Monday, November 5
Cross Country vs. New Englands	Boston	1:30
Tuesday, November 6
Volleyball vs. North Adams State	HOME	4:30
Wednesday, November 7
Soccer vs. Springfield	Away	2:30
Thursday, November 8
Volleyball vs. Smith	Away	7:00
J.V. Soccer vs. Westfield State	HOME	2:00
Friday, November 9
J.V. Football vs. Connecticut	Away	2:00
Saturday, November 10
Soccer vs. New Hampshire	Away	2:00

Patriots Nipped...Giants Zipped

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Tom Dempsey's 12-yard field goal with 38 seconds remaining fired the Philadelphia Eagles to a 24-23 comeback victory over the New England Patriots Sunday.

The Eagles, however, had to block a 47-yard field goal attempt by New England's Jeff White with four seconds left before they could claim victory. Philadelphia fell behind 17-0 in the third period before quarterback Roman Gabriel rallied the Eagles offense with a pair of touchdown passes to tight end Charlie Young.

The Eagles went ahead for the first time at 13:14 of the third quarter when defensive end Will Wynn picked up a fumbled punt attempt and ran 24 yards to score.

The Patriots, however, got a break when the Eagles' Kermit Alexander fumbled a punt return and Brian Stenger recovered for New England at the Philadelphia 17. On the fourth play, Sam Cunningham swept around end to score from the four and send the patriots back in front 23-21.

White's extra point was blocked, however, setting the stage for the Eagles' field goal victory.

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Ken Stabler threw for two Oakland touchdowns and Marv Hubbard ran for two others Sunday, helping the Raiders overpower the New York Giants 42-0.

The Raiders' defense, which intercepted four passes, prevented the Giants from moving the ball over the midfield line until four minuted from the end of the game.

Oakland made its season record 5-2-1 and stayed on top in the American Conference West. The hapless Giants are 1-6-1 and last in the National Conference East.

Steelers-Skins On TV Tonite

PITTSBURGH (AP) - The Pittsburgh Steelers will be bidding for their 13th consecutive regular season victory at home when they host the Washington Redskins Monday night in a National Football League game.

"We look upon this as a championship game and I'm sure the Steelers do to," said Redskin running back Larry Brown, a Pittsburgh native.

The Steelers, minus two injured backfield members, take a 6-1 record into the nationally televised game. They lead Cleveland by 1½ games in the American Football Conference Central Division.

Washington, 5-2 after an upset loss last week in New Orleans, holds a one-game edge over Dallas in the National Conference Eastern Division.

Though surprised 19-3 at New Orleans, the Redskins of Coach George Allen still have the best road record in the NFL over the past three seasons. They have also won four straight games on Monday night television.

Espo's 2 Lift Bruins

BOSTON (AP) — Phil Esposito fired his 15th and 16th goals of the season, scoring a point in each of Boston's first 12 games, to lead the Bruins to a 4-1 National Hockey League victory over the California Golden Seals.

Esposito, a left-handed shot, shifted his stick to the right side to baffle California goalie Gilles Meloche for the Bruins' first goal on a power play in the opening period.

Esposito, who also has 12 assists in 12 games, clicked for his second of the game with just 43 seconds remaining. He has scored a point in 23 consecutive games dating to last season.

The veteran center, who underwent knee surgery during the playoffs last spring, leads the NHL in a bid for his fifth scoring championship in six years.

Chris Oddleifson collected his fifth goal of the season, tipping in Darryl Edestrand's blast from the point to give Boston a 2-0 lead in the first period.

TEN PIN BOWLING
at Boyden Gym
50¢ per string
MONDAY - FRIDAY
4:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m.
(except during league play)

Ruggers Named All-NE

By MDC STAFF

Four members of the UMass rugby club have been named to the New England College Rugby All-Star team. Larry Tebo, Bill Wilen, Toby Lyons, and Brian Skanes will team up with sixteen other college players from schools such as Norwich, Holy Cross, Boston College, and New Hampshire, to name a few. Jim Tkaick of UMass has been designated an alternate.

The team will play the New England Union All stars, a team chosen from over 33 non-college teams, in Boston on November 8. Another all-star team will be chosen from that match and will represent New England in Philadelphia in December.

Porsche Audi Introduces

New Model

The Porsche 911 Carrera, a street version of the winner of the Twenty-Four Hours of Daytona and other world famous road races, has been introduced for sale by the Porsche Audi Division of Volkswagen of America, Inc

Like the other 1974 models in the much-improved 911 series, the top-of-the-line Carrera is a sports-car-driver's sports car.

The Carrera can be distinguished immediately from other Porsche models by a rear 'spoiler', an aerodynamic device that improves the car's road holding ability, and distinctive side Carrera lettering. The Carrera offers a sizable list of standard equipment designed to add to performance or styling. A 2.7 liter (164 cu. in.) engine developing 167 hp gives the Carrera a top speed of 140 mph.

Gridders Claw Cats, 27-7

By BILL BALLOU

The best-laid plans of mice, men, and football coaches sometimes go awry, and if you're the University of Vermont it usually means a loss.

It did Saturday.

The Catamounts, playing strong defense and scoring on a 65 yard run by running back Sam Blood, had held the stronger Minutemen to just 13 points in the first half. They trailed 13-7, and elected to kick off rather receive starting the second half. This gave them the wind for the final quarter, and the wind was blowing.

When UMass, with the ball and the wind, couldn't score in the third period, things looked bright for the first Vermont win over UMass since 1954.

But that's when things starting going amiss.

Fred Kelliher took over as UMass quarterback on the first play of the period, as Peil Pennington had sustained a throat injury on the previous play and couldn't call signals.

Kelliher, doing the best UMass passing of the season, hit on four out of four passes throughout the final period, including two for touchdowns, and led the Minutemen to their 27-7 victory.

"There's no way this one was any easier than it looked," said Dick MacPherson after the game. "I'll tell ya, when we had the ball and the wind and couldn't score and they had the wind for the fourth quarter, it looked pretty hairy."

The key to the UMass win, which gives them a 5-4 record, was a tough defense that held Vermont to just 188 yards on total offense, 65 of which came on the Cats' only scoring play, the Blood sprint in the first period.

MacPherson and defensive coordinator Bob Pickett still aren't sure just what happened on the play, a quarterback option pitch from Bob Bateman. That play is Vermont's main weapon and the Minutemen had worked on stopping it all week. Whatever, the defense buckled down and held the Cats to just 71 net yards in the second half.

Offensively the Minutemen got an improved performance out of their ground game. In fact they got about a 55 times better effort Saturday than against UConn the week before.

They picked up 110 yards on the ground led by Jim Torrance's 54. MacPherson finally had something to smile about. "I'm encouraged by the way we ran, especially when you consider that, from what we had seen, Vermont had one of the best defenses against the run of any of the teams we play."

(Staff Photo - Gib Fullerton)

STAND-OFF --Rookie Rich Jessamy stares at two Vermont defenders as he looks to go around end. The Minuteman running attack was much improved on Saturday as the backs dashed for 125 yards on the ground. Jessamy, in his first varsity appearance, had 23 yards himself.

But again the brunt of the scoring lay with the pass. Pennington and Kelliher combined to hit on 14 of 30 passes, four of which went for touchdowns (two from each) and one for a two point conversion (Pennington to Tim Berra).

Double coverage on Berra held him to just one reception, but it left the other receivers open in many instances. Gary Mika and Ed Hajdusek had five receptions each, while Bill Wolfe, injured in the first half, had three. Mika had two TD's, Hajdusek and Wolfe one apiece.

INCIDENTALLY: "Salute to Yogi Day" drew 11,300 to the game, an excellent crowd. The legendary Berra got a tremendous welcome when introduced to the crowd at halftime....Freshman Rich Jessamy ran for 23 yards, Vermont's Blood picked up 119....UMass is now 3-2 in the Conference.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Minutemen

SPORTS

Spyker's Two Goals Lead UM Booters Past Vt.

By STEVE DeCOSTA

If you were awake at 10:30 Saturday morning, you probably saw the rainbow.

And, if you were at the Boyden fields at the same time, you would have seen Bill Spyker find the proverbial pot of gold.

Spyker, a junior transfer from Colorado State, making his first varsity start, netted two goals to lead the Minutemen past Catamounts from Vermont, 3-1.

The UMass booters wasted little time in breaking into the scoring column. Unlike previous games, in which they have a tendency to nap in the early going, the Minutemen struck quickly. With only 1:18 gone, Al Lomg took a UMass throw-in and sent it, in the air, to the front of the UVM net. Spyker went high in the air, got a head on it, and pushed it past Jeff Jones, the Vermont goalie, for goal number one.

Spyker really hit the jackpot early in the second half when he connected on an unassisted goal at the 8:48 mark. Bill dribbled down on the right, put himself in almost an impossible position to score, and promptly cut the bad angle by lifting a precision shot into the far upper corner, for goal number two.

Tom Coburn and Tony King then took up where Spyker left off. After sitting out the beginning of the second half, they were inserted into the lineup with about twelve minutes left. Then, at 41:32, King gathered in a pass at midfield, manuevered past three defenders, and tapped a centering pass to Coburn, who nudged the ball past Jonas for goal number three.

Scoring aside, the most important play of the game occurred

(Continued on P. 18)

Thomas & Co. Race NE's Today

By SCOTT HAYES

Some thirty-eight cross country teams will line-up in Boston's Franklin Park at 12 o'clock today, running for the honor of New England champion.

UMass will be one of those teams, with hopes of finishing among some of the best teams in New England.

Yankee Conference individual champion Randy Thomas will lead the Minutemen harriers in their quest for their second championship of the season. Tom Maguire and Bill Gillin will be hoping to finish right behind Thomas. Paul Segersten, who captured sixth in the Yankee Conference meet nine days ago, will be trying to get closer to team leader Thomas, having finished thirty-seven seconds behind him in the YanCon meet.

Freshmen standouts John McGrail, Paul Doiron, and Chris Farmer hope to contribute to the success of the squad.

Thomas and company will find stiff competition from Northeastern, which handed UMass one of its three losses in a 30-25 decision.

Mike Buckley beat Thomas earlier in the year in tri-meet competition, but the Huskies' success was a result of their ability to separate Maguire and Gillin. Maguire finished third in the NU meet, but Joe Crowley, Ken Flanders and Bill Rowe finished ahead of Gillin to give the second-ranked team in New England the needed advantage.

Northeastern was ranked second in the recent New England College Poll, gathering 114 first place votes. UMass was right behind, compiling 112 votes. Harvard was top-ranked with 126 votes.

Northeastern and UMass are the favorites in today's meet, as Harvard will not be competing.

UConn and Dartmouth, ranked fourth and fifth in New England respectively, will be battling for the third spot in the meet. Both are new challengers for the New England title.

Bruce Clarke of UConn will be among the top individual runners, and another duel between him and Thomas may develop. So far this season, Clarke won in the UConn-UMass meet, but Thomas retaliated by defeating Clarke in the YanCon meet.

(Staff Photo - Joe Martins)

PRAYING FOR REIGN - Cross country coach Ken O'Brien takes his harriers to Boston this afternoon to compete in the New Englands.

Dartmouth will be led by junior Chris Peish and freshman Dick Axtelle. The Indians are a young team, similar to UMass, and could be an underrated contender.

Providence rounds out five of the top six New England teams competing in the meet. The Friars are led by Tom Smith and freshman Mike O'Shea.

UMass will be defending its junior varsity championship of a year ago. Although Northeastern and Providence are the pre-meet favorites, UMass should be among the top teams. The JV harriers haven't run in Franklin Park since the second week of the season, but are in better condition than at that time. The favorites for the meet were based on times, and because UMass hasn't recently run the course, the pre-meet statistics may be misleading.

CROSS COUNTRY CORNER — Of the 38 teams running in the New Englands, about 8 will enter only two or three top runners, representing the small schools.

The only difference in today's lineup will be Mike Gillen, running in place of Tom Wilson. Wilson is the best JV runner and will be rested for the IC4A's, a week from today.

Inside Sports

- Eaglets Prey On J.V.'s
- "Sunday Night Football"
- Crew Wraps Up Season
- Football Scoreboard
- UMass Sportsweek

Earle Barroll

An Impressive Legacy

If you're into basketball you're into this: The date is somewhere around Christmas 1975 and the place is the War Memorial Auditorium -- seats 15,000 -- in Buffalo. The event is a holiday basketball tournament and the field -- the hosts Canisius, last year's NCAA runnersup Memphis State, Virginia of the Atlantic Coast Conference with Wonderful Wally Walker if he doesn't sign by then and yes, UMass.

Call it prestige with a capital P. And then get a load of this: That within the next four years the Minutemen themselves host a holiday tourney at the Springfield Civic Center featuring Ohio State, Centenary, West Virginia and Duke for starters. In a word this is BIG, very big. It's the embodiment of what three N.I.T.'s in four years and the right recruits at the right time can do for a basketball program..

For the Jim Towns, the Steve Mayfields, the Joe Semders, the Mike Stokes' and the freshmen of the next two years this is boss in basketball. But for a couple of guys named Skinner and Pitino--well, all they can say is that they had an awful lot to do with the above mentioned rubbing elbows with some of the best in the game. Their work will have been completed after this season. And the framework of UMass basketball excellence--past, present and future--can only thank them for the legacy they will leave behind.

Al Skinner and Rick Pitino are inseperable, period. And to me it seems only yesterday they were freshmen on an 18-1 Peter Broaca-coached squad. We've seen them perform, we know their presence on the court. You mention Pitino, you speak of N.Y.C., circa contemporary City slick times. His floormanship unmatched. Skinner? His artistic grace. The line: "if he wants the pros bad enough.."

Save that for the Cage.

What has really interested me though about these two is above basketball. It involves Pitino and Skinner as humans, something this society too often neglects in looking at athletes. It is why Al Skinner is now a captain, why Pitino is more than just "the other senior" as he refers to himself as being.

"I guess I have come a long way since my freshman year," said Pitino after practice last week. And indeed he has -- from unfortunate associations with a group of seniors who found it very manly to influence the freshman against the coach. "But I'll tell you something," he continued, "I have built an awful lot of respect for coach Leaman."

Skinner on the other hand never had problems with Leaman. Actually his only concern was being compared with a guy who turned out to be (a) the best influence he had up here and (b) one of the best basketball players in the world.

"I never listened to the others," he said. "I was fortunate to be associated with a very successful person in Julius Erving. He told me to listen to the coach, that I would prosper by that. And he would make me a better player. He also told me to speak to him man-to-man whenever I had problems or disagreed with him. To date it's worked out fine."

Off the court Rick and Al have good naturedly been on each other big since their freshman year. The match was a natural. "We kid each other on and off the court," explains Pitino, never a man lost for words. "For four years now we've never let up."

"But you have to respect the other person before you kid him," said Skinner. "We both respect each on the court and it has carried off into our regular lives." As a captain Al is quiet, assertive only when the case call for it. He leads by his ability and mere presence and by a complimentary Pitino who has a unique and effective way with verbiage on the court.

And between them they have a unique way in placing UMass in the same breath with Memphis State, North Carolina, Missouri...

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOLUME CI, ISSUE 42 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1973

Recyclable

Weather

As the fog rolled over London...

This page ran off the press...

How does that grab you, Karen?

Rusher, Reston Square Off

By JO ANN DOMINICK

"Many people feel discussion of amnesty at this point in time is surrealistic, unrealistic. We have had to wait for the end of the war, the P.O.W.'s to return, information on M.I.A.'s and the end of the draft. These previous conditions are met; how we have to wait for impeachment," said James Reston Jr. a former political speech writer and reporter and author of the recently published book, "The Amnesty of John David Herdon", Reston spoke against William Rusher in a DVP sponsored debate to approximately 250 people in the CCA last night.

Rusher who is publisher of the National Review and regular on the PBS program "The Advocates" opened by stating, "I spoke two weeks ago before the cadets at the Air Force Academy, at Colorado Springs, against amnesty. I felt like I was speaking to the college of cardinals on a case of Catholisism."

Rusher said, "What is the obligation of a person in the country towards its laws if for reasons of religious or moral scrupples he can't obey?"

Rusher further stated "It may well be a person must come to a moment when he feels he should disobey. The country doesn't suspend the law in question or lose the right to punish the person."

Debating for "universal blanket amnesty" Reston said "It is the only just solution, also the only practical solution. Men are not going to come back to the country if there is any suggestion that they are at fault or are criminals, they will not accept an act of grace from a government that has fallen out of grace."

Reston felt "It is a good time to talk of amnesty. I have great hopes for President Ford, Albert." He said 'former' President Nixon's amnesty was a cover-up policy. Nixon said there were fewer than 100 deserters from the armed services. Yet in 1970, the Pentagon statistics revealed there were 100,000 deserters."

Reston further stated that in the Vietnam War only 30 percent of eligible men served as opposed to the 70 per cent during World War II.

Reston also said "Anyone in exile today is in a weak position, not physically or mentally, but in that he is cut off from the country."

Reston, in writing his book, said that he experienced the loneliness and the uncertainty of exile, it is not the image many Americans have of a relaxed life without cares.

Rusher feels there are different types of people in exile: those who wants out of society and don't want to go home; the rabid U.S. haters, who wants to come home to promote damage to the U.S., and those who obeyed the laws of their parents and not the U.S.

Reston also looked back historically, saying "There is no precise parallel in history for arguing pro-amnesty, but neither is there any parallel in U.S. history to the Vietnam War."

Countering this point, Rusher said "There has never been in the history of the U.S. general unconditional amnesty for draft dodgers or deserters in wartime history. There has been amnesty granted, but it was in peacetime and that was a manifestly different situation."

In summing up their positions Rusher said "Blanket amnesty which treats all alike won't work you need an orderly system of juripurdence or executive clemency. You must pay the price for crimes committed when you come back, but this cannot be done under blanket amnesty."

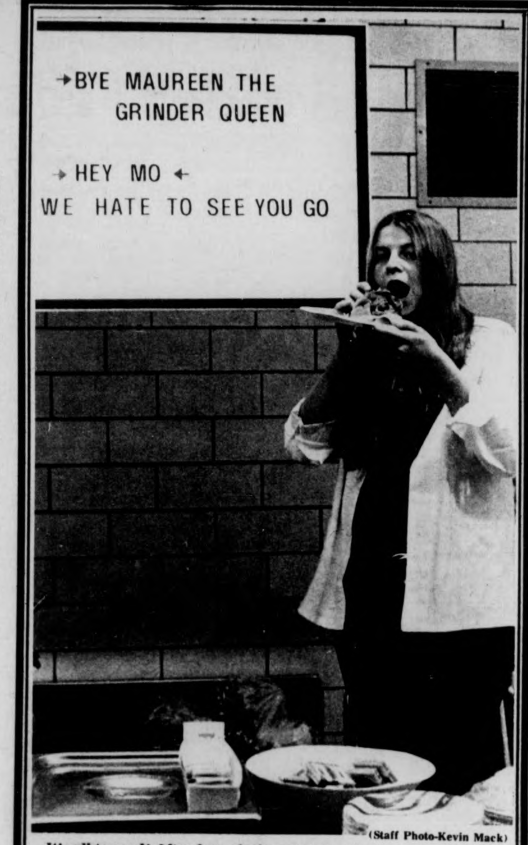
(Staff Photo-Dennis Conlon)

William Rusher, publisher of the National Review (left) and James Reston, Jr., author of "The Amnesty of John David Herdon" (right) held a debate on the amnesty issue last night in the Campus Center.

N.E. Champs

The 1973 New England Cross Country champions display the plaque symbolizing first place. Members of the UMass squad are (from left to right) Coach Ken O'Brien, Tom Maguire, co-captains Bill Gillin and Randy Thomas and Paul Segersten. Looking on from behind are Paul Doiron and Mike Muska (partially hidden).

(Staff Photo-Joe Martins)



→BYE MAUREEN THE GRINDER QUEEN
→ HEY MO ←
WE HATE TO SEE YOU GO

(Staff Photo-Kevin Mack)

It's all too sad! After four glorious years under her royal wing, the end has come. She will put down her crown of a corn beef hero and never grace the Hatch again.

Maureen The Grinder Queen

Queen Steps Down

An era has ended! If you think tradition at UMass took a bag when they changed Metawampe to a Minuteman you're in for yet another shock!

For four years, "Maureen the Grinder Queen" reigned over the front line of the Hatch. She has graduated for the rest of her last semester to the inner recesses of the Hatch Bakery.

Like all traditions Maureen made people feel a little more secure. Her name is almost synonymous with, "chili and rice" or a "vegie sandwich." Being an Art major she always served up a little creativity with a "hatch special". The menu would often read:

"Don't be tame buy chicken chow mein."

"Get rid of the meanies buy franks and beenies."

or

"After you've smoked your stuff try some beef stroganoff."

This December Maureen will leave the Hatch forever and teach in her hometown of Ludlow. At UMass nothing remains the same forever so from the Hatch workers and friends:

"Goodbye Mo, we hate to see you go."

Rents And Fees Rejects D.C.Hike

By ROBERTA McCANN

The Student Senate Rents and Fees Committee voted unanimously last night to reject a proposed meal ticket price increase for next semester. If accepted, the cost of a ten-meal plan would have increased from $284.75 to $304.75. A fifteen-meal plan costing $321.75 this semester would increase to $341.75 for next semester. Despite the increase in price, present food services would remain the same.

Vice Chancellor for Administrative Services, Thomas Campion, Ken Dean, a staff associate to Campion, and Director of Food Services, Joel Stoneham, presented reasons for the proposed increase to the committee.

Campion, who announced the increase told the committee, "I'm convinced that these changes are needed. I know they are distasteful. But we must do them if we are going to be doing our jobs."

The Rents and Fees Committee cited several reasons for their rejection of a meal ticket price increase including management inefficiency, inefficient use of labor, failure to communicate with students effectively and lack of credibility of Food Service personnel.

The meal ticket price increase can still go into effect if the Board of Trustees approves it over the rejection of the Rents and Fees Committee. Under the Wellman Document passed by the Trustees last Spring, any decisions affecting the student-funded Dining Commons should be approved by the student government. The Rents and Fees committee will propose a motion to reject the increase to the entire Student Senate Wednesday night for passage.

The Food Services are seeking the increase to offset a $289,000 deficit caused by a failure in projecting the budget to consider the unprecedented jump in food prices since this Spring. the increases in meal ticket prices would raise $380,000 in revenues. The Food Services are seeking ways to eliminate roughly $89,000 from the deficit by efficiency controls and better management. $200,000 of the $380,000 raised from student meal ticket revenues would take care of the remaining $200,000 deficit for fiscal year July 1973 to July 1974. The remaining $180,000 would be expended toward the food Services past debt.

Campion assured the Kents and Fees Committee that, if the proposed increase was projected too high, the surplus money would be applied to any possible increase in the future.

"I went hysterical!"

Car Invades Apartment

By JERRY LAZAR

Linda Guimond thought it was the stove exploding.

Lillian LaFrance thought it was the ceiling caving in.

And the residents of Eugene Field dorm interrupted their Saturday night partying at 8:30 to find out what the hell caused that deafening noise.

It was an unoccupied car, which rolled out of a parking lot, down a steep hill, and crashed into the ground floor Head of Residence apartment, shattering two sliding glass doors and destroying a section of the building's foundation.

Joseph and Lynn Santora, Field's heads of residence, were away for the weekend. Linda, a floor counselor, was tending their apartment, and Lillian joined her for supper.

Lillian was in the kitchen washing the dishes, while Linda was relaxing with an after-dinner glass of orange juice. That's when the car made its guest appearance.

"I went hysterical!" recalled Linda. "I just stood up and yelled."

Linda was less than ten feet from the glass doors, but she didn't notice the car right away. The curtains were closed.

"I noticed the curtains were sticking out about eight feet," said Linda. "Then I realized it was the front half of a car."

Meanwhile, Lillian stopped washing the dishes, and came into the living room to see if Linda was alright. Linda partially regained her senses and decided she should call the police. Even though the police phone number was next to the telephone, she couldn't remember what number to dial. So she called the operator. Finally, she got the police.

"A car just came through the window," she told them.

Lillian went outside to see if there was anyone in the car. There wasn't.

The car, owned by Joseph Smith, a Field resident, was parked in a lot on a hill above the dorm. Apparently, it was pushed out of the lot, and rolled down the hill. Tracks indicate that the car was headed for the recreation room adjacent to the apartment, but it veered right halfway down the hill.

Luckily for Linda, the curtains were closed and prevented glass projectiles from hitting her. The car demolished the radiator, knocked over a few plants, bounced around a stereo speaker, and rolled over a stack of albums. Glass splinters were all over the floor.

Before the car arrived on the scene, Linda was just deciding whether or not she would put on an album.

"I'm glad I didn't," she said.

Within a few hours, the windows were boarded up, but the cement foundation is still badly cracked and the radiators are grossly twisted. A general contractor will have to be found to make the repairs. The front end of the car was damaged. Nobody was injured.

When Joe Santora was informed of the mishap by phone later that night, his first reaction was to laugh.

"I didn't know whether or not to believe it," he said afterward. "Well, now at least we'll finally get our screens fixed."

(MDC Photo by Jim Pappas)

"Lynn Santora, Field's Head of Residence, reveals damage caused Saturday night by intruding automobile."

Temporary Insanity Means Acquittal For Mercy Killer

By JOHN T. McGOWAN
Associated Press Writer

FREHOLD, N.J. (AP) - A Superior Court jury acquitted Lester Zygmaniak of a murder charge Monday in the "mercy killing" shooting of his paralyzed brother.

Zygmaniak, 23, was acquitted on grounds of temporary insanity. He had admitted shooting his 26-year-old brother, George, last June as he lay hospitalized.

Jury Foreman James Clark, who announced the verdict, said it reflected the panel's felling that he was insane at the time of the shooting. Clark said the jury feels Zygmaniak now is sane.

Zygmaniak's family, including his widowed mother, Sonia, and his brother's widow, wept when the verdict was announced.

"I feel relieved a little bit," Zygmaniak said. "I feel much better. That's all I want to say now."

The jury deliberated for about 2½ hours. Superior Court Judge M. Raymond McGowan thanked the jurors but made no comment about the verdict.

McGowan had said before the verdict that he wanted no outbursts in the court, and George's mother and his widow, Jeanette, kept their weeping silent. George Jr. was also in the court Monday.

Asked later if he thought the verdict would have been the same had a plea of mercy killing been allowed, defense lawyer Robert Ansell said it could have gone the other way. He also said "I don't know" whether the verdict said anything about the issue of mercy killing.

The prosecuting attorney said he thought the verdict set a dangerous precedent. He said contradicting psychiatric testimony could have allowed the jury to return an innocent or guilty verdict.

Ansell had asked the jury to release Lester "not on pity, not on sympathy, but on the evidence."

Ansell said Lester was "crazed with love" for his brother when he shot him. "The only crime Lester is guilty of was having his power to reason overwhelmed by events," Ansell said.

First Asst. Monmouth Conty Prosecutor Malcolm Carton told the jury he did not believe the defense had met its obligation of proving Lester temporarily insane, while the state had proven premeditated murder.

Carton asked the jury to "do what's right....do what's honest," and he added, "There is nothing in New Jersey law that says you can take the law into your own hands."

George lay in the hospital, paralyzed from the neck down as a result of a motocycle accident at the Zygmaniak home in Perrineville on June 17.

Lester, carrying a concealed, sawed-off shotgun, walked into the hospital June 20 and shot and fatally wounded his brother. Lester described the killing to the jury this way:

"I walked over and asked him if he was in pain. He nodded he was. I asked, "A lot of pain, George?" He nodded again.

"I went to him and I said 'Well, I'm here today to end your pain. Is that all right with you?' He nodded yes, and the next I knew I had shot him."

Lester said he did not remember pulling the trigger, but he has admitted shooting his brother "to end his pain." George died two days after the shooting.

Lester, the son of Polish immigrants, sat quietly listening to the lawyers' summations and Judge McGowan's charge.

In that charge, the judge avoided the term "mercy killing," as it has been avoided by everyone else in he trial. He detailed the law on murder and the possible verdicts open to the jury, which included the lesser charge of manslaughter.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

The office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN is on the second floor of the Student Union on the campus of the University of Massachusetts, zip code 01002. Telephones: 545-2550 (news); 545-0344 (sports); 545-0731 (business).

Second class postage is paid in Amherst and additional mailing in Ware, Mass. 01082. THE DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes Monday through Friday during the academic year, except during vacation, exam periods or holidays. Accepted for mailing under the authority of an act of March 8, 1879; as amended by an act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $6.00 per semester of $10.00 per year.

Selectmen Ponder Future Of Bus System

By MIKE ALLAIN

The Amherst Board of Selectmen last night voted to arrange a meeting with UMass Chancellor Randolph Bromery and William Goss, project director of the University Transportation System, to discuss the future of the bus system.

The action came on the recommendation of Robert Rivers, Chairman of the Public Transportation Committee, who requested the meeting to determine both the future of the UMass bus system and the possibility of the town and University working in conjunction on the future bus system.

Selectman Leo Bouchard said the town should find out the "life expectancy of the demonstration grant", and sugggested that the question go to Town Meeting for an advisory warrant.

Rivers said that the town should outline its "exact needs" in transportation in preparation for the meeting with university officials. Chairman of the Board of Selectmen Michael Sullivan expressed concern over the near future of the system.

"The latest information we have is that the grant expires in a month or two," Sullivan said. "We'd like to know what will happen second semester."

The grant was issued for the implementation of the University bus system, and is funded by the federal government, the University administration, and the Student Senate.

In separate action, the Board voted:

-to approve a petition from New England Telephone and Telegraph to further extend the present conduit line along Shays Street;

-to approve the change of three temporary bustops to permanent bustops along North Pleasant Street, including one near Fearing St. and another near the School of Education driveway;

-to approve proposed parking areas near Cowls and Sunderland Roads;

-to go into executive session to discuss committee appointments to the Cable Television Advisory Committee and the Recreational Vehicle Committee;

-to approve an application to sell oriental jade antiques and oriental paintings of A. Keith Dunker and Ya-Yue J. Van;

-to approve the character approval requests of Rev. Fr. J. Joseph Quigley of 486 North Pleasant Street, and Fr. Timothy J. Diehl, Eva Marie Diehl, and Steven Lynn Ruhl of the Community of Reconciliation, A Free Church.

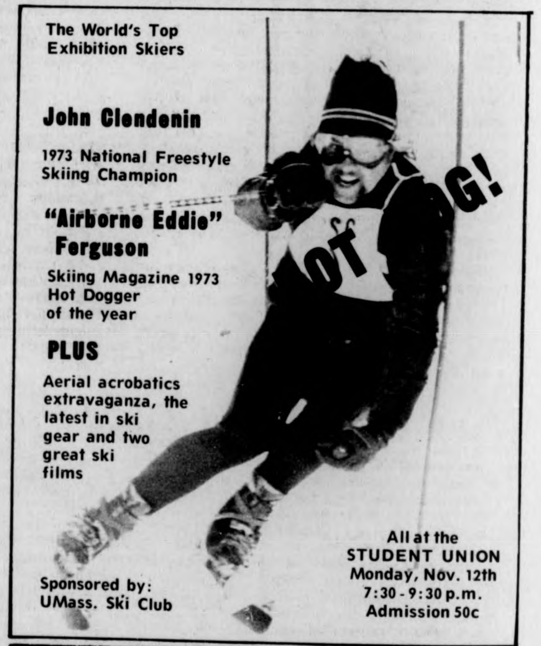
Jazz Concert Tonight

The UMass Jazz Workshop large ensemble will premier two new works tonight in concert in the Student Union Ballroom at 8 p.m.

The concert will feature the first performances of "Blue Express" by Frederick Tillis, and "Concerto Grosso" by Jake Epstein.

Also on the program will be a small improvisation group directed by Max Roach and an improvisation workshop ensemble.

The event is part of the department of music's free concert series.



The World's Top Exhibition Skiers

John Clendenin

1973 National Freestyle Skiing Champion

"Airborne Eddie" Ferguson

Skiing Magazine 1973 Hot Dogger of the year

PLUS

Aerial acrobatics extravaganza, the latest in ski gear and two great ski films

Sponsored by:
UMass. Ski Club

All at the
STUDENT UNION
Monday, Nov. 12th
7:30 - 9:30 p.m.
Admission 50c

CAMPUS INTERVIEWS

SCHOOL OF MANAGEMENT

Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute

Graduate Degree Programs in:

— Private (Industrial) Management
— Public Management
— Management Engineering
-- Operations Research and Statistics

Prof. D. W. Karger, Ford Foundation
Professor of Management will be on campus

Tuesday, November 13, 1973

Please make appointments at Placement Office

First All-Rookie Crew

Skylab 3 Off Saturday

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — When the Skylab 3 rocket lifts off Saturday, it will carry the first all-rookie American space crew since Gemini 8 in 1966.

But the absence of a seasoned space traveler doesn't bother Skylab 3 commander Gerald P. Carr, whose crew faces a record 85-day mission.

"I've always felt that there's no substitute for experience and I have no doubt that we're going to wish on occasion that we had a space veteran up there with us," Carr said in an interview.

"But I'm certain we can carry out the job. I think the space program has matured to the point where previous experience is not necessarily mandatory as long as you can learn from those who proceeded you and have proper training.

"And I guess someone in NASA agrees with me," Carr said. "Otherwise we wouldn't by flying."

He said he and crewmates William R. Pogue and Edward G. Gibson have discussed all aspects of their flight with the Skylab 1 and 2 astronauts, who spent 28 and 59 days, respectively, aboard the orbiting station.

"We closeted ourselves with them and talked about every minute detail," Carr reported. "I've been in on every crew debriefing since early Apollo. So you gain experience there.

"But I think it would be awfully naive to think we can go up there and not expect any problems caused by inexperience," he said. "I think we'll have to adjust to certain things that we don't understand and don't have the experience to understand right now. But I don't see anything major."

Two veteran space pilots, Charles Conrad Jr. and Alan L. Bean, both previous moonwalkers, commanded the first two Skylab crews. Their experience proved especially valuable in Skylab repair jobs.

Carr, Pogue and Gibson continued their extensive training Monday at the Johnson Space Center, Houston, Tex. They'll fly to Cape Canaveral Wednesday to make final preparations for lifting off Saturday on man's third and final visit to the Skylab laboratory.

Launch of the Saturn 1B rocket is set for 11:40 a.m., EST.

For the record, just how did the last all-rookie crew perform?

Gemini 8 astronauts Neil A. Armstrong and David R. Scott executed the first docking of a manned vehicle in space, linking up with an unmanned Agena satellite on March 16, 1966. But shortly afterwards, a jet thruster on the Gemini craft stuck open and sent them tumbling out of control.

Armstrong and Scott were within seconds of blacking out and possible death when their flying skill enabled them to disengage from the Agena and bring their spaceship under control. They made a safe emergency landing in the Pacific Ocean.

Need Help? CASIAC Can Help

The College of Arts and Sciences Information and Advising Center, commonly known as CASIAC, is located in E-20 through E-26 Machmer Hall, (5-0974, 5-2176), and is there to serve you. Many of our services may not be known, and as many of you are suffering from academic anomie, we offer the following brief description of our various activities.

ADVISING: (This means general academic advising in addition to card-signing, permission-slip signing and other paper-pushing work.) Our advising staff is composed of trained students, faculty and Deans from the College of Arts and Sciences. CASIAC also has liaison with other programs and schools in the University. Veronica Martineau does advising for the School of Nursing, Monday, 1:30-4:30 and Friday, 9-11 a.m.; Larry Siddall does pre-social work advising on Thursday afternoons. John Adams, our liaison with the School of Education, is in E26 b/c Monday through Friday, 9:00-4:30. George Oberlander, the Pre-Med and Pre-Dent advisor, has office hours 1-3 every Monday. Mary Lou Simpson and Frank Cruz from the Spanish-speaking component of CCEBS are available from 10 to noon on Wednesdays and other CCEBS counselors and advisors are also available. Bill Lewis, representing the College of Engineering, is in his office Monday, 10-noon.

PRE-GRADUATE ADVISING: Carolyn Hicks, our pre-graduate advisor, is available Wednesday and Thursday mornings and by appointment. She can aid you in sorting out your graduate and professional school ambitions. In her office, you will find graduate school catalogues and general information which might be of assistance.

TUTORING: Salli Swartz, coordinator of our tutoring program, is available to find you tutors in any subject with which you may be having difficulty. If you feel that you want to share your expertise in a particular area as a tutor, or if you need a tutor, call or drop by the CASIAC office. Salli's office hours are Monday, Wednesday and Friday, 12:00-1:20 and Tuesdays and Thursdays, 11:00-2:25.

PRE-LAW ADVISING: Sam Goldman and Harvey Stone, our pre-law advisors, are here to help you in applying to law schools. Anyone considering law school would be wise to make use of their information and experience concerning, "How to get to law school from here". Harvey is in CASIAC every morning except Wednesdays while Sam has office hours on Thursday afternoons. They will also see you by appointment.

HAND-OUTS: CASIAC has all sorts of printed material that you might find useful: majors booklets, requirement sheets and other general information.

SENIOR GRADUATION: Ellen Snyder of the CASIAC staff clears all Arts and Sciences seniors for graduation. If you have any questions about your records in Arts and Sciences come in to see her in E-24 Machmer. Her office hours are 9:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. daily.

WAIVERS: At least two CASIAC deans are available at all times to discuss exceptions to Arts and Sciences academic rules and regulations.

CASIAC exists to serve your academic needs. If you have any questions, please come in and talk with us at E-20 — E-26 Machmer Hall or call, 5-0974, 5-2176. We are here for you. Any suggestions as to how we might better meet your advising needs would be welcome.

New Auto Fraud Squad Protects Consumer

Massachusetts motorists are driving better bargains these days, thanks in large part to the new Auto Fraud Section of Atty. Gen. Robert H. Quinn's Consumer Protection Division.

When the section observed the first anniversary of its existence Nov. 1, Quinn disclosed that its operations had already resulted in a savings of more than $81,000 for Massachsetts consumers.

That's pretty good money mileage for the new economy-minded section, and Quinn predicts even greater future success as staff investigators and attorneys further gear up their attack on "wheeler dealers."

More than 1800 cases were closed by the Auto Fraud Section in that first year, and most of them were settled in the consumer's favor.

The $81,000 represents cash in hand for consumers in settlement of a wide range of automobile complaints.

One complainant received $200 because a car dealer spinned the odometer on his used car. The odometer read 20,000 miles at the time of purchase but an investigation by auto fraud experts revealed that the true-reading was 40,000 miles. After legal action by the Auto Fraud Section, part of the purchase price was refunded to the defrauded consumer.

Another consumer was given a $300 refund when it was discovered that the used car he had purchased had been used by a major car rental company. The dealer had failed to disclose this information, in direct violation of a new law requiring dealers to tell all.

The hundreds of complaint investigated by the Auto Fraud Section cover every shady pracitce in the book including: Making unnecessary and unauthorized repairs, Overcharging on repair work, refusing to return a deposit on a new car, failing to honor a legitimate warranty, installing defective parts or equipment, or selling a car that can't pass inspection.

If you have an automobile complaint, contact the Auto Fraud Section at 727-8400 -- you may be entitled to a refund.

We're a full service travel agency!

- Airline Tickets
- Steamship Tickets
- Railroad Tickets
- Hotels
- Resorts
- Cruises
- Honeymoons
- Vacations
- Car Rentals

Peter Pan WORLD TRAVEL INC.

79 SOUTH PLEASANT ST
TEL. 256-6704
AMHERST

Dean Admits Shredding Evidence

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fired presidential counsel John W. Dean III has admitted he shredded some of the Watergate evidence taken from E. Howard Hunt's White House safe, Watergate prosecutors disclosed Monday.

The disclosure came during court proceedings in which U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica indicated he would deny motions by Hunt and four other Watergate defendants to withdraw guilty pleas entered in January's Watergate trial.

Sirica also heard arguments Monday on motions by a sixth defendant, James W. McCord Jr., for acquittal or a new trial.

The judge said he would decide all the motions later this week and, if he rules against the defendants, will pronounce final sentences no later than Friday morning.

Five of the men are serving provisional maximum sentences pending final sentencing, and McCord is free on bail awaiting sentence.

The government has contended for nearly a year that all evidence in Hunt's safe was turned over to the FBI. Some of it was given to then-acting FBI Director L. Patrick Gray III who said he burned it.

Hunt contended before entering his guilty plea that two notebooks containing the names of all those he contacted in the so-called Gemstone political espionage operation were withheld by the government.

Richard Ben Veniste of the special Watergate prosecution force told Sirica Monday that Dean informed the prosecutors only last week that he had found the notebooks last January in a White House file containing President Nison's personal estate plan.

Ben Veniste said there was no indication the President knew the notebooks were there.

The new information about the notebook was disclosed as attorneys for Hunt, Bernard L. Barker, Eugenio L. Martinez, Frank E. Sturgis and Virgilio Gonzalez made a last-ditch plea to Sirica to free the men.

Daniel E. Schultz, lawyer for the four Miami men caught inside the Watergate on June 17, 1972, argued that they had no criminal intent when they broke into Democratic headquarters and that they thought they were participating in an official government intelligence operation.

Sirica often interrupted Schultz's impassioned argument to challenge that contention. The judge condeded that perhaps "someone sold them a bill of goods" but said the men nonetheless committed the crime to which they pleaded guilty last January.

Court Says 1972 Ruling On Lawyers Retroactive

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court Monday said its 1972 decision requiring court-appointed attorneys for defendants charged with minor offenses should be applied retroactively.

The decision opened the way for constitutional challenges to convictions for misdemeanors if defendants were tried without counsel.

The one-page, unsigned opinion indicated the challenge would be available for those who still suffered the legal consequences of conviction, be it a continuing limitation on liberty or some other disability such as the denial of the right to vote.

The Flavor of America

Howard Johnson's
Hadley

Daily Specials $1.99

Monday: Fish Fry
Tuesday: Spaghetti Spree
Wednesday: Deep Sea Dinner
Thursday: Turkey Gobbler
Friday: Clam Fry
Seconds on us

The un-dormitories.

Great off-campus living—indoors and out—at either of two modern apartment complexes, only minutes away by car or bike from Amherst College, downtown Amherst or UMass. Now accepting applications for September.

Brittany Manor
AMHERST

- courtesy bus to UMass and town
- 1, 2, 3 bedrm apts.
- heat & air conditioning
- wall-to-wall carpeting
- applianced kitchens
- master TV antenna
- laundry facilities
- parking, cars & bikes
- 2 swimming pools with sundecks
- 2 pro tennis courts
- lawns for softball, football, badminton

RENT: $200/MONTH
(utilities included)
Directions: East Dudly Rd.
oppos. Grist Mill off Rte. 116

Mount Sugarloaf
SUNDERLAND

- 2-bedrm apts.
- heat & air conditioning
- roomy closets, storage
- wall-to-wall carpeting
- master TV antenna
- modern kitchens
- self-cleaning ovens
- electric ranges
- stainless-steel sinks
- dishwashers/disposals
- 2-door refrigerators
- laundry facilities
- swimming pool

No Lease Required
RENT: FROM $185
CALL 413-256-8534
Directions: On Route 47.

In The Nation And The World

As Strike Ties Up Key Services...

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Walkouts by workers in key services — among them fire protection, newspapers, hospital care and air travel — hit a number of American cities Monday.

A strike deadline by New York City firemen was reset for 8:30 a.m. Tuesday as contract negotiations continued under court order. But in Milwaukee, Wis., National Guardsmen were called up to deal with what officials said was an emergency created by a firemen's work stoppage.

Hope that a strike against the New York Daily News would come to a quick end was expressed after the Times reached tentative agreement with the New York Newspaper Guild. The agreement was reached hours after the start of the walkout at the News.

Also in New York, 30,000 non-medical workers went on strike at 48 private hospitals and nursing homes over the government's failure to approve a 7.5 percent wage increase.

Trans World Airlines flights were canceled across the country by a walkout of flight attendants that began at midnight.

In Milwaukee, officials estimated that about 40 percent of the city's firemen failed to show up for work Monday, about the same number as the day before. Their contract expired Saturday, and the "red flu" epidemic was seen as a pressure tactic aimed at city negotiators.

Gov. Patrick J. Lucey, acting at the request of Mayor Henry Maier, called up about 350 members of the Guard to take over some fireman's duties. Officials said fire protection was normal. There were no reports of serious fires.

A Circuit Court judge ordered both sides to negotiate before he considered issuing a temporary injunction to halt the job action by the 1,000-member union.

Issues included pay demands and length of work week. Fire fighters earned $11,070 after four years, but neither side would cite specifics in this year's negotiations.

The "total strike" threatened by New York's 10,500 firemen was avoided at least for a while after members of the Uniformed Firefighters Association reported for work as scheduled.

A state Supreme Court justice ordered further talks on the union's demands, which included a $2,000 pay hike in a one-year contract.

Base pay currently is $14,300 a year, and the city has offered $70 over an 18-month period, tying it to increased productivity.

...Congress Hassles With It's Own Energy Crisis

By DAVID C. MARTIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — While Congress ponders ways to defuse the energy crisis, its own consumption of power is soaring.

The demand for power on Capitol Hill is rising at a rate of more than three million kilowatt hours a year, and there is little hope the trend can be reversed, says Benjamin F. Markert, the Capitol's coordinating engineer.

Energy saving measures have been imposed, but these are largely cosmetic, Markert adds. They include turning off corridor lights and urging congressional offices to open window blinds to cut down the demand for artificial lighting.

There's "no way to cut back," says Markert. Any significant power reductions would have to be made at the expense of congressional efficiency, he says, since most of the increased demand is attributed to a growing reliance on data processing machines.

Turning off corridor lights barely makes a dent in the Capitol's total energy consumption, the engineer says. Nor, he adds, does shutting off excess lights in committee hearing rooms or the offices of individual members of Congress.

Even if all the lights were turned off, says an aide to Rep. Torbert H. Macdonald, D-Mass., chairman of the subcommittee on power, it wouldn't make much difference because the biggest share of the electricity bill goes to heating the Capitol Hill complex in winter and cooling it in summer.

The heating and cooling system will demand even more electricity in 1977 when an annex to the Library of Congress is completed, creating some 65 additional acres of floor space.

Today's growth in energy demand is due primarily to an increased use of computers by Congress trying to streamline its operating procedures.

The Senate recently installed its second computer to help with payrolls, inventories, mail and to keep track of the status of bills and other matters pending before Congress.

The House has three computers. Two of them run an electronic voting system designed to cut in half the time needed for a roll call vote.

Congressional energy demand is increasing about four percent a year, about the same as the rest of the country.

Translated to barrels of oil, that comes out to about 90,000 barrels for the entire year.

New Prosecutor "Can Go To Court"

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)-Acting Atty. Gen. Robert H. Bork testified Monday that special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski has White House assurances he can go to court for any evidence, including presidential tapes, if President Nixon refuses to hand it over.

"He's free to go to court," Bork said.

Bork told a House Judiciary subcommittee he believes Asst. Atty. Gen. Henry E. Petersen has already drawn up a demand for White House documents not previously produced but said he doesn't know what they are.

Bork also said he believes Jaworski will seek new Watergate indictments in what Bork hopes will be a month or less.

Bork said Jaworski was assured of the freedom to go to court for any evidence during a meeting with White House chief of staff Alexander M. Haig, Jr., and White House laayers J. Fred Buzhardt and Leonard Garment.

"Everybody agreed to it," Bork testified. "That means to me, that if he did it, he would not be fired."

But Bork said he personally had not discussed with Nixon the assurance that Jaworski could go to court for evidence.

Nixon fired Jaworski's predecessor Archibald Cox, when Cox refused to go along with a presidential order to seek no further White House tapes or documents.

Bork also said he opposes all five proposals before Congress for creation of a separate Watergate prosecutor and is against a congressional hand in naming or confirming the prosecutor.

Word that President Nixon would not fire Jaworski unless at least six of the eight congressional leaders he had promised to consult agreed was reported to the House subcommittee by Rep. Wiley Mayne, R-Iowa.

Mayne said presidential adviser Melvin R. Laird told him at lunch that the President had taken that position.

Former Watergate Prosecutor Archibald Cox told the House hearing he believes Jaworski will run into the same conflict with the President that he did-and said that is why Congress should make the prosecutor independent.

Cox said he believes the presidential papers he said he was fired for seeking are essential to any Watergate prosecution including Jaworski's.

Cox said he believes which way Congress should establish independence for a Watergate prosecutor is less important than the need for Congress to act quickly so the prosecution can proceed.

"It is time to get on with it," he said.

(AP Wirephoto)

CRIPPLED SCOUT FIGHTS ON — George Casenhiser, a 14-year-old Boy Scout, receives his star rank in the Boy Scouts Thursday from his hospital bed in the Detroit Rehabilitation Institute. Presenting George with his award is fellow scout Brian Mann (left) and close friend Bill Kennedy (right). With the help of Kennedy, George earned a merit badge in scholarship and won his star rank.

Segretti Sentenced

WASHINGTON (AP) — Donald H. Segretti, a political saboteur financed with Nixon campaign funds, was sentenced Monday to serve six months in a minimum security institution for violating federal laws in the 1972 presidential campaign.

Segretti, who has testified he was recruited for his work by former presidential aide Dwight L. Chapin, had pleaded guilty on Oct. 1 to three federal misdemeanor counts arising from his activities in last year's Florida Democratic presidential primary.

Ford Before Senate

Testimony Ends

By JOHN BECKLER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President-designate Gerald R. Ford completed his testimony before the Senate Rules Committee Monday with no sign of any hitch developing on his confirmation as Spiro T. Agnew's successor.

Ford won praise from the senators for his answers in two days of questioning on a broad range of subjects, many of them dealing with how he would act if he became President.

"You have a reputation for openness and honesty in reply," Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., told the House Republican leader, "and it appears these hearings justify it."

The hearings are the first ever held in Congress on a vice presidential nominee. The procedure for filling a vacancy in the vice presidency is spelled out in the 25th amendment.

Sen. Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., chairman of the Rules Committee, plans to hear other witnesses, and the House Judiciary Committee also will hold hearings before the House and Senate vote on confirmation.

Mindful of the events that led to Agnew's resignation, Cannon asked:

"Is there anything in your background, anything you have ever done or have knowledge of, the exposure of which could possibly subject the American people to another disappointment or disillusionment?"

"Not to my knowledge," said Ford. "I have searched my conscience, my records and myself, and I know of nothing."

Ford was questioned again about his relationship with Robert N. Winter-Berger, a former Washington lobbyist who has written a book he calls "an insider's view of corruption in Washington."

The book contains numerous references to Ford. Ford, who told the committee previously he was "duped" by Winter-Berger, denied all allegations of wrongdoing cited in the book.

"It is a completely inaccurate, demagogic bunch of words that, in my opinion, don't deserve publication," Ford said.

"SECRET LIFE OF HERNANDO CORTEZ"
film by john chamberlain November 8, 1973
Herter Hall 231 7:30p.m. and 9p.m.
Tickets: $.50 to UMass Students with IDs, $1 to all others
Available at the door, or at the
Fine Arts Council Box Office, 125 Herter Hall,
telephone 545-0202, Mon-Fri, 9a.m.-4p.m.
Sponsored by the University of Massachusetts Fine Arts Council

---

Arabs Huddle On Cease Fire

Kissinger Flies To Morocco

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Arab leaders sought to close ranks in a flurry of diplomacy Monday as Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger flew to the Arab world in a bid to prevent more Middle East fighting.

At stake in the comings and goings was the precarious cease-fire that stopped the fourth Arab-Israeli war.

The three main parties to the conflict — Israel, Egypt and Syria — have warned that combat could erupt anew unless the diplomacy can be made to work.

Premier Golda Meir returned home to Israel and said her talks with Kissinger and President Nixon last weekend in Washington allowed her to plead the Israeli case, but did not resolve all differences between Washington and Tel Aviv.

"I greatly appreciate the opportunity that was given to my colleagues and me for the many hours to speak frankly and in friendship," she said at the Tel Aviv airport.

Mrs. Meir called a Cabinet meeting to report on the talks and promised to inform the Israeli parliament Wednesday.

Kissinger, following up on the Washington discussions, headed for Rabat, Morocco, for the first stop on a tour that also will take him to Tunisia, Egypt, Jordan and Saudi Arabia in the Arab world before visits to Iran, Pakistan and China.

As Kissinger flew across the Atlantic, President Houari Boumedienne of Algeria was in Kuwait after visits to Cairo, Damascus and Baghdad, the Iraqi capital. Press reports said he persuaded Egypt and Syria to attend an Arab summit conference in Algiers.

The Libyan leader, Col. Moammar Khadafy, was in Damascus after similar visits to Cairo and Baghdad. He reportedly was trying to consolidate an anticease-fire bloc for the Arab summit.

Iraq, Libya and Kuwait rejected the U.N. Security Council cease-fire that was accepted by Israel, Egypt and Syria.

(AP Wirephoto)

LEAVES BLAIR HOUSE — Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir waves to people gathered outside Blair House in Washington. The Israeli leader, who is staying in the house during her visit to Washington, went to brief the Conference of Presidents of major American Jewish organizations.

Belgium Tightens Oil Curbs

BRUSSELS (AP) — Belgium joined the Netherlands Monday in adopting a ban on Sunday driving and other strong measures to meet the Arab squeeze on oil supplies.

West Germany was said to be contemplating similar measures.

Common Market foreign ministers met to discuss the crisis. Market contries get about 80 per cent of their oil from the Arabs. This supply has been cut back by about 15 per cent.

Qualified oil sources in Kuwait said further cuts of about one million barrels a day are likely. Arab oil exporters announced Monday they were bringing their total production cut to 25 per cent, on the basis of September figures, including oil embargoes to the United States and the Netherlands.

Belgium, which has three months of oil stocks, is in a difficult situation because the bulk of its crde oil supplies are transported through the Netherlands, its neighbor to the north.

Besides the Sunday driving ban, the Belgian measures to conserve fuel include lower speed limits, less road transport, a reduction in home heating and perhaps some extra school closing days. Some steps are obligatory, others merely recommendations.

The ban on Sunday driving will start Nov. 18.

Prior to Monday's Arab decision to impose further oil production cuts, sources said the total reductions had reached about 20 per cent.

A 5 per cent additional cut was to follow in December. The Arabs have said the cuts will continue until Israel gives up Arab lands occupied in the 1967 Middle East war.

If the Common Market ministers can agree to help the Netherlands, which the Arabs accuse of helping Israel, they would still have to come up with an approach that would not provoke a further tightening of the screws by the Arabs.

In Oslo, the Norwegian government and private oil companies launched a campaign to encourage customers to make voluntary cuts in their consumption of oil. Officials said no rationing was expected.

Fighting Continues

North Viets Seize Base Camps

By DENNIS NEELD
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — Dozens of Soviet-built rockets slammed into Bien Hoa air base near Saigon early Tuesday for the first time since the Veitnam cease-fire, the Saigon command reported.

It said two F5 jet fighter-bombers were destroyed and two others damaged in the attack on the base and on the nearby 3rd Military Region headquarters.

The command said one home in a nearby military dependents' camp also was destroyed.

Initial reports indicated that one soldier was killed and nine persons were wounded.

The Saigon command said 27 rockets were fired, but military sources in Bien Hoa put the number at more than 50.

The air base, 15 miles from the capital, is the largest in South Vietnam. Most of the country's best jet fighter-bombers are based there.

The rocket attack had been anticipated by military officials. Two weeks ago, troops at military positions on or near the base were constructing bunkers and foxholes.

Military sources said they believed the rockets were fired from Viet Cong-controlled areas in Tan Uyen district north of Bien Hoa City.

Two weeks ago, the South Vietnamese conducted a heavy bombing and shelling campaign against suspected Viet Cong bases north and northeast of Bien Hoa in what officials then called "preventive attacks."

In another development, the Saigon command said the North Vietnamese assault force that seized two government base camps near the Cambodian border may have killed or captured most of the 300 defenders.

But the semi-official newspaper Dan Chu said the government sent up to 3,000 reinforcements to the battle area, and they were pounding Communist troop concentrations and supply lines with artillery and air strikes.

It said South Vietnamese planes were encountering large numbers of ground-to-air missiles.

Radio Saigon reported the reinforcements made contact with survivors of the two base camps, who told them at least 100 North Vietnamese soldiers were killed in Sunday's battle, one of the most savage since the Jan. 28 cease-fire.

Israel Says 12 POWs Found Shot

TEL AVIV (AP) - Israeli troops have found the bodies of 12 Israeli soldiers, bound hand and foot and buried under rocks near the former Golan Heights cease-fire line with Syria, an Israeli military spokesman said Monday.

Col. Nachman Karni called the incident a "massacre."

Three Tel Aviv newspapers reported that the soldiers had been tied up and then shot, and from the location it appeared that they were killed as prisoners in the first few days of the Middle East war when the Syrian army occupied the area.

Karni declined to give specifics of the incident, but said Israeli military authorities had given details and photographs to the International Red Cross.

At the United Nations in New York, Israeli Ambassador Yosef Tekoah said: "There is information of another place where Israeli soldiers were shot after having been taken prisoner. In one case, an imprisoned, wounded Israeli officer who had difficulty walking was shot to death."

LOTS & LOTS OF TURTLE NECKS
THE KNITS by FRUIT OF THE LOOM COLORS: natural lt. blue green burgundy navy black brown rust
$6.95
WEAR-HOUSE
201 NORTH PLEASANT STREET
AMHERST, MASSACHUSETTS

MDC Classifieds Sell

ENTERTAINMENT
HATCH Wed.
Coffeehouse
(with Don Stover)
Thurs., Fri.
"Real Tears"
Sat.
"Fat"
BLUEWALL Wed.
"Natural Gas"
Thurs., Fri., Sat.
the "New Lee Highway Boys"
TOC Fri. & Sat.
"Jimmy"

Massachusetts Elections

Low Turnout Predicted

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Voters in 39 Massachusetts communities must decide Tuesday who will manage their local governments for the next few years. And the outlook is for a record low turnout in most places.

All voters, except those in Cambridge, will know the results of their balloting Tuesday night or at the latest Wednesday morning. Cambridge uses the proportional representation system in which it can take a week or more to determine the full slate of those elected.

In Boston, election officials predict no more than 30 per cent of the total registered voters 270,000 will turn out to cast their ballots among 18 candidates. Nine seats on the city council and five spots on the school committee will be filled.

Quincy voters will participate in a primary to nominate condidates who will compete in the final election Dec. 4 for Mayor, school committee, and four of six city councilors. A referendum which changed the district lines also resulted in a delay of the election.

The state's Plan E cities-those with appointive city managers-will elect a full slate of city councilors and school board members. The mayors of such cities are elected from among council members after their inauguration in January. These cities include Cambridge, Lowell, Medford, Fall River, Gloucester and Worcester.

Saugus, which will elect selectmen and school board members, is the only Massachusetts town holding an election.

In all cities with mayoral contests, voters also will be electing school committee members, councilors-at-large and ward councilors, or alderman-at-large and ward alderman.

Everett, the single city in the state with a bicameral system, will ellect a common council as well as a board of alderman.

Nearby Chelsea is expected to have an extremely light voter turnout, partly due to the disastrous fire last month which destroyed several voting places and have placed some voters in temporary housing.

Mayor Philip Spelman seeks re-election to a second term against William A. Palladino.

Revere Mayor William Reinstein is expected to win election to a second term. His opponent is City Councilor Joseph DiGrosso, whom he defeated by more than 2-1 in the primary.

The North Shore city of Salem has incumbent Mayor Jean A. Levesque pitted against Rep. Henry J. O'Donnell, coming out of a primary in which Levesque had a bare 300-vote lead. This is Levesque's first electoral try for the Mayor's spot, since he was appointed by his council peers last spring when Mayor Samuel Zoll became a district court judge.

Also in Salem, School Committeeman Ronald Michaud is seeking re-election to a second four-year term. His wife, Betty, was an upset winner in Ward 2 council battle to replace Joseph O'Keefe, a school committee nominee.

The Lynn election will prove a testing ground for Mayor Antonio Mario Marino, who ran second in the primary to a newcomer to politics, 34-year-old David Phillips. Phillips appears to have strong Republican support.

In Peabody, Mayor Nicholas Mavroules is considered the frontrunner in seeking his fourth successive term in that position against Peter Torigan. Torigan has been trying to get the city administration to open up its books on certain transactions.

The Woburn mayoral election appears to be clear-out, with current Mayor Edward Gilgun, who dropped the city's tax rate by $20 this year the largest in the state, expected to win easily over John Phelon, a former ward councilor.

Mayor Lester Ralph is expected to have an easy time in Somerville against Edward J. Sweeney, who came in second in the primary, but received less than half of Ralph's vote. A former official of the housing authority, Sweeney would add more firemen and beef up the police force. Ralph claims these moves are unnecessary.

The apathy of voters in Boston seems to favor the incumbents. In the primaries, this proved true as seven of the nine councilmen seeking re-election landed in the top-nine circle of contestants.

Former U.S. Rep. Louise Day Hicks topped the primary field in her bid for a council seat and is likely to repeat that performance when the votes are tallied. Trailing Mrs. Hicks in the council race in September were incumbents Albert L. O'Neil, Christopher A. Iannella, Lawrence S. DiCara, Frederick C. Langone, Joseph Tierney, Gerald F. O'Leary and Patrick F. McDonough.

Three of four incumbent school committeemen landed easily in the top five primary slots, with John J. Kerrigan again expected to top the election. Only Committeeman John J. McDonough appears endangered, although pre-primary estimates had Paul Ellison in trouble. Ellison took fourth place, however.

Newcomer Kathleen Sullivan, who was third, is expected to gain a school committee spot. Rep. Joseph Kearney and former Councilman William J. Foley, who took fifth and sixth spots in the primary, pose a threat to oust one or two incumbents.

Cambridge voters will see 34 names for nine city council seats and 23 for six on the school committee. It is believed that a low turnout in Cambridge could result in a sharp curtailment of local rent control and a conservative brake on the innovative school policies favored by schools Supt. Alflorence Cheatham.

Most observers believe that the conservative Independent slate candidates Walter Sullivan, Alfred Vellucci, Thomas Denehy and Daniel Clinton will win a council seat along with the radical Cambridge Civic Association's Barbara Askermann and Francis Duehay.

Independent Henry Owens 3d, and Saundra Graham, endorsed by the radical Grass Roots Organization, face strong challenges from Independent Leonard Russell, Don Christofaro, Fred Arsenault and John Halberstalt CCA and John Brode.

CCA incumbents Charles Pierce and Peter Gesell and Independent incumbents James Fitzgerald and Joseph Maynard are seeking re-election to the school committee. There are five CCA challengers who strongly back the superintendent and 10 Independents who are critical of him.

(AP Wirephoto)

HAPPY NEW ENGLANDERS — Sens. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, left, and Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., are obviously in a happy mood as they leave Blair House Friday.

N.E. Voters Hit The Polls

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A variety of municipal elections and referenda questions will greet New England voters when they head for the polls Tuesday.

The elections are primarily for mayors, councilmen and school committee members. The referenda range from property tax exemptions to the proposed establishment of a public power authority which has stirred some controversy in Maine.

Only four cities in New Hampshire will have direct elections for mayor with opposing candidates. In another seven cities, voters will cast their ballots for city councilmen or for boards of aldermen. Most of these bodies will then elect a mayor from among their own members.

Voters in Maine will give their views on five public issues and one state senate seat which is vacant.

The big question for Maine voters is whether they approve of a public power bill that would set up a Power Authority of Maine, which would be the first one in New England.

Voters will also decide on a $3 million bond issue for state parks and two constitutional amendments. One would determine the amount of indebtedness a municipality can incur and the other will change Maine's version of the pocket veto. A fifth referendum question would establish a state lottery in Maine.

Vermont voters will not make their trip to the polls until next spring.

Rhode Island voters must contend with seven constitutional amendments and two other proposals to expand the lending powers of the state industrial and recreational building authorities. They will also vote on proposals to establish four-year terms for the governor and the attorney general.

Races for mayor, school committee seats and councilmen will be held in the Rhode Island cities of Woonsocket, Pawtucket, North Providence, Central Falls and North Smithfield.

North Providence will hold the community's first election for mayor.

In Connecticut, two Democratic incumbents and a Republican incumbent mayor face close contests in New Haven, Hartford and Bridgeport.

The Lighthouse

Featuring fresh cooked seafood at low prices. Thrill to selecting your own lobster in our pool, or take home fresh seafood.

ALSO TAKE OUT SERVICE.

Rte. 116 Sunderland, on the Amherst town line. Tel. 549-6662.

Globe Files Suit For Irving Interview

BOSTON (AP) — Attorneys for The Boston Globe have filed a civil complaint in U.S. District Court here against the Justice Department and Bureau of Prisons for being refused an interview with author Clifford Irving.

Irving is serving a two-year sentence at the U.S. Penitentiary at Danbury, Conn., for the $750,000 Howard Hughes "autobiography" hoax.

In its suit, the Globe describes Irving as "ready and willing" to be interviewed.

A spokesman for the Globe said the paper has tried since March to arrange an interview with Irving but the police of the Bureau of Prisons prohibits such interviews. Written interviews conducted through the mails are permitted, but the Globe decided to press for the personal interview.

In seeking an injunction Friday against the Justice Deaprtment and the Bureaus of Prisons, attorneys Thomas H. Walsh Jr. and James J. McHugh claimed the policy is unconstitutional, arbitrary, irrational and capricious.

The lawyers said the bureau's policy violates the First Amendment rights of the Globe, the public, Irving and reporter Richard Connolly, who received favorable responses from Irving about the interview. Irving was convicted of conspiracy and grand larceny and has served about 13 months at Danbury, where he distributes clothing to fellow prisoners. If not paroled in the meantime, he will be released next June. His wife, Edith, is serving a two-year prison term in Switzerland for her role in the case.

FOR LIGHTNING FAST DELIVERY ON ANY OF OUR DELICIOUS PIZZAS OR SUBS CALL THE HUNGRY U

PIZZA PATROL
2566350

THE HUNGRY-U

Manpower Shortage Critical At Walpole

BOSTON (AP) - The manpower situation at the state's maximum security prison is so critical that "it has been necessary to hire correction officers off the street and put them to work with no training," a report released Monday by Correction Commissioner Frank A. Hall said.

The report, prepared by a committee appointed to investigate the escape of Walpole State Prison inmate Robert Dellelo, said approximately 95 Walpole guards about one-third of the total compliment, are untrained.

Additionally, the report said, "Walpole presently is grossly understaffed."

Dellelo, serving a life sentence for first degree murder, escaped from the custody of two correction officers who brought him to Pondville Hospital for an examination Oct. 4. He still is at large.

The 17-page report said both officers, Elliott Baker and James Gentle Jr., were on the job only a few months and had no training.

Each carried a gun even though neither had been issued a permit and neither had ever fired the .38 calibre pistol they carried.

Additionally, the report concluded, the tip to Pondville Hospital in itself appeared to be against the law.

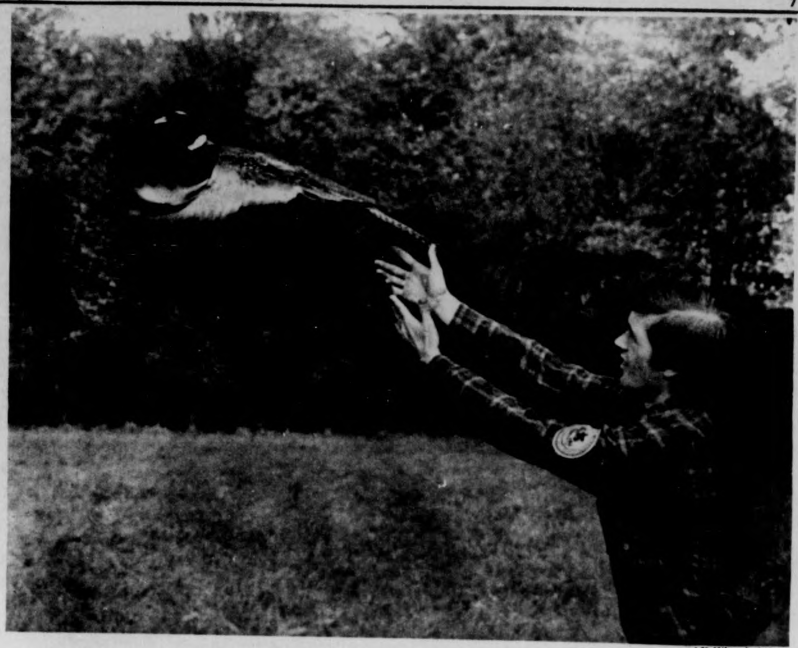
State law, the report said, does not permit an inmate who is serving a sentence for a capital crime to be place in any hospital other than the one at the medium security prison at Norfolk.

As far as the Dellelo situation is concerned, the committee recommended improved medical care for inmates to help reduce the security risks in providing such services.

It also recommended that Hall "give high priority, immediately, to the problem of manpower at Walpole......"

During the past 18 months, when riots and other forms of violence have broken out at Walpole, the problem has intensified to "emergency proportions," the report said.

The fact finding committee was co-chaired by State police Major Edward Teahan and Leon N. Corsini, Jr., chief training officer for the Department of Correction. Corsini died Oct. 23, of natural causes.



(AP Wirephoto)

AYER, Mass., — INTO THE WILD — Stephen Hebb of the Ayer Game Farm releases pheasants to stock areas in Western Massachusetts for the fall season now that the threat of eastern equine encephalitis is over. The Massachusetts Division of Fisheries and Game expects to stock over 50,000 cock birds for the season which runs from Oct. 20 to Nov. 30.

Federal Team Continues Boston Crash Investigation

BOSTON (AP) — A federal investigating team of some 60 persons hopes to finish its investigation by the middle or end of this week, but so far the causes of the Saturday morning crash of a Pan American 707 freighter at Logan International Airport remain a mystery.

All three crew members aboard the flight perished as the jet nosedived and disintegrated on landing. The plane, a New York-to Prestwich, Scotland, flight, was diverted to Boston when the pilot reported smoke entering the cockpit.

The jet carried a cargo that included 16,000 pounds of chemicals, some of them dangerous acids. The cargo also included about 5,000 pounds of mail, 16,000 pounds of electrical components and materials and 16,000 pounds of other assorted materials.

The National Transportation Safety Board team has more questions than it has answers for. Among those are: Where did the smoke leaking into the cockpit come from? What if any part did the dangerous chemicals play in the crash? What was done during the 30 minutes or so between the first report of smoke and the crash? Why did the pilot stop responding to radio communication from the ground and why did he stop sending the secondary radar signal during the last three minutes of the flight?

The airport was put on emergency alert before the crash, after the pilot requested priority landing at Logan. That request was made when the jet was near Pease Air Force Base in New Hampshire. Standing by at the scene were ambulances, police cruisers and fire trucks.

Pan Am identified the crew members of the Scotland bound craft as Capt. John J. Zammett, 53, of Cold Spring Harbor, N.Y.; first officer Gene W. Ritter of New Canaan, Conn., and flight engineer Davis Melvin, 37, of Ithaca, N.Y.

San Francisco Expands Transit System

By MIKE SILVERMAN
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bay Area Rapid Transit system trains opened their doors Monday to carry commuters 7.5 miles between downtown San Francisco and suburban Daly City.

Seven underground stations in San Francisco and an elevated one at the south end of the line serve the newest segment of the system, along which sleek aluminum cars whiz at speeds up to 80 miles per hour.

Service began a year ago in Oakland and east San Francisco Bay cities, but a tube under the Bay connecting the lines still is closed because of safety problems.

"I've been waiting for this for quite a while," said Ed Reid, a gas company engineer who boarded the train in Daly City.

In 13 minutes and for 35 cents he sped north into San Francisco, through the Mission District and under downtown Market Street into the heart of the financial district at the other end of the line.

"It took me that long to get to the bus depot from where I work," Reid said. "They've got top equipment. It's a nice ride."

Fifty-four early birds boarded the first train our of Daly City just before 6 a.m., but an hour later platforms were bustling and some of the 72-seat cars were standing room only.

"I figured it's worth a try because the bus takes so long," said Sylvia O'Rourke, a telephone company accountant. "But I started out early today just in case something goes wrong."

Nothing did, on Mrs. O'Rourke's train, but the system didn't completely escape the flaws that have plagued service in the East Bay.

There, trains sometimes stall between stations; doors have flown open while the trains moved at high speeds, and one train failed to stop at the end of the line and plowed off the tracks, injuring several people.

The worst that happened Monday was that one car went dead and the entire train had to be shunted off the tracks. Platform destination signs erroneously flashed the East Bay city of "Richmond," an ironic reminder that the transbay tube linking San Francisco with Oakland — a crucial factor in BART's revenue goal — remains shut.

For Indians... Thanksgiving?

PLYMOUTH, Mass. (AP) — Some Indian groups here have strongly criticized attempts by the local Plymouth Thanksgiving committee to present a picture of early American life.

For the past three years, Plymouth's Thanksgiving celebrations have turned into demonstrations of protest by Indians who claimed that such pageantry as a march through town by costumed pilgrims carrying muskets and Bibles was little more than an exhibition of racism.

"To Indians it's not a day of celebration," said Frank James, copresident of the United Alliance of Indians in New England. "We have nothing to celebrate," he said Sunday.

Tall Oak, the other president of the alliance, said he objects to the image of the commercial Indian. He criticized the idea in the program to have Indians display crafts and do fold dances.

Meeting of Afro American Soc.
Tuesday, Nov. 6, 1973
at 6:00

ELECTIONS
All 3rd World Students invited to attend and participate.

Colonel Sanders Big Chicken Feed(s)

Monday and Tuesday Only

Feeds 4 to 6
Big Chicken Feed $4.99
— Twelve tender, tasty pieces of finger-lickin' good Kentucky Fried Chicken
— One pint of the Colonel's special cole slaw
— One pint of mashed potatoes
— One pint of special gravy
— Six hot biscuits
clip the coupon

Feeds 5 to 9
Super Chicken Feed $6.99
— Eighteen tender, tasty pieces of finger-lickin' good Kentucky Fried Chicken
— Two pints of the Colonel's special cole slaw
— Two pints of mashed potatoes
— One pint of speical gravy
— Nine hot biscuits
clip the coupon

Chicken-In Chicken-Out

Seating for 54
Free Delivery
256-8745

Kentucky Fried Chicken.
Rte. 9 (across from Zayre's) Hadley 256-8745

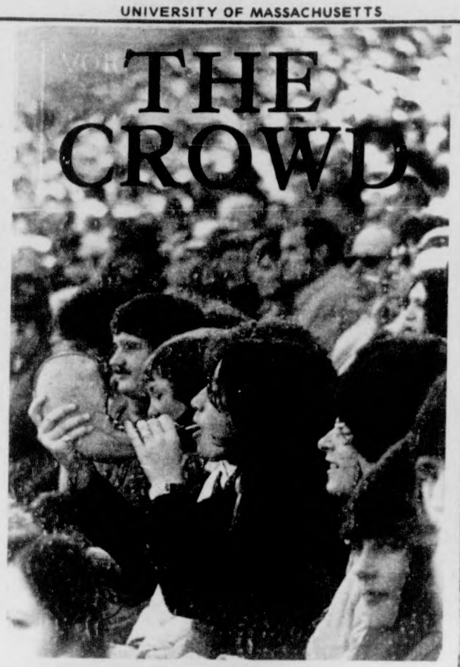
the HATCH COFFEEHOUSE brings you fine entertainment every Wednesday this week featuring DON STOVER AND THE WHITE OAK MOUNTAIN BOYS
JACK TOTTLE - mandolin
HERBIE APPLIN - guitar
BOB DEVONCOURT - bass
CARL ROBELLO - fiddle
plus others
with "Henri" as MC
9:00 P.M. ~ 1:00 a.m.
hatch cafeteria
free!

UMass Football:

THE CROWD



By Harry Charych

UMass football is much more than football teams, marching bands, or cheerleaders. UMass football is people. Some of the people are the loyal fans who come to the games under any conditions. Others are the proud parents of the players. But most are common UMies for whom the games provide a good excuse to get away from studying and spend an afternoon outdoors. For them, a blanket, a warm companion, a bottle of scotch, a six-pack of beer, a wine skin, or a few joints insure that, no matter what the weather or what happens on the field, UMass football is always great.

Apply For S.W.A.P.

This year's SWAP Conference is being held the weekend of November 30 through December 1 at the Northfield Inn. General themes for this conference are Student Services and University Governance, to cover such topics as Housing and Food Services, Alternative Programming, and the idea of unicameral government; that is, one governing body representing the whole campus community, including students, staff, and faculty, thereby eliminating the now separate governing bodies.

Student delegates to SWAP are being chosen on a decentralized basis: applicants submit their applications to appropriate areas or organizations as designated on the application. The areas' own selection committees make their alloted number of choices and submit the names to the SWAP Committee. Applications may be picked up at the various Area Government offices, the Student Union Lobby, the Campus Center Information Desk, and the Student Activities Office in the Student Union. The fee for SWAP is $7.50 for UMass undergraduates and $45 for all others. Time is running short, however, and applications must be submitted by Friday, November 9. For further information, contact Sheila at 545-2351, Ari at 546-9978, or Michael at 546-6645.

MDC NEWS HOTLINE
5-2550

WHY HAVE COLLEGE STUDENTS TRAVELED BY BUS FOR GENERATIONS?

*IT'S CONVENIENT — Buses leave from or near the campus several times daily.
*IT'S DIRECT — To where you want to go.
*IT'S FRIENDLY — Meet new people on every trip.

Peter Pan BUS LINES

Hourly service to Boston, New York City, Albany and everywhere, direct from the University Campus. Extra express service to Natick and Boston every weekend.
Lobby Campus Center Hotel
Tel. 545-2528 or 545-2006

Grand Opening
Masse's Fish
of Amherst
(formerly Amherst Seafood Mkt.)
103 N. Pleasant St.
(across from Louis Food Center)

FRESH HADDOCK
FRESH SWORDFISH
FRESH HALIBUT
FRESH SALMON

SPECIALS • WED. THRU SAT.
Lb. Peeled & Deveined SHRIMP $1.99 lb.
Stuffed Jumbo SHRIMP .60 ea.
Stuffed Lobsters $2.25 ea.

SEAFOOD . . . COOKED TO ORDER Every Friday
FISH & CHIPS
CLAMS
SCALLOPS
SHRIMP
LOBSTER ROLLS
FISH CAKES
ONION RINGS
STUFFED SOLE
CLAM ROLLS
SALADS: POTATO, COLE SLAW
Open: Wed. thru Sat.
MASSE'S FISH
103 N. Pleasant, Amherst
634 Chicopee St. CHICOPEE
1037 State St. SPRINGFIELD

Top of the Campus
Tuesday
Wednesday
Thursday
Nov. 6, 7, 8
Special
Steak or Prime Rib plus all the salad you can eat
only $2.95

Republicans Watchful Of Off-Year Elections

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
AP Political Writer

Voters in New Jersey and Virginia elect governors yesterday in the headline contests of an off-year election that Republicans hope will show their party won't be hurt by the Watergate scandal.

The Nixon administration scandals haven't been an issue in either state. However, politicians and political analysts will be watching the showing of the parties in two states the GOP captured four years ago. New York City and many other large cities are electing mayors.

In New Jersey, Democrat Brendan T. Byrne, 49-year-old former judge, is heavily favored to defeat conservative Republican Rep. Charles W. Sandman Jr., 52.

Sandman ousted GOP Gov. William Cahill in a June primary fight whose scars haven't healed.

A Byrne landslide could enable the Democrats to regain control of the state Senate and retain their hold on the Assembly.

In Virginia, the competitors are former Gov. Mills E. Godwin Jr., 58, a Democrat turned Republican, and Lt. Gov. Henry E. Howell Jr., 53, a Democrat running as an Independent. There is no Democratic candidate.

Early polls showed Howell, who has liberal, labor and black support, running ahead of the conservative Godwin. More recent polls showed Godwin had caught up and possible gone ahead.

In New York City veteran Democratic City Comptroller Abraham D. Beame, 67, appears headed for a landslide victory over three opponents in the race to succeed retiring Mayor John V. Lindsay.

Polls show that Beame, who lost to Lindsay in 1965, could poll more than half the vote against state Sen. John J. Marchi, 52, the Republican candidate; Assemblyman Albert Blumenthal, 44, the Liberal party nominee; and Rep. Mario Biaggi, 56, the Conservative candidate.

Elsewhere around the country, Democrats are expected to retain control of Kentucky's legislature, while Detroit may choose its first black mayor, Democratic state Sen. Coleman Young.

A Detroit News poll last week showed Young, 54, leading by 5 percent over former Police Chief John Nichols, also 54 and white.

In Cleveland, Republican Mayor Ralph Perk, 59, is virtually assured of re-election over City Council Clerk Mercedes Cotner, a Democrat.

In Minneapolis, former police detective Charles Stenvig is favored for a third term as mayor against a Democrat, former Councilman Al Hofstede, and a Republican, Councilwoman Gladys Brooks.

Food Prices Rise Production Lags

BOSTON (AP) — Food prices are rising and production of substitute foods is lagging because of government price controls, says the executive secretary of the Massachusetts Retail Grocers Association.

"It is time to end food price controls to rescue the consumers from their financial purgatory," said Malcolm McCabe at the association's convention Sunday.

"The only way the nation's food producers can offset shortages in certain foods is to produce a number of substitute foods."

2nd Paul Robeson Lecture Tomorrow

Professor C.L.R. James will deliver the second lecture in the Paul Robeson Lecture series tomorrow night at 8:00 p.m. at Herter Hall, 321. This distinguished Pan-African Scholar has written and lectured extensively on history, art, and literary criticism. In addition, he has immersed himself in Marxist philosophy, economic analysis, problems of development in Third World countries, and problems of the working class in industrialized nations.

Undergrads Meet With Philosophy Dept.

At 4:00 PM this afternoon the UMass Undergraduate Philosophers will meet in room 2601 of the library to discuss with the entire philosophy department various proposals which will affect it as a whole. Topics will include a mandatory universal advisory scheme, increased utilization of teacher education resources, and integration of undergrads into the administration and activities of the department.

The Undergraduate Philosophers are a group of people seeking to encourage and fulfill serious interest in the practice of philosophy on this campus. Tuesday's meeting will provide an opportunity to find out about the infant organization, pick up a sheaf of information handy to the philosophy student, and air opinions as what it's all about. Refreshments will be served.

ALL UNIVERSITY MEN INVITED TO:
AN OPEN RUSH
at
PHI MU DELTA
Come and make your own decisions on fraternity living.
TUESDAY, NOV. 6.
at 8:30 p.m.
FREE BEER
Call for rides 545-2163

NATURAL GAS
at the Bluewall
wednesday, Nov. 7
9:00pm - 1:00 AM

PENGUIN BOOK SALE
6,000 Penguin paperbacks
— all subjects, most titles —
Reduced in Price
TO AN UNBELIEVABLE
3 / $1.00
- SPECIAL SALE TABLES -
NOW IN PROGRESS
at
The University Store
Campus Center

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF	Stephen G. Tripoli
MANAGING EDITOR	Mary T. Vorderer
BUSINESS MANAGER	Gilbert W. Fullerton
EXECUTIVE EDITOR	Jerald H. Lazar
NEWS EDITOR	Joan Fassnacht
SPORTS EDITOR	Stephen W. Crowe
PHOTO EDITOR	Alan H. Chapman
FINE ARTS EDITOR	Patrick Coffey
ADVERTISING MANAGER	Brent A. Wilkes
ASST. MANAGING EDITOR	Geoffrey L. Kurinsky
ASST. EXECUTIVE EDITOR	Dean P. Tucker
ASST. NEWS EDITOR	Sharon Hughes
ASST. SPORTS EDITOR	Steven DeCosta
ASST. PHOTO EDITOR	Stephen A. Ruggles
ASST. FINE ARTS EDITOR	Joyce Kosofsky

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR	Jim Lavrakas
NIGHT STAFF	Bob Scheier
EDITORIAL	Colleen Ranshaw
SPORTS	David Eibel
DARKROOM	Dennis Conlon, Richard Harding
AD LAYOUT	Jane Levin

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administrators read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons, and letters represent the personal views of the authors.

The Collegian subscribes to the Associated Press and the Liberation News Service. Publication of their material does not constitute endorsement.

Forgiveness

By TOM G. BRINE

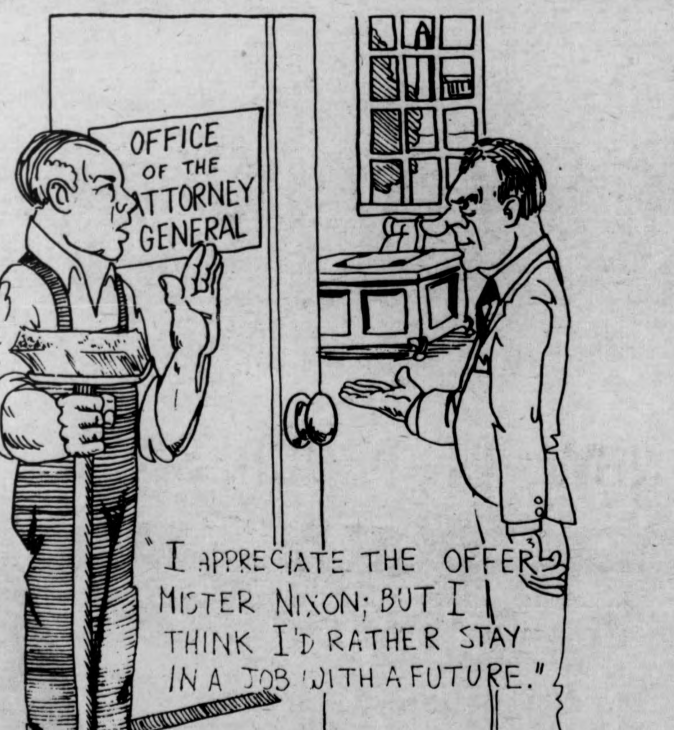
One of the acts of the church that was passed down suppossedly by Jesus Christ was the act of Confession. It is today one of the few acts in the church that has not changed it it's form. Many religious hierarchy will tell you it is one of the most important parts of the Catholic Church. For any loyal Catholic across the world, going to confession is a normality. But from what I have seen and heard, I find it to hard to believe that most layman of the church know the true meaning of Confession and it's relationship with man.

The main idea that Jesus Christ tries to teach about Confession is that if we commit any number or any type of sin, venial or mortal, and we are willing to admit our guilt to the Lord and ask for forgiveness it will be granted. No questions asked! But this is only half of what he tried to teach us. What Jesus Christ also stated, we should apply the act of confession to our neighbors and if one person does something to hurt another, he or she should forgive him as Jesus Christ did. This seems to be the hardest idea for anyone to accept.

Looking at the world today, it seems very clear that the act of forgiveness or contrition outside the church is badly missing. Constant battles ensue between countries, states, and between individuals. It always seems to be the same problem. One party cannot turn the other cheek. "Unfortunately," said Jesus Christ, "those who cannot forgive their neighbors should not axpect to be forgiven by me."

Looking over the large population of this world, and witnessing some of it's events, I find it very hard to believe even the most religious fanatics or loyalists, abide by this act of forgiveness. Constant unwanting battles between man, women or child, result because one or many persons simply cannot forgive. Those who happen to fall in this catagory should not be too surprised when judgement day arrives and Jesus Christ also refuses to forgive!

Tom G. Brine is a Collegian Commentator



OFFICE OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL
"I APPRECIATE THE OFFER MISTER NIXON; BUT I THINK I'D RATHER STAY IN A JOB WITH A FUTURE."
MOYLE

Zamir Nestelbaum

Saluting Heimie

In last Saturday's big bout with the awe-inspiring Vermont Catamounts, in which the potent Minutemen, (Minutemen are always potent, aren't they?), trounced the hapless Cats, the big story was not the victory or the performance of Piel "Go out for a Pass" Pennington, but the salute at halftime that Frank McInerney, the Athletic Council, the Trustees and Jocks of the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, gave to Heimie Gritzkessel. Why Heimie Gritzkessel? was on everybodies lips during the last week. After all, his son Clarence "Hitter" Gritzkessel was an important cog in the Minuteman attack as starting Left Bench, but of all fathers to honor, why Gritzkessel's? Maybe the fact that Gritzkessel is Chairman of the Board of Anaconda Rubber had something to do with it. If they were going to exploit someone, why not Yogi Berra, father of Terrific Tim Berra. I mean why Gritzkessel? To find out for myself, I talked to Hitter Gritzkessel yesterday over a sandwich at the Greenough Downunder:

Z.N.: "What's the story, Hitter? A lot of people have been badmouthing your father, Heimie, saying that the only reason they did it was for money."

Hitter: "What do ya mean money?"

Z.N.: "I mean the Gritzkessel Athletic Complex that Boyden has in the works. You don't think they did it was because of you Hitter?"

Hitter: "You been badmouthing me, you honkey son of a bitch. I read what that "slick" fella said about ya, and even though I heard he's a shithead, I'll bust ya if ya cross me.

Z.N.: "Take it easy Hitter" (who was foaming at the mouth.). "No one's badmouthing you or your ole man. All we're saying is that Heimie has had his ups and downs like anybody else, but no better than anybody else.

Hitter: "Wait a second. My father built up Anaconda Rubber from a two bit condom operation to the largest rubber manufacturer in the world. Our rubbers are the best, they'll never wilt or leak. The world owes a lot to my father, Heimie Gritzkessel, and its about time he got some of the recognition he deserves. And another thing, I'm the best damn blasted Left Bench the Minutemen ever had. Without my services, how could our potent offense keep its ass warm?"

Z.N.: The way they been goin' lately, maybe they should stay on top of you more, Hitter."

Hitter: "You bet your ass! I can handle it! So ya see, I'm an integral part of this operation and why shouldn't they honor my old man, for he made me possible, even though he is gonna build em a sports complex."

Z.N.: "You know Hitter, I think I'm coming around to your point of view. After all, why shouldn't UMass try to make a quick buck when a quick buck is to be made. After all, everybody knows that intercollegiate varsity athletics is a ruthless, professional, money-gubbing, exploitative racket. Everybody knows that athletes are recruited into a school only for their ability to kick someone's ass, to shoot a basketball or to hit a baseball, and certainly not for any ability to think and study. Why just look at one big name Basketball player they've already declared ineligible for academic reasons before his first ballgame. We should commend McInerney for at least being honest in this salute to ole man Gritzkessel, and for showing us what UMass athletics is all about."

Hitter: "Ya know, I agree wid ya, even though I didn't understand some of dem words......like expoition."

Z.N.: "Thats exploitation Hitter. You got it. Waitress bring my buddy here another Fresca. He deserves it."

Hitter: "Gee thanx pal! You're alright after all. Listen, ya think we got a half decent team dis year?"

Z.N.: "Does the Pope shit in the woods?"

Hitter: "Huh?"

Z.N.: "Skip it Hitter. Listen, I think I know why UMass picked your father in particular instead of some other big named dude."

Hitter: "Hows that?"

Z.N.: "Simple. They want your father to make them up some special MINUTEMAN RUBBERS that they could use as a new recruitment enticement."

Zamir Nestelbaum is a Collegian columnist.

Ol' Fudgie

By STEVE FINE

Childhood memories are sweet and perhaps that is why I recollect them so well.

When I was young, I lived 35 miles east of New York City in the subdued environment of one of the first delete

When I was young, I lived 35 miles east of New York City in the subdued environment of one of the first post World War II housing developments built on Long Island. Travelling through my community was like having a severe case of double vision. Each side of the street was lined with a perpetual row of look alike houses spaced equidistant apart from each other.

Despite the tedium of the surroundings, my old neighborhood had enough of a collection of different personalities (young and old) in it to give me my first lessons about living. A case in point was the person who lived next door to me.

Emil Werner, ("Ol' Fudgie as my young friends and I used to call him) was a married man of about 50 who had an extreme dislike for children. Not having any of his own he sublimated his paternal instincts into the gardening that had to be done around his house. He nurtured his plants with love, taking meticulous care to protect them from the elements. He watered his lawn each day to guard against drought, fertilized his arborvitae shubbery to prevent malnutrition and manicured the branches of his hemlocks so they would grow straight and tall.

After all these precautions were taken however, Emil realized they stood little chance for survival unless he in some way checked the movements of our trampling feet on his property. Thus began the "War" between "Ol' Fudgie" and us kids.

The "War" itself began on a small scale and escalated into an all out conflict. To guard against our wrath, Emil went out and bought a German shephard attack dog named Princess to scare off any intruders. This worked well for few of us were ever brave enough to fetch a ball that had haphazardly been kicked into his yard at the risk of having our ankles bit off.

I will never forget the time when two unknowing teenagers fell victim to his prey. Before the two had not gone much farther than a few feet into his verdant yard, Emil came charging out with Princess leading the way "Down Princess down," Emil yelled as the huge black dog felled one of the boys with a ferocious leap.

"We give up mister, we give up!" screamed the other petrified boy with his hands shaking high in the air.

"We only wanted to get that frisbee over there. We weren't trying to steal anything," he pleaded.

"Get out of here now," Emil yelled loudly over Princess's barks. "If I ever catch you in here again, I'll call the cops."

The boys left quickly without argument. Emil had one another battle.

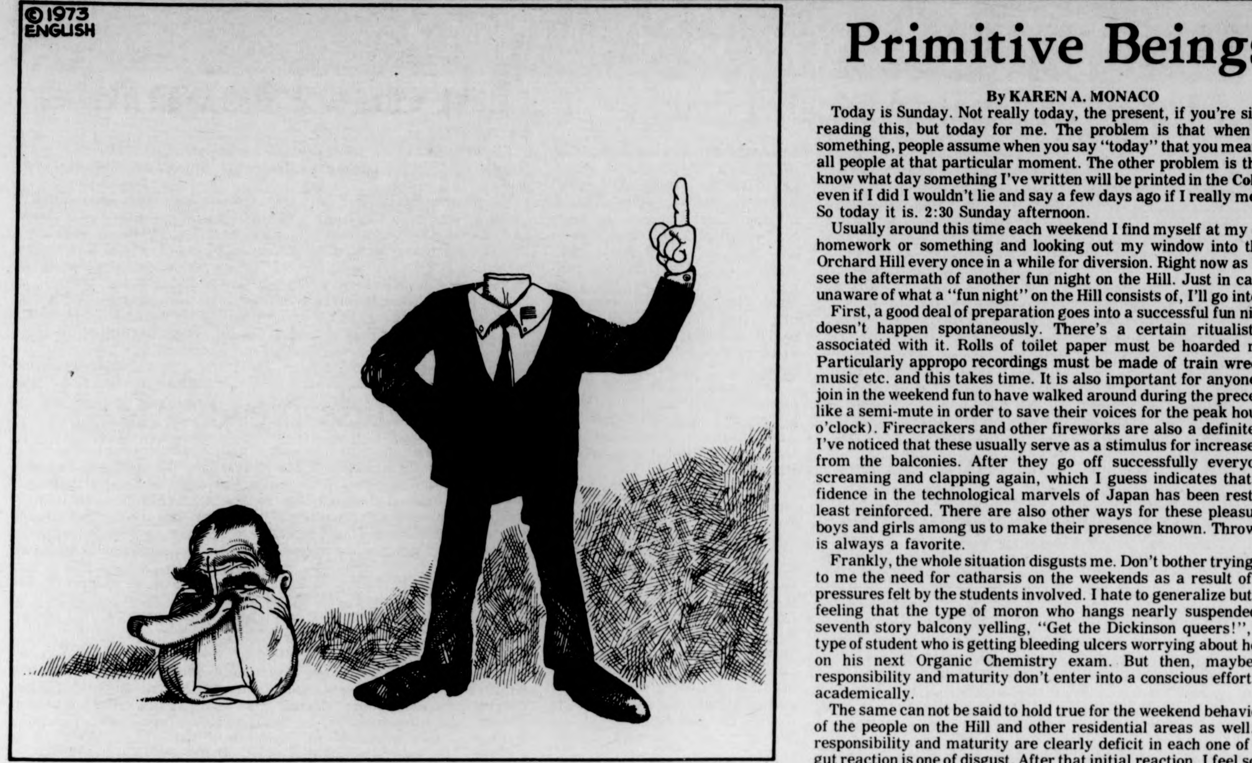
The hostility between Emil and "Darlings of Dorothea St." subsided after a number of years. As we got older we moved our playing fields to the community high school, where we vented our frustrations out on ourselves rather than him.

To me the saddest thing that happened to Emil was the day when Princess died. As it is not uncommon for animals to become part of a family, Princess did this and more, for her presence had made Emil and his wife feel like they were a family. She had become as close a facsimile to a child than anything I had ever known him to have.

As I said memories of growing up are sweet, and perhaps that is why I remember them so well.

Steve Fine left UMass last spring, and is now on Long Island, recovering from 20 3/4 years of living.

More Commentaries
See Page 11



"I'm going to tough it out!"

Perverse And Disgusting

By KEVIN MACK

I don't know, maybe I'm old fashioned, but somehow I find nothing funny about a 250 pound drag queen eating dog shit. In fact, it seems rather perverse and more than a bit disgusting.

"Pink Flamingo" is what I am talking about. It is a movie which bills itself as the "filthiest movie ever made" (which it may just be). Last Friday and Saturday nights it was viewed by several thousand students in six crowded showings at the Campus Center Auditorium. The film concerns a person named Divine and her attempts to remain the "filthiest person alive". This title is contested by a couple (whose names I forget) who are into impregnating kidnaped women in order to sell the infants to lesbian couples. The husband also enjoys exposing himself.

My sensibilities are not particularly insulted by this sort of thing. There is nothing offensive in itself about a 250 pound drag queen. But these people are not at all funny and when they try to be humorous, they only become perverse.

Its hip to say that there is nothing to the term--perverse. If a man like Nixon can be President than nothing is perverse, right? (This type of reasoning exists, believe me, I meet it every day.)

We all have our own little perversions, I am told, and, in the same line of reasoning, how can one say that a drag queen or an exhibitionist are perverted when they are hurting no one except perhaps themselves?

"Pink Flamingo" tests the limits of perversity and reaches beyond them. Unlike other underground-type films about people whom society calls perverse (Warhol's films for example) "Pink Flamingo" tries to be humorous rather than just documenting marginal lifestyles. Its humor is not basically cynical, as in Warhol's films, rather, it tries to be funny in a slapstick sort of way, almost like a Marx Brother's film. It fails. (Although I did like the dancing asshole sequence).

In Warhol's films the characters may be perverse but they are also very human and likeable. It's easy to like Joe, the junkie who can't get it up in Warhol's "Trash", or even Holly, the drag queen in the same film. They know that they are perverse but they don't try to proselytize their lifestyles. But "Pink Flamingo" glorifies perversity; it pokes fun at the audience for not being quite as sick as the people in the film.

In the last scene, Divine proves that she is the filthiest person alive by seemingly eating dogshit. This is not funny. Sure, she is only doing it for the money, and several thousand people paid a buck to see her this weekend. (Myself, included.) But Divine seemed so arrogant when she ate the shit, as if to say to us all, "You assholes paid a buck to see me eat this shit, you are all no better than I am."

But no one has to eat shit for money and, if you ever read this, Divine, I would really rather pay you a buck not to eat shit.

Kevin Mack is a Collegian commentator.

Letters To The Editor,
see page 12

Primitive Beings?

By KAREN A. MONACO

Today is Sunday. Not really today, the present, if you're sitting down reading this, but today for me. The problem is that when you write something, people assume when you say "today" that you mean today for all people at that particular moment. The other problem is that I never know what day something I've written will be printed in the Collegian and even if I did I wouldn't lie and say a few days ago if I really meant today. So today it is. 2:30 Sunday afternoon.

Usually around this time each weekend I find myself at my desk doing homework or something and looking out my window into the bowl of Orchard Hill every once in a while for diversion. Right now as I look out I see the aftermath of another fun night on the Hill. Just in case you are unaware of what a "fun night" on the Hill consists of, I'll go into it a little.

First, a good deal of preparation goes into a successful fun night. It just doesn't happen spontaneously. There's a certain ritualistic quality associated with it. Rolls of toilet paper must be hoarded religiously. Particularly appropo recordings must be made of train wrecks, organ music etc. and this takes time. It is also important for anyone hoping to join in the weekend fun to have walked around during the preceding week like a semi-mute in order to save their voices for the peak hours (11 to 1 o'clock). Firecrackers and other fireworks are also a definite must, for I've noticed that these usually serve as a stimulus for increased shouting from the balconies. After they go off successfully everyone begins screaming and clapping again, which I guess indicates that their confidence in the technological marvels of Japan has been restored or at least reinforced. There are also other ways for these pleasure-seeking boys and girls among us to make their presence known. Throwing things is always a favorite.

Frankly, the whole situation disgusts me. Don't bother trying to explain to me the need for catharsis on the weekends as a result of academic pressures felt by the students involved. I hate to generalize but I have the feeling that the type of moron who hangs nearly suspended out of a seventh story balcony yelling, "Get the Dickinson queers!", is not the type of student who is getting bleeding ulcers worrying about how he'll do on his next Organic Chemistry exam. But then, maybe personal responsibility and maturity don't enter into a conscious effort to do well academically.

The same can not be said to hold true for the weekend behavior of some of the people on the Hill and other residential areas as well. Personal responsibility and maturity are clearly deficit in each one of them. My gut reaction is one of disgust. After that initial reaction, I feel scared. Are people basically "good"? Or is it the "real you" that comes out on a weekend, the you that let's go, the you that has built up all sorts of defenses to be used during most of the week that tells others to leave you alone until Friday so that you can finish what you have to do?

As for me, I've always hated large groups of people. When I was in high school, we used to have these pep rallies for our nighty Warriors during which we, the student body were supposed to perform all sorts of innane behavior designed to spur our boys onto victory. Our behavior was regulated by eight very attractive women who had to wear these really short kilts and matching sweaters, even if the town happened to be middle of a Northeaster. I never quite got the connection between their little getup and our enthusiasm or between my shouting "Kill Conard (the other high school in town)!" in my most vicious tones and any action that would result in their winning the game. So there were a few of us who would leave homeroom, like the rest of the herd destined for the pep rally except that midway we took a slight turn that they didn't and wound up in the office of our art teacher, who was a sympathetic supporter of our apathy. But what do you do if its 2:00 a.m., you'd really like to get to sleep only you can't because the inside of your room sounds like the Mardi Gras revisited? There's no art teacher to run to here.

Something very strange happens when people find themselves in groups. And on the Hill people seem to find themselves in groups on weekends most often because they have time on their hands. The 19th century Frenchman LeBon maintained that when men joined a crowd, their intelligence was lowered to that of primitive beings. Among those included in the category of "primitive beings" by LeBon were women, children, and members of the lower classes. I'm vehemently opposed to the membership criteria regarding what he terms primitive beings for if it were true, then I cringe when I think of what he might label women and the others when they become a crowd. But he makes his point. Individuals in groups for whatever the reason are not merely the sum of the individuals in the group.

I'll end this with a request. Show a little maturity when next weekend is upon us or go and play your games elsewhere like in the woods of Leverett.

Karen A. Monaco is a Collegian commentator.

Impeachment Is Unjustified

By BOB RILEY

It has been over two weeks since I, like the rest of the nation, seethed with anger and disgust at the actions of Richard Nixon in the now infamous tapes controversy. Since that time much has been written and said on all sides of the political spectrum; much more commentary will follow. Yet one thing is certain; if adversity is supposed to bring out the best in a nation, then America is in serious trouble. Forget about Nixon. Enough has been said concerning his failures. Rather, take a good hard look at our other leaders in Congress, and at our selves, to see the real flaws in the American fabric.

The firing of Archibald Cox was a gross betrayal of public trust. In a matter of hours, Nixon was able to change his credibility "gap" into a canyon. It was an indefensable action that deserved public outcry but not impeachment. The Chief Executive is perfectly within his rights to fire anybody within his branch of government including (unfortunately) Special Prosecutors. The decision to withhold evidence demanded by the courts is definitely grounds for impeachment, but that decision never really materialized. Yes, Nixon said he would not obey a court order but when the moment of truth came, he backed down. Thus no grounds for removal. In fact, despite what many say as of this moment there is not one iota of hard evidence to prove that our "law and order" president does not practice what he preaches. (The Cambodian bombings, etc. are generally not regarded as grounds for impeachment except by the diehard anti-Nixonites). We were undeniably on the verge of a grave constitutional crisis last week as we awaited decision on the tapes but we were not in one.

Yet, when did the people get from our leaders in Congress when the nation most needed leadership? The answer is, very little. We needed rational thinking to restrain our national irrationality. We got emotional rhetoric. We needed bi-partisan action in Congress. We got partisan politics. We needed the emergence of honest men with conviction. We got demagogues. When we most needed to be reminded of the word and spirit of the constitution. We had it obscured.

From the American people came equally disheartening displays, as if we had forgotten our basic responsibilities in a democracy. We allowed our emotions to guide us instead of our reason. We twisted the law to serve the purposes of various political groups when it should have been noted most strictly. We listened to the irresponsible in government and ignored the responsible. We called for the impeachment of a man who had broken no law.

The protests were loud and clear last week, showing that the electorate would not tolerate a President who failed to obey the laws, which he was supposed to uphold. That is how it should be. But impeachment? At no time was it justified. The American people, Congress and President have shown their true nature and found themselves to be sadly lacking in good qualities. Unless a major change takes place in the makeup of these institutions, unless all of us better familiarize ourselves with the rights, responsibilities and operations needed in this country, then America will have seen the last of its better days.

Bob Riley is a Collegian commentator.

Letters To The Editor

The Unity Of Arab-African History

To The Editor:

This is a response to Menachen Rosenberger's letter to the editor of Nov. 2, a letter which in effect made a gross assessment to the fact that blacks should not support Arabs.

For one thing the area classification of Africa and Mideast as suggested by Rosenberger, (which I took to be a suggestion as opposed to professional oversimplification) on the ground of racial variations, as opposed to cultural and ethical approximation of the people in question, is one that lends itself to colonial systematization.

One of the major factors that actually thwarted movement and migration that were the prevalent forces of intergration and solidarity of cultures and peoples among precolonial Africa and Asia, is the partition and mosaicazation of these continents by Western colonial rulers, past and present. Unlike colonial days this colonial tradition is being perpetuated, today, by politics and by direct administration where possible-ex. South Africa and Rhodesia. And I might add, Israel is no exception to this inhuman atrocity.

I will be the first to accept that North Africa had been swept by Arabs who freed the sparse native population then from the brutal heat of the Sahara. Take this with a grain of salt. The Arabs of those days found North Africa to be an ecological extension of the Mideast and Egypt and they became an integral part of our culture and political past, to say the least, as Romans and Greeks could have been to the west. Rosenberger's attempt to unfold our history in the light of Western scholarship is nothing but something that is attributable to etic and kaleidoscopic projection of Afro-Asian diversity as a thing void of unity.

It has been said, time and time again, that slavery existed in Africa and Asia since prehistoric times. But the general consensus is that slavery in Africa was not a dehumanizing and despiritualizing practice until it was handled by the westerners and their counterparts the Jews who fled from Iberian peninsula (during the Spanish Inquisition) to North Africa. Never at any time in African history was slavery based on the "double standard ethics" of the capitalist west. We Africans do not regard it as either the essence of Africa's past or Arabs' past.

If Rosenberger had made a scholastic recall of the past, as he claimed to have done, he should have pointed out of the pharoahs of Egypt and the Akkadians (That of Sumer) in the Mideast who were the fathers of the Black race; and only then it would have been possible of him to recognize that the history of the Arabs is a feedback to African history and vice versa. Where as the same would not hold true between Africa and the tribes of Israel-so much for history.

We members of the Third World circle do not accept the notion of projecting the current Middle East crisis onto a misconceivably reconstructed past as portrayed by Rosenberger.

Be that as it may, today, as of yesterday, Blacks of the Third World caliber support the Arabs not only because they think Arabs are politically on the right track but also the Arab-Palestinian struggle for liberation and territorial resumption is an integral part of the Third World's move against malicious world powers and their collaborators (such as the state of Israel)-the ultimate aim being to establish a global justice and peace and to restore the psychic unity of the African and Arab past in the present.

Woubishet Adisaw
An Ethiopian student of Anthropology

Last Chance To See Moe

To The Editor:

I don't know about anyone else but I always thought that Moe Howard was the first on his block to get a Beatle wig. Anyone like that can't be all bad.

For those in the know, "The Stooges" have been an institution in this country for all of us with a sick sense of humor. Coming back from school in my pre-college years wouldn't have been the same without Moe, Larry and Curly to tune into. Thank God I can still catch them here in Amherst as well as Boston. (Actually the only time I get depressed watching the Stooges is when Shemp or worse yet, Joe is on instead of Curly).

So to all of us who care about childhood, mom and apple pie VOTE YES in bringing Moe Howard to UMass as a distinguished visitor. After all this will probably be our only chance to see him in person before he drops dead.

Laurie L. Levine
(and all of Sigma Delta Tau)

UMass Needs Moe

To The Editor:

Washington is in a shambles. The Middle East is teetering on the edge of destruction. Where does this leave the University of Massachusetts? In the Student Union Ballroom, of course, listening to Moe Howard. He may have the body of a seventy year old, but he still has the mind of a three year old! This is more than can be said for certain people in Washington. In these times of national and world duress, UMass needs Moe Howard! Go Moe!

Gerry Brooks

Sorry, Moe Fans

To The Editor:

After seeing the appeals to the DVP to bring Moe to campus, I feel that I should give my opinion concerning humorists I would enjoy seeing and hearing on campus. Two "institutions" come to my mind -- Firesign Theatre and Groucho Marx. Firesign Theatre has (according to a reliable source) its live program and, for those of you who did not know it, Groucho (the only remaining member of the Famous Foursome) is touring college campuses and receiving tremendous ovations as he speaks.

Sorry, Moe fans -- in comparison to the above two Moe is third-rate. I've been spoiled by Groucho Marx and Lennon.

Normund Strautin

Belchertown Walk-a-thon

To The Editor:

The University of Massachusetts at Amherst and its faculty, staff and students have developed a strong tradition of support and cooperation for the programs and residents at the Belchertown State School.

UMass-Amherst students spent more than 2,000 hours working at Belchertown during the last academic year in programs such as the Boltwood and Belchertown Volunteers. Several academic departments have made their resources available to the school. Under the guidance of Dr. Larry Dye of the School of Education, are being trained to fill important positions at Belchertown. And the University and the school have established a joint planning committee to work out further avenues of fruitful cooperation.

The University community has an opportunity November 17 to make a further important contribution to Belchertown by participation in the walk-a-thon to raise funds for the Adolescent Training Unit. The coordinators of this event hope to raise $15,000 for physical renovation and implementation of new programs in the trining unit.

I urge members of the University of Massachusetts community to continue our support to Belchertown by participating in this important effort, as walkers and as sponsors.

Robert Wood
President, UMass

Music Bridges Gaps

To The Editor:

In response to Donald Austern's letter regarding the Leningrad Symphony Orchestra:

Your attitude toward the Leningrad Symphony Orchestra and its upcoming concert here is an example of one of the kinds of hatred we don't need any more of in this world. These artists are trying to bridge some of the gaps and misunderstandings between individuals of different nationalities that are so prevalent today. The assumption that all musicians support their homeland's government is both irrational and unfair. I am only one of many who are delighted at the fact that the communication of art can still happen above and beyond political differences. Would you think it reasonable for the Boston Symphony Orchestra, or perhaps the Grateful Dead to be boycotted if they were to perform in Russia? The government of this country is certainly no less corrupt than that of the Soviet Union. I am greatly angered at your reaction to this concert, and would ask you to please let the political differences in the world remain political, and leave art and artists out of it, especially since this is one of the few ways remaining that all human beings can come together in peace.

Christine A. Mudgett

Why do some people think Bud is sort of special?
Go ahead and find out why!
(Brewing beer right does make a difference.)
Budweiser

When you say Budweiser®, you've said it all!
ANHEUSER-BUSCH, INC. • ST. LOUIS

Jelly Bag UNLTD.
WATERBEDS
HEATERS - LINERS FRAMES
5 Year Guarantee
ALL SIZES
Call 584-5136

MDC
NEWS HOTLINE
5-2550

Top of the Campus
Tuesday
Wednesday
Thursday
Nov. 6, 7, 8
Special
Steak or Prime Rib plus all the salad you can eat
only $2.95

Your Head This Semester

By DRS. ANDREW W. McCASHIN & STEVEN M. KLEIN

Q. I can't understand what's wrong with me. My first two years here were good. Yet since the beginning of this semester I can't seem to get into anything. Mainly, I'm worried about my academic work. Although I'm still doing alright. I'm not motivated. I have trouble concentrating and it's taking too much effort. This bothers me because I plan to go to graduate school. Am I having some kind of identity crisis?

A. The concept of identity may be quite useful in understanding your situation. Space and limited information permit us only some brief and general remarks. "Identity" and "identity crises" are elusive terms at best. Psychologically they do not describe a static event or condition but attempt to define a complex dynamic relationship between man, and the environment he grows in. Identity refers to the style of one's individuality; a feeling of self-sameness and synthesis that is shared by those with whom we have significant relationships.

One hopes that these feelings about who they are and what they do, are experienced in a consistent way both subjectively and by those they relate to. This synthesis, however changes and evolves in the face of new demands.

Culture and biology determine that various stages in one's life are especially critical in the developmental process. By adolescence, for example, the needs to mature sexually, to develop occupational choices, and achieve parental separation are important areas.

You may well be going through a period of personal re-evaluation. There are several factors which may relate to your feeling "unmotivated". To feel motivated about any activity including schoolwork, requires that your particular skills and talents are recognized and valued by the environment in which you work. Lacking this, a lack of environmental acceptance leads to discouragement. You may also be doubting that your desire to go to graduate school is entirely your own. If desire to go to graduate school is entirely your own. If you are simply imitating or identifying with other people and what they want you to do then you might feel dis-satisfied or even resentful about your choice. Perhaps other areas in your life may have become more important such as, needs for greater autonomy from family or for more social or interpersonal awareness.

This would certainly effect your investment in academic work. Most likely, however, it is the possibility that you are experiencing anxiety as you get closer to realizing your goal, that of taking on adult responsibility in the form of graduate school.

The Student Is The Consumer

In August, 1973, after extensive and continuing discussions involving students, administrators and providers of service, the decision was made to merge the Counseling Center and the Career Planning and Placement Center, and by combining their resources and perhaps developing new ones, create a new and viable community facility called the Student Development and Career Planning Center. (see Collegian article, October 15, 1973.)

Since that time a task force composed of people (see below) representing the consumers, but also including providers of services, chaired by Ms. Chyrlene Boyd, has been meeting to define the mechanisms that could best be used in developing the overall orientation, programs, and practices of this new setting.

The Student Development and Career Planning Center task force has decided that only by holding open hearings can the information be gathered whereby the consumers' experiences and ideas could significantly influence the eventual structure, content and the form of governance of the new Student Development and Career Planning Center. (see below for the exact dates, times, and places of the hearings.)

The model of fully open hearings and consumer determination adopted by the Student Development and Career Planning Center task force could result in the development of an incredibly exciting community center. It could also set a pattern for future decision making and program development in the University as a whole.

Unfortunately, through apathy, disinterest or uninvolvement on the part of the students and other members of the University community it could jeopardize the movement toward consumer participation.

We urge you to attend the hearings and make available your concerns, ideas and experiences.

Hearings will be held on Nov. 12, 3:30-5:30; Nov. 14, 7-9; Nov. 15 7-9; Nov.19, 6-8. Place and room assignments will be made shortly. For additional information please contact any member of the task force or: Charlene Boyd 549-1857, Ted Slovin or Bob White 545-0333.

Make Things!

TONIGHT! COME ONE, COME ALL! to an Evening of Making Things: Batik, Masks, Sock Puppets, Musical Instruments, Creative Cooking, Super-Junk Sculpture, and much much more. Come make things happen, tonight, Tuesday Nov. 6, 8 p.m. at Farley Lodge.

Please bring supplies or a 50 cent donation. Sponsored by the Aesthetics Center of the School of Ed.

The 24-Day Course

A 24-day Outward Bound course, designed to focus on issues related to education, will be offered during the 1974 January inter-session for persons in the Five-College community. Running from January 4 through 27, the course (H-55t) will be staffed and executed by the Hurricane Island Outward Bound School. Tuition is $450.

Scholarship help at a significant level is available for some applicants. Lilly fellowships are obtainable for faculty members. Applications can be obtained from the local coordinator, Donn Kesselheim (tel. 545-0984; rm. 105, UMass School of Education Building).

Interested persons should apply immediately to Ms. Carol Lyon, Hurricane Island Outward Bound School, P. O. Box 429, Rockland, Maine 04841.

Notices

ASTRONOMY CLUB
Meeting to be held tonight in Hasbrouk 22 at 7:30.

AZ OFFICERS
Meeting of officers today at 6 p.m. in 102 C.C. All members welcome.

BAHA'I FAITH
Miss Magdalene Carney will speak tonight Tuesday at 8:15 at Dr. Juan Caban's home, 64 Van Meter Dr. All welcome.

BEEN RIPPED OFF?
Then sue in Small Claims Court. For information contact WMPIRG office, S.U.B. 413 A or phone 545-0712.

BEGINNING BOXING COLLOQUIUM
New SW sponsored colloquium, possible credit, Tu and Th 7-9, 19th Washington. Beginners welcomed. Content: brief history--basic techniques-use and care of equipment, two field trips. Call Dana 549-0899 evenings or stop by.

BRIDGE PLAYERS
Duplicate Bridge play at 7 in 113 C.C. Meet new people and improve your game.

JUAN DE LA CRUZ
Boycott Committee meeting tonight, Tues. in 172 C.C. Interested persons urged to attend. Viva la Causa!!

CHARTER TO RIO DE JANEIRO
Roberto White will be showing slides and describing the study-tour to Brazil planned for the winter intercession at 9 p.m. in Grayson House (Orchard Hill) Main Lounge, Tues. 11-6.

CHESS TOURNAMENT
Round 3 of the club championship starts tonight, 7:30 p.m., C.C. 165-169. Be there if you've signed up.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE
At tonight's meeting, members share their experiences in which they have used Christian Science to solve everyday problems. Everyone is welcome to attend, C.C. 911 at 6:45 p.m.

CONCERT COMMITTEE
There will be a concert committee meeting on Tues. 11-6 at 7:30 in the S.U. Council Chambers. All interested persons should attend.

DAILY SERVICES
Services in Rm. 302, Wed. 10:00 a.m., bring your Tefillin. Eves. 6:45 p.m. Patterson, Rm. 108.

INDIA NIGHT
For an evening to remember, or just to relax, join us Sunday 11-18, 7:30 p.m., C.C.A. for a program from the land of legend and history.

JAPANESE FILM SERIES
Tonight 7:30 and 9:30, Kuroneko (Black Cat), Sage Hall, Smith College, Admission fee at the door.

KEELE UNIVERSITY EXCHANGE
All interested students considering applying for the University of Keele Exchange Program to England 1974-

(Continued on P. 18)

ADVERTISE FREE
Western Massachusetts Only
Super Ad List
FAIR EXCHANGE
A New Ad Weekly
Articles For Sale
by Private Owners
10 per cent of Advertised Price only IF and WHEN you sell
10,000 ACTIVE Buyers
NO DEALER ADS
SPECIAL 2 WEEK OFFER
No Commission Charge 25 word limit —
Ads must be received before Mon. noon, Nov. 19
FAIR EXCHANGE
P.O. Box J
N. Amherst, Mass. 01059
CALL 256-0236
Clip and Mail

BULLETIN:
John Morgan
returns from The Groggerys in Boston & Cape Cod to winter in Amherst every Tuesday night
at the PUB
TONIGHTS
Special Drink - Red Russians 50¢
THE NEW (Cranberry Brandy with Vodka)

dvp presents:
BELIEVE IT OR NOT WEEK
1. Ripley's Believe It or Not Show and lectures on
2. U.F.O.'s
3. Bermuda Triangle
Coming Soon!

Get Thee To Asylum

The Council of Undergraduate Students in Psychology is presenting the critically acclaimed movie ASYLUM, on Tuesday night, November 6, at 7:00, 9:00, and 11:00 p.m. in Mahar Auditorium.

ASYLUM is a feature-documentary filmed in the London haven of noted Psychologist, R.D. Laing (a development of his Kingsley Hall community). A permissive place, til things get out of hand, til violence forced us to examine our beliefs. The film documents the discussions, and the decision.

Anyone who has ever been uncertain about life, his place in the world...who hasn't decided to cop out of the System...or to cop into it...who is looking for another way...anyone who is involved closely with people should see ASYLUM. ASYLUM raises a wide range of questions.

A donation of 75 cents will be charged.

IN CONCERT

impulse! abc RECORDS

JAZZ ON TOUR

NEW DIMENSIONS IN CONTEMPORARY MUSIC

KEITH JARRETT

KEITH JARRETT FORT YAWUH

GATO BARBIERI

GATO CHAPTER ONE LATIN AMERICA

SAM RIVERS

SAM RIVERS STREAMS RECORDED IN PERFORMANCE AT THE MONTREUX JAZZ FESTIVAL

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 11 7:30 p.m.

Amherst College Gymnasium, $3.50

TICKETS: Campus Center, UMass - New Record Shop, For the Record, Amherst.

Television Tonight

5:00 ENSIGN O'TOOLE "Operation: Dinner Party." (18)

5:30 THE REAL McCOYS "A Man Of Influence." (18)

THE LUCY SHOW "Lucy, the Robot." (22)

THE ELECTRIC COMPANY (24)

HOGAN'S HEROES (30)

NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS (40)

5:55 WHAT'S HAPPENING UPDATE (3)

6:00 NEWS (3) (8) (22)

I SPY "Happy Birthday Everybody." (18)

MAKING THINGS WORK (24)

TO TELL THE TRUTH Garry Moore, host (30)

WILD, WILD WEST "Night Of the Death Masks." (40)

ZOOM! (57)

6:15 NATIONAL GOVERNMENT (24)

6:30 NEWS (3) (22) (30)

ABC EVENING NEWS (8)

CAPTURE (27)

LOUIS LYONS: NEWS AND COMMENT (57)

6:55 NEWSBEAT NEWS (40)

7:00 UNTAMED WORLD (3)

TRUTH OR CONSEQUENCES Bob Barker, host

DICK VAN DYKE SHOW "The Curious Thing About Women." (18)

NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS (22) (30)

YOUR FUTURE IS NOW (24)

MOVIE "Frankenstein's Daughter." (27)

ABC EVENING NEWS (40)

THE REPORTERS (57)

7:30 OZZIE'S GIRLS "Silver Threads Among the Swingers." (3)

LET'S MAKE A DEAL Monty Hall, host (8) (22)

GREEN ACRES "Double Drick." (18)

ELECTION RETURNS (24)

TREASURE HUNT (30)

DRAGNET "Internal Affairs DR 20" (40)

THE OPEN DOOR (57)

8:00 MAUDE Maude Findlay is having the time of her life fixing up blind dates for Vivian, with every available loser in town. (3)

NEW TEMPERATURES RISING "The Mothers." (8) (40)

CAN YOU TOP THIS? (18)

CHASE "The Dealer-Wheelers." (22) (30)

MONTSERRAT (57)

8:30 HAWAII FIVE-O "Flash Of Color, Flash Of Death." (3)

MOVIE "The Girl Most Likely To." (8) (40)

TOWARDS THE YEAR 2000 (18)

9:00 THE 700 CLUB (18)

THE MAGICIAN "Ovation For Murder." (22) (30)

9:30 HAWKINS "Death and the Maiden." (3)

10:00 MARCUS WELBY, M.D. "The Tall Tree." (8) (40)

POLICE STORY "The Ho Chi Minh Trail." (22) (30)

MARTIN AGRONSKY: EVENING EDITION (57)

10:30 THE LIVING WORD (18)

MANTRAP (27

ELLIOT NORTON REVIEWS (57)

11:00 NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS (3) (8) (18) (22) (30) (40)

11:30 MOVIE "Decline and Fall of a Bird-watcher." (3)

WIDE WORLD OF ENTERTAINMENT (8) (40)

ELECTION NIGHT RETURNS (22) (30)

12:00 JOHNNY CARSON SHOW (22) (30)

1:00 NEWS (8) (40)

TOMORROW Host Tom Snyder (22) (30)

1:15 NEWS, WEATHER (3)

2:00 NEWS (22) (30)

Five Hour Truckload Sale

Today Only, 1 to 6 p.m.

Behind Beta Kappa Phi

A limited number of Delmonico 4.9 Cubic-Foot refrigerators at GIVE A WAY PRICES Of $65 to $69

A Delmonico 4.9 Cubic-Foot compact refrigerator is the perfect addition to your room or apartment. This compact gives that extra convenience that makes such a big difference in your comfort.

It's nearly 2½ times larger than the two-cubic-foot mini refrigerators and its low purchase price will let you and your roommate have all the refrigerator you will ever need.

It is compact, yet has the organized storage space of much larger, bulkier refrigerators, including a full-width freezer at the top.

Check these features and then decide:
- Push button defrosting
- Full width freezer
- Adjustable temperature control
- Vegetable crisper
- Magnetic door gasket
- Interior light
- High resale value
- Muted sound mechanism
- Only 33½" high, 18" wide, 23½" deep

These nearly new refrigerators are in excellent condition and the SUPPLY IS LIMITED.

These units will be available for your inspection this afternoon in the parking lot at the rear of Beta Kappa Phi fraternity from 1 to 6 p.m. ONLY.

UCF Sponsors Community Night

The first U.C.F. Community Evening has been scheduled for Tuesday, November 6 beginning at 7 p.m. in Hills House North 123.

Community Evening will be a time for all of those persons interested in the support community and projects available through United Christian Foundation to come together.

The evening will include reports on activities of the Task Forces, a dessert, an open meeting of the U.C.F. board, and a time of celebration.

The seven U.C.F. Task Forces currently organized include Religion, Counseling, Peace Action, Culturnatives Clearinghouse, Racism, Public Relations and Maintenance. Further information is available by visiting 319 Hampshire House or by telephoning 545-2661 or 545-2789.

United Christian Foundation is an ecumenical ministry sponsored by several Protestant denominations. Its programs are open to all interested persons.

Hillel Sponsors Film On Europe

"A Brivele der mamen" a film starring Molly Picon will be presented on Tuesday (Nov. 6) at 7:30 p.m. at Amherst College in the Merrill Science Center 1. It is sponsored by the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation of Smith and Amherst Colleges. This film is part of a series entitled "Portraits of a Vanishing Era: Jewish Life in East Europe."

The public is invited to attend.

1972 OPEL GT 1900
19,000 miles, orange
$2795.00

1972 TOYOTA CORONA auto., yellow
$1995.00

1971 FORD PINTO
4 cyl std. trans.
$1595.00

1971 FORD PINTO
4 cyl std. trans.
$1595.00

1970 CHEVY MONTE CARLO
V-8, p.s., p.b., 27,000 miles.
$2195.00

1970 FORD SQUIRE WAGON
V-8, auto., air cond., p.s., p.b.
$1795.00

1967 RAMBLER REBEL
V-8, auto.
$495.00

1967 V.W. BUS
Blue
$595.00

1966 V.W. BUS
Red
$495.00

Complete sales, service, parts, body dept. and towing.

Northampton Volkswagon

Your Authorized VW Dealer
246 King St., Rte. 5
Northampton

FREE Shuttlebus Service for Amherst Customers

Call 584-8620

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries women can be quick-tempered, strong-willed and can insist that their way is the right way. These women also are attractive and do have a talent for putting across their ideas. Many have difficulty with Aquarius men, although they are attracted to them. Aries women are drawn to Leo men but the relationship is fiery and often begins and ends in a flash. Taurus and Libra men find the Aries woman intriguing and the woman reciprocates. Gloria Swanson, Joan Crawford and Bette Davis are three celebrities who exemplify many characteristics of the classic Aries woman.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Family council could be on agenda. You settle problems, outline programs — much occurs through spontaneous but secret confab. Means discretion is featured. Cancer individual plays key role. Make concession to older individual.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Social activity is featured. Means you make contacts, exchange views and enjoy being with people. Come out of shell. You receive compliments. You gain by experimenting. Sagittarian could figure in prominent way.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Emphasis is on getting down to business. You deal with heart of matters. Chips are down and results are evaluated. Be specific and thorough. Scorpio, Leo persons could play significant roles. You get chance to demonstrate abilities.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You are in position to obtain answers. Key is to ask questions. Don't limit yourself. Door could be open to long-range opportunity. Promote self-esteem. Persons who previously were reticent now will "open up."

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): One who cares attempts to make you comfortable. One who couldn't care less imposes on you. You have choice between intrigue or happiness. What you choose now will determine much of your future. Be mature!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You may be involved in romantic situation. Glamor is present and the clandestine is featured. This would be great time for TV appearance. Illusion, behind the scenes — these also are keynoted. Pisces is likely to be featured.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Practical efforts pay dividends. You get what you go after — you have added pressures, responsibilities. But you also have chance to hit jackpot. You get credit for what you do and chips fall in place. Success is indicated.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Nothing is halfway — it is all or nothing. You end or begin a relationship, no in-between. You start or finish. Climate is one of extremes. Know it and be ready. Don't stall. Decide. By the very act of decision, you set positive vibrations in motion.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): There is some tearing down for purpose of reconstruction. Nothing is likely to remain the same. Revisions are order of day for you. Know it and throw aside false pride. Improve. Refine. Perfect. You'll be happier, perhaps wealthier, as result.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Family situation can be loads of laughs but also complicated. Know when to draw line. You do have life of your own — live it and be mature. Get rid of security blanket. Sucking thumb won't solve grown-up problems.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): If willing to experiment, you win. Accent is on personal possessions, investments, valuables. Sagittarius, Gemini persons figure prominently. You will get what is owed. But many will want you to outline what you give for value received.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Cycle high — you can get across special view, style. Refuse back seat. Come forward. Take initiative. Highlight willingness to take chance on abilities. Aquarius, Leo. Scorpio persons could figure prominently.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have unusual voice, you are passionate, have sweet tooth and seldom do anything in lukewarm manner. You may now be trying to do too much at once. Taurus, Libra persons are drawn to you. You are persuasive, somewhat spoiled in sense that you usually win your way. In December, you will be facing some forthright issues and you will overcome.

Copyright 1973, Gen. Fea. Corp.

Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS

1 Golf mound
4 Lessen
9 Seed
12 Priest's vestment
13 Roman date
14 Before
15 Science of life
17 Catlike animal
19 Not one
20 Comfort
21 Wading bird
23 Yelps
27 Spruce (colloq.)
29 Observes
30 Pronoun
31 Devoured
32 Chemical compound
34 Cry of sheep
35 Negative
36 Peel
37 Smart (slang)
39 Going in 42 Poker stake
43 European capital
44 Rating
46 Asian capital
48 European swallows
51 Exist
52 Natural
54 Born
55 Aeriform fluid
56 Strong winds
57 Tibetan gazelle

DOWN

1 Flap
2 Man's name
3 Black variety of hard rubber
4 Later
5 Golf: one stroke over par
6 One, no matter which 7 Symbol for tellurium
8 Those who get away
9 Lucky number
10 Native metal
11 Damp
16 Misplaced
18 Egyptian goddess
20 Fencer's sword
21 Pointless
22 Conductor's stick
24 Gray
25 Massive
26 Gambler's capital
28 Animal one year old
33 Group of three 34 Saving
36 Unit of Spanish currency
38 Need
40 Shades
41 Somber
45 War god
46 Ugly, old woman
47 Macaw
48 Wire measure
49 Prefix: new 50 Ocean
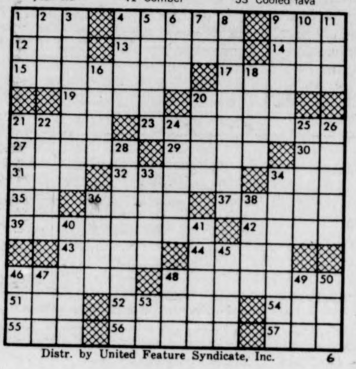
53 Cooled lava

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

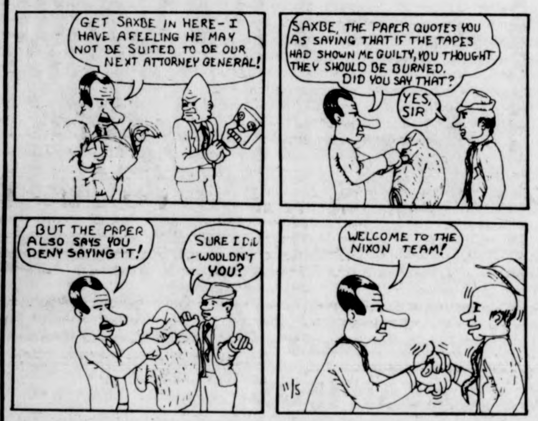
F	A	R	■	R	O	M	E	O	■	B	O	B
A	R	E	■	A	V	A	I	L	■	A	R	A
D	E	P	O	N	E	■	R	E	I	N	E	D
■	■	E	N	T	R	Y	■	A	S	K	■	■
A	L	A	S	■	T	E	N	■	M	E	L	T
M	I	L	E	S	■	S	O	W	■	D	O	R
A	M	■	T	A	M	■	R	A	H	■	S	E
S	I	T	■	P	A	Y	■	D	O	S	E	S
S	T	E	T	■	P	E	T	■	O	U	R	S
■	■	N	A	B	■	T	E	M	P	T	■	■
P	A	D	D	E	D	■	A	I	S	L	E	S
A	L	E	■	L	E	E	R	S	■	E	R	A
L	I	D	■	L	E	A	S	T	■	R	E	D

6



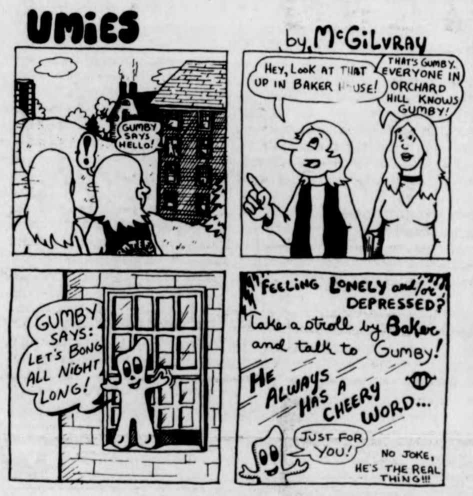
Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 6

Kompus Kapers ~by~ Kris Jackson

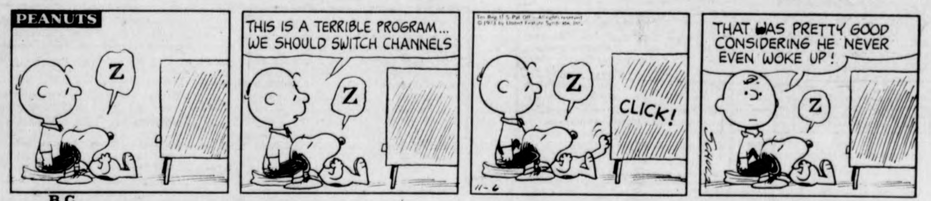


GET SAXBE IN HERE - I HAVE A FEELING HE MAY NOT BE SUITED TO BE OUR NEXT ATTORNEY GENERAL!
SAXBE, THE PAPER QUOTES YOU AS SAYING THAT IF THE TAPES HAD SHOWN ME GUILTY, YOU THOUGHT THEY SHOULD BE BURNED. DID YOU SAY THAT?
YES, SIR
BUT THE PAPER ALSO SAYS YOU DENY SAYING IT!
SURE I DID - WOULDN'T YOU?
WELCOME TO THE NIXON TEAM!
11/5

UMIES by McGilvray

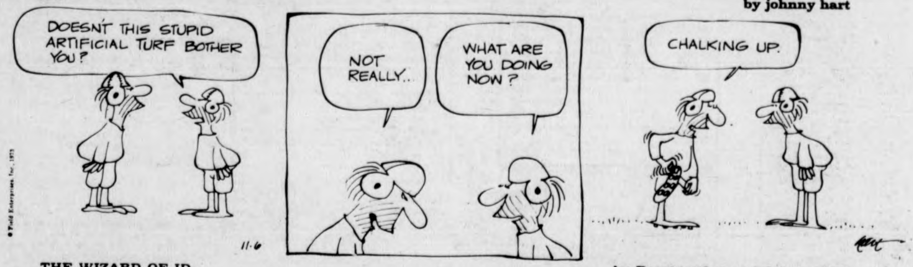


GUMBY SAYS HELLO!
HEY, LOOK AT THAT UP IN BAKER HOUSE!
THAT'S GUMBY. EVERYONE IN ORCHARD HILL KNOWS GUMBY!
GUMBY SAYS: LET'S BONG ALL NIGHT LONG!
FEELING LONELY and/or DEPRESSED? Take a stroll by Baker and talk to Gumby!
HE ALWAYS HAS A CHEERY WORD...
JUST FOR YOU!
NO JOKE, HE'S THE REAL THING!!!



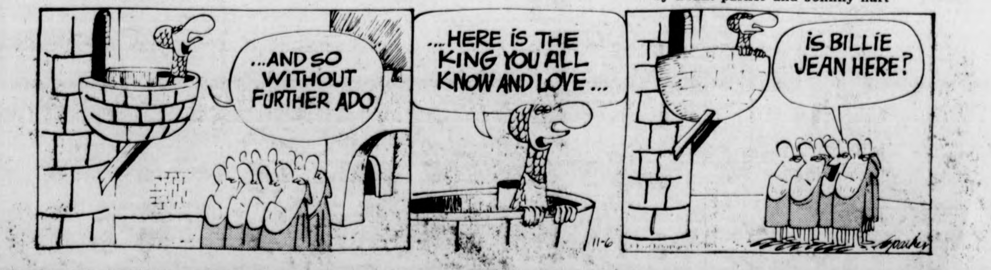
PEANUTS
Z
THIS IS A TERRIBLE PROGRAM... WE SHOULD SWITCH CHANNELS
Z
Z
CLICK!
THAT WAS PRETTY GOOD CONSIDERING HE NEVER EVEN WOKE UP!
Z
11-6

B.C. by johnny hart



DOESN'T THIS STUPID ARTIFICIAL TURF BOTHER YOU?
NOT REALLY...
WHAT ARE YOU DOING NOW?
CHALKING UP.
11-6

THE WIZARD OF ID by Brant parker and Johnny hart



...AND SO WITHOUT FURTHER ADO
...HERE IS THE KING YOU ALL KNOW AND LOVE...
IS BILLIE JEAN HERE?
11-6

Notices Cont.

(Continued from P. 13)

75. Coffee hour and slides Weds. 7:30 p.m., Thoreau Dateroom 6-7482. All welcome.

MINYAN
Daily Minyan Schedule (daily prayers) Mornings (at Hillel 302 S.U.) M.W.F. 10:00 a.m.; Tues., Th. 11:00a.m. Eves. 6:45 at Patterson House S.W.

MOVIE
Come and see the dead that won't stay that way. Night of the Living Dead, TONIGHT at 7, 8:30 and 10:00 C.C.A.

MOVIE
Asylum, the film based on the work of psychologist, R.D. Laing. Sponsored by CUSP and Psych Dept. Mahar Aud., tonight 7, 9, 11 p.m. Admission fee.

PRE-VET CLUB
Meeting Thurs. 11-8 at 7:00 p.m. in C.C. 113, Featuring Dr. Edmonds.

RECREATIONAL SOCIETY MEETING
Meeting in C.C. 177 at 7:00 tonight to discuss projects such as Winter Weekend and set up car pools for the N.E. Student Recreation Conference on Nov. 9, 10, 11. This organization is student run and we'd like your input.

SOCIAL HOUR
All political science majors, grad. and undergraduate are invited. T.O.C. Nov. 7 at 4:00 p.m.

STUDENT STRUGGLE FOR SOVIET JEWRY
DRINAN is coming, Leningrad is also coming. Meeting to prepare for both. Wed. 11-7 Rm. 302 S.U., 9:00 p.m. Let my people go...Israel lives!!

S.W.A.P.
There will be a meeting tonight for all committee members at 7:00 p.m. in the Board Rm. on the 3rd floor of Worcester Dining Commons.

TONITE
An Evening of Making Things; Batik, Sock Puppets, Musical Instruments, Super-Junk Sculpture, Comic Strips and more. Tues., 8 p.m. in Farley Lodge. Please bring supplies or a donation. Come one, come all!!!

UNITED CHRISTIAN FOUNDATION
Board meeting tonight at 7:00 p.m. in 123 Hills North, open to anyone interested in meeting the UCF Community.

UNIVERSITY WOMEN
Come test your knowledge, Sigma Sigma Sigma Quiz show 7:30 call for rides 253-9066.

WMPIRG
Meeting tonight at 7:30 in Duke's Rm., S.U. Dodie Katzenstein, press coordinator and researcher from the Regional Office will be speaking. All faculty and students welcome.

WOMEN OF THE 30'S FILM
A 1 credit colloquium which revolves around the Women of the 30's film series is being offered. Minimal requirements. If interested call Leslie Freschet at 545-2418 or 545-2419.

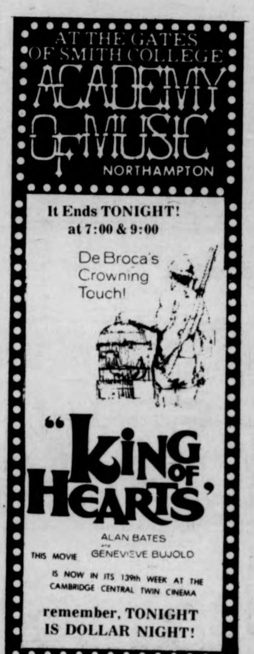
FOUND
Money found on Sunday between Library and Chapel. To claim call 546-8533 and give amount. Call within 2 wks. of this date.

Eyeglass at the concessions stand at Sat.'s football game. Check C.C. lost and found. Blue case.

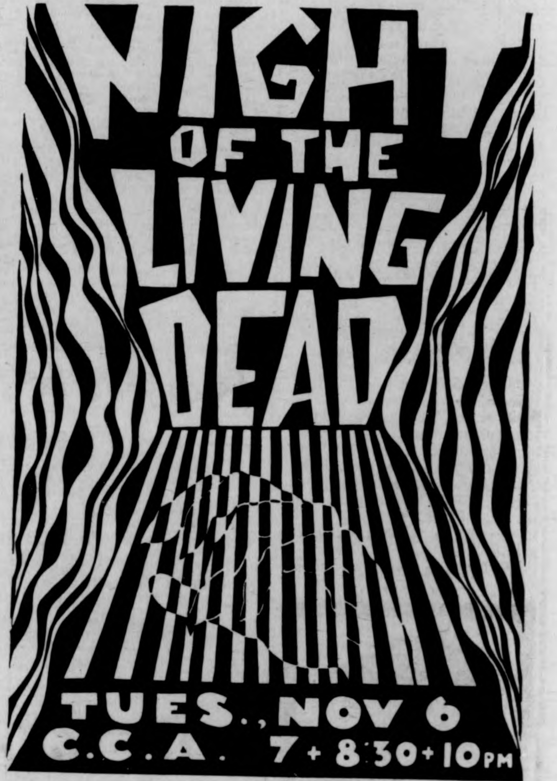
Purple and green diamond scarf 11-4 in Whitmore Parking lot. 6-9791.

MDC Classifieds
75¢ first day
50¢ each additional day

CAMPUS Cinemas
Starts Tomorrow!
"Electra-Glide in Blue" — PLUS:
KUNG-FU DOUBLE FEATURE!
"DEEP THRUST"
&
"SHANGHAI KILLERS"
Prepare yourself and enjoy it!
AND! "LAST TANGO IN PARIS"



AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
ACADEMY OF MUSIC
NORTHAMPTON
It Ends TONIGHT!
at 7:00 & 9:00
De Broca's Crowning Touch!
"King of Hearts"
ALAN BATES
GENEVIEVE BUJOLD
THIS MOVIE IS NOW IN ITS 139th WEEK AT THE CAMBRIDGE CENTRAL TWIN CINEMA
remember, TONIGHT IS DOLLAR NIGHT!



NIGHT OF THE LIVING DEAD
TUES., NOV 6
C.C.A. 7 + 8:30 + 10PM

MDC CLASSIFIEDS

HELP WANTED

Innovative persons to teach undereducated adults, inner city dropouts, Spanish speaking and Indian children in the U.S. Must be able to work outside traditional, classroom. If you're a senior getting a degree in education, English, languages, Sociology, etc. talk to a VISTA representative in the Placement Office on Nov. 5-9.
tf11-8

In your job search, you'll run across all kinds of glossy pages and promises that so-and-so company wants graduates with liberal arts degrees. Last year's seniors who chose either VISTA or Peace Corps ARE AT WORK in hundreds of projects both here and in 59 countries overseas. Teaching English as a foreign language; working in tuberculosis control programs, smallpox, and malaria eradication projects; acting as agricultural extension agents; developing alternative schools; counseling in drug crisis centers and many more. Demand for these assignments is, of course, great. It's extremely important for you to apply before December. To underscore this, VISTA & Peace Corps representatives will be here during this semester only; on Nov. 5-9 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., go to the Placement Office and sign up for an interview.
tf11-9

Teach Math & Science where the Earth is flat rocks are evil, and turtles are sacred. As a Peace Corps teacher, you'll get some tough questions like: How does the turtle Vishnu swimming in his sea of milk and pushing up the tree of life fit into your theories of the world, Mr. Bob? You don't put legends like these down because they are a vital part of your student's culture. One of the challenges of teaching Math & Science in a devloping country is to create acceptance for these subjects within the frame work of ancient traditions. A Peace Corps, VISTA representative will be in the Placement Office on Nov. 5-9. Sign up now for an interview.
tf11-8

Poster Stuffers for Hampshire County area. Car is preferable but not necessary. Call Dave. For Friday and Sat. 256-0236.

HELP WANTED

Jobs in Business Consulting — Frequently the difference between a margical & a going business in the inability of the former to hire consultants. Business graduates working for VISTA & Peace Corps are helping to change that situation. If you have a BBA, MBA or MPA, you should look in to VISTA & Peace Corps. It's experience you'll get with no other organization. A representative will be in the Placement Office on October 11 & 12. Sign up now for an interview.
tf11-8

Civil Engineers, Overseas: to advise on dam construction, irrigation systems, water works. At home: to prepare cost estimates on housing, develop funding proposals, review architect's plans, etc. Peace Corps - VISTA engineers get much more responsiblity and experience than their peers who go to work for private engineering firms. Talk to a representative in the Placement Office on Nov. 5-9, sign up today for an interview.
tf11-8

VISTA & Peace Corps have hundreds of job openings for seniors. From Agriculture to Zoology. Get experience you can find in no other organization. Reps will be in Placement Office soon. Sign up now in Placement for an interview.
tf11-9

Nurses. If you're graduating soon and want to break away from the regiment of training for a year or two, talk to VISTA & Peace Corps, a representative will be in the Placement Office on Nov. 5-9. Sign up today for an interview.
tf11-8

Student Employmt in Yellowstone & all US Nat'l Parks. Send for booklet $2. Arnold Agency A206 E Main, Rexburg, Idaho, guaranteed.
tf11-9

HELP WANTED

While organized recreation is generally regarded as frivolous in this country, the reverse is true in most developing nations. As a Peace Corps volunteer you will develop programs, train teachers, teach coaching techniques, coach national teams. You'll be regarded as someone with an important skill to share. Get more information. Peace Corps will be in the Placement Office on Nov. 5-9. Sign up now for an interview.
tf11-8

Jobs for French & Spanish Majors — Spanish speakers to work as VISTA's in barrios in the Southwest & as Peace Corps teachers & resource people in Latin America. French speakers to work in African Franchophone countries with Peace Corps. These are positions of responsibility and sensitivity. Talk to a representaive in the Placement Office on Nov. 5-9. Sign up for an interview.
tf11-8

Students pt. time & full time available, apply in person United Paper Box, 528 Water St., Foot of Cabot, Holyoke, Ma.
tf11-12

2nd or 3rd year language major male, need $20. 1 hr. work? Call Dave 256-0305.
tf11-10

FOR RENT

Room for rent or in exchange for child care five miles from campus. Call Joanne 549-0665.
tf11-9

Apt for one — Avlbl. imm. lg brm. sm kit. full bath, storage, pkg. 220 N. Pleasant, 2 nd fl of lg house. All utl. incl. $145. 549-3736, 253-8712.
tf11-11

PERSONAL

Nimsy — This is the best way I know to bring Amherst to you until you come back to Amherst. I miss you. Love, Maureen.
tf11-6

Linda Lines and Rick Wellington have now gone through one tremendous year — Further away but closer than ever.
tf11-6

Wend — Thanks for the happiest 2 years of my life.
tf11-6

Sorry Berk a day late! Hope you had a good time. Your Buddy? Buck.
tf11-6

Mara Becker please call me about photos. John 536-5243.
tf11-7

Futre CPA's learn how to prepare for the CPA Exam. Becker CPA Review Course. Call collect 617-536-1440.
tf11-22

Do you spend precious time hitching to a part time job to help support a messy roommate who eats your food, blasts hard rock, interrupts your privacy? If you can be a neat, quiet, conscientious housekeeper & cook in an older home, you can change your environment to a private room with board. 549-0641.
tf11-9

Stony Brook! Will the guy who has the bag of sweaters marked Ellen 702 Field, please get in touch with her, 546-6866.
tf11-6

Support your local bus driver.
tf11-12

5 Coll. Canada ski trip — 4 days, 3 nites. Hotel, breakfast, dinner. Transportation Apres ski party all for $85. Jan. 22-25. B. Baggins Travel 256-0146.
tf11-15

PERSONAL

I love Fellini, Costa-Gravras, Bogart, Daffy-Duck, Kubrick, Orson W. — U. Art 111.
tf11-7

METEP/Integrated Day Teacher Ed. Program interviews for next semester, Fri., Mon., Tues., Nov. 2, 5, 6. Sign up at Room 210, School of Ed.
tf11-6

SERVICES

Photos — passports, visas, etc., 48 hour service! Sizes and number negotiable, $3.00 minimum! Call Steve at 546-5443.
tf11-30

Get a load off your mind. Truck for hire, call Gary or Joyce, 256-6376.
tf11-7

Research — thousands of topics, $2.75 per page. Send $1 for mail order catalog. Research assistance, inc. 11941 Wilshire Blvd., Suite 2, L.A., Calif. 90025.
tf12-12

SPEED TYPIST
In Ware, at Collegian printer
8:30 p.m.-4:00 a.m.
Call Charlotte
967-6888

Typing — dissertations, theses, term papers etc. Fast, accurate, references, IBM Selectric, good rates, call Tom 546-1165.
tf11-12

Experienced electronic and electrical repairs. Reasonable rates. Call 545-2308, Mark 415 or Bill 401. Keep trying.
tf11-15

(AP Wirephoto)

NEWPORT, R.I. Nov. 2, — LEGS AND LEGGINGS — The legs are the first women graduates in the 22-year history of the Naval Officer Candidate School in Newport. The 7308th graduating class held awards ceremonies yesterday.

Polish In America Speech Topic

Thursday, November 8 at 7:30 P.M. in Herter 227, Dr. Franciszek Lyra of the Polish Academy of Sciences and Warsaw University will deliver a lecture entitled, "The Polish Language in America."

Dr. Lyra, who received a Ph.D. in linguistics at Indiana University, is a specialist in bilingualis . and is currently at work on a history of American literature.

His talk should have considerable appeal for anyone interested either in bilingualism as a general phenomenon, or in the Polish language as it is spoken in the United States. The public is cordially invited to attend.

First Deadlines Coming For Civil Service Jobs

The U.S. Civil Service Commission announced today the filing deadlines for 1974 summer jobs with Federal agencies. Those who file by November 23 will be tested between January 5 and 26; by December 28, between February 2 and 16; and by January 25, between February 23 and March 9, at locations convenient to them.

The Commission said the earlier a student files and takes the test, the greater the chances for employment. Each summer about 10,000 positions are filled from a pool of more than 100,000 eligibles. About 8,000 of these are clerical jobs, and approximately 2,000 are aides in engineering and science occupations.

Complete instructions for filing and information on opportunities available are contained in CSC announcement No. 414, Summer Jobs in Federal Agencies, which may be obtained from Federal Job Information Centers, most college placement offices, or from the Civil Service Commission, Washington, D.C. 20415.

Unlike its practice in past years, the Commission will not automatically send forms to those who qualified in 1973 but who may wish to remain on the lists for consideration in 1974. Those who qualified for summer employment in 1973 must update their applications by submitting a form enclosed in the announcement. They are not required to repeat the written test.

The U.S. Postal Service is not participating in the summer employment examination for 1974.

TONITE
REAL TEARS
at the Rusty Nail Inn
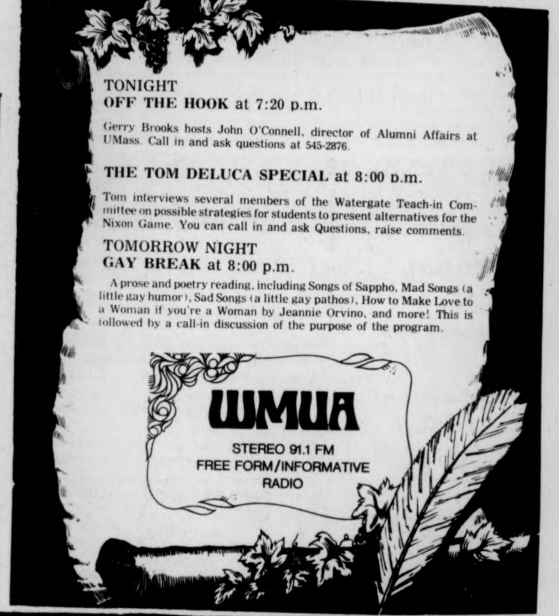
Rte. 47
Sunderland
665-4937

ATTENTION:

Season ticket holders for the "Women of the 30's" Film Series.

Film dates No's. 9, 11, 13 on your season ticket will be shown at their scheduled dates and times BUT IN THE BASEMENT OF BUTTERFIELD HOUSE in the Central Area. Admission will not be changed against your card for these films and 3 additional films have been scheduled for the Campus Center Auditorium and Student Union Ballroom, including this Tuesday's "Night of the Living Dead."



TONIGHT
OFF THE HOOK at 7:20 p.m.

Gerry Brooks hosts John O'Connell, director of Alumni Affairs at UMass. Call in and ask questions at 545-2876.

THE TOM DELUCA SPECIAL at 8:00 p.m.

Tom interviews several members of the Watergate Teach-in Committee on possible strategies for students to present alternatives for the Nixon Game. You can call in and ask Questions, raise comments.

TOMORROW NIGHT
GAY BREAK at 8:00 p.m.

A prose and poetry reading, including Songs of Sappho, Mad Songs (a little gay humor), Sad Songs (a little gay pathos), How to Make Love to a Woman if you're a Woman by Jeannie Orvino, and more! This is followed by a call-in discussion of the purpose of the program.

WMUA
STEREO 91.1 FM
FREE FORM/INFORMATIVE RADIO

MDC CLASSIFIEDS

FOR SALE

Tires — All brands, Radials, Snows — All types, guaranteed lowest prices. Call 546-8362 after 6.
tf11-12

Hallicrafters SW Radio . .5-30 MHZ, AM, CW, SSB. Mint cond., orig. cost $200. Make me an offer. Call Fred 253-7890. Keep trying.
tf11-9

Stereo 50 watt Lafayette, Garrard 40B, Criterion 25 Speakers, $100. or best offer. Paul 253-9700, 8:30-4:30 Mon.-Fri.
tf11-6

1963 Willy's jeep with plow $1800. 256-8896.
tf11-6

Stereo Buffs! If you want name brand stereo equip matched and sold to you at wholesale prices, call Dick at 253-2786, after 6.
tf11-9

Tape deck — Sony TC366, new cond., $160; movie camera — Yashica super 800E, new cond., $60. X-Country skis, poles for person 6 ft., new cond., $35. X-Country boots, 9 1/2, new cond., $15. Sneakers — Converse, hi, black, new $10. Hike boots — Dunham Tyrol, new cond., $10. All prices negotiable. Call Rich, 367-2880.
tf11-7

S & L Camera Imports has new cameras, lenses & other photo equip. at slashed prices. Full warranty, all makes and models. Call Ken, 6-9723.
tf11-30

Panasonic receiver & 8-track 12W & 12WRMS, $100 & Harmon Kardon cassette deck, model CAO-4, $75 or both for $150. 546-5050, Jeff.
tf11-6

Aria 12 string, yr. old, excel., good case. Want $250. Make offer. Call Bob at 7 p.m., 6-6539.
tf11-6

Panasonic Port. TV. Brand new! $50; Receiver 20 watts Ch. $80. Call 546-5271 or 546-5261.
tf11-12

Childrens equipment exchange used toys, cribs, bikes, carriages, and sports equipment. Open every Tues. 9-2 at 470 Main St., Amherst.
tf11-6

FOR SALE

Pot-belly stove (Globe), in perfect condition with removable top plate & foot warmer lip, 4 ft. high, cast iron. Call after 6 p.m., 586-2020.
tf11-7

35mm Pentax Spotmatic camera — 55mm F1.4 lens, Weston light meter, case, top condition, 1½ years old, $160. Stuart, 1-283-9731.
tf11-9

Toyo 8-track recorder-player with 9 push buttons, 2 VU meters, auto-level control, list $139, will sell for $80. 256-6271 evenings.
tf11-9

Vivitar 105mm, f2.8 Soligor 200mm, f3.5 lenses. Nikon mount 2 and 3 years old. Asking $45 and $55. Call Ben, 256-9395.
tf11-8

Sony 6065 Receiver 70 watts RMS per channel, just 7 mos. old, $300. Call 253-5393.
tf11-8

INSTRUCTION

The Arms Race: A 1 credit Minicourse, Phyics 190D. No prereq. MWF 11:15, HAS 124, Nov. 12 - Dec. 12. Call Prof. Guyer, 545-0933 for details.
tf11-14

WANTED

5 to 6 bedroom house in Wendell, 2 kitchens, 2 bathrooms, full cellar with fireplace. 256-8896.
tf11-12

Late 60's Valiant or Dart, pref. 6 cyl., must be in excellent condition, up to $1,000 for right car. 546-4572.
tf11-9

Commuter Assembly is now taking applications for its rep. to SU-CC, Gov Bd., see someone in Commuter Lounge, Behind Hatch.
tf11-9

Room in house or apt desired by senior woman for next semester. Please call Gail at 617-963-8073 or call Barbara at 546-6672.
tf11-7

LOST & FOUND

Man's wedding band, 16k white gold, KEK-RGG-6-26-71. Contact Bob, Chem. Tower 1311 or call 665-3949. Reward!
tf11-8

AUTO FOR SALE

1967 V.W. Squareback. Needs transmission, will sell for parts, has inspections sticker, good engine and body. Make offer, call Dave 549-0353.
tf11-7

1970 Rebel Machine, 4 speed Hurst 390 engine, excellent running cond. $1600. Call 546-5271 or 546-5261.
tf11-12

1967 Chevrolet Bis. Mechanically compl. Revised new tires $600. Reasonable! Call 549-6397 after 4 p.m.
tf11-6

1966 Ford Gal.: 6 cyl. 240 engine good condition. Must sell. Call Bruce, 256-6021.
tf11-6

1966 Dodge Dart, 6 cyl., r. & h., sticker, standard trans., 2 good snows, very economical, $400. Call Ralph, 546-7941.
tf11-6

1968 VW Squareback, excellent condition, recent engine and brake work. Call 586-1350.
tf11-6

9 passenger Dodge, 1970 wagon, doorgate, air, 318 V-8, 40,000 mi., excellent mech. & body. Must see, $1,700, will bargain. 665-3222.
tf11-7

67 Barracuda, smashed front end, 383 4 sp. Mallory distributor, 4 barrel carburator, new starter, motor, $225 takes it. Sandy 584-2019.
tf11-6

1972 MGB-GT 26,000 miles Abarth exhaust, AM-FM stereo, luggage rack, driving lights, Michelin Xas, 549-0716, $2750.
tf11-6

1969 Cortina, new shocks, rebuilt trans., needs brake work, $300. 546-4572.
tf11-9

Stick six Pontiac, good heater, sticker, $325; Porsche conv., needs work, best offer; Saab 965, $400. 323-7327.
tf11-8

1968 VW Bug, many miles but runs well, asking $400. 549-0102 at dinnertime.
tf11-9

AUTO FOR SALE

1972 Datsun 510, 2 dr., auto, radio, 15,000 mi., rustproofed, snowtires with rims, $1,700 or best offer. Call after 5 p.m., 267-3984.
tf11-7

1964 VW, good condition, $150. Ask for Tom, 549-1506 after 5 p.m.
tf11-16

1972 Javelin SST, must sell quickly, moving to NYC, V-8 auto., p.s., radio-tape, 4 new tires and snows, $1,500 or best offer. Call 253-9668.
tf11-9

1967 Barracuda, smashed front end, 383 4-speed, Mallory distributor, new starter, motor, $225 takes it. Sandy, 584-2019.
tf11-16

1966 Toronado, air, & full power. Also 1966 Impala SS, both in ex. cond. Call after 5, make offer. 549-0924. They must go this week.
tf11-6

1965 Inter. Travelall, new clutch, 6 great tires (2 snows), 4 on floor, huge heater, new front brakes. Incredible deal for $525. Call 549-1528, David.
tf11-7

TRAVEL

Going by air? Let us handle your pre-flight, in-flight and post-flight arrangements at no cost to you. Call campus rep., 253-3162 evenings.
tf12-12

ANNOUNCEMENT

Film festivals that make sense. First run art films and best classics. Popular prices. U. Art 111.
tf11-7

WANTED TO RENT

Wanted 1 or 2 bed room apt. close to U.M. Would like to move in anytime between now and Jan. Call 256-0303.
tf11-6

ENTERTAINMENT

Need a band? Call Stan's Bands, represents all area groups. For musical entertainment call 256-0316.
tf11-7

Hey groovy guys and gals — I can play your favorite music just the way you like it. Call Steve the D.J. for your party, 467-2842.
tf11-9

M. vocalist wanted immediately for recording date. Contact 773-3591 for more info.
tf11-6

Bring back those great memories, boogie to your favorite golden oldies. I have the records and the PA. Call me at 536-6075.
tf11-12

ROOMMATE WANTED

Roommate wanted for furnished apt. near campus. $100 per month. Lease until May 30. Call 253-9863.
tf11-7

Female to share 1 bdrm. Presidential apt, beginning Jan. Semi-furnished, $87.50 - mon., incl. utilities. Call 549-4463.
tf11-16

Roommate to share spacious 4 rm. apt., quiet, relaxing atmosphere, $60 per mo. Call after 6 p.m., 527-5466.
tf11-9

Roommate wanted for furnished apt. near campus, $100 per month, lease until May 30. Call 253-9863.
tf11-7

Roommates needed — three singles, own entrance, interesting neighbors. Call Howie, 256-0643.
tf11-9

Neat, responsible female wanted to occupy own room in 4 bdrm apt., starting Jan. 1. $80-mo. incl. utilities. Phone 256-0626 eve.
tf11-9

The Finley Saga Now It's The IRS

Charles O. Finley, whose Oakland Athletics won their second consecutive world championship last month, is now trying to win a battle in the tax courts.

Records of the U.S. Tax Court show that the Internal Revenue Service is trying to collect more than $546,000 in back taxes which it alleges are owed for 1967 and 1968 by Charles O. Finley & Co., Inc.

In a second case, the IRS contends the Finley corporation also owes taxes on accumulated earnings for 1960, 1963, 1964, 1965 and 1966.

Finley contends his corporation doesn't owe the money and has filed a counter-claim against the IRS for a refund on alleged overassessments of $97,889 in 1967 and $237,045 for 1965.

Both cases are to be tried in Chicago, where the Finley corporation maintains its headquarters. No date for the trial has been recorded.

At issue in the two tax cases is whether Finley owes taxes on accumulated earnings of his corporation, which the IRS contended was created to avoid income tax payments.

Also in question is the amortization of contracts of players for the Kansas City Athletics baseball team, which was purchased by Finley in 1961. He later moved the team to Oakland.

Finley contends the IRS should have allowed a deduction of $203,866 for contract amortization in 1967, but only allowed $150,947.

In addition, Finley says the IRS denied him an investment credit in 1968 of $68,978 for a million-dollar scoreboard in Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum, where the Athletics play.

There is no estimate in the case involving Finley's tax statements for 1960 and 1963 through 1966 of the amount the IRS contends Finley owes for those years.

But in that case, the IRS contends the Finley corporation did not declare a single dividend during those years to holders of its stock, all of which was owned by Finley and members of his immediate family.

Because no dividends were paid and no taxes were due on them, the IRS said, the "stockholders avoided income taxes in substantial amounts" for those years.

Letters To The Sports Editor

Equal Coverage For Women

To The Sports Editor:

I was disgusted with the amount of coverage given to the women's campus championship in last Thursday's (Nov. 1) Collegian. You are supposed to equal coverage to both men and women, yet you failed in this. The men's championship was given a total writeup of 95 lines plus a picture. The women were given a total of 28 lines without a picture. This amount of coverage speaks for itself.

The women worked just as hard as the men, and yet the article did not give justice to this fact. If you really believe in equality then the amount of coverage would be equal. The fact cannot be changed as to the coverage in the past, but in future instances I hope you will follow your own policy and give justice to the women.

Susan Brophy

Ms. Brophy:

The record does not speak for itself. You are definitely right, it was disgusting how little coverage the women's game received compared to the men's. The reason for this is the writer and the photographer who covered the women's game were novices; they had never covered a game before. They asked me if they could cover the game and I said yes. The writer and photographer who covered the men's game had the experience and came through.

When the womens writer finished her story, her first sports story ever, it just wasn't long enough. And the photographer didn't even capture one printable picture.

By that time of the evening, it was too late to do anything about either. I accept the responsibility for this error and, although I realize that it is too late to do anything about it now, I will be more careful how I handle intramurals in the future.

Steve Crowe

I Like Marty

To The Editor:

Marty Kelley — bigot, jerk-off, an absolute nothing. Many people would use any one or all of these adjectives to describe one of the best (or worst) known student personalities on the UMass campus today. If they have a personal or professional gripe against Kelley, fine.

But the "I-think-Marty-Kelley-sucks" syndrome has gone beyond reason lately. Kelley is racist — at times. He insults people — sometimes. But nobody is perfect. Anyone who writes with a strong individual viewpoint is bound to be controversial, often in a negative sense. But at least Kelley doesn't just sit on his dead ass and do nothing; he's involved and that shows a great deal about him.

Marty Kelley is a writer who tries and often succeeds in bringing a certain flavor to the sports pages of the Collegian. He does write both terribly and offensively at times, but that DOES NOT MEAN KELLEY SUCKS!!! People have turned hatred for the writing into hatred for the person.

Personally, I like Marty Kelley. Sometimes I like his columns (how about the NIT?). But for those who repeatedly state that "Kelley sucks", don't you mean that HIS COLUMN SUCKS ? And if his column is so bad, why in the hell do you keep reading it?

Mike Stephano

TEN PIN BOWLING
at Boyden Gym
50¢ per string
MONDAY - FRIDAY
4:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m.
(except during league play)

(AP Photo)

A workman dozes in a Yankee Stadium office where memorabilia of "the house that Ruth built" are on display prior to being sold by a demolition company. As progress marches inexorably on, buildings like Yankee Stadium become expendable. To die-hard Yankee fans, it won't matter if the concrete is torn down, the memories of Ruth, Gherig, et al., will never die.

Giants: Title Hopes To Humiliation

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - The dream is dead. What started as exhibition perfection and began deteriorating at the start of the regular season, now lies in shambles. These are the New York Giants.

"There's nothing I can say. I'm discouraged," Coach Alex Webster said Sunday after the Giants suffered the most humiliating defeat they've absorbed in this humiliating 1-6-1 season, their 49th in the National Football League and one in which they are considered solid contenders for the National Conference East title.

Tight end Bob Tucker, the team's player representative, nailed it down emphatically following the 42-0 shellacking administered by the Oakland Raiders. "We're just a bunch of quitters!"

It didn't look that way eight weeks ago. New York had played six preseason games and had won them all convincingly. The defense was almost airtight and the offense was explosive.

Then the regular season began, and the first crack in the armor appeared. The Giants won their opener, but they had to struggle most of the way before locking up a 34-14 victory over the Houston Oilers, the worst team in the league.

The next week, the crack became a fissure. Against the Philadelphia Eagles, a disorganized team, New York managed to pull out a 23-23 tie on a last-second field goal.

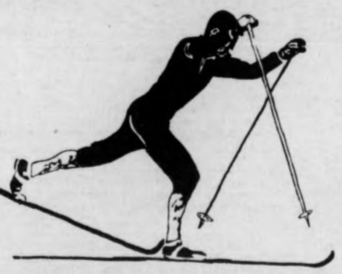
Then the fissure became a gaping chasm. While the defense held up more than respectably, the offense just couldn't match it and the Giants absorbed losses of 12-10 to Green Bay, 16-14 to Cleveland and 21-14 to Washington.

Then the offense woke up - but just as quickly, the defense collapsed and New York was beaten 45-28 by Dallas, and 35-27 by St. Louis. And then came Sunday's game in Oakland, in which the Giants managed just 11 first downs and 188 total yards to the raiders' 28 first downs and whopping 578 yards.

"They just beat us physically," said Webster, in his fourth year at the Giants' helm. "Mentally, whether we've lost all our desire or what, I just don't know."

When a team disintegrates as quickly as the Giants have, the rumors of a coaching change naturally crop up. But President Wellington Mara insists he's sticking with Webster. "I told Alex it wasn't his fault," Mara said after the debacle, "and if I thought it was, I would have told him."

Kongsberg
Bonna
Alfa



Jette
Jarvinen
Skilom

WITH ALL X-COUNTRY SKIS WE GIVE PERSONAL ATTENTION AND PROFESSIONAL ADVICE.

OUR LINE OF NORDIC SKIS AND ACCESSORIES ARE AMONG THE FINEST SCANDINAVIA PRODUCES.

Peloton

Amherst Carriage Shops

Rugbyers Win Pair

By WADIE BAHOU

Those few who bore the cold, chilling winds this past Saturday to watch the UMass Rugby team, served witness to two classic games of rugby, and were rewarded with two fine victories, 10-0 and 26-0. In registering their double shutouts, the UMass Rugby Club was at its best, playing an excellent and exciting brand of rugby, while mixing this with every fundamental and hit-em-hard philosophy.

The "A" team got things rolling when forward Dan Georgianna recovered a loose ball in the end zone after the entire UMass scrum had helped push the ball into the "payoff zone." Later Paul Greenfield added the other try on a fine individual effort and Burt Glenn added the conversion for the ten-point margin. Once again it was the "A" team defense which spelled the difference, as the forwards once again played their aggressive style of defense, which continually forced the UConn offense into many mistakes and had them stymied all afternoon.

The "B" team followed suit but the win came much easier as UConn never crossed midfield with the ball. UMass scored five times as Andy Pacuilli got them going with a fine run up the middle, and then successive tries by Leroy, Sullivan, and Al Solish, who was the offensive star of the day with ten points, closed out the UMass scoring. A tremendous defensive effort by the entire UMass squad helped to assure the win, especially when the "B's" were forced to play one man short due to an injury to fly-half Barney Schneider.

The UMass Rugby Club closes out its home schedule this Saturday against the Engineers from MIT. This will be your last chance this season to watch UMass Rugby, so be there. Game time is 1 p.m.

(Staff photo-Steve Ruggles)

Bill Wolfe strains to reach a pass during Saturdays' 27-7 UMass triumph over the Catamounts of Vermont. I'm glad the players got some sum. for the fans it was typical arctic frigidity. Next game for the Minutemen, Nov. 17 at UNH.

Derek Sanderson Demoted To Braves

BOSTON (AP) - The Boston Bruins have assigned center Derek Sanderson to the Boston Braves, their American Hockey League affiliate.

Managing Director Harry Sinden said Monday that Sanderson, who was a protected player, cleared waivers by all other National Hockey League teams. He will start practicing with the Braves immediately.

The six-foot, 174-pound Sanderson injured his back in a scrimmage during training season this year and was hospitalized for a time at Massachusetts General Hospital.

He has not played in any of the Bruins' 12 games this season.

The Bruins announcement gave no reason for sending Sanderson down to the Braves.

But, Sinden told a reporter that, "Derek's back is okay now. However he's not in shape to play in the National Hockey League."

"We hope he'll go down and play a few games with the Braves and get into playing condition."

Sinden said Sanderson "cleared waivers last week. The teams could have claimed him, but we had what we call the right of recall.

"A couple of claims were made, but in Derek's case, they were withdrawn before the waiver period expired."

There had been rumors that Sanderson would be traded to the New York Rangers of the NHL, but these were never confirmed or denied by the Bruins.

Sanderson was reported to be in New York Monday. His attorney Bob Woolf said Sanderson had no indication he was to be sent to the Braves.

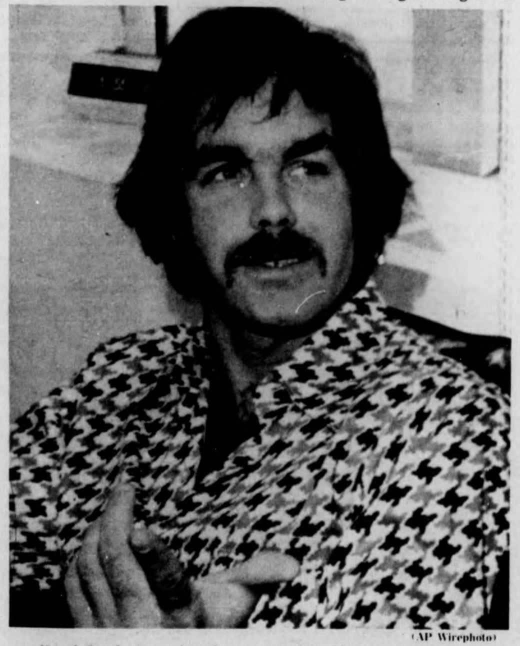
It is believed that Sanderson, Woolf and Sinden will meet Tuesday.

Sanderson is known as one of the best face-off players in the NHL and a defensive star, especially when his team is shorthanded.

In addition to his sometimes flamboyant play on the ice, Sanderson was known for a flamboyant life style and for his comments made to the press for public consumption.

He is long haired and was the first NHL player in years to wear a mustache. At one time he had a weekly television show, has coauthored two books and appeared in a movie.

He helped the Bruins win two Stanley Cup championships. He fed the puck to Bobby Orr who then scored to win the championship for the 1969-70 season.



(AP Wirephoto)

Derek Sanderson points the way out of the big time. Sanderson was assigned to the Boston Braves yesterday as the parent Bruins trimmed their roster.

Svare Quits

SAN DIEGO (AP) - Harland Svare resigned Monday as head coach of the San Diego Chargers, who have won only one of their first eight National Football League games this season.

Ron Waller, assistant coach in charge of special teams, was named interim head coach.

HATCH
COFFEEHOUSE
anyone can play!
Call 545-0418

The Unfolding Saga Of Coburn And King

By STEVE DeCOSTA

The big question remaining after Saturday's soccer victory over Vermont is what happened to Coburn and King?

Tom Coburn and Tony King, the two high scorers for the Minutemen, saw limited action in the weekend tilt, but when they did get into the game, the duo collaborated for one of the three UMass goals.

But how did it come about that the Minutemen's biggest offensive threats sat out about three quarters of the game?

Al Rufe explained simply that "some of the other fellows deserved a chance." We wanted to try a different strategy and I was pleased with the way it turned out."

Rufe should be pleased. He inserted Bill Spyker and Bob Stanley into the lineup in place of the dynamic duo, and Spyker responded by collecting his first goals ever in a UMass uniform.

The coach could not say enough about the junior transfer from Colorado state. "Spyker has given 125 per cent in hustle since the first day of practice. He is strong, in great shape, and he likes to run. I think I've found a new man to fit the mold as a defensive forward."

The idea of the defensive forward is a relatively new concept in the itinerary of Al Rufe. It came to him after the UConn game in which the Connecticut forwards gave the UMass defense fits in their soccer equivalent to back-checking.

In practices and games since the UConn disaster, Rufe has strongly emphasized this new strategy. "Our offensive line has to play defense. That is something we will emphasize for the rest of the year. Of all our forwards, Coburn plays the least defense and King is not far behind."

Rufe also cited discipline and pride as reasons why the two did not see much playing action. "We have to develop a little more discipline, both on and off the field. We also are concerned with our players' pride in appearance, again both on and off the field."

Regardless of what happened Saturday, and regardless of the reasons given by the coach, Coburn and King will get more playing time against Springfield on Wednesday.

In the statistics released today, Tom Coburn is still way ahead of the pack as the team's scoring leader. Coburn has ten goals and two assists for twelve points. Tony King has accounted for two and two to hold down second while Bill Spyker and Mike Nugent each have two points to their credit. Eight other players have contributed one point apiece to the scoring effort.

In the goal, Carl Vercollone has given up an average of 1.4 goal in his seven games, while his back-up, Paul Peloquin has been spectacular in giving up 0.3 goals per game in his three contests played.

Amateurs Ask Federal Aid

By TOM SEPPY
Associated Press Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Olympians Micki King and Ken Moore asked Congress Monday to use federal governmental power to end the organizational disputes in amateur athletics, especially concerning international participation.

"We, the athletes, are supposed to win everything but are not given any help or support," said Miss King, a captain in the U.S. Air Force who won a gold medal in diving at Munich last year.

Moore, a long-distance runner who competed in the Olympic marathons in Mexico City and Munich, also told a Senate Commerce subcommittee that Congress needs to enact the revised Amateur Athletic Act of 1973 which, he said, "provides for accountability in sports administration."

VASIL

THE NEW FASHION SHOP IN TOWN

COME 'ROUND AN' SEE

SHIRTS
$2.99
$3.99
$4.99

we also have names like: Smile : Sundance : Pineapple : MadMan : Foxy Lady : Mike Webber

9 e. pleasant st. 3 doors from the "PUB".

Harriers Take New Englands

By SCOTT HAYES

Two down and one to go. That is, the UMass Cross Country team has already won two championships this season and needs one more, the IC4A's, to assure a trip to Spokane, Washington and a shot at the NCAA title.

Yesterday in Boston's Franklin Park, the UMass team ran to their second championship of the year, winning the New England title with a total of 46 points.

Randy Thomas, who was in fifth place at the two-mile mark and fourth at the three-mile mark, came on strong towards the end of the race and overtook Ken Flanders of Northeastern to capture third place.

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
Minutemen
SPORTS

The UMass co-captain, who had been beaten by Bruce Clark of UConn and Northeastern's Mike Buckley earlier in the year, took his turn yesterday, defeating both top runners.

Mike O'Shea, a Providence freshman, ran away with individual honors. O'Shea finished the five mile course in 23:44, establishing a new meet record. Charley Duggan of Springfield captured second in 23:55, followed by Thomas.

Next was Ken Flanders of NU, who took fourth in 24:07. Bill Gillin, who was sixth at the two-mile mark, picked up one position and finished fifth in 24:16. Clark, Buckley, UConn's Robert McCusker and Tom Smith of Providence took the next four places to round out the top ten.

Tom Maguire almost beat out Smith at the finish, but ended up one second behind the Providence harrier, in 24:31.

Paul Segersten said goodbye to his fellow New England harriers by finishing fourteenth in 24:41. The UMass senior moved into sixteenth early and advanced from the three-mile mark to the finish, tying Chris Peisch of Dartmouth.

John McGrail came up with probably his best performance ever, capturing sixteenth with a time of 24:43. For the first three miles of the race, the gutsy freshman was right with Maguire and held eleventh place. McGrail wasn't able to hold that spot, and dropped back five places. Even so, McGrail's effort was an outstanding one and vital to the team's success.

Chris Farmer and Paul Doiron also completed in the varsity race for Umass. Farmer took 31st while Doiron placed 49th.

Thomas and Gillin took the lead after one and a half miles, but O'Shea took off just before the two-mile mark.

UMass put pressure on NU and made them prove themselves. The top runners were able to break up NU's edge in the meet and take command by the three-mile mark.

The race was even for the first mile and a half, as UMass and NU fought for early supremacy. UMass made its move after three miles, and had five runners in front of the first three Northeastern runners.

Providence took third with 95 points, while Dartmouth, totaling 147 points, captured fourth. Springfield surprised nearly everyone and finished ahead of UConn with 170 points, good for fifth.

UMASS
291
DARTMOUTH
221
299

(Staff Photo-Joe Martins)

UMass! Tom Maguire (291) shows the way in yesterday's NE Championship victory. John McGrail (299) follows Maguire and battles Chris Peisch of Dartmouth for 11th place in the middle of the race.

Phil Broughton took first in the junior varsity race, but Northeastern took the team championship with a mere 36 points. Broughton ran the three mile course in 15:43 for the honor of top JV runner in New England. John Scheer was the second UMass runner across the finish line, taking fifth in 16:10.

Phil Broughton came within 12 seconds of the course record. Broughton has shown great promise in the past and was apparently ready for the race. CoachO'Brien commented the that Broughton "has the potential," but has to become more consistent. The tough schedule seems to tire Broughton, and sitting out the Yankee Conference meet paid off for him.

Coach Ken O'Brien had nothing but praise for his runners and rightfully so. Of McGrail's sparkling performance, the mentor said, "He continues to amaze me." O'Brien also remarked that McGrail has been able to pick his spot in the race and stay there. The happy coach also added that McGrail has been able to stay close to other runners on the team, and that his consistently good performances have been a complete surprise.

McGrail said he felt great for the first two miles and that the last two were tough. McGrail stuck in there and fought off runners as he has been doing all season long. The speedy freshmen beat Steve Hamel of Northeastern by two seconds.

Paul Segersten will attest to McGrail's fine race. In fact, after three miles McGrail led "Segs". It was like the case of the student beating the teacher, and Segersten came back to finish ahead of McGrail.

The last time Umass won the New England Cross Country championship, Coach Ken O'Brien was a member of the team, in 1962.

The team will use the next week to recover from yesterday's meet. It will be a week of combined work and rest, preparing for the IC4A meet in New York next Monday.

The team was presented with the championship plaque after the meet and Coach O'Brien gladly accepted it, the second one for the cross country this season. Mr. O'Brien's office in Boyden sure must be getting cluttered with all those plaques.

(Staff Photo-Joe Martins)

Coach Ken O'Brien accepts the New England championship plaque with a smile as his co-captain, Randy Thomas looks on. Thomas placed third in yesterday's meet, to lead UMass to the New England championship. The last time UMass won the New Englands, in 1962, O'Brien was a member of the team.

Inside Sports

- Where Were Coburn And King?
- Ruggers Take Pair
- Sanderson Sent To Braves

Marty Kelley

Like Only Yesterday

Alumni Stadium — The winds were swirling furiously. Darkness began to step in. It was cold, it was barren, it was very listless. An institution has left me...It seemed like only yesterday.

Nature was all I felt on the day I would say goodbye to this pillared arena that I witnessed the construction of in my youth of 66'. It was Senior Sendoff for 16 faithfuls (spiced with a surreal salute to Yogi) this weekend past. They walked their final path in glory over the pastures of Alumni's terrain, and they felt, and fittingly so, the emotion of victory. The happiness that followed...I wish I could have felt the same.

But as I walked down her steps for the final time, I felt cold and barren, and it wasn't the fault of the weatherman. I've lost my love for the game. It's left me now. The rah, rah is gone. I don't believe in it anymore. I've turned the college football player aside. Not as an INDIVIDUAL..But as an ENTITY.

I remember so vividly as darkness completely engulfted Southwest late the night Mass. was to enhabce its Boardwalk bid with its 28-7 masterpiece of BC. Now that I think of it, swimming in the Atlantic Ocean the night of the Boardwalk was rather childish. But it's all a part of maturation. So is my growth with the UMass football program. I've matured to look beyond it. I don't need it anymore.

When I left Alumni following the BC win I felt an intrinisic sense of accomplishment. But that was yesterday. I can kid myself no longer. I don't really care how many touchdown passes Pennington throws and Berra catches. I don't believe in that character rap about the game of football either. I honor the commitment of athletes...But not the circumstance.

I feel that college football at this campus steals your mind. It teases your individuality. And in a time when our generation is experimenting on individual decision, it's difficult to live by someone else's standards for the "good of the TEAM." College football is a business. The taxes around here are too high.

An athlete's playbook is more consuming than a three credit course. An 8 semester education turns to 9 & 10 for some and not at all for others. The $100,000 we spend on coach's salaries alone questions me. I see the day and the sunset is very near when college football becomes completely socialistic with no scholarships at all, independent scheduling, Amherst College back on the slate, all funds going back into university use, no outlandish spending, no television concentration, no Yogi promotions. Then the game becomes pure again. The football player gets his mind back. Right now he doesn't have it.

A football player has a final exam every Saturday afternoon. His exams are not in the classroom. There are no proctors. The athlete is alone with physical execution. That can drain a young man who's trying to get his education. But for many the only education that he gets at the University of Massachusetts is right there between the 20 yard lines...And that's SAD.

For those who find football a learning experience, I don't fault you. A football player should know his place. And when to take off his letter sweater. There's a lot going on beyond that Stadium fence.

But I've left ol' Alumni behind now. As a fan, as a writer as a radio broadcaster, as a TV telecaster, and a lover. Alumni and Redman-Minuteman football remains in Amherst...not I...An institution has left me...It seemed like only yesterday...

New England's
Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather

I Am The Greatest.
In this world.
In any world.
All right!

Recyclable

VOLUME CI, ISSUE 43 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1973

Are Belchertown Residents Ready For Change?

By BARBARA VOORHEES

The Massachusetts state government has passed an edict declaring that by July 1, 1976, the population of Belchertown State School will be reduced from over 900 residents to 510.

To many of the school's residents, especially the adolescents (aged 12-25), this will mean moving out of the institution and into family homes or foster homes within the next few years.

But some residents will not be ready to make the move. Some will not have learned proper self-care skills and some will not know how to react to a community from which they have been removed for a period of time. This lack of preparation will be due, at least in part, to the present architectural and programmatic set up at the school.

When Belchertown State School was designed in 1922, the mentally retarded were generally considered to be something less than human. These so-called sub-humans could be tucked away in the woods of Belchertown where they could exist without disturbing or being disturbed by society. Hopefully, today, attitudes have changed. But Belchertown State School remains the same.

The set up in the adolescent training unit (D Building) is as follows:

1) There are 16 residents to a bedroom. These bedrooms are large but offer little if any privacy.

2) At meal time 82 residents eat together in one room. The noise and activity levels are so high that attendants have difficulty teaching even basic table manners such as how to eat with a fork, spoon and knife.

3) The toilet stalls in the bathrooms have no doors.

4) In the day hall or recreational area there are a few games, some chairs and a TV. But it is in the basement and it is cold there. The floor is hard and cold.

5) Trips to the outside community are generally few and far between.

After years of institutionalization many of the residents of the adolescent training unit don't know how to brush their teeth properly, don't know how to groom themselves, don't know how to match pants and shirt.

If sent out in the community to live they may not fit, they may fail and, finally, they may be institutionalized again.

Steve Scheibel, an attendant in D Building and chairman of First Step, a group interested in improving conditions in the adolescent training unit suggested to the Collegian that a family-type, home atmosphere would perhaps be the ideal situation for those readying to leave but at present this is financially impossible.

If enough money is raised during the Nov. 17 walkathon, however, there are several things Scheibel hopes to see done. They are as follows:

1) A folding partition would be set up in the dining hall dividing it into four sections. This partition could be removed for group meetings.

2) A trust fund would be set up to insure that money would be available when opportunities do attend outside recreational and social functions come up.

3) The residents of D Building would receive packets containing combs, brushes, razors, mirrors and other self-care items.

4) Scheibel doubts that enough money will be raised for his fourth hope but it is still a need. Partitions could be set up in the bedrooms so that there would be only three or four to a living space.

(Staff Photo - Dave Less)

Morris King and Todd Baumgardt: "VISTA is an opportunity to explore yourself and be yourself."

"ACTION" Speaks Louder Than Words

By JO ANN DOMINICK

"Speaking to the National Alliance Conference a few weeks ago, Reverend Jesse Jackson said, "There isn't anybody who isn't in the system," stated Todd Baumgardt former VISTA volunteer to people who feel that ACTION volunteers are giving into the "system".

On a week long recruiting drive for ACTION, representatives of the Peace Corps and VISTA have set up a table on the concourse level of the Campus Center daily from 9 to 5.

All representatives are former volunteers and willing to answer any question you have. Also available are reading materials in the various job opportunities offered by ACTION.

Morris King, a former Peace Corps volunteer in Malaysia, stated "ACTION is a socially orientated program for people willing to give their time, to put out on an individual basis."

He said, "UMass is one of our largest campus recruiting drives in the Northeast. We receive a tremendous amount of aid from the placement office which helps us get into the classrooms to spread the news. As a result we have a better response and find a lot of people are accepted from the university."

When applying for the Peace Corps or VISTA it is a good idea to send in your application nine months before graduation or availability for duty, due to the amount of information that must be processed. Mr. King advises, "Tell the people you are using them as references, often they put references aside, thereby holding up your application."

Mr. King said, "the applicants for ACTION must be at least 20 years old and have something they are able to contribute, such as a skill, meaning there is more need for professional people, teachers, nurses, public health people and agriculturalists to mention a few."

Further he said "The countries involved in the Peace Corps are growing technologically and need people who are trained to meet the countries needs."

Mr. Baumgardt said "VISTA also wants people with college degrees and the only exception is individuals who have a mechanical skill or are experienced in agriculture."

Mr. King explained, "ACTION feels a college education is important because it shows a certain training and educational ability. Not to mention the stability and dependence of someone who has stuck out four years of college."

The length of service for VISTA is one year, the Peace Corps is two. Both organizations offer the possibility of extension of service.

Mr. Baumgardt said "VISTA volunteers are need in four major regions of the United States, the Southeast, Southwest, Mid-Atlantic and Midwest."

"The Peace Corps is in 59 countries and volunteers are placed upon the request of the governments of the various countries," said Mr. King.

Though ACTION does ask for a preference area, Mr. Baumgardt felt that "if individuals are interested and sincere in their volunteering, they wouldn't be concerned with preferences, only in going where they are needed."

Mr. Baumgardt said, "VISTA is to catagorize, motivate and organize resource matter to mobilize the people to research their problems. The basic purpose is to organize the community; around the issues, with the community leaders. So when a volunteer leaves the program it will continue without depending on him."

He further said "VISTA is a community oriented, its in every state except Mississippi. VISTA is also in Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam and American Samoa."

"When communities request volunteers, they submit the proposal to Washington and commit themselves to backing up the volunteers," according to Mr. Baumgardt.

Mr. King said, "The Peace Corps offers people a chance to live in another culture and travel. It also makes you realize that people of the world are not ignorant or illiterate, despite the image that we are often given."

He said "There should be no fear involved in going in to another culture. The Peace Corps provides you with a three month training period in the area you are to serve. There are cross cultural studies, you are told of the basic cultural level and standard of living, as well as the nature of your duties and what is expected of you."

In the area of health, Mr. King said, "every precaution is taken, you can become a pincushion with so many shots. ACTION has one of the best medical plans I know."

To those who feel they are small time diplomats for the U.S. Mr. King replies, "The government doesn't teach in the classrooms it's you in the classrooms or whatever situation you are assigned. Yet you find that it is really an education to look at the country from the outside in and whether you want to deal with it or not, black, white, green or orange you are Americans and you have American attitudes."

In the area of allowances, both the Peace Corps and VISTA pay according to the standard of living in the area to which you are assigned.

(Continued on P. 3)

On The Inside:

- She's Champion Of Over 2 Billion!
  A present Freshman and future Sorority sister finds fame and fortune twirling a baton.--P. 2
- Take Part In A Marathon!
  Why not? It's a good way to lose weight and it's helping a cause.--P. 3
- Nixon's Secretary Receives A Watergate Subpoena
  And what do you suppose she knows?--P. 4
- What's The Story?
  This week, Debbie Bernstein focuses in on campus restaurants. Perhaps a little goats head soup?--P. 8
- Joyce Kosofsky
  She's back! She's out of the infirmary and she's OK. And while the cat's away, the mice will play.--P. 12
- Moe Letters To The Editor!
  At least that's what it sez here Nyah!--P. 14
- British Open University
  A unique, less than three-year old institution whose students range from young adults to persons in their 80's. Bloody good!--P. 15
- Kampus Kapers And UMies!
  And Peanuts, B.C., The Wizard of Id, and our usual crossword. Keep a-tokin', Kris!--P. 19
- Notices
  We have lots of those.--P. 20, 21

She's Champion Of Over 2 Billion

(Staff Photo/Dave Less

Diane Luciani: Even the world's champion must practice.

By MIKE KNEELAND

Freshman Diane Luciani can twirl a baton better than 2.73 billion people. She is the reigning world's champion.

Offered scholarships to such schools as Ol' Miss. and Texas Tech, Diane chose UMass because of its proximity to her Revere home and its "good physical education department".

She first became interested in twirling at the age of 10, but didn't start competing until she was 12. "That's very late," she says. "I was competing against girls who'd been twirling for 6 or 8 years."

Diane performs with the University Marching Band. She practices 6-hours each day as she has been for the past 6 years.

She says the hardest trick is rolls, a rather complicated maneuver that sends the baton twirling around the shoulders. It requires perfect balance and complete body control.

Diane was barely 17 when she entered the world championship tournament held at Notre Dame. She competed against 20,000 twirlers before 100,000 spectators.

"The crowd was with me," the 5-ft. twirler recalls. "I looked really young and I'm small. Crowds like dark horses, like Olga Korbut in Munich."

Diane entered the final round tied for first place with a Japanese girl. "She had been working for the title a long time," Diane says. "Competing for a world's championship is something else. You can be so nervous that you don't know what you're going to do next." She won.

Diane will represent the University at the Miss College Majorette of America Pageant in Notre Dame this January. She will not try to retain her world's championship.

She is also preparing herself for something else: to become a Chi Omega sister.

WMPIRG

Truth In Lending

By AVIS YUNI

The Western Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group (WMPIRG) has met with representatives of the State Bank Commissioner and the Attorney General in Boston in response to its release of a study which it said documents widespread violations of the Massachusetts Truth-in-Lending Act concerning bank interest rates.

Jonathan Z. Souweine, WMPIRG staff attorney, told the Collegian that WMPIRG had received an invitation to meet with a representative of State Bank Commissioner Freda P. Koplow, and a second invitation from Herbert Goodwin, a representative of the Attorney General.

Of the meeting with the representative of State Bank Commissioner Koplow, Souweine said, "Although we were in substantial agreement on many issues, we were in disagreement on more than one point and accordingly they've taken the matter under advisement."

At the meeting with Herbert Goodwin, Souweine said the Attorney General's representative indicated his interest in resolving the problem and said that he would take it under advisement with his staff.

Presently WMPIRG is waiting to hear further from both parties.

The Commonwealth's first-in-the-nation Truth-in-Lending Act of 1966, revised in 1969, requires banks to disclose standard information regarding interest rates on loans. When discussing a loan with the public this law requires them to quote the annual percentage interest rate.

Souweine said it requires banks to communicate rates using an actuarial method of figuring the cost. The consumer can thus easily compare interest costs among banks since they are all in actuarial terms.

He said that banks by quoting a interest rate not based on the formula specified in the law can seem to offer cheaper loans than a competitor who uses the specified method, while actually charging more for borrowed money.

In late September WMPIRG and its Boston-based affiliate, the Eastern Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group (Mass PIRG East) conducted a survey of 470 banks.

Their joint report, "Truth-in-Lending in Massachusetts", showed violations of the law by 25 percent of the banks surveyed in eastern Mass. and of 46 percent of banks canvassed in the state's four western counties.

The report stated that, "Despite the intention of the Truth-in-Lending Law the average consumer continues to be frustrated in attempts to compare interest rates on loans. And those banks which make the extra effort to comply with the applicable laws face regular discrimination at the hands of those banks less scrupulous in this regard."

Robert S. Leadbetter, head of consumer finance for the State Banking Commission as quoted in Boston University's "The Daily Free Press", said state law is not violated when interest rates are stated in other than actuarial terms.

According to Leadbetter, the law pertains only to advertised interest rates. Communicating rates in other than actuarial terms violates "the spirit" of the Truth-in-Lending law, but does not actually violate the statute, he said.

In the report the PIRG groups urged the Division of Banks, the state agency principally charged with responsibility for enforcing the law, to adopt stronger remedial measures for violators.

They also recommended dissemination of public information to alert consumers to possible deception by banks and suggested legislative review to determine the need for reforming the current Act.

The survey was conducted by 25 students from twelve Massachusetts colleges and universities and by staff members of the two Nader-inspired organizations.

Tentative Set Of Procedures Planned For Graduate Grievances

By BILL BROWN

University Graduate Research Assistants and Teaching Assistants who feel a problem in their work situation, and are stymied in attempts to correct it, may soon have a written set of guidelines to protect their rights and establish procedures to deal with their grievances. Robert Chew, Director of Graduate Student Services, has devised a tentative set of procedures which he hopes to have revised and presented in the near future to the Graduate Student Senate for approval.

The plans are based on three fundamental rights. The first right is a presumption of non-guilt. No one can be fired until all remedies of appeal have been used and the person is proven guilty. The second right involves a speedy completion of the proceedings. This normally involves two weeks time for each step of the appeals process. Finally the student has a right to be present at all proceedings and to have access to legal counsel.

Chew hopes that most problems can be solved on a personal level between the student and the professor. But, if things can not be worked out there, the next step is to work through the department chairman, the dean, and finally the particular graduate school.

"These guides are not designed to be a definitive legal code, but more of a helpful procedural aid to both sides in any dispute," said Chew. "I'd like to have them incorporated into the Graduate Student Handbook that this office publishes every year. If it is approved soon it could be operational by this Spring."

"It should be remembered that we hope that the problems can be resolved on the personal level, but there should be some way to protect the rights previously not written into T.A. and R.A. contracts. Any graduate student who has ideas on the subject will be welcome to offer his suggestions. This is not intended to be a rigid permanent type of document. Our main hope is to make this more aboveboard for Graduate students doing T.A.'s or R.A.'s; to know what they are expected to do and what their rights are under their contracts."

The idea that Research and Teaching Assistants needed some written and concrete assurances of their rights was brought out last year when a Research Assistant, Frank Skinner, had his contract terminated because of a "personality conflict". Although he was entitled to a fair hearing under terms of his University contract, he felt that the "due process" was not as equitable as it could be in balancing the students interest with that of the professor's. The problem was eventually resolved last Spring, not to anyone's complete satisfaction. Frank Skinner received partial compensation for his efforts, and is doing research at another university, while the idea of improving Graduate Students' rights was temporarily left hanging.

A committee of faculty, administrators, and graduate students began work on the writing of procedural policies, last spring, and presented a revised article to Chew. After incorporating the suggestions of those who have still to review the tentative plan, it will be passed on to the Graduate Student Senate for discussions and any necessary changes.

"Frank Skinner certainly could have been helped by these guidelines," said Chew. "In fact, I don't think a situation such as his could exist now using a similar set of rules. We had a case this summer that somewhat resembled Frank's, and although it has not been completely resolved, the major hangups have been eliminated and the process is a lot smoother."

Board Of Governors

Travel Bureau In CC

By BRIAN COOK

In a meeting of the Services Committee of the Campus Center (CC) Board of Governors yesterday, a move to accept a bid from the Central Travel Bureau for space on the third floor level of the CC was unanimously accepted.

According to Howard Levin, chairperson of the services committee, "This will be a full service travel agency (land, water, and air travel) which will bring in a lot of revenue to the Campus Center and thus help to keep student fees down." The Board of Governors will meet Thursday evening at 6:30 in room 917 of the Campus Center to vote on final acceptance of the bid.

"The present bus ticket service operated by the CC at the third floor lobby desk will continue," said Levin, "because we make a good commission on these tickets."

The new agency, expected to move in within the next 30 days if accepted, will offer advantages such as verified airline tickets, confirmed airline, hotel, car, rental, tour, etc. reservations, and flexible service hours including an emergency answering service which will allow members of the University community to make travel arrangements at any time of the day.

In addition, Central Travel will accept personal checks and credit cards, and offer both on the job and in classroom student career training programs in the travel business. The agency has also agreed to work with the Hotel, Restaurant, and Travel Department on campus.

In other business, the services

(Continued on P. 3)

Bring Moe!

Tonight at 6 o'clock in room 901 Campus Center there will be a meeting of the Distinguished Visitors Program to discuss whether or not to bring Moe (Three Stooges) Howard to UMass. All interested students are invited to attend and offer their opinions on the topic.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

The office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN is on the second floor of the Student Union on the campus of the University of Massachusetts, zip code 01002. Telephones: 545-2550 (news); 545-0344 (sports); 545-0731 (business).

Second class postage is paid in Amherst and additional mailing in Ware, Mass. 01082. THE DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes Monday through Friday during the academic year, except during vacation, exam periods or holidays. Accepted for mailing under the authority of an act of March 8, 1879; as amended by an act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $6.00 per semester of $10.00 per year.

LAST 3 PERFORMANCES
Thurs., Nov. 8, Fri., Nov. 9,
Sat., Nov. 10
"Jacques Brel Is Alive
& Well & Living in Paris"
Music by Jacques Brel
Bartlett Auditorium 8 p.m.
For info. & Ticket Res. Call
545-2579 Mon.-Fri. 1-5 p.m.

"Something for Everyone"
the concert committee
presents
JOHN MAYALL
appearing on Sunday, November 25
with special guest artist
Bruce Springsteen
appearing on Monday, November 26
with special guest artist
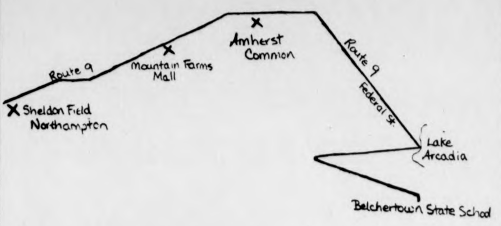
Maria Muldaur
Boths shows: 8:00 p.m. At Curry Hicks Cage
Tickets: $3.50 Available at Student Union Lobby Counter
10:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m.



Take Part In A Walkathon

On Nov. 17, a lot of people who care will walk for the adolescents of Belchertown State School.

Beginning at Sheldon Field in Northampton a group of Belchertown volunteers, area college and high school students, and residents of Amherst and Belchertown and surrounding communities will walk the 20 miles along Route 9 to Belchertown State School.

The purpose of this walkathon is two-fold: to raise $15,000 to revitalize structures and programs in the adolescent training unit at the school (D Building) and to raise awareness about mental retardation.

Persons wishing to take part in the walkathon will be sponsored by others who are willing to donate a certain amount of money per mile walked. Sponsors decide what their donation will be and walkers will be sponsored by many donors.

There will be refreshments and entertainment on route.

Information about the walkathon can be obtained at a table set up on the concourse level of the Campus Center or by calling Ken Spiegelman at 253-7461, Jay Cleary at 253-5897, or Steve Scheibel at 323-7618.

Travel Agency Will Be Full Service

(Continued from P. 2)

committee considered requests for tables to sell goods in the Campus Center complex. Conflict arose concerning violation of policy in granting tables.

For instance, a group desiring to sell home baked items on the concourse level would be in competition with the CC Food Services department and this is not allowed unless the department has no objections in which case an exception to the rule is made.

A student employed at the bus garage wanted a table for her hand crafted wares even though her non-student friend would be manning the table a majority of the time which again is in violation of table policy requiring her to be there most of the time. Her request was finally granted on the grounds that the Campus Center is set up to serve the students and rules can be bent when absolutely necessary to help a student in desperate need. The table applicant claimed she could not support herself and school costs with her present job alone.

Information concerning the process of obtaining a table and the rules involved can be obtained from Howard Levin or anyone on the services committee located in room 817.

In related action, the committee mentioned the possibility of opening certain rooms (such as the Commonwealth Room) to craft vendors after Thanksgiving. Consideration of good quality, large size coin-operated student lockers will be discussed next week.

It Takes ACTION To Get Results

(Continued from P. 1)

Mr. King is also recruiting for minorities he said "Presently under 1 per cent minorities; meaning poor white, black, spanish surnames and orientals are in the Peace Corps. I feel personally this is unfortunate. The Peace Corps offers avenues for introduction into a new culture. VISTA also offers numerous opportunities that should be taken advantage of."

He said "I see minorities caught up in a "success nuerosis crisis." They get their degree and think in terms of mobility, taking the first job that comes along.

Why not the Peace Corps or VISTA? Its a short time for what you get out of it and in the long run you will make your money."

Mr. King continued, "More minorities should except the challenge and reap the benefits as whites do. You exploit yourself, it's you in the classroom you are doing something; not capitalism. Its an opportunity to explore yourself and be yourself."

Judy Rosen a former VISTA volunteer said "The opportunities after service help in your professional field. In some cases it is an aid in getting into graduate schools who ant practical work to back your academics."

Mr. King said "The Peace Corps experience shows qualification for jobs in that you have the strength, will power and patience. You are not so rushed and you have more understanding. You can get things done and that's the name of the game."

Mr. King stated "Its not all ice cream and cake. Meaningful change has to take place over time and be instituted into the culture. But we can begin to deal with the problem and work on their solutions. This is our objective."

The table will remain up to the end of this week, for people who have any questions. For those who need more time to think about "ACTION" the representatives will return to campus Feb. 19, 20 and 21, 1974 again setting up a booth and will conduct personal interviews April 16 and 17, 1974.

Northern Educational Services

Helping People In The City

By FRITS GEURTSEN

N.E.S.? National Entomology Society? Norwegian Emigration Service? No, actually the letters stand for Northern Educational Services. A confusing name, however, is not the biggest problem of the Service. They need twice as many people as they now have.

NES is a student run tutoring program which involves UMass students spending several hours a week tutoring an inner-city child in Springfield. The Service is run by a Coordinating Committee of which Paula Manning is president. She recounted the history of NES:

"NES was formed in Springfield about eight years ago under a Federal grant. UMass was not involved with it yet. The Service consisted of five or six neighborhood centers and storefront places, which offered tutoring for school-age children and a day-care program for pre-schoolers. Its funds were cut back in '72 so that they could only maintain one center, on State Street. Eventually it closed just like the others and the Service moved into a church, also on State Street."

"We at UMass, who have been with NES for several years now, decided that this wasn't enough and so we offered our services to existing community centers, and were accepted. We presently operate four different sites":

North End Community Center - students at this center work on Tuesday or Wednesday evenings from seven to nine. The tutoring here is for junior and senior high school students, mostly of Spanish background, primarily in the fields of reading improvement and mathematics.

South End Community Center - the time involved here is weekdays from three to five. The children range from six to twelve years of age and are tutored either separately or in small groups.

Hill Recreational Program (De Berry School) - this is the most structured and intensive of the four programs and students tutoring here do so two days a week (Tuesdays and Thursdays) from three to five. A supervisor is on hand to assist and advise the tutor. The program, for children between six and twelve, stresses reading readiness.

Springfield YWCA - open weekdays from three to five, this center is geared for children from Spanish-speaking backgrounds, between the ages of eight and thirteen. In additional to normal tutoring methods, tutors are able to use arts and crafts, educational games, sports and so forth.

The South End Center presently has enough tutors, but the North End and Hill Program both are in need of tutors. The YWCA needs tutors as well as people willing to help with arts and crafts and sports.

Two years ago there were three hundred UMass tutors; last year this figure dropped to a mere forty students. Though it has risen to a hundred students this semester, the NES would like to see at least two hundred involved in the program.

When asked why students get involved with the tutoring service, Paula Manning said "About half of the students are doing it for credit - either through the Sylvan Area Colloquium or through various departments such as Psychology or Human Development. There are also quite a few who do the tutoring to fulfill a requirement for their major, either as a course in itself or as a project. And then, of course, it's a great experience for those who are interested in going into education, or think that they might be."

As far as getting credit for tutoring, she said "We originally worked through the School of Education but that didn't work out very well. Now we're linked with the Sylvan Area Colloquia program, but we're hoping to be able to offer our own credit next year."

It is still possible for people to become involved with NES this semester. It does not matter what your major is at UMass; in fact, tutors don't even have to be students. A knowledge of Spanish is helpful, but not necessary. Anyone interested in tutoring or wishing more information can call 545-0575 or visit the NES office, which is located in Room 426A of the Student Union. Their office is open Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays in the afternoons.

MDC Classifieds

LAYOUT 101
Thursday
6:30 p.m.
'More On Headlines'
Collegian Office

NATURAL GAS
at the Bluewall
wednesday, Nov. 7
9:00pm - 1:00 AM

looking for a straight leg that fits as good as it looks?
DART by JEANS Male
WEAR-HOUSE
REFLECTIONS

201 n. pleasant st. amherst

In The Nation And The World

Richardson: "Further Probing Wouldn't Hurt Nixon"

By JOHN CHADWICK
Associated Press Writer

(AP Wirephoto)

GIVING HIS SIDE--Former Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox delivers testimony before a House Judiciary subcommittee on Capitol Hill.

WASHINGTON (AP)-Elliot L. Richardson testified yesterday that even if all of ousted special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox's investigations had led to indictments, there would have been "nothing inflicting any additional damage on the White House or the President."

"No very shattering impacts would have occurred," said the former attorney general, who resigned rather than carry out President Nixon's order to fire Cox.

He testified there was a feeling among the White House staff that Cox was "a ravenous beast whose appetite was insatiable" and said they were constantly getting complaints from Republicans about "why they were letting that guy Cox roam all over the place."

As a result, Richardson told the Senate Judiciary Committee, he received "chronic complaints" from the White House that Cox was trying to carry his investigations beyond his assigned jurisdiction.

Richardson said "the sad aspect" of it was that a little more cooperation would have expedited the investigation, avoided a cataclysmic upheaval in the Justice Department and, so far as he knew, "would not have significantly affected the over-all picture of what occurred."

Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., asked Richardson if he thought Cox was fired because he was on the trail of "some sensational stuff."

"Nothing essentially new or radically different from what had publicly emerged was in the works that I know of," Richardson replied.

He said the "crunch arose" over the President's proposal to withdraw Cox's authority to bring court challenges to claims of executive privilege for White House tapes, notes and memoranda of presidential conversations.

Richardson told the committee that Nixon should waive executive privilege and commit himself to making available to a special prosecutor all tapes and other materials relevant to the Watergate and related investigations.

"I see no other way at this juncture of providing the reassurance necessary that the special prosecutor is going to get to the bottom of these matters," Richardson said.

If Nixon specifically commits himself to make available Watergate tapes and documents and states he will not assert executive privilege to prevent access to such materials, then the manner in which a special prosecutor is appointed and is subject to removal becomes secondary, Richardson said.

He said that on both constitutional and practical grounds, he favored appointment of a special prosecutor by the President, subject to Senate confirmation, rather than by the courts as provided in legislation sponsored by many congressmen.

Richardson testified at the committee's inquiry into Nixon's firing of Cox as special prosecutor. Richardson himself resigned as attorney general rather than carry out Nixon's instructions to dismiss Cox.

Nixon's Secretary Receives Watergate Subpoena

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)-President Nixon's long-time personal secretary, Rose Mary Woods, was notified yesterday she will be called to testify about her review of the subpoenaed Watergate tapes.

Chief U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica, presiding over a fact-finding hearing into two Watergate-related recordings the White House says never were made, interrupted the fourth day of proceedings to say:

"As long as we're going into this detail, will someone please get word to Miss Woods that she will be called as a witness in this case?"

Douglas Parker, a White House lawyer, said he assumes Miss Woods will be permitted to testify.

The White House deferred comment and Miss Woods was not available for comment.

Presidential aide Stephen V. Bull testified that Miss Woods reviewed some of the nine tapes sought in the subpoenas, frequently typing at the same time.

But Bull repeatedly refused to say whether Miss Woods was making a transcript and said he didn't even ask.

"I intentionally did not do this because it was not my business," he said.

Meanwhile, the Senate Watergate committee sought to determine whether Nixon would meet with panel members to give his account of Watergate.

Committee chairman Sam. J. Ervin will be willing to meet with the President at the White House and not require him to testify under oath.

Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., who proposed the meeting, said a public record of such a meeting should be published afterward.

The White House had no direct comment on the proposed meeting, but a spokesman said Nixon intends to deal with Watergate matters "in a clear and fair way."

In another action, the committee heard public testimony from four witnesses called by Republican members to discuss so-called dirty tricks allegedly perpetrated against the Nixon re-election campaign last year.

Bull said Miss Woods began listening to the tapes and typing Sept. 29 at Camp David, Md., and continued this work the next week in Washington and through the following weekend at Key Biscayne, Fla., where Nixon has a home.

"REAL TEARS"
in the HATCH
Thurs. & Fri.
9:00 p.m. - 1:00 a.m.

McGovern Cover-Up Cited In Hearings

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Watergate committee was told yesterday of a cover-up incident in Sen. George McGovern's California campaign organization. The testimony came as the panel probed for Democratic dirty tricks during the 1972 presidential campaign.

Committee counsel, meanwhile, were instructed to make a renewed effort to set up a meeting at which members of the committee could question President Nixon about the Watergate scandal and other campaign activities.

Michael Heller, a 19-year-old Mount Hood, Ore., Community College student, testified that he worked in the Democrats for Nixon headquarters in the Los Angeles Jewish community.

McGovern workers in the same neighborhood helped distribute numerous anti-Nixon leaflets, he said, including one he termed "as low and dirty as you can get."

That leaflet, introduced as an exhibit, was headlined "Nixon is Treyf" and was attributed to the Jewish Campaign to End the Indochina Holocaust. Treyf is a Yiddish word meaning not kosher, unclean or, as a later witness interpreted it in context, "Nixon is a no-goodnick."

The leaflet contained a statement that "Nixon brings the ovens to the people rather than the people to the ovens," a reference to the Nazi slaughter of Jews during World War II and perhaps, as committee counsel Samuel Dash suggested, a comparison of American use of napalm in Indochina with Hitler's use of crematoria.

The committee then called Paul Brindze, a law student at the University of California at Los Angeles, who testified that he was in charge of the McGovern campaign headquarters in the same neighborhood where Heller worked for Nixon.

Brindze said a man who identified himself as a member of a radical Jewish group against the war came to the headquarters and asked to have duplicated 3,000 copies of the leaflet which was promoting a rally against a local Jewish candidate who had endorsed Nixon.

Brindze testified he gave permission for the copies to be made on an office machine, but told the man he was acting unofficially, contrary to McGovern campaign policy and would not permit his workers to help distribute the leaflets.

Later, after news reports appeared charging that the McGovern campaign helped organize the anti-Nixon rally, Brindze was called to explain his actions to his superiors, he testified.

Brindze said there was some discussion of whether he should be fired. But it was decided later that a 16-year-old McGovern volunteer, who had operated the duplicating machine when the leaflet was run off, would "take the rap" for him and stay away from the headquarters for a week or so, Brindze testified.

McGovern officials then told the press the person responsible had been dismissed, Brindze said.

Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C, said after a committee executive session yesterday morning that panel lawyers would contact White House counsel to determine whether the President would meet with the committee.

Nixon would not be made to testify under oath and the panel members would meet with him at the White House if necessary, Ervin said.

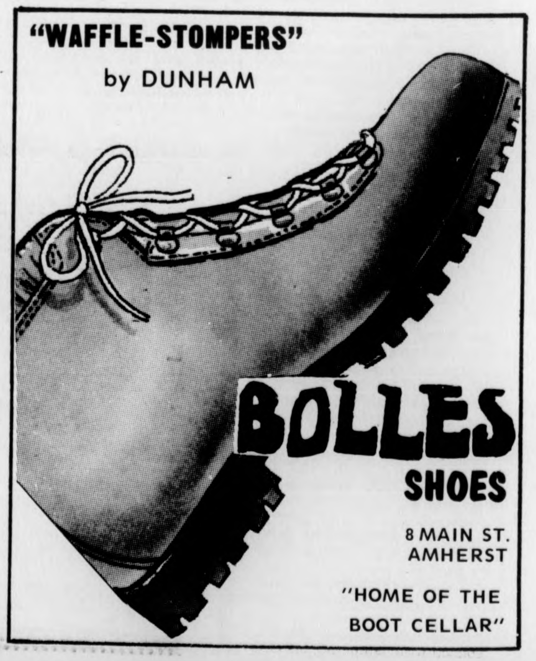
The meeting was called to consider a proposal by Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., that the committee offer to meet with Nixon at the White House and publish a record of the proceedings afterward.

Vice chairman Howard H. Baker Jr. R-Tenn., promised at the outset of the dirty tricks phase of the hearings several weeks ago that the Republicans would expose a number of cases involving Democrats.

Yesterday's session was the only one set aside for that purpose, and Baker was the only minority member to question witnesses during the morning session.

In other Watergate-related developments:

—Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., introduced 40 affidavits into the record of the Senate Watergate committee hearings. The affidavits detail various efforts to disrupt Nixon's re-election campaign.



"WAFFLE-STOMPERS"
by DUNHAM
BOLLES
SHOES
8 MAIN ST.
AMHERST
"HOME OF THE BOOT CELLAR"

(AP Wirephoto)

WEST OF PHNOM PEHN, — CAMBODIA REBELS — Cambodian government troops watch three captured Khmer Rouge soldiers — two of them women — who were taken during fighting along Route 4 west of Phnom Pehn, recently. The embattled Route 4 is Phnom Pehn's vital link to the port city of Kompong Som.

The Mid-East War

Shooting Continues; Kissinger Arrives In Cairo

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israeli and Egyptian troops traded small-arms fire across the Suez cease-fire line yesterday, and Syria reported Israeli jets fired rockets at Syrian positions on the Golan Heights.

The cracks in the Middle East cease-fire were reported as Arab leaders worked out arrangements for a summit conference in Algeria late next week and envoys from Washington and Moscow toured the Mideast.

Informed sources in Cairo and sources close to the U.N. peace effort said there was Egyptian and Israeli military movement along the Suez Canal front.

In Paris, Egyptian foreign affairs adviser Mohamed H. el-Zayyat told newsmen at a luncheon yesterday that "there is a great danger we'll see a resumption of hostilities" in the Middle East if the U.N. cease-fire resolution "is not applied."

U. S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger arrived yesterday night in Cairo an the third stop of a Mideast peace mission. The Cairo trip followed stops in Morocco, where he conferred with King Hassan II, and in Tunis.

Following a meeting with Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba, he scheduled meetings with President Anwar Sadat of Egypt in Cairo today. Egyptian government spokesman Ahmed Anis said Kissinger's talks with Sadat would be "of paramount importance."

Soviet Deputy Fireign Minister Vasily Kuznetsov was also traveling in the search for a peace settlement. He held talks in Damascus with Syrian leaders amid reports his next stop would be Baghdad.

In Tel Aviv it was announced that Israel had authorized a 50-truck convoy to carry badly needed food and water to the 20,000 men of the 3rd Army stranded behind Israeli lines.

The convoy was in addition to the first 125-truck supply fleet approved by Israel 10 days ago under pressure from Washington. Word of the new convoy reached the tense cease-fire front just as the last seven trucks of the original convoy were being unloaded.

Israel announced that 1,854 Israeli soldiers had been killed in the Middle East fighting, the largest toll in any conflict with the Arabs since the first fight for independence in 1948, when nearly 5,000 died.

A spokesman for U. N. peacekeeping forces said U. N. troops had been unable to deploy into Israeli-held areas of the Sinai Desert because "the Israelis are still examing the practical aspects of their support to the U.N. emergency forces." He did not elaborate.

He said Egypt has given the U.N. forces a map showing positions of Israeli and Egyptian armies when the first Mideast cease-fire went into effect Oct. 22.

Egypt demands that Israel pull back to this position before there can be any exchange of prisoners or other steps taken toward a peace settlement. The Israelis apparently have yet to supply their map of the Oct. 22 line, which the U.N. forces are under instructions to restore.

Mass. Elections Show Mayoral Upsets

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mayoral upsets in three Massachusetts cities and two in Connecticut highlighted municipal elections in New England yesterday, while Maine and Rhode Island voters appeared to favor the establishment of state lotteries.

A controversial proposal to give Maine the first state power authority in New England trailed by a substantial margin as counting continued late Tuesday night and appeared headed for defeat.

Vermont was the only New England state without elections yesterday.

Incumbent mayors in Brockton, Beverly and Westfield, Mass., lost re-election bids.

Rhode Island voters rejected constitutional amendments proposing a four-year term for the state's constitutional officers and a pay hike for legislators.

Five other proposed amendments, including one repealing the ban on a state lottery, were approved, and three incumbent mayors seeking re-election were returned to office.

David E. Crosby, a Democrat, defeated incumbent Republican Mayor Richard L. Wainwright in Brockton's municipal election Tuesday.

Unofficial returns gave Crosby 11,313 votes to 8,280 for Wainwright.

Democrats also swept all city council and school committee seats.

Wainwright had charged the council with hampering his efforts to rejuvinate the city, while the challenger said the mayor should take a more salesmanlike approach to the city's problems.

Incumbent Arthur J. Clark won re-election as mayor over challenger Joseph T. Maguire in Waltham's election Tuesday.

The unofficial vote was 8,72 to 4,252.

Maguire, president of the city council, challenged the mayor's credibility during the campaign and alleged conflicts of interest.

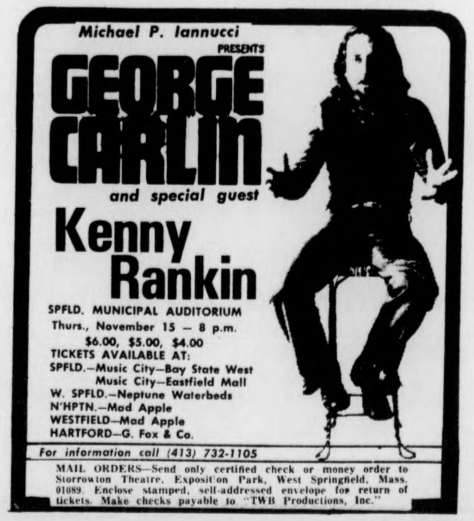
James A. Vitale, mayor of Beverly between 1967 and 1969, won election over incumbent Mayor Herbert F. Grimes Tuesday.

Vitale lost elections to Grimes in 1969 and 1971.

With 96 per cent of the city's precincts reporting, former U.S. Rep. Louise Day Hicks topped the field of candidates for Boston City Council late Tuesday.

Mrs. Hicks had collected 43,164

(Continued on P. 6)



Michael P. Iannucci
PRESENTS
GEORGE CARLIN
and special guest
Kenny Rankin
SPFLD. MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM
Thurs., November 15 — 8 p.m.
$6.00, $5.00, $4.00
TICKETS AVAILABLE AT:
SPFLD.—Music City—Bay State West
Music City—Eastfield Mall
W. SPFLD.—Neptune Waterbeds
N'HPTN.—Mad Apple
WESTFIELD—Mad Apple
HARTFORD—G. Fox & Co.
For information call (413) 732-1105
MAIL ORDERS—Send only certified check or money order to Storrowton Theatre, Exposition Park, West Springfield, Mass. 01089. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope for return of tickets. Make checks payable to "TWB Productions, Inc."

Election Results Are In Early

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
AP Political Writer

Democrat Brendan T. Byrne swept to a landslide victor in New Jersey, while conservative Republican Mills E. Godwin Jr. maintained a narrow lead in Virginia as returns poured in yesterday night from the nation's two off-year governor's races.

In Virginia Godwin moved into the lead over liberal Lt. Gov. Henry E. Howell Jr., his independent opponent.

With politicians and analysts watching for signs of a Watergate impact, Democrats appeared to be making a strong showing.

In New York City, veteran Democratic Comptroller Abraham D. Beame easily defeated three opponents to win the mayoralty held for eight years by John V. Lindsay who did not seek re-election. The 67-year-old Beame will be New York City's first Jewish mayor.

In New Jersey, where Byrne piled up a record-breaking margin and led Democrats to control both houses of the legislature, a party leader claimed the victory stemmed from widespread voter dissatisfaction with President Nixon over Watergate and other matters.

A similar claim came from Kentucky, where Democrats retained the Louisville mayoralty and swept five offices in neighboring Jefferson County.

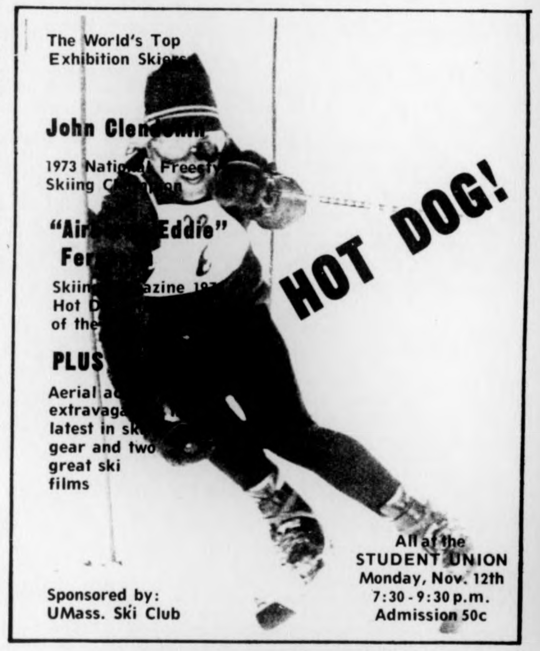
In Philadelphia, Democrats recaptured two major city offices. F. Emmett Fitzpatrick ousted two-term Republican District Atty. Arlen Specter after a campaign in which he denounced Specter's role as Nixon's 1972 Pennsylvania campaign head.

In Minneapolis, Democrat Al Hofstede, a 33-year-old former alderman, upset two-term independent Mayor Charles Stenvig, a former police detective who was seeking a third term.

In Virginia, the Democrats had no candidate for governor in a state they had long dominated though both of the contenders had spent most of their lives in Democratic ranks.

With 1,636 of 1,832 precincts tallied, the vote stood Godwin 466,132, Howell 455,480.

Godwin, 58, was the state's Democratic governor from 1965 to 1969 but backed Nixon in 1972 and switched to the GOP this year. Howell, 53, won the state's No. 2 post as a independent in 1971.



The World's Top
Exhibition Skiers
John Clendenin
1973 National Freestyle
Skiing Champion
"Airborne Eddie"
Ferguson
Skiing Magazine 197
Hot Dog
of the PLUS Aerial ac extravaga latest in ski gear and two great ski films
HOT DOG!
All at the
STUDENT UNION
Monday, Nov. 12th
7:30 - 9:30 p.m.
Admission 50c
Sponsored by:
UMass. Ski Club

top of the campus restaurant
featuring
"JIMMY"
from 9 p.m. - 1 a.m.
seating for cocktails - 9:30 p.m.
FINE FOOD IN AN ATMOSPHERE OF RELAXED DINING.
ENTERTAINMENT FRIDAYS AND SATURDAYS
BEST VIEW OF AMHERST.
DISCOUNTS FOR STUDENTS AND THEIR GUESTS
PHONE 549-6000 FOR RESERVATIONS

The Fuel Crisis

Their War-We Need "Wartime" Controls

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The United States is preparing for "wartime" fuel controls, because of somebody else's war.

The Arab nations' effort to separate arch-enemy Israel from her friends by cutting off their oil now threatens to leave the United States short of 14 to 20 percent of its petroleum needs within a few months, government officials warn.

The loss may force the government to ration fuels, to order businesses to close early, and curtail pleasure driving. Oil companies also may be ordered to increase production, and power plants told to convert from oil to coal. Clean-air programs may be temporarily scrapped to permit burning of dirtier fuels.

Such measures already have been proposed by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash. Parallel proposals are in preparation by the Nixon administration.

As late as mid-October, when the United States had only its own petroleum bottlenecks to worry about, the administration was clinging to voluntary fuel-saving as a reasonable hope for getting through the winter.

"It's an entirely different situation now," says Duke R. Ligon, director of the Interior Department's Office of Oil and Gas. "The level of severity may certainly be increased.

"Before," he said, "we were talking about distributing any fuels that might be available over and above last year's levels.

"Now, we're talking about having to cut back on fuel consumption underneath the 1972 levels."

Before the Arab oil cut-off, Ligon and other experts predicted the nation would fall short of its home heating oil needs by at least 100,000 barrels a day, or possibily as much as 800,000 barrels a day depending on cold weather, refinery breakdowns and other factors.

The Arab cut-off, however, dwarfs the original shortage estimate, threatening the United States with loss of some 2 million to 2.5 million barrels of petroleum each day.

By mid-November, Ligon said, the effects will begin being felt.

The shortage already has hit Europe. Belgium and the Netherlands have banned Sunday driving to counter reductions of Arab petroleum. Other countries are contemplating other measures.

Europe's shortage is indirectly hitting the United States through the fuel requirements of its 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean.

Tankers of U.S. petroleum have sailed from Norfolk, Va., to replace fuel no longer available to the fleet from Italian refineries.

The administration announced last week that the Pentagon, which normally buys about half its petroleum abroad, has been given first priority to purchase U.S. domestic petroleum, breaking civilian supply contracts if necessary.

Europe's North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces, as well as their home nations, depend even more heavily on Arab oil. And so does Japan.

Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton says if things get bad enough for U.S. friends abroad, this nation may have to "share their shortage," presumably by foregoing some available foreign oil so others can import it.

It all adds up to this: A predicted shortage of 100,000 to 800,000 barrels a day; a military claim on domestic oil up to some 340,000 a day; the expected loss of 2 million to 2.5 million barrels of Arab oil; and the further loss of an unknown amount of foreign oil to aid Europe and Japan.

The total possible shortage is between 2.4 million and 3.6 million barrels, a loss of 14 to 21 per cent or more.

That adds up to trouble.

The first fuel to reach shortage status was propane gas, attacked by sudden increases in demand when U.S. natural gas production stagnated. The administration imposed mandatory wholesale allocation last month.

The next set of fuels was the middle distillate groups including home heating oil, diesel and jet fuel and kerosene. In anticipation of winter shortages, mandatory allocation was imposed on them Nov. 1.

Morton said last week mandatory allocation probably will have to be extended to crude oil, gasoline and other petroleum products.

"I don't see how we can not have some sort of program that covers the entire barrel," he said.

Congress is already processing legislation to require complete allocation.

"The most critical problem" Morton warned, "is residual oil for electric generators on the East Coast."

If that runs out, the result may be electrical brownouts.

The administration has begun efforts to develop new oil fields and new energy sources, but results will take years.

For the immediate future, officials say, the only recourse is to cut consumption.

More Mayoral Results

(Continued from P. 5)

votes followed by incumbents Christopher A. Iannella, 40,862; Lawrence S. DiCara, 39,348; Albert L. O'Neil, 37,706; Joseph Tierney, 32,483; Gerald F. O'Leary, 32,214, and Frederick C. Langone, 30, 925; Thomas M. Connolly Jr., 29,630 and incumbent patrick F. McDonough, 29,115.

With 65 per cent of the returns in, incumbent school committeeman John J. Kerrigan led the field for re-election with 25,643 votes, followed by Rep. Joseph Kearney, 25,352; newcomer Kathleen Sullivan, 21,746, and incumbents John J. McDonough, 18,364, and Paul Tierney, 16,886.

Mayor Theodore D. Mann of Newton and Mayor Byron J. Mathews of Newburyport both won re-election.

In another upset, John Rhodes, a high school teacher, defeated three-term Westfield incumbent Mayor John Palzenski.

New Bedford Mayor John A. Markey won his second term Tuesday over challenger Sylvester Sylvia, housing assistant director of the state Department of Community Affairs.

Sylvia challenged the incumbent's tax policies during the campaign.

John Rhodes, a high school teacher, pulled a major upset Tuesday be defeating incumbent Mayor John Palczynski.

Rhodes, 28, is a mathematics teacher-football coach who never had run for office before.

Palczynski, 44, was seeking his fourth term.

The main issue in the campaign was planning for the city's growth.

Attleboro Mayor Raymond L. Macomber won re-election by a two-to-one margin in unofficial returns over former City Councillor John H. Parker, and New Bedford Mayor John A. Markey won a second term against challenger Sylvester Sylvia.

Holyoke elected Mayor William S. Taupier.

Mayor John J. Buckley won re-election Tuesday following a lackluster campaign against challenger Albert S. Previte. Buckley received 12,757 votes, with 7,853 for Previte.

Mayor James E. Milano won a second term in a three-way race Tuesday.

He defeated Richard Marchese, 21, a city alderman and Mary C. Twomey, a perennial candidate.

Nixon Plans "A Series Of Suggestions And Actions"

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, advised by a key aide that voluntary measures won't be enough to meet a mounting energy problem, plans to outline new conservation proposals, possibly in a television-radio address Wednesday night.

Nixon scheduled a Tuesday afternoon session with his Cabinet to discuss energy shortages aggravated by a cut-off of imports of Arab oil. And he will meet with Democratic and Republican leaders of Congress on the same subject Wednesday morning.

The White House said Nixon plans "a series of suggestions and actions" to be accomplished both administratively and through legislation and might choose to do so in an address to the nation.

"It could be as early as tomorrow," Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said Tuesday.

The Cabinet meeting, lasting about an hour and 45 minutes, was completely devoted to energy matters, Warren said.

Warren would not say exactly what steps the President plans to announce. It was learned that among possible actions under active consideration were a 50-mile-an-hour national speed limit, year-around daylight savings time and certain restrictions on the hours of operation of nonessential industry.

John A. Love, Nixon's energy policy adviser, has told the President that in the long run, he does not believe voluntary curbs on energy consumption would be enough to meet the problem.

During a Florida weekend and again Tuesday, Nixon was studying option papers in a search for ways to curtail usage of gasoline, heating and other fuels and yet have the least impact on the daily lives of Americans.

Warren said White House officials, but not necessarily Nixon, would be holding a series of meetings on energy matters this week with elected state and local officials and representatives of business, labor and consumer groups.

Warren also acknowledged that Nixon is weighing a variety of potential steps aimed at dealing with his Watergate problems with the hope of putting him behind him.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, flying here from Florida with Nixon Monday night, told a small group of newsmen aboard Air Force One that Nixon will not resign "no matter how great the criticism."

At one point, Ziegler said Nixon was devoting a great deal of time to energy problems and the search for a Middle East peace, "not to this Watergate foolishness."

Ziegler said Tuesday he did not intend to suggest "that the entire Watergate matter was foolishness."

FLASH
You'll really flash . . .on the great american mind-blowing underground catalog from California! Every funky, underground item invented and some that haven't been. • Smoking Necessities • Astrology - Occult • Incense - Essence Oils • Unique Fashions • Organic Products • Womens' Lib Calendars • Growers Guide • Watergate Give unique Xmas Gifts. Send $1.00 (cheap) and name, address and zip to:
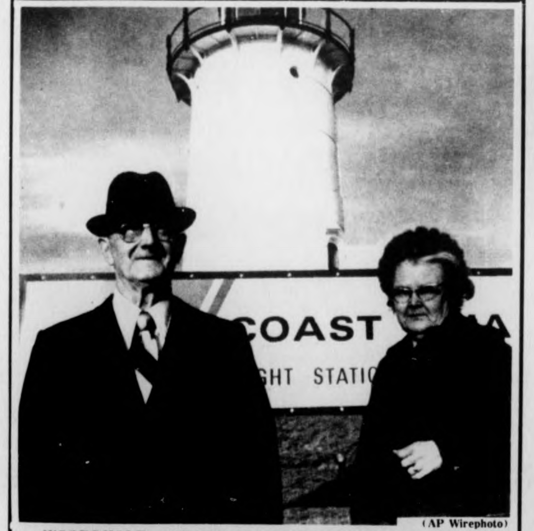
M.S.W. ENTERPRISES
P.O. Box 16088
San Diego, Calif. 92116



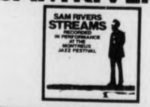
(AP Wirephoto)

WOODS HOLE — 'IT WAS ALL PRETTY BORING' — Joseph and Charlotte Hindley, the last civilian lighthouse keepers in New England, visit the Nobska Light at Woods Hole, Mass. After 46 years of staring at the ocean, they observe: It was all pretty boring. They now live in retirement in East Falmouth.

IN CONCERT
impulse! abc RECORDS
JAZZ ON TOUR
NEW DIMENSIONS IN CONTEMPORARY MUSIC
KEITH JARRETT

GATO BARBIERI

SAM RIVERS



SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 11 7:30 p.m.
Amherst College Gymnasium, $3.50
TICKETS: Campus Center, UMass - New Record Shop, For the Record, Amherst.

Top of the Campus
Tuesday
Wednesday
Thursday
Nov. 6, 7, 8
Special
Steak or Prime Rib plus all the salad you can eat
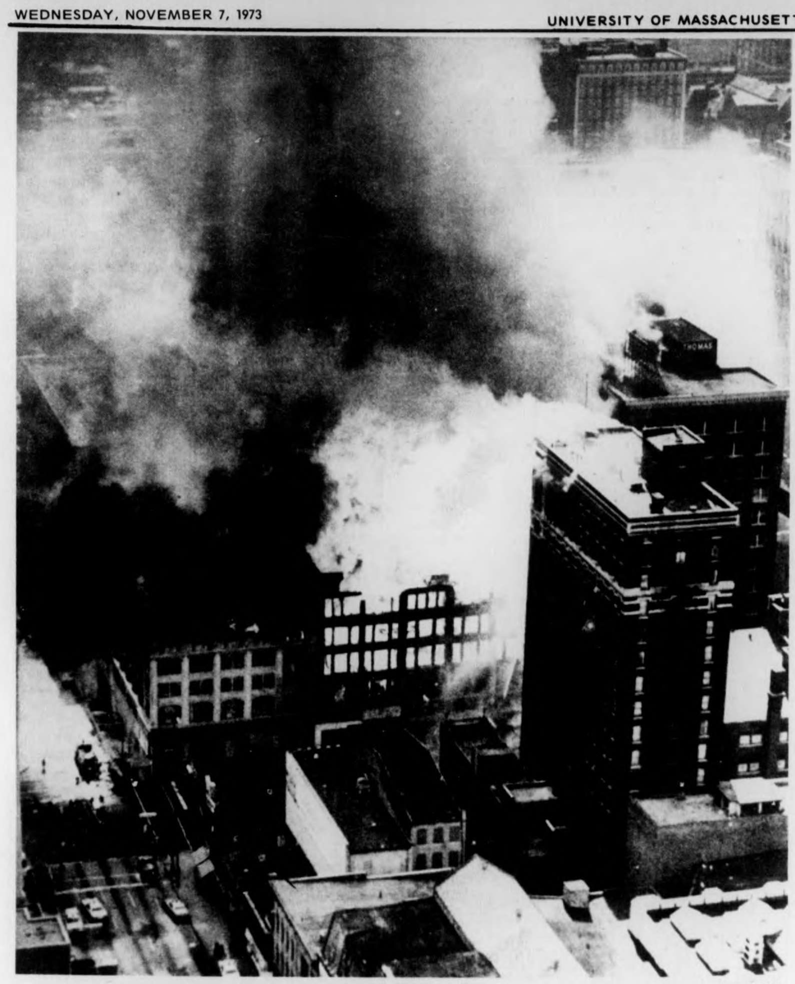
only $2.95



(AP Wirephoto)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., – Buildings in downtown Indianapolis explode in flames as fire broke out in the Grant Building during the noon hour Monday. Flames were spreading to other buildings later in the afternoon but no one was reported injured.

Today Is Troy's "Day Of Reckoning"

BOSTON (AP) - A final decision by the Executive Council on whether or not to remove Judge Jerome P. Troy from the bench of the Dorchester District Court is scheduled to be made Wednesday morning.

There has been speculation that Councilor Patrick Sonny McDonough may motion to postpone the vote if transcripts of the three-week hearings are not made available, and a spokesman for Lt. Gov. Donald R. Dwight, who chaired the hearings, said that if the motion to postpone is made, it will be debated and voted upon.

The hearings, which ended two weeks ago, followed a decision by the Supreme Judicial Court July 26 disbarring Troy as a lawyer and enjoining him from sitting on the bench because of six charges of judicial misconduct.

William G. Young, counsel to Gov. Francis W. Sargent, has said that even if the council votes in Troy's favor, he could not return to the bench. Young said Troy could remain a judge in name only, collecting a salary, but not presiding in a court.

Timothy's
Spirits Co.
Grand Opening Fri., Nov. 9
Featuring
John Morgan
Good Drinks, Good Food
Good Entertainment
and Good Times

Maine State Power Proposal In Early Trouble

By DAVE SWEARINGEN
Associated Press Writer

PORTLAND, Maine (AP)-The controversial proposal to give Maine the first state power authority in New England appeared to be in serious trouble Tuesday, according to early returns from statewide voting.

A second referenda question to have this state join three others in the region--New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Connecticut--with a state lottery was running slightly behind, with 1 per cent of the 639 percincts reporting.

With seven precincts in, the citizen-initiated legislation to create a Power Authority of Maine PAM was running behind 309-137.

The lottery question was being disapproved by 20 votes-208-188.

The earliest returns came from hamlets in Waldo, Washington, Piscataquis and Somerset Counties. The largest number of votes cast in the precincts reporting was 325 in Stockton Springs, which rejected public power 233-92.

Favoring 9-5 the public power proposal was tiny Lakeview Plantation in Piscataquis County.

The voting on the public power issue ended one of the most acrimonious and tactless campaigns in Maine's political history. Voter turnout appeared to be light across the state.

It was a blustery late fall day across the state-with some snow falling in central and eastern sections. The state election division had predicted earlier that only one-third of Maine's 600,000 registered voters would show at the polls.

The power authority issue began its stormy trail to the ballot box 18 months ago, when the Committee for Cheaper Electrical Rates-headed by State Sen. Peter S. Kelley, D-Caribou-began an initiative petition drive.

Traditionally, Democrats have favored public power while Republicans oppose it. The Democrats have been unable to get the muscle necessary to enact a power authority bill, despite several tries in the past decade.

When Kelley appeared before the GOP-controlled House and Senate with petitions bearing almost 35,000 valid voter signatures, Republicans initially moved to discredit the initiated legislation.

But, after several weeks of investigation-including the interrogation of several petition circulators by state police detectives-the legislative Judiciary Committee certified the petitions with reservations, and declared the bill properly initiated.

Under the state constitution, initiated bills must either be enacted or passed directly to the people for action, although alternative proposals may be placed on the same ballot. The 1973 session chose to ignore the initiated measure, sending it automatically to the electorate without companion proposals.

The proposed Power Authority of Maine PAM would build generating facilities to wholesale power at costs to existing investor-owned power companies, as well as federal and local governments.

Kelley's committee-restricted to a cadre of fellow legislators and supports-waged a vigorous, but low-budget campaign, making a basic claim that PAM would reduce electric bills while alleviating the region's growing energy shortage.

Citizens Against a Power Authority of Maine CAPAM-financed primarily by $65,000 in contributions from Maine's three largest private, profitmaking electric utilities-unleashed a media campaign unparalleled in a state referenda campaign.

CAPAM said PAM would increase electric rates, drive the private power companies out of business with an inefficient operation, and increase local taxes.

Thesis Binders
and Term Paper Covers
A. J. Hastings, Inc.
Newsdealer & Stationer
Amherst, Mass.

GOING SOMEWHERE IN A GROUP?
For your next trip — any size group — call or visit us for a price quotation. No obligation — it will be our pleasure to quote you our low rates.

Peter Pan
BUS LINES
Hourly service to Boston, New York City, Albany and everywhere, direct from the University Campus. Extra express service to Natick and Boston every weekend.
Lobby Campus Center Hotel
Tel. 545-2528 or 545-2006

the NEW LEE HIGHWAY BOYS
at the Bluewall
thur. fri. + sat.
9P.M. – 1A.M

What's The Story?

Food For Thought On The Campus Eating Scene

By DEBBIE BERNSTEIN

In last week's column I talked about different academic problems that students might be having. Several times I mentioned that students should see their Academic dean. I then realized that many students probably don't know who their Deans are or which Dean should be seen for a certain problem. I've drawn up a rough road map so that people with academic problems can at least be sent in the right direction.

The College of Arts and Sciences is sub-divided into three areas: Humanities and Fine Arts — Dean Jerry Allen, Natural Sciences and Mathematics — Dean Mac Edds, and Social and Behavioral Sciences — Dean Dean Alfange. Their offices are located in South College, and they can be reached at 5-2627. These three Deans deal mainly with faculty problems, programs, and budgets.

A student in the College of Arts and Sciences should bring academic problems to CASIAC. Jim Shaw (5-0974) is the Associate Dean of CASIAC and under him are assistant deans who correspond to the "faculty" Deans in South College. They are: Steve Allen - Science, George Sulzner - Social and Behavioral Science, Jim Wozniak - Humanities, and Julia Fata - Special Programs. They can be reached at the CASIAC number.

Students not in the College of Arts and Sciences should bring academic problems to the dean of their School. The other schools at UMass are: Business Administration - Nelson Pion, 209 SBA (5-2852); Education - Richard Clark, 109 Education Building (5-1574); Engineering - Roscoe Ward, 201 East Engineering (5-0300); Food and Natural Resources - Ernest Buck, 116 Stockbridge Hall (5-2890); Graduate School - Eugene Piedmont, 217 Graduate Research Center (5-0666); Health Sciences - see Advisor or Director of Division (5-0463); Physical Education - Margaret Coffey, Curry Hicks (5-0927).

If a student brings an academic problem to any of these people and feels a satisfactory solution has not been found, the next step is the Provost's Office.

Question: Why is the cost of food in the Coffee Shop more expensive than anywhere elso on campus when it is located in a student supported building?

Answer: I'm not sure what you mean by "anywhere else on campus" is the Coffee Shop compared to the Blue Wall and Hatch, the Top of the Campus, or the snack bars on campus.

According to Tony Leslie, Assistant Director of Food Services for the Campus Center, the prices for food in the Coffee Shop, Hatch, and Blue Wall are consistant for the same products. That is, french fries, twinkies, cokes, etc., will cost the same — if the size of the product is the same. A product like a hamburg cost more in the Coffee Shop and Blue Wall than in the Hatch because it is almost twice the size. The reason that the Hatch serves smaller portions is to offer students a price choice.

The cost of food in the Campus Center Complex is determined by figuring how much Food Services has to contribute to the cost of the building, and then estimating food (purchasing from the outside) and labor prices. Once this budget is worked out, it goes before the Student Board of Governors.

The only product in the Coffee Shop that can be compared to the Top of the Campus are the sandwiches offered at the Quickie Lunch at T.O.C. In this instance, the T.O.C. sandwiches cost more. This is because the Quickie Lunch is offered as a special service to people who complained about the atmosphere in the Hatch, Coffee Shop, and Blue wall. Therefore, people are paying for the atmosphere and the excess labor. Along with the sandwich, a good amount of potato chips are offered at the Quickie Lunch. Tony agrees that the prices at the Quickie Lunch are too expensive, and stated that they are being revamped.

To find out why there is a difference in food prices between the Campus center Food Services and the snack bars (this includes Whitmore, Hampden, and Worcester) I spoke with Joel Stoneham, Director of University Food Services. Stoneham stressed the importance in understanding that there is no relationship between the snack bars and Campus Center Food Service. They are independently managed and staffed and their prices are not competetive. Perhaps their lack of relationship can be illustrated by looking at familiar restuarants in the Amherst area. For example, Friendly's and McManus's are located in the same vicinity, serve the same types of food, and cater to the same range of customers. In most cases their prices are fairly close, but the price of their products is the manager's choice.

Quantity is also a reason for price difference in the snack bars. While it is true that a cup of coffee sells for 10 cents at the snack bars and 17 cents in the Campus Center, the size of the coffee cups are 6 ounces and 8 ounces, respectively. Stoneham stated that the snack bars are not subsidized, and as long as they are not operating at a loss, there is no reason to up the prices to make these the same as the Campus Center in all cases. However, the snack bar prices are being evaluated, and there may be some increase by the first of the year.

Question: Why doesn't the Blue Wall serve sandwiches or grinders after 2:00 p.m.?

Answer: I spoke with Dorrit Kinder, Beverage Manager of the Campus center, and she told me that good news is on the way. Hopefully by the time you read this, the Blue Wall will be serving sandwiches at the bar. The sandwich selection will start off with tuna, turkey, and ham and cheese for the price of 70 cents. Within this month they will add hot items to the menu.

The idea of serving food after 2:00 has been in the planning stages for a while, but has been delayed due to difficulty in getting the proper equipment. But a refrigerator unit has now been received to store the cold sandwiches, and as soon as the radar range comes in, the hot items will be served, also.

Food service at the bar will begin by at least 2:00 p.m. and continue into the evening when the Blue Wall opens for entertainment.

Dorrit told me that the emphasis will not be so much on volume as it will be on providing a service to the Blue Wall customers. However, the food line will be experimental in menu and Dorritt will be very receptive to people's suggestions for menu items. She can be reached at 545-0418.

"What's the Story?" will be a regular feature in Wednesday's Collegian. I will be looking into various aspects of the University system that may be of interest to or need clarification for the University community. I will also answer any questions or problems people are having within the University. So if you are having a hard time finding out the answer to your question, write it down on a piece of paper and drop it in the "What's the Story?" box in front of the Campus Center Store, send it through Campus Mail to Box 6 Campus Center, or bring it to the Ombudsman Office in room 919 Campus Center.

Debbie Bernstein is a Student Assistant to the Ombudsman.

THE UMASS.
SKI CLUB will hold a meeting tonite
Nov. 7 at 8 p.m. in Thompson 104
- LEARN ABOUT SKI CARE
- BUY MEMBERSHIP
- WATCH A MOVIE
- BUY A SKI ASSOCIATION PASS

the ALL NEW
T.O.C. SUNDAY
BUFFET
The Steamship Round is returning to the Campus Center Sunday Buffet at no extra cost to you. As a matter of fact, U. Mass. Students with a valid student I.D. will receive a 10% discount on the $4.50 price.
Sunday 4 - 8 p.m.

GRADUATE SCHOOL IN PSYCHOLOGY ON YOUR MIND?
Let the Graduate Admissions Advisory Program help you and your advisor in the process of selecting. the appropriate schools (of the 300+ in North America) to which to apply. This computer-assisted matching program. run by experienced Ph.D. psychologists. costs about the same as an average application fee. If it saves you one misguided application, it will save you money and headaches. Write for free questionnaire and information.
Graduate Admissions
Advisory Program
472 Bay Road
Amherst, Mass. 01002
GAAP

TIRED OF DINING COMMON'S FOOD AND LIFE IN THE DORM?
Come to SIGMA ALPHA MU
and experience co-ed living at its finest.
You won't be sorry!
WHEN? Wednesday, Nov. 7th 8:00 p.m.
Thursday, Nov. 8th 8:00 p.m.
WHERE? 387 N. Pleasant St. 545-0845
REFRESHMENTS

Student Activities

College Union, Entertainment Conference To Be Held

The UMass Student Activities department and Campus Center will host approximately 450 students, college and university staff members, and representatives of film, concert, and lecture agencies at a combined regional conference of the Association of College Unions-International and the National Entertainment Conference at the University's Murray D. Lincoln Campus Center November 8-11. The student and staff delegates representing colleges and universities from New England and the Maritime Provinces of Canada will participate in workshops and seminars concentrating on leadership development, contemporary issues, student activities, activities programming, and governance and management of student centers on college and university campuses.

According to conference committee members and Hosts, Jill Cochrane and Jim Riley, of the UMass Student Activities office, major highlights of the conference will include keynote speakers Shirley Bird Perry, past-President of the Association of College Unions International and Director of the Texas Union, University of Texas at Austin; Robert McCurdy, past Chairman of the Board of Directors of the National Entertainment Conference and Director of Student Activities at Carnegie Mellon University in Pittsburgh and C. Shaw Smith, President-elect of the Association of College Unions-International, past Chairman of the Board of Directors of the National Entertainment Conference, and Director of College Union at Davidson College, Davidson, North Carolina.

Featured also will be "showcasing" of artists presented by member representatives of concerts and lecture agencies which will be evaluated by delegates and which delegates will have the opportunity to book for their institutions.

Legal Studies Accepts Majors

The newly-created Legal Studies Program will be accepting majors who make application for the Program. Those interested in particulars should first go to 112 Hampshire House for information. The office is open from 9:00 to 5:00 everyday except Wednesday when it is open only in the afternoon.

Peter d'Errico, Director of the Program, indicated that requests to major should be completed by Nov. 13 so that admission can be determined by Nov. 15.

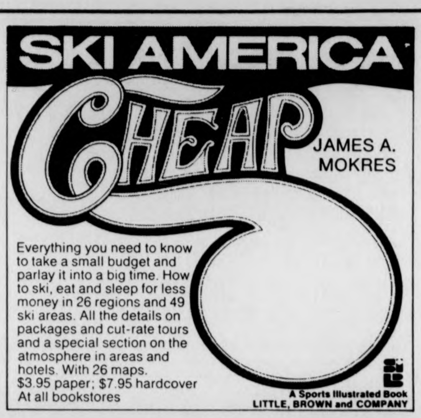
Political Science Cocktail Hour

The Political Science Association will sponsor a cocktail hour for faculty and students today from 4 to 6 in room 1003 of the Campus Center. The purpose of the event is to give students and professors a chance to meet outside the classroom. All undergraduates, graduates and faculty members are invited to attend.

Mt. Holyoke Presents Concert

Richard and Frances Hadden, pianists, will perform music covering the past 285 years, both serious and popular, on Saturday, November 10 at 8:15 p.m. in Pratt Auditorium, Mount Holyoke College.

TONITE
&
THURSDAY NITE
"Some of my Best Friends"
at the
Rusty Nail Inn
Rte. 47, Sunderland
665-4937



SKI AMERICA CHEAP
JAMES A. MOKRES
Everything you need to know to take a small budget and parlay it into a big time. How to ski, eat and sleep for less money in 26 regions and 49 ski areas. All the details on packages and cut-rate tours and a special section on the atmosphere in areas and hotels. With 26 maps.
$3.95 paper; $7.95 hardcover
At all bookstores
A Sports Illustrated Book
LITTLE, BROWN and COMPANY

GRAND OPENING
THURSDAY—NOV. 8
AT MR. SLACKS YOU'LL FIND A SELECTION OF OVER 10,000 PAIRS OF SLACKS TO CHOOSE FROM, SIZES 27 TO 60 WAIST UP TO 36" LENGTHS, ALL AT FANTASTIC SAVINGS!!!
STADIUM SLACKS 16.99 *Sizes 30 to 42 *Lined *Real Warm $28.00 VALUE
OPENING SPECIAL RACK 99¢ to 3.99 UP TO $12.00 VALUE
belts *WIDE BELTS *NARROW BELTS *CINCH TYPE BELTS *BRAIDED BELTS *PAINTED BELTS *DRESS BELTS 2.99 to 5.99
DRESS BAGGIES from 10.99 *Sizes 27 to 42 *Fancies, Stripes and Solids
SOLID DOUBLE KNITS 11.99 *Sizes 28 to 42 $18.00 VALUE
jeans 6.99 *BLUE JEANS *CORDUROYS

WE GUARANTEE YOU THE HIGHEST QUALITY SLACKS AT THE LOWEST POSSIBLE PRICES!!!
Not a Pair Over $19.99
MR. SLACKS
*BRAINTREE-South Shore Plaza
*BROCKTON-Westgate Mall
*CHELSEA-Parkway Plaza
*DEDHAM Mall
*FALL RIVER Shopping Center
*HADLEY-Mountain Farms Mall
*HANOVER Mall
MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL
HADLEY
*HYANNIS-Cape Cod Mall
*NATICK-Sherwood Plaza
*NORTH DARTMOUTH Mall
*SPRINGFIELD-Baystate West
*WORCESTER Center
*BEDFORD Mall, N.H.
*NASHUA Mall, N.H.

Boston Airlines Subject Of Controversy

Logan Crash

Pilots Might Have Known Of Critical State

BOSTON (AP) — Investigators picking through the wreckage of a Pan American Airways cargo jet that crashed Saturday at Logan International Airport have turned up the first evidence that the crew knew the plane was in a critical emergency condition.

Rudolph Kapustin, head of an investigating team from the National Transportation Safety Board, said yesterday the investigators found a cockpit transmitter dial set to 7700, an internationally recognized "mayday" code.

The signal is transmitted to ground radar screens under normal conditions, Kapustin said, but was not picked up on radar scopes at Logan airport as the 707 craft made its approach.

Logan's control tower lost radio communications with the jet about three minutes before the crash, which killed all three crew members aboard.

Kapustin said the dial had to be set individually to the four-digits of the emergency code.

"It isn't just a switch that could have been knocked into place by the force of the crash," he said.

He said the fire reported in the plane could have knocked out the craft's communications with the ground.

Authorities have said that, before it apparently lost ground communications, the doomed plane had radioed only that it had a fire and needed priority clearance for a quick landing.

Heads Won't Allow Service Cutbacks

BOSTON (AP) — The director of the Massachusetts Aeronautics Commission asked yesterday that Delta and Allegheny Airlines not be allowed to completely drop air service commitments to several Massachusetts communities.

"While we object strenuously to their petition for deletion, we don't say that these two airlines should necessarily provide all the service at issue," Crocker Snow told the Civil Aeronautics Board.

"We do insist that they continue to at least support substitute service by commuter airlines which would be more adapted to the demonstrated need and less costly," he said.

One of the hardest hit areas would be Hyannis on Cape Cod and the Cape Islands of Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard.

NOV. 6 TONIGHT 9:30
BILLY WHYTE appearing at
The English Pub
Amherst
Sing a Long
Good Beer

Howard Johnson's
The Flavor of America
Hadley
Daily Specials $1.99
Monday: Fish Fry
Tuesday: Spaghetti Spree
Wednesday: Deep Sea Dinner
Thursday: Turkey Gobbler
Friday: Clam Fry
Seconds on us

Five Hour Truckload Sale
Today Only, 1 to 6 p.m.
Behind Beta Kappa Phi
A limited number of Delmonico 4.9 Cubic-Foot refrigerators at GIVE A WAY PRICES Of $65 to $69

A Delmonico 4.9 Cubic-Foot compact refrigerator is the perfect addition to your room or apartment. This compact gives that extra convenience that makes such a big difference in your comfort.

It's nearly 2 1/2 times larger than the two-cubic-foot mini refrigerators and its low purchase price will let you and your roommate have all the refrigerator you will ever need.

It is compact, yet has the organized storage space of much larger, bulkier refrigerators, including a full-width freezer at the top.

Check these features and then decide:
- Push button defrosting
- Full width freezer
- Adjustable temperature control
- Vegetable crisper
- Magnetic door gasket
- Interior light
- High resale value
- Muted sound mechanism
- Only 33 1/2" high, 18" wide, 23 1/2" deep

These nearly new refrigerators are in excellent condition and the SUPPLY IS LIMITED.
These units will be available for your inspection this afternoon in the parking lot at the rear of Beta Kappa Phi fraternity from 1 to 6 p.m. ONLY.

Fugitive Financier Nabbed In Nassau

..NASSAU, BAHAMAS (AP) - Fugitive financier Robert L. Vesco was arrested yesterday at his Nassau bank on a federal warrant seeking his extradition to the United States.

Vesco, 37, was picked up in the offices of his Bahamas Commonwealth Bank by Asst. Police Commissioner John Crawley on a U.S. arrest warrant.

Vesco was released on $75,000 cash bond as an extradition hearing was set for next Tuesday.

Vesco's financial documents were confiscated and he was told not to try to leave the Bahamas without official permission.

The U.S. attorney's office said the arrest was based on a july 20 fraud indictment accusing Vesco of falsifying records of a firm he headed to cover up the embezzlement of some of the firm's funds.

Vesco is also a codefendant with former U.S. Atty. Gen. John Mitchell and ex-Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans in a conspiracy case in which the two former Cabinet officers are accused of obstructing justice.

The Bahamian Atty. Gen.'s office said U.S. authorities asked for the extradition on Nov. 1 and swore out the arrest warrant the nnxt day. There was no explanation for the delay in the arrest.

Ronald Spires, U.S. ambassador to the Bahamas, said late Tuesday that the U.S. would be represented by an as yet unselected Nassau attorney at the extradition hearing.

Bahamian Foreign Minister Paul Adderley said he signed the extradition warrant after receiving what he called a "proper" request from Spires last Thursday.

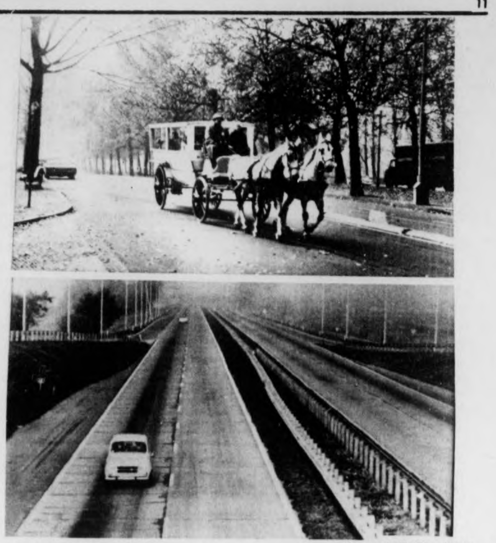
Adderley said in September that inaction by U.S. officials, not island officials, was causing a delay in acting on the possible extradition.

He accused the U.S. Justice Department of not responding to requests from the Bahamian Chief Magistrate for more legal information on the U.S. charges against Vesco.

Adderley said the Bahamas "has been subjected to a considerable amount of ill-informed comment" from the press in connection with U.S. efforts in the extradition. "Most, if not all, this comment has by accident or design been calculated to convey the impression that the judiciary in the Bahamas has in some way been at fault or indeed has improperly conspired to refuse to have Vesco returned to the United States," Adderley said in a Sept. 14 press conference.

Opened only last Wednesday, the fraud indictment accused him of falsifying records of a firm he headed to cover up the embezzlement of $50,000 of its funds, which were sent to a Swiss bank in 1972.

At the heart of the conspiracy case involving Mitchell amd Stans is Vesco's secret $200,000 contribution to President Nixon's 1972 reelection campaign. The money later was returned.



(AP Wirephoto)

AMSTERDAM --EMPTIED ROADWAYS--A one-day ban on driving the Netherlands due to an Arab oil embargo on Dutch shipments presented unusual scenes on Amsterdam streets. Above, a horse and buggy replaces the automobile on a park tour. Below, two foreign cars drive on the highway between Amsterdam and Utrecht, normally one of the busiest roadways. Cars with foreign plates were among the very few exemptions.

IMPEACHMENT MEETING

Tonight, at 8 p.m., a meeting to organize petitioning for Nixon's impeachment will be held at Hampshire College in Academic Building #1, Room 107. We hope to begin petitioning this weekend. Volunteers are needed! For further information, call Mimi Beit at 545-5512.

Strikes Plague New York City

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York firefighters abandoned their picket lines yesterday and returned to duty after a five-hour strike that officials said placed the city "in a condition of imminent peril."

The first strike in the 108-year history of the New York City Fire Department began and ended on a chilly November day that saw police and civilians join a fire chief in battling one blaze and a truck bearing only two firemen arrive to cheers at the scene of another. The city averages 323 fires daily.

"I'm immediately calling off the action of the firemen," Richard J. Vizzini, president of the 10,900-member Uniformed Firefighters Association, said after a conference in state Supreme Court. Members of the union began reporting to their firehouses shortly thereafter.

In Milwaukee, Wis., National Guardsmen continued to man city fire stations as a work slowdown continued for a third day.

Trans World Airlines' entire fleet of 249 planes remained grounded, meanwhile, as a strike by the carrier's 5,000 cabin attendants entered a second day.

And strikes continued in New York against 48 private, non-profit hospitals and nursing homes and against the Daily News, the nation's largest selling daily newspaper.

The New York firemen's walkout came to an end after the union and the city agreed to submit their dispute to an "impasse panel." The panel is authorized to recommend a binding settlement.

The walkout was in defiance of a court order and state law.

The union has been asking for a $2,000 increase in the fireman's $14,300 annual base pay. The city has been offering $700 over an 18-month period.

New York Mayor John V. Lindsay, meanwhile, called on the Cost of Living Council to review its failure to approve a 7.5 per cent pay hike granted members of Local 1199 of the Drug and Hospital Workers. About 30,000 non-medical workers went on strike Monday to protest the council's action.

An Unlikely Alliance

Jazz fiddler Stéphane Grappelli has at last met concert violinist Yehudi Menuhin. Years of mutual admiration made the occasion inevitable.

Their two highly individual violinistic worlds have become one. And that musical collaboration has been recorded. On Angel Records.

Says Menuhin, "I would call it a conversation . . . it is not necessary when two friends meet to say weighty things all the time —as long as they express themselves with elegance, and have a certain style, and are friendly."

With instrumental trio, they play fifteen pop standards from the '30's. Among them: Gershwin's Lady Be Good and Love Is Here to Stay. Kern's A Fine Romance, Porter's Night and Day and Berlin's Cheek to Cheek. Rodger's The Lady Is A Tramp and Blue Room. Not since Ravi Shankar met Menuhin has there been so exhilarating a musical chemistry. Or a more congenial and winning alliance.

Angel

SFO-36968
(LP, Cartridge, Cassette)

"SECRET LIFE OF HERNANDO CORTEZ"
film by john chamberlain November 8, 1973
Herter Hall 231 7:30p.m. and 9p.m.
Tickets: $.50 to UMass Students with IDs, $1 to all others
Available at the door, or at the Fine Arts Council Box Office, 125 Herter Hall
telephone 545-0202, Mon - Fri, 9 a.m. - 4 p.m.
Sponsored by the University of Massachusetts Fine Arts Council

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS
EDITOR-IN-CHIEF Stephen G. Tripoli
MANAGING EDITOR Mary T. Vorderer
BUSINESS MANAGER Gilbert W. Fullerton
EXECUTIVE EDITOR Jerald H. Lazar
NEWS EDITOR Joan Fassnacht
SPORTS EDITOR Stephen W. Crowe
PHOTO EDITOR Alan H. Chapman
FINE ARTS EDITOR Patrick Coffey

ADVERTISING MANAGER Brent A. Wilkes
ASST. MANAGING EDITOR Geoffrey L. Kurinsky
ASST. EXECUTIVE EDITOR Dean P. Tucker
ASST. NEWS EDITOR Sharon Hughes
ASST. SPORTS EDITOR Steven DeCosta
ASST. PHOTO EDITOR Stephen A. Ruggles
ASST. FINE ARTS EDITOR Joyce Kosofsky
TODAY'S STAFF
ISSUE EDITOR Steve Feld
EDITORIAL Dean Tucker
SPORTS Walt Powers
DARKROOM Dave Less, Larry Stein, Dan Smith
AD LAYOUT Barbara Bicka

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administrators read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons, and letters represent the personal views of the authors.

The Collegian subscribes to the Associated Press and the Liberation News Service. Publication of their material does not constitute endorsement.

Joyce Kosofsky

False Security

When I first was accepted to this echelon of higher education, I made the mistake of letting my mother fill out some very important forms. Oh, she managed to get my name, age, address, and next of kin right. But she put down the wrong social security number.

I never noticed until this summer when, for the first time in two years, I carefully checked the cute little green and white computor sheet that the Registrar's office sent me. Right there, under my correct name, address, age, and next of kin, staring at me, sticking out like a sore thumb, was my wrong social security number.

O my god, I thought. How will I ever graduate? How will I ever get a good college-diploma-type paying job? How will I ever get my tax refund with the wrong social security number? Luckily, the form also stated that all innaccuracies should be reported to the Registrar's office. So, I sent them a letter explaining the error.

I never received an acknowledgement of that correspondence, but I figured that everything was cool until I received a different computor sheet from the Registrar's office. There again, like Mt. Everest, it was there. The wrong social security number, O.K., I thought. I'll just have to go over there myself and change it.

Just a small matter of running over to Whitmore, I thought. A small matter of giving the correct information to the Registrar's office and leaving, I thought. A five minute ordeal that will insure my existence as number 014447477, I thought. Boy, did I think wrong. So wrong, that my prediction of McGovern winning the election by ten states seemed trivial.

First of all, I happened to pick the last day in which course changes were due, so the lines to the Registrar's office went down to the coffee shop, so it seemed. After waiting (and waiting, and waiting) to get to the front of the line, the woman in the office told me that the Registrar's office was not the place for such a correction, but she would take care of it, seeing as her roommate worked in the Record's office, where they do take such corrections.

With my usual efficiency, I zapped out my number two pencil and filled out the information necessary to my future existence. Now, I thought, I can finally put my mind to rest knowing that my true status will finally be recognized.

The next week, I received a computor form in the mail saying "course 014447477-oversubscribed."

I give up.

Joyce Kosofsky is a Collegian Columnist

Zionist Aggression Is Not A Liberation Struggle

By ROCHELLE CHANDLER

My immediate reaction to Marcelo Dascal's letter to the editor was to scream "HOW DARE YOU COMPARE THE ZIONIST AGGRESSIVE ACTS OF ISRAEL TO THE LIBERATION STRUGGLE OF MOZAMBIQUE." Instead, I decided to exercise as much patience as the author of "Both Sides Now" tried to exhibit. I'll deal with the most obvious contradictions first.

The heroic people of Mozambique are engaged and have been engaged for years in a struggle to free their territory and people from the barbaric colonialist, Portugal. The bloodshed and battles fought have been on African territory. The heroic people of Syria and Egypt were/are engaged in a struggle to free their territory and people from the Zionist-oriented aggression of the State of Israel. The bloodshed and the battles fought have been on Arab territory. There are NO political or ideological parallels between the liberation movement of Mozambique to free their land and the expansionist military policy of Israel. Quite the contrary, for the struggle of the Palestinian people is a liberation struggle in keeping with the intent of the liberation struggle in Mozambique.

The Resolution adopted by the Third World community did not at any time, suggest, as Mr. Dascal states, that Israel does not exist. Only a fool would pretend (worse, believe) the non-existence of any enemy. As to whether or not Israel has the right to exist, I believe that the following facts speak for themselves:

1. When the Palestine Problem was created by Britain in 1917, more than 90% of the population of Palestine were Arabs, and there were no more than 56,000 Jews in Palestine at that time.

2. More than half of the Jews living in Palestine at that time were recent immigrants, who had come to Palestine in the preceding decades in order to escape persecution is Europe. (Less than 5% of the population of Palestine were native Palestine Jews).

3. Arabs of Palestine at that time owned 97 1/2% of the land while the Jews (native Palestinians and recent immigrants together) owned only 2 1/2% of the land.

4. During the thirty years of British occupation and rule, the Zionists were able to purchase only 3 1/2% of the land of Palestine, in spite of the encouragement of the British Government. And much of this land was transferred to Zionist bodies by the British government directly, and was not sold by Arab owners.

5. When Britain passed the Palestine Problem to the United Nations in 1947, Zionists owned no more than 6% of the total land area of Palestine.

6. When the General Assembly of the U.N. recommended that a "Jewish State" be established in Palestine and that the proposed "state" occupy about 54% of the total area of the country, Israel immediately occupied 80.48% of the total land area of Palestine.

7. This territorial expansion took place, for the most part, before May 15, 1948, i.e. BEFORE the formal end of the British mandate and the withdrawal of British forces from Palestine, before the entry of Arab armies to protect Palestinian Arabs, and before the Arab-Israeli war.

8. The 1947 recommendation of the General Assembly in favor of the creation of a "Jewish State" was outside the competence of the Assembly under the Charter of the United Nations.

9. All attempts by the Arab States and some Asian countries to have the Assembly submit the question of "constitutionality" of its recommendation to the Internatioal Court of Justice for an "advisory opinion" by the Court were rejected or ignored by the Assembly.

10. When the Assembly began to experience "second thoughts" over the matter and convened for its special session in 1948, it failed to reaffirm the 1947 recommendation for the partition of Palestine, thus destroying whatever dubious legality that recommendation for the establishment of a "Jewish State" had had.

11. The conditions existing in Israel following the development were such that they caused a majority of Palestinian Arabs to flee and/or be evicted from their homeland.

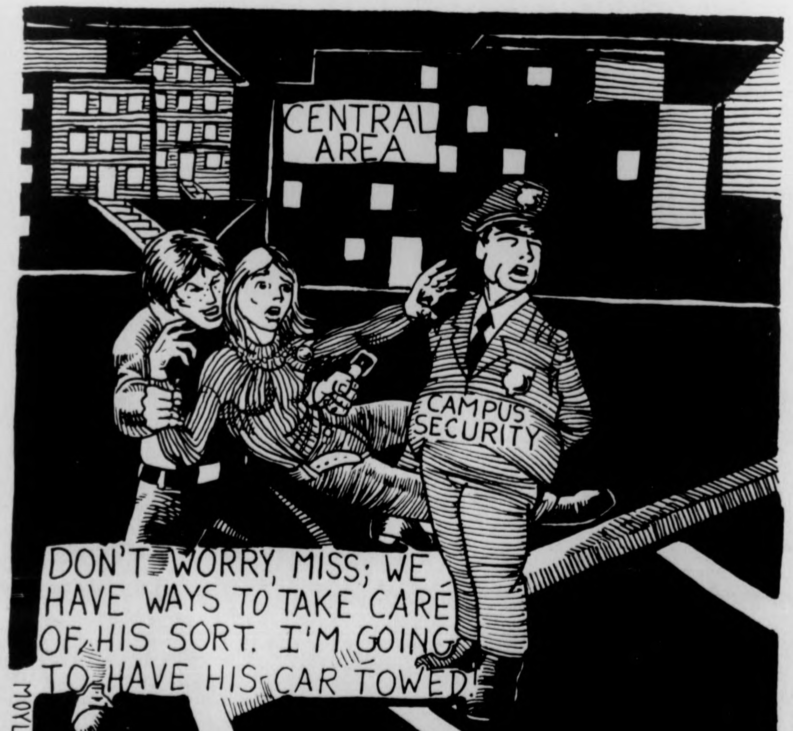
This list could extend on and on; clearly, these facts point out that the legitimacy of Israel is seriously questionable. Mr. Dascal's argument presented other contradictions. Surely, members of the Third World community would be one of the first groups to defend the right of any people to the rights of self-defense and self-determination. However, there are no "rights" that justify the oppression of another people -- specifically, the Palestinian MAJORITY who occupied the land that Israel now claims. It is impossible for Mr. Dascal or any other person to logically and rationally demand justice for the Palestinian people and simultaneously support the State of Israel.

One of the most illogical arguments advanced by Zionists and the supporters of Israel is that there is sufficient Arab territory outside of Israel to absorb the Palestinian refugees. This is an inhumane supposition that views the Palestinians as inanimate objects that can be moved at will similar to the way the forced transportation of African peoples away from Africa presupposed the African's classification outside the definition of "humanity" and therefore, not worthy of considerations due humans. This quality argument would theoretically support the expulsion of any people from any territory if there are lands owned by peoples (of similar descent) to absorb them. Further, there is no question that the Palestinian's will to return home is as strong today as it was 19 years ago.

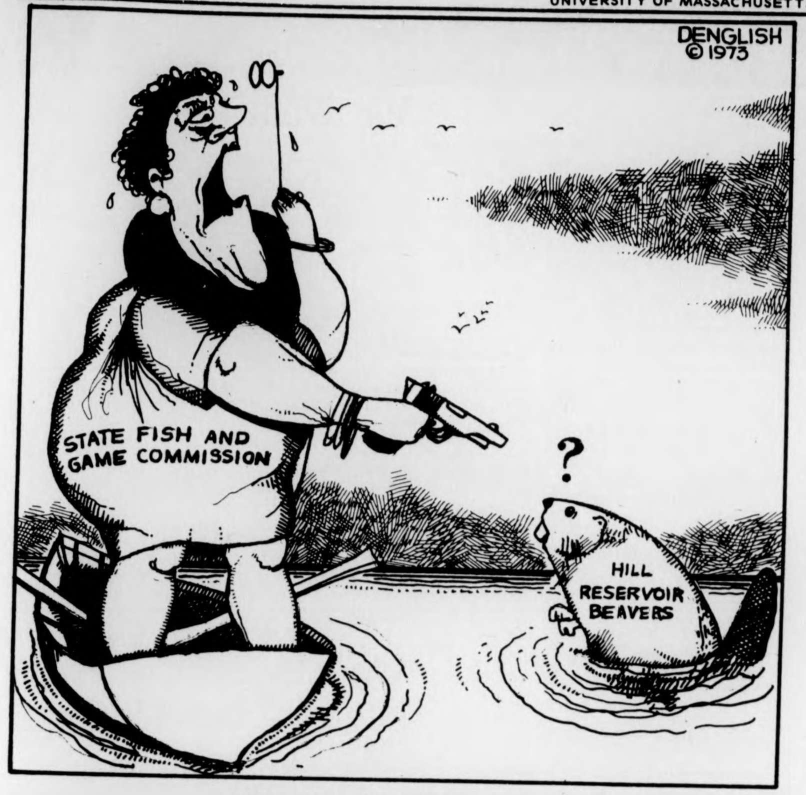
Another argument advanced by the Zionists is that of forgetting about the past and starting anew. Therefore, they attempt to justify the status quo of the situation in the Middle East including the Palestinian refugees. The Zionist claim to Palestine is based only a historical tie to this land some 2,000 years ago, yet, they want the Palestinians to forget about their ties to the land 19 years ago. Two facts should be mentioned in conjunction with this. If we advance the argument of 'historical link' then the land is still rightfully that of the Arab peoples whose claim to Palestine dates back some 5,000 years. Secondly, most Jewish people claiming historical ties to Palestine territory are not of Semitic origin, but European converts of Polish and Slavic origin.

It is indeed unfortunate that the supporters of Israel do not move beyond emotionalsim and sentimentality, and logically confront the problems of the Palestinian people and the contradictions manifest in the existence of Israel. Neither Mr. Dascal's article or the other articles appearing in that issue of the Collegian deal with the way that the Palestinian Arabs have been unjustly expelled from their homeland, and the oppression of Palestinians remaining in Israel. The Arab people of Palestine DID NOT leave their homes because they wanted to. They were, indeed, forced to leave, and the existence of a State that by definitions seeks to expel a group of people, and attempts to build a nation based on race or religion can never be viewed as humane, revolutionary, and certainly, not a liberation struggle.

Yes, there can be "no hope for a durable peace until there is an understanding and acknowledgement of the basic rights and LEGITIMATE aspirations of both the Jewish and Palestinian populations."



CENTRAL AREA
CAMPUS SECURITY
DON'T WORRY, MISS; WE HAVE WAYS TO TAKE CARE OF HIS SORT. I'M GOING TO HAVE HIS CAR TOWED!
MOYLE



"Horrible, horrible, monster"

Letters To The Editor

Anti-Israeli, Not Anti-Semitic

To The Editor:

In response to Menackem Rosenberger's editorial about the Third World Resolution, some members of the Third World community would like to further clarify its position as articulated in the resolution, and in the course of so doing, perhaps, provide Rosenberger and other readers some additional insights into the truth of the Palestinian struggle and other factors surrounding the Middle East conflict.

First, the statement presented by Mr. Rosenberger that "not a single African nation, except Egypt, was involved in a vote against the creation of the Jewish State", to say the least, is untrue. We claim no monopoly on truth and adequate research would reveal the following:

"The original 1947 recommendation to create a 'Jewish State' in Palestine was approved at the first vote, only by European, American and Australian States......every Asian State and every African State (with the exception of the Union of South Africa) voted against it......and that, when the vote was cast in plenary session on November 29, 1947, urgent American pressures (which a member of the Truman cabinet described as "bordering onto scandal") had succeeded in prevailing only upon one Asain country (the Phillipines) and one African country (Liberia), both of which had special vulnerability to American pressures, to abandon their declared opposition."

Second, those countries that are in opposition to the Union of South Africa do not deal in rhetoric; instead, they put their opposition into concrete action. We find that quite similar to the posture of the United States, a country that verbally opposes apartheid yet provides the economic backbone of the Union of South Africa (thereby supporting the continuance of the exploitation of man by man), Israel, too, continues all diplomatic and trade relations with South Africa. It is a fact that the South African regime would crumble if it did not receive diplomatic, monetary, commercial and military support from outside nations. It is a further fact that if you are not part of the solution, then you must be part of the problem! Israel has put itself, through its own actions in the latter category — part of the problem.

Third, in the wake of Israel's aggressions (where not one shot was fired on the territory called Israel), many African, Asain and Latin States have broken diplomatic ties with Israel, in an attempt to force Israel to halt its aggression and return its 'annexed' properties to their rightful owners.

Again, the position of the Third World is not anti-Semitic (most people know that the Palestinian people are semitic people). Anti-Semitism is a western phenomenon created and propelled by Europeans. By the same token, our position is not Anti-Jewish. Instead, our position is clearly against the displacement and annihilation of Palestinian people — a political agenda which arose with the creation of Israel and thrives with its continued existence.

The point that Israel's survival is not at stake should be emphasized. The war has always been fought on Arab territory, and just as France fought to liberate her territory from the Germans, so Egypt and Syria have fought to liberate their territory from the Zionists. A Luta Continua!

Joseph Andrews
Bridget Porter

Cooperate With Co-op

To The Editor:

Basically, this letter is a cry for help from the People's Market people who are, right about now, worked to a frazzle. Business is booming but we're desperately in need of some input from our customers and supporters.

There are eleven people who are paid for approximately ten hours of work a week at $2.00 an hour. All the time beyond their ten hours is strictly volunteer and they volunteer an incredible amount of time every week.

There are two co-ordinators who do the books, depositing, meetings and general management and nine who are each in charge of a specific department such as dairy or health foods, besides spending ten hours a week at the register. Most of them have received excellent suggestions from customers and a generous amount of critcism of both kinds. The problem is in implementing new ideas and change, because we don't have the time or energy to do all of these things. Every day goods are delivered. They have to be priced and shelved. Milk, cheese, yogurt, and produce are in almost every day. Big health food and canned goods orders arrive every other week, and cleaning and monthly inventories are also part of the vital workings of the store.

As a non-profit co-op, the aim of the People's Market is to offer students low prices on food by only marking up from wholesale enough to cover labor and maintenance costs. Hiring any more workers would mean raising the markup on goods.

What we are getting at is that we need volunteers. In order to continue to keep our prices where they are, we can't afford to pay, but the reward is there in seeing the results of your actions. This Thursday night we are holding a volunteer orientation meeting at 7:00 in the Market. Anyone who has any amount of time to donate is very welcome. And the people who have volunteered in the past are also urged to attend.

Come and make the People's Market your market.

Carolyn L. Ferringno-Leo
The People's Market

Moe Letters
See Page 14

Ted Likes Walk

Dear Mr. Spiegelman:

I appreciate your call to my office to advise me of the Walkathon planned this month to benefit the Adolescent Training Unit in Belchertown.

My niece Kathleen Kennedy will be married on November 17, so I cannot join you personally for this important event, but I do send my best wishes to success in this meaningful fund drive.

Twenty miles may be a long distance to walk, but because of the Adolescent Training Unit, many young people have come even a longer distance--from a restricted and non-productive life to the freedom of community life. May each step of the participating walkers signify yet further steps in our compassionate and constructive response to the needs of these deserving and promising youngsters.

Edward M. Kennedy
U.S. Senate

Write On, Zamir

To The Editor:

This is in response to the letter submitted by Jonathan Quick, er....-Slick, of the English Department and Central Area Academic Affairs Committee on Friday 11-2. Here he calls Zamir Nestelbaum, who is a fine columnist and an outstanding citizen, a feeble writer, incompetent and meretricious to boot. First of all I defy Quick, er...Slick to define meretricious and when he can't it will show us the futility and worthlessness of a Yale education. Furthermore, my respect for that honky institution has almost disintegrated into nothingness. I would like to add again that Zamir is a fine writer and a hell of a guy. I would say this even if Zamir didn't pay me ten bucks to do it.

Jonathan, if you come up with twenty-five clams, I'll write in a letter about you.

Don Connors
Central Area Academic Affairs Committee

Movie Rental Not Up

To The Editor:

This letter speaks to inflated admission prices for movies on campus. Most movies this year cost $.75 as opposed to the $.50 we have paid in previous years. I'd like you all to know that rental prices charged to the groups showing the movies have not risen 33 percent, and in fact they have not risen at all. The higher price is realized as an extra one or two hundred dollars to the sponsoring group. Apparently, the feeling is that since everything else is more expensive these days, no one will notice a price increase in any single area: "If you think we can get 75 cents, let's charge it."

Movies don't have to cost more, they just do.

Steve Goldberg

Walk, Ladies

To The Editor:

I am writing this letter to you because it seems your newspaper is always writing something about the hitch-hiking problem in this town. It seems every time something happens to a young lady in a hitch-hiking incident, every one raises a hue and cry and screams that the gentleman should be hung and quartered at the same time. But what happens when the young lady pulls a reverse role? NOTHING. Nobody says a damn thing.

A case in point:

Last Saturday afternoon I was driving through Amherst Center when I came upon a young lady hitching with a lot of groceries, so I stopped and picked her up. Opening the car door with a smile on her face, she said "Hi" and asked where I was going. I told her three or four blocks, but then I asked her where she was going and she replied, "North Leverett." I looked at her groceries, and thought of how difficult it might be for her to get a ride and said to her, "I'll take you to No. Leverett. She said okay and got into the car. I started accelerating and she said, "You're really going to take me to No. Leverett?" I said, "Why not?" Of course, I was thinking of all the times I had hitch-hiked and I was ten or twelve miles from home and people went out of their way and brought me straight to my front door, not asking anything in return. So I thought I would return the favor in my own small way.

Meanwhile, the young lady is sitting next to me mumbling, "I can't accept it, I can't accept it." I asked her what it was she couldn't accept. "I can't believe you're taking me to No. Leverett. I didn't say anything, but continued to drive. At this point, my speed was 35 m.p.h. All of a sudden the passenger door flew open, and she started alighting from the car while it was still in motion, saying "YOU'RE GOING TO RAPE ME, I'M GETTING OUT." I applied the brakes, let her grab her belongings and continued on my way, quite hurt by all this. I have done a lot of things in my life, but raping the so-called weaker sex is not one of them and never will be. I am simply not that desperate that I would have to resort to rape to obtain sexual gratification. Every day I sit in the Campus Center or the Hatch I hear some damn bitch relating to her friends how some guy tried to rape her while she was hitching. I allow for the fact that rapes do occur, but I wonder how many women actually do get raped. What I'm saying is I think some women are lying when they say they've been raped, or some guy attempted to rape them.

In closing, I just want to say to you gallant gents who would pick up a woman hitching out of the goodness of your heart of gold, don't pick the bitch up unless you know and trust her. It's the best protection for yourself this way. Some women will get in a car with a guy, rip off her clothes, scream rape, jump out, run to the nearest cop, and just how do you tell the cop that you didn't try to rape her?

From now on with me I've instituted a new policy as far as picking hitch-hiking young ladies is concerned, they don't get into the car unless I know them. I don't care if it's 100 degrees below zero outside and there's some bitch standing there hitch-hiking and I don't know her, she's just going to have to stand there and freeze her little ass off. This is my first and last experience with this sort of thing. In the words of Edgar Allen Poe: "Quote the raven 'Nevermore'."

Every time I picked a Collegian to read, there's been some young lady yelping about sexual attack, well now maybe we can change this around abit too. Guys get shafted just as well as women do. All we ever heard is one side of the story, the lady's side. How about the man's?

Govan Lee Glover

Moe Letters To The Editor

How 'Bout Da Kingfish?

To The Editor:

This letter is addressed to everyone on the UMass campus that wants Moe Howard of the Three Stooges to come and lecture:

I know at times we suffer the nostalgic pangs of moronic infantilism, longing for the good old days when we nursed our minds on one of those 7-inch screens set in a huge wooden "Futurama" cabinet. It's true, many people never grow up, and as John Gallagher observed, some are even walking around in Eddie Haskell T-shirts - as if he was one of the brighter spots in our developing media consicousness. Now some of the children want Moe Howard to come visit, to talk about God knows what, and actully be paid to do so. Why?

Listen - if you want to have a representative from the early era of TV humor come and wipe the dribble from your intellectual chin, there are better choices available than one of the Three Stooges. Let's face it, the Stooges show was usually a bore. What about Queen For A Day, huh? Remember that one? Some sobbing widow with seven kids would win a night on the town in a '55 Cadillac. Wow! Talk about campy humor! Or how about My Little Margie? Who could forget her? Where do you think Julie Nixon picked up her flashy style?

My personal choice for a visitor though, if he is still alive, would have to be Freeman Gosden. Remember him? He played da Kingfish on Amos and Andy. Now there was a funny show. Who could forget those good ole colored folk? Yes sah, no sah, hold dat phone! And da Kingfish, shuffling along, happy-go-lucky, always trying to make a buck-as a slap stick character, he puts Moe Howard to shame. Not only was the Amos and Andy show funny, it gave all the white folk an important sociological peek into the world of the Negro during the '40's and '50's.

So forget about Moe Howard and let's hear it for Freeman Gosden! As da Kingfish would say, "My, my aint dat sumpin!"

Fanlon Verdoe

We Want Moe!

To The Editor:

I would just like to voice my support for the proposal to have Moe Howard come to UMass as a part of the Distinguished Visitors Program. I have been a Three Stooges fan practically all my life. They have given me many hours of laughter and enjoyment, not to mention the memories I will always have. Not only do I love the Three Stooges but I think they have much to teach us; namely, to learn to laugh at ourselves. One has only to remember Moe's impersonation of Hitler in many of their movies to see how relevant they still are, just change the name to Nixon and try not to laugh. The Three Stooges will always be popular, and have many fas here at UMass. If Moe Howard is indeed brought here I can guarantee that my entire family will be on hand to cheer him.

Maureen Drouin

We Want Moe!

To The Editor:

We, the undersigned, feel strongly that the University of Mass. Distinguished Visitors Program should do all it can to bring Moe Howard to this campus. Moe has been a big factor in bringing comic relief to millions of Americans. He might even be able to make some of us poor down-trodden Umies laugh.

Joseph Paczkowski, et al
(21 signatures)

We Want Moe!

To The Editor:

Being one of the thousands, millions, maybe even hundreds of Three Stooges fans in the world, I would be genuinely excited if Moe Howard came to this campus. In this day and age of turmoil, war, Nixon, etc. it would be a great thrill to see good old Moe. And if anyone has a reason that Moe should not come to UMASS, see me. I'll gouge your eyes out!!! I'll tear your tonsils out!!!

Fans, keep those letters coming. Remember the "Moe" the merrier.

Blaine Sampson, et al
(nineteen signatures)

We Want Moe!

To The Editor:

We, the undersigned, would find it a most pleasurable and honorable experience to have Moe Howard speak at UMass. We request that the DVP bring him here in the interests of the undersigned and for all the students of UMass.

Bill Santini, etal
(121 signatures)

We Want Moe!

To The Editor:

be ee be, be oh bo, be i bikki by, be oh bo, bikki by bo be u be, bikki by bo boo.

em ee em, em oh MOE, em i mikki my, me oh MOE, mikki my MOE me u me, mikki WE WANT MOE.

Peter C. Dingle

We Want Moe!

To The Editor:

We, the undersigned residents of Dwight House, vote whole-heartedly to have Moe Howard of the Three Stooges as the honored guest of the DVP and the University of Massachusetts.

Allan Le Francois et al,
(77 signatures)

We Want Moe!

To The Editor:

If there's one thing we'd like better than a baloney and whipped cream sandwich, it would be to see Moe Howard at UMass.

Don't be a coward,
Bring Moe Howard!

James E. Feehan
Michael Campo

More Letters To The Editor

Winedrinkers: Support U.F.W.

To The Editor:

Boycotts are a drag. You're tired of them, just as the farm workers are tired of striking (and all that goes with it). But the workers will not be reduced to chattel again. Least of all Teamsters chattel. Cesar Chavez asks consumers to unite as never before. No less will cause the growers to grant workers the simple right to vote, by secret ballot, on the union to represent them: the United Farmworkers or the Teamsters.

Three years ago a massive consumer boycott dragged growers kicking and screaming into the 20th century. Last spring when the U.F.W.'s hard-won contracts were up for renewal along came Teamster honchos who, without a word to the workers, signed a ready-made contract with the growers. That Teamster contract reinstitutes the notorious Labor Contractor hiring system, reduces the workers' already minimal pay, imposes no restrictions on the use of man-killing pesticides and leaves the workers without any effective medical benefits. There are other cruel inadequacies in the Teamsters' sweetheart contract, but that should be enough to make you lose your taste for grapes.

Consumers are the last line of defense for the United Farmworkers Union. You are the one critical element the Teamsters cannot control. If you are sickened by this ignoble attempt to return farm workers to the status of cattle, then the workers' cause is not yet lost.

The growers understand sales. The memory of the last great boycott is their recurring nightmare. Because of the successful grape boycott many growers have been forced to sell their grapes to wineries. Now we must boycott the wines that are made from the scab grapes. The Juan de la Cruz Boycott Committee will be picketing package stores in the future. You can start to help the U.F.W. by selecting the right California wines. Boycott Gallo wines. Gallo wines includes Boones Farm, Thunderbird, Andre, Spanada, Tyrolia, Ripple, and Cold Duck. Also boycott any wine which says "Modesto, California" on the label. The name Gallo does not appear on all labels, but Gallo is the only wine company in Modesto.

Boycott all Franzia Bros. wines, Champagne, and Louis Fifth Brandy. Also boycott any wines which say "made and bottled in Rippon, Calif." All Franzia products have the number BW3654 on the case.

Boycott Guild wines. These include sparkling wines, table and dessert wines, brandy and specialty wines.

The following wines are made from United Farmworkers grapes; Italian Swiss Colony, Almaden, Paul Masson, Christian Brothers, Novitate of Los Gatos and Vie DEL.

The people of Massachusetts must unite as consumers to help the peoples' union, the United Farmworkers to win again. People interested in picketing should call 546-6620 for information.

Ken Allen
Juan de la Cruz
Boycott Committee

Great Sport?

To The Editor:

Those who think that the conspired food fight at Hampshire Dining Commons on Halloween night deserves credit, should consider a more obvious consequence when evaluating that "great sport". You don't seem to realize that the owners of the commons who had to pay to have it all cleaned up, paid for only a half hour of back breaking disgusting labor on the part of the cafeteria help, who have virtually nothing to do with the prices you pay or the planned meals you eat. Why should your attacks, in the form of brash insults and vulgar obscenities pertaining to the food served in the Dining Commons, be accepted by the cafeteria maintenance, who have no say, let alone authority, concerning the prices of substance of the food. Have some sympathy for these innocent, victimized middlemen. I suggest that the next surprise attack you "revolutionaries" enact be less of an immature, ineffective act of protest, and be more rightly directed at those real instigators at the top of the food dilemna; not the abused cafeteria help.

Kitty Anderson

CAMPUS INTERVIEWS

SCHOOL OF MANAGEMENT

Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute

Graduate Degree Programs in:

— Private (Industrial) Management
— Public Management
— Management Engineering
— Operations Research and Statistics

Prof. D. W. Karger, Ford Foundation
Professor of Management will be on campus

Tuesday, November 13, 1973

Please make appointments at Placement Office

The un-dormitories.

Great off-campus living—indoors and out—at either of two modern apartment complexes, only minutes away by car or bike from Amherst College, downtown Amherst or UMass. Now accepting applications for September.

Brittany Manor
AMHERST
- courtesy bus to UMass and town
- 1, 2, 3 bedrm apts.
- heat & air conditioning
- wall-to-wall carpeting
- applianced kitchens
- master TV antenna
- laundry facilities
- parking, cars & bikes
- 2 swimming pools with sundecks
- 2 pro tennis courts
- lawns for softball, football, badminton

RENT: $200/MONTH
(utilities included)
Directions: East Dudly Rd. oppos. Grist Mill off Rte. 116

Mount Sugarloaf
SUNDERLAND
- 2-bedrm apts.
- heat & air conditioning
- roomy closets, storage
- wall-to-wall carpeting
- master TV antenna
- modern kitchens
- self-cleaning ovens
- electric ranges
- stainless-steel sinks
- dishwashers/disposals
- 2-door refrigerators
- laundry facilities
- swimming pool

No Lease Required
RENT: FROM $185
CALL 413-256-8534
Directions: On Route 47.

VILLAGE INN
DRAKE
LOWENBRAU OKTOBERFEST
ON DRAFT
Restaurant Open 'til 2 a.m.

Sundaes 45c
Between 2 - 5 p.m.
Today
thru Friday
THE GASLITE II
168 N. Pleasant St. 253-2291
Open 6:30 a.m.-10:30 p.m.

Of Interest...

Student Exchange To Keele

If you are plagued by thoughts of foreign yet inexpensive travel, environs of lakes and mountains, and individualized, independent study, then you might consider the Keele Exchange Program for next fall. Through the student exchange between the University of Massachusetts and the University of Keele in England, three UMass students can spend either their junior or senior year at Keele and receive full academic credit toward the B.A. degree. Likewise, three Keele students come to Massachusetts on the exchange.

Keele is located about two hours by train, northwest of London and only six hours from Edinburgh, Scotland. The campus is in a rural setting, with a varied terrain for hiking. Yet, is just one-half hour from a major English highway for the less enthusiastic walkers! The village of Keele is small, but its Pub and General Store fill the immediate needs of the university student.

The University of Keele is one of England's most innovative, coed liberal arts universities in England. With only 2,000 students, Keele is able to maintain an educational philosophy of close student-teacher contact. This contact is facilitated by the tutorial system and by the residential living concept where both students and faculty live on campus. There are a variety of academic and research areas, a well-equipped sports center, and a Student Union that is completely student directed.

The Faculties of Humanities, Social Sciences and Natural Sciences make up the Keele curriculum. Among the disciplines taught there are sociology, geography, economics, philosophy and most of the sciences. Keele is particularly strong in language and literature, history, politics, and American studies.

Applicants for the program in Keele should have at least a 3.0 cumulative average. Students should plan to go for their junior or senior years and for the full academic year rather than one semester. The program of contempleted study should fit into their degree work at UMass.

The total estimated cost for a year at Keele is the same as a corresponding time at the Amherst campus. A limited amount of financial aid may be available for travel costs which are not included in the yearly estimate. Students interested in the exchange should, during the month of November contact Judy Epstein, International Programs Office, 239 Whitmore.

Indonesian Dance Troupe Coming

On Saturday, November 10th, the Indonesian Dance and Gamelan Orchestra Troupe will come to the Valley area for a day of workshop, performance and general cultural exchange.

The Troupe is comprised of Indonesians from their Embassy in Washington D.C., and is brought here through the efforts of a University of Massachusetts graduate student from Indonisia, Dr. Sajoga, and a Hampshire College professor, Philip McKean. The orchestra is also from the Embassy and is composed of thirty members playing such instruments as percussion, flute and xylophone.

The dances to be performed are from Bali, Java, and Sumatra, each created in a distinctive style of the area from which it comes.

The Troupe will begin the day with a free Workshop at 10:30 in the Hampshire College dance studio. At 4:00 p.m. the Indonesians will present their major performance in Buckley Recital Hall, Amherst College. Tickets can be purchased at the door for only 50¢ with a student I.D. card.

With a view of furthering cultural understanding and exchange, the sponsors of the program (Hampshire College, Schools of Humanities and Social Sciences and Offices of the Dean and President, Smith and Amherst Colleges' departments of Religion, University of Massachusetts department of Anthropology and the Five College Asian Studies Faculty Seminar) have designed an Indonesian Banquet for the Troupe and the public. It will be held at the Merrill Science Center dining commons, Amherst College at 6:30 p.m. The banquet is limited to 100 people, and reservations can be made by contacting Ms. Kitty Axelson, Warner House, Hampshire College, telephone 542-4799.

The sponsors of the Indonesian Dance program are seeking hosts and hostesses for the artists on the nights of November 9 and 10. Interested persons should call at Hampshire College one of the following: Professor James McElwaine 542-4872, Professor Philip McKean 542-4797, Ms. Kitty Axelson 542-4799.

Psych. Dept. Offers Counciling

The Council of Undergraduate Students in Psychology invites all students planning on taking psychology courses next semester, to its first "Course Counciling Bonanza" — Tonight from 7:00 to 10:00 p.m. Colonial Lounge S.U.

The purpose of this event is to advise undergraduates about next semester's course offerings in psychology, help students in designing proper programs of courses in psych (taking into account individual needs and career goals), and to answer any questions or problems that students have relating to Psychology Department course offerings.

The Psychology Dept. undergraduate advising corps, headed by Prof. John Danielson will be on hand to meet informally with students.

Refreshments will be served.

Paul V. Benoit

FIVE COLLEGE
JANUARY 1974
FLIGHT

Boston-Paris January 5-26, 1974. Round-trip $175, Air France carrier. Contact: International Programs 239 Whitmore, University of Mass. 545-2710, payment deadline Nov. 30.

Student Judiciary

Three Student Judges Needed

Any Undergraduate Student May Apply

Apply at Student Senate Office
Rm. 420 Student Union

Applications due Friday Nov. 16th

British Open University: Something New

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Perhaps Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer couldn't care less, but a growing number of Americans are indicating deep interest in a new British Open — the British Open University, that is.

This unique, less than three-year-old institution whose students range from young adults to persons in their 80's, "probably the most important innovation in higher education in the past 20 years — has pioneered imaginative approaches to a lifelong learning conoinuum," two Indiana University professors report.

Say June Grant Shane and Harold G. Shane, writing in the November- December issue of the National Education Association journal: "More than a correspondence school, more of an electronic wonder, it is a tribute to human ingenuity — an idea come of age with important portent for teaching and learning not only in the Old World and in the Third World but in our country as well."

The Today's Education article by the wife-husband team of education professors features an interview with Walter James, dean of the Faculty of Educational Studies, on the campus near Bletchley in Buckinghamshire.

The Open University was proposed by Harold Wilson, who later became British prime minister. Combining broadcast and instruction with some face-to-face instruction, it provides "open access" to its programs for persons over 21 (over 18, starting Jan. 1) regardless of applicants' formal schooling or grades.

Two points were recognized in setting up the university, James told the visiting American professors: "First, a lot of people with the potential for higher education had not received it; second, because of changes caused by galloping technology, more people needed more opportunities for recurrent education at various stages of their careers than we had been providing."

To say the Open University has thrived would be a typically British understatement. Having opened in 1971 with 25,000 students, it now has nearly 40,000 in its undergraduate program, plus smaller numbers in its postexperience courses for persons who wish to change occupations or update their knowledge and in its postgraduate program for people studying for a higher degree.

"Britain's bold new open access to a university education — like the brave new ideas in our country — has its problems and is flawed by certain defects," the Shanes comment. "But," they add glowingly, "for an infant delivered into a coldly skeptical world but three years ago, it already is a huge, handsome, healthy, educational baby!"

The applicant first meets with an admissions counselor who discusses with him whether or not his application is realistic — but he is accepted even if it is not, provided the desired courses are not filled. However, students are registered conditionally from January to April to make up their minds whether the system is for them. (About 20 to 25 percent of the students drop out during the first year.)

The successful applicant is then assigned a part-time tutor to whom he sends his assignments and who offers some face-to-face instruction. He is also assigned a counselor to help him with any study problems.

The course begins "with a tremendous thud of a package coming to his mailbox," James told the Americans. It contains instructional notes to the students, roadcast schedules, and, likely, the first four units of the course.

"During his study time, he watches television and listens to radio programs, reads the correspondence text sent to him, and engages in additional reading and activities," James explained.

There are counselor contacts, self-help groups with other students, and about four to six hours of face-to-face instruction during a half-credit course of 170 hours. Finally, students get together for one week in the year during the summer schools on a traditional university campus.

"In October or November," James continued, "the student takes an examination at the end of the course. Grades, which determine whether or not students will be awarded a credit, are based both on their continuous assignments during the course and on the final examination."

Grand Opening
Masse's Fish
of Amherst
(formerly Amherst Seafood Mkt.)
103 N. Pleasant St.
(across from Louis Food Center)

FRESH HADDOCK
FRESH SWORDFISH
FRESH HALIBUT
FRESH SALMON

SPECIALS • WED. THRU SAT.
Lb. Peeled & Deveined SHRIMP $1.99 lb.
Stuffed Jumbo SHRIMP .60 ea.
Stuffed Lobsters $2.25 ea.

SEAFOOD . . . COOKED TO ORDER Every Friday
FISH & CHIPS
CLAMS
SCALLOPS
SHRIMP
LOBSTER ROLLS
FISH CAKES
ONION RINGS
STUFFED SOLE
CLAM ROLLS
SALADS: POTATO, COLE SLAW
Open: Wed. thru Sat.
MASSE'S FISH
103 N. Pleasant, Amherst
634 Chicopee St. CHICOPEE
1037 State St. SPRINGFIELD

Colonel Sanders
Big Clam Fry . . .
Wednesdays and Thursdays, Only . . .
Feeds 4-6
Boat of tendersweet baby clams
Quart of French Fries
Pint of Cole Slaw
Quart of Soda
$4.99
Clip the coupon
Chicken-In seating for 54
Chicken-Out Delivery Free
256-8745
Kentucky Fried Chicken.
Rte. 9 (across from Zayre's) Hadley
256-8745

Win big prizes! Be famous!
Enter the Schaefer
Knight & Dragon
write-your-own-punchline contest.

Help!
Save us from hack writers!

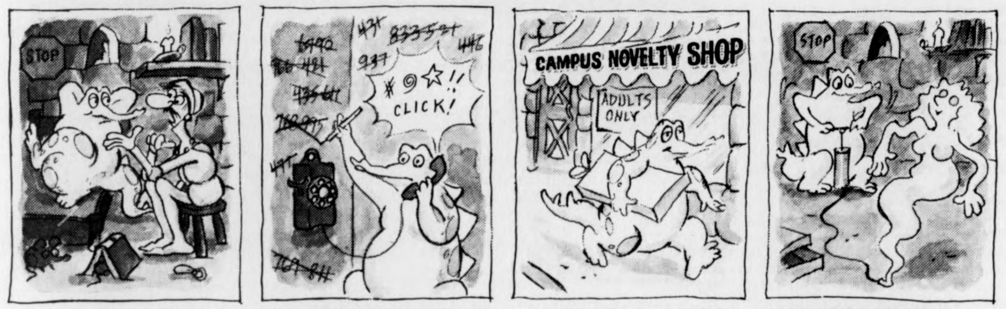
Hey, Kids! You've got 51 chances to win!
– $25.00 cash First Prize, plus
– 50 snazzy and alluring Schaefer Knight & Dragon T-shirts to the next 50 runners-up.

All you've got to do is write a socko punchline for the Schaefer Knight & Dragon cartoon printed below. Write your boffer on the handy coupon below or, if it's especially long and boring, use a separate piece of paper.

MORE THAN ONCE UPON A TIME



ONCE A KNIGHT FELT COMPELLED TO GET IT ON AND TELL IT LIKE IT IS SO HE COULD GET HIS HEAD STRAIGHT AND PUT DOWN ANY BAD VIBES THAT MIGHT BE GOING DOWN BETWEEN HIMSELF AND HIS ROOMMATE, A DRAGON. AND HE DID SAY: "LOOK, MAN, YOU OWE ME SEVERAL CARLOADS OF SCHAEFER BEER AND IT'S ABOUT TIME YOU DID SOMETHING FOR ME. IF YOU GET ME A DATE, I'LL FORGET ABOUT THE BEER."

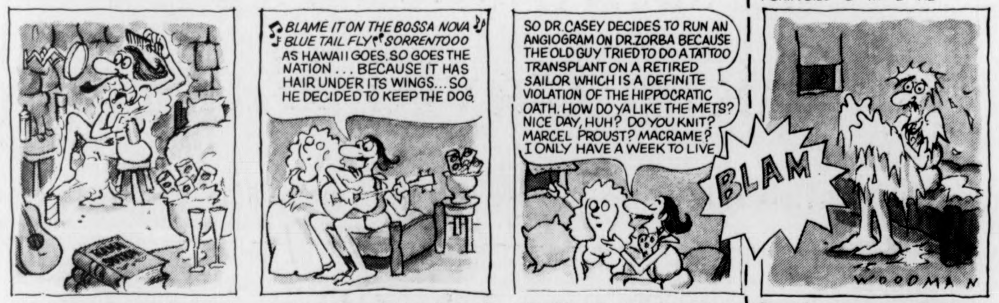
AND THE DRAGON DID AGREE AND DID REPAIR TO THE PHONE BOOTH OF THE LOCAL TAVERN WHERE THE NAMES OF SEVERAL WILLING MAIDENS WERE LISTED. BUT ALAS, HE MET WITH LITTLE SUCCESS FOR THE KNIGHT WAS KNOWN BY ONE AND ALL TO BE, IN THE PARLANCE OF THE UNIVERSITAS, AN "INNYSKAY EEPCRAY."(1)

BUT, NOT WILLING TO FORFEIT THE CHANCE TO ERADICATE HIS DEBILITATING DEBT, THE DRAGON DID REPAIR TO THE CAMPUS NOVELTY SHOP.

WHERE HE DID ACQUIRE A SUITABLE MATCH FOR ONE SO GIFTED AS THE KNIGHT.

Send to: Schaefer Contest, PO Box 2934,
Grand Central Station, New York, New York 10017

Name ____________
Address ____________
____
School ____________
T-Shirt Size S M L XL



BLAME IT ON THE BOSSA NOVA BLUE TAIL FLY SORRENTOOO AS HAWAII GOES. SO GOES THE NATION . . . BECAUSE IT HAS HAIR UNDER ITS WINGS... SO HE DECIDED TO KEEP THE DOG.
SO DR. CASEY DECIDES TO RUN AN ANGIOGRAM ON DR. ZORBA BECAUSE THE OLD GUY TRIED TO DO A TATTOO TRANSPLANT ON A RETIRED SAILOR WHICH IS A DEFINITE VIOLATION OF THE HIPPOCRATIC OATH. HOW DO YA LIKE THE METS? NICE DAY, HUH? DO YOU KNIT? MARCEL PROUST? MACRAME? I ONLY HAVE A WEEK TO LIVE
BLAM
WOODMAN

AND THE KNIGHT, IN PREPARATION FOR HIS "RENDEZ-VOUS"(2) DID GROOM HIMSELF MOST FASTIDIOUSLY AND DID PUT ON ICE PLENTY OF SCHAEFER BEER, LONG KNOWN TO BE THE PERFECT ELIXIR FOR "TRYSTING"(3) BECAUSE IT HAS FLAVOR THAT COMES ON BRIGHT & CRISP, EVEN AS EVENTIDE FADES TO MORN.

AND SO HE DID BEGIN TO ENTERTAIN THE MAID IN HIS CHAMBERS. HE DID COURT HER WITH "THE BEST IN FOLK MUSIC," "BIG HITS OF THE FORTIES," AND THEN DID REGALE HER WITH HIS POLITICAL WISDOM.

UNDAUNTED HE WENT ON TO RECITE "GREAT MOMENTS IN MEDICINE" AND WHISPERED SWEET NOTHINGS. WHENCE HE DID MAKE HIS MOVE.

Proving once again that:

All entries must be postmarked no later than November 17, 1973. Entries will be judged solely on the basis of humorous content and will be published at the discretion of the judges. You must be at least 18 years old to enter. Contest void where prohibited.

*1. INNYSKAY EEPCRAY: (PIG LATIN) NOT SOCIALLY DESIRABLE. 2. RENDEZ-VOUS: (FR.) THE SIMULTANEOUS CONJUNCTION OF TWO SUBJECTS AT THE SAME POINT IN TIME – YOU. 3. TRYSTING: (OE) THE GETTING OF IT ON.

WHEN YOU'RE HAVING MORE THAN ONE

Schaefer

Schaefer Breweries, New York, N.Y., Baltimore, Md., Lehigh Valley, Pa.

(AP Wirephoto)

CINCINNATI, Ohio--ANGEL ON WHEELS--It appears that five-year-old Angel is a little unhappy about her new set of wheels. Her owner, Mrs. Marge Ostholthoff of Forest Hills, a Cincinnati suburb, thought it would be helpful to give her a lift since she is expecting a family soon. With the help of a belt she attached a roller skate to Angel's underside. Angel was last seen rolling down the street.

OH Women's Center Presents Speakers

The Orchard Hill Women's Center invites the University and Five College Communities to the first activity of its Fall semester Speakers' Series.

"I AM WOMAN - READINGS" is a presentation by five area poets - Wilesse Comissiong, Zoe Best, Gail Hall, Andre McLaughlin and Annette Townley. The women, who participated in the widely acclaimed "Voices of New Women" poetry festival held in the Campus Center last Spring, will be reading primarily original works dealing with the joys, haunts, aspirations and inspirations of the women of today and for tomorrow.

The reading will take place tonight at 7 p.m. in Eugene Field Main Lounge, Orchard Hill Residential College, and promises to be one of the most important experiences for the area women of the semester.

Refreshments will be provided by the Orchard Hill Women's Center.

University Women's Caucus To Meet Tomorrow

The University Women's Caucus will be holding their first General Meeting of the Fall semester tomorrow evening. The Caucus was established last February, and met twice last Spring. The idea of a unified group, which could both represent and support all of the smaller women's groups on campus, arose last year when many women began to question: "What exactly is affirmative action? What does the phrase mean in terms of ACTION?" After its two large general meetings, the University Women's Caucus formed interest groups to study specific issues — child care, methods of upgrading the positions of classified employees, feminist studies, "affirmative action" policies of the University administration, special student status, etc. The aim of the Caucus was to give further support, in terms of numbers, to other women on campus who are trying to upgrade a job title, form an inexpensive day-care cooperative for their children, or whatever. Also, our idea was to pool research and resources, and avoid duplication of efforts by women who previously were unaware of their common needs and interests.

Index Recruitment
and Organizational Meeting
Thursday at 7 p.m.
Index Office
401 Student Union

Coffee
TEA
AND SPICE

CAMBRIDGE TEA AND SPICE
50% off everything except food & selected items
126 MAIN St. Northampton

Massachusetts Society of Professors
American Association of University Professors

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 8th
Speaker David Bartley
(Massachusetts House of Representatives)

Senator John Olver
Representative James Collins
Representative Edward McColgan
at
CAMPUS CENTER 1003
4:30 p.m. - 6:30 p.m.
Refreshments will be served

AMHERST, Mass.-Ramsey Clark, civil libertarian and former U.S. Attorney General, will speak on "Amnesty" at 8:30 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 8 in Johnson Chapel, Amherst College. The event is open to the public without charge.

Faculty Union To Be Discussed

Larry Ladd, last year's UMass student body president, will speak tomorrrow noon in the Colonial Lounge on the subject, "A Faculty Union: Students Are the Victims." The program will begin at 12:15. Persons are invited to bring a brown bag lunch and eat while they listen and rap.

The program is the first of a new series of public issues discussions entitled "The First Amendment," using the First Amendment rights of the people to free speech and to assembly. The series is being sponsored by the United Christian Foundation.

UCF is sponsoring the series because, according to Thomas Lindeman, UCF staff member, "the university needs a place where people can get together on relatively short notice and discuss important issues with some expert opinion present." Each week the series will feature an opening 15 minutes or so of comments by a speaker, followed by 40 minutes or so of discussion and questions and answers.

Persons having suggestions for future topics and/or speakers are invited to contact Lindeman at 319 Hampshire House, 545-2661 or 545-2789.

The second program in the series, on Thursday, November 15, will be on Arab-Israeli peace talks among U. Mass. Arab and Israeli students and faculty. On November 29 Fergus Clydesdale of the U. Mass. Food Science and Technology Dept. will talk on economy diets.

the
HATCH
COFFEEHOUSE brings you fine
entertainment
every Wednesday
this week featuring DON STOVER
AND THE WHITE OAK MOUNTAIN BOYS
JACK TOTTLE - mandolin
HERBIE APPLIN - guitar
BOB DEVONCOURT - bass
CARL ROBELLO - fiddle
plus others
with "Henri" as MC
9:00 P.M. ~ 1:00 a.m.
hatch cafeteria
free!

Finast
FIRST NATIONAL STORES
Prices in This Ad Effective thru Nov. 10

CHECK THESE BUDGET STRETCHER VALUES

Center Cut Chuck
Steak or Roast
USDA CHOICE
Bone In
69c lb
Cut just the way you and your family like it. . .
So tender and juicy!

1st Cut Chuck Steak
USDA CHOICE
Bone In 59c lb

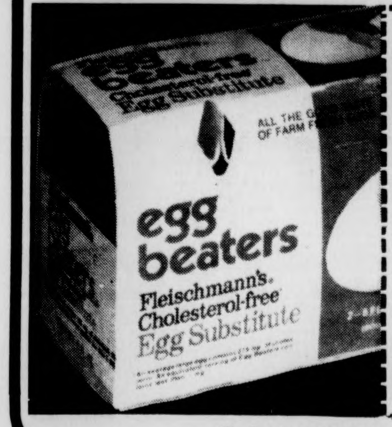
California
Steak or Roast
Semi-Boneless Chuck
89c lb

Finast
Sweet Butter
Quarters 1 lb pkg
69c
WITH THIS COUPON
and $5 purchase
Limit one
FN Valid thru Nov. 10
Finast



Fleischmann's
Egg Beaters
Egg Substitute 16 oz pkg
69c
WITH THIS COUPON
and $5 purchase
Limit one
FN Valid thru Nov. 10
Finast

We Reserve the Right to Limit Quantities

Second Robeson Lecture Tonight

Professor C. L. R. James will deliver the second lecture in the Paul Robeson Lecture Series tonight at 8:00 p.m. at Herter Hall, 231. This distinguished pan-Africanist scholar has written and lectured extensively on history, art and literary criticism. In addition, he has immersed himself in Marxist philosophy, economic analysis, problems of development in Third World countries, and problems of the working class in industrialized nations.

Professor James is presently teaching at Rutgers University in Newark, and Federal City College in Washington, D.C. He has been working on a biography of his long-time political associate and personal friend George Padmore, and his autobiography. Both Mr. James and Mr. Padmore were born in Trinidad at the turn of the century, and they have been significant forces in the Pan-African movement. They were instrumental, together with Dr. W. E. B. DuBois and Dr. Kwame Nkhrumah, in organizing the Fifth Pan-African Congress in 1945 in Manchester, England.

Mr. James has known Mr. Paul Robeson since the 1930's and they have been close associates in the working class movement and the struggle against colonialism and racial injustice. They collaborated on a play on the life of Toussaint L'Overture which Mr. James wrote and Mr. Robeson produced and played the role of Toussaint.

Professor C. L. R. James has written several articles on the man, Paul Robeson, and his insights into Mr. Robeson's tremendous contribution to our culture are invaluable. The lecture promises to be exciting, intellectually stimulating and provocative as a contemporary of Paul Robeson will attempt to sift through the complexities of twelfth century politics, art and culture.

This lecture is being co-sponsored by Central Area Government and the Third World Center of the Central Area. Their sponsorship reflects the thrust of area governments in addressing peoples. The Paul Robeson lecture and concert series has been designed and coordinated by Professors Max Roach and Archie Shepp in an effort to delineate Mr. Robeson's great contribution to the creative process. The public is invited.

OPENING SOON
Mister Donut
at
MT. FARMS MALL
Rt. 9 (Russell St.)
Hadley
Open 24 hrs. per day

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

The planet Mercury rules the Air sign Gemini and the Earth sign Virgo. This relationship may seem paradoxical, but actually there is a valid reason since both signs typify thoughts and ideas. Gemini has jurisdiction over abstract and mental concepts, while Virgo has control over the concrete and practical application of the intellect.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Avoid needless spending. Some things have to be removed and replaced. Demand verification of facts. Key is confidence, forthright attitude. Cancer and Libra individuals could play dynamic roles. Family member needs special consideration.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Don't be sidetracked by a superficial individual. Keep on solid ground, not rose-mist wonderland. A desire is fulfilled in a roundabout way. Know what to ask for when asked. Come out of shell. Welcome wholesome challenges.

GEMINI (May 21- June 20): Original methods are most likely to succeed. Broaden inspirational horizons. Build on a solid base. Gain shown through velvet tact. Trust inner sentinel. You hold the aces. Ghosts of the past should be dismissed. Virgo and Scorpio prominent today.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Taurus and Pisces people could be in the picture. Persons who try to fox you are in for a sharp awakening. Know the needs of family. Highlight security. Sign no legal documents. Don't press luck. Time is your ally. Look ahead with hope.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your ability to overcome trying problems put to the test. Display ingenuity and resourcefulness. Hold gains previously made. Prudent action protects. Revel in self-discovery. The past is past and the immediate future looks bright.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Obtain hint from Taurus message. Probe for useful answers. Reject superficiality in word and deed. News of a legacy may be in offing. Answer belated mail. Be expressive but without arrogance. Take nothing for granted. Make up for lost time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Wait. Think. Don't give up something for nothing. Dispel illusion. If you are tempted to take a flyer in the stock market, think twice. Though bored, do not reach for excitement. A flexible attitude helps negate a troublesome domestic situation.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Resist temptation to nurse old hurts, grudges. Avoid schemes that promise quick success. Don't seek the limelight, your effectiveness lies in backing up those in high places. Glamorization or decoration is better deferred.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Avoid one who is dashing with a devil-may-care approach. Real estate comes up for mature discussion. Hold off a trip if you can. Learn by listening. Falling out with friends should be regarded as temporary. Love has a price tag.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your psychic mind works overtime and accurately. Promises are made, broken and revised. Get perspective where ambitions are involved. Older person, perhaps of your sign, plays a prominent part. Relegate the past to limbo.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Look forward and backward. Avoid wishful thinking. Let others know you are familiar with score. Get rid of burden not of your making. Follow through on appointments. One who depends on you confides a dilemma. Expect to be busy.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Keep health resolutions. If single, question of marriage could be paramount. If married, domestic adjustment is highlighted. Visit one confined to home, hospital. Seek fresh viewpoints and interests. Social pace accelerates.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY this is a power-plus year with March, July and November your most significant months in 1974. The opposite sex finds you most attractive. Money will be on the upgrade. Recent setbacks reversed before long. Have confidence.

Copyright 1973, Gen. Fea. Corp.

Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS

1 Fur scarf
4 Conjunction
6 Strip of leather
11 Pressing
13 Ached
15 Compass point
16 Part of flower (pl.)
18 Sun god
19 A state (abbr.)
21 Island off Ireland
22 Ireland
24 Girl's name
26 Take one's part
28 Superlative ending
29 Give extreme unction to 31 Secluded valley
33 Pronoun
34 Hail
36 Foray
38 Quiet!
40 Disturbance
42 Pertaining to Norway
45 Garden tool
47 Chimney carbon
49 Midday
50 Girl's name
52 Labor
54 River in Italy
55 Teutonic deity
56 Arbor
59 A continent (abbr.)
61 Female relative
63 Tour
65 Portions of medicine
66 Compass point
67 Before

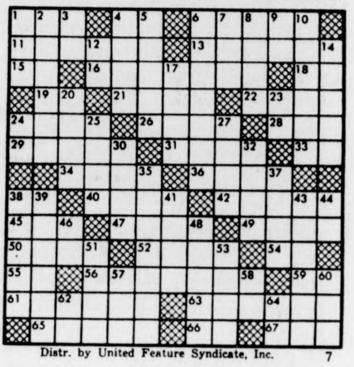
DOWN

1 Baker's product
2 A state
3 Symbol for silver
4 Pilaster
5 Heavenly bodies
6 Squanderer
7 Sunburn
8 Ascend
9 Indefinite article
10 Die
12 Plural ending
14 Italian poet
17 Servant
20 Fish sauce
23 Note of scale
24 A state (abbr.)
25 Winglike
27 Verve
30 Ancient district in Greece
32 King of beasts
35 Plunderers
37 Let fall
38 Recoils
39 Frightful
41 Instrument
43 Earlier
44 Printer's measure
46 Printer's measure
48 Inclines
51 Unit of Siamese currency (pl.)
53 Unit of Italian currency (pl.)
57 Female ruff
58 A continent (abbr.)
60 Beverage
62 Conjunction
64 Brother of Odin

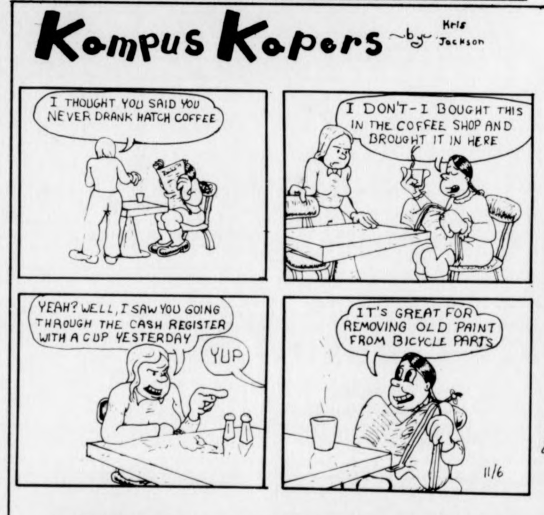
Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

T	E	E		A	B	A	T	E		S	O	W
A	L	B		N	O	N	E	S		E	R	E
B	I	O	L	O	G	Y		C	I	V	E	T
		N	O	N	E		E	A	S	E
I	B	I	S		Y	A	P	P	I	N	G	S
N	A	T	T	Y		S	E	E	S		I	T
A	T	E		E	T	H	E	R		B	A	A
N	O		P	A	R	E		S	W	A	N	K
E	N	T	E	R	I	N	G		A	N	T	E
		O	S	L	O		R	A	N	K
H	A	N	O	I		M	A	R	T	I	N	S
A	R	E		N	A	I	V	E		N	E	E
G	A	S		G	A	L	E	S		G	O	A

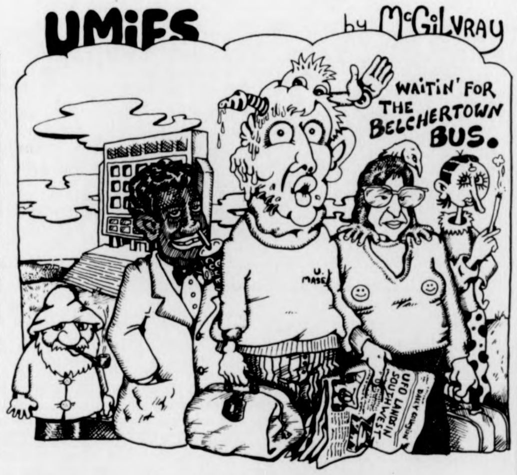
7



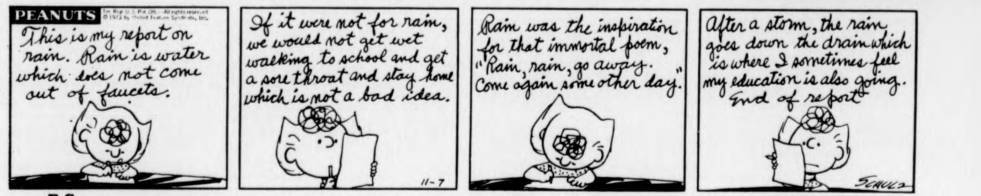
Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 7



Kompus Kopers ~by~ Kris Jackson
I THOUGHT YOU SAID YOU NEVER DRANK HATCH COFFEE
I DON'T - I BOUGHT THIS IN THE COFFEE SHOP AND BROUGHT IT IN HERE
YEAH? WELL, I SAW YOU GOING THROUGH THE CASH REGISTER WITH A CUP YESTERDAY
YUP
IT'S GREAT FOR REMOVING OLD PAINT FROM BICYCLE PARTS
11/6

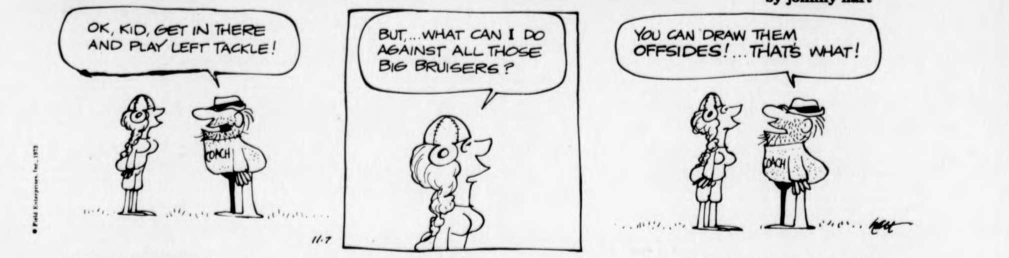


UMiES
by McGiLVRAY
WAITIN' FOR THE BELCHERTOWN BUS.
U. MASS
DAILY COLLEGIAN
UFO LANDS IN SOUTHWEST



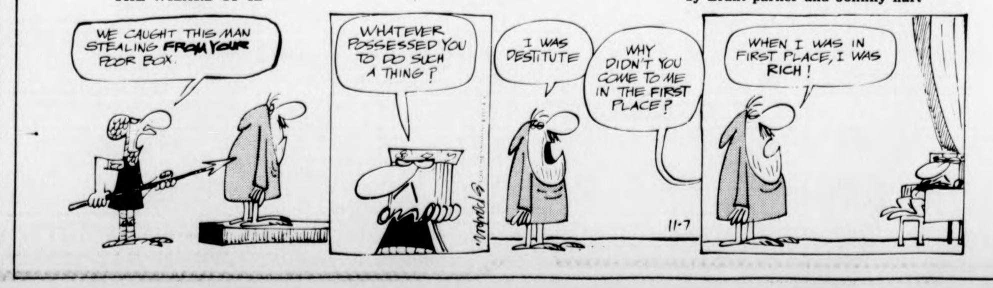
PEANUTS
This is my report on rain. Rain is water which does not come out of faucets.
If it were not for rain, we would not get wet walking to school and get a sore throat and stay home which is not a bad idea.
11-7
Rain was the inspiration for that immortal poem, "Rain, rain, go away. Come again some other day."
After a storm, the rain goes down the drain which is where I sometimes feel my education is also going. End of report
SCHULZ

B.C. by johnny hart



OK, KID, GET IN THERE AND PLAY LEFT TACKLE!
COACH
11-7
BUT,...WHAT CAN I DO AGAINST ALL THOSE BIG BRUISERS?
YOU CAN DRAW THEM OFFSIDES!...THAT'S WHAT!
COACH
hart

THE WIZARD OF ID by Brant parker and Johnny hart



WE CAUGHT THIS MAN STEALING FROM YOUR POOR BOX.
WHATEVER POSSESSED YOU TO DO SUCH A THING?
I WAS DESTITUTE
WHY DIDN'T YOU COME TO ME IN THE FIRST PLACE?
11-7
WHEN I WAS IN FIRST PLACE, I WAS RICH! parker

Notices

AIKIDO
Weds. and Fri. 6:30-8:30 p.m., Sun. 2:30-4:30 p.m., Boyden Gym, Wrestling Rm. All welcome.

BAHA'I FIRESIDE
An informal talk on the Baha'i Faith tonight. Relevent subjects concerning today's world and the teachings of Baha'u'llah. All are welcome. 7:30 p.m., C.C. 802.

BICYCLE CLUB WORKSHOP
Tonight at 7 p.m. in C.C. 805-809 we'll have a workshop on changing a tire--start simple.

BONNIE AND CLUDE
Will be shown Friday at 7, 9, and 11 p.m. in Mahar. Come on and see it. You'll enjoy a great movie.

BOXING CLUB
Meeting open to new members, beginners welcomed. Meets T. and Th. 7-9, 19th Washington. Planning trip to Spfld. Th. to observe Golden Glove Practice. For info call Dana 549-0899 eves. or come to meeting.

CAREERS CONFERENCE
Seminars scheduled hourly from 9-4:30 p.m. today. Come and hear speakers from business and other organizations talk about possible business careers for you. Rm. 163-4 C.C.

CENTRAL AREA COUNSELING
Got an academic problem? Maybe we can help. Come on down. B2 Gorman House. Mon.-Fri. 1-9, Thurs. 10-9. Call 5-0894.

CHESS INSTRUCTION
Lecture tonight "How to Reason in Chess" 7:30 in C.C. 165-169. Free!

COLLEGIATE FLYING CLUB
Meeting tonight in C.C. 803 at 7:30. Presentation on AC Performance and Leaning Techniques. Refreshments.

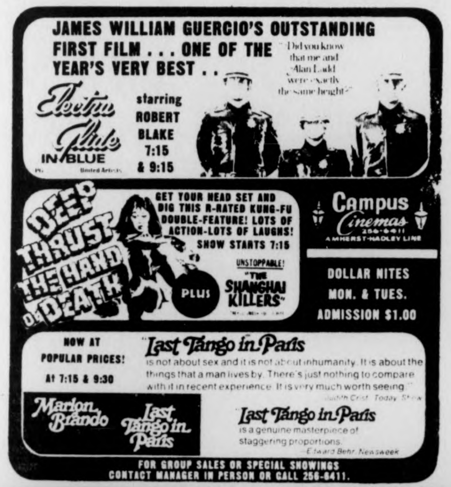
COMMUTER ASSEMBLY MEETING
Will meet tonight at 5:15 in Commuter Lounge. All are welcome.

COMMUTERS
There will be a Happy Hour for Commuters at Phi Sigma Kappa on Fri. 11-9. Rock and Roll and Trivia contests from 1-? p.m. Look for ad to appear later.

CO-ED
All University men and women are invited to informal rushes at SAM, Weds. 11-7, or Thurs. 11-8 at 8:00 p.m. 387 N. Pleasant St. 545-0845. Refreshments.

DAY OF LEARNING
The Catholic and the University is the theme of the program sponsored by the Newman Club, Sunday, 11-11 from 2-5 in the afternoon. Talks and discussions will be followed by a special liturgy.

(Continued on P. 21)



JAMES WILLIAM GUERCIO'S OUTSTANDING FIRST FILM . . . ONE OF THE YEAR'S VERY BEST . .
"Did you know that me and Alan Ladd were exactly the same height?"
Electra Glide in Blue
starring ROBERT BLAKE 7:15 & 9:15
DEEP THRUST THE HAND OF DEATH
GET YOUR HEAD SET AND DIG THIS R-RATED KUNG-FU DOUBLE-FEATURE! LOTS OF ACTION-LOTS OF LAUGHS! SHOW STARTS 7:15
PLUS UNSTOPPABLE! "THE SHANGHAI KILLERS"
Campus Cinemas 256-6411 AMHERST-HADLEY LINE
DOLLAR NITES MON. & TUES. ADMISSION $1.00
NOW AT POPULAR PRICES! At 7:15 & 9:30
Last Tango in Paris is not about sex and it is not about inhumanity. It is about the things that a man lives by. There's just nothing to compare with it in recent experience. It is very much worth seeing." —Judith Crist, Today Show
Marlon Brando Last Tango in Paris
Last Tango in Paris is a genuine masterpiece of staggering proportions. —Edward Behr, Newsweek
FOR GROUP SALES OR SPECIAL SHOWINGS CONTACT MANAGER IN PERSON OR CALL 256-6411.

TONIGHT
"FRITZ THE CAT"
7 & 9 p.m.
CCA 75¢
Plus PINK PANTHER SHORT

4TH ANNUAL NEW ENGLAND STUDENT FILM FESTIVAL

The principal forum for student filmmakers in New England.
Screenings in Academic Bldg. I
8:00 Friday and Saturday evenings
1:30 Saturday afternoon
A special screening of films selected for ACADEMY AWARD nominations and film touring package to colleges and museums throughout the country will be held on Sunday evening at 8:00.

Tickets $1.50 per show
November 9, 10 & 11
Hampshire College
Amherst, Mass.

The Firesign Theaters Film
ZACHARIAH
a rock western satire with Country Joe & The Fish - New York Rock & Roll Esemble - Elvin Jones - Doug Kershaw - Firesign Friends - Roadrunner cartoons.
Sat., Nov. 10 at 7-9-11 in Mahar Aud.

HITCHCOCK'S
"THE BIRDS"
THURSDAY, NOV. 8th MAHAR
7:00, 9:15, 11:30 50¢

MDC CLASSIFIEDS

HELP WANTED

Innovative persons to teach undereducated adults, inner city dropouts, Spanish speaking and Indian children in the U.S. Must be able to work outside traditional, classroom. If you're a senior getting a degree in education, English, languages, Sociology, etc, talk to a VISTA representative in the Placement Office on Nov. 5-9. tf11-8

In your job search, you'll run across all kinds of glossy pages and promises that so-and-so company wants graduates with liberal arts degrees. Last year's seniors who chose either VISTA or Peace Corps ARE AT WORK in hundreds of projects both here and in 59 countries overseas. Teaching English as a foreign language; working in tuberculosis control programs, smallpox, and malaria eradication projects; acting as agricultural extension agents; developing alternative schools; counseling in drug crisis centers and many more. Demand for these assignments is, of course, great. It's extremely important for you to apply before December. To underscore this, VISTA & Peace Corps representatives will be here during this semester only; on Nov. 5-9 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., go to the Placement Office and sign up for an interview. tf11-9

Teach Math & Science where the Earth is flat rocks are evil, and turtles are sacred. As a Peace Corps teacher, you'll get some tough questions like: How does the turtle Vishnu swimming in his sea of milk and pushing up the tree of life fit into your theories of the world, Mr. Bob? You don't put legends like these down because they are a vital part of your student's culture. One of the challenges of teaching Math & Science in a devloping country is to create acceptance for these subjects within the frame work of ancient traditions. A Peace Corps, VISTA representative will be in the Placement Office on Nov. 5-9. Sign up now for an interview. tf11-8

Jobs for French & Spanish Majors — Spanish speakers to work as VISTA's in barrios in the Southwest & as Peace Corps teachers & resource people in Latin America. French speakers to work in African Franchophone countries with Peace Corps. These are positions of responsibility and sensitivity. Talk to a representaive in the Placement Office on Nov. 5-9. Sign up for an interview. tf11-8

HELP WANTED

Collegian is looking for an Asst. Advertising Manager. Job involves supervising ad reps & building advt. revenue. Must be an underclassmen, with car, & a genuine interest in newspaper advt. Experience in marketing & graphics helpful but not essential. Will have to work hard for small pay but the rewards in experience will be invaluable. Person hired will be trained to become the advertising manager for next year. For details and information see Brent Wilkes at the Collegian Office. tf11-16

Jobs in Business Consulting — Frequently the difference between a margical & a going business in the inability of the former to hire consultants. Business graduates working for VISTA & Peace Corps are helping to change that situation. If you have a BBA, MBA or MPA, you should look in to VISTA & Peace Corps. It's experience you'll get with no other organization. A representative will be in the Placement Office on October 11 & 12. Sign up now for an interview. tf11-8

Civil Engineers, Overseas: to advise on dam construction, irrigation systems, water works. At home: to prepare cost estimates on housing, develop funding proposals, review architect's plans, etc. Peace Corps - VISTA engineers get much more responsiblity and experience than their peers who go to work for private engineering firms. Talk to a representative in the Placement Office on Nov. 5-9, sign up today for an interview. tf11-8

VISTA & Peace Corps have hundreds of job openings for seniors. From Agriculture to Zoology. Get experience you can find in no other organization. Reps will be in Placement Office soon. Sign up now in Placement for an interview. tf11-9

Nurses. If you're graduating soon and want to break away from the regiment of training for a year or two, talk to VISTA & Peace Corps, a representative will be in the Placement Office on Nov. 5-9. Sign up today for an interview. tf11-8

HELP WANTED

While organized recreation is generally regarded as frivolous in this country, the reverse is true in most developing nations. As a Peace Corps volunteer you will develop programs, train teachers, teach coaching techniques, coach national teams. You'll be regarded as someone with an important skill to share. Get more information. Peace Corps will be in the Placement Office on Nov. 5-9. Sign up now for an interview. tf11-8

Students pt. time & full time available, apply in person United Paper Box, 528 Water St., Foot of Cabot, Holyoke, Ma. tf11-12

2nd or 3rd year language major male, need $20. 1 hr. work? Call Dave 256-0305. tf11-10

Student Employmt in Yellowstone & all US Nat'l Parks. Send for booklet $2, Arnold Agency A206 E Main, Rexburg, Idaho, guaranteed. tf11-9

Poster Stuffers for Hampshire County area. Car is preferable but not necessary. Call Dave. For Friday and Sat. 256-0236.

Waitresses, Doormen apply in person Timothy's Spirits Company, 30 John St., Holyoke, 538-9700. tf11-13

Full time for Book & Record Store. Apply in person on Nov. 8, 9, 10 at Soundsope Mountain Farms Mall, Hadley Rt 9. tf11-12

Audio Dept. mgr. know your audio components? See us for Dynamite Position w/growing chain. Soundscope Mountain in Frm Mall, Rt. 9, HA. tf11-12

Rock Bands wanted for work immediately. Call 247-5155, Country House. tf11-9

Part time Xerox Machine Operator. Apply at Gnomon Copy Service, 103 N. Pleasant St. tf11-8

PERSONAL

Mara Becker please call me about photos. John 536-5243. tf11-7

Futre CPA's learn how to prepare for the CPA Exam. Becker CPA Review Course. Call collect 617-536-1440. tf11-22

I love Fellini, Costa-Gravras, Bogart, Daffy-Duck, Kubrick, Orson W. — U. Art 111. tf11-7

Do you spend precious time hitching to a part time job to help support a messy roommate who eats your food, blasts hard rock, interrupts your privacy? If you can be a neat, quiet, conscientious housekeeper & cook in an older home, you can change your environment to a private room with board. 549-0641. tf11-9

Support your local bus driver. tf11-12

5 Coll. Canada ski trip — 4 days, 3 nites. Hotel, breakfast, dinner. Transportation Apres ski party, all for $85. Jan. 22-25. B. Baggins Travel, 256-0146. tf11-15

Hey Pancho (Alias HBBP)! Have I ever told you how much I love you? If you pay your 3 pesos I might. Happy 3rd Love Lucy. tf11-7

14th Floor Wash. wants to go coed. Interested girl floors call 546-9126. tf11-8

Dearest Wagface Clearhead, Happy Bday! I hope your 20th year is as fun as you've made mine. Sorry I'm late. Love, Pigboy. tf11-7

Ollie — I knew you had a sore shoulder, but why am I getting the cold one? tf11-7

The Motley Crew — Are you sure you're living on the right lane? Just wondering . . tf11-7

Unwed mother desires adoption of two childre. One male and one female, both tiger angora. Will deliver if necessary. Call 253-9668. tf11-13

SERVICES

Photos — passports, visas, etc., 48 hour service! Sizes and number negotiable. $3.00 minimum! Call Steve at 546-5443. tf11-30

Get a load off your mind. Truck for hire, call Gary or Joyce, 256-6376. tf11-7

Research — thousands of topics, $2.75 per page. Send $1 for mail order catalog. Research assistance, inc. 11941 Wilshire Blvd., Suite 2, L.A., Calif. 90025. tf12-12

SPEED TYPIST
In Ware, at Collegian printer.
8:30 p.m.-1:00 a.m.
Call Charlotte
967-6888

Typing — dissertations, theses, term papers etc. Fast, accurate, references, IBM Selectric, good rates, call Tom 546-1165. tf11-12

Experienced electronic and electrical repairs. Reasonable rates. Call 545-2308, Mark 415 or Bill 401. Keep trying. tf11-15

FOR RENT

Room for rent or in exchange for child care five miles from campus. Call Joanne 549-0665. tf11-9

Apt for one — Avlbl. imm. lg brm, sm kit, full bath, storage, pkg. 220 N. Pleasant, 2 nd fl of lg house. All utl. incl. $145. 549-3736, 253-8742. tf11-14

Free rent for Nov., if take my place in eff. apt. ctr Amh., rest of sem. $67.50 Dec., two weeks Jan., share w/one woman 256-0561, no deposit. tf11-9

Cliffside Apt. available now — 1 bedrm. June lease, call 665-4205, today. tf11-7

TRAVEL

Going by air? Let us handle your pre-flight, in-flight and post-flight arrangements at no cost to you. Call campus rep., 253-3162 evenings. tf12-12

Notices (cont.)

(Continued from P. 20)

DESIGN STUDENTS
Interior design students organizational meeting Weds. 11-7 Skinner Lounge, 7:30 p.m. Important. Please attend.

DVP MEETING
Tonight 11-7 at 6:00 in 901 C.C.

FINNISH LANGUAGE CLUB
Will meet in C.C. 901, Nov. 8 7:30-9:00. Everyone welcome.

FOOD SCIENCE AND NUTRITION CLUB
Meeting on Thurs. at 7:30 p.m. in 217 Chenoweth. Planning Wine and Cheese Tasting party and Christmas Party. All Grads and Undergrads invited.

ISRAELI DANCING
Tonight and every Weds. night--Israeli Dancing, with instruction, 7:30-10:30 in Cape Cod Lounge of S.U.

JAPANESE AMERICAN CLUB
Planning meeting today, Colonial Lounge S.U. 3:30-5:30 p.m.

MOTORCYCLIST
Meeting tonight, C.C. 911 at 7 p.m. All interested in trial riding, enduro's, motocross or street riding should come. We'll start discussing plans for the spring.

POLITICAL SCIENCE
Happy hour for all Pol. Sci. Faculty, Grad students and undergrads, C.C. 1003 Today, 4:00-6:00.

PRE-MED
Peter Rappo, a graduate of UMass and now a senior at U of Vermont Med. School will be available to discuss getting into Med. School at 8:00 p.m. Weds. C.C. 917.

PSYCH STUDENTS
"Course Counseling Bonanza" tonight, Weds. 7:00-10:00 p.m. Colonial Lounge S.U. Find out what Psych courses are right for your needs.

SCUBA CLUB
Meeting tonight, Curry Hicks Rm. 14, 7 p.m. to plan dive with Lowell Tech Dive Club. Nomination for officers. Bring bathing suits.

SKI CLUB MEETING
A movie will be shown and instructions will be given on ski care. You can buy memberships and ski association passes. The meeting will be held in Thompson 104 at 8 p.m. tonight 11-7.

STRATEGY GAMES CLUB
Avalon Hill players; meeting Weds. 6 p.m. in C.C. 103. All newcomers welcome.

STUDENTS OF OBJECTIVISM
Anyone interested in Ayn Rand's philosophy is invited to meet in 903 C.C. at 7:30 Thurs.

UMASS CREW CLUB
Meeting of all club members on Sunday 11-11 at 6:30 p.m. in C.C. 917.

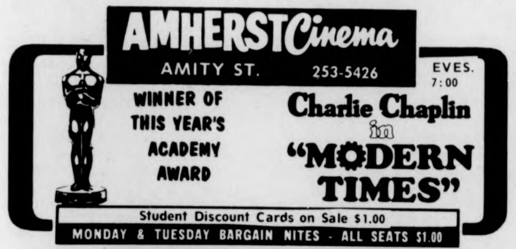
UNITED CHRISTIAN FOUNDATION
Public relations task force meeting at 9:30 a.m. on Thurs.--people interested in writing, design, layout etc...invited.

LOST
Organic Chemistry by Morrison and Boyd, 3rd ed. Reward! Call 545-0620 or 584-9574 and ask for Wells Magargeal.

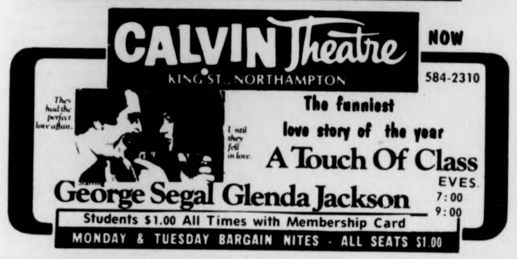
FOUND
C.E. statics notebook w. yellow pages in Phys. Sci. Library on 11-5, now at Phys. Sci. Lib. Res. Desk.

Vitamin C termpaper rough draft, across from Worcester Dining and N. Pleasant on Monday. Call Sue 549-6690.

In Lincoln Apts. orange tabby cat with white paws and white from nose to belly. Wearing red leather collar with bells. Call 253-3254.

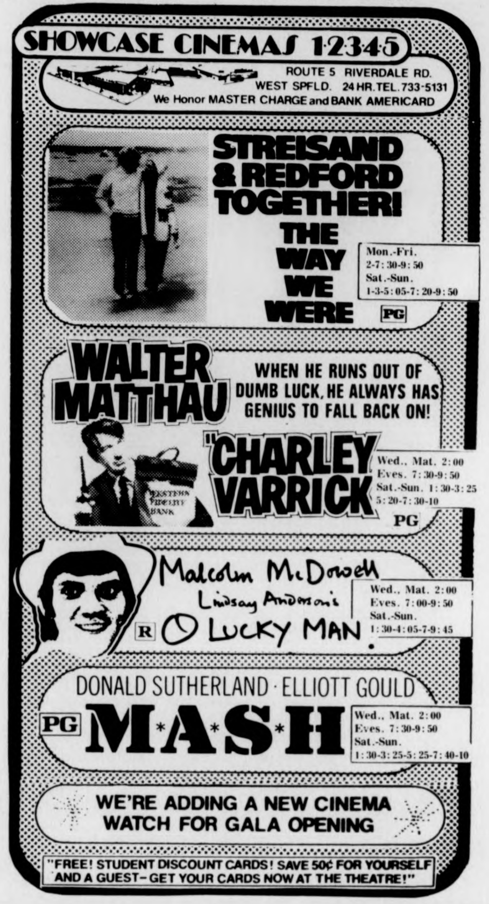


AMHERST Cinema AMITY ST. 253-5426
EVES. 7:00
WINNER OF THIS YEAR'S ACADEMY AWARD
Charlie Chaplin in "MODERN TIMES"
Student Discount Cards on Sale $1.00
MONDAY & TUESDAY BARGAIN NITES - ALL SEATS $1.00



CALVIN Theatre KING ST., NORTHAMPTON
NOW 584-2310
They had the perfect love affair. Until they fell in love.
The funniest love story of the year
A Touch Of Class
starring George Segal Glenda Jackson
EVES. 7:00 9:00
Students $1.00 All Times with Membership Card
MONDAY & TUESDAY BARGAIN NITES - ALL SEATS $1.00

AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
ACADEMY OF MUSIC
NORTHAMPTON
NOW - 5 Days Only! at 7:15 & 9:00
a FRANCOIS TRUFFAUT film
starring BERNADETTE LAFONT
Such a Gorgeous Kid Like Me
This Film Ends Sun.
No Dollar Night



SHOWCASE CINEMAS 1·2·3·4·5
ROUTE 5 RIVERDALE RD. WEST SPFLD. 24 HR. TEL. 733-5131
We Honor MASTER CHARGE and BANK AMERICARD
STREISAND & REDFORD TOGETHER! THE WAY WE WERE PG
Mon.-Fri. 2-7:30-9:50 Sat.-Sun. 1-3-5:05-7:20-9:50
WALTER MATTHAU WHEN HE RUNS OUT OF DUMB LUCK, HE ALWAYS HAS GENIUS TO FALL BACK ON! "CHARLEY VARRICK" PG
Wed., Mat. 2:00 Eves. 7:30-9:50 Sat.-Sun. 1:30-3:25 5:20-7:30-10
Malcolm McDowell Lindsay Anderson's R O LUCKY MAN
Wed., Mat. 2:00 Eves. 7:00-9:50 Sat.-Sun. 1:30-4:05-7-9:45
DONALD SUTHERLAND · ELLIOTT GOULD PG M*A*S*H
Wed., Mat. 2:00 Eves. 7:30-9:50 Sat.-Sun. 1:30-3:25-5:25-7:40-10
WE'RE ADDING A NEW CINEMA WATCH FOR GALA OPENING
"FREE! STUDENT DISCOUNT CARDS! SAVE 50¢ FOR YOURSELF AND A GUEST-GET YOUR CARDS NOW AT THE THEATRE!"

MDC CLASSIFIEDS

FOR SALE

Tires — All brands, Radials, Snows — All types, guaranteed lowest prices. Call 546-8362 after 6. tf11-12

Hallicrafters SW Radio . .5-30 MHZ, AM, CW, SSB. Mint cond., orig. cost $200. Make me an offer. Call Fred 253-7890. Keep trying. tf11-9

Stereo Buffs! If you want name brand stereo equip matched and sold to you at wholesale prices, call Dick at 253-2786, after 6. tf11-9

S & L Camera Imports has new cameras, lenses & other photo equip. at slashed prices. Full warranty, all makes and models. Call Ken, 6-9723. tf11-30

Panasonic Port. TV. Brand new! $70; Receiver 20 watts Ch. $80. Call 546-5271 or 546-5261. tf11-12

Tape deck — Sony TC366, new cond., $160; movie camera — Yashica super 800E, new cond., $60. X-Country skis, poles for person 6 ft., new cond., $35. X-Country boots, 9 1/2, new cond., $15. Sneakers — Converse, hi, black, new $10. Hike boots — Dunham Tyrol, new cond., $10. All prices negotiable. Call Rich, 367-2880. tf11-7

Pot-belly stove (Globe), in perfect condition with removable top plate & foot warmer lip. 4 ft. high, cast iron. Call after 6 p.m., 586-2020. tf11-7

35mm Pentax Spotmatic camera — 55mm F1.4 lens, Weston light meter, case, top condition, 1½ years old. $160. Stuart, 1-283-9731. tf11-9

Toyo 8-track recorder-player with 9 push buttons, 2 VU meters, auto-level control, list $139, will sell for $80. 256-6271 evenings. tf11-9

Vivitar 105mm, f2.8 Soligor 200mm, f3.5 lenses. Nikon mount 2 and 3 years old. Asking $45 and $55. Call Ben, 256-9395. tf11-8

Sony 6065 Receiver 7? watts RMS per channel, just 7 mos. old. $300. Call 253-5393. tf11-8

FOR SALE

The Arms Race: A 1 credit Minicourse, Phyics 190D. No prereq. MWF 11:15, HAS 124, Nov. 12 - Dec. 12. Call Prof. Guyer, 545-0933 for details. tf11-14

Kenwood Receiver KR-77, mint condition 34 watts RMS per channel, excellent tuner section, call Rich 6-8981 after 6:30. tf11-9

Discount stereo equip. and pocket calculators. Special! 12" 4-way air susp. speaks. Reg. $300 pr. NOW $175 pr. Barry 6-6085 eve. tf11-12

Twin bed 4 sale bedboard incl. 665-3821, after 5. tf11-8

2 Twin Orphan Goodyear studded snow tires, 7.00-13, need kind, loving home. Adoption fee is $15 for pair. Phone # of Agency 546-7595. tf11-7

Austin Healey 3000, 1960 fully restored. Call 665-4182. tf11-13

AUTO FOR SALE

1967 V.W. Squareback. Needs transmission, will sell for parts, has inspections sticker, good engine and body. Make offer, call Dave 549-0353. tf11-7

1970 Rebel Machine, 4 speed Hurst 390 engine, excellent running cond. $1600. Call 546-5271 or 546-5261. tf11-12

9 passenger Dodge, 1970 wagon, doorgate, air, 318 V-8, 40,000 mi., excellent mech. & body. Must see, $1,700, will bargain. 665-3222. tf11-7

1972 Datsun 510, 2 dr., auto, radio, 15,000 mi., rustproofed, snowtires with rims, $1,700 or best offer. Call after 5 p.m., 267-3984. tf11-7

1964 VW, good condition, $150. Ask for Tom, 549-1506 after 5 p.m. tf11-16

1967 Barracuda, smashed front end, 383 4-speed, Mallory distributor, new starter, motor, $225 takes it. Sandy, 584-2019. tf11-16

AUTO FOR SALE

1972 Javelin SST, must sell quickly, moving to NYC, V-8 auto., p.s., radio-tape, 4 new tires and snows, $1,500 or best offer. Call 253-9668. tf11-9

1969 Cortina, new shocks, rebuilt trans., needs brake work, $300. 546-4572. tf11-9

Stick six Pontiac, good heater, sticker, $325; Porsche conv., needs work, best offer; Saab 965, $400. 323-7327. tf11-8

1968 VW Bug, many miles but runs well, asking $400. 549-0102 at dinnertime. tf11-9

1965 Inter. Travelall, new clutch, 6 great tires (2 snows), 4 on floor, huge heater, new front brakes. Incredible deal for $525. Call 549-1528, David. tf11-7

71 Willys Jeep CJ5 w/plow, roll bar, radio, oversize tires, back seat. $2800 or deal on VW keep trying. 782-3808, I need $. tf11-9

1966 Cutlass Supr. p.s, p.b., very good condition. Call 367-2771. tf11-16

For sale — 65 VW Bus reblt. eng., gas heater, new bat., starter ect. Must sell imed. First $325 or best off. 665-2381 aft. 5, p.s. very clean body. tf11-9

1967 Volvo 1225, good running condition, new tires. Best offer. Call 1-369-4395. Keep trying. tf11-9

WANTED

5 to 6 bedroom house in Wendell, 2 kitchens, 2 bathrooms, full cellar with fireplace. 256-8896. tf11-12

Late 60's Valiant or Dart, pref. 6 cyl., must be in excellent condition, up to $1,000 for right car. 546-4572. tf11-9

Commuter Assembly is now taking applications for its rep. to SU-CC, Gov Bd., see someone in Commuter Lounge. Behind Hatch. tf11-9

Room in house or apt desired by senior woman for next semester. Please call Gail at 617-963-8073 or call Barbara at 546-6672. tf11-7

ENTERTAINMENT

Need a band? Call Stan's Bands, represents all area groups. For musical entertainment call 256-0316. tf11-7

Hey groovy guys and gals — I can play your favorite music just the way you like it. Call Steve the D.J. for your party, 467-2842. tf11-9

2 Male Vocalists, playing acous. & elec. guitars & flute, seek indiv. Ms/Mr with good technique & improv. ability on piano, pref. (not necess) capable of singing high range harmonies, to perform orig. & popular music for all aud. We have def. opportunity for work. If interested call 5-2925 ask for Peter in 217/Sean in 214. tf11-9

Bring back those great memories, boogie to your favorite golden oldies. I have the records and the PA. Call me at 536-6075. tf11-12

See a crazy movie this weekend — Zachariah — with the Firesign Theater. Nov. 10, Sat. 7-9-11, Mahar. tf11-9

Female w/good singing voice & violin or recorder? Fairport Convention sound good? Possible money in local clubs — Josh. 584-2238. tf11-8

ROOMMATE WANTED

Roommate wanted for furnished apt. near campus. $100 per month. Lease until May 30. Call 253-9863. tf11-7

Female to share 1 bdrm. Presidential apt, beginning Jan. Semi-furnished, $87.50 - mon., incl. utilities. Call 549-4463. tf11-16

Roommate to share spacious 4 rm. apt., quiet, relaxing atmosphere, $60 per mo. Call after 6 p.m., 527-5466. tf11-9

Roommate wanted for furnished apt. near campus, $100 per month, lease until May 30. Call 253-9863. tf11-7

Roommates needed — three singles, own entrance, interesting neighbors. Call Howie, 256-0643. tf11-9

Neat, responsible female wanted to occupy own room in 4 bdrm apt., starting Jan. 1. $80-mo. incl. utilities. Phone 256-0626 eve. tf11-9

ANNOUNCEMENT

Film festivals that make sense. First run art films and best classics. Popular prices. U. Art 111. tf11-7

MOTORCYCLES FOR SALE

Honda 450 CB '68 Cherry cond. low mi., lugg. rack, chaih, signals, 5spd., elec. start., helmet, Univ. Sticker. Must sell $400. Call 6-4055. tf11-8

WANTED TO RENT

Female grad wants room or apt. (to share) near campus or on bus route, immediately. Call Gini 617-764-8870. tf11-8

ROOM TO RENT

Room for rent $50/per month. Call 256-0687. tf11-13

ROOM WANTED

Young working guy needs a room or would like to share an apt in the Amherst area. Call Bill, 367-2772. tf11-8

RIDE WANTED

Gfld to UMass, in at 8:30, back at 4:30. Gfld Comm. Coll. area. 1 day a wk., usually Tues. Call Lisa 545-2328, will share expense. tf11-8

Ride wanted to NYC on Friday or Saturday, the 9th or 10th. Will share expenses. Please call 253-3139, anytime. tf11-8

LOST & FOUND

Man's wedding band, 16k white gold, KEK-RGG-6-26-71. Contact Bob, Chem. Tower 1311 or call 665-3949. Reward! tf11-8

Harriers Win It For O'B

By WALT POWERS

The date is Monday, November 6, 1972. On a cool, dreary afternoon at Boston's Franklin Park. A group of UMass cross-country runners whom Ken O'Brien has labeled "the best I've ever coached" is running in The New England Championships. At the two mile mark, a pack of five Northeastern runners forge boldly into the lead. Fighting excruciating pain, a pair of UMass sophomores, Randy Thomas and Bill Gillin, surge past them, their momentum carrying them to fourth and fifth place, and a state of exhaustion. After a long recovery period, they speak in tones of exasperation and disappointment. The rest of the UMass team had never seriously challenged the Northeastern pack on their way to a second place finish. For Ken O'Brien, it was a disappointing afternoon.

Cut. Switch to 1973, same day, same place, same event. Northeastern is again the favorite, and they are running almost exactly the same team that won the New Englands a year before. UMass is running three freshmen along with veterans Paul Segersten, Tom Maguire, Bill Gillin, and Randy Thomas. With its infusion of youth, the team is paradoxically stronger. But O'Brien isn't saying anything this time. At the 1 1-2 mile mark, a pack of five Northeastern runners forges boldly into the lead. Fighting excruciating pain, two UMass juniors, Randy Thomas and Bill Gillin surge past them. Their momentum carries them to third and fifth-place finishes, and a state of elation. After a long recovery period, the members of the UMass cross-country team are laughing and congratulating themselves. For Ken O'Brien, learning the bitter lesson of 1972 has resulted in victory in the 1973 New Englands.

Just what exactly was that lesson?

"Aggressiveness wins," said O'Brien. "Northeastern beat us last year simply because they took command early in the race, and we didn't chase them. This year, we concentrated our training on running a fast first three miles. I figured that by going fast against Northeastern, and maintaining contact with them for the first three miles, we could pull away from them on the last two. The results of this strategy were dramatic."

"We've concentrated on aggressive teamwork all season," said co-captain Thomas, "and in the last two weeks it's really paid off. Knowing that we'll have three or four men right behind us in a race takes the pressure off of me and Bill Gillin, and we can run the way we feel. This year, we've been concentrating on maximum team effort at each race, with no set or expected running order. If John McGrail or Tom Maguire feels he can take the lead, he is expected to, even if he finished fifteenth the week before. We feel that if everyone runs his best on a given day, the numbers will take care of themselves."

In winning their third New England championship, the Minutemen outran Northeastern with surprising ease, but the results were no surprise to O'Brien. "Before the race, I thought we had the better team. Unlike last year, we've run consistently all season. We've geared our training to steady weekly improvement, and there was no way we were going to run a poor race. On the other hand, Northeastern had run very erratically all season long, and seemed to hit its peak early in the season. Harvard clobbered them a week ago in the Greater Boston's, and I think they were surprised by the ease in which we won the Yankee Conference," O'Brien noted.

Thomas was quick to point out the significance of Monday's victory--the first UMass New England championship since 1961. "It sets a precedent," he said, "that will benefit our entire program. Our inability to beat Northeastern in the past had bothered us, but now we know we can do it." The victory also gave Thomas and O'Brien a measure of revenge for last year's second place finish. "I've been waiting 365 days for this," said Randy, "but Coach O'Brien's the man we won it for. He's been waiting twelve years for it."

(Staff Photo/Joe Martins)

THE YOUTH — Freshmen Paul Doiron, Chris Farmer, and John McGrail have shown exceptional poise and determination in the UMass drive to the nationals. Here they run in the conference championships.

(Staff Photo/Joe Martins)

THE VETERANS — Bill Gillin, Tom Maguire, and Randy Thomas battle UConn's Bruce Clark in the conference championship. The talented trio, along with senior Paul Segersten, led the Minutemen to their first New England title in twelve years on Monday.

MDC Classifieds Sell

TEN PIN BOWLING
at Boyden Gym
50¢ per string
MONDAY - FRIDAY
4:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m.
(except during league play)

ADVERTISE FREE
Western Massachusetts Only
Super Ad List
FAIR EXCHANGE
A New Ad Weekly
Articles For Sale
by Private Owners
10 per cent of Advertised Price only IF and WHEN you sell
10,000 ACTIVE Buyers
NO DEALER ADS
SPECIAL 2 WEEK OFFER
No Commission Charge 25 word limit —
Ads must be received before Mon. noon, Nov. 19
FAIR EXCHANGE
P.O. Box J
N. Amherst, Mass. 01059
CALL 256-0236
Clip and Mail

Television Tonight

5:30 THE REAL McCOYS "Back To the West Virginny." (18)
THE LUCY SHOW "Lucy and Clint Walker." (22)
HOGAN'S HEROES "Hogan Gives A Birthday Party." (30)
NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS (40)
5:55 WHAT'S HAPPENING UPDATE (3)
6:00 NEWS (3) (8) (22)
I SPY "Suitable For Framing." (18)
ZOOM! (24) (57)
PETTICOAT JUNCTION "Last Train to Pixley." (27)
TO TELL THE TRUTH Garry Moore, host (30)
WILD WILD WEST "Night Of the Amnesiac." (40)
6:30 NEWS (3) (22) (30)
ABC EVENING NEWS (8)
MAKING THINGS GROW (24)
UNTAMED WORLD (27)
LOUIS LYONS: NEWS AND COMMENT (57)
6:55 NEWSBEAT NEWS (40)
7:00 WHAT IN THE WORLD (3)
TRUTH OR CONSEQUENCES Bob Barker, host (8)
DICK VAN DYKE SHOW "Punch Thy Neighbor." (18)
NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS (22) (30)
YOUR FUTURE IS NOW (24)
ABC EVENING NEWS (40)
THE REPORTERS (57)
7:30 THE PRICE IS RIGHT (3)
YOU ASKED FOR IT (8)
GREEN ACRES "Send A Boy To College." (18)
THE HOLLYWOOD SQUARES Peter Marshall, host (22)
THE FRENCH CHEF (24) (57)
ANIMAL WORLD "Love, Animal Style." (30)
[illegible]
8:00 THE SONNY AND CHER COMEDY HOUR (3)
DEAL WITH THE ISSUES (8)
THE CHAMPIONS "The Invisible Man." (18)
ADAM -12 "Training Division." (22) (30)
BILL MOYERS' JOURNAL (24) (27)
BOB AND CAROL AND TED AND ALICE "The Bare Truth Hurts." (40)
8:30 MOVIE "My Darling Daughters' Anniversary." (18) (40)
MYSTERY MOVIE "If Max Is So smart, Why Doesn't He Tell Us Where He Is?" (22) (30)
FAMILY ALBUM (24)
BEHIND THE LINES (57)
9:00 CANNON "Dead Lady's Tears." (3)
THE 700 CLUB (18)
9:30 AT CHESTNUT HILL: MICHIO MAMIYA (24)
ONE OF A KIND (57)
10:00 KOJAK (3)
OWEN MARSHALL, COUNSELOR AT LAW "The Sin of Susan Gentry." (8) (40)
LOVE STORY "Mirabelle's Summer." (22) (30)
BEHIND THE LINES SPECIAL "The Press and Watergate" (24)
EVENING EDITION WITH MARTIN AGRONSKY (57)
10:30 THE LIVING WORD (18)
MANTRAP (27)
BOOK BEAT (57)
11:00 NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS (3) (8) (18) (22) (27) (30) (40)
11:30 MOVIE "The Third Day." (3)
WIDE WORLD OF ENTERTAINMENT (8) (40)
JOHNNY CARSON SHOW (22) (30)
1:00 NEWS (8) (40)
TOMORROW Tom Snyder, host (22) (30)
1:35 NEWS, WEATHER (3)
[illegible]

TONIGHT
OFF THE HOOK at 7:20 p.m.
Art Cohen (bless his heart) hosts this open telephone forum. Call him up and raise issues, ask questions, swap funny stories. Art's at 545-2876.
GAY BREAK at 8:00 p.m.
A prose and poetry reading, including Songs of Sappho and How To Make Love To A Woman If You're A Woman, by Jeannie Orvino. This is followed by a call-in discussion of the purpose of the program.
TOMORROW NIGHT
JANET MOULDING REVIEWS at 7:25 p.m.
Our Divine Ms. M. looks at the Amherst College production of "Indians".
FILM QUOTES AND COMMENTS at 7:30 p.m.
Dr. Tom tells the truth about the film in the area.
WMUA
STEREO 91.1 FM
FREE FORM/INFORMATIVE RADIO

Dave Eibel

I Like Charlie O.

Poor Charlie Finley. If it's not Bowie Kuhn that is on his back, it's the Internal Revenue Service, or Clarence Campbell or his own players. He's given Oakland two straight World Championships in baseball, and still nobody is content. Sure, no one can deny the fact that Finley has done some crazy things in the past-like trying to get the pocketless glove of Mike Andrews off the baseball diamond, and getting rid of the nucleus of a playoff contender in the National Hockey League-but there's something about him that sets him apart from his fellow owners. You can call it charisma, you can call it what you may. Let me call it innovative individualism.

Most owners like to sit on their derrieres and watch the world go by. Charlie Finley is a twenty-sixth player, an all-purpose utility man. Without Finley and his mule, we'd be yawning even more at baseball games, still glaring at pinstriped uniforms. Without Finley, we'd still watch slugging pitchers whiff three or four times a game without the designated hitter rule. Guys like Orlando Cepeda, Tommy Davis, and Frank Robinson would be doing god knows what without the rule that Finley so strongly advocated. You may laugh at Finley's suggestions to improve the game of baseball, including colored balls and automatic intentional walks, but there's no doubt that his ideas could make baseball at least a bit more exciting. It was Finley who started the trend in baseball, whereby teams in pennant contention pick up admittedly aging, yet useful players to help out in the September stretch drive. So many of the new ideas in baseball have been originated in Charlie's mind that my mind is boggled.

Few owners in sports can come close to Finley's record as a builder and innovator. Among the owners in baseball, Finley stands out; and maybe, that's the reason why few people can stomach him. I don't think that his fellow entrepreneurs relish the fact the Finley has continuously stood out and just been, very simply, different.

I don't like the idea of people telling everybody else how to run their businesses and I don't like everybody telling Charlie Finley how to run his business. There too many know-it-alls in the world and not many of them are very knowledgeable, especially the Charlie Finley know-it-all.

Owners, players and fans have told Finley how to run his teams but seldom does he listen. And I don't blame him. He's talking the financial risks, and what he does with his teams is nobody's business but his own. Now I'm talking about simple rights of ownership, but there's more. By being pegged as a renegade of sorts, Finley has done more for sports in general and sports in Oakland in particular than anyone else. He is the promoter par excellence. Sure, he promotes himself but more importantly he promotes sports, and in professional sports his kind is indispensible, because by getting his name in print and getting baseball, hockey, etc., in print as a result, he draws the fans and adds a little spice and variety once in a while.

We've established a tradition in our staid society of "keeping up with the Joneses" but never outdoing them. Because of this idea very few people attempt to break away from this level of mediocrity, but those who do are not rewarded but attacked for being rebels of sorts. Charlie Finley is one of those rebels, one of those courageous few who has the guts to be different. That's why I like Charlie, his mule and all of his crazy ideas; they may be crazy, but they're original, exciting and just plain different.

Minuteman Statistics

RUSHING	ATT	GAIN	LOSS	NET	AVE	LG
Wolfe, R, hb	81	193	22	171	2.1	23
Street, hb	59	157	28	129	2.2	12
Pennington, qb	95	323	229	94	1.0	35
Torrance, fb	21	66	5	61	2.9	14
St. Onge, fb	26	61	4	57	2.2	5
Verolini, fb	7	30	1	29	4.1	9
Jessamy, hb	11	23	0	23	2.1	4
Edmonds, hb	4	22	3	19	4.8	3
Peters, hb	1	5	0	5	5.0	5
Others	38	79	86	-7	---	8
UMASS	348	970	376	594	1.7	35
OPP	452	2093	448	1545	3.4	70

KICKOFF RETURNS	NO	YDS	AVE	TD	LG
Berra, fl	25	652	27.2	1	97
Street, hb	2	42	21.0	0	28
Wolfe, R, hb	2	38	19.0	0	19
St. Onge, fb	1	7	7.0	0	7
UMASS	29	739	25.5	1	97
OPP	28	581	20.7	0	40

PUNT RETURNS	NO	YDS	AVE	LG
Kiernan, lb	1	12	12.0	12
Parrott, cb	8	66	8.3	18
Berra, fl	25	164	6.6	13
UMASS	34	242	7.1	18
OPP	22	198	9.0	25

PASS RECEIVING	NO	YDS	TD	AVE	LG
Berra, fl	47	621	9	13.2	42
Hajdusek, se	25	271	3	10.8	44
Wolfe, W, te	23	358	3	15.6	47
Mika, te	12	164	4	13.6	25
R. Wolfe, hb	6	81	0	13.5	22
Harriman, fl	5	61	0	12.2	20
St. Onge	2	28	0	14.0	20
Street, hb	1	2	0	2.0	2
Torrance, fb	1	1	0	1.0	1
Mondalto, hb	1	0	0	---	0

SCORING	TD	PAT(1)	PAT(2)	FG	PTS
Berra, fl	10	0	2	0	64
Pennington, qb	7	0	0	0	42
Mika, te	4	0	0	0	24
Wolfe, W, te	3	0-	1	0	20
Hajdusek, se	3	0	0	0	18
Dutkanicz, k	0	11(15)	0	0(3)	11
R. Wolfe, hb	1	0	0	0	6
Ames, k	0	5(6)	0	0(1)	5
UMASS	28	16(21)	3	0(4)	189
OPP	23	20(22)	1	4(6)	178

PASSING	ATT	COMP	INT	YDS	TD	PCT	AVE/ COMP
Mondalto, hb	2	1	1	42	0	.500	42.0
Kelliher, qb	44	21	5	309	7	.477	14.7
Pennington, qb	231	102	14	1245	12	.442	12.2
Wolfe, R, hb	1	0	0	0	0	---	----
Rohan, qb	2	0	0	0	0	---	----
UMASS	280	124	20	1596	19	.443	12.8
OPP	191	97	12	1230	10	.508	12.7

CCA To Sponsor Hoop Tourney For Runners-Up

ST. LOUIS (AP)-A basketball tournament for college conference runners-up will be held at the St. Louis Arena in March, it was announced Tuesday.

St. Louis University was selected as host school for the first Collegiate Commissioners Association tournament, which will feature eight teams.

The announcement, by Athletic Director Larry Albus of St. Louis University and Commissioner Chuck Neinas of the Big Eight Conference, said the tournament will be played at an unspecified period between March 13 and 18.

The CCA is composed of 10 major conferences, and a team representing the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Association will also be eligible for the tournament.

Others participating in the tournament will be selected from these CCA conferences: Big Eight, Big Ten, Mid-American, Missouri Valley, Pacific-8, Southeastern, Southern, Southwest and Western Athletic. The only CCA member not participating in the post-season event is the Atlantic Coast Conference.

The CCA tourney will conflict with the post-season National Invitation Tournament, which has been held at Madison Square Garden the past 36 years.

Notices

MOTORCYCLE CLUB---The club will hold a meeting on Wednesday Nov. 7 at 7 p.m. in Room 911 of the Campus Center. They will be discussing plans for the Winter and Spring.

STOCKBRIDGE BASKETBALL---A meeting for all candidates this Thursday at 5:30 in 249 Boyden.

Yan Con

Football

UConn	4-0-0
URI	4-1-1
UMass	3-2-1 1/2
UNH	2-2-2
Maine	2-4-3
BU	1-3-3
UVM	1-5-4

Soccer

UConn	4-0-1 (9)
Maine	3-0-3 (9)
UMass	3-2 (6)
UNH	3-2 (6)
URI	1-2-2 (4)
BU	1-3-2 (4)
UVM	0-6-0 (0)

(Staff Photo - Gib Fullerton)

UMass has been to three NIT's in the last four years, but now the annual New York tournament is in trouble. The new CCA-sponsored tournament will draw away many of the teams that generally appeared in the NIT.

Letters To The Sports Editor

Rah! Rah! Will Never Die

To The Sports Editor:

I would like very much to take these few moments to sit down and take the time to respond to Marty Kelley's column of yesterday's Collegian. First of all, he has been a rah! rah! fan of UMass football for so long I find it hard to believe he can throw a whole lifestyle right out the window and leave it behind as Kelley says he is going to do.

The reason you can sit at your typewriter and write those words that amount to nearly nothing is that the football squad is not going to the Boardwalk Bowl with a remarkably impressive 8-2 record. You have no bicep to play with this fall and so you pick on Brophy in your broadcasts behind his back. That is dirty pool and it will get nowhere fast! ! ! !

It's not that you are walking away but rather, probably, that you are being cast out as you were from Beta Phi. You went on that anti-Greek kick for awhile claiming it was not the life for you and that you were leaving under you own power when actually you were booted out on the seat of your pants.

You do, I think, have a lot of talent but why can't you put it to good use instead of shitting on everybody from Pennington to Brophy.

Cynthia Flint

"MICH NIGHT" TONIGHT
Michelob Goblet 40¢
after 9 p.m.
at
THE CHEQUERS
DONT MISS
DONT MISS
"FREE" Juke Box 9 p.m. until 1 a.m.
hot hor d'oeuvres after 11:00 p.m.

GERMAN PARTS
WE'VE GOT A PART FOR YOU!
and if we don't, we'll get it.
AT
ALLIED MOTOR PARTS, INC.
BRITISH JAPANESE
319 MAIN ST., AMHERST
256-8341
256-8342
Chilton's Repair Manuals
AMERICAN PARTS

FENTON'S
ATHLETIC SUPPLIES
Sher-wood
Louisville
Victoriaville
Koho
Cooper
STICKS
Hyde
CCM Daoust
SKATES
Skate Sharpening
377 MAIN ST., AMHERST 253-3973
Mon.-Fri., 10-5:30
Sat., 9-4
free skate sharpening with purchase of over $5.00

Chief Hurdle Faced By Hopeful Booters

By STEVE DeCOSTA

"We're looking for 7-2-1."-Al Rufe

With that thought in mind, the UMass soccer team travels to Springfield today to try to upset the third-ranked soccer team in New England, the Chiefs of Springfield College.

The game could possibly result in a tourney invitation for the winner. The selections will be made this Sunday and UMass, with its 5-2-1 record, and Springfield at 9-3-1, are prime contenders for the four positions available.

The Chiefs, who moved from sixth to third in the latest New England soccer coaches poll, are riding high following last week's 6-2 thrashing of Connecticut and could be caught looking ahead. They play number one Bridgeport Friday night in a game that could decide once and for all who is the best team in New England.

UMass has played Springfield this year but that was in a 25 minute scrimmage. In the annual jamboree held just before the start of the official season, the Minutemen and Chiefs played to a 1-1 tie.

The man to watch for Springfield is middle halfback Ed Goodman. Always a hustler, Goodman controls midfield play for the Chiefs. He must also be closely guarded, as he is a very real offensive threat when Springfield controls the ball.

The man the UMass booters will have to beat is Dave LaPenna, the Springfield goalie. LaPenna, in his first season as varsity goalie, has good reflexes, kicks well, and is not afraid to leave the goal to make the really tough saves.

On the other side of the field, the goalie question is still very much in the air. Both Carl Vercollone and Paul Peloquin were injured against Vermont and the extent to which both have recovered could be the deciding factor of the game. Vercollone is nursing a bruised side and did not practice with the club on Monday. Peloquin is in better shape but is still bothered by a sore elbow. Rufe was contemplating bringing a JV goalie to Springfield, but this would only be for insurance purposes.

On attack, the defensive forward is a good idea, but it does not, in itself, put points on the board. The Minutemen will have to score. For this reason, Tom Coburn and Tony King should see more action for UMass.

All season long, the booters have had trouble on the road. In four road games to date, the Minutemen are 1-2-1, beating BU, losing to UConn and Maine, and tying WPI. The only bright spot in all this is that the booters have won the only game they have played on artificial turf, when they swamped BU 5-2. This afternoon's contest will mark the second time the booters will play on Astro-Turf.

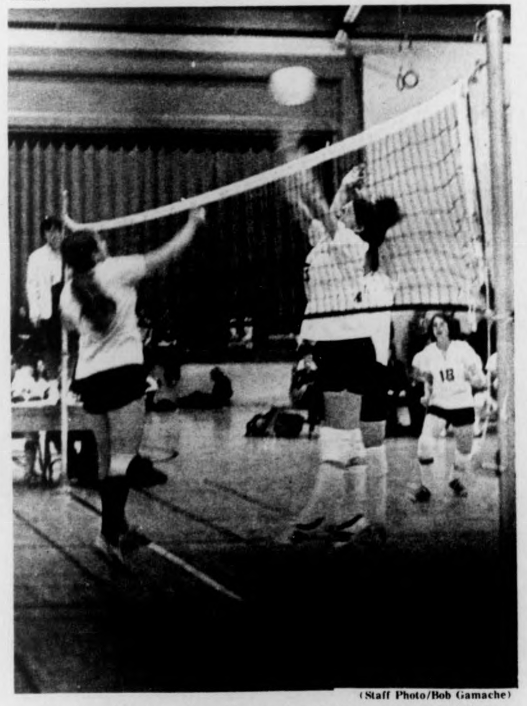
About Springfield, Al Rufe said, "We know they're an excellent team. The pressure is definitely on us. We have to play up to our capabilities if we expect to win this one."

KICKING IT AROUND—Al Rufe will be one of the featured speakers at today's Varsity M luncheon. He will be joined by Cross Country coach Ken O'Brien and basketball coach Jack Leaman.

The entire soccer team will also be at the luncheon for their pre-game meal.

(Staff Photo/Joe Martins)

Mark Tyma, master of midfield, leaves opponents strewn about as he plies his trade. Teammate Bill Belcher is not really holding down the Vermont booter, but cutting upfield in hope of getting a return pass. Tyma's midfield battle with Springfield halfback Ed Goodman will be one of the keys in today's important contest.



(Staff Photo/Bob Gamache)

The new offense instituted by coach Jody Jensen worked well for the UMass women's volleyball team as they defeated North Adams State College by the impressive scores of 15-0, 15-3.

Inside Sports

- Eibel Opts For Finley
- CCA Hoop Tourney
- Minuteman Stats
- Harriers Win For Coach

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

SPORTS

Volleyball Team Downs NASC For First Victory

By LINDA MACKLER

In a quick two games the UMass women's volleyball team defeated North Adams State 15-0 and 15-3, yesterday afternoon in the North Phys. Ed. gym. The junior varsity was also victorious by the convincing scores of 15-5 and 15-7.

One reason for this success is the newly instituted six-two offense. Whereas there used to be two setters who never had a chance to block or spike, and only two spikers at the net; there are now three people in the front line and each players has the opportunity to spike. This offense requires more versatility from the squad and takes advantage of their technical skills. When the extra player at the net is properly used, there is an obvious advantage as proved last night by the UMass victory.

This victory was also sparked by some skillful serving, particularly from Janice Perkins and Diane Boucher. Few UMass serves hit the net and the team rotated only once. Ms. Perkins scored eleven points in the first game and Ms. Boucher scored thirteen in the second.

Both the team and Coach Jody Jensen seemed extremely pleased with their performance. Coach Jensen was especially excited about the success of the new offense. But one also must be sympathetic to the cause of North Adams State. They, too, are a newly formed team, and they have had no previous game experience. Thus Coach Jensen stated, "Our team was not forced to play as hard as they have been before." So she is looking forward to the next match, where she can try her new offense. UMass will go to Smith on Thursday for a 7:00 p.m. game.

Bill Ballou

Selling Football

Getting a football team to play good football is one thing. Getting someone into the stands to watch them play is another. And until this year no one at UMass really did much about getting people into the stands.

"A good team will draw" was the attitude, and when the team wasn't so good, c'est la vie.

After last year's phenomenally successful, both on the field and in the stands, football season, Athletic Director Frank McInerney decided to go about the whole business scientifically. Ex-head football coach Vic Fusia got the assignment. "Go out there and tell some people about UMass football," was more or less what McInerney told him to do.

The results of promotional efforts have been encouraging. The Minutemen drew 67,800 fans to Alumni Stadium for five games, only two of which could be considered good natural draws.

67,800 is down from last year's record 72,274, but so was the quality of football. The weather was lousy on three dates, including Homecoming, and two of the opponents, Maine and Vermont, were traditionally zero draws.

They sold 1700 season tickets, a jump of 23 per cent from the 1303 of last year, but most importantly, the increase in sales represented a reversal of a pattern that had seen season ticket sales decline over the past several seasons from 1967's record 1,936.

The Holy Cross game, which drew 18,100, was technically a sellout, the first ever at Alumni Stadium. "Technically" because every ticket printed up was sold. The temporary stands surrounding the playing area at ground level were scheduled to be removed before the season started, but the physical plant never got time to do it. So no tickets were printed up for those seats. (However, the temporary stands should be gone by next September, reducing the Stadium capacity from about 22,000 to 17,034.)

So much for arithmetic. What does it all mean?

Basically it means that the UMass football program has finally advanced all the way out of the dark ages.

Promotion is no longer a hit-or-miss proposition. Handshakes and "are you going to the game Saturday?" have been replaced by billboards, "Family Sports Day," and a statewide radio network.

UMass football must be sold to the public if UMass students can ever hope to escape the forced burden of the Athletic Fee. Football is THE SPORT, at least financially, on campus, and with its "most expensive" tag goes a "most potential for income" label.

Student interest at the present time is high. Almost half the undergraduate student body regularly attends home games. With a couple of good years, record-wise, it could reach the 65 per cent achieved in the Landry days. Still, that leaves plenty of seats to be filled in an edifice students will be paying for, for many more years.

The last two season have been crucial ones for UMass football. In 1971 the university was saddled with a dull, mediocre team that drew only 49,753 fans. 1972 brought high-quality football and record attendance. This season the home schedule featured, on most Saturdays, a matchup of two mediocre clubs. Still, attendance stayed high.

The figures might be construed to say, "Get out of the Yankee Conference." Last season we made almost as much money on the BC game as the other four home games combined. Those other four games were all YanCon games. And the Athletic Department even gave away 2400 tickets for BC.

But as long as you have to make do with what you've got, the answer lies in promotion. Something has to get people into the Stadium to see us beat Maine 20-0, because it sure as hell isn't going to be Maine.

Promotion will continue through the winter, with hockey and basketball the targets. It won't be aimed at filling the building, because it's already filled, be it Orr Rink or the Cage. It will be aimed at selling UMass.

Promotion need not, as Marty Kelley suggests, be a dirty game. With the possible exception of "Salute to Yogi Day", it has not been. It is healthy, and, above all, it is necessary.

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather

"And if you care, don't let them know, don't give yourself away."

Recyclable

VOLUME CI ISSUE 44 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1973

Energy Crisis Address

Nixon Outlines Conservation Plans

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon asked Congress Wednesday night for emergency powers by December to combat the growing fuel shortage, including lower speed limits, year-around daylight savings time and exemptions from anti-pollution laws.

"We are heading toward the most acute shortages of energy since World War II," Nixon told the nation in a broadcast address. He cited the Mideast conflict as the cause.

Nixon disclosed he is preparing plans for gasoline rationing only as a "contingency plan." He said that users of home-heating oil will have to get by with 15 percent less fuel than they used last year.

Nixon asked for, among other things, authority to reduce business operating hours, curtail outdoor electrical advertising and ornamental lighting and impose energy conservation taxes or fees.

He said he is ordering all federal vehicles to travel no more than 50 miles per hour. Legislation would be necessary to make that provision apply to all drivers.

Noting that the Arab shutoff of oil shipments to the United States had made the situation acute, Nixon said petroleum supplies this winter could be as much as 17 percent short.

"The fuel crisis need not mean genuine suffering for any American," he said. "But it will require some sacrifice by all Americans."

In addition to seeking new legislation, Nixon said he was asking everyone "to lower the thermostat in his home by at least six degrees so that we can achieve a national daytime average of 68 degrees."

Among his proposals is one that is sure to arouse controversy on Capitol Hill. He asked for power to explore, develop and produce from the naval oil reserves at Elk Hills, Calif. Some powerful congressmen are against use of the reserves.

Nixon said that stronger actions may be required if the fuel shortages persist despite his actions.

Nixon's top energy adviser, John A. Love, told reporters that mandatory allocation of propane and heating oil at the wholesale level will be extended to all petroleum products, including gasoline.

In calling for a reduction in home-heating temperatures, Nixon added: "I am directing that industries and utilities which use coal — our most abundant resource — be prevented from converting to oil in the immediate future." Love said this regulation will be forthcoming in about 10 days.

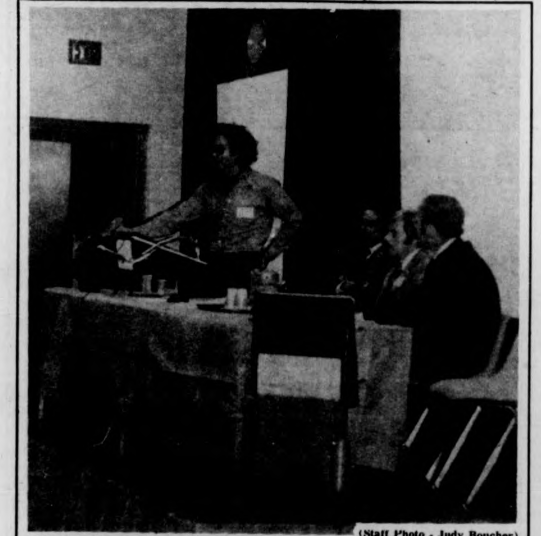
—"Efforts will also be made to convert power plants from the use of oil to the use of coal."

—"We are allocating reduced quantities of fuel for aircraft. This will lead to a cutback of more than 10 percent in the number of flights and some rescheduling in arrival and departure times."

—"There will be reductions of approximately 15 percent in the supply of heating oil for homes, offices and other establishments. To be sure that there is enough oil to go around for the entire winter, it will be essential for all of us to live and work in lower temperatures."

—"In offices, factories and commercial establishments, we must ask that you achieve the equivalent of a 10-degree reduction by either lowering the thermostat or curtailing working hours."

—"We must be prepared to take additional steps and for that purpose, additional authorities must be provided by the Congress." Congress is already considering an emergency energy act with administration cooperation and Nixon said: "It is imperative for this legislation to be on my desk for signature before the Congress recesses in December."



(Staff Photo - Judy Boucher)

SBA's Career Conference Day was an astounding success. In this seminar, Professor Sam Goldman informs the Business School students about the competitiveness of law school admissions and of the job shortage in the law field.

Large Turnout Greets SBA Conference Day

By ALLISON SIMCOX

SBA Careers Conference Day in the Campus Center yesterday met with capacity crowds both for the seminars and for the buffet luncheon.

Speakers were featured from areas of marketing, accounting, general business and finance to give business students an opportunity to receive "real world" information pertaining to their fields of interest. Ample question and discussion periods were provided following each seminar.

Director of College Relations for RCA Harold E. Roush, scheduled to give a speech entitled; "Understanding the Recruiter's Methods--A Guide to Competitive Student Interviewing" at the luncheon, called from Bradley International Airport to say he had been detained in Syracuse following a snow storm. Substituting, ironically, was Herbert Preisener, Bradley Airport Manager. All other events went smoothly, efficiently and as planned. The majority of students and all but one speaker were male. The one female speaker, Sheila Grove, Systems Engineering Manager for the IBM Corporation, spoke at the end of the conference day (3:30-4:30) on "Women's Careers in Business".

"It (the conference) brings from the outside world to the isolated educational experience hard and fast realities that are not dealt with here" commented one student.

"I don't know why this hasn't been done sooner" was the general student reaction. There was sentiment expressed that conferences should be advocated as valid educational experiences and should be held more frequently here at UMass.

Neal Crowley, member of the SBA Undergraduate Advisory Council, which in conjunction with the Business Club sponsored the conference, said that if given a second chance more seminar rooms and luncheon tables would have been provided to accommodate the unexpectedly large reception.

As it was, about 100 people attended each of the 20 seminars with about 175 attending the $2.50/plate luncheon.

Alumni Office Phonathon-The Latest In Fund Raising

By KEVIN KITTREDGE

A phonothon, without Jerry Lewis or Sammy Davis, is being conducted this week by the Alumni Office. The phonothon is an attempt to get away from the usual requests for funds by mail that are sometimes thrown away with offers "to buy land in Florida" and other junk mail.

"It's a more personal approach and the next best thing to eyeball-to eyeball requests," said George Richason, Associate Head of Chemistry and a chairman of the drive.

The proof of this has been the results. "This approach has been four times as effective as the mailing approach," said Brenda Rau of the Alumni Office. For fiscal 1971-72 the net money for programs was $57,000. Last years phonothon nearly doubled that with $110,000.

But why does UMass, which receives tax money from the legislature, need additional funds from alumni?

"The legislature pays for the 'bread and butter' of the university such as faculty salaries and operating costs, but there are many areas where private support is needed," said Richason.

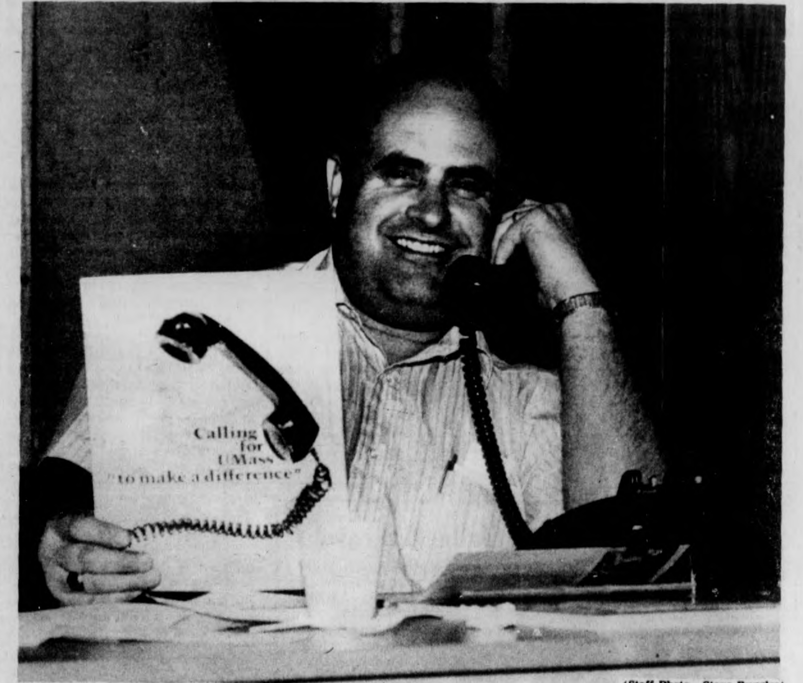
One area that needs private support is the Alumni Scholarship Program. This should be a University's first priority and on this campus there are 4,400 students who need assistance.

Secondly, the Library also needs private support. According to the United States Office of Education, a school the size of UMass should have 2,950,000 volumes. The actual collection is 1,160,771 volumes and a walk through the stacks will reveal a lot of dusty, empty shelves.

A third area seeking support are the Faculty and Student Enrichment Programs. Some of the programs being helped by the Alumni Fund are the Honor's Program, BDIC, University Without Walls, Outreach, Everywoman's Center, Institute for Man and His Environment, the Teaching Improvement Program and Art Acquisitions for the new Fine Arts Center.

The volunteer alumni man 30 Watts lines located in Memorial Hall and usually work 2-3 hours at night. "We try to concentrate on the alumni that have been out for awhile rather than on the recent graduate because they are more likely to be on their feet financially," said Richason.

"Out of 289 calls made Monday night, 83 alumni pledged a donation for a 45 percent ratio. The average contribution is $25 and so far we have collected $6,892," added Richason.



Calling for UMass "to make a difference"

(Staff Photo - Steve Ruggles)

Jack Dennison, Associate Dean of the School of Agriculture, is one of the many UMass alumni working at the annual Alumni Phonothon. Thus far, the volunteer phoners have had a 45 percent success ratio.

Wolff Seeks Change

By ED GORMAN

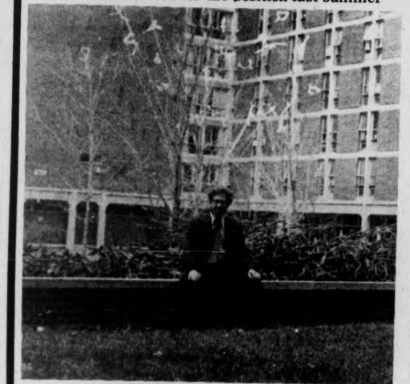
Orchard Hill has a new Area Director this semester who hopes to "unify University services so they are available in an integrated way for students." Michael Wolff is a native of London and he brings to Orchard Hill a new perspective on education.

Wolff claims that he does not want to make the Orchard Hill Residential College into a "miniature Amherst College or Oxford."

"I don't think that the classroom is the best means of education. I am a believer in interdisciplinary education where the student can combine classroom work with field work. We should show the student that there is no conflict between popular and academic activities."

The new Area Director called the classroom a "chapel" and drew an analogy between professors and ministers and students and congregations. He feels that "we should get away from drilling the need for excellence into students and realize that we are working with ordinary people."

Wolff was selected for the position last summer following the shakeup of the Orchard Hill staff during a spring semester. According to Associate Provost Robert Woodbury, "We (Vice Chancellors Robert Gage and Robert Gluckstern and Woodbury) selected Michael Wolff because he has a running head start. He is familiar with the problems that arise in a residential college and he has credibility with the staff on Orchard Hill and in Whitmore. He also is a full professor with tenure."



(Staff Photo - Judy Boucher)

New Orchard Hill director Michael Wolff: "...we should get away from drilling the need for excellence into students and realize that we are working with ordinary people."

Wolff has a stack of credentials a mile high and an intellectual background more than a mile deep. He did his undergraduate work in English and Philosophy at Cambridge before coming to America to pursue his Masters in English at Western Reserve in Cleveland and his Ph.D at Princeton. He graduated from Princeton in 1955 and was a professor of English and Victorian Studies at Indiana University from 1955 to 1970. He may be the first person to have the title of Professor of Victorian Studies in the world. While he was at Indiana University he became the founding editor of a journal called "Victorian Studies." He has had many essays published and is the co-author of a two volume book entitled "The Victorian City."

Also while he was in Indiana he conducted a semester study entitled "Focus: The City" which was a program devoted to the study of urbanism and involved all the departments of the University. It was for this reason that Wolff came to UMass.

The University wanted a similar study done so Wolff was contacted and he agreed to undertake the study. While he was working on that project he was approached by the Orchard Hill Summer Committee with a contract for the Area Director's office. He accepted the job because he felt that his intellectual background and understanding of large state universities would be valuable to the University.

Wolff claims, "I like large universities. I have always worked in them and always will. I would never consider working at a small college." He labels himself as an "intellectual but not a terribly good teacher." He says that his position at Orchard Hill will be one of trying to "place activities into an intellectual context." He feels that he can do that because he is "a trained analyst, thinker and reader."

Wolff claims that the major problem facing Orchard Hill is lack of space "but if we can get the spirit of interdisciplinary education going the problems will be relatively easy to solve." The new Area Director stressed the fact that he wants to "avoid conflict and confrontation and look to collaboration as the key to problem solving."

Wolff has some interesting views on education. He says that the big intellectual question facing education in America is the problems involved in "combining intellectual skills with the responsibilities of democratic education." He says that the institutions must change to fit the changing culture instead of trying to force students from many different backgrounds to fit into the culture of the institution. He says that educators "must make democratic education responsible without diluting it." He feels that we should "humanize bureaucracy" in order for the students to be able to integrate it into their education.

Considering the rather bizarre events that occured on Orchard Hill during the spring semester, things look as though they may run smoothly with the new Area Director. Wolff feels that he has the "full confidence of Whitmore and the Orchard Hill staff" and considers himself "friends with many of the factions on the Hill".

Wolff is 46 years old and is married and fathers three children. His wife, Sarah, has a M.Ed. and is a counselor in the Everywomen's Center. His oldest daughter, Jessica, is 15 and is interested in pottery, computers and cycling while Judith, age 13, is interested in ballet. Jeremey is 14 and is currently interested in language and is the manager of the high school cross country team. Wolff said that aside from his personal life his second favorite sport is squash. He plays three or four times a week. All his other interests are integrated into his overall intellectual background. His home on Pokeberry Ridge is designed with a curious integration of Victorian design and Modern design.

The general consensus on Orchard Hill is one of optimism. This general feeling was summed up by an Orchard Hill Area Government representative who said that, "Wolff is very intelligent and I really think that he cares about the students."

Student Wins Mayorship In Gardner Election

By ERNIE KING

In a startling political upset, 21 year old Stephen Erickson, a senior at UMass, Amherst defeated incumbent mayor of Gardner Clarke K. Stedman. Erickson won by a substantial majority, receiving 4,526 votes to Stedman's 3,457. With his victory, Erickson became the youngest mayor elected in the history of the Commonwealth.

Erickson topped Stedman by 300 votes in the primary, placing first place out of the field of six. During his campaign. Erickson used both face to face contact and newspaper ads to drum up support for himself throughout the community.

According to Erickson, his first act upon entering office will be to, "contact all elected city councillors and department heads and listen to their views." His goal is to open up channels of communication between his office and all other city officials.

With his election Erickson carried other young people into office with him, one of them was his brother Brian Erickson. When asked how he felt about charges that he and his brother were creating a Kennedy-styled team Steve replied, "That's completely false."

A crowd of about two hundred Erickson supporters gathered in the Gardner V.F.W. hall to listen to the election returns. They gathered in small pockets about the hall, eating, drinking, making small talk and waiting patiently. When news of his victory broke there were cheers and applause throughout the hall.

The language of victory was heard throughout the hall. Words such as, "Terrific," "Best thing that ever happened to the city," and "a good change," were heard in every corner of the room. An off-duty police officer standing in the hall told the M.D.C., "It's the best thing to ever happen to the city. Now the police department will have the free hand it should have. There's no place for politics in the police department."

Clark Stedman, the defeated incumbent, had little to say. In a radio interview he congratulated the young victor and closed with a promise of "I'll be back."

Erickson is a senior at UMass and a Bio-Chemistry major. He is a member of the Air Force R.O.T.C. program, here on campus and was class president, for three years in high school.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

The office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN is on the second floor of the Student Union on the campus of the University of Massachusetts, zip code 01002. Telephones: 545-2550 (news); 545-0344 (sports); 545-0731 (business).

Second class postage is paid in Amherst and additional mailing in Ware, Mass. 01082. THE DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes Monday through Friday during the academic year, except during vacation, exam periods or holidays. Accepted for mailing under the authority of an act of March 8, 1879; as amended by an act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $6.00 per semester of $10.00 per year.

Campion To Senate: No Meal $ Increase

By BRIAN COYNE

The Student Senate last night heard an announcement from Vice-Chancellor for Administrative Services Thomas B. Campion that there would be no increase in the meal ticket price next semester.

In other business, the Senate called on the Commuter Assembly and the administration to contribute to day care services on campus, and urged the Distinguished Visitors Program to have Moe Howard as one of their speakers.

In his statement to the Senate, Campion said that Food Services would "live within the existing budget" for this year. The present quality and quantity of food services would be maintained, he said. A proposal to increase the price of board was introduced Tuesday night at a meeting of the Rents and Fees Committee, and was turned down by the committee. Following more negotiation yesterday between the administration and the committee, the administration decided against asking the Board of Trustees for the increase.

In reconsidering a $2,500 appropriation to Lincoln University Cooperative School, the Senate finally decided to give the school $1,500 now and $1,000 on January 2, 1974. Paul Hamel, treasurer of the Senate, said it was "fiscally unsound" to appropriate all the money now because the Senate's stabilization account was too low to work with.

In the course of debate, it was decided that since the people who benefitted from day care services were commuters, the Commuter Assembly should also bear some of the cost. The Senate also reaffirmed its position that the administration should likewise commit itself to day care services with funds.

Index Recruitment

and Organizational Meeting

Thursday at 7 p.m.

Index Office

401 Student Union

Layout 101

Will Meet Again

'MORE ON HEADLINES'

Collegian Office

Tonight 6:30 p.m.

The World's Top Exhibition Skiers

John Clendenin

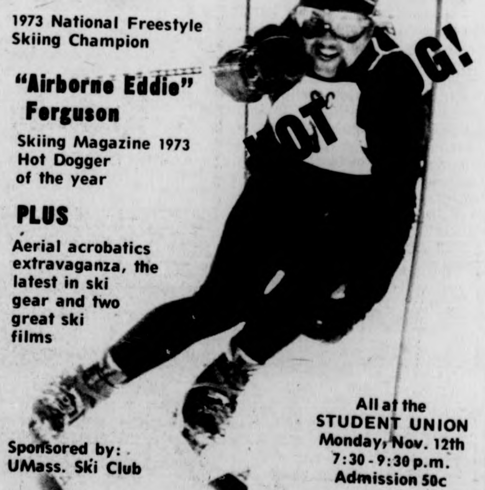
1973 National Freestyle Skiing Champion

"Airborne Eddie" Ferguson

Skiing Magazine 1973 Hot Dogger of the year

PLUS

Aerial acrobatics extravaganza, the latest in ski gear and two great ski films



Sponsored by:
UMass. Ski Club

All at the
STUDENT UNION
Monday, Nov. 12th
7:30 - 9:30 p.m.
Admission 50c

Moe:Yeas And Nays

By BILL BALLOU

A boisterous crowd of about 40 Three Stooges fans crowded into Room 901 of the Campus Center last night to voice their desire for having the Distinguished Visitors Program (DVP) sponsor a visit to the campus by Moe Howard.

The crowd, attending a DVP meeting, presented DVP committee members with several petitions expressing support for Moe's visit.

In all there were nine petitions totalling 1,114 names, including one containing 795 names.

However the meeting brought no commitment from DVP to sponsor Moe.

Committee member Barbara Voorhees, who originally contacted Moe, said that she had written to him again and expected a reply shortly.

Moe's first letter to the committee was read at the beginning of the meeting and listed his honorarium and planned schedule of activities.

He would charge $1600 for a three-day visit, a visit that would include the showing of a couple of Stooges shorts and a speech by Moe discussing the Stooges. Also, Moe would stage a few routines (tried and true) taking the roles of all three Stooges by himself.

Two anti-Moe voices were heard at the meeting, and neither was met with enthusiasm by the rowdy crew.

One person called Stooges fans "babies" while the other said that Firesign Theater would be a better choice. He said that "the humor found in Firesign Theater requires some intelligence to understand."

Both speakers were met with cries of "Every time you think you weaken the nation" and "I'll tear your tonsils out."

The man referring to Stooges fans as babies was invited by one Moe fan to "step outside and discuss this thing one-on-one." He declined the invitation.

DVP indicated that if they should decide to invite Moe, they were aiming for a time in May, and they assured the crowd that they would keep them posted on further developments via the Collegian. They also expressed their appreciation for the input they were receiving.

In other Stooges-related action last night the Student Senate voted to adopt a motion urging DVP to have Moe as one of their speakers in "the near future." The motion also included a clause that would rename Whitmore Administration Building "Whit-Moe" for the duration of his visit.

John Updike Speaks To Overflow Crowd

By BRIAN COOK

A guest appearance by the famous novelist John Updike, originally planned for 8 p.m. in Wright Hall at Smith College last Tuesday was rescheduled a half hour later and moved to John M. Greene Hall to accomodate an overflow crowd.

The lecture attracted many students throughout the five-college area, swelling the orignally expected attendance figure of less than 400 to close to 1,000 people who could only be seated in Smith's largest hall. A spokeswoman for the lecture committee said that "Updike did not desire a large crowd, he will only be reading from his works." As it turned out however, Updike proved to be very receptive to his large audience and fielded questions after his readings and in a reception following.

Not in the habit of making many public appearances, Updike's preliminary remarks made light of the many attempts by people all over the country to get in touch with him. He then read from a small book of his poems, of which only a limited 250 copies has been printed, citing such works as "Upon Shaving Off One's Beard," "On An Island," "Phenomena," and others. In reference to poetry, Updike said "I find it always a help to see it" implying that a written account does not quite transmit the same feeling.

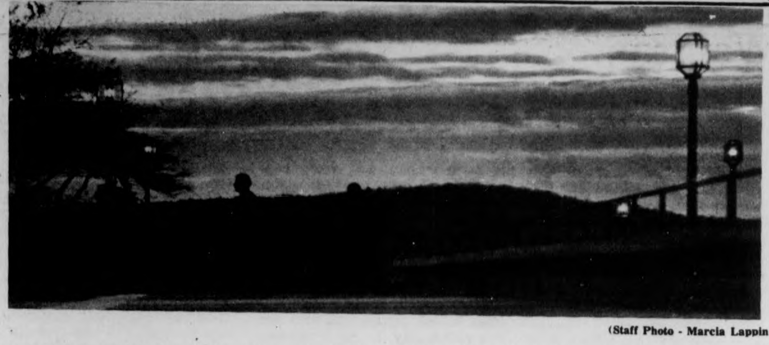
Next, he read from his latest work which he said became "an unplayable play" when a producer advised him it would take seven hours to perform. It is based upon a love affair involving former president James Buchanan. One particular passage involving a remark by Buchanan's lover in which she says to him, "You are a man, I am lower than that..", drew swift reaction from the primarily female audience. Updike humorously reprimanded himself for reading the lengthy script even though the crowd thoroughly enjoyed it.

Questions asked at the end of the readings primarily concerned certain popular characters in the novelist's works and whether or not they would reappear in the future publications. One inquirer from the audience asked whether or not Updike and others in his field felt any obligation to fill the gap created by the recent deaths of many literary giants such as Ezra Pound, Pearl Buck, etc. He replied, "People in their forties (like himself) can still hide behind people in their sixties like Saul Bellow."

SOMEONE RIPPED OFF the Purple and Gold Velvet Pall used to cover the casket at funerals. It is of great sentimental value as well as being functional.

It can be returned anytime to GRACE CHURCH--no questions asked. Information as to its whereabouts can be phoned to Grace Church office, 256-6754. REWARD.

Grace Church on the Town Common



(Staff Photo - Marcia Lappin)

"Won't you look down on me Jesus, you got to help me make a stand; just got to see me through another day..."

UMass Hosting College Unions

By KATHY FRASER

UMass will be playing host to the annual conference of the Association of College Unions - International and the National Entertainment Conference (ACU-I—NEC) (organizations of college programming services and student unions) from Nov. 8 to Nov. 11 in the Campus Center.

Four-hundred and fifty delegates and students representing 71 colleges in New England and eastern Canada will meet to exchange ideas on concerts, activity programming, student governments and leadership development. Agencies and businesses which deal with the colleges will present "Showcase Talent" in an effort to promote new talent and to receive feedback from students on some of the entertainment programs offered.

Jim Riley of the Registered Student Organization (RSO) office described the conference as "an outgrowth of what students do on campus" and said that approximately 250 students will be attending.

Four major tracks will be offered the delegates who represent the various food services, committees, program councils and student unions. Tracks on concerts, contemporary issues, program concerns and alternatives, and leadership development, will expand each topic over four sessions.

For example, the track on concerts will cover coffee houses to major concerts, contracting, dealing with the agency, the artist and the final details in presenting the concert. It will finish on Sunday with final exhibits on booking and film programs.

The ACU-I—NEC conference is held every fall at all participating institutions. Last year at the University of New Hampshire, UMass presented a bid to host the next conference and it was accepted. The planning for this conference began last December when a committee composed of students and staff from 11 New England colleges and universities was formed and began structuring the conference.

The conference is not open to all students, but any who wish to attend can register with the RSO office.

SKI SPAIN
Earn 2 credits during intersession
Call 5-2801

CLOTHES SALE CLOTHES
From India
50% Reduction
MEN WOMEN SHIRTS TOPS BLOUSES
DATE: Saturday, Nov. 10
TIME: 1:00 p.m. - 5:00 p.m.
PLACE: 576 Main St., Amherst
Robert & Johnetta Cole's House

Colonel Sanders Big Clam Fry . . .
Wednesdays and Thursdays, Only . . .
Feeds 4-6
Boat of tendersweet baby clams
Quart of French Fries
Pint of Cole Slaw
Quart of Soda
$4.99
Clip the coupon
Chicken-In seating for 54
Chicken-Out Delivery Free
256-8745
Kentucky Fried Chicken.
Rte. 9 (across from Zayre's) Hadley
256-8745

You Would Have To Carry 25 People In A Car To Compete With The Fuel Efficiency Of A Bus.

Peter Pan BUS LINES
So why not travel by Peter Pan Bus on your next trip?
Hourly service to Boston, New York City, Albany and everywhere, direct from the University Campus. Extra express service to Natick and Boston every weekend.
Lobby, Campus Center Hotel
Tel. 545-2528 or 545-2006

Top of the Campus
Tuesday
Wednesday
Thursday
Nov. 6, 7, 8
Special
Steak or Prime Rib plus all the salad you can eat
only $2.95

Watergate:

Another Tape Missing?

By H. L. SCHWARTZ III
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (ap) — The testimony of a presidential aide Wednesday raised a question of whether part of yet a third White House Watergate tape may be missing or nonexistent.

The testimony followed notification to U. S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica that President Nixon's personal secretay, Rose Mary Woods, will testify at a hearing into a White House claim that two crucial presidential conversations on Watergate went unrecorded.

Sirica had summoned Miss Woods to appear.

White House aide John C. Bennett testified before Sirica that Miss Woods called him into her office Tuesday to say she had discovered a "gap" in a tape recording made of presidential conversations.

Bennett, an aide to White House chief of staff Alexander M. Haig Jr., said Miss Woods did not describe the tape she was listening to and he did not ask.

Bennett also said she told him that she was not transcribing Watergate tapes and that his own testimony of Tuesday — in which Bennett said he was told that's what she was doing — was wrong.

Exactly which tapes Miss Woods was listening to when she discovered the gap presumably will have to await her own testimony, now expected Thursday.

Douglas Parker, a White House lawyer, said he expected Miss Woods will be allowed to appear as directed.

Bennett previously had testified that Miss Woods now has in her possession 14 tapes, eight of them covering the periods listed in subpoenas from the special Watergate prosecution force and six others delivered to her Monday.

Noting that scores of attorneys are involved in various Watergate probes, the spokesman said the White House had to expand its staff because "you can't deal with 100 lawyers with five."

In The Nation And The World

Mid East War:

Kissinger Sees Peace

AP Wirephoto

King Hassan of Morocco & U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger chat before lunch at the Royal palace at the end of his short stop on his way to the Middle and Far East.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israel claimed Wednesday that Egypt is preparing to renew warfare while Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger was commenting after a round of talks in Cairo that "we are moving toward peace." Syria reported a clash on the Golan Heights.

Kissinger made his comment following a three-hour meeting with President Anwar Sadat of Egypt.

A spokesman for the Israeli military command in Tel Aviv said Egyptian troops were stepping up preparations for open warfare.

He refused to elaborate on the preparations, but Israel radio broadcast reports that Cairo had ordered its troops on "high alert." It quoted an Egyptian news agency dispatch as saying this.

The Israeli radio said Egypt's 1st Army, stationed in a defensive position around Cairo, had reportedly moved toward the Suez front, apparently to give it the possibility to break a corridor through the Israeli lines and open an escape route for the trapped Egyptian 3rd Army in the Sinai Desert.

Egypt's official Middle East News Agency described the situation on the Suez front as "tense and explosive" and said the Israelis on the west bank of the canal were in pockets that could easily be destroyed.

The news agency said the Israelis had violated the ceasefire since Oct. 22 in "an attempt to gain more land and destroy all peace prospects."

Syria's report of a clash in the Golan Heights said an Israeli attempt to cross the cease-fire line was beaten back and "our artillery silenced sources of enemy fire."

It was the second incident reported in two days by the Syrian army. On Tuesday it said Israeli planes had fired rockets at its advance positions.

While Kissinger, with Sadat's agreement, spoke of moving toward peace, reports from Morocco, the secretary of state's first stop in the Middle East, were less optimistic.

Moroccan officials kept publicly silent about Kissinger's seven hours of talks with King Hassan II but privately indicated that the American position gave them little hope for an early solution of the Middle East problem.

And in Beirut, Sadat was reported to have taken a tough stand in his talks with Kissinger. Cairo-based correspondents of several Beirut newspapers said Sadat's prepared paper for the talks demanded quick withdrawal to positions held when the first cease-fire was declared on Oct. 22.

Saigon Bombs Blast Loc Ninh

By DENNIS NEELD
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) - More than 50 South Vietnamese fighter-bombers blasted military targets around the Viet Cong administrative capital of Loc Ninh Wednesday in the heaviest air blitz since the ceasefire, the Saigon military command announced.

The raid was called a punitive action retaliating for recent Viet Cong attacks.

Viet Cong spokesman Capt. Phuong Nam said 120 bombs hit Loc Ninh airstrip, a market and residential areas in the city 76 miles north of Saigon. He said the bombing killed or wounded more than 30 civilians and destroyed 40 houses and a hospital.

A Saigon military spokesman denied the market area was hit and claimed the closest targets were more than half a mile from the town.

North Vietnamese tanks and troops were reported pressing attacks against government outposts on the Cambodian border. Saigon radio reported an important road junction at Dak Song has been overrun.

Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien announced the "punitive raid" against Loc Ninh was launched in retaliation for the Communists' border operation and the rocketing Tuesday of the Bien Hoa air base, 15 miles northeast of Saigon.

The bombing marked the sharpest escalation of fighting since the Jan. 27 Paris peace agreement and increased fears of Communist sapper and rocket attacks against Saigon as a return reprisal in tit-for-tat operations.

In Washington, U.S. intelligence analysts said they believe intensified Communist attacks in South Vietnam are aimed primarily at seizing the important rice crop.

The sources said that documents captured by the South Vietnamese indicate a general Communist offensive could come early next year.

Speakeasy Lounge
at the STEAK OUT
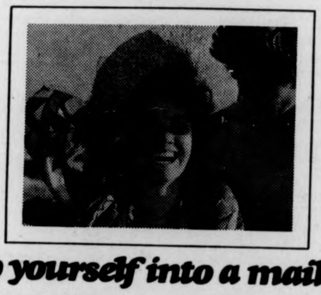
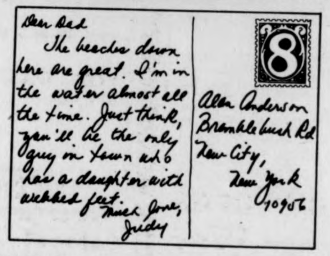
Now Featuring
The Bonnie Floyd Revue
Rt. 9 and University Drive
256-8557



Drop yourself into a mailbox.



Dear Dad
The beaches down here are great. I'm in the water almost all the time. Just think, you'll be the only guy in town who has a daughter with webbed feet.
Much love,
Judy

8

Alan Anderson
Bramblebush Rd
New City,
New York
10956

With an 8¢ stamp on your back, you can travel almost anyplace in the country. That's if your back also happens to be the back of a Pocket picture. A Pocket picture, by the way comes from a little Kodak pocket Instamatic camera and it just happens to be postcard size. Flip it over, address it, stamp it and off you go.

Six models to choose from.

Kodak pocket Instamatic® cameras. Kodak

TRIPOD CAMERA SHOP INC
Northampton Amherst

219 Main St.
Northampton
584-6040

98 N. Pleasant St.
Amherst
253-3039

Are you tired of campus food? How about a good home cooked meal?

ST. REGIS RESTAURANT

Open
Mon.-Sat.
6 a.m. - 9 p.m.
Sun.
8 a.m. - 9 p.m.

The place that serves breakfast from 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily except Sunday (8 a.m. to 9 p.m.).

Take a Friend To Dinner:

FRIED CHICKEN and SPAGHETTI	$2.50
BREADED VEAL CUTLET and SPAGHETTI	$2.25
GRILLED PORK CHOPS with choice of 2 vegetables, bread and butter	$2.50
FRIED CLAMS with Tartar Sauce French Fries & cole slaw	$2.45
GRILLED MINUTE STEAK with onion rings choice of 2 vegetables, bread and butter	$3.25

28 PLEASANT ST. Left at the Intersection of Rt. 9 and Rt. 5 Downtown Northampton. NORTHAMPTON

Nixon Veto Overridden

Congress Passes "War Powers" Bill

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress handed President Nixon a major defeat Wednesday by enacting into law over his veto its historic bill to curb presidents' war powers.

The 60-day limit on presidents' power to commit U.S. combat troops abroad without Congress' approval became law immediately when the Senate overrode the veto.

The Senate vote was 75 to 18, or 13 more than required.

The House overrode the veto hours earlier 284 to 135, four more than the two-thirds needed.

The war powers bill was opposed on the final vote by a coalition of President Nixon's supporters and antiwar congresmen.

Senate Armed Services Chairman John C. Stennis, D-Miss., and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., said the bill was never intended to restrict presidents' war powers but instead require that Congress share the burden of committing Americans to war.

Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., urged that the Senate get "not so caught up in the hysteria of Watergate" as to enact the war powers bill "to kick the President while he is down."

Congress' override of the President's veto was its first in nine tries this year and the fifth since Nixon became President.

Inspired by the Vietnam war, the bill was intended to prevent the United States from becoming involved in such a conflict without Congress' specific approval. Many congressmen switched from their traditional positions.

Nixon vetoed the bill two weeks ago, calling its curbs on presidential war powers "both unconstitutional and dangerous."

He particularly criticized two sections:

The first requires a president to withdraw any U. S. combat forces he commits abroad on his own after 60 days unless Congress votes approval of the commitment by then.

The president, however, could extend that period another 30 days if he told Congress in writing the time was needed to safely withdraw the forces he had committed.

The second provides that Congress can halt the war commitment any time during the 60 or 90 days with a simple House-Senate concurrent resolution not subject to a president's veto.

Prices Down Again!

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Led by lower costs for farm products, wholesale prices declined in October for the second month in a row, the Labor Department said Wednesday.

The monthly Wholesale Price Index report showed a 3.3 percent decline in prices of farm products and processed foods. That could mean at least temporary relief for grocery shoppers if the reduction is reflected later in retail prices.

Over-all, wholesale prices fell by three-tenths of one percent after adjustment for seasonal pricing patterns following a sharp 1.5 percent decline in September. Before any adjustment was made in the index, the report showed that wholesale prices in October declined five-tenths of one percent.

Despite these improvements, there was bad news for consumers, too. Prices of industrial commodities, mainly gasoline and other fuels and metals, went up a sharp 1.1 percent.

That figure reflected an economy still gripped with inflation.

And while the price of food was down on the farm, wholesale prices of consumer-finished foods went up three-tenths of one percent. The figure measures the prices that wholesalers pay their suppliers for food products that are ready for consumer use.

Among consumer-finished wholesale prices going up were those for fresh and dried vegetables, eggs, milk, cereal and bakery products. But there were sharp price declines in meat and poultry in this category.

At the farm level, prices of livestock, oil seeds, live poultry, eggs, grains and fresh fruit were down. Prices of milk and vegetables rose.

Just how much and how long the decline in farm products will be felt at the retail level was not certain. Herbert Stein, chairman of President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers, said more moderate price behavior at the farm will probably continue.

Aiken Warns Nuclear War

WASHINGTON (AP) — The ranking Republican on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee says the danger of nuclear war over the Middle East is greater than ever despite diplomatic gains Wednesday.

Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., in a telephone interview with radio station WKVT in Brattleboro, Vt., said the news that Egypt and the United States had renewed diplomatic relations was good, and he had words of praise for the efforts of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

But, the dean of the Senate warned, "we're not out of the woods yet.

"If it flares up again, with the shortage of gasoline, it's almost certain to be nuclear war, and the danger in that respect is greater than ever."

The Flavor of America
Howard Johnson's
Hadley
Daily Specials $1.99
Monday: Fish Fry
Tuesday: Spaghetti Spree
Wednesday: Deep Sea Dinner
Thursday: Turkey Gobbler
Friday: Clam Fry
Seconds on us

VASIL
THE NEW FASHION SHOP IN TOWN
COME 'ROUND AN' SEE

SHIRTS
$2.99
$3.99
$4.99

we also have names like: Smile • Sundance • Pineapple • MadMan • Foxylady • Mike Webber

9 e. pleasant st. 3 doors from the "PUB"
© REFLECTIONS

TRUCKIN' GEAR

BASS SPORTS
US SKI TEAM
Used by the U.S. Ski Team

EIGER

trak®

FROM THE SKIER'S FRIEND
House of Walsh, Inc.
Amherst, Massachusetts

$1 off

Located One Mile
North of UMass.
Behind No. Amherst
Post Office
Jeans
$4.99 - $8.99
ONE DOLLAR OFF

THE LEMON TREE

SPORTWEAR
BOUTIQUE

SWEATERS only $5.99
Values to $14.00
Cables - Cardigans - Dolmans
Velvets from India for the holidays
20 - 60% OFF
WITH THIS AD

Democrats Top In Elections

By DON McLEOD
AP Political Writer

While the Democrats on balance appear to have come out on top in Tuesday's elections, the chiefs of both major parties agree that Watergate had little to do with it.

Instead, Democratic National Chairman Robert Strauss and Republican George Bush said in separate news conferences, the real test was their efforts in rebuilding troubled parties. Both said Wednesday they saw evidence of their own success.

"Watergate doesn't appear to have been a determining factor," said Bush, who has been campaigning to persuade the nation that the party shouldn't be blamed for scandals at the White House.

And Strauss, who has been warning Democrats against a false sense of security, said, "I don't think the elections were a Watergate referendum."

Democrats in general did well, however, especially in New Jersey, where they recaptured the governorship and controlled the legislature in a record-breaking performance. Democrat Brendan Byrne beat Republican rep. Charles W. Sandman Jr. by some 700,000 votes in the governor's race.

In California, a referendum issue championed by potential Republican presidential candidate Gov. Ronald Reagan went down to defeat.

Democrats scored heavily in important municipal elections across the country, principally in New York, where Abraham D. Beame led a citywide Democratic sweep which returned the city to the party fold it left in electing John V. Lindsay as a Republican mayor eight years ago.

The closest thing to Republican glee came in Virginia where the GOP retained the governorship by a paper-thin margin in a race with no Democratic nominee. Mills E. Godwin Jr., a former Democratic governor running as a Republican, beat Henry E. Howell Jr., a Democrat who ran as an independent, by about 1 percent of the vote.

Godwin, who succeeds moderate Republican Linwood Holton, ran a campaign based chiefly on his opposition to school busing. Howell's platform featured opposition to the state sales tax on food and non-prescription drugs.

Bush's confidence about the Watergate issue was not shared by Gladys Brooks, the Republican candidate for mayor of Minneapolis who finished a distant third. "A great deal of Watergate has carried over here," she said.

In the Minneapolis race, another possible trend might be seen in the defeat of Mayor Charles Stenvig, a tough law and order proponent seeking a third term, by Democrat-Farmer-Labor candidate Al Hofstede.

"People know now that law and order doesn't just come from electing a police chief as mayor. They know it's got to come from electing people who know something about the processes of government and meeting the needs of the people."

Detroit elected its first black mayor, Democratic State Sen. Coleman A. Young, who defeated former Police Chief John Nichols in a nonpartisan election. In Louisville, Dr. Harvey Sloane, a Democratic newcomer to politics, beat Republican C. J. Hyde, a former police chief, in the mayor's race.

Is Your Head "Together?"
If Not, Come by "The Cellar" specializing in Relaxers
Perms Hairstraighteners
Scalp Massage
Audrey Stevens
189 N. Pleasant St.,
Amherst
253-9233

The 3rd annual Madrigal Dinner
presented by
The University Madrigal Singers
at the Campus Center
December 5th - 9th
for reservations and information
call 545-0418

Only Platters That Matter

By DAVID BURKE
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — There will be plenty of Rolling Stones and Barbra Streisand in the record bins this holiday season, but don't count on finding a copy of Yugoslavian folk songs or a reissue of your favorite vocalist of the '40s.

The reason: The petroleum shortage is hitting the record industry.

Alarmed by the growing scarcity of petroleum-based plastics used in making records, some companies have begun cutting back on production, postponing new releases and experimenting with different quality materials.

"The companies don't know from one day to the next what kind of supplies they will have," said Henry Brief, executive director of the Recording Industry Association of America, a trade group. "It could get to be a very, very critical situation."

PRC Recording Co. of Richmond, Ind., which presses records for several major labels, has reduced its work week from seven to five days and is allocating to customers, said Gerald Sharp, comptroller.

"The problem began last spring and has been steadily getting worse. Right now we're getting only 70 percent of the vinyl we used to get," he said.

While there should be no difficulty in obtaining the latest Rolling Stones album, for example, consumers may start feeling the pinch when it comes to low-priced or specialty labels.

Woman Retains Maiden Name, Loses Fame

By GINNY PITT
Associated Press Writer

LOWELL, Mass. (AP) — Gail Dunfey went to court to keep her maiden name after she married during her first term on the Lowell City Council, and she attributes her sound defeat for re-election this week to the "unpopularity" of her decision among female voters.

Although she had been told by any number of people — both male and female — that it was not politically wise to refuse to change her name when she married Ronald Sinicki five months ago, Miss Dunfey began to realize the hostility her decision evoked when she began door-to-door campaigning with Lowell housewives.

"Many of them took particular offense and seemed to feel threatened by the fact that I used my given name instead of my married name," Miss Dunfey said in an interview following her defeat for re-election Tuesday night.

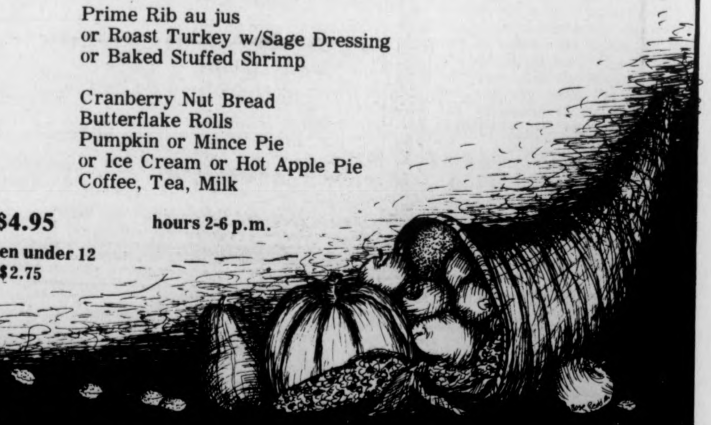
"They didn't seem to understand that I am trying to develop a spirit of tolerance among all women. I'm not trying to defraud anyone.

"As a matter of fact, I chose to keep my given name as a matter of identification. The people of Lowell knew and elected me as Gail Dunfey.

"Some people change their names to deceive — to get out of paying bills or to escape the law. It's obvious I wasn't doing this. I was trying to avoid confusion by continuing to be Gail Dunfey to the people of Lowell."

Miss Dunfey said she respects the decision of some women to adopt their husbands' names when they marry, but she believes other women should be tolerant and supportive of women who choose to retain their maiden names.

4TH ANNUAL
NEW ENGLAND
STUDENT
FILM FESTIVAL
The principal forum for student filmmakers in New England.
Screenings in Academic Bldg. I
8:00 Friday and Saturday evenings
1:30 Saturday afternoon
A special screening of films selected for ACADEMY AWARD nominations and film touring package to colleges and museums throughout the country will be held on Sunday evening at 8:00.
Tickets $1.50 per show
November 9, 10 & 11
Hampshire College
Amherst, Mass.



Celebrate Thanksgiving
at the
TOP OF THE CAMPUS
featuring
Tomato Juice or Fruit Cup
or Corn Chowder
Whipped Potato
Butternut Squash
Tossed Salad w/choice of dressing

Prime Rib au jus
or Roast Turkey w/Sage Dressing
or Baked Stuffed Shrimp

Cranberry Nut Bread
Butterflake Rolls
Pumpkin or Mince Pie
or Ice Cream or Hot Apple Pie
Coffee, Tea, Milk
$4.95 children under 12
$2.75
hours 2-6 p.m.

the NEW LEE HIGHWAY BOYS
at the Bluewall
thur. fri. + sat.
9P.M. – 1A.M

Cracks Delay Skylab

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) - Hairline cracks in an aging rocket have forced a five-day delay in the launching of the Skylab 3 astronauts.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration Wednesday set a new launch time of 9:37 a.m. Nov. 15. The shot had been scheduled Saturday.

Officials said there could be an additional delay if any problem is encountered in replacing eight stabilizing fins on the first stage of the 22-story Saturn 1B rocket.

Tiny cracks were discovered in each of the fins during a routine check Tuesday night. They were around bolts in fittings that attach the devices to the side of the rocket. Most were less than an inch long.

The rocket is to boost astronauts Gerald P. Carr, William R. Pogue and Edward G. Gibson toward a linkup with the Skylab space station, now orbiting unmanned 270 miles high. They are to spend a record 85 days aboard on man's third and final visit to the laboratory.

Officials said the cracks might expand under launching stresses, with a possible break-up of the rocket. So the decision was made to replace them.

A NASA spokesman said the cracks were "due to age, stress loads and corrosion." He said they probably were formed during a countdown test last week when the fuel tanks were pressurized during a test.

Family Held Hostage

WADENA, Minn. (AP) - The two fugitives who took a farm family of six hostage apparently were scared away from a neighboring farm after they were told that five or six men were expected at the house any moment.

The fugitives, John P. Morgan, 37, Glenwood, Minn., and William L. Winans, 18, Fergus Falls, Minn., took six members of the Elmer Wegscheid family hostage in their farm home a mile west of Wadena shortly after 6 p.m. Tuesday.

The pair held the family while negotiating with authorities for an airplance and a flight to freedom, but bad weather delayed their escape after authorities agreed to it.

Morgan was being held awaiting trial on two first degree murder charges. Winans was in jail on a burglary charge.

Before entering the Wegscheid home, the pair first went into another house, neighbors said.

Alice Genoch, a 43-year-old farmwife, said Morgan and Winans entered her home about 6 p.m.

"He, Morgan, pointed a gun at my throat, asked me for hard liquor, guns and ammunition," Mrs. Genoch said.

PANDORA sweaters
STYLED FOR HER
WEAR HOUSE

The un-dormitories.
Great off-campus living—indoors and out—at either of two modern apartment complexes, only minutes away by car or bike from Amherst College, downtown Amherst or UMass. Now accepting applications for September.

Brittany Manor
AMHERST
- courtesy bus to UMass and town
- 1, 2, 3 bedrm apts.
- heat & air conditioning
- wall-to-wall carpeting
- applianced kitchens
- master TV antenna
- laundry facilities
- parking, cars & bikes
- 2 swimming pools with sundecks
- 2 pro tennis courts
- lawns for softball, football, badminton

RENT: $200/MONTH
(utilities included)
Directions: East Dudly Rd. oppos. Grist Mill off Rte. 116

Mount Sugarloaf
SUNDERLAND
- 2-bedrm apts.
- heat & air conditioning
- roomy closets, storage
- wall-to-wall carpeting
- master TV antenna
- modern kitchens
- self-cleaning ovens
- electric ranges
- stainless-steel sinks
- dishwashers/disposals
- 2-door refrigerators
- laundry facilities
- swimming pool

No Lease Required
RENT: FROM $185
CALL 413-256-8534
Directions: On Route 47.

Plan now for your European Week-A-Way!

ENGLAND
SPAIN France
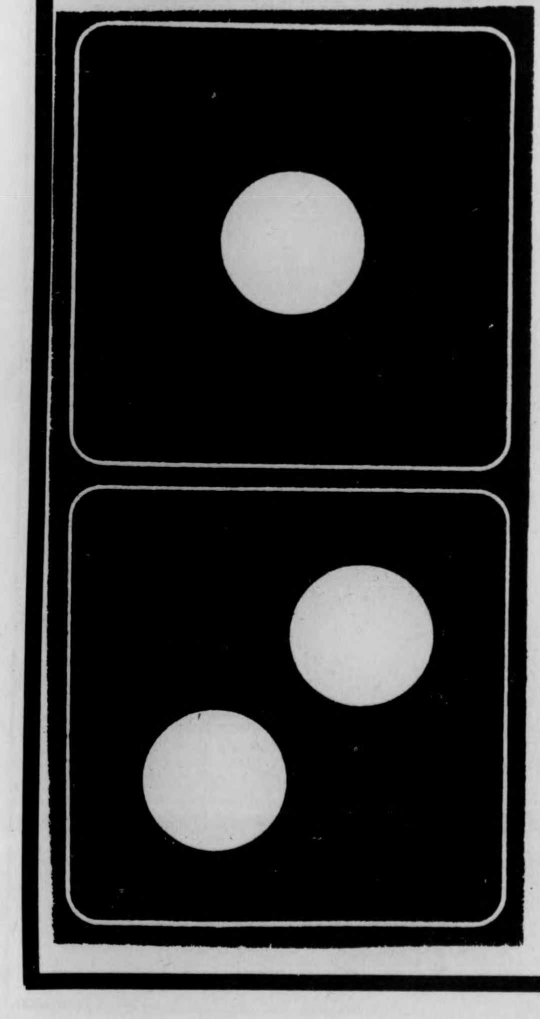
Peter Pan
WORLD TRAVEL
INC.

79 SO. PLEASANT ST.
Telephone 256-6704



Who's Best?
1. We deliver hot pizzas! Always!
2. We're open from 4 p.m. 'til the wee hours!
3. We have several delivery vehicles complete with OVENS!
4. Our delivery is ALWAYS FREE!
Try us out.
DOMINO'S
PIZZA
FREE DELIVERY 256-8587

Our Superb Cheese Pizza
12 - inch Pizza $1.75
16 - inch Pizza $2.95

Our Deluxe Pizza
Pepperoni, Mushrooms, Ham, Green Pepper, Onion
12 - inch Pizza $3.15
16 - inch Pizza $4.95

ADDITIONAL ITEMS
Mushrooms
Onions
Green Peppers
Pepperoni
Ground Beef
Fresh Sausage
on 12 - inch Pizza 35c
on 16 - inch Pizza 50c

25c Off
Any Small
PIZZA
(ONE COUPON PER PIZZA)
Name
Address
Expires Midnight 11-11

50c Off
Any Large
PIZZA
(ONE COUPON PER PIZZA)
Name
Address
Expires Midnight 11-11

Attorney For Students:

Hey Landlord!

By RICHARD M. HOWLAND

With the November chill winds, blow tenant complaints of the second half of the season. There are a variety of problems which develop in the cold season and an array of remedies which both tenants and landlords should understand.

The most obvious catastrophe involves heat and, incidentally, hot water. Contrary to some tenants' views, the landlord is as anxious about loss of heating services as the occupant. In a very short time, lack of heat may result in frozen pipes which, in turn, causes disastrous leaks and damage to the property which is very costly to repair. Consequently, even the most inconsiderate landlord wants the heating in order.

Lack of heat is also a code defect in residential housing which gives jurisdiction to building and housing inspectors to promptly identify and order corrections of heating problems. Failure to effect prompt repairs gives the tenant access to a variety of remedies.

More fundamental associated problems include insufficient insulation, late or non-existent snow plowing or clearing, and other service deficiencies. Before undertaking remonstrances or inordinate vigor, read your lease over to see if it assigns responsibility for the desired service to either party. If it does not, and it is not a landlord's responsibility under law, sanitary or building code, then it is probably the tenant's job if it is to be done. Most New England towns require sidewalks and steps to be cleared within a reasonable time after snowfall, often twelve hours. It is also usual for this to be a tenant's chore.

As with most landlord-tenant problems, the first step at correction is direct contact between the parties. If any legal action is considered in severe cases, all complaints are better if made in writing even when a phone call is made first. If you feel the landlord is not responding reasonably to a non-emergency type of problem, consider going to the Amherst Landlord-Tenant Relations Committee (if in Amherst) or consult the local building-housing inspector for advice.

In an emergency situation, if the landlord does not respond or cannot be reached, contact the building-housing inspector for immediate help.

If the situation is or becomes desperate, there are ways to develop a direct attack on the problem by withholding rent. This is less drastic today than it was a year ago because of some new developments in the law. Nevertheless, it is a very tricky step and should be done with a close attention to the statutes involved. Obviously, that is easier to do with the help of a lawyer and one should be consulted. Also keep in mind that rent strike or withholding under the law may be permissable in the right circumstances if done by the specific tenants who are being or claiming injury. In other words, a tenant can't expect to get court approval of rent withheld because of the tenant's neighbor's problem.

There are two statutory provisions for rent withholding.

Chapter 239 Section 8A of the General Laws provides a defense against eviction for non-payment of rent only if the premises which are leased for dwelling purposes do not meet state "code" requirements (ask building inspector) and the following

(Continued on P. 9)

Steak & Brew is...
Steak & People,
Shrimp
& Talk, Filet Mignon
& Fun, Steakburgers
& Laughter and all the salad you can make. All at low prices.
Price includes
beer, wine or sangria.
Steak & Brew
The Greatest Eating & Drinking Public House Ever!
SOUTH HADLEY
489 Granby Rd., U.S. Rt. 202
(413) 536-3100
STUDENTS!
Present your I.D. card to your waiter for
$1.00 OFF
PER PERSON
SUNDAY THRU THURSDAY AT DINNER ONLY.
NOT VALID WITH ANY OTHER
STEAK & BREW SPECIAL OFFER
GOOD UNTIL DEC. 31, 1973

the ALL NEW
T.O.C. SUNDAY
BUFFET
The Steamship Round is returning to the Campus Center Sunday Buffet at no extra cost to you. As a matter of fact, U. Mass. Students with a valid student I.D. will receive a 10% discount on the $4.50 price.
Sunday 4 - 8 p.m.

Buy the BSR 710 or 810.

Either way you'll get the shaft.
The BSR 810 and 710 have their brains in their shaft. A carefully machined metal rod holding eight precision-molded cams. When the cam shaft turns, the cams make things happen. A lock is released, an arm raises and swings, a record drops, a platter starts spinning, the arm is lowered, the arm stops, the arm raises again, it swings back, another record is dropped onto the platter, the arm is lowered again, and so on, for as many hours as you like.
Deluxe turntables from other companies do much the same thing, but they use many more parts—scads of separate swinging arms, gears, plates, and springs—in an arrangement that is not nearly as mechanically elegant, or as quiet or reliable; that produces considerably more vibration, and is much more susceptible to mechanical shock than the BSR sequential cam shaft system.
When you buy a turntable, make sure you get the shaft. The BSR 710 and 810. From the world's largest manufacturer of automatic turntables.
BSR
BSR (USA) Ltd.,
Blauvelt, New York 10913

Landlords And Other Problems

(Continued from P. 8)

procedure is followed:

1. The proper tenant at a time when rent was fully paid and up to date gave notice to the landlord;
   a. that because of such code violations all rent would be withheld until the violations were corrected;
   b. that a report of such violations had been issued by competent authority saying that the premises were unfit or a danger to health and safety;
2. That the violations were not caused by the tenant;
3. That the conditions causing the violations can be remedied without the premises being vacated.

A court may require that the tenant claiming this defense pay all rent due into court pending the outcome.

A recent landmark case, Boston Housing Authority v. Hemingway (293 N. E. 2d 831) (Mass. 1973) holds that while failure to follow the statutory procedure may subject the tenant to eviction, there is an implied warranty of fitness (habitability) which cannot be avoided by the landlord regardless of any lease provision to the contrary and if there are defects of a "code" nature, the landlord may be unable to collect rent even though an eviction is lawful.

A second statutory remedy is found in Chapter 111 section 127 L of the General Laws. It provides that where there are "code" violations that may endanger the health, safety or well-being of a residential tenant and written notice to that effect has been given by appropriate authority to the landlord, repairs must be started and finished within a specific time not in excess of 21 days. Failure of the landlord to comply results in the tenant gaining the right to withhold up to two month's rent for the purpose of effecting the necessary repairs or alternatively, to abate the rent preparatory to rescinding the tenancy and vacating.

As in all cases, the defect or violation must not be of the tenant's making.

(Continued on P. 10)

Bonnie & Clyde
Friday, Nov. 9th
7, 9, 11 — at Mahar
50c

SKI SPAIN
Earn 2 credits during intersession
Call 5-2801

"REAL TEARS"
in the HATCH
Thurs. & Fri.
9:00 p.m. - 1:00 a.m.

TIRED OF DINING COMMON'S FOOD AND LIFE IN THE DORM?
Come to SIGMA ALPHA MU
and experience co-ed living at its finest.
You won't be sorry!
WHEN? Wednesday, Nov. 7th 8:00 p.m.
Thursday, Nov. 8th 8:00 p.m.
WHERE? 387 N. Pleasant St. 545-0845
REFRESHMENTS

Ripley's Believe It Or Not with Head of Ripley's Organization
N. Pearlroth
Mon., Nov. 12, C.C.A. 8 p.m. dvp's
Limbo of the Lost
With Expert on Bermuda Triangle
John Wallace Spencer
Mon., Nov. 19, S.U.B. 8 p.m.
BELIEVE IT OR NOT
U.F.O.'s
Founder of International Bureau of Investigation of U.F.O.'s
Hayden Hewes
Fri., Nov. 16, S.U.B.
8 p.m.

Landlords...

(Continued from P. 9)

If you believe that some aspect of your tenancy is defective such that health, safety or well-being is adversely affected, contact the landlord or agent both orally and in writing. If the response is not adequate to correct the situation in a reasonable time, contact the local building or housing inspector or local government. Before withholding any rent, it is best to review the situation with an attorney. In any event, be alert to the statutory requirements before embarking on such a course in order to avoid misery to yourself later.

By the way, ALL TENANTS are URGED to pay their rent by CHECK or to insist upon a RECEIPT before paying cash. Many complaints have been made lately about improper accounting by Landlords of funds paid to them by check -- all in Franklin County, if anyone cares.

Gaining By Helping Others

Sue Goncarovs and Donna Stephenson have a very special story to tell. Sue and Donna cared enough that they chose to act rather than talk. They responded to the call for Volunteers by the Arts Extension Service of the Division of Continuing Education. Both now conduct workshops in the Amherst Nursing Home, one in poetry, the other in charcoal drawing. They find their work really challenging, really difficult, but neither would trade it for anything.

Are you talented and interested in the Arts? Would you like to see how they help people in hospitals? Nursing homes? Prisons? Schools? Orphanages? Would you like to learn by living? Earn credit by giving? Call Ricki at the Arts Extension Service NOW. 545-2013 (2014).

TONIGHT
RIBALD RUSS at 7:20 p.m.

Tonight, another enchanting encounter with Dr. Irwin Shirwin. Professor I. is on loan to WMUA as a special commentator from an anonymous donor, type "O". Void if inhibited.

JANET MOULDING REVIEWS at 7:25 p.m.

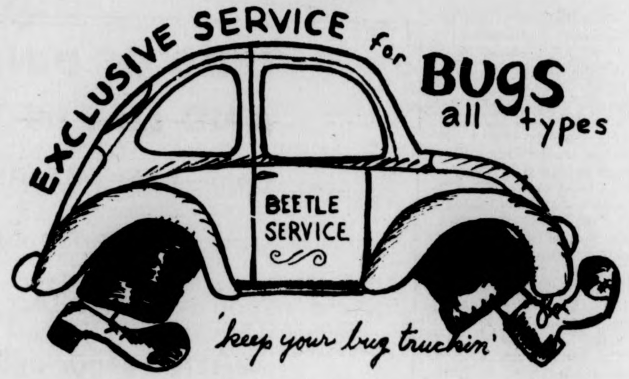
The Divine Ms. M sets sights on the Amherst College production of "Indians".

THE FOURTH TOWER OF INVERNESS at midnight

"The place we'll be is outside of time and space". And you can go along. Join Jack Flanders for an eerie journey to find THE FOURTH TOWER OF INVERNESS!

CATCH YOUR RAGTIME DUCK TODAY!

WMUA
STEREO 91.1 FM
FREE FORM/INFORMATIVE
RADIO



BEETLE SERVICE

BEETLE SERVICE • 2 Hampton Ave., Northampton 584-9758
Next to Peter Pan Bus Terminal
- Expert Service for Good Prices -

MSP
Massachusetts Society of Professors
American Association of University Professors aaup

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 8th
Speaker David Bartley
(Massachusetts House of Representatives)

Senator John Olver
Representative James Collins
Representative Edward McColgan
at
CAMPUS CENTER 1003
4:30 p.m. - 6:30 p.m.
Refreshments will be served

School Of Ed Offers New Learning Program

The School of Education is currently operating under a curriculum process called Flexible Curriculum whereby learning experiences do not necessarily conform to the three hour a week semester long University standard.

Below are listed those learning experiences which are starting next wek (Nov. 12-16) and which still have space available for additional enrollment. Students desiring to sign up for these learning experiences or get more information about them should contact The School of Education Registration and Advising Offices 4258 - Media and the Teacher - 3 Issues; Communications: Conditioning & Consciousness, Wed. 7-9:30. Nov. 14, 21, 28, Dec. 5, 12, 100 mods, Liane Brandon, Media Center. TRANS.

8328 - Understanding the Micro Teaching Concept: Micro Teaching Material Development, 10:00-12:00 & 1-3 hrs-wk by arrangement. Nov. 13, 20, 27, Dec. 4, 11, 100-200 mods. Robert Miltz, TBA TRANS.

4127 - Focus on the Human Being, Fri., Nov. 16 4:00-10:00, Sat., Nov. 17 All Day, 100 mods, Arthur Hilson, Hills 323 TRANS.

7820 - Education and Development in East Asia and the South Pacific. Fri, Mornings, 9:00 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. Nov. 16 .

Sundaes 45c
Between 2 - 5 p.m.
Today
thru Friday
THE GASLITE II
168 N. Pleasant St. 253-2291
Open 6:30 a.m.-10:30 p.m.

radio shack
of amherst
The Full Line
Audio Center In Hampshire County
•STEREO COMPONENT SYSTEMS
•COMPACT STEREO UNITS
•PORTABLE CASSETTE RECORDERS •PORTABLE TABLE MODEL RADIOS
•STEREO HEADPHONES
•CITIZENS BAND •2-WAY RADIO
•TELEVISIONS (color & B/W)
•ELECTRONIC PARTS AND MORE - MUCH MORE
LOCALLY OWNED & OPERATED
WE SERVICE WHAT WE SELL
STOP-BY - We're at
318 College St. (Rte. 9)
AMHERST - on the UMass bus route
MON.-THURS. 10 A.M. - 5:30 P.M.
FRIDAYS 'TIL 9 P.M. SATURDAYS 9 A.M. - 5 P.M.

Trucking isn't just for truck drivers.

It's also for college graduates.

The American trucking industry is a vast, complex, sophisticated transportation network. A network that moves almost anything you can think of. Almost anyplace you can think of.

And to keep things running smoothly, it needs people. All kinds of people. From computer analysts to cost accountants. Traffic controllers to communications specialists. People like you.

In return, trucking offers you good pay.

Plus a chance to grow fast and go as high as you want to. Because trucking is booming. And it's already the largest and fastest growing segment of the transportation industry. So you can start to contribute some mighty important things to the cause. Now. Not ten years from now.

How do you start a career in this dynamic business?

It's easy, if you know where to look. First, try your placement office. See if there are any trucking concerns interviewing. Next, check out your college placement manual for names and addresses. Finally, look to the surrounding area for companies in operation.

Find out for yourself what a great career trucking can be. Even if you don't drive.

ATA FOUNDATION INC

B.F.Goodrich
AMERICA'S PREMIER RADIAL TIRE MAKER.

B.F.Goodrich has brought you this message because we're proud to be a part of the American trucking industry. And, as a major developer of radial truck tires, torsilastic springs, caliper disc brakes and skid control systems, we know our future developments — and those of the trucking industry — will depend on people like you.

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF	Stephen G. Tripoli
MANAGING EDITOR	Mary T. Vorderer
BUSINESS MANAGER	Gilbert W. Fullerton
EXECUTIVE EDITOR	Jerald H. Lazar
NEWS EDITOR	Joan Fassnacht
SPORTS EDITOR	Stephen W. Crowe
PHOTO EDITOR	Alan H. Chapman
FINE ARTS EDITOR	Patrick Coffey
ADVERTISING MANAGER	Brent A. Wilkes
ASST. MANAGING EDITOR	Geoffrey L. Kurinsky
ASST. EXECUTIVE EDITOR	Dean P. Tucker
ASST. NEWS EDITOR	Sharon Hughes
ASST. SPORTS EDITOR	Steven DeCosta
ASST. PHOTO EDITOR	Stephen A. Ruggles
ASST. FINE ARTS EDITOR	Joyce Kosofsky

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR	Jan Alexander
EDITORIAL	Karen Gordon, Liz Thompson
SPORTS	Glenn Poster
DARKROOM	Judy Boucher, Janice Cerrone, Bob Gamache, Marcia Lappin
AD LAYOUT	Jane Levin

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administrators read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons, and letters represent the personal views of the authors.

The Collegian subscribes to the Associated Press and the Liberation News Service. Publication of their material does not constitute endorsement.

Editorial Points

There are some important issues which are able to unite a campus, and there are other important issues which tend to divide a campus. The Vietnam war, for example, brought together a great many students who had a common cause---ending it. The Middle East war, on the other hand, has split the University community in two. But now, there is an important contemporary social and political matter for which students from all walks of life, of all ideologies, have bound together toward a common goal-----getting Moe Howard to speak on campus.

*****

Moe Howard. Undoubtedly, many are wondering what the man will do when he gets on stage, especially without the aid of those other two stooges. We're willing to bet that he'll poke his own eyes out. Amidst enthusiastic applause, no less.

*****

What prompted somebody to even dream up the idea of getting Moe Howard here anyway? We understand that a survey was conducted last semester, in which students were given a list of "distinguished" names to select from, to decide who would speak on campus this year. Moe Howard's name wasn't on the list, of course, but at the top of the list it said: "Pick two!"

*****

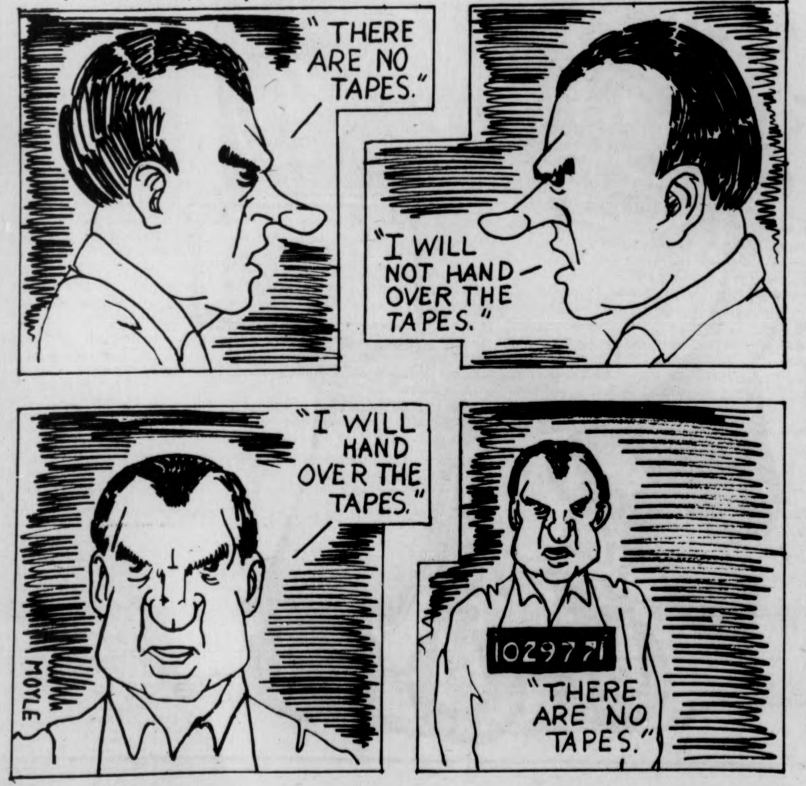
Could you imagine Moe Howard running this place for a few weeks? After all, the guy's practically a genius. At least he's full of good advice. "Every time you think, you weaken the nation," says Moe. Are you listening, Mr. Nixon?

*****

Hey, all you women's libbers out there! Have you noticed the pajamas at the Infirmary? The boys get blue, and the girls get pink! Whadda ya think of that?

*****

Rumor has it that there's going to be an Administration crackdown on coed bathrooms in dormitories. Are we to assume that things on campus are going so smoothly that they have nothing better to worry about than where you take a shower, or who you take it with?



"THERE ARE NO TAPES."
"I WILL NOT HAND OVER THE TAPES."
"I WILL HAND OVER THE TAPES."
MOYLE
1029771
"THERE ARE NO TAPES."

Matt Tackeff

Those Damn Zionists

The recurrence of hostilities in the Middle East has been accompanied by a barrage of anti-Israel propaganda on this campus. The outpouring of hostile sentiment against Israel, which has not necessarily been devoid of anti-Jewish undertones, usually emanates from one or more of three major sources: Marxist oriented Leftists, largely white and usually congregating around organizations such as the Young Workers Liberation League (a youth affiliate of the U.S. Communist Party) and the Young Socialist Alliance (Trotskyist); Arab students and faculty members; and Ideologists, largely of Afro-American stock, who claim the title of spokesmen for the Third World.

The first, and most frequent source of anti-Israel propaganda comes to us from the Leftist organizations. There has never been any love affair between Marxism and Zionism. Although many Zionists proclaim themselves to be in sympathy with the tenets of Marx and Engels, most non-Jewish Marxists regard Zionism with antipathy. Marx himself, who is usually referred to as having been a Jew (his parents converted to a Lutheran affiliation), was in fact bitterly hostile toward Judaism, which he believed to be a pseudo-religious front for monetary interests. He even went so far as to refer to Ferdinand Lasalle, a French socialist of the sydicalist school, as a "dirty Jew of Negro blood." Although Marx's blatant anti-Jewish tendencies have been effectively covered up by his spiritual descendents, the legacy has extended beyond Marx's grave. The Soviet government in Russia, which proudly proclaims its devotion to Marxism, has been historically hostile towards Zionism, partly because the great majority of Jews in Russia chose not to donate their lives to the cause of Bolshevism, but instead opted for emigration to Palestine or the United States, or for the preservation of a distinctly Jewish culture in the midst of a new Communist system which was openly hostile to alternative allegiances. And for most of the fifty-six years of the Soviet Dictatorship, the government has attempted to eradicate all forms of Jewish identity. This drive has been particularly intense in the light of the Soviet drive to achieve de facto hegemony in the Arab nations. As a result of this historical tension between Marxists and Zionism, communist sympathizers, regardless of the degree of allegiance to Soviet objectives, have consistently parroted an anti-Israel line.

The second major source of sentiment against Israel has come, as expected, from the numerous Arabs who study or teach at this University. What is surprising is the relative moderation of the most vocal Arab spokesmen. One could only hope that there is a sincerity in their expressions and that such apparent sobriety be shared by their compatriots in Arab lands who must now work for a final peace settlement with the Israelis.

The third, and perhaps the more vehement, source of anti-Zionism comes from the so-called Third World spokesmen. The exact definition of Third World has at times been nebulous, but it generally is referred to as consisting of anybody who views White European civilization as being the main culprit of inhumanity in the modern era. The developers of the Third World ideology have focused their attentions on African politics, particularly Black African politics. Since the war in 1967, many Black African politicians have openly criticized Israel and aligned themselves with the Arab cause. The exact cause of the split between Black African nations and Israel is hard to determine. It is very likely that economics played a greater part in the break in relations with Israel than did ideology. Typical of the shift in African sentiment is General Idi Amin, who several years ago achieved the distinction of being the first head of state of Islamic faith to make a state visit to Israel. After being bought over to the Arab side by the monetary overtures of Colonel Quadaffi, the leader of oil-rich Libya, Amin sent a letter to U Thant proclaiming that his shift in policy was prompted by Allah (the God of Islam), who came to Amin in a dream and informed him that Hitler pursued the best historical policy vis-a-vis the Jews.

In line with the pronouncements of African leaders such as Amin, the ideologists of the Third World have sought to characterize Israel as an outpost of White European Imperialism. Their proclamations of solidarity with Egypt and the Arab states on the grounds that Arabia is African and the Jews are European is not only absurd, but racist. Arab civilization is entirely distinct from African culture. To say that Egypt is a cradle of African culture is to completely ignore the facts of history. The Pyramids of the great Pharoahs were built with the sweat of Hebrew and Black African slaves. To say that the Jewish descendants of the original Hebrews have no legitimate ties to the African continent because their stock was "diluted" by European blood while they lived in Europe, is to ignore the fact that most Afro-Americans, including those who proclaim their ties to their ancestral continent, are similarly "diluted". The difference is merely genetic, since Black genes and character traits are less susceptible to erosion than are other races, including the Semitic race.

Matt Tackeff is a Collegian Columnist.

UMass For Sale

By BOB ROSSMAN

The new trend in higher education seems to be the lack of it. Since so many people nowadays have their degrees, a college education today is less valuable than it was ten years ago. Many high school students are being encouraged to prepare themselves for a trade rather than go to college. Applications to the nation's universities have dropped off sharply in the last year or two, and this will probably continue for a while.

This could present a problem. What happens if so many people get discouraged from going on with their education that there are only a handful of college bound students left? It could conceivably get to the point where a whole new approach is needed to draw people to your school.

For years, football and basketball coaches have been wining and dining athletes with the hopes of luring them to their shcool. Picture, instead, a bright high school senior sitting in his house one Sunday afternoon. The doorbell rings. He opens the door to see a distinguished looking gentleman standing there. The gentleman begins speaking, "Hello there. My name is Randolph Bromery, and I'm the Chancellor at the University of Massachusetts. We have a fine school over in Amherst, and I was wondering if I could take a little of your time to discuss...." When Mr. Bromery finally leaves, the kid calls up his friend to tell him what happened, only to find out that some guy named Wood just did the same to him.

UMass could also approach the situation through advertising. However, it would probably need two different ads. To impress the parents, this ad could be in a paper like the Boston Globe:

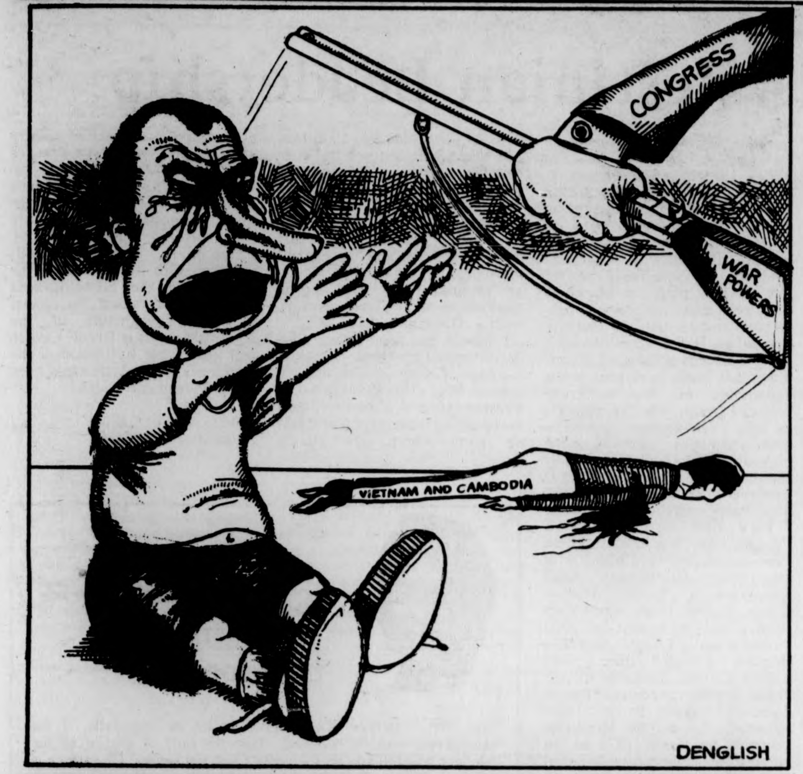
Are you looking for a fine institution of higher education? The University of Massachusetts is an established college with a fine reputation. We offer a broad range of educational opportunities, including renown departments such as liberal arts, engineering, and education. We even offer programs in which students can design and fulfill their own major. There is also a wide range of interest groups and social activities designed so that there is something available to every student for his liesure time.

Then there is the ad that would appear in papers like the Boston Phoenix (probably in the Personal's column):

Gotta go to college? Why not enjoy your four years? Try the University of Massachusetts in Amherst. You've all heard stories of what goes on at UMass, all those nasty things. Well, they're all true! The bars at the Campus Center sell more beer than any other establishment in the state. Actually, drinking and drugs abound all over the campus, without the hassles you get everywhere else. (And is this ever an institution for higher education!) There are about twenty thousand people at UMass, and ten thousand of them are of the opposite sex, and you don't have to bring a single one home to meet Mommy and Daddy. Also, there are educational opportunities available at UMass.

With competition being the name of the game, we've got to get people here, so little tricks are necessary. We all get screwed by the administration some time up here, but just think, this is a major step in UMass history. The administration actually gets to screw the students before they even get here.

Bob Rossman is a Collegian commentator.



Nixon Speech

By JOHN L. DONOVAN

Nixon's speech on the energy crisis was predictable. It also makes me wonder if the cure will be worse than the disease. It was predictable in that he used it as a ploy to refuel the waning fervor of his devotees, regarding his honesty, courage etc......ad nauseum. Secondly some of the solutions he proposes are as dangerous as the problem itself.

He proposes for one, to speed up the construction of atomic energy plants, which have neither been proven safe or practical and which many scientists consider to be dangerous. In addition he wants a bill, enabling the President to relax environmental standard when necessary, so as to permit the companies to continue supplying power as needed. All the hard years of fighting to keep us from choking to death, from raping the land indiscriminately, in essence to save ourselves, will have been worthless; and let no one delude themselves into thinking that this bit of executive power will not become another source of corruption, as large powerful companies, ignoring the will of the people affected, destroy the environment with impunity, as the companies, by contributing to presidential campaign coffers, lick the hand that feeds them.

Finally he proposes, as part of this package, a tax (in case of emergency of course) on gasoline. What, pray tell, prevents this tax from being extended to other things once he has the power? My objection is not only that this is taxation without representation, but, how will we be taxed? Will it be regressive, i.e. a percentage increase, so that the poor and the middle class end up bearing the burden, or will it be based on income, and thus burden the wealthy? I have my suspicions.

In short this crisis is the deus ex machina needed by the president and the large power companies, chafing under public scrutiny, to use as leverage for a carte blanche to do what they damn well please with the environment, and with all of us.

I do not deny the existence of the problem. I do not deny that it is not grave. But if solving it means giving these already too powerful people more power, I would rather read by candle light and freeze than have my comfort come from those who are used to screwing in more than just lightbulbs.

John Donovan is a Collegian Commentator.

Letters To The Editor

Protest Plight Of Soviet Jews

To The Editor:

In Nov. 7 edition of the Collegian there appeared an article and a letter having to do with the current crisis in the Mid East. Both of these were so false, so unfactual, and so malaligned that they do not warrant an answer. To answer the material put out by Chandler, Andrews and Porter, would be to lower myself to a very inane, uninformed level.

To devote my energies to a more positive field, on Nov. 19 the Leningrad Philharmonic Orchestra will be coming to UMass. On Nov. 18, Congressman Father Robert Drinan will be speaking on "Will Detente Devastate Jews of Russia and Israel". On Nov. 19, there will be a peaceful, meaningful protest outside of the Philharmonic to bear witness to the Plight of Russian Jewry.

The Soviet Union does not separate Politics from culture. This is pointed out by such facts as the dismissal of Valery Panov from the Leningrad Kirov Ballet, because of his desire to emigrate to Israel; the dismissal of all Jewish members of the Soviet Radio and Television Orchestra, after their Jewish conductor, Yuri Aronovich, left for Israel; also the dismissal of Frida Lemberg, as administrator of the State Philharmonic Society of Latvia, after she applied for exit visa to go to Israel.

All of these people are either in a Siberian labor camp, or undergoing "mental reconstructioning".

The Drinan speech will take place on Nov. 18 at 7:30 p.m. in Bowker Aud. The protest will take place at 7:15 outside of the main entrance of Curry Hicks Cage, on Nov. 19.

It's a lot easier to help a Soviet Jew than to be one.

Lawrence A. Cohen
Western Mass. Student Struggle for Soviet Jewry

There's More To Life Than Studying

To The Editor:

In response to the article by Karen Monaco in the Collegian of Tuesday, Nov. 6, I would like to say that Ms. Monaco is slinging a little mud that she has no right to have her hands in. Most people would agree with me that a little emotional release is a good thing. After a long week of studying and attending classes the pressures build pretty high, and some outlet is needed. I happen to think a little Saturday night yelling is good for me, and contrary to Ms. Monaco's sentiments I do have some tough courses I must work with during the week. Like Circuit Analysis, Physics and Calculus. She has no right to generalize about various types of "morons" until she knows something about them.

As for primitive beings I would hate to say that if Ms. Monaco has even been to a sports event of any kind she fits right in with the rest of us, because if a sports event isn't a form of emotional release than I'm Spiro Agnew.

If Ms. Monaco thinks she has to study every night of the week, I pity her for the boorish vegetable she must be. I might also point out that she has come to the wrong place if she wants to study Saturdays. The majority of UMass students have nothing further from their minds than academics on Saturdays.

Yes, Ms. Monaco, people are basically good, but if you are going to sit like a stuffed shirt and deny an emotional release to them they are going to be something else. Like basically nuts.

By the way, in case you wish to pursue your career as a stuffed shirt there's a nice new red brick building that you go to to help you do it in peace and quiet. I think it's called the library.

Steven H. Gardner

Unfair Ticketing

To The Editor:

I had my car towed last Wednesday from lot 11 (V lot). Allegedly I had parked in an access lane. I did park next to an access lane but not in or blocking one.

I don't want to belabor my innocence, but I'd like to know how they can tow someone for parking in an access lane when they don't tell you where the access lane begins or ends. I mean c'mon guys, let's be fair. Put up some sort of signs, markers, traffic islands, etc. to tell us stupid students where to park.

The police told me that all it takes is a little common sense to figure out where to and where not to park. I agree I parked leaving plenty of room for others cars to get by, but look what happened to me.

The present system allows too much leeway for the police to determine our common sense. I propose some form of marking off allowable places to park, so that the fate of our cars are not left up to a judgement call by a tow-happy cop.

Glen Manseau

Letters Policy

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian welcomes all letters to the editor. They must be signed, and include the author's address and phone number. Also, all letters must be typed, double-spaced, at sixty spaces per line, and no more than two pages.

Organizations may submit letters, but they must include a name and phone number for reference purposes.

All letters are subject to editing, for either content or space, according to the judgement of the editors. Due to space limitations, there is no guarantee that all letters received will be printed.

Film Prices Are Up

To The Editor:

Steve Goldberg's statement in a letter (11-7) that film rental has not increased is misleading. If he is at all aware of general film rental now compared with two years ago, he would know that although certain minimum rental figures have decreased, but the general trend is for their increase. For example, two years ago the film "Woodstock" became available non-theatrically for the outrageous rental price of $400 against 50 percent of the gross receipts. In time, prices drop, as this did. It is now offered for $300 against 50 percent. But this year, a comparable film became available: "Easy Rider," for a rental price of $600 against 65 percent of the gross receipts. The average film of two years ago became avilable for about $250 or so. Now the average is at least $350. Then, too, there is the added problem that some film distributors are eager to see us raise our prices, giving them more money, and stipulate that instead of 65 percent of the receipts, they require 65 cents per person in the audience. Obviously, a group cannot risk an admission price of even 75 cents, since there are other expenses which must be met.

I will admit, however, that groups take advantage of the public's ignorance in this area, and charge whatever they think they can get. Often, though, this is not with malicious intent, but necessary for the group's existence. But do not pass judgement on the fairness of admission prices unless you know the facts.

Alison S. Walker

Marx Not Moe

To The Editor:

Congratulations, Normund Strautin!

Your idea to bring Groucho Marx to UMass instead of Moe Howard is an excellent idea. If the Distinguished Visitors Program is interested in bringing in a really great comedian (Who would dare put the 3 Stooges on the same plain as the Marx Bros.?) then Groucho's the one you want.

Glen Manseau

"Whitmoe" For A Day

To The Editor:

No matter how many times Atty. Gen. Richardson may resign, or Ozzie Nelson's reruns are shown on TV, we can still see Moe Howard in the 3 Stooges.

I strongly urge Senate passage of motion #74-S44, in their attempt to get Moe Howard on Campus, and while on Campus have the name of Whit-changed to the "Whit-Moe" administration building.

I also urge CC/SU Board of Governors motion 73-168-AH17 supporting the above Senate motion.

The Peoples Voice must be heard!

William A. Worden

More Moe

To The Editor:

When I was in my early school years, I was forbidden from watching the Three Stooges. To my pleas I was answered, that there was just too much violence and that it would affect me. BULLSHIT. I used to sneak downstairs at 7:00 on Saturday mornings to watch them anyway.

I'll be sitting in the front row when he comes.

Matthew Kravitz

And More Moe

To The Editor:

I am writing in regards to your article in last weeks Collegian which asked for student support for the legendary humorist Moe Howard. I am an avid supporter and fan of the Three Stooges, and I offer my complete support and encouragement. If there are any people who have not had the opportunity to see the great trio they are the ones that should get their eyes poked. Anyone who would discourage the appearance of Moe Howard is in my mind a true IGNORAMUS.

Geoffrey W. Eekler

Commentary

The Future Of Palestinian Leadership

By MARCELO DASCAL

There is some confusion and obscurity in the account (Collegian, Nov. 2) of what I said in the Middle East Teach-In of last Thursday night. Since my main purpose in participating in the ongoing debates on the Middle East is to help clarify the issues and to put forward some ideas that may be useful in bringing about peace to the region, it is very important for me to have the record as clear and unambiguous as possible. Let me then recall briefly the major points I wanted to make, and add some remarks connected with recent developments.

All Arab leaders have consistently stated that their purpose in this, as in the preceding wars waged against Israel, is not merely to get back the territories occupied by Israel in 1967, but also — and mainly — to "restore the rights of the Palestinian people". I see no reason not to take this statement of aims at its face value, in view of the fact that wars were waged against Israel by the Arab states before 1967, and in 1967, when the problem of the "occupied territories" did not exist. The crucial question, then, is: what does the conveniently ambiguous phrase, "restoration of the rights of the Palestinian people" mean?

One authoritative interpretation is that offered by the Palestinian Liberation Organization, headed by Yasir Arafat, and backed by the Arab League and by all Arab States. For Mr. Arafat, the only way to restore the rights of the Palestinians" is to destroy the state of Israel with all its institutions, "replacing" it with a "democratic, secular state", with an Arab majority. (Let me point out in passing that, except for the clause requiring an Arab majority, Israel fulfills all these requirements: Israel is a democratic state, and it is also "secular", if this term is taken to mean, as suggested by Dr. Mohammed Mehdi — N.Y. Times, October 23, 1973 — a "multi-religious and pluralistic society"). To use Mr. Arafat's own words:" ......our basic aim is to liberate the land from the (Mediterranean) Sea to the (Jordan) River, and from Naqoura (to the North) to Aaba (to the south). (Free Palestine, September 1970). This covers the whole territory of Israel in the pre-1967 borders. It is this territory, and not the territories occupied by Israel in June 1967 that should be "liberated" according to Mr. Arafat: "We are not concerned with what took place in June 1967 nor in eliminating the consequences of the June war. The Palestinian Revolution's basic concern is the uprooting of the Zionist entity (i.e., the state of Israel) from our land, the land of our ancestors, and liberating it". (Ibid.)

These aims have been consistently endorsed by the leaders of the Arab states, not only through their economic, military, and political support of Mr. Arafat's group, but also through their formal statements. This is true of "irresponsible" leaders like Colonel Khadaffi ("for me, the essential is not to take back from Israel the territories it won in 1967, but to liberate the Palestinians, all the Palestinians, from the Zionist yoke" — N.Y. Times, October 23, 1973), as well as of "moderates", like President Sadat ("The Zionist invasion, as I have said, will not be ended with the return of our conquered lands. This invasion has gone on during the lifetime of our children as well. Israeli aggression will continue even after the most urgent task has been accomplished, which is the liberation of the land", Speech to the Nation, June 10, 1971, as reported by the Middle East News Agency Cairo).

It is obvious that no Israeli could accept a "peace" based on the withdrawal of Israeli forces from the Sinai Peninsula, for example, if it were not coupled with an explicit, unambiguous, public and forceful "withdrawal" by President Sadat from his support of the above mentioned aims of the Palestinian Liberation Organization. This "withdrawal" could be made clear and public by, among other things, ousting the PLO from the Egyptian dominated Arab League, forbidding military or economic support to that organization, etc. Such acts could be eventually taken as an indication of Egypt's truly "peaceful" intentions. Similar steps should be required from all other Arab states, in accordance with resolution 242 of the Security Council (Nov. 22, 1967) which calls for "termination of all claims or states of belligerency and respect for and acknowledgment of the sovereignty, territorial integrity and political independence of every state in the area and their right to live in peace within secure and recognized boundaries free from threats or acts of force."

To require the public rejection of the destructive aims of the Palestinian Liberation Organization does not mean necessarily to require the rejection of any solution whatsoever to the Palestinian problem. This problem must be solved, if peace is to come to the Middle East. But it must be solved without re-creating the old Jewish problem that the State of Israel has begun to solve. What we need now are constructive, and not purely destructive proposals for the solution to the Palestinian problem. (see my first letter to the Collegian, a month ago) One such proposal is that of the creation of an independent Palestinian state, beside Israel, on the West bank of the Jordan and the Gaza strip, and eventually also the East Bank of the Jordan river. Whereas Palestinian leaders in the West Bank and in Gaza have manifested support for this idea, the PLO has refused, up to now, even to discuss it. As a matter of fact, the terrorists of the PLO have adopted the view that any Palestinian who would accept publicly such a proposal, would be considered a "traitor", and would be summarily "executed". In many cases such executions were indeed carried out. This raises the fundamental question of who represents the Palestinians: the PLO, the Arab states, the elected municipal officials in the West Bank and Gaza?

Up to now, the Palestinian people has never been consulted in matters concerning its own destiny. Decisions of vital importance (the rejection of the 1947 UN partition plan, for example) have been taken for them by non-elected leaders, like the Mufti of Jerusalem, Haj Amin Al-Husseini, or by the heads of the Arab States. The PLO itself is nothing but a federation of five different terrorist groups, who "represent", at best, a few thousand terrorists each, and impose their will on the population of the refugee camps by the sheer force of terror. The PLO pretends to be a "revolutionary" and "progressive" force. How "revolutionary" and "progressive" is it in fact? These "revolutionaries" are allied with the most reactionary Arab governments, Saudi Arabia, Lybia, Kuweit, from which they receive all the money for their "revolution". Their "guerrilla warfare" is waged either abroad (Munich, Rome, Amsterdam...) or from bases abroad; (Syria, Lebanon, Egypt). In their rare incursions inside the territories occupied by Israel, they do not receive any support from the local Palestinian population as is shown by the big amounts of food and water found with those captured. Their struggle, therefore, is not a "guerrilla" struggle, neither according to Mao's definition nor to Che Guevara's, and any comparison between them and the Vietcong is an insult to the Vietcong. Their major technique is indiscriminate terrorism, not only against innocent Jews, but mainly against the Arab population itself (every grenade thrown in Gaza usually kills several Arab citizens, and practically no Israeli soldiers)

In the three years (1967-70) 79 Arabs were killed and 640 injured by the terrorists themselves. They have, in fact, incited pogroms against the Jewish population, merely using the Fascist methods of the Mufti, who systematically mudered all the Palestinian and Arab leaders who dared to come to any sort of agreement with the Jewish population in Palestine, and who finally became the most enthusiastic Arab ally of Hitler, urging the accomplishment of the "final solution" to the Jewish problem. All these facts indicate the true nature of this "revolutionary" and "socialist" movement. It is strange to see groups around the world and on this campus calling for support for such a movement.

I believe that most Palestinians do not support the views, aims, and methods of Yasir Arafat, and his men. His "leadership" is irresponsible and, ultimately, not a real political leadership. For it sets up aims which are purely destructive and realistically unattainable. This is only a source of severe frustrations for the Palestinian people. I believe and I hope that when the moment for peace negotiations comes, a responsible and representative Palestinian leadership will emerge, with the courage, the power and the consciousness necessary for taking the crucial step — recognition of the legitimate rights of Israel — which will lead to the fulfillment of the legitimate and realistic aspirations of the Palestinian people.

Dr. Dascal is a Visiting Linguistics Professor.

Barbara Stewart
on CHRISTMAS
COUNTDOWN (7)

Now, just a minute! Don't throw rocks, or snowballs, if the weatherman can be believed. Hear me out! A glance at the calendar will tell you that I haven't lost my senses. Christmas is less than seven weeks away, thirty-eight shopping days to be exact. If you think that that's a long time, watch how quickly the days fly. You'll find yourself with less than a week to go and your shopping lists not even complete.

You can be certain that I wouldn't be telling you all of this unless I had a solution, right? Trust me to come up with something. The answer is simple. Now that I've reminded you that Christmas is acomin', sit down right now and make a list of all the folks you'd like to remember this year. Then, before you've made up your mind what to give Aunt Josie or your favorite niece, talk with one of the gals at Stewart's College Towne. They're full of fresh new gifty ideas for 1973, from inexpensive little stocking stuffers to out-of-this-world ensembles for that special someone.

If it's new for Christmas, in Northampton, you'll find it first at. . .

STEWART'S COLLEGE TOWNE
96 Main Street, Northampton

The Lighthouse

Featuring fresh cooked seafood at low prices. Thrill to selecting your own lobster in our pool, or take home fresh seafood.

ALSO TAKE OUT SERVICE.

Rte. 116 Sunderland, on the Amherst town line. Tel. 549-6662.

The Paulist is a modern man of today working for tomorrow seeking answers to the problems that beset us in cities and suburbs in parishes and on campus praying sharing counseling celebrating
The Paulists modern priests on the move serving Christ throughout North America

For more information about the Paulists, send for THE PAULIST PAPERS—a new vocation kit of posters, articles and recordings.

Write to:
Father Donald C. Campbell,
Room 103
Paulist Fathers
415 West 59th St., New York, N.Y. 10019 hiking boots camping boots backpacking boots mountaineering boots for guys and girls

DUNHAM'S
CONTINENTAL TYROLEANS®
Mathews SHOE STORE
S. Pleasant St., Amherst
Open Fridays 'til 9

Notices

ALPHA ZETA
Meeting next Tues., Nov. 13 featuring Dean Denison of Stockbridge. All members and guest cordially invited.

CARNIVAL NIGHT
At Alpha Chi Ometa on Nutting Ave. at 7:30 tonight. Come down and clown around with us. Call 545-2152 for rides and info.

COIN CLUB
Meeting Thurs., Nov. 15, 805 C.C. 7:30-10:00 p.m. We're in the money! Come to our meeting and you will be too!

CONCERT COMMITTEE
Security, Marshalls: Pay is being held up by bureaucratic and computer hassles. So hang in there.

CONCERT COMMITTEE
All members of the Oct. 28 concerts stage crew and all members of the S-A Committee report to the Cage on Nov. 8 from 4-6 p.m. Be prepared.

GAY WOMEN'S CAUCUS
To meet Thurs., Nov. 8 at 7:30, 4 East Dickinson Lounge, discussion of funds and further direction and a little music. All women welcome.

HELP!
Orientation meeting for all potential volunteers tonight at 7:00 in the People's Market. Please come-we need you.

HEYMAKERS
Club and class workshops tonight 8-10 Cape Cod Lounge. Beginners who are behind or have missed classes are urged to come.

JEWISH WOMEN
Women-this is your chance to meet informally and talk. The group cannot exist without your support. Come tonight to Hillel (302 S.U.) at 8:30.

JEWISH ARTS AND CRAFT
Tonight-come test your skill at baking challah. Everyone's welcome. Bake-in will be held in Hillel at 6:30.

MEETING FOR U.G. ART AND B.F.A. MAJORS
Meeting of undergraduate Art and BFA Majors and Art Faculty, Mon. Nov. 12, 7:30-9:30 p.m. in C.C. Rm. 163 complex. Gen. discussion of new department structure, procedures, and special programs. Gen. meeting adjourn to 1003 C.C. cocktail lounge at 9:15.

LANDSCAPE OPERATIONS CLUB
Meeting Nov. 8, Thurs. 7:00, room 803 C.C. Please be on time.

NON TRADITIONAL STUDENTS MEET
Come share-each Thursday at noon. Old Chapel (library).

NORTHAMPTON VOLUNTEERS
The Northampton bus will leave at 6:30 from in front of Hasbrouk, it also stops at Paterson House (Sunset Ave side) at 6:35. Be ready to decorate. Everyone is welcome.

PARACHUTE CLASS FORMS TONIGHT
Come to C.C. 811-815 tonight to get all the info. and see a parachute flick. Last class till Spring; remember we get large discounts. Come to Turner Falls Airport some weekend and watch. You might just get the Rush!

POLITICAL SCIENCE MAJORS
Gen. meeting of Political Science majors concerning Spring semester registration and related matters

(Continued on P. 17)

IN CONCERT
impulse! abc RECORDS
JAZZ ON TOUR
NEW DIMENSIONS
IN CONTEMPORARY MUSIC
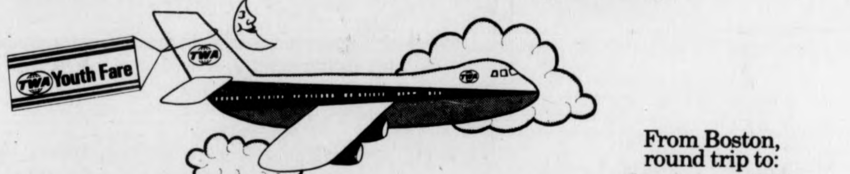
KEITH JARRETT

GATO BARBIERI

SAM RIVERS

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 11 7:30 p.m.
Amherst College Gymnasium, $3.50
TICKETS: Campus Center, UMass - New Record Shop, For the Record, Amherst.

With TWA
it pays to be young.
We save you money when you fly.



From Boston, round trip to:

London	$221
Paris	$233
Madrid	$233
Geneva	$238
Rome	$238
Athens	$323

International airfares change Jan. 1, '74

Winter's a great time to visit Europe. The crowds are gone. The prices are down. And TWA's Youth Fares are even lower than they are during the summer.

To qualify, you have to be between 12 and 23 and make your reservations within seven days of your departure.

Airfare does not include local airport tax or security charges.

We save you money when you land.

You'll get guaranteed accommodations without advance reservations at a student hotel for just $5.20 a night, in 50 European cities. That includes breakfast, tips, service charges and, believe it or not, even some sightseeing. Nobody else gives you anything like it. Pick up your Stutelpass* Coupon Books at any TWA office or see your Campus Rep.

When you land, take your boarding pass or ticket† to any TWA Ticket Office in London, Paris, Frankfurt, Rome, Madrid, Athens or Amsterdam, and you'll get a book of bonus coupons good for all kinds of free things as well as discounted extras like bicycles, theater tickets, sightseeing, meals and lots, lots more.

*Stutelpass is a service mark owned exclusively by TWA.
†Any airline ticket is acceptable.

TWA is what travel should be.

On March 2, 1972
Colonel Sanders introduced

"The Student Special"

Well Folks, it's back again at that special price of 99¢

JUST FOR STUDENTS, and here's what you get.

- 2 pc's of Kentucky Fried Chicken
- Colonel's Hot Bake Beans
- Colonel's Special Cole Slaw
- One Hot Roll
- One Pre-Pack

99¢

* Student I.D. Required

RESTAURANT AND TAKE-HOME

For variety —
READ OUR MENU.

- All chicken items available in Colonel Sanders' original recipe and his extra crispy, world famous H. Salt Fish & Chips.
- H. Salt fish are tender, golden fillets — the authentic English style, tender, sweet clams, jumbo fried Shrimp.
- The above items are available in units of Snacks, Dinners, Jumbo Packs.
- Colonel Burger — 1/4 lb. of Charcoal Grilled Beef, with the Colonel's special sauce.
- All kinds of Salads and Fixin's. Cole Slaw, Hot Baked Beans, Macaroni, Green Beans, Potato Salad, Corn on Cob, Creamy Potatoes with Cracklin Gravy. All items are prepared in our kitchen — individual, pint, gallon units.
- Selected Desserts, Chocolate, Vanilla, Butterscotch Puddings. Brownies, warm and cold Beverages.

America loves what the Colonel cooks™
"it's finger lickin' good."

Kentucky Fried Chicken
EXTRA CRISPY
Kentucky Fried Chicken

Kentucky Fried Chicken®

Route 9 256-8745 Hadley

Notices (cont.)

(Continued from P. 15)
Thurs. 7:30 Thompson 106.

PRE-VET CLUB
Meetings 7:00 p.m. rm. 113 C.C. Nov. 8 featuring Dr. Edmunds.

SCIENCE FICTION LIBRARY
Hello! We exist, 5000 volumes. 434 S.U.

SKI PATROL
Meeting tonight in Rm. 151 Goessman at 6:30. First aid refresher (Nov. 11) will be discussed and practiced with guest speaker.

SIGMA ALPHA MU
Informal rushes on Thurs., Nov. 8, at 8:00 p.m. All university men and women invited. 387 N. Pleasant St. 545-0845. Refreshments served.

SOKO-LOK MOI
Soko-Lok Moi will meet Thurs. to discuss the principles of Ming LA-Hoi. Usual place, usual time.

SOUTHWEST RESIDENTS
There is a paid reporter open in SW to cover all the area centers for the Collegian. Pick up applications in JQA lobby (Assembly office.)

STUDENTS OF OBJECTIVISM
Anyone interested in Ayn Rand's philosophy is invited to meet in Rm. 902 C.C. at 7:30 tongiht.

VISITING PHILOSOPHER
Professor J.N. Findlay of Boston University will give a paper entitled "Hegel's Conception of Subjectivity," Fri., Nov. 9 at 3:30 p.m., 804-808, C.C.

WANT HELP!
Wondering what you're doing here? Are these four years worth it? What does it all mean? Let us help you help yourself. Central Area Counseling Center B-2 Gorman, 5-0894.

WMPIRG
All students who volunteered to help with the Toy Safety Project please attend the training session tonight at 7 p.m. in Rms. 805-809 C.C.

FOUND
In Gorman House-black cat with white belly and white paws. Please call 546-6449 or 546-6450.

Harpo--you left your horn in my car on 10-31 Halloween. Call 549-3720.

Trickman, 3 subject notebook found at Whitmore. Pick up at C.C. lost and found.

Meetings Held For Counseling Center

Steps are being made towards dealing with the complex anxieties students experience today. The Student Development and Career Planning Center task force (a student coalition) is attempting to motivate a higher level of relevence and effectiveness in the delivery of human services.

The schedule for open hearings is: November 12 Whitmore third floor Board Room 3:30-5:30; November 14 Campus Center - Student Senate Meeting 7:00-9:00; November 15 New Africa House - Second floor Lounge 7:00-9:00; November 19 Colonial Lounge - Student Union 6:00-8:00.

All students are invited to relate their experiences and opinions about counseling and career planning at the university.

For any additional information please contact any member of the task force or : Chyrlene Boyd 549-1857, Ted Slovin or Bob White 545-0333.

Invitation To Women's Caucas

The first general meeting of the UNIVERSITY WOMEN'S CAUCUS will be held tonight at 7:30 in the Colonial Lounge (first floor of the Student Union). Established last semester, the Caucus has formed interest groups to study such issues as child care, feminist studies, methods of upgrading the positions of classified employees, and "affirmative action" policies of the University. The aim of the Caucus is to give further support to women on campus and to pool research and resources with other women. Students, professional and classified staff are welcome.

APPEARING
at the
NEW Country House
Art Steele
Blues Band
8:30 to 12:30
Thursday Night
River Road
HATFIELD, MASS.

Jelly Bag UNLTD.
WATERBEDS
HEATERS - LINERS FRAMES
5 Year Guarantee
ALL SIZES
Call 584-5136

(Tripod's $424.00 stereo system)

More than you expect for less than you expected.

Stereo systems in the $400 price range, while not unpleasant to listen to, have not as a rule provided that last bit of musical accuracy for those who take their listening very seriously. Our $424.00 Advent Sony BSR ADC stereo system has changed all that, as many of our critical and satisfied customers who own it will testify.

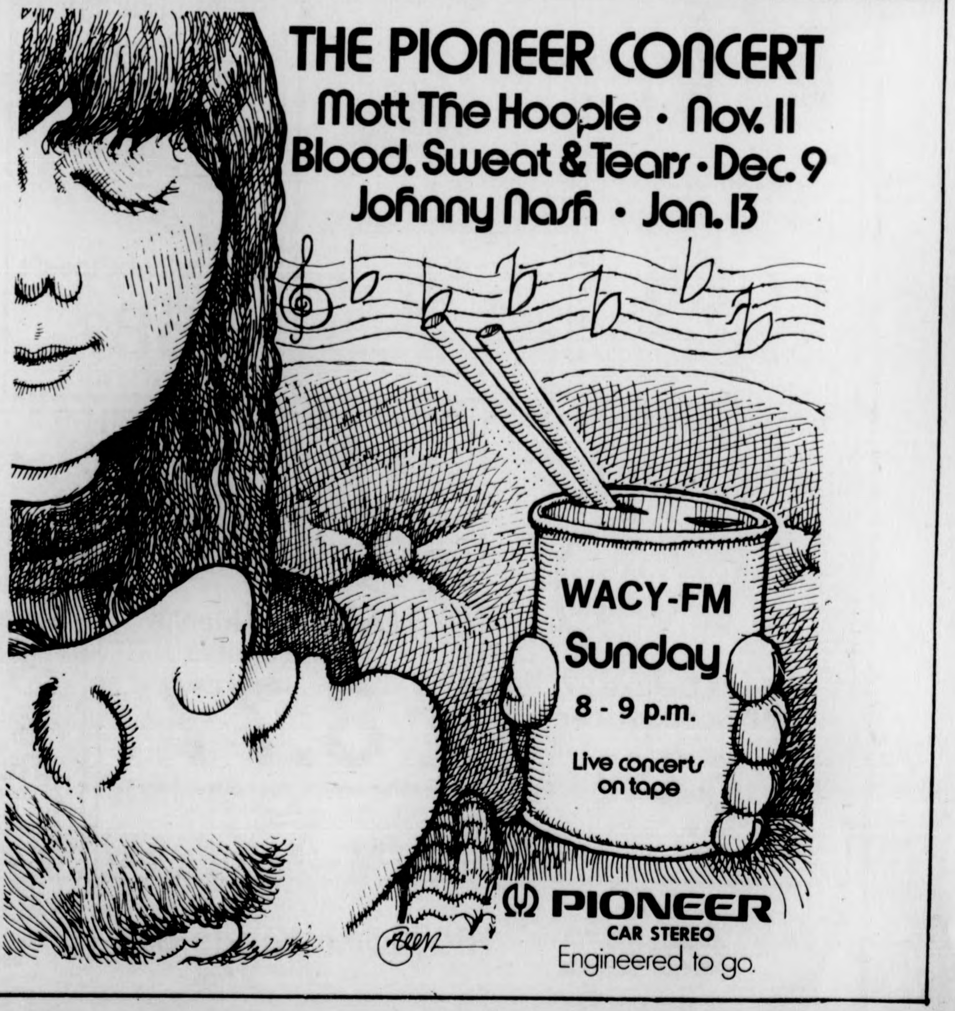
The Smaller Advent loudspeakers are a startling speaker bargain, of which highly-respected Stereo Review Magazine said, "Any preconceived ideas you may have about the limitations of sub-compact speaker systems will, we think, be shattered." The Sony STR 6046A AM/FM stereo receiver provides sufficient power (over 40 RMS watts of it) to handle the most tortuous musical passages in the average living room, and its sensitive tuner will capture your favorite radio stations with clarity. The BSR 510 AXE automatic turntable with a ADC K7E cartridge and diamond stylus will treat your records gently and add no unpleasant sounds of its own.

Together, these remarkable components cost just $424.00 a saving of $72.00 over their usual individual prices. If you've thought that a stereo system in this price range couldn't provide quite enough sonic satisfaction, we invite you to visit Tripod's and learn otherwise.

TRIPOD AUDIO

98 N. Pleasant St.
Amherst, Mass. 01002

219 Main Street
Northampton, Mass. 01060



CALDOR

Converse All Star & Pro Ked Basketball Sneakers
Our Reg. 10.95 9.88
Heavy duck on duck uppers, cushioned insole and arch supporters. Rubber soles for quick starts and stops. Variety of colors. 6-1/2 to 13.

Super Purchase!
Ladies' Acrylic Knit Tops
Fantastic Value! 3.99
Sleeveless U-neck and button front style in popular flat knit, holiday colors.

Oldie But Goodie . . .
Washout and Embroidered Jeans
Our Reg. 11.99 to 13.99
9.90
A touch of nostalgia! Professionally washed out denims in novelty styles, some embroidered! Hurry for best choice.

Warm, Handsome Chill Chasers —
Men's Woven Flannel Sport Shirts
Our Reg. 5.99 4.88
Top quality cotton woven Tartan plaids, expertly tailored and matched. Tails; sizes small to extra large.

Men's Heavyweight Crew Sweatshirt Our Reg. 2.99 2.27
Cotton, assorted colors; crew neck, S-XL.

Rhinestone Fashion Leader Embroidered Sweaters
Our Reg. 11.99 8.88
Long sleeve, turtleneck ribs with assorted rhinestone appliques. Be first with this fashion! S, M, L.

Panasonic
Flip 'N Style Hair Dryer Styler
Our Reg. 9.88 7.88
3-way thermostatic heat control; 350 watts for fast drying. Compact — folds and unfolds for travel.

Hi-Lo Intensity Lamp
Our Reg. 6.99 $5
Polished chrome arm and trim; arm adjusts to any position. Includes bulb. Brown or black finish.

Aqua Net Hair Spray
39c
13 oz. $1.09 Size

Gleem Toothpaste
68c
7 oz. $1.13 Size

Miranda Sensomat RE F/1.8
Our Reg. 179.99 $139
Built-in CDS meter, 1 to 1/1000 of a second. 3 year guarantee. Maximum value for your investment. Only 8.

SAVE OVER $16
Men's Deluxe 27" 10 Speed Racer
Our Reg. 79.99 63.40
Centerpull brakes, shimano derailleur. Lugged frame construction, gumwall tires. Exceptional value!

Ladies' and Men's Figure Skates
Our Reg. 10.99 8.77
Hardened tempered silver brazed blades, long orthopedic arch supporting counters. Men's black, ladies' white.
Boys' and Girls' Figure Skates, Reg. 9.99 .... 7.87

Completely Washable
Coleman Sleeping Bag
Our Reg. 16.99 12.77
Durable nylon outershell with full 100 inch zipper. Warmly filled with 3 lbs. of polyester fiberfill . . . made by Coleman.
Famous Make Tennis Balls Our Reg. 2.37 .... 1.97

3 WAYS TO CHARGE master charge
BANKAMERICARD

180 North Kings St.

SALE: THURS. thru SAT.
Mon. thru Fri. 9:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m.
Saturday 9:00 a.m. to 9:30 p.m.

Information On Water

"Everything you wanted to know about Amherst watersource, distribution, purity - but didn't know who to ask." That is the subject of the Amherst League of Women Voters open meeting on Wednesday, November 14 at 8:00 in the Junior High School Auditorium.

The League's environmental quality committee will present a program designed to inform Amherst citizens about their water: source, testing, treatment, distribution, and consumption patterns. Significant findings of the 1973 Tighe and Bond report, a study of present supply, and future alternatives for new water sources will be discussed.

Representatives from the Amherst Board of Selectmen will be present to talk about planning to furnish additional water for the town. Experts on the technical aspects of the system will be on hand to answer questions during the discussion to follow the presentation. All citizens are urged to attend to become informed of one of our basic resources.

Members of the committee are: Margaret Birney, Jane Garvey, Marilyn Gonter, Eileen Simonson, Sidney Treyz, Ellen Wolfe, and Melanie Smith, chairman.

Laing To Speak

R. D. Laing, noted "anti-psychiatrist," will speak in the Campus Center Auditorium at the University of Massachusetts-Amherst Sunday, Nov. 11, at 8 p.m.

The talk is sponsored by the UMass psychology department, Institute for Governmental Services, Room to Move, doctoral program in Mental Health Systems Design, and the Campus Center Program Council.

Dr. Laing, a Scottish physician and existentialist psychoanalyst, is the founder of the London-based Philadelphia Association which supports the growth of communes for people who might be judged "mad" by others. He maintains that what is often labeled madness is rather a sane response to environment, and that schizophrenia is a therapeutic means to transcendent values.

OPENING SOON

Mister Donut

at

MT. FARMS MALL

Rt. 9 (Russell St.)

Hadley

Open 24 hrs. per day

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

Taurus, like Leo, is a social animal. Put Taurus and Leo together and you are likely to have a party. The relationship has difficulties; both are stubborn and have an abundance of pride. Natives of these signs enjoy the spotlight and the question is, "Who is going to give in or make concessions?" There is an undercurrent of suspicion, apprehension. However, the two are fascinated by each other and there seldom is a dull moment.

- - -

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You overcome obstacles. You say right thing at right time. Friend is erratic but effective. Know it and give yourself room for change, revision. Aquarius figures prominently. Your desires may overcome logic. Protect self in clinches.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): What seemed restricted, suppressed, makes "break" for freedom. You hear inner voice loud and clear. You shake off lethargy. You deal successfully with one connected with club, group, institution. You untangle red tape.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Lovers' quarrel could be on agenda. You may also have to combat "sweet tooth." Adjustment in domestic area is indicated. You could give or receive gift. Taurus, Libra persons might figure in important ways.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You are able now to perceive trends. You detect subtle nuances. Pisces could be involved. Accent is on general shake-up which finds you better able to express yourself. See in light of reality. Push aside wishful thinking.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Travel plans subject to sudden change. Agreements also are flexible. Relatives express uncertainty. You may find yourself depending on older individuals who are not family members. Aid from unorthodox sources is featured.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You can find ways of improving services, products. Refuse to be content with status quo. You have right to independent view, action. Get rid of burden not your own. Be familiar with legal aspects, potential for distribution, publicity.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-October 22): Spontaneous actions, reactions bring best results. Studies plans are likely now to go away. Highlight originality, independence, creativity. Hear sound of your own voice. Refuse to be dictated to by "big brother."

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You find ways of circumventing rules. Don't bend too far--know when you have reached breaking point. Aquarius, Leo persons could be in picture. What is supposed to be confidential could be the opposite. Know it and prepare accordingly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Swift changes occur, including possibility of travel. Member of opposite sex figures prominently. Avoid speculating--get valid information. One who advises that you "take the plunge" is whistling in the dark.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Stick to basic course. Stay with the familiar. Rely on experience. Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio persons are in picture. Question of buying, selling or improving is spotlighted. Don't give up something for nothing.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Hold off on journey, if possible. You need more information. Be analytical. See picture as a whole. The bits, pieces could be deceptive. Gemini, Virgo persons could figure prominently. Overcome restlessness.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): One behind the scenes could be manipulating prices. Protect your interests. Remember promise to family member. Gift purchase would be appropriate. Investment plan requires additional thought--and could cost more than anticipated.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you draw to your persons born under Cancer and Capricorn. You are good at organizing--you also are capable of handling responsibility. You could succeed in business for yourself. Change in domestic picture is indicated for December. You convictions are strong. You seldom desert principles.

Copyright 1973 Gen. Fea. Corp

Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS

1 Vapor
6 Box
11 The next day (poet.)
13 Person who bails out water
14 Plural ending
15 Underwater explosive
17 Symbol for tantalum
18 Snake
20 Caudal appendages
21 Bitter vetch
22 Harvest
24 Fondle
25 Scottish: hillside
26 Break suddenly
28 Esteem
30 Snare
32 Girl's name
33 Black eye (slang)
35 Wild buffalo of India
37 Imitates
38 Succor
40 Girl's name
42 Malay gibbon
43 Body of soldiers
45 Saints (abbr.)
46 Conjunction
47 Nooses
49 Legal seal (abbr.)
50 Hollywood prizes
52 Wild revelry
54 Senses
55 Game

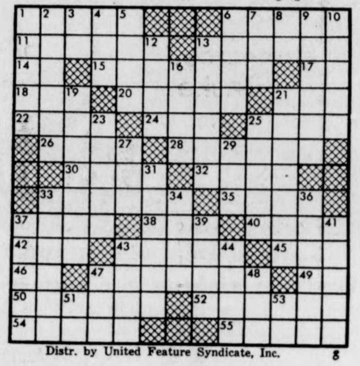
DOWN

1 Besmirch
2 Hurls
3 Teutonic deity
4 Skill
5 Debatable
6 Uncouth persons
7 Spanish for "river"
8 Man's nickname
9 Collection of four
10 Wipe out
12 Enclose with paper
13 Struck hard (slang)
16 Dock
19 Leopard
21 Commissions
23 European capital
25 City in Vermont
27 Shallow vessel
29 Tibetan gazelle
31 Gems
33 Thinly scattered
34 Disturbance
36 Deer's horn
37 Reserved
39 Performs
41 Item of property
43 Sailors (colloq.)
44 Those in favor
47 Man's nickname
48 Drink slowly
51 Symbol for cerium
53 Artificial language

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

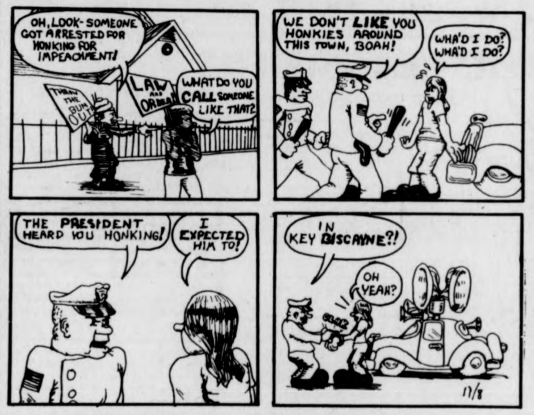
B	O	A	■	A	S	■	S	T	R	A	P	■
U	R	G	E	N	T	■	P	A	I	N	E	D
N	E	■	S	T	A	M	E	N	S	■	R	A
■	G	A	■	A	R	A	N	■	E	R	I	N
L	O	L	A	■	S	I	D	E	■	E	S	T
A	N	E	L	E	■	D	E	L	L	■	H	E
■	■	C	A	L	L	■	R	A	I	D	■	■
S	H	■	R	I	O	T	■	N	O	R	S	E
H	O	E	■	S	O	O	T	■	N	O	O	N
I	R	M	A	■	T	O	I	L	■	P	O	■
E	R	■	T	R	E	L	L	I	S	■	N	A
S	I	S	T	E	R	■	T	R	A	V	E	L
■	D	O	S	E	S	■	S	E	■	E	R	E

8



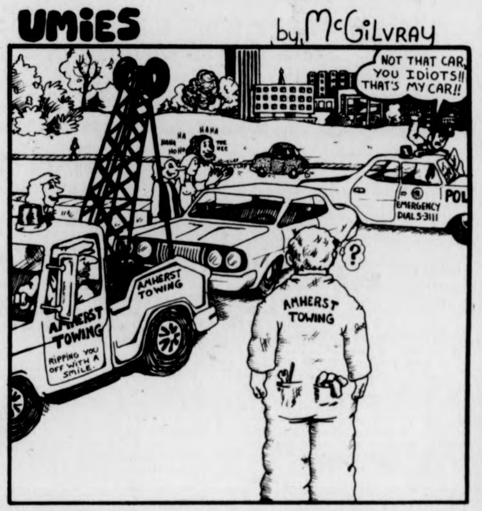
Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 8

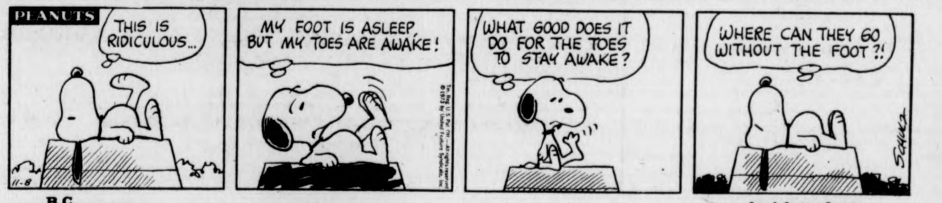
Kompus Kapers ~by~ Kris Jackson



OH, LOOK- SOMEONE GOT ARRESTED FOR HONKING FOR IMPEACHMENT!
THROW THE BUM OUT
LAW AND ORDER
WHAT DO YOU CALL SOMEONE LIKE THAT?
WE DON'T LIKE YOU HONKIES AROUND THIS TOWN, BOAH!
WHA'D I DO? WHA'D I DO?
THE PRESIDENT HEARD YOU HONKING!
I EXPECTED HIM TO!
IN KEY BISCAYNE?!
OH YEAH?
11/8

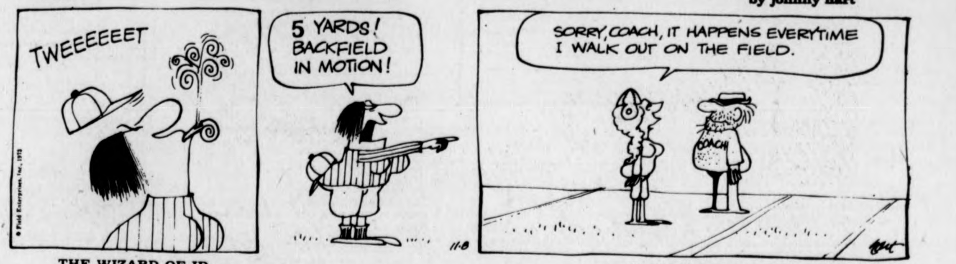
UMIES by McGILVRAY





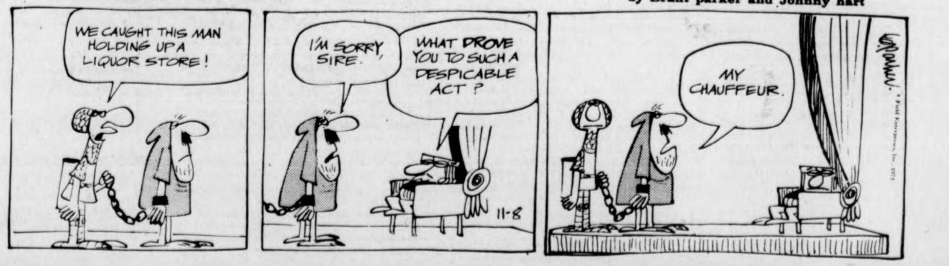
PEANUTS
THIS IS RIDICULOUS...
11-8
MY FOOT IS ASLEEP, BUT MY TOES ARE AWAKE!
WHAT GOOD DOES IT DO FOR THE TOES TO STAY AWAKE?
WHERE CAN THEY GO WITHOUT THE FOOT?!
SCHULZ

B.C. by johnny hart



TWEEEEEET
5 YARDS! BACKFIELD IN MOTION!
11-8
SORRY, COACH, IT HAPPENS EVERYTIME I WALK OUT ON THE FIELD.
COACH
hart

THE WIZARD OF ID by Brant parker and Johnny hart



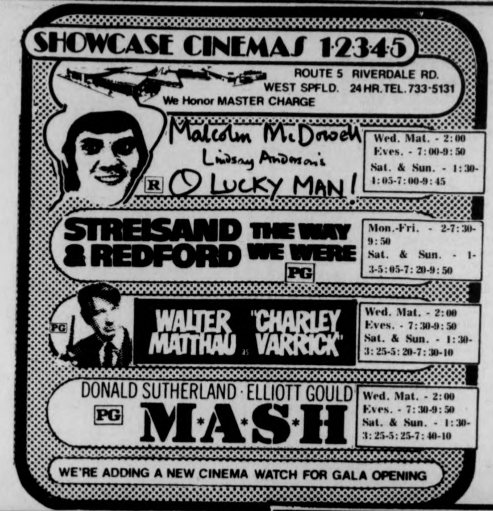
WE CAUGHT THIS MAN HOLDING UP A LIQUOR STORE!
I'M SORRY, SIRE.
WHAT DROVE YOU TO SUCH A DESPICABLE ACT?
11-8
MY CHAUFFEUR.

Interested In ... Ethnomethodology?

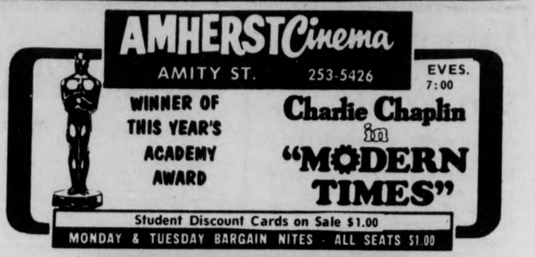
Course Description - Spring 1974 - Enthnomethodology

Sociology 290E, Ethnomethodology, Th 9:05-12:00, Machmer E-33, Prof. David Sudnow, Hampshire College.

This course will be designed to review both the antecedents to as well as contemporary work in so-called "Ethnomethodology" Sociology. Basically, we shall be concerned with the writings of Alfred Schutz and Harold Garfinkel, most of whose work we shall read. Approximately half way through the course, we will undertake a review of research by Sacks, Schegloff, Sudnow, Cicourel and Bittner. The focus in the latter half of the course will be primarily directed toward the various kinds of conversational analyses that have been stimulated by the ethnomethodological perspective. A term paper will be required.



SHOWCASE CINEMAS 1·2·3·4·5
ROUTE 5 RIVERDALE RD. WEST SPFLD. 24 HR. TEL. 733-5131
We Honor MASTER CHARGE
Malcolm McDowell Lindsay Anderson's O LUCKY MAN! R
Wed. Mat. - 2:00 Eves. - 7:00-9:50 Sat. & Sun. - 1:30-4:05-7:00-9:45
STREISAND & REDFORD THE WAY WE WERE PG
Mon.-Fri. - 2-7:30-9:50 Sat. & Sun. - 1-3-5:05-7:20-9:50
PG WALTER MATTHAU as "CHARLEY VARRICK"
Wed. Mat. - 2:00 Eves. - 7:30-9:50 Sat. & Sun. - 1:30-3:25-5:20-7:30-10
DONALD SUTHERLAND · ELLIOTT GOULD PG M·A·S·H
Wed. Mat. - 2:00 Eves. - 7:30-9:50 Sat. & Sun. - 1:30-3:25-5:25-7:40-10
WE'RE ADDING A NEW CINEMA WATCH FOR GALA OPENING



AMHERST Cinema
AMITY ST. 253-5426
EVES. 7:00
WINNER OF THIS YEAR'S ACADEMY AWARD
Charlie Chaplin in "MODERN TIMES"
Student Discount Cards on Sale $1.00
MONDAY & TUESDAY BARGAIN NITES - ALL SEATS $1.00

CALVIN Theatre
KING ST., NORTHAMPTON
NOW 584-2310
They had the perfect love affair. Until they fell in love.
The funniest love story of the year
A Touch Of Class
George Segal Glenda Jackson
EVES. 7:00 9:00
Students $1.00 All Times with Membership Card
MONDAY & TUESDAY BARGAIN NITES - ALL SEATS $1.00

The Chequers
University Drive at Amity Street, Amherst 256-8189
Enjoy a great dinner and a movie
Thursday night at one fantastic price . . .
$6.95 two persons
This Thursday: Baked Ravioli, oven baked garlic bread, fresh garden salad
Then on to CAMPUS CINEMAS to enjoy the movie of your choice at one of the three luxurious CAMPUS CINEMAS.

Hitchcock's Greatest Thriller!!
THE BIRDS
TONIGHT!
Mahar 7:00 - 9:15 - 11:30 Only 50¢

MDC CLASSIFIEDS

FOR SALE

Tires — All brands, Radials, Snows — All types, guaranteed lowest prices. Call 546-8362 after 6.
tf11-12

Hallicrafters SW Radio . .5-30 MHZ, AM, CW, SSB. Mint cond., orig. cost $200. Make me an offer. Call Fred 253-7890. Keep trying.
tf11-9

Stereo Buffs! If you want name brand stereo equip matched and sold to you at wholesale prices, call Dick at 253-2786, after 6.
tf11-9

S & I. Camera Imports has new cameras, lenses & other photo equip. at slashed prices. Full warranty, all makes and models. Call Ken, 6-9723.
tf11-30

Panasonic Port. TV. Brand new! $70; Receiver 20 watts Ch. $80. Call 546-5271 or 546-5261.
tf11-12

35mm Pentax Spotmatic camera — 55mm F1.4 lens, Weston light meter, case, top condition, 1½ years old, $160. Stuart, 1-283-9731.
tf11-9

Toyo 8-track recorder-player with 9 push buttons, 2 VU meters, auto-level control, list $139, will sell for $80. 256-6271 evenings.
tf11-9

Vivitar 105mm, f2.8 Soligor 200mm, f3.5 lenses. Nikon mount 2 and 3 years old. Asking $45 and $55. Call Ben, 256-9395.
tf11-8

Sony 6065 Receiver 70 watts RMS per channel, just 7 mos. old, $300. Call 253-5393.
tf11-8

The Arms Race: A 1 credit Minicourse, Phyics 190D. No prereq. MWF 11:15, HAS 124, Nov. 12 - Dec. 12. Call Prof. Guyer, 545-0933 for details.
tf11-14

Kenwood Receiver KR-77, mint condition 34 watts RMS per channel, excellent tuner section, call Rich 6-8981 after 6:30.
tf11-9

Discount stereo equip. and pocket calculators. Special! 12" 4-way air susp. speaks. Reg. $300 pr. NOW $175 pr. Barry 6-6085 eve.
tf11-12

Twin bed 4 sale bedboard incl. 665-3821, after 5.
tf11-8

Olin Mark II skis, brand new never been used, no binding holes, 1973 Model priced reasonably. Call Stan at 256-6902 evenings.
tf11-13

FOR SALE

1 BSR 510AX turntable — $50 fully guaranteed. Other stereo equipment at wholesale prices. Call 584-2672 — preferably eves.
tf11-9

Guitar Mossman 6 string; BRA2 Rosewood, Mahogneck, Ebony Board. Used 6 mo., retail $620 sell for $450, incl hardshell case. Call 369-4042.
tf11-14

Need warmth? Globe Goose Down Parka, M-W large, new condition $35.00. Call Maureen, 6-7350 anytime.
tf11-12

Healthways J-Valve tank, Scubair reg. US diver backpack and Scubapro pressure gauge, $110. Call 546-9691.
tf11-9

Movie Makers — Bolex lite meter w-mntg shoe, direct read dial, calibrated infps. Factory recndd, new condition. $25. 1-736-2356 kp tryg.
tf11-9

1 pair, snow tires 8.25-14's, good tread with studs $30. Phone 549-1702.
tf11-9

THESE ARE TIMES THAT TRY MENS SOULS in these days of darkness and doubt, of crisis and confusion what the world needs is a truly great store PAUL'S OLDTIME FURNITURE is that store. We feature bureaus, desks, pictures, nostalgia, spiritual, guidance, the entire range of human emotion at the lowest prices. Amherst, behind Aubuchon, 253-3511.
tf11-12

AUTO FOR SALE

1970 Rebel Machine, 4 speed Hurst 390 engine, excellent running cond. $1600. Call 546-5271 or 546-5261.
tf11-12

1961 VW, good condition, $150. Ask for Tom, 549-1506 after 5 p.m.
tf11-16

1967 Barracuda, smashed front end, 383 4-speed, Mallory distributor, new starter, motor, $225 takes it. Sandy, 584-2019.
tf11-16

1972 Javelin SST, must sell quickly, moving to NYC, V-8 auto., p.s., radio-tape, 4 new tires and snows, $1,500 or best offer. Call 253-9668.
tf11-9

71 Willys Jeep CJ5 w/plow, roll bar, radio, oversize tires, back seat. $2800 or deal on VW keep trying. 782-3808, I need $.
tf11-9

1966 Cutlass Supr. p.s. p.b., very good condition. Call 367-2771.
tf11-16

AUTO FOR SALE

1964 Ford Galaxie, running condition, needs work, $90. Negotiable, 546-7700, after 4:00 p.m.
tf11-12

1967 Volvo R & H snow tires. Asking $475. Call 549-6931.
tf11-14

1970 Austin - AM. Yellow, nice condition, new battery, tires, muffler. Studded snows. Auto-stick option. Runs well. $850. Call 617-687-3624.
tf11-9

INTERESTED IN MAKING EVEN TRADE? I have a 1967, 428 Gran Prix and would like to exchange for a smaller auto. Call 253-7482.
tf11-12

1970 VW sunroof, excellent mechanical condition. Best offer, need to sell, license revoked. Call 549-0648, after five thirty.
tf11-11

Gas sipping wonder, 65 VW Bus 18000 miles on rebuilt eng. 26 mpg. AM-FM, int. insulated, many extras. Call anytime, 546-3986.
tf11-12

1969 Cortina, new shocks, rebuilt trans., needs brake work, $300. 546-4572.
tf11-9

Stick six Pontiac, good heater, sticker, $325; Porsche conv., needs work, best offer; Saab 965, $400. 323-7327.
tf11-8

1968 VW Bug, many miles but runs well, asking $400. 549-0102 at dinnertime.
tf11-9

For sale — 65 VW Bus reblt. eng., gas heater, new bat., starter ect. Must sell imed. First $325 or best off. 665-2381 aft. 5, p.s. very clean body.
tf11-9

1967 Volvo 1225, good running condition, new tires. Best offer. Call 1-369-4395. Keep trying.
tf11-9

5 to 6 bedroom house in Wendell, 2 kitchens, 2 bathrooms, full cellar with fireplace. 256-8896.
tf11-12

Late 60's Valiant or Dart, pref. 6 cyl., must be in excellent condition, up to $1,000 for right car. 546-4572.
tf11-9

Commuter Assembly is now taking applications for its rep. to SU-CC, Gov Bd., see someone in Commuter Lounge, Behind Hatch.
tf11-9

TRAVEL

Going by air? Let us handle your pre-flight, in-flight and post-flight arrangements at no cost to you. Call campus rep., 253-3162 evenings.
tf12-12

ENTERTAINMENT

Hey groovy guys and gals — I can play your favorite music just the way you like it. Call Steve the D.J. for your party, 467-2842.
tf11-9

2 Male Vocalists, playing acous. & elec. guitars & flute, seek indiv. Ms/Mr with good technique & improv. ability on piano, pref. (not necess) capable of singing high range harmonies, to perform orig. & popular music for all aud. We have def. opportunity for work. If interested call 5-2925 ask for Peter in 217/Sean in 214.
tf11-9

Bring back those great memories, boogie to your favorite golden oldies. I have the records and the PA. Call me at 536-6075.
tf11-12

See a crazy movie this weekend — Zachariah — with the Firesign Theater. Nov. 10, Sat. 7-9-11, Mahar.
tf11-9

Female w/good singing voice & violin or recorder? Fairport Convention sound good? Possible money in local clubs — Josh. 584-2238.
tf11-8

ROOMMATE WANTED

Wanted: Female to apartment hunt with for Jan. 1. Call Linda after 6 p.m. 253-7752.
tf11-16

Room $80 or share apt., Dec. 15, $100. Call 549-6356, 6:30.
tf11-9

Roommate to share spacious 4 rm. apt., quiet, relaxing atmosphere, $60 per mo. Call after 6 p.m., 527-5466.
tf11-9

Female to share 1 bdrm. Presidential apt. beginning Jan. Semi-furnished, $87.50 - mon., incl. utilities. Call 549-4463.
tf11-16

Neat, responsible female wanted to occupy own room in 4 bdrm apt., starting Jan. 1. $80-mo. incl. utilities. Phone 256-0626 eve.
tf11-9

Roommates needed — three singles, own entrance, interesting neighbors. Call Howie. 256-0643.
tf11-9

MOTORCYCLES FOR SALE

Honda 450 CB '68 Cherry cond. low mi., lugg. rack, chaih, signals, 5spd., elec. start., helmet, Univ. Sticker. Must sell $400. Call 6-4055.
tf11-8

WANTED TO RENT

Grad student wants room or apt near campus or on bus route for Jan. Call Sue Peterson 546-9984, Prince House.
tf11-12

Female grad wants room or apt. (to share) near campus or on bus route, immediately. Call Gini 617-764-8870.
tf11-8

ROOM TO RENT

Room for rent $50/per month. Call 256-0687.
tf11-13

ROOM WANTED

Young working guy needs a room or would like to share an apt in the Amherst area. Call Bill, 367-2772.
tf11-8

RIDE WANTED

Gfld to UMass, in at 8:30, back at 4:30. Gfld Comm. Coll. area. 1 day a wk., usually Tues. Call Lisa 545-2328, will share expense.
tf11-8

Ride wanted to NYC on Friday or Saturday, the 9th or 10th. Will share expenses. Please call 253-3139, anytime.
tf11-8

Ride needed to Gt. Barrington, Mass. area Nov. 9 around 3 p.m. Call Larry at 546-6007.
tf11-9

WANTED

Man's wedding band, 16k white gold, KEK-RGG-6-26-71. Contact Bob, Chem. Tower 1311 or call 665-3949. Reward!
tf11-8

APARTMENT FOR RENT

2 bedroom apt at Cliffside, all utilities included. $170 per month. Furniture optional, lease upto 6-1-74. Call 665-3584.
tf11-9

APARTMENT WANTED

3 bdrm apt near bus rte to campus wanted for 2nd semester. Call 6-4146, 6-4147, 6-4148, 6-4149. We need to know soon.
tf11-9

LOST

Organic Chem 3rd Ed. Morrison Boyd. Reward for return, needed desperately. Call 545-0260 or come to 1106 G.R.T. Ask for Mack.
tf11-12

Salvation Army Needs Funds

Christmas is coming, perhaps faster than you might wish. A visit to shopping centers and department stores will prove this as one will find Christmas decorations and merchandise everywhere attractively displayed.

For The Salvation Army, Christmas started several months ago with the first planning stages for the 1973 Christmas Mail Appeal, that speical annual drive to make Christmas gifts and dinners available to more than 150,000 men, women, and children in Massachusetts.

To speed up the distribution of contributed funds and eliminate the problems caused by duplicate appeals, Salvation Army officials have moved to a central return address for each county. Mail will be picked up, processed and the checks deposited in banks much sooner than ever before, thus making the money available to Salvation Army units quicker than other years. This will also enable us to help a greater number of people than before.

Another by-product of the modernization is that reminders need not be sent to those who have already contributed, a very important cost cutting factor.

Salvation Army state leader, Brigadier Maro Smith, has noted that costs this year are higher than ever before and a preliminary analysis seems to indicate that there will be more people with more needs than ever before coming to The Salvation Army for help with Thanksgiving and Christmas plans. "We must turn once again to the citizens of Massachusetts for the dollars we need for the job," Brigadier Smith said.

Science Seminar To Be Presented

Professor Joel Selbin from Louisiana State University will present a seminar entitled "Uranium (V) Chemistry and Recent Biological Implications" to be held Thursday, December 13, 1973 at 11:15 a.m., Room 101, Graduate Research Tower 1, UMass.

LAST 3 PERFORMANCES
Thurs., Nov. 8, Fri., Nov. 9, Sat., Nov. 10
"Jacques Brel Is Alive & Well & Living in Paris"
Music by Jacques Brel
Bartlett Auditorium 8 p.m.
For info. & Ticket Res. Call 545-2579 Mon.-Fri. 1-5 p.m.

Television Tonight

5:00 ENSIGN O'TOOLE "Operation: Holdout." (18)
5:30 THE REAL McCOYS "Fly Away Home." (18)
THE LUCY SHOW "Lucy, the Gum Moll." (22)
GOMER PYLE "A Star Is Not Born." (27)
HOGAN'S HEROES "The Schultz Brigade." (30)
NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS (40)
5:55 WHAT'S HAPPENING UPDATE (3)
6:00 NEWS (3) (8) (22)
ABC EVENING NEWS (8)
I SPY "Name Of the Game." (18)
MAKING THINGS WORK (24)
PETTICOAT JUNCTION "Love Rears Its Ugly Head." (27)
TO TELL THE TRUTH Garry Moore, host (30)
WILD WILD WEST "Night Of the Undead." (40)
ZOOM! (57)
6:15 NATIONAL GOVERNMENT (24)
6:30 NEWS (3), (22) (30)
ABC EVENING NEWS (8)
ANIMAL WORLD (27)
LOUIS LYONS: NEWS AND COMMENT (57)
6:55 NEWSBEAT NEWS (40)
7:00 THE STARLOST "The Allen Oro." (3)
TRUTH OR CONSEQUENCES Bob Barker, host (8)
DICK VAN DYKE SHOW "Where Did I Come From." (18)
NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS (22) (30)
YOUR FUTURE IS NOW (24)
MOVIE "Serenade." (27)
ABC EVENING NEWS (40)
THE REPORTERS (57)
7:30 THRILLSEEKERS (8)
MOVIE "The Crimson Kimona." (18)
HOLLYWOOD AND THE STARS "The Unsinkable Bette Davis." Hal Stanton, host (22)
A TRIBUTE TO JIM CROCE (24)
WAIT TILL YOUR FATHER GETS HOME "Alice Diet." (30)
DRAGNET "Narcotics' DR-16." (40)
THE OPEN DOOR (57)
8:00 THE WALTONS "The Fawn." (3)
TOMA (8) (40)
IRONSIDE "Downhill All The Way." (22) (30)
THE ADVOCATES "Should We End All Wage and Price Controls Now?" (24) (57)
9:00 MOVIE "The Graduate." (3)
KUNG FU "The Spirit Helper." (8) (40)
THE 700 CLUB (18)
THE MEN WHO MADE THE MOVIES "Raoul Walsh." (24)
BORIS KARLOFF PRESENTS THRILLER "Child's Play." (27)
MASS MUSIC (57)
10:00 STREETS OF SAN FRANCISCO "The Twenty-four Karat Plague." (8) (40)
SAMMY DAVIS STARRING IN THE NBC FOLLIES (22) (30)
NEWS (27)
MARTIN AGRONSKY: EVENING EDITION (57)
10:30 THE LIVING WORD (18)
AT CHESTNUT HILL: MICHIO MAMIYA (24)
MANTRAP (27)
THE FRENCH CHEF (57)
11:00 NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS (8) (18) (22) (27) (30) (40)
11:05 NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS (3)
11:30 WIDE WORLD OF ENTERTAINMENT (8) (40)
JOHNNY CARSON SHOW (22) (30)
11:35 MOVIE "Rio Conchos." (3)
1:00 NEWS (8) (40)
TOMORROW Tom Snyder, host (22) (30)
1:35 NEWS, WEATHER (3)

SKI SPAIN
Earn 2 credits during intersession
Call 5-2801

ADULTS ONLY!
SEX FLICK FRIDAY NITE
All Seats $1.50
"All American Girl"
Positive I.D.
X RATED Shown at 11:30
AMHERST Cinema
AMITY ST., AMHERST
253-5426

The Firesign Theater's Film
ZACHARIAH
A rock Western satire with Country Joe & The Fish - New York Rock & Roll Ensemble - Elvin Jones - Doug Kershaw - James Gang & the Firesign Theater.
plus ROADRUNNER CARTOONS
Sat., Nov. 10 at 7-9-11 in Mahar Aud.

MDC CLASSIFIEDS

HELP WANTED

Innovative persons to teach under-educated adults, inner city dropouts, Spanish speaking and Indian children in the U.S. Must be able to work outside traditional, classroom. If you're a senior getting a degree in education, English, languages, Sociology, etc. talk to a VISTA representative in the Placement Office on Nov. 5-9.
tf11-8

In your job search, you'll run across all kinds of glossy pages and promises that so-and-so company wants graduates with liberal arts degrees. Last year's seniors who chose either VISTA or Peace Corps ARE AT WORK in hundreds of projects both here and in 59 countries overseas. Teaching English as a foreign language; working in tuberculosis control programs, smallpox, and malaria eradication projects; acting as agricultural extension agents; developing alternative schools; counseling in drug crisis centers and many more. Demand for these assignments is, of course, great. It's extremely important for you to apply before December. To underscore this, VISTA & Peace Corps representatives will be here during this semester only; on Nov. 5-9 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., go to the Placement Office and sign up for an interview.
tf11-9

Teach Math & Science where the Earth is flat rocks are evil, and turtles are sacred. As a Peace Corps teacher, you'll get some tough questions like: How does the turtle Vishnu swimming in his sea of milk and pushing up the tree of life fit into your theories of the world, Mr. Bob? You don't put legends like these down because they are a vital part of your student's culture. One of the challenges of teaching Math & Science in a devloping country is to create acceptance for these subjects within the frame work of ancient traditions. A Peace Corps, VISTA representative will be in the Placement Office on Nov. 5-9. Sign up now for an interview.
tf11-8

Jobs in Business Consulting — Frequently the difference between a margical & a going business in the inability of the former to hire consultants. Business graduates working for VISTA & Peace Corps are helping to change that situation. If you have a BBA, MBA or MPA, you should look in to VISTA & Peace Corps. It's experience you'll get with no other organization. A representative will be in the Placement Office on October 11 & 12. Sign up now for an interview.
tf11-8

2nd or 3rd year language major male, need $20. 1 hr. work? Call Dave 256-0305.
tf11-10

HELP WANTED

Jobs for French & Spanish Majors — Spanish speakers to work as VISTA's in barrios in the Southwest & as Peace Corps teachers & resource people in Latin America. French speakers to work in African Franchophone countries with Peace Corps. These are positions of responsibility and sensitivity. Talk to a representaive in the Placement Office on Nov. 5-9. Sign up for an interview.
tf11-8

Collegian is looking for an Asst. Advertising Manager. Job involves supervising ad reps & building advt. revenue. Must be an underclassmen, with car, & a genuine interest in newspaper advt. Experience in marketing & graphics helpful but not essential. Will have to work hard for small pay but the rewards in experience will be invaluable. Person hired will be trained to become the advertising manager for next year. For details and information see Brent Wilkes at the Collegian Office.
tf11-16

Civil Engineers, Overseas: to advise on dam construction, irrigation systems, water works. At home: to prepare cost estimates on housing, develop funding proposals, review architect's plans, etc. Peace Corps - VISTA engineers get much more responsiblity and experience than their peers who go to work for private engineering firms. Talk to a representative in the Placement Office on Nov. 5-9, sign up today for an interview.
tf11-8

VISTA & Peace Corps have hundreds of job openings for seniors. From Agriculture to Zoology. Get experience you can find in no other organization. Reps will be in Placement Office soon. Sign up now in Placement for an interview.
tf11-9

Nurses. If you're graduating soon and want to break away from the regiment of training for a year or two, talk to VISTA & Peace Corps, a representative will be in the Placement Office on Nov. 5-9. Sign up today for an interview.
tf11-8

Students pt. time & full time available, apply in person United Paper Box, 528 Water St., Foot of Cabot, Holyoke, Ma.
tf11-12

Part time Xerox Machine Operator. Apply at Gnomon Copy Service, 103 N. Pleasant St.
tf11-8

HELP WANTED

While organized recreation is generally regarded as frivolous in this country, the reverse is true in most developing nations. As a Peace Corps volunteer you will develop programs, train teachers, teach coaching techniques, coach national teams. You'll be regarded as someone with an important skill to share. Get more information. Peace Corps will be in the Placement Office on Nov. 5-9. Sign up now for an interview.
tf11-8

Student Employmt in Yellowstone & all US Nat'l Parks. Send for booklet $2. Arnold Agency A206 E Main, Rexburg, Idaho, guaranteed.
tf11-9

Poster Stuffers for Hampshire County area. Car is preferable but not necessary. Call Dave. For Friday and Sat. 256-0236.

Waitresses, Doormen apply in person Timothy's Spirits Company, 30 John St., Holyoke, 538-9700.
tf11-13

Full time for Book & Record Store. Apply in person on Nov. 8, 9, 10 at Soundsope Mountain Farms Mall, Hadley Rt 9.
tf11-12

Audio Dept. mgr. know your audio components? See us for Dynamite Position w/growing chain. Soundscope Mountain in Frm Mall, Rt. 9, HA.
tf11-12

Need a job to get you thru school? Time to study while working, we might have what you are looking for. Night Auditor at Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge, Hadley, Mass. Must be accurate with figures. Please apply in person.
tf11-13

3 reliable drivers, must have car. 1-day route delivery, N'Hamp, Amherst, Greenfield. Start Tues., Nov. 20. Good pay also each Wednesday following. Call 256-0236. Fair Exchange.
tf11-9

Projectionist: Wanted for local theatre complex. Must have Mass. Operator's License. Good pay and fringe benefits. Part-time jobs available. Call Jim Merck at 584-9154.
tf11-15

Rock Bands wanted for work immediately. Call 247-5155, Country House.
tf11-9

HELP WANTED

Bus Drivers wanted, need Class 2 Lic. Part time 10-20 hrs. per wk. Apply Student Senate Bus, Univ Bus Garage, 5-0056 or 5-2086.
tf11-12

Drivers and helpers to deliver posters. Fri. 5:30-9 p.m., Sat. 9-12 noon. Pay plus mileage. Call Dave, 256-0236.
tf11-12

Dependable person to work as full time gas station attendant. Must have car. $2.35 p-h. Call 549-6833 between 5 & 6.
tf11-9

PERSONAL

Futre CPA's learn how to prepare for the CPA Exam. Becker CPA Review Course. Call collect 617-536-1440.
tf11-22

Do you spend precious time hitching to a part time job to help support a messy roommate who eats your food, blasts hard rock, interrupts your privacy? If you can be a neat, quiet, conscientious housekeeper & cook in an older home, you can change your environment to a private room with board. 549-0641.
tf11-9

Support your local bus driver.
tf11-12

5 Coll. Canada ski trip — 4 days, 3 nites. Hotel, breakfast, dinner. Transportation Apres ski party, all for $85. Jan. 22-25. B. Baggins Travel, 256-0146.
tf11-15

Unwed mother desires adoption of two children. One male and one female, both tiger angora. Will deliver if necessary. Call 253-9668.
tf11-13

14th Floor Wash. wants to go coed. Interested girl floors call 546-9126.
tf11-8

Happy Birthday to the Duck who couldn't get his quack up! Guess you just couldn't make it Kublin.
tf11-8

Are there any barbershop enthusiasts at UMass? A lead singer away from his chapter is lonely for the old songs. Dave Varg. 546-8090.
tf11-9

Belchertown Center folk & to those along the bus route: I'm awfully sorry I was so late Tues. morn. the Driver, Dale.
tf11-8

NARCS yes folks there over 250 narcotic agents on UMass Amherst Campus posing as students, bartenders, kitchen personel and etc. So BEWARE.
tf11-12

PERSONAL

Hi Val — Hope your studies are coming along fine. Have a nice weekend. Peter T.
tf11-9

Decent male seeks sensuous female to get together. Write: Tom P.O. Box 144, Amherst.
tf11-13

Happy Birthday D.H. With Love, Miss Laverne.
tf11-8

SERVICES

Typing: dissertation, theses, term papers etc. Fast, accurate, references, IBM Selectric, low rates. Call Tom 546-1165. Save this ad.
tf11-9

Photos — passports, visas, etc., 48 hour service! Sizes and number negotiable, $3.00 minimum! Call Steve at 546-5443.
tf11-30

Research — thousands of topics, $2.75 per page. Send $1 for mail order catalog. Research assistance, inc. 11941 Wilshire Blvd., Suite 2, L.A., Calif. 90025.
tf12-12

SPEED TYPIST
In Ware, at Collegian printer.
8:30 p.m.-1:00 a.m.
Call Charlotte
967-6888

Typing — dissertations, theses, term papers etc. Fast, accurate, references, IBM Selectric, good rates, call Tom 546-1165.
tf11-12

Experienced electronic and electrical repairs. Reasonable rates. Call 545-2308, Mark 415 or Bill 401. Keep trying.
tf11-15

Attention Datsun owners, I perform all phases of major and minor maintenance and repairs on Datsun at less than ½ dealership price. I have over $3000 in equipment, 4 years automotive experience, 2 of which were at a Datsun Dealership, specializing in Datsun. Tele. 253-7456, Russell Baca.
tf11-19

FOR RENT

Room for rent or in exchange for child care five miles from campus. Call Joanne 549-0665.
tf11-9

Apt for one — Avlbl. imm. lg brm, sm kit, full bath, storage, pkg. 220 N. Pleasant, 2 nd fl of lg house. All utl. incl. $145. 549-3736, 253-8742.
tf11-14

Free rent for Nov., if take my place in eff. apt. ctr Amh., rest of sem. $67.50 Dec., two weeks Jan., share w/one woman 256-0561, no deposit.
tf11-9

Garage space, central Amherst. Safe and inexpensive. D.H. Jones 549-3700.
tf11-29

Palmer Wins Cy Young Award

PITTSBURGH (AP) - Jim Palmer's penchant for pancakes has waned but his pitching prowess hasn't, and that's why he was named Wednesday as the American League's Cy Young Award winner for 1973.

The 28-year-old Baltimore Oriole right-hander didn't fork down nearly as many pancakes last season as he did in years past when he made it a pregame ritual and earned the nickname "Pancake." Yet he still stacked up 22 wins against 9 losses, and his 2.40 earned run average was the best in the league.

That impressed the Baseball Writers Association of America enough to give Palmer the nod over California's strikeout machine, Nolan Ryan, and the pitching mainstay of the Oakland A's, Jim "Catfish" Hunter.

Last season was Palmer's fourth straight with 20 wins or better, and his overall record over the past five season is 99-32.

The baseball writers gave Palmer 14 first-place votes and six for second for a total of 88 points, awarded on the basis of five for a first-place nod, three for second and one for third.

"I actually felt that I was the best pitcher in 1973," he acknowledged. "I don't know exactly what the criteria is for the Cy Young winner, but I guess in my case it went to a balanced performance."

Runnerup Ryan, also a 20-game winner, established an all-time major league strikeout record last season with 383 and pitched two no-hitters. But he finished 26 points shy of Palmer in the voting, and he had a slightly higher 2.87 ERA.

Ryan's 62 points, came on nine first-place votes, three for second and eight for third. Twenty-four writers, two from each American League city, did the voting.

Hunter, 21-5, was named on 22 ballots, more than any other player, but he fell short with 52 points. The writers gave him one first-place vote, 13 for second and eight for third.

Detroit's John Hiller, only relief pitcher among the nine players receiving votes, was a distant fourth with six points. He saved a record 38 games and won 10.

Tom Coburn: A True Leader

By BOB ESTELLE

We often hear of the rah-rah athlete, the guy who chugs down the beer, etc. This type of person is portrayed as a stereotype superstar. But not Tom Coburn, star center forward of the UMass soccer team. Coburn is the leading scorer for the Minutemen with ten goals and two assists. He has given his team the scoring punch it has needed to win.

Soccer mentor Al Rufe has stated, "While we're not a one man team, Tom's scoring ability has kept us in contention for a post season playoff bid. What helps him is that the rest of the team can get the ball to him. His skills are tremendous and he's a smart player."

Coburn, a junior HRTA major, is a quiet type of athlete. But he does do his job. Rufe acknowledges that this is all part of a team effort. His scoring, the fine defensive play, and the improvement of the other forwards all indicate this.

The soccer program has suffered in one aspect. In Tom Coburn's time, there have been three coaches. His comment on this is that, "everyone has their own style of coaching and it's hard to build a team with a new coach every year. Gerry Redmond was the best coach we had here but Al Rufe is doing a good job."

This year's team is out of the YanCon race but there still is a possibility of a post season tournament bid. Coburn feels that the team has the potential to be one of the top teams in New England. The needed entity is a victory over Springfield.

But next year lies ahead. A good percentage of the team will return, including Tom Coburn. Coach Rufe says, "Tom needs strength to be able to play defense as well as offense. Compared to his offensive play, his defense is weak. But he realizes this and is working on it."

This is Tom Coburn. He is not only the leading scorer for UMass soccer over the past two years, but he is a quiet, reserved athlete who contributes to a team effort and is trying to improve himself as a player.

Staff Photo: Joe Martins

Tom Coburn

Dickey Tops In NFL

BOSTON (AP) - When Lynn Dickey went down with a dislocated hip prior to last season, there were whispers that he might never walk again.

When he started hobbling around first on crutches and then with a painful limp, there were whispers that his days as a quarterback for the Houston Oilers were over.

There were shouts, however, for Lynn Dickey last Sunday when he completed 20 of 32 passes for 340 yards and three touchdowns and led the Oilers to a 31-27 victory over Baltimore, breaking an 18-game losing streak.

The feat earned Dickey the Associated Press National Football League Offensive Player of the Week honor.

Starting only his third game as a pro, Dickey replaced Dan Pastorini as the quarterback and lifted the Oilers to their first victory of the season to complete his long road back.

"Only one time did I ever doubt that I had a chance to make it back," said Dickey, flanked by his wife, Sherry. "I had been in the hospital in Boston six weeks, two more weeks here and then I got out for a week. I went through hell. I hurt so bad I finally admitted to Sherry that I didn't think I could make it."

But with plenty of help from Sherry, Dickey kept fighting and finally, in February, felt he had won the battle.

Notice

University women: Interested in a dynamic chance to meet and help some of the hardest working athletes on campus? The UMass men's Varsity Swim Team is looking for two female team managers. If interested, come down to the Boyden Pool any afternoon between 3:30 and 6:00 p.m. Earn a letter. Find out what it's like.

Joe's Back

NEW YORK (AP) - There's a possibility that New York Jet quarterback Joe Namath will play in Sunday's National Football League game with the New England Patriots.

"If he's 100 per cent healthy, I'll start him," New York Coach Weeb Ewbank said Wednesday.

The star quarterback has been out of action since the second game of the season, when he injured his right shoulder against the Baltimore Colts.

Ewbank said that Namath's appearance in Sunday's game depends on "a lot of ifs."

"If he keeps making progress like he has and if we feel he is mended properly, then we would start him," Ewbank said.

Namath suffered a shoulder separation but the injury has mended more quickly than expected. In a recent practice, Namath threw the football with some discomfort.

TEN PIN BOWLING
at Boyden Gym
50¢ per string
MONDAY - FRIDAY
4:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m.
(except during league play)

FAT
in the Hatch saturday
9:00PM-1:00AM

FOR LIGHTNING FAST DELIVERY ON ANY OF OUR DELICIOUS PIZZAS OR SUBS CALL THE HUNGRY U
PIZZA PATROL
256-6350
THE HUNGRY U

Timothy's
Spirits Co.
Grand Opening Fri., Nov. 9
Featuring
John Morgan
Good Drinks, Good Food
Good Entertainment and Good Times

TONITE
Some of my Best Friends
at the Rusty Nail
Inn
Rte. 47, Sunderland
665-4937

"Something for Everyone"
the concert committee
presents
JOHN MAYALL
appearing on Sunday, November 25
with special guest artist
Bruce Springstein
appearing on Monday, November 26
with special guest artist
Maria Muldaur
Boths shows: 8:00 p.m. At Curry Hicks Cage
Tickets: $3.50 Available at Student Union Lobby Counter
10:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m.

Joyce Kosofsky

Why I Hate Sports

I really don't hate sports. I just hate competitive sports. The idea that "to the victors go the spoils" is a bunch of bull.

I really don't understand competitive sports. Take football, (I wish someone would take it to the South Pacific, or anywhere away from me), it's too confusing. I mean, the idea is ridiculous. If I saw some 250 pound gorilla running as fast as he can toward me, there is no way that I'm going to run right at him. My first instinct would be to get the hell out of that situation. But what do those stupid football players do? They run right into the guy, get themselves knocked down, and have weak knees (and Lord knows what else) for the rest of their lives. For what? For the chance of a quick feel of some lousy pigskin. Yecch. I'd rather go to a Wesson oil party if I wanted to slither with a bunch of people.

Or baseball. When I was a little kid, my elders told me that running in circles will get me nowhere. And if I ever came home with mud all over my nice clean pants, I'd get the hell beaten out of me. But here we see grown men, with families of their own running around throwing balls at each other. I remember once I got suspended from school for throwing a ball in the school yard. And they make their living out of this nonsense.

Or basketball. Why on Earth would anyone want to be as greedy as to take the ball away from the person who has it. I was always taught to share and share alike. I always had to wait my turn for the use of the ball. Why can't they? And this crap about running all the way to the basket with the ball only to have some schmow steal it away is just too frustrating. Everyone will get their turn if they learn a little patience.

Or hockey. If men want to fight, why do they have to do it in the middle of the game? I think that it's extremely impolite. Anyone with any manners would have the decency to step outside, or at least out of the way. And those sticks that they use are dangerous. Where I come from, if anyone needed to use a stick to fight with, they were considered dirty-fighters. Perhaps if the hockey players didn't have those stupid sticks, they wouldn't need all that padding to protect them. And then they wouldn't be able to play hockey either, which would be just fine and dandy with me.

Or tennis. Just watching that stupid ball going back and forth, and back and forth, and back and forth, gives me a headache and eyestrain.

Or any competitive sport. The idea of one person competing against another is a contradiction to the word sport. Sports should be played for the beauty of the body, not for the "beauty" of seeing your opponent cringe.

New York Ends Bad Streak

Rangers Bomb Bruins 7-3

NEW YORK (AP) - Brad Park scored two goals and assisted on another Wednesday night, helping the New York Rangers beat the Boston Bruins 7-3 and end a seven-game National Hockey League winless streak.

Park helped New York build a 3-1 lead in the second period when his second slapshot goal from 50 feet beat Boston goaltender Gilles Gilbert.

He had opened the scoring at 5:31 of the first period, and Pete Stemkowski upped the margin to 2-0 at 11:05.

Boston's Phil Esposito scored his first of two goals at 1:42 of the second period, then Park scored and Ted Irvine made it 4-1 at 3:39.

Three minutes later, Park set up Rod Gilbert's 272nd career goal with New York, tying Andy Bathgate as the all-time Rangers' goal scorer.

Esposito netted his 18th of the season at 8:47 of the second period, before Walt Tkazcuk converted a pass from Bill Fairbairn at 19:25.

Boston's Bobby Orr and Jean Ratelle traded third-period goals.

In the third period, Rangers' goalie Ed Giacomin was forced to leave the game after suffering a head injury in a goal-mouth collision with Boston defenseman Al Sims. He was replaced by Gilles Villemure.

A Cornerback At Work

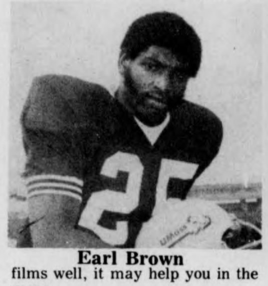
By SCOTT HAYES

The responsibilities of a cornerback are threefold. To be able to: 1) Read offenses as a result of learning from game films; 2) Defend against the pass successfully; and 3) Tackle.

According to Earl Brown, an Elmira, New York native, those are the major requirements needed to play the position of cornerback.

Brown, a 6'1", 190 pound senior, feels that a cornerback has the three responsibilities. "Reading offenses includes not only your man, but the quarterback, backs, and so on," stated Brown.

The senior, who won his starting role back in the third game of the season, also said that by learning from the films you can anticipate what the receiver will do. Brown commented that if you read the films well, it may help you in the game.



Earl Brown

Tackling has been a big part of the defensive back's game this year. The cornerbacks and safeties were forced to make many tackles this season.

Brown explained that ends set up differently. Some use a stand-up stance, some come off the line fast, and others give a fake. Being able to read their stances as a result of watching films gives the cornerback the help of knowing where the receiver is going.

Brown, who has already received two questionnaires from the Cincinnati Bengals over the last two years, claims that the cornerback position is easier to play if you listen to the coaches.

The UMass cornerback explained that the players are given a sheet on their opponents each week and that the proper reading of pass-run keys (indications from the tight end, players in the backfield, etc.) is vital to success.

"Your job is finished if you do all that, except tackling. You'll have problems if you don't because if a team finds a weakness, they'll pick on you," said the senior who still has one year of eligibility left at UMass.

Brown said he feels that the reason for the mediocre season so far this year, has been the nonconsistency of players at certain positions. "The team is better than it has played, but the players haven't produced." He also explained that you value the game all the more when you're playing, especially starting.

"You play better if you have no conflicts with other players. Conflicts cause individualism which makes the difference between a great team and a good team."

Brown, who plans to attend grad school and has hopes for making it in professional football, believes that team spirit can help a team on the field. "You realize what you have to do, and go out and do it," he said.

The speedy cornerback stated that he will not try out for the pros for another two years. Brown realizes what he has to do to play in the pros. One year of semi-pro football and maybe another year of college competition before that, may prepare Earl for the NFL. Brown commented that he might take advantage of his added year of eligibility. He added that it's going to take two years of hard work and determination. He hopes to increase his speed and build himself up, trying to keep in top shape. Earl Brown isn't there yet, but he is on his way.

SKI SPAIN
Earn 2 credits during intersession
Call 5-2801

TONIGHT
Parachute Club Meeting
REGISTRATION for Nov. 15
First Jump Course
7:00 p.m.
C.C. 811-815
Last Chance Till Spring
To Get Your Rush!
Open to 5-College students & staff

CAMPUS INTERVIEWS
SCHOOL OF MANAGEMENT
Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute
Graduate Degree Programs in:
— Private (Industrial) Management
— Public Management
— Management Engineering
— Operations Research and Statistics
Prof. D. W. Karger, Ford Foundation
Professor of Management will be on campus
Tuesday, November 13, 1973
Please make appointments at Placement Office

ADVERTISE FREE
Western Massachusetts Only
Super Ad List
FAIR EXCHANGE
A New Ad Weekly
Articles For Sale
by Private Owners
10 per cent of Advertised Price
only IF and WHEN you sell
10,000 ACTIVE Buyers
NO DEALER ADS
SPECIAL 2 WEEK OFFER
No Commission Charge 25 word limit —
Ads must be received before
Mon. noon, Nov. 19
FAIR EXCHANGE
P.O. Box J
N. Amherst, Mass. 01059
CALL 256-0236
Clip and Mail

top of the campus restaurant
featuring
"JIMMY"
from 9 p.m. - 1 a.m.
seating for
cocktails - 9:30 p.m.
FINE FOOD IN AN ATMOSPHERE OF RELAXED DINING ENTERTAINMENT FRIDAYS AND SATURDAYS
BEST VIEW OF AMHERST
DISCOUNTS FOR STUDENTS AND THEIR GUESTS
PHONE [illegible] FOR RESERVATIONS

WESTERN VILLAGE
SKI SHOP
Downstairs at Western Auto
Now is the time to think about ski equipment.
SKIS: Spaldings
K-2
Northland
Volke
Kastle
SKI BOOTS: Caber Nordica
Lastinger
BINDINGS: Salomon
Marker
Tyrolia
Look
Americana
WESTERN AUTO
MAIN ST. NORTHAMPTON

Springfield Kicks Booters Out Of Top

By STEVE DeCOSTA

4-0.

Undoubtedly there have been more lopsided scores in soccer games than yesterday's 4-0 rout by Springfield College, but the score does not give a full indication of the Chief's dominance of the game.

Springfield amassed 35 shots in the contest, compared to a mere four for the Minutemen. The Chiefs also had 11 corner kicks on their side of the ledger while UMass could chalk up only one.

Not once did the Minutemen even threaten to score. All four shots were weak and Springfield goalie Lou LaPenna had no difficulty in picking up his third shutout of the campaign.

UMass was plagued by the artificial surface on the Chief's home field. The ball has a tendency to roll further on Astro-Turf and time and time again the Minutemen were caught dribbling too far ahead or losing traps that simply got away from them.

The defense, so steady all season long, just couldn't stop the Springfield onslaught. The Chiefs knocked on the door all afternoon long and only some fine saves by goaltenders Paul Peloquin and Buddy Butler kept the score within reason.

Scott Bridgeman initiated the scoring at 11:45 of the first half. Mike Conte slammed a shot that forced Peloquin to make a diving save. The rebound came off to the foot of Bridgeman, who sent it past the prone UMass goalie.

Conte made it 2-0 at 36:26. Pete Chandler let loose with a centering pass that brought Peloquin out of the net. Conte got to the ball first, however, dribbled past Peloquin and two-tapped it into the goal.

UMass was saved further embarrasment at the end of the first half when Bridgeman misfired on two penalty kicks. On the first, the Springfield high scorer hit the post but was given another swipe when Peloquin moved prior to the kick. On the second attempt, Bridgeman kicked it straight at the goalie, and Peloquin didn't have to move to make the save.

The second half saw Buddy Butler in the goal as Peloquin was bothered by several bumps and bruises sustained in the first period. The Chiefs wasted little time in testing the rookie and pushed one past him after only 6:47. Freshman Pete Halley sent a cross pass to the middle that squibbed through the hands of Butler right to the foot of Dennis Lukens who found the open net.

Four minutes later, Curt Syer was called for charging just outside the penalty area, giving the Chiefs a direct kick. Mike Stubens lofted the ball toward the middle where Pete Halley hit a header that struck the post and bounded into the net to close out the scoring for the day.

Butler was tough for the rest of the way and collected eight saves in his stint in the net. Peloquin was credited with nine in the first half.

The loss virtually killed any hopes the Minutemen had for a post-season tourney invitation and any chance for a top ten ranking in New England.

KICKING IT AROUND — The game turned into little more than a warm-up for Springfield as the Chiefs are prepping for what could be the biggest game of their season. They host Bridgeport Friday night that could determine who gets the top ranking in New England soccer this season. Bridgeport is presently the top rated team while Springfield holds down the third spot.

The Minutemen, with a record of 5-3-1, are assured of a winning season. The year's finale is set for Saturday when the booters travel to Durham to take on the Wildcats of New Hampshire in a 2:30 game. The contest will decide third place in the Yankee Conference as UMass and UNH are presently tied for that spot with six points apiece.

(Staff Photo - Joe Martins)

In earlier games, letting a goal in was a rare occurrence for Minuteman netminder Paul Peloquin. His luck wasn't as good yesterday as the Booters bowed to Springfield College 4-0.

Let The Girl Play

NEWARK (AP)-New Jersey became the first state in the nation Wednesday to permit girls to play on Little League baseball teams by order of a state civil rights division hearing examiner.

"The institution of Little League is as American as the hotdog and apple pie," declared hearing examiner Sylvia Pressler. "There is no reason why that part of Americana should be withheld from girls."

The ruling, which applies only to New Jersey youngsters, was based on a complaint brought by a Hoboken girl against Little League Baseball, Inc, of Williamsport, Pa. after the girl was ejected from a team whose charter had been threatened by the national organization.

The complaint by Maria Pepe, 12, was prepared by the National Organization of Women.

Attorneys for Little League Baseball said they would appeal to the State Supreme Court if necessary.

Creighton Hale, president of Little League Baseball, Inc. would not comment on the decision.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

SPORTS

Kiernan Named Defensive Star

By GLENN POSTER

Dennis Kiernan, Minuteman linebacker, was chosen Yankee Conference defensive player of the week for his performance last Saturday. Kiernan, a 6'2"-207 lb. junior, was a demon as the Minutemen throttled Vermont 27-7. In addition to sacking the Catamount quarterback four times, Kiernan blocked two punts and also recovered a fumble in the last period that set the stage for the game's final touchdown.

Coach Dick MacPherson, who earlier stated that Bob Parrott was the most consistently excellent player on the team, had this to say about Kiernan· "It's great. I would have to say the same things about him. (as he said about Parrott) He does so much for the team and deserved it. I'm just thrilled for him. He's done everything for us for two years in a row now."

Rhode Island halfback Sylvester "Molly" McGee was chosen the top offensive player in the conference, while Maine halfback Mark DeGregorio was chosen as the top rookie this past weekend.

McGee, a 5'10"-200 lb. senior, gained 162 yards rushing in 20 carries and scored a touchdown on a 42 yard jaunt as the Rams kept themselves in contention for the conference crown with a 40-16 triumph over New Hampshire. Molly had four other runs over ten yards during the afternoon to pace the winners solid ground attack.

DeGregorio, a 5'8"-180 lb. freshman, gained 81 yards rushing and scoring both touchdowns as the Black Bears recorded their first home win of the year, a 14-0 shutout over Bucknell. In addition to his touchdown runs of three and one yard, DeGregorio caught a 17 yard pass to keep one of the scoring drives alive.

DENNIS KIERNAN

Other nominations were: Offense — HB-Eric Torkelson (Connecticut) and Minuteman tight end Gary Mika; Defense — LB-Don Thompson (Connecticut) and Safety Jack O'Rourke (Maine); Rookies — WR-Al MacLellan (Connecticut), Safety Mark Etro (New Hampshire), QB-Steve Crone (Rhode Island), and HB-Sam Blood (Vermont).

Inside Sports

- Tom Coburn: Team Leader
- The Defensive Back
- Bruins Bombed At N.Y.
- "Why I Hate Sports" Column

Tarver Out

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — The New England Patriots learned Wednesday that running back John Tarver has a hairline fracture in the right shoulder and will miss Sunday's National Football League game with the Jets in New York.

Tarver has been dressed but kept on the sidelines the last two games with what was believed only a severe bruise. However, additional X-ray disclosed the fracture.

Steve Crowe

Al Rufe's Double

A guy who looked just like soccer coach Al rufe stole the show at the Varsity M luncheon yesterday.

When Al Rufe was asked to stand up and talk about his soccer program at the Varsity M luncheon, two people rose to their feet.

Both wore dark rimmed glasses, both had the high forehead, the receding hairline, the pointed nose, the straight mouth.

One of the men was Al Rufe, the other was Ken O'Brien, UMass cross-country coach. There had been some talk of the look-alikes in the Collegian and the two coaches had been waiting all week to sit next to each other at the luncheon.

"The first time I noticed how much we looked alike," said O'Brien, "was last spring when I went to see Mr. McInerney (athletic director) to ask for more money for the cross country program..new uniforms, etc... I talked to him for about an hour and he just kept nodding while Al spoke and everything seemed fine. But then, a week later, I saw that there was a $2000 increase in the soccer budget."

O'Brien is as smooth as Johnny Carson.

"I went out to dinner at a restaurant with my wife the other night and when we were seated, I noticed one of the waitresses smiling at me. I, naturally, smiled back. Then I noticed her waving at me, so I waved back. She came over to the table and said, "How are you, coach?' I said, 'fine.' ....Finally, when my wife and I were leaving the place, the waitress whispered in my ear, 'We'll have to get together again sometime.'"

All this time, Al Rufe was turning different shades of red. The story was obviously another example of how being Al Rufe's look-alike has affected O'Brien's life.

Al Rufe did get a chance to talk about his soccer program. He introduced his entire team, one by one, and said "I feel we deserve to be chosen as one of the top four spots in the New England tournament if we can win today and Saturday..what do ya say, fellas?"

O'Brien, in a more serious mood, credited his co-captains as being the major factor for the team's winning the New England cross country meet Monday. It was due to the commitment the team made to themselves this fall. "Randy (Thomas) and Bill (Gillin) are the best team since Erlichmann and Haldemann," he said.

"Last year we were tenth in the IC4A's," O'Brien noted, "but this year we will finish better than that."

O'Brien had earlier introduced Thomas as 'the guy who makes all those predictions in the paper.' Thomas had made the comment that "no freshman ever beats me twice in a row" before an earlier meet. But now O'Brien has put himself on the spot.

When football coach Dick MacPherson arrived a little later, O'Brien quipped, "I've never seen a guy go through so much trouble, so much promotion and publicity (as 'Mac' did last Saturday) just to get Yogi Berra's autograph."

O'Brien's show was a tough act to follow, but the next speaker was one who was accustomed to working under alot of pressure, basketball coach Jack Leaman.

"This is the worst time of the year for our people," he said. "These people have been playing against each other in practice for so long that they all know each other's moves by now."

When sports "personality" (I guess that's the word you use to describe this type - he's sort of the Henry Morgan of the UMass Sports World) Marty Kelley tried to interupt Leaman in the middle of his speech, Leaman looked around the room, and said, "Did someone open the door? I thought I felt a breeze."

The Varsity M luncheons are held every Wednesday at 12:00 noon in the Newman Center. If you're interested in finding out what kind of people run the UMass sports teams don't miss the next one. They are a real zoo.

Look In All The Nooks And Crannies

By MIKE KNEELAND

There is something intrinsically funny about cockroaches, but not to some UMass commuters living in Sunderland's Mt. Sugarloaf Apts.

"The other day I opened a drawer and there were 8 or 10 cockroaches there," complained Peter Maloney. "they're in the dishwasher, they're in the closets...they're everywhere!"

Tenants contacted by the MDC said the cockroaches have been in their apartments since they moved there in Sept. and that they were also there with previous tenants. Initial complaints to the management proved futile they say.

"Right after we moved in I saw bugs, but I didn't know what they were," said UMie Mary Reed. "the bugs got bigger and bigger and there were more of them. Then I found out they were cockroaches."

Tenants say the management took no action until they grouped together. Since then, apartments have been sprayed.

"The management claims we brought the cockroaches in," said Maloney. "I know the cockroaches were here before I moved in because I talked to the people who used to live here and they had cockroaches, too."

Staff Photo/David Less

"They're in the diswashers, they're in the closets...they're everywhere."

Richard Cooper, owner of the apartments, said Mt. Sugarloaf has had management problems. He said a Ralph Judd was fired as apartment manager and reduced to a janitorial position because of his "lack of response" to tenants' complaints.

Cooper said he wants to be responsive to the student tenants. "I find that (excessive cockroaches) disgusting," he said. "I wouldn't want any (cockroaches) in my home."

But Judd acknowledges no cockroach problem. "We keep on getting called over but I've only seen one live cockroach," he said. Upon reconsideration, Judd said he once saw "two dead baby cockroaches."

He said, however, that some apartments have been sprayed as much as eight times. Tenants say this is evidence in itself that a cockroach problem exists.

In a later statement, apparently acknowledging the existence of the cockroaches, Judd said the insects entered the apartments because some of the tenants have "garbage on the floors".

Edward Kopeck, the new manager, recently visited one of the sprayed apts. He told the tenants he was going to have the Board of Health inspect the apartments. A Sunderland town spokesman said she knew of no such request.

Kopeck accused the tenants of trying to create an issue so that they might break their lease.

"We want to break our lease because of the cockroaches!" shouted Ms. Reed.

Judd said the young tenants want to break their lease because a former manager, a friend of theirs who "is young too," was fired.

UMass Professor of Entomology, Joe Lilly, said it takes at least four or five months for a new cockroach generation to appear. "And many are slower than that," he added.

Kopeck told the tenants it only takes three weeks for a new cockroach generation to appear.

Professor Lilly characterized cockroaches as "scroungers" saying housekeepers need not be sloppy to have the pests. He said cockroach eggs may enter an apartment on grocery bags. He said it is also easy for cockroaches to go from one apartment to another nearby apartment.

Lilly said it's difficult to exterminate cockroaches because the population may develop a resistancy to a particular chemical. "They're awfully hard to knock-out," he said.

Sugarloaf tenants say their exterminator must be having a tough time knocking-out their cockroaches.

So residents might have to learn to live with the cockroaches. And with the price of meat going up...who knows.

New England's

Largest

College Daily

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOLUME CI, ISSUE 45, 36 PAGES, TWO SECTIONS UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1973

Weather

"It's awfully hard with those cockroaches watching us on these dark and stormy nights," she complained in his arms.

Recyclable

Solons Back Collective Bargaining Bill

Photo-Emmett Schmarsow

State Rep. Edward McClogan, appearing for Speaker Bartley

By JUDY FRIEDLAND

Working "to further strengthen the role of the educator in the structure of government," the Massachusetts Legislature, according to Speaker David M. Bartley of the House of Representatives, is considering the passage of a strong collective bargaining bill concerning all public employees.

A late session of the legislature concerning this bill prevented Speaker Bartley from attending a meeting to inform faculty of their role in government. The meeting, sponsored by the Massachusetts Society of Professors-American Association of University Professors (MSP-AAUP), a union that is hoping to become the bargaining agent for UMass faculty, was held yesterday in the Campus Center. Representative Edward McColgan of Northampton came from Boston with a statement prepared by Bartley. Senator John Olver and Representative Jim Collins, both from Amherst were also unable to attend.

McColgan voiced his support of the collective bargaining bill, which will, he said, "give general collective bargaining rights to people in higher education."

Passage of the bill will enable faculty to negotiate wages and hours and working conditions, said Sheridan Carey, a member of the legislative staff of the Massachusetts Teachers Association (MTA), a statewide organization affiliated with the MSP-AAUP.

"However, they could only negotiate if represented by a bargaining agent," Carey said.

A gubernatorial commission first began drafting the bill in 1969. Harvey Friedman, director of the Labor Relations and Research Center at UMass was a member of the commission.

The bill, according to Friedman, began as a revision of laws concerning state employees. Within a few months, Friedman said, it expanded to include all employees in the public sector: state, county and municipal. The Senate and House both passed the bill with several changes. Presently they are trying to settle their disputes about the bill.

"They might well resolve the bill in about three or four weeks," Friedman said, "although that's only an educated guess."

In his statement, Bartley also said that so called taxpayer groups which have newly sprung up in Massachusetts may in fact be cover organizations created to peddle the same type of regressive legislation just rejected by the California electorate.

Bartley referred to Governor Ronald Reagan's "phony and regressive" tax ceiling proposition. He said "that type of legislation would almost certainly hurt any state's ability to finance the type of educational opportunity needed in a modern society."

Bartley pledged his support for public higher education. And said the legislatures' support for higher education has increased by more than 600 percent in the past decade.

The faculty will vote on collective bargaining next Thursday and Friday.

Staff Photo/Emmett Schmarsow

Howard Brogan, Chairman of the MSP-AAUP.

The nation started to wind down fuel consumption yesterday. Cooler public buildings, lower speed limits on highways, and unlit Christmas decorations led the way to energy curtailment. The national scene can be found on page four, the regional scene on page six.

UMass Readies Energy Plans To Meet With Fuel Shortage

By BOB SCHEIER

UMass will face slightly colder classrooms, dormitories and offices this winter as a result of President Nixon's appeal to the nation Wednesday night to conserve energy.

The UMass administration has ordered the temperatures in most of the 250 buildings on campus to be lowered to 65-68 degrees, according to UMass director of public affairs Daniel M. Melley.

In addition, Melley said, state-owned cars based on campus will be limited to 50 miles per hour, and the administration will study ways to prolong use of the current oil and coal burning power plant, located in the Physical Plant.

The plant had been scheduled to be replaced next Spring by a new oil burning plant, currently under construction at Tillson Farm.

Melley said maintenance personnel had already begun to turn down the 7,000 thermostats involved before the President's speech, urging Americans to cut fuel consumption by turning down thermostats and driving slower.

Some buildings which must maintain a constant temperature--such as some labs--would not be affected by the cutback, Melley said.

An Energy Conservation Commission, made up of faculty, staff, and students, will also begin a campaign of "education and awareness" on the energy crisis, according to Richard B. Shanor, another UMass spokesman.

It is too early to tell how much fuel--or money--the university would be saving through the temperature cutbacks, Shanor said. He did say that before the cutbacks, UMass burned between 5,000 and 5,500 tons of coal, and between 350,000 and 400,000 gallons of oil in an average winter month.

Melley said the decision whether to postpone the transfer to the new power plant would depend on many factors determining whether the shift to the new plant would save money and cut down on pollution.

School Of Ed. To Hold Marathon In Jan. '74

By JOANN DOMINICK

"We thought of moving fall to January to have the leaves turning red and the sun shining during the marathon," said Sheila Davis Inderlied, coordinator of the School of Education "Marathon 74."

Though the weather won't cooperate, the marathon that is usually held in November will be moved to January of 1974.

The dates of "Marathon 74" are January 14-25 and April 15-19 of 1974.

According to Ms. Inderlied, "The reason for holding the Marathon in January instead of November are manifold. It's our means of seducing the students to stay on campus or return here for credit, and more important, for fun."

Ms. Inderlied said "Holding the marathon in January gives us a chance to take advantage of the January activities put on by the other departments in the university. Also, we will have better use of the facilities. We can get more people from the outside, teachers, administrators and others to participate."

"The idea of the Marathon came about in 1969 when a graduate student in Foundations of Education, which was known as the "most terrible course" in the School of Ed., brought the idea of the Marathon to instructors Bob Woodbury and Tom Clark to get the whole course over within 24 hours. They decided to divide the course into two 12 hour periods. Other course professors said they would join to give a choice. The whole idea of the marathon expanded from there," said Ms. Inderlied.

The marathon will be offering many events:

—Sid Simon, a faculty member in the School of Ed., well known for his work in the area of Value Clarification, will offer "Wadjaget: The Grading System in Education". He will also sponsor "Sexuality and Sensuality".

—Mike Melink, an instructor in the School of Ed. wil offer "Development of Clinic to Improve University Teaching."

—The Woman's Caucus in the School of Ed. will offer the event "Creative Expression, By, For and About Women."

—Al Livy and Norma Gluckstern will offer a "Demonstration Workshop in Counseling".

Ms. Inderlied said, "We are hoping to have as speaker Jonathan Kozal, author of "Death at an Early Age."

Other events offered will be a mini-film marathon on Jan. 18 and 19, offering such films as Jean Paul Belmando's "Breathless" and "Repulsion". There will also be underground flicks and other films throughout the week.

Ms. Inderlied said, "We will be co-sponsoring some events with the School of Business in the form of workshops and other presentations."

"We have invited the Shakespeare Theatre Co. of Stratford, Conn. who have agreed to put on workshops, with the possibility of a performance," she said.

Ms. Inderlied said, "The marathon will run from 9 in the morning to 10 at night with the exception of Saturday and Sunday when we will run the film Marathon."

Dorms will be open and there will also be a day care center set up for students who will be staying here in January for the Marathon. Said Ms. Inderlied, "There is no charge for events of the marathon, in fact it is our way of letting students get more education for their money."

Ms. Inderlied said the program is open to anybody and everybody, not just the people in the School of Education.

She added, "People from the university and the five college community will sign the roster at the events they are taking and this will be the way of receiving credit for their courses."

She said, "Other people not in the five college community will sign the roster with the continuing education division, who will have a table set up. At that time they will pay the proper fee".

"Also, a preliminary schedule will be published in the Collegian the first of December with many of the events listed."

Ms. Inderlied is also in the process of putting together a five college bulletin on all the activities of January intercession which will be made available later this year.

Ms. Inderlied said that if anyone is interested in helping with the marathon in any way, from answering telephone to typing letters, they can contact one of her assistants, Pat Alger or Chris Polomshi at 5-1585 or come up to room 225c in the School of Ed.

Gerald Weinstien (center) takes part in last years spring marathon.

OH Student Organizes Meal Ticket Boycott

By SUE ADLEY

There will be no increase in the cost of meal tickets next semester announced Vice Chancellor for Administrative Services Thomas B. Campion yesterday. But the fight against poor food and inefficient service in the dining commons goes on!

Charles Goodreau, a sophomore living in Central, is trying to organize a boycott in protest of what he considers generally poor conditions in the Dining Commons, and he is asking for student support.

"I've drawn up a petition, and now I'm in the process of spreading them all over campus," he said. "My biggest problem right now, though, is not enough contacts. I'd also like to set up a committee to work through to organize some 'physical' support among the students, such as walkouts in the Dining Commons. Letters written to the Collegian in protest are also good. It's importatn that we don't let the University get away with this. If they intimidate us now, who knows what they'll do to us next? I want everyone to support this in their areas and dorms, and get petitions circulated. We need people plugging it."

Goodreau's petition reads: "In view of the poor standards of food, inefficient service, and high meal ticket prices, we, the members of (name of dorm) have no other recourse than to boycott the payment of meal tickets next semester (Jan. 1974) until the mandatory portion of the plan is omitted. If the food is improved, then we feel that the convenience of owning a meal ticket would attract enough students to make it worthwhile for the Food Services to operate. But, one who is in such a secure position as the Food Services (with an assured patronage) are not as receptive to student needs. This is why we must organize the campus in an all-out boycott of the mandatory meal ticket. The students pay for this University; if we say that something changes, then change it must. To this, we the members of (name of dorm) lend our names and support:.........."

Goodreau talked about a proposed increase. "I'm not trying to screw them," he said. "I'm in favor of having a Dining Commons if the food and the service are good. However, we're being forced to pay for poor food and service, and I don't like that. The students are paying plenty here as it is."

In reference to the boycott, Joel Stoneham, Director of the University Food Services, said, "Our responsibility is to operate within a budget. If alternatives are not given to us to evaluate and possibly implement, then there is no other recourse than to boost fees. If students have any other alternatives to negate the increase, we'd be pleased to implement them." Stoneham also said that he didn't know what effect the boycott and petitions would have on the Board of Trustees. "When board price increases were proposed, we expected unpopularity. We don't like them any more than the students do," he said.

Goodreau said that anyone who eats in the Dining Commons can easily come up with reasons to boycott it. "The meals were bad last semester, and they're worse now. I told my dorm that I wasn't coming back next semester if I had to buy a meal ticket. Trying to lead an active life on that food is hard when it is mostly all starches and carbohydrates. One example of how we're being 'snowed' by the Food Services in this respect are the 'table tents' they had at dinner a while ago. They showed protein percentages in some of the foods they serve as found in the USDA handbook. This didn't mean a thing. They don't test for protein percentages themselves, and they don't take into account protein losses when the food is left in the warming pans," he said.

Goodreau claimed that Food Service Personnel feel that as long as they can force you to eat there, they can do anything they want. "The students are suffering due to the food shortage. This University is not for the students. We get hassled every inch of the way with bureaucratic bullshit. Even as an academic counselor in Brett House, I'm learning quite a bit about how people are being intimidated by the University — it's not responsive enough to the students. If enough people get together they can do something."

On the topic of the September Food Service referendum, Goodreau said, "The students were taken advantage of needlessly in the referendum. It would have been better for possible referendum choices to be presented to the student body first for investigation and comment, then to have the vote next semester. The presentation of the whole thing was a surpise and had a lot to do with how the students voted."

"It's up to Joel Stoneham," Goodreau said, "to come up with better standards — not the students. That's his job. We're paying for his salary and the food. Just call me at 6-9533."

Status Report On Parking System

By SUSAN R. HUBBARD

H.J. Littlefield, UMass Planning Director, spoke on the present status of the new parking system before a meeting of the Faculty Senate yesterday afternoon.

Pedestrian safety and enviornmental concerns were two of the objectives Littlefield said were incorporated in the new system.

"We tried to provide many options," said Littlefield. "An open and free system was devised, but this still has drawbacks."

Littlefield's term 'open and free system' referred to the first come, first served manner in which the parking spaces were assigned for the fall semester.

Questions had been raised by a faculty senator concerning this policy of treating staff and students equally in regards to lot assignments.

"Since 11,000 students commute daily to the Amherst campus, approximately two-thirds of the 12,000 available spaces were assigned to students," stated Littlefield. The remaining spaces were reserved for staff members who number about 4,000.

In core or central lots of the campus, 69% of the spaces are assigned to staff, while students occupy 66% of the edge and periphery lots according to Littlefield's figures.

In student residential areas 71% of the available parking spaces were student assigned.

When the present parking system was devised Littlefield said it was suggested that freshmen and sophomores be prohibited from registering a car on campus, but this was not found to be a viable solution.

Also, Littlefield emphasized that this is a daytime and weekday system. Only such regulations as fire lanes and specially designated spaces are still in effect at night or on the weekends.

In other business, Chancellor Randolph W. Bromery announced an election will be held in the Campus Center on Nov. 15, 16 to determine what percent of professors and teachers favor collective bargaining.

"The worst that could happen would be that a small number of the faculty would turn out to vote, and that the decision would be made by a simple majority," stated Bromery in reference to the collective bargaining vote.

Elections were held during the Fac-Sen meeting to select an alternative delegate to the Board of Trustees. Stanley Young, of SBA, won the majority's support for the positon.

Three motions from the Academic Matters Committee also received approval. They were:

--to transfer Home Economics to the College of Food and Natural Resources

--to transfer the Department of Textiles, Clothing and Environmental Art to the Art Department and

--to recommend the affiliation of the Department of Human Development with the School of Ed. for a two year trial period.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

The office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN is on the second floor of the Student Union on the campus of the University of Massachusetts, zip code 01002. Telephones: 545-2550 (news); 545-0344 (sports); 545-0731 (business).

Second class postage is paid in Amherst and additional mailing in Ware, Mass. 01082. THE DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes Monday through Friday during the academic year, except during vacation, exam periods or holidays. Accepted for mailing under the authority of an act of March 8, 1879; as amended by an act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $6.00 per semester of $10.00 per year.

"WALKING TALL"

"The best American movie so far this year, and a truly extraordinary action film."
— Rolling Stone

Starts Wed.,
Nov. 14
Campus Cinemas

Those in the know . . . always go . . .
to the DOWN UNDER at Greenough
Pinball and Cigarettes coming soon
Hours: Tues.-Thurs., 7-12
Friday, 7-1
Saturday & Sunday, 12-12

Agreement Reached In Belchertown Suit

By DAVE GREENSLIT

Representatives for the Belchertown Friends Association and the state of Massachusetts agreed yesterday upon measures to improve conditions at the Belchertown State School.

Both sides signed a "consent decree" yesterday afternoon at the Lord Jeffrey Inn in Amherst. The consent decree spells out specific changes to take place at Belchertown, as well as funds to be appropriated by the legislature.

The decree has been sent to U.S. District Court Judge Joseph Tauro in Boston. Specific details of the decree were not made public, according to Dr. Benjamin Ricci, president of the Belchertown Friends Association, on the orders of Judge Tauro.

Ricci said he expects Tauro to release a court decree within days. All of the specifics for Belchertown improvements will be made public in the court decree, Ricci said.

The agreement came 21 months after the Belchertown Friends sued the state because of allegedly inhumane conditions at the school.

According to Ricci, agreement has been reached on three broad issues:

1-increasing the number of professional positions at the school;

2-improving residential quarters; and,

3-placing some residents in community homes.

These improvements are just the beginning, Ricci said. He said the Belchertown Friends plan to bring their "laundry list" to the state in January. This calls for the abolition of seclusion, increased education, and improved diet, clothing, record keeping, and recreation programs.

Ricci said the Belchertown decision will have "spinoff gains" for similar institutions throughout the nation and the world. Residents of mental institutions, he said, will no longer have their "Bill of Rights flaunted."

In a related development, the state Senate has passed a bill requiring all physicians in the Department of Mental Health to be registered to practice medicine in Massachusetts, according to a press release from Senator John W. Olver, Senate Chairman of the Special Commission Investigating the Belchertown State School.

Physicians are now only required to have what the press release called "a limited license." The bill calls for limited license physicians to become fully licensed within five years of their employment and that they complete three and one-half years of medical school.

Phelps Charged In Riot Case

By STEVE TRIPOLI

New developments have occurred in the case of Douglas Phelps, an employee of the Student Center for Educational Research at UMass. Phelps has been charged with conspiracy to aid and abet a riot at Wounded Knee, South Dakota, last April. Also named on the indictment are Vernon Bellecourt, a national director of the American Indian Movement (AIM), and Indian woman activist Tonian Ackerman.

At a hearing held last month in New York City, where Phelps turned himself in on September 26th, oral arguments were presented to the magistrate, who ordered a wait until legal briefs were received from the US Attorneys for New York and Wyoming. The government hopes to have the trial moved to Wyoming, where the trio were arrested last April. A legal brief was also awaited from the American Civil Liberties Union, which is representing Phelps.

All three briefs were submitted as of last week, and a decision is expected "any day", according to Phelps.

The magistrate's decision will consist of a recommendation to a United States District Judge in New York, and that judge will base the decision on whether or not to remove the trial to Wyoming either on the briefs previously presented or on a hearing which he will request.

Phelps expects an appeal regardless of which side wins. If the Government loses the case and the subsequent appeal, he feels that there is a chance that it will go to the Supreme Court.

At the present time, both Bellecourt and Ackerman have been removed to Wyoming for the trial. The case has been stayed there "until they get me", according to Phelps.

Hall Files Grass Legalization Bill

By MARY LAWSON

"In democracy if people want marijuana they have a right to it. It's getting back to a pure democracy," said Dana Owens, administrative assistant to Senator Robert Hall in a Collegian interview.

Senator Robert Hall (R-Lunenburg) has recently filed legislation which if passed by the Senate, would enable people in Massachusetts to vote on the legalization of marijuana at the next state election.

Owens said that Hall has no strong convictions about marijuana. His strong conviction is that the decisions should come from the people.

Owens explained that when an earlier bill filed by Senator Backman to legalize marijuana in January 1974 was defeated, the 27-year-old, UMass graduate Hall offered an amendment to the bill that it be put on the ballot for the voters' opinions in 1974.

Owens said with regard to Hall's legislation, "If you get the people's votes the politicians will go along with them. If they vote against the popular opinion, there's a good chance they won't be re-elected."

He said that there will be an open hearing on the bill probably in February or March. They are hoping to get many people at the hearing.

Owens said that people should write to newspapers, Senators, and Representatives supporting Senator Hall's bill which will let the people decide on this issue.

He said, "It's about time young people at UMass showed an interest in what the state is doing, because it's affecting them very much."

"I feel there is a good chance for the bill to be adopted if the people back it," he added.

Dr. Laing To Speak In Sunday Lecture

The Psychology Dept., Room to Move, Institute for Governmental Services, Program in Mental Health Services, and Campus Center Program Council, are pleased to announce the personal appearance of noted psychologist R. D. Laing, on Sunday, November 11th, at 8:00 p.m. in the CC Audit.

Dr. Laing was born in Glasgow and graduated from the University there. He is currently chairman of the Philadelphia Association, a charity concerned with developing practical social intervention from theories expounded in his book The Politics of Experience. As a Psychiatrist and Psychologist, his research is particularly concerned with schizophrenia, families and varieties of human experience including mind-expanding drugs.

His other books include The Divided Self, Self and Others, Knots, Reason and Violence (with David Cooper), Interpersonal Perception (with H. Phillipson and A.R. Lee), and Sanity, Madness, and the Family (with A. Esterson).

Ethiopians To Rally

Ethopia is now in the midst of a terrible famine. According to reliable sources, an average of 500 Ethopians die of starvation and related diseases every week.

Ethopian students in the area have decided to do something about this situation. Today there will be a rally held by these students in front of the Springfield Civic Center, corner of Main and State Streets, beginning at 12 noon.

Everyone is invited to attend.

CC Board Approves Central Travel Bid

By SHARON HUGHES

The Campus Center Board of Governors last night approved the Central Travel Agency's bid for travel agency space in the CC over Peter Pan's bid.

They denied a request from Hillel to waive rental fee for using the Student Union Ballroom to hold a rally for Israel and approved waiver request from the Psychology Department.

In other business the Board allocated $530 for the purchase of blackout shades for eighth and nineth floor meeting rooms in the CC, announced plans for reconsideration of its concourse table policy, named Philip Amico as Manager of CC Food Services, and tabled a motion to urge DVP to contract Moe Howard.

Howard Levin, chairperson of the Board's services committee, noted several superior aspects in the Central Travel Bureau's bid. They offered about $3000 in flat rental fee more than Peter Pan, agreed to give refunds on tickets without qualification, and to accept both personal checks and credit cards at all times. Also, it will offer on the job training and will operate their own travel school with three free enrollments.

Hillel's request for a fee waiver for the rally for Israel held last month in the Student Union Ballroom provoked much debate. An RSO group (Registered Student Organization) as Hillel is, may use a room in the CC or the SU without charge provided they do not collect funds at the event.

Board member John Hays argued against Hillel's request because, "They obviously were engaged in fund raising and these retroactive waiver requests are becoming commonplace. They've got to be stopped," Hays said.

"They used it to make money but they didn't charge admission, in other words, while funds were raised, they weren't for Hillel's benefit," said Levin.

They based approval for the purchase of blackout shades for the 8th and 9th floor meeting rooms on a memo from CC Director John Corker. The memo stated that the design of the blinds made it impossible to adequately darken rooms when audio visual equipment is required.

It reported 15 requests for blackout material from committee chairpersons since September. Many requests came from irritated conference groups who financially support the CC. Solving the problem on a temporary basis wastes manpower and adds to the general disorganization of the CC, read the memo.

Levin said the "hard line" approach of the policy setting rules for tables on the concourse will be reconsidered by Services Committee. Two requests for exemption were denied by the committee last week. One was from a woman whose partner was a non-student; the other from two men whose goods competed with similar items sold by the University Store.

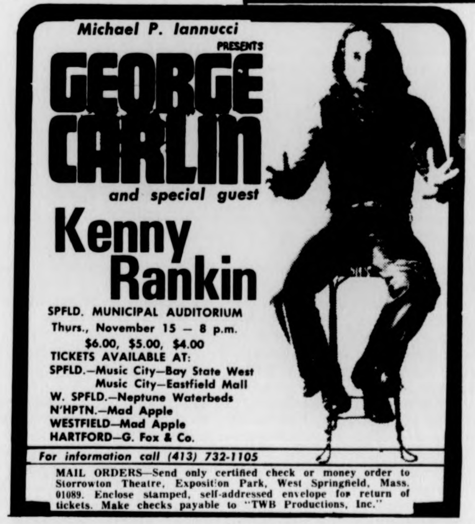
Energy Outlooks Dim

NEW YORK (AP) — Oilmen and energy experts say President Nixon's immediate energy proposals probably did not go far enough, and rationing might be needed sooner than expected to get the country through the winter.

And for the longer term, they agreed, energy conservation measures are going to become a fact of life in the United States.

In his address Wednesday night, Nixon called for a voluntary cutback in home-heating oil use, a reduction in highway speed limits, a temporary relaxation of antipollution requirements to be determined on a case-by-case basis.

SKI SPAIN
Earn 2 credits during intersession
Call 5-2801



Michael P. Iannucci
PRESENTS
GEORGE CARLIN
and special guest
Kenny Rankin
SPFLD. MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM
Thurs., November 15 — 8 p.m.
$6.00, $5.00, $4.00
TICKETS AVAILABLE AT:
SPFLD.—Music City—Bay State West
Music City—Eastfield Mall
W. SPFLD.—Neptune Waterbeds
N'HPTN.—Mad Apple
WESTFIELD—Mad Apple
HARTFORD—G. Fox & Co.
For information call (413) 732-1105
MAIL ORDERS—Send only certified check or money order to Storrowton Theatre, Exposition Park, West Springfield, Mass. 01089. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope for return of tickets. Make checks payable to "TWB Productions, Inc."

安城中國飯店
AMHERST CHINESE FOOD
62 Main St., Amherst
Tel. 253-7835
EAT IN OR TAKE-OUT
LUNCH SPECIALS 99¢ & up

TEN PIN BOWLING
at Boyden Gym
50° per string
MONDAY - FRIDAY
4:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m.
(except during league play)

Sundaes 45c
Between 2 - 5 p.m.
Today
thru Friday
THE GASLITE II
168 N. Pleasant St. 253-2291
Open 6:30 a.m.-10:30 p.m.

In The Nation And The World

Nation Gears For Low Fuel

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thermostats were lower in homes and public buildings throughout the nation Thursday as private citizens and government officials alike sought ways to implement President Nixon's suggestions for conserving energy.

The Nixon administration spokesmen Thursday sought blanket powers to suspend clean-air requirements and shorten licensing procedures of nuclear power plants.

The requests went far beyond those in an emergency energy package proposed by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Interior Committee.

State and local officials were quick to instruct drivers of government-owned vehicles not to drive faster than 50 miles per hour, but most foresaw little chance that speed limits for private cars could be reduced without federal action.

The more popular projects to reduce gasoline consumption involved attempts to form car pools and government promises to begin shifting to smaller cars.

The spirit behind many of the public and private efforts was an "every little bit helps" philosophy. The savings that approach could yield already were being shown in the state of Oregon, where an intensive campaign to save electric power began more than a month ago.

Consumption of electric power in Oregon during October was 8.1 per cent below the power industry's "load estimates" based on previous experience. Industry spokesmen said about three-quarters of the saving was due to voluntary reductions in power use.

No problems were reported at scores of public and private public buildings where thermostats were reduced to 68 degrees or lower.

Many individual home owners said they also reduced thermos readings in their homes, but some found it difficult to keep the resolve. A teen-age girl in Illinois said her father had turned the family thermostat to 70 degrees after the President's speech, "but he got so cold during the night he got up and put it back to 75."

Speed limits were cut to 50 m.p.h. on both the New Jersey Turnpike and the Garden State Parkway, but Gov. Wendell Anderson of Minnesota typified the reaction in many other states when he said speed limits would not be reduced there until there was a uniform national move to do so.

Many law enforcement officials also saw little chance that drivers would voluntarily reduce their speeds, but in Maine a state police spokesman said a radar check was made on U.S. Route 1 in Scarborough and "we were surprised that drivers really are cutting back."

In Georgia, the state patrol said it would try to conserve fuel and reduce car speeds in one step - by having its car concentrate more on observing instead of patroling. "We feel that by putting a patrol car in plain sight alongside a highway, motorists will slow down and thus save fuel," Maj. Hugh Hardison said.

In Tennessee, employes coming to work at the capitol in car pools are being given preferred parking places. And the state government said it has already asked for bids on compact and subcompact cars for official use.

In Ohio, Gov. John Gilligan ordered all state agencies to turn down their lights and their thermostats, and announced that he would replace his limousine with a smaller car when the current lease runs out.

Also in Ohio, representatives attending a meeting in Columbus of the National Association of Secondary School Principals urged a cutback in the use of student cars. Carey M. Pace Jr. of Columbus, the association president, said hundreds of thousands of gallons of gasoline could be conserved each day if students would use available buses and other public transportation.

At the White House, a spokesman said Nixon had asked governors, mayors and county officials to consider shortening school hours during the winter and extending the term into the summer to help cope with the energy crisis.

In Maryland, Gov. Marvin Mandel said he would ask for broad, temporary emergency powers when the legislature convenes Friday for a special session scheduled earlier to elect a new speaker. Mandel said the powers could include the authority to set hours for the public and commercial buildings, suspend air quality controls, and reduce speed limits to 50 m.p.h.

In West Virginia, Gov. Arch A. Moore Jr. ordered state agencies to phase out 10 per cent of their motor vehicle fleets. He added that he is developing a plan for other energy conservation measures but wants to "see what the other states are going to do" because "there's no point in our instituting a broad-based program if the energy we save is going to be wasted in Pennsylvania or New York."

Efforts to reduce the consumption of electricity included a decision by William Wrigley to turn off the 1,300,000-candle power lights on his Wrigley Building in Chicago.

Plans to cut back on electric lights on Christmas displays, already under way in many areas, were stepped up. In Wisconsin, Stanley York, named last week to head the state's new Office of Emergency Energy Assistance, said the office will "shoot for heavy reduction of decorative lighting."

In Pompano Beach, Fla., the city commission cancelled the annual Christmas boat parade that features vessels brightly decorated as waterborne floats.

And in North Brunswick, N.J., the National Headquarters of the Boy Scouts of America announced a program to send its 6.5 million members knocking on doors across the nation to urge householders to lower their thermostats by three degrees.

The administration has provided the committee with only a rough draft version of its energy legislation. A committee source said it contains other provisions unlikely to be approved by the Senate.

The committee planned to begin voting on the Jackson bill Friday after receiving any additional recommendations from the White House.

The powers granted the president by the Jackson bill would expire one year after passage of the legislation.

Harvard Pays Cambridge Extra $4,000 To Be Neat

CAMBRIDGE (AP) - Harvard Univeristy likes to keep things neat, even if its costs $4,000.

According to a plan by which the University pays the city of Cambridge money in lieu of taxes on its tax-exempt property, Harvard was to have paid the city $496,000 this year.

But, according to Donald C. Moulton, the University's vice president for community affairs, Harvard decided to round that figure off to $500,000 for this year's payment.

In addition to the voluntary payment, Harvard, and its sister college Radcliffe, paid the city $913,967.83 this year in taxes "for properties on the tax rolls, either because the law requires them to be on the rolls or, in some cases because Harvard has voluntarily left them on the rolls," Moulton said.

The university's voluntary payment was $283,095 in 1971 and $410,000 last year, Moulton said.

Harvard, along with Massachusetts Institute of Technology, owns about 46 per cent of Cambridge's land area.

MIT paid the city $315,000 in lieu of taxes in 1972 and has not announced what its payment will be this year.

Harvard has been making payments in lieu of taxes to Cambridge since 1928.

★ ★ ★

Nixon Seeks Controls

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Nixon formally asked Congress Thursday to blend his emergency energy proposals into pending legislation and to give him standby authority to impose fuel and gasoline rationing.

The five-page message sent to Capitol Hill late Thursday followed up on his televised report to the nation Wednesday night on how his administration tends to cope with the energy shortages.

"The energy crisis that once seemed a distant threat to many people is now closing upon us quickly," Nixon told Congress. Because of the Middle East war, he said, "we must face up to the stark fact" that petroleum supplies could fall as much as 17 per cent short of demand this winter."

Nixon announced Wednesday night the listed steps he wants included in legislation now before Congress.

They include authorization to cut government and industry business hours, reduce highway speed limits to 50 miles per hour, temporarily relax antipollution laws, adjust air and other transportation schedules, allow nuclear power plants to operate for 18 months without public hearings on license applications, permit year-around Daylight Saving Time and authorize full production form government oil reserves.

In addition, Nixon asked for congressional anactment before December of standby authority to allocate and ration energy supplies.

"It is my hope that rationing of energy products will never be required," Nixon said, "but if circumstances dictate it, there should be no impediment to swift action."

He reported that "for contingency purposes" he had directed that a gasoline-rationing plan "be drawn up and held in reserve."

Without giving specifics, Nixon asked also for additional authority to make greater use of federal highway funds for mass transit capital improvements.

Common Cause May Watch SargentFunds

BOSTON (AP) - Gov. Francis W. Sargent announced Thursday that as a part of an attempt to restore public confidence in public officials, he is asking Common Cause, the Massachusetts citizens lobby, to monitor his campaign fund-raising.

"The most repugnant part of running for public office is this business of passing the hat," Sargent said. "It seems so shady, so shaded in gray areas of law and cynical custom."

The ultimate answer, Sargent said, will probably be public financing of political campaigns, but in the meantime, he said he is imposing certain rules on himself and asking Common Cause to monitor him and any other candidate who is willing.

ROOM TO MOVE
Campus Drug Drop-In Center
CALL 5-0400
24 HOURS A DAY
7 DAYS A WEEK

Infirmary
(In An Emergency)
(54)5-2671

GERMAN PARTS
WE'VE GOT A PART FOR YOU!
and if we don't, we'll get it.
AT
ALLIED MOTOR PARTS, INC.
BRITISH JAPANESE
319 MAIN ST., AMHERST
256-8341
256-8342
Chilton's Repair Manuals
AMERICAN PARTS

"There's something for everyone in our BOOT CELLAR"
BOLLES Shoes
8 Main St. Amherst
"BOOTS FOR EITHER SEX"

Mideast Peace Talks In The Future

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israel and Egypt both have agreed to a five-point cease-fire agreement that could produce peace talks on a Middle east settlement by the end of the year, U. S. officials said.

The officials, with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in Saudi Arabia on the last leg of a Mideast trip, met with newsmen early Friday and siad the agreement still had to be submitted to U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim.

The agreement, the officials said, would ease tensions by providing an exchange of prisoners and giving the Egyptians access to their encircled Army on the east bank of the Suez Canal and to the city of Suez on the west bank.

The officials said the agreement calls for readjustment of the cease-fire line to conform with terms of the Oct. 22 U. N. cease-fire resolution.

Israeli and Egyptian officers met Thursday to discuss a new cease-fire line in accordance with the reported cease-fire plan, Israeli Defense Ministry sources said Thursday in Tel Aviv.

The U.S. officials, describing Washington as "the trustee" of the new cease-fire agreement, said action to implement the agreement could begin in a matter of days.

At the United Nations in New York, it was learned that U.S. Ambassador John A. Scali had an appointment with Waldheim Friday morning, apparently to give him a copy of the agreement.

The U.S. officials said it was understood that the agreement also would provide for the lifting of a blockade that has barred Israeli ships from going from the Red Sea to the Persian Gulf.

Announcement of the agreement followed Kissinger's trip to Morocco, Tunisia, Egypt, Jordan and Saudi Arabia, where he conferred with Arab leaders.

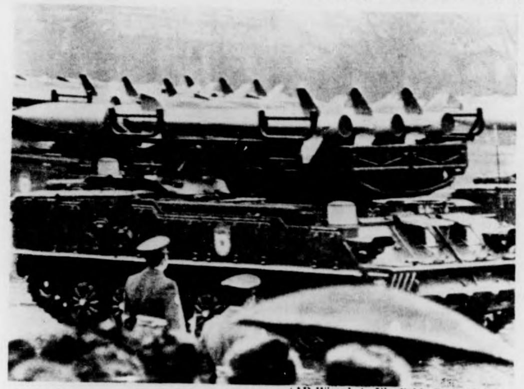
An assistant secretary of state, Joseph J. Sisco, flew to Tel Aviv Wednesday to tell Mrs. Meir of Kissinger's talks with President Anwar Sadat of Egypt.

Kissinger met for 90 minutes Thursday night with King Faisal of Saudi Arabia, the largest Mideast oil-producing nation. The Arabs have cut off oil shipments to the United States and the Netherlands and have cut back shipments to other countries by as much as 25 percent.

The U.S. officials with Kissinger said Syria had not endorsed the agreement.

U. S. officials were so certain of Cairo's approval of the new agreement that they said the package did not have to be submitted to Sadat now that Israel has accepted it.

President Sadat and Syrian officials have said in the past that they would never bargain directly with representatives of Israel. Washington has taken an ambiguous stand, suggesting at times the United States favors face-to-face negotiationg and at other times suggesting that negotiations be conducted through an intermediary while the two sides "were under the same roof."



(AP Wirephoto Via Cable From Cairo)

MOSCOW,--TYPE USED IN MIDEAST--Soviet SAM6 antiaircraft rockets, of the type used by the Egyptians in the recent Mideast war, are shown in Red Square at Moscow in Wednesday's military parade. It was reportedly the first time they were publicly displayed.

Possible Muskie Campaign Violations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The General Accounting Office has referred to the Justice Department what GAO called an apparent violation of the Federal Election Campaign Act by the Jewish Chronicle, a Pittsburgh newspaper, in connection with Sen. Edmund S. Muskie's presidential campaign.

A report by GAO's Office of Federal Elections said the Chronicle published a $400 advertisement for Muskie in 1972 without having on file a certification that the payment does not exceed the limits specified in the act for campaign spending in media.

The act prohibits publishers from accepting paid advertising unless the candidate or his representative makes such a certification, GAO said.

The report said a number of irregularities in the report filed by the Muskie Election Committee of Pittsburgh were corrected by amendments when the elections office pointed them out.

The committee was set up in behalf of the Maine Democrat's candidacy in the April 25, 1972, Pennsylvania presidential primary.

SKI SPAIN
Earn 2 credits during intersession
Call 5-2801

the ALL NEW
T.O.C. SUNDAY
BUFFET
The Steamship Round is returning to the Campus Center Sunday Buffet at no extra cost to you. As a matter of fact, U. Mass. Students with a valid student I.D. will receive a 10% discount on the $4.50 price.
Sunday 4 - 8 p.m.

Mister Donut®
Opening Special
No. 12, 13, 14
you buy the coffee we'll buy the donut!
Come in and buy a cup of the world's best coffee, and we'll throw in the Mister Donut of your choice.
Offer good Mon.-Tues.-Wed.
Mt. Farms Mall
Rt. 9 (Russell St., Hadley)
Open 24 hours per day

dvp presents:
BELIEVE IT OR NOT WEEK
1. Ripley's Believe It or Not Show and lectures on
2. U.F.O.'s
3. Bermuda Triangle
Coming Soon!

How Is The Northeast Saving Energy?

New England States Call For Cutbacks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New England states reacted quickly yesterday to President Nixon's speech of Wednesday night calling for a sharp cutback in fuel and electricity consumption to meet an anticipated energy shortage this winter.

Gov. Philip Noel of Rhode Island said his state will begin immediately to draw up a contingency plan for gasoline rationing, and a call for a similar plan came from Eric P. Stauffer, the federal-state coordinator in Maine.

"I feel we're headed into gasoline rationing," Noel told a news conference. "We want to be in a position of readiness."

Noel, who was among several governors who attended a briefing on the energy crisis with Nixon Wednesday, said the President told the group the price of gasoline will increase about eight cents a gallon within a month.

An energy conservation committee in Maine, appointed last summer by Gov. Kenneth M. Curtis, has been reported to be working along lines suggested by Nixon in the speech.

The committee's report is expected shortly.

Stauffer, who heads the committee, said Thursday a contingency plan for gasoline rationing should be prepared and he urged people to begin using car pools to get to work.

Massachusetts Secretary of Public Safety Richard E. McLaughlin said there was "a pretty good chance" the state would reduce its highway speeds to 50 .m.p.h., in accordance with Nixon's suggestion.

"The sooner the better," he said, adding that reduced highway speed would help save lives.

No legislative action is required in Massachusetts to post lower highway speeds. Gov. Francis W. Sargent would have to issue a policy declaration that would be implemented by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles and the Department of Public Works.

Massachusetts began in October to lower temperatures in state buildings and has begun a program of doing custodial work, normally done at night, during the day to preserve fuel and electricity.

Some Massachusetts schools already have programs to conserve fuel and electricity and further action is expected to be suggested Nov. 17 during meetings with school officials and parents in the state's six regional school districts.

Laconia was one of the first New Hampshire cities to react to Nixon's speech.

City Manager Kenneth Boehner said routine patrols by the police and fire departments will be reduced.

He said that in past winters the snow plows were out when there was an accumulation of two inches. This winter, he said, the plows won't go out until there is an accumulation of 4-5 inches.

Laconia city office thermostats were set at 68 degrees Thursday.

Most New England officials appeared to agree with Rhode Island Gov. Noel, who told newsmen: "Everybody's life style is going to have to change. We've got to give up the least essential things-excessive speed and excessive use of lighting."

Officials at the University of Massachusetts in Amherst directed thermostats at the school 250 campus buildings to be lowered 65-68 degrees and imposed a 50 m.p.h. speed limit on all university vehicles.

The university said it would extend the use of a coal burning power plant on campus. The plant was to have been replaced in the spring by an oil-burning facility currently under construction.

The six New England governors were scheduled to meet it on the question of energy conservation.

R.I. Urges Gas Rationing

By TERRENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) - Gov. Philip Noel ordered his staff Thursday to begin drawing up contingency plans for gasoline rationing in Rhode Island and urged motorists to voluntarily curb their highway speed.

Noel, who met with President Nixon in an energy briefing Wednesday, said he came away from the session with the feeling that mandatory fuel allocation is probable rather than just a possibility.

He also said he was certain the federal government eventually would impose a 50 mile an hour speed limit on highways.

"Everybody's lifestyle is going to have to change. We've got to give up the least essential things-excessive speed and excessive use of lighting," Noel said at a news conference.

The governor said the contingency plans for gas rationing would put the state in a position of readiness for federal action.

Noel said the President told him and other governors at the Washington briefing the cost of home heating oil and gasoline probably will increase eight cents a gallon within a month.

In addition, Nixon said the nation faces a fuel shortage of at least 15 per cent under present supply conditions, and 10½ per cent even if the Mideast war ends immediately, the governor said.

The New England governors will meet Nov. 14 to consider adoption of a regional energy control program, Noel said, and he indicated one step might be a move toward Daylight Saving Time year-round.

He noted he already has ordered state vehicles to maintain highway speeds of less than 50 miles an hour and has directed that thermostats in state buildings be lowered. In addition, he urged Rhode Islanders and merchants to be conservative in their holiday season decoration lights.

He raised the possibility of shutting down schools during periods of extreme cold in order to save fuel, but said efforts will be made to keep them open.

He urged motorists to curtail recreational driving and said all residents "have a responsibility" to install storm windows by this weekend.

New York Pushes 50 MPH Speed Limit

By DAVID SHAFFER
Associated Press Writer

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) - State officials prepared Thursday to order an immediate reduction in speed limits statewide to 50 miles an hour.

Lawyers in Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's office researched the statute books through the morning and determined, they said, that the administration has the authority to order the cuts without legislative approval.

In his energy message Wednesday night, President Nixon asked states to cut speed limits and take other actions to meet what he said was the worst energy crisis since World War II.

Rockefeller had been urging his fellow governors to cut speed limits since last summer, but he had taken no direct action on the idea until Nixon's formal request.

The planned speed limit reduction was the most dramatic of a series of state actions Thursday designed to comply with Nixon's pleas for an energy conservation program.

The Office of General Services set a meeting of state agency heads for Friday to discuss progress in implementing Rockefeller's orders of last month for reducing the consumption of electricity in state buildings.

The state Public Service Commission planned to press major utilities for their plans to encourage energy conservation by their customers. The PSC's first orders on that subject went out a week ago.

The state Interdepartmental Fuel and Energy Committee, in an action not directly related to Nixon's message, set up procedures for insuring that owners of new homes can get shipments of heating oil. Those users might otherwise have been left out under the allocation scheme for fuel oil.

State Education Commissioner Ewald Nyquist called on all educational institutions to do whatever they could to conserve fuel. He did not suggest any specific steps, but lowered temperatures and revised schedules were among the possibilities.

Aides to Rockefeller said other steps were "under consideration," but they would not say what they were.

One major impact of the President's energy moves on New Yorkers, state officials said, would be to slow the air pollution cleanup, especially in New York City and Buffalo.

The state regulations requiring low-sulfur fuel have reduced the sulfur dioxide content in New York City's air to about a seventh of one-seventh of what it was in 1964, and to a little more than half what it was in Buffalo.

A key feature of the air cleanup now underway has been a switch to low-sulfur fuels in the New York City metropolitan area, and in the Buffalo area.

Low-sulfur oil, however, comes mainly from the Middle East, and the supplies of it was threatened by the Arab oil cutbacks.

Nixon said he would present legislation allowing him to "relax environmental regulations" in such cases, and state officials predicted that one result could be a return to the high pollution levels of the 1960s in New York and Buffalo.

The state regulations requiring low-sulfur fuel have reduced the sulfur dioxide content in New York City's air to about a seventh of one-seventh of what it was in 1964, and to a little more than half what it was in Buffalo.

It was not clear how much of a relaxation in environmental rules President Nixon wanted Congress to improve, and its impact on the state's air quality was therefore unclear.

But state officials pointed out that the current rules have only recently brought the sulfur dioxide content of the air below or close to the federal standards which are considered necessary for human health.

Any significant weakening of the pollution rules would therefore mean a return to unhealthful air conditions, they said.

Bonnie & Clyde

Friday, Nov. 9th
7, 9, 11 — at Mahar
50c

Television Tonight

5:00 ENSIGN O'TOOLE "Operation: Hypnosis." (18)
HOGAN'S HEROES "A Klink, a Bomb and a Short Fuse." (22)
MISTER ROGERS NEIGHBORHOOD (24) (57)
BEVERLY HILLBILLIES "The Social Climbers." (30)
GOMER PYLE "Gomer, The Recruiter." (40)
5:30 THE REAL McCOYS "September Song." (18)
THE LUCY SHOW "Lucy, the Superwoman." (22)
THE ELECTRIC COMPANY (24) (57)
HOGAN'S HEROES "Diamonds In the Rough." (30)
NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS (40)
5:55 WHAT'S HAPPENING UPDATE (3)
6:00 NEWS (3) (8) (22)
AMERICA "The Huddled Masses." (18)
ZOOM! (24) (57)
TO TELL THE TRUTH Garry Moore, host (30)
WILD WILD WEST "Night Of the Simian Terror." (40)
6:30 NEWS (3) (22) (30)
ABC EVENING NEWS (8)
BOOK BEAT (24)
LOUIS LYONS: NEWS AND COMMENT (57)
6:55 NEWSBEAT NEWS (40)
7:00 WORLD AT WAR (3)
TRUTH OR CONSEQUENCES Bob Barker, host (8)
THE 700 CLUB (18)
NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS (22) (30)
THE CHAN ESE WAY (24)
ABC EVENING NEWS (40)
THE REPORTERS (57)
7:30 THE NEW DATING GAME (8)
LET'S MAKE A DEAL Monty Hall, host (22)
WALL STREET WEEK (24)
THE HOLLYWOOD SQUARES Peter Marshall, host (30)
NANNY AND THE PROFESSOR "A Letter From Nanny." (40)
SMALL CITY GARDEN (57)
8:00 CALUCCI'S DEPT. (3)
THE BRADY BUNCH "Quarterback Sneak." (8) (40)
NBA BASKETBALL (18)
SANFORD AND SON "The Blind Mellow Jelly Collection." (22) (30)
WASHINGTON WEEK IN REVIEW (24) (57)
8:30 SUNSHINE (3)
THE ODD COUPLE "Felix Directs." (8) (40)
GIRL WITH SOMETHING EXTRA "And Baby Makes Two." (22) (30)
THE SESSION (24)
WALL STREET WEEK "Nixon's Economic Policy-One Year Later." (57)
9:00 ROOM 222 "Love Is a Many Splintered Thing." (8) (40)
NEEDLES AND PINS (22) (30)
HARTFORD FESTIVAL OF JAZZ (24)
MASTERPIECE THEATRE "Clouds Of Witness." (57)
9:30 ADAM'S RIB "Murder." (8) (40)
BRIAN KEITH SHOW "Sunday, Fishy Sunday." (22) (30)
10:00 LOVE, AMERICAN STYLE (8)
JIMMY SWAGGART SHOW (18)
DEAN MARTIN COMEDY HOUR (22) (30)
NEWPORT JAZZ FESTIVAL NEW YORK: A TRIBUTE TO LOUIS ARMSTRONG (24)
NEWS (27)
THE MEN WHO MADE MOVIES "Raoul Walsh" (57)
10:30 THE LIVING WORD
11:00 NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS (3) (8) (18) (22) (27) (30) (40)
11:30 MOVIE "A Guide for the Married Man." (3)
WIDE WORLD OF ENTERTAINMENT (8) (40)
JOHNNY CARSON SHOW (22) (30)
1:00 NEWS (8) (40)
THE MIDNIGHT SPECIAL (22) (30)
1:15 MOVIE "Ride The High Wind." (3)
2:30 NEWS (22) (30)
2:55 NEWS, WEATHER (3)

UMass Police

New Emergency

Number

5-3111

MDC Classifieds

SKI SPAIN
Earn 2 credits during intersession
Call 5-2801

the NEW LEE HIGHWAY BOYS
at the Bluewall
thur. fri. + sat.
9p.m. - 1A.M

(AP Wirephoto)

CAIRO, KISSINGER WITH SADAT — Egypt's President Anwar Sadat gestures with Secretary of State Henry Kissinger at his side during their meeting on the Mideast in Cairo Wednesday. They met for more than three hours.

"Believe It Or Not Week" Begins November 12

Amidst the recent controversy over Moe Howard, let us not forget that this coming week is D.V.P.'s "Believe It or Not Week." On Monday Nov. 12th in the CCA we are presenting the "Ripley's Believe It or Not Show" by the President of Ripley's, N. Pearlroth. He has traveled all over the world gathering the interesting menagerie of information we read about in the books his company has published.

Our second speaker has a lot to talk about. He is Hayden Hewes, the founder of the International Bureau of U.F.O. Investigation. With all the recent sightings I'm sure he will have a lot of up-to-date information. He brings a slide show with him so all you skeptics, come see him blow all YOUR explanations to pieces. Remember, U.F.O.'s are real — it is the Air Force that is a figment of our imaginations! Mr. Hewes will speak in the S.U.B. on Friday Nov. 16th at 8 p.m.

Our third and final speaker also deals with what some skeptics call fiction. John Wallace Spencer, author of the book Limbo of the Lost, is an expert on the mysteries surrounding the strange happenings that occur in the so called "Bermuda Triangle." His book deals with documented stories concerning strange disappearances of ships and planes in this zone. If you're planning on taking a Carribean cruise, read his book after you come back, that is assuming you do come back. He will speak Mon. Nov. 19 at 8 p.m. in the SUB.

We hope that at least one of these subjects will interest you. I'm sure any of these lectures will provide food for thought. We hope you will take advantage of this unparalleled opportunity and attend as many of the programs as you dare.

Room To Move

Hot Line 5-0400

Watergate In The Classroom

By JERRY HARKAVY
Associated Press Writer

SCARBOROUGH, Maine (AP) — Eighth grader Charles Jacques believes the CIA was involved in the Watergate burglary.

His classmate, Sue O'Donal, says President Nixon fired special prosecutor Archibald Cox because "he was getting to know too much about the investigation."

Peter Powers suggests that Senate investigators or federal prosecutors attempt to sneak the President's tape recordings out of the White House.

The three youngsters are among a hundred 12-to 14-year-olds at Scarborough Junior High School who are using the Watergate scandal to gain insights into the way American government works.

Their social studies teacher, Eugene Graves, believes that Watergate provides a unique vehicle to teach students some of the basic principles of government and the Constitution, without using a dry, historical approach.

"You try to find topics that the students will be interested in, that will encourage them to participate," said Graves. "It's hard to convince them that there's any need to study the past, so you have to start with the present and try to lead back.

"The students are all talking about Watergate. It's the biggest thing to come along in my teaching career."

Graves, 35, now in his eighth year of teaching, gets the classroom discussion of Watergate started by referring to articles in Scholastic Search, a weekly student magazine which recently came out with an edition devoted almost entirely to various aspects of the scandal.

From there, he and his students guide the dialogue so that current events serve as a springboard to topics that the teacher wants to cover.

Each of Graves' five social studies sections pursue different areas as the discussion focuses on the cabinet system, separation of powers, political parties, the court system and procedures for impeachment.

In one class, a lesson on wiretapping triggered a lively dialogue on whether government officials should, under some circumstances, be allowed to break the law.

Charles Jacques insisted that if federal agents got wind of a conspiracy to assassinate the President, "they should have the right to bug telephone to find out what's going on."

Lori Steeves disagreed, cautioning that "if you let them break the law once, they'll think they can do it again."

After five minutes of debate, Graves put the issue to a vote. With heads planted on their desks to insure a secret ballot, pupils in Class 8R voted 20-2 against allowing government to break the law.

In all five classes students appeared interested and knowledgeable about Watergate, and showed little reluctance about expressing their points of view.

"At this age they'll still tell you what they really think," said Graves. "In my experience in high school, they take into account other considerations, like what they think the teacher wants to hear."

Throughout the discussions, Graves refrained from imposing his own moral or political viewpoints.

"I feel secure in teaching the subject as long as I use good judgment," he said.

Across the state of Maine, more and more teachers are being encouraged to use Watergate in civics and social studies classrooms.

Two weeks ago, the Main Teachers Association cosponsored a New England conference here on the educational implications of Watergate, with workshops on how to use the crisis as a teaching tool.

Dr. John H. Marvin, MTA executive secretary, said many teachers at the session "feel real insecurity in handling the basic political and moral issues in terms of the current controversy......

"However, they recognized that recent developments constitute a gold mine of opportunities for making education meaningful."

top of the campus restaurant
featuring
"JIMMY"
from 9 p.m. - 1 a.m.
seating for
cocktails - 9:30 p.m.
FINE FOOD IN AN ATMOSPHERE OF RELAXED DINING ENTERTAINMENT FRIDAYS AND SATURDAYS
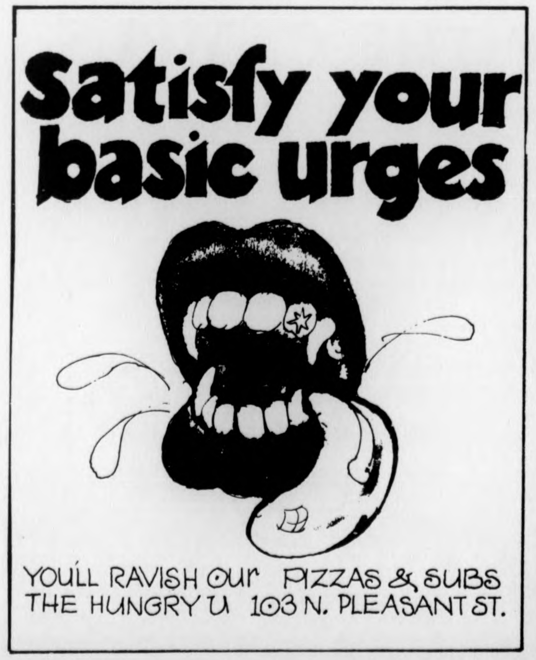
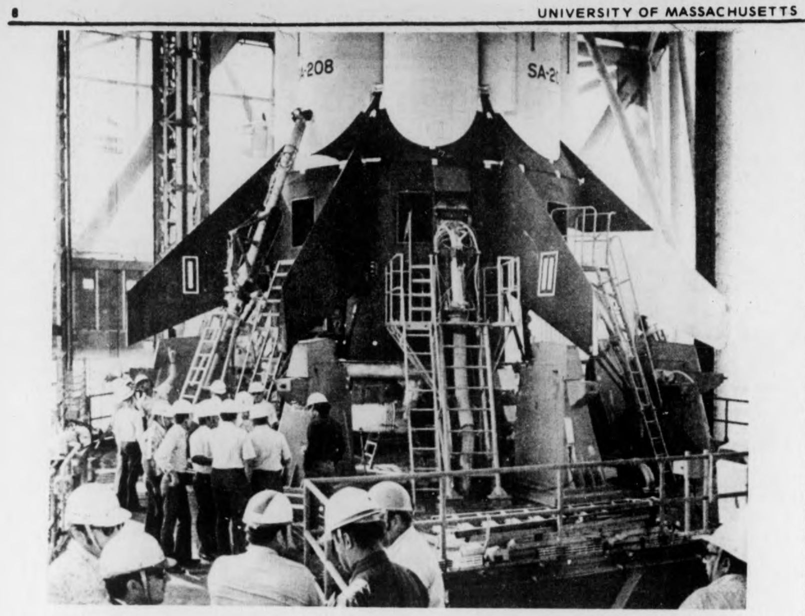
BEST VIEW OF AMHERST
DISCOUNTS FOR STUDENTS AND THEIR GUESTS
PHONE FOR RESERVATIONS



Satisfy your basic urges
YOU'LL RAVISH OUR PIZZAS & SUBS
THE HUNGRY U 103 N. PLEASANT ST.

LONDON THEATRE TOUR
LONDON $329.00 TOUR
FIVE THEATRE TICKETS
Brochure 401 Machmar
Open to UMass. Staff, Students, Faculty and Families.
HYDE PARK TOWERS
LONDON TOUR
ROUND TRIP BOAC
Jan. 6 thru Jan. 21
LONDON THEATRE TOUR



(AP Wirephoto)

CAPE CANAVERAL, FLA., — ROCKET SHOT CALL OFF FOR NOW — Technicians huddle around the base of the Saturn 1B rocket at Cape Canaveral today after a routine check showed cracks in all eight stabilizing fins on the rocket at the spot where the fins are bolted to the rocket side. Thus the Saturday launch of Skylab 3 on this rocket has been postponed for at least five days.

Agnew: A Month Later

By JEAN HELLER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the month since he quit as vice president, Spiro T. Agnew has been sifting the relics of his mutilated political career and preparing to meet an uncertain future. A basic question is how he will make a living.

On Saturday, it will be exactly one month since Oct. 10 when Agnew resigned and pleaded no contest to a charge of evading $13,551 in 1967 federal income tax. He was fined $10,000 and sentenced to three years probation.

Agnew has no job, no known income. He is threatened with losing his right to practice law and faces possible Internal Revenue Service suits for thousands of dollars in back taxes.

Associates who were asked how Agnew would make a living said they did not know.

Yet they say he shows no sign of depression.

"He had his whole staff out to his house last Saturday night for a buffet dinner and he was just amazing," one friend said.

"He looked fit. He was calm and strong as ever. Judy Mrs. Agnew looked terrific, if anything, better than I've seen her. You couldn't call it a wake at all. It was a very pleasant time of renewing old acquaintances."

Several less-pleasant prospects confront Agnew, however.

—In Maryland, the Baltimore County Bar Association is investigating the possibility of bringing disciplinary action against Agnew based on his conviction on a federal felony charge. If any such action is recommended and approved by the courts, Agnew could be disbarred.

—Baltimore City, Baltimore County and Anne Arundel County prosecutors may launch investigations to decide if Agnew should be prosecuted on the local level for alleged crimes committed while he was chief executive of Baltimore County and later as Maryland governor.

—Agnew faces mounting bills in the wake of his legal troubles. A defense fund set up under Chicago insurance magnate Clement Stone is not expected to raise enough money to pay Agnew's current legal costs and if further action is brought against him, those costs will continue to mount.

—The Internal Revenue Service is believed to be auditing Agnew's back tax returns with an eye to collecting what could amount to tens of thousands of dollars in back taxes.

A 40-page exposition of evidence against Agnew released by the Justice Department at Agnew's court appearance alleged that between 1966 and 1972 Agnew received payments of $50,000 from contractor Allen I. Green, $37,500 from contractor Lester Matz, $1,250 from contractor Jerome Wolff and half of what was described only as a substantial sum from seven other contractors and one bank.

MDC
NEWS HOTLINE
5-2550

SW Theatre

An open dress rehearsal of Gary Stuart's play Offending the Audience, will be held Monday night at 8 p.m. in Hampden Student Center in Southwest. This is an audience participation play put on by the University Theatre Dept., and is open to all students free of charge.

Let's Stop Kidding Around!
MINOLTA 102
$309.00
ALSO
24 hour service on Custom Processing
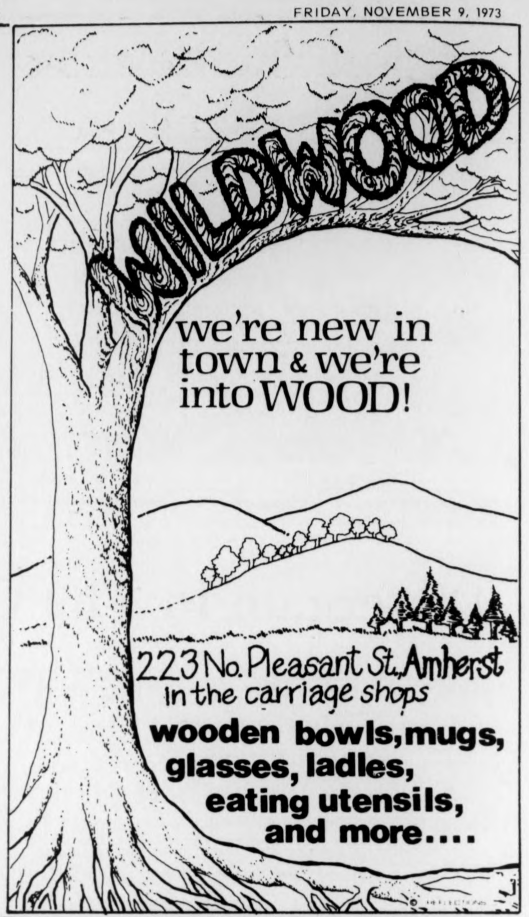
Develop & Contact
24 hour Passports
Best in town
Lang's Photo Studio
253-3148
460 West St.



WILDWOOD
we're new in town & we're into WOOD!
223 No. Pleasant St., Amherst in the carriage shops wooden bowls, mugs, glasses, ladles, eating utensils, and more....

Sundaes 45c
Between 2 - 5 p.m.
Today
thru Friday
THE GASLITE II
168 N. Pleasant St. 253-2291
Open 6:30 a.m.-10:30 p.m.

Celebrate Thanksgiving
at the
TOP OF THE CAMPUS
featuring
Tomato Juice or Fruit Cup
or Corn Chowder
Whipped Potato
Butternut Squash
Tossed Salad w/choice of dressing

Prime Rib au jus
or Roast Turkey w/Sage Dressing
or Baked Stuffed Shrimp

Cranberry Nut Bread
Butterflake Rolls
Pumpkin or Mince Pie
or Ice Cream or Hot Apple Pie
Coffee, Tea, Milk

$4.95 children under 12
$2.75
hours 2-6 p.m.

Walpole Spokesman Hints At Tensions

WALPOLE, Mass. (AP)-The president of the National Prison Reform Association at Walpole Prison has called for a meeting with representatives of Walpole, state officials and an independent body to discuss what he calls growing tensions at the prison.

John Kerrigan, NPRA president, said in a letter to Correction Commissioner Frank Hall at Walpole prison that the NPRA feels dissatisfaction with a series of negotiation failures could lead to future uprisings at the prison.

He said the NPRA leaders earlier this week "narrowly averted a massive sit-down strike through persuasion and appeals to fellow prisoners."

Kerrigan said the crucial issue for inmates is Walpole Supt. Douglas Vinzant's unwillingness to make any agreements with the NPRA, which he said was recognized and sanctioned on July 25 by Lt. Gov. Donald Dwight and Human Services Secretary Peter Goldmark.

"Because Vinzant has claimed he doesn't have the authority to make agreements for the Department of Corrections, inmates feel the present impasse calls for joint meeting on or before Nov. 12," said Kerrigan.

In a letter to Vinzant, Kerrigan said the inmates have complained about poor sanitation and food, lack of sheets and blankets, harassment of visitors, ever-changing rules and the lack of any industrial programs.

Several National Groups To Monitor Revenue Fund

WASHINGTON (AP)-Several national organizations launched on Thursday a two-year study to determine whether state and local governments are spending a fair share of their revenue sharing funds on poverty and minority programs.

The organizations formed the National Clearinghouse on Revenue Sharing and announced that volunteers working for the clearing house will monitor revenue sharing spending at the state and local levels.

Asked the reason for the program, William L. Taylor of the Center National Policy Review, said he is "deeply skeptical" that the $30 billion in general revenue sharing funds will be split fairly.

To be monitored:

-State governments: Texas, California, Iowa, Michigan, Tennessee, Massachusetts.

-County governments: Los Angeles, St. Louis, Dekalb, Ga., Holmes, Miss., and one county each, to be named, in Texas and Alabama.

-City governments: Buffalo; Cleveland; Greenville, Miss.; Phoenix; Little Rock; Los Angeles; San Antonio; Denver; Nashville; Memphis; Louisville; New Orleans; Richmond, Va.; Seattle; Syracuse; Albuquerque; Bridgeport, Conn.; Detroit; Minneapolis; New Bedford and Pittsfield, Mass.; Pasadena, Calif.; Philadelphia; Racine, Wis.; Winston-Salem, N.C.; Des Moines and 28 other Iowa cities.

We honor Bank Americard Master Charge and American Express OUR CORDUROY JACKET
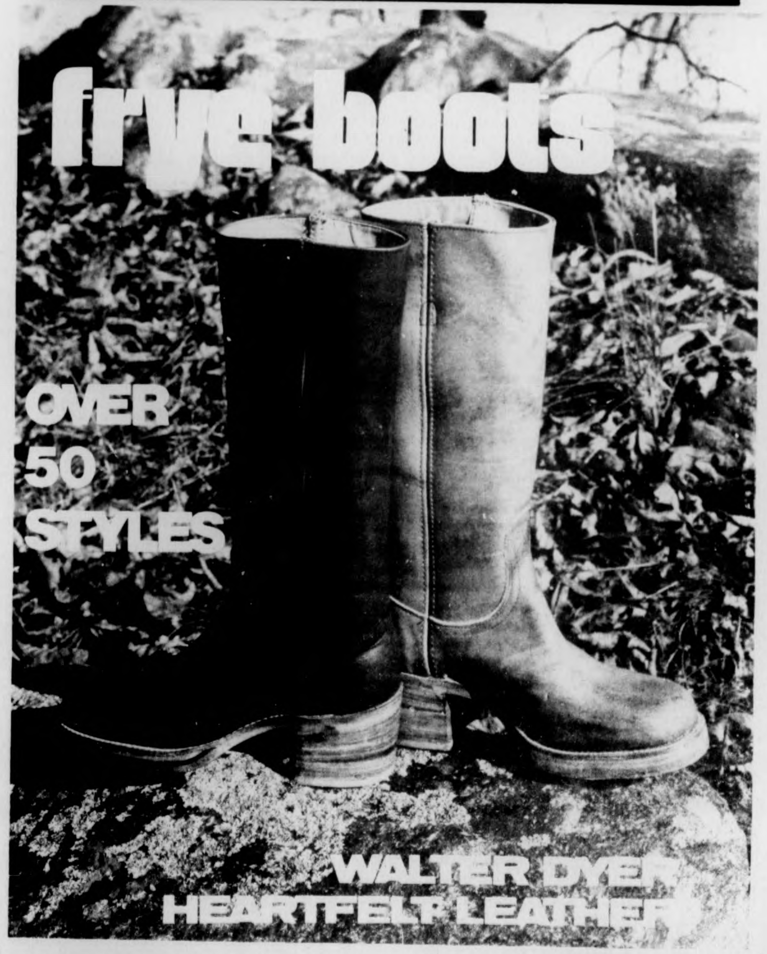
For the Fall week-ends ahead we strongly urge that you get into one of our lush Corduroy jackets. Cut on our own soft-shoulder model it offers unparalleled comfort and good-looks when worn with plaid slacks and sweaters. Perfect with turtlenecks, and simply super with button-down shirts and wool ties. We've got them in the right colors and at a right price. Come on over and get into Corduroy, $65 Corduroy slacks, $20
A.O.WHITE
104 RUSSELL ST. (ON RT. 9)
HADLEY, MASS.
(NEXT TO WINE CHARIOT RESTAURANT)
OPEN DAILY
9:30 TO 5:30 P.M.
THURSDAY TO 9 P.M.

Papa Gino's is NOW OPEN in the Mountain Farms Mall.

Now your appetite for pizza, pasta and sandwiches has a new place to go. It's the new Papa Gino's in the Mountain Farms Mall, Hadley. Come on in and enjoy a delicious Papa Gino's pizza. It all goes great with a frosty mug of draft beer. And Papa's menu also features his famous spaghetti, ravioli, manicotti, burgers, hotdogs, salad, french fries and much more. That's why we say, when you're hungry for something more... bring your appetite to the new Papa Gino's Restaurant.

Store Hours: Mon.-Sat. 11 AM to 12 Midnight
Sun. 12 Noon to 12 Midnight

Papa Gino's
PIZZA – PASTA – SANDWICHES
MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL, HADLEY



110 CHARLES st
BOSTON Ma (617) 227-5135
103 N PLEASANT st
AMHERST Ma (413) 253-5135

AP News Analysis

Veto Override Caps Anti-Nixon Moods

WASHINGTON (AP)-The congressional repudiation of President Nixon over his war powers caps a three-week tide of anti-Nixon mail and Republican setbacks in Tuesday's scattered off-year elections.

It demonstrates increased GOP independence and portends future troubles for the beleaguered Nixon.

With the Democratic majorities well short of the two-thirds needed to override a veto, it was the White House inability to hold normally loyal Republicans that decided the war powers issue Wednesday.

In the House, where party loyalty has usually prevailed, Nixon lost 86 of 192 Republicans. In the Senate, he lost 25 of 40.

"I think it was the atmosphere and the issue," one Senate Republican said later.

He said the notion of curbing presidential powers to commit the nation to war has powerful national support in the wake of the Vietnam war and the White House abuses known as Watergate.

Other GOP lawmakers insisted, as did Rep. John Anderson, R-Ill., that "The President wasn't the issue. The powers of Congress was the issue."

The White House was known to feel that it stood in greater danger of losing a veto test on an institutional issue involving the powers of Congress than on a purely economic one such as the earlier vetoes of bills affecting rural sewer grants and hospital closings.

However, a Democrat commented that "it wouldn't have happened three weeks ago," implying strongly that the outcry over dismissal of Archibald Cox, the resignation of Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson and the two nonexistent Watergate tapes had helped tip the scales.

Pentagon To Investigate More C5 Airplane Purchase

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Pentagon acknowledged Thursday it is considering a possible move toward producing more giant C5 transport planes whose performance in the Israel supply airlift has impressed top officials.

A Defense Department spokesman confirmed reports that the Pentagon is looking at the possibility of reopening the C5 production line to strengthen U.S. military airlift.

He stressed that "we are considering a lot of things" to improve U.S. military readiness in the light of the experience in the emergency airlift to Israel and in view of Israeli experience in using U.S.-provided weapons against Russian-made equipment.

Any actual new construction of C5s would require a vote of money from Congress and this is likely to meet stiff opposition because of the C5's price.

It costs the Air Force $56 million a plane to acquire 81 C5s and the program was under constant attack on Capitol Hill from congressmen and senators who claimed the price was too high.

Defense officials feel that the C5's performance in the Israeli airlift, even under load limits because of wing stress problems, has disproved congressional claims that the C5, world's biggest transport plane, is "a lemon".

According to Pentagon figures, C5s flew 125 flights to Israel from the United States from the start of the emergency airlift Oct. 14 through Wednesday and carried more than 9,000 tons of military cargo into Israel.

At the same time, 356 smaller C141 transports hauled nearly 9,000 tons during the same period.

Sacramento Fugitives Arrested

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) - Two fugitives sought for questioning in the execution-style slaying of nine persons in a central California home were arrested in Sacramento Thursday.

Douglas Gretzler, 22, of New York City, was apprehended during a search of the Clunie Hotel four blocks from the state Capitol.

Officers said they were tipped by a clerk who saw the fugitives' pictures in the Sacramento Union.

Gretzler's companion, Willie Luther Steelman, 28, of Lodi, Calif., surrendered at an apartment house 90 minutes later after police fired tear gas into the shabby frame building.

Officers had assured Steelman in a broadcast message over a Sacramento rock music station that he would not be harmed, but he did not surrender until the tear gas was fired.

Then Steelman emerged following a slim blonde acquintance, not identified.

Fine Arts Council

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 1973
BOWKER AUDITORIUM 8 p.m.
RESERVED TICKETS: $1.50 UM/A students $3.00 all others

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1973—8:00 p.m.
BOWKER AUDITORIUM
Tickets $1.50 UM/A Students $3.00 Others

LENINGRAD PHILHARMONIC
CURRY HICKS CAGE
Monday, November 19, 1973 at 8:00 P.M.
Tickets: UM/A Students $3.00; Others $6.00

FINE ARTS COUNCIL OFFICE, 125 Herter Hall 545-0202

Timothy's Spirits Co.

— OFFERS AN ALTERNATIVE —

A quiet Pub and Speakeasy Bar on the first floor, complete with fireplace.

The second floor sports a sophisticated game room with the latest in electrical entertainment. Sandwiches of the Giant Pub variety are also served until 2 a.m.

Top Rock Groups, Folk Singers, and an oldies revival are the various entertainments found at the top of the staircase.

Good Drinks, Good Food, Good Entertainment and Good Times.

Featuring John Morgan Fri., Nov. 9th.

Located at 30 John St., Holyoke 538-9700
(Right across from City Hall)

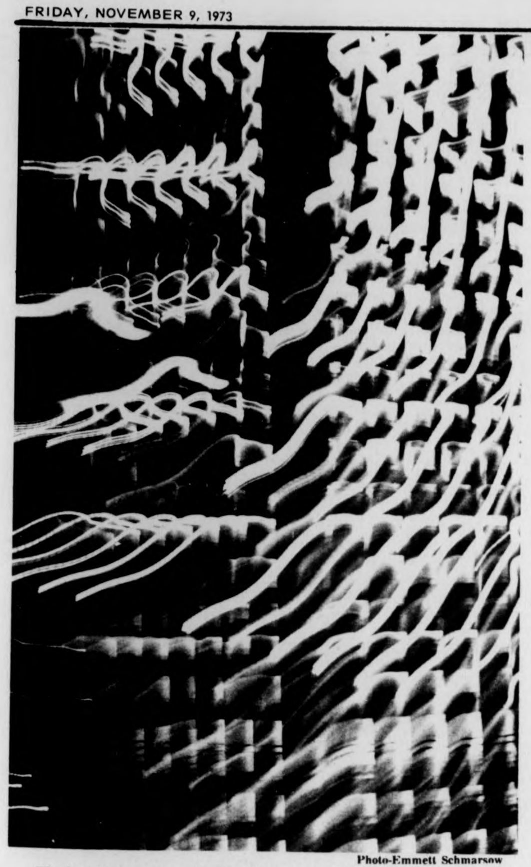


Photo-Emmett Schmarsow

The last time you went by the library, did it look like this? It may not look like anything soon with the energy shortage.

Viet Cong Claim Victories

By DENIS GRAY
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) - The Viet Cong claimed Thursday their forces mauled government troops along the Cambodian border and accused the Saigon government of inflicting more than 100 civilian casualties during an air strike.

A spokesman for the Viet Cong delegation to the Joint Military Commission said three battalions of government troops were put out of action. He said 20 military vehicles and hundreds of assorted weapons were captured in fighting Sunday around two government outposts along the Cambodian frontier in Quang Duc Province.

Government outposts at Bu Bong and Bu Prang, about 125 miles northeast of Saigon, were seized by North Vietnamese tanks and troops. Saigon forces have withdrawn from a nearby road junction.

Referring to a big government air attack Wednesday on the Viet Cong administrative capital of Loc Ninh, the spokesman said 32 civilians were killed and 70 others wounded when bombs dropped on principally nonmilitary targets.

But Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, chief military spokesman for the Saigon command, denied any civilian targets were hit and said the nearest bombs fell more than half a mile from Loc Ninh, 75 miles north of Saigon.

Military observers said the attacks on the outposts were probably designed to clear the last barriers to the opening of a new supply route along the Vietnamese side of the border from Communist-held areas below the demilitarized zone to their stronghold around Loc Ninh.

Publishers Elect

BOSTON (AP) - The Massachusetts Newspaper Publishers Association has re-elected Gerald T. Tache of the New Bedford Standard-Times as president.

The association also elected K. Prescott Low of the Quincy Patriot Ledger as first vice-president

APPEARING
at the
NEW Country House
This Friday Night
Night Watch
8:30 to 12:30
River Road
HATFIELD, MASS.
247-5155

The Mood

Israel Emerges Troubled

By EDITH M. LEDERER
Associated Press Writer

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israel has emerged from the latest Mideast war a nation of tense, troubled and uncertain people capable of "very irrational reactions" in the future unless permanent peace comes soon, say top psychologists.

The war dispelled the comforting view held by many Israelis, these psychologists say, of "seeing themselves as supermen and the other side as permanently inferior and destroyed their ideas of security.

Since the war began Oct. 6 the number of depressed Israeli civilians seeking treatment at the country's 20 community mental health centers has increased by 10 percent, said Dr. Ludwig Tramer, Israel's mental health director, in an interview.

He refused to disclose any other statistics but said: "There is very great tension among people in the country. Unless it is reduced by a desirable development, our centers will continue to be very heavily overloaded in the future."

Dr. Hans Kreitler, who founded the psychology department at Tel Aviv University, said in a separate interview: "It's a war with a bad taste — so bad a taste that even when there is good news, the people are not very happy."

In 1967, when Israeli forces conquered Jerusalem, the Golan Heights and Sinai, there was a feeling that "the motherland had been redeemed," he said. "In fact, there was very little left to conquer in the sense of conquering the fatherland, so this war, which was forced on us, had no meaning, no aim.

"We could only crush the armies of our enemies because we can't conquer their countries and we couldn't be enthusiastic about such an aim," Kreitler said. "We fought for our existence. We didn't even fight for peace. Therefore, all our reactions were rather sobering."

Achi Yotan, a counseling psychologist in the Department of Social Welfare, said the war brought home something that Israelis have always known but chosen to ignore in the past — the fact that they live in a small country surrounded by enemies.

"People thought we were so strong, so brave that nothing could touch us," he said. "Many people would smile when they'd say Israel was a small nation surrounded by enemies. Now they all talk about danger coming to be a reality in the last few weeks."

A public opinion survey conducted by the Israel Institute for Applied Social Research and by Hebrew University's Communications Institute found 80 percent of the public supporting the government throughout the war.

But there was a slight shift in the degree of satisfaction with fewer people saying it was doing a very good job.

Hostages Escape From Sleep

WADENA, Minn. (AP) — A farm family held prisoner escaped Thursday after the two jail fugitives who held them captive fell asleep.

Elmer and Joyce Wegscheid and their eldest son, Ed, 15, fled from their home with two of the escapees' three weapons about 4:15 a.m.

Three other Wegscheid children were released Wednesday. The Wegscheids said they were in continual fear for their lives despite assurances by the fugitives that they did not want to harm them.

The 3rd annual Madrigal Dinner

presented by
The University Madrigal Singers
at the Campus Center
December 5th - 9th
for reservations and information
call 545-0418

Someone Ripped Off

the Purple and Gold Velvet Pall used to cover the casket at funerals. It is of a great sentimental value as well as being functional.

It can be returned anytime to GRACE CHURCH — no questions asked. Information as to its whereabouts can be phoned to Grace Church office, 256-6754. REWARD.

GRACE CHURCH ON THE TOWN COMMON

"AHORA"
REUNION
Fecha — Lunes 12 de Nov. 1973
Lugar — Campus Center
Hora — 7:30 p.m. - 10:00 p.m.
Cuar To — 165
NO FALTES

"Something for Everyone"
the concert committee
JOHN MAYALL
appearing on Sunday, November 25 with special guest artist Bruce Springsteen appearing on Monday, November 26 with special guest artist Maria Muldaur
Boths shows: 8:00 p.m. At Curry Hicks Cage
Tickets: $3.50 Available at Student Union Lobby Counter
10:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m.

AMHERST Cinema
AMITY ST. 253-5426
EVES. 7:00
WINNER OF THIS YEAR'S ACADEMY AWARD
Charlie Chaplin in "MODERN TIMES"
Student Discount Cards on Sale $1.00
MONDAY & TUESDAY BARGAIN NITES - ALL SEATS $1.00

CALVIN Theatre
KING ST. NORTHAMPTON
NOW
584-2310

The funniest love story of the year
A Touch Of Class
George Segal Glenda Jackson
EVES. 7:00 9:00
Students $1.00 All Times with Membership Card
MONDAY & TUESDAY BARGAIN NITES - ALL SEATS $1.00

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF	Stephen G. Tripoli
MANAGING EDITOR	Mary T. Vorderer
BUSINESS MANAGER	Gilbert W. Fullerton
EXECUTIVE EDITOR	Jerald H. Lazar
NEWS EDITOR	Joan Fassnacht
SPORTS EDITOR	Stephen W. Crowe
PHOTO EDITOR	Alan H. Chapman
FINE ARTS EDITOR	Patrick Coffey
ADVERTISING MANAGER	Brent A. Wilkes
ASST. MANAGING EDITOR	Geoffrey L. Kurinsky
ASST. EXECUTIVE EDITOR	Dean P. Tucker
ASST. NEWS EDITOR	Sharon Hughes
ASST. SPORTS EDITOR	Steven DeCosta
ASST. PHOTO EDITOR	Stephen A. Ruggles
ASST. FINE ARTS EDITOR	Joyce Kosofsky

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR	Jim Gold
NIGHT STAFF	JoAnn Mary Dominick, Suzan Waihkonen
EDITORIAL	Liz Thompson
SPORTS	Steve Saraceno
DARKROOM	Kevin Mack, Joe Martins, Emmett Schmarsow
AD LAYOUT	Deena Strauss

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administrators read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons, and letters represent the personal views of the authors.

The Collegian subscribes to the Associated Press and the Liberation News Service. Publication of their material does not constitute endorsement.

Slowing Down

A New Style Of Life

There is no question that President Nixon capitalized on the energy crisis Wednesday. He needs a bipartisan cause to rescue him from the depths of unpopularity among middle Americans. It is obvious that he didn't just realize last Wednesday that we are short on energy. His advisors have been saying what he said for months. Whether or not his motivations were political, what he said was true.

It is impossible to believe that the answer to the energy crisis is stop gap and cut back measures. The real answer lies in a new life style for the American people.

Is it really necessary to have electric canopeners, electric combs, electric makeup mirrors, pinball machines, electric back scratchers, electric clocks? No. We propose a ban on their manufacture and sale for private use. Have we really come to the point where we are too busy to wind a clock?

There are other cases of energy gluttony that, although unenforceable by the government, could be controlled by a willing public. Some people will bake a potato and nothing else in their oven. Others will wash a few dishes in their machines. Some will electrically dry a pair of dungarees alone. These overuses of energy are inherent to the UMass off-campus sweller who often pays no specific fee for his electricity but has it figured in a blanket rent.

Furthermore, we call on all people to complete their shopping before eight in the evening. It is possible that the display of porcine energy use in shopping areas such as Route 9 in Hadley could be stopped if people didn't shop after eight, making the stores' operation unprofitable for those hours. They just might close earlier.

It would be nice to see them do so voluntarily, but it is much too evident that businessmen leave their patriotism and obligation to the citizenry at home...as long as the cash registers keep playing music.

We ask that fully one half of the defense budget be shifted to the Department of Transportation for more expeditious completion of Amtrak and other mass transit programs. We ask that Richard Nixon close one of his southern White Houses. Isn't one house in a warm climate enough for anyone to find surcease from the cold? A tangible sign of leadership would do more to restore the confidence of the public than deliver another mouthful of rhetoric.

Lastly, we ask that the double standard in automobile manufacturing be eliminated. President Nixon asked that states set speed limits at 50 m.p.h. just as all government vehicles must now observe. Why not maximize the number of horsepower of American-made passenger cars at one hundred? Why allow the manufacture of behemoth cars that although will only legally travel 50 m.p.h. will use more fuel to do so. Is there really a case for size and power being synonymous with class and luxury?

The answer is not to cut back on energy use now so that we can be hoggish again when new sources are found for energy. The answer is slowing down our life style now for good, so that we have no more crisis of power to face when the next supply of energy is exhausted.

Gerry Cataldo

Another Crisis

We were informed by our fearless leader Wednesday evening that we won't have Arab oil to kick around anymore. It seems that 6% of the world's population is consuming 30% of the world's energy, and as any fifth grade mathematician can tell you, that is extremely unacceptable. I mean what the hell are we, an affluent society or something? This latest crisis did not develop overnight, as some would have you believe. Certainly the war in the Mideast brought the Problem to immense proportions, but Nixon's acting like he found out about it yesterday. But of course if that be the case, then it is understandable, considering the way this administration operates.

The fact is that we are facing an energy shortage now, because the leadership of this country has not been willing to admit that measures should be taken to render the United States self sufficient. There was no mention in Nixon's speech of John Foster Dulles, and the post World War Two policy makers who insisted on oil depletion allowances; stagnation of our own energy resources; big business making profits from foreign policy; and the general cold war theories that have brought us down the road to dependence. And there was no mention of why the situation was allowed to get out of hand, to the extent that we are now shutting the barn door after the horse has run away. But I suppose that this method has become a way of life in this country, and we should expect no less from Richard Nixon.

Considering that our backs are against the wall, we probably have little choice but to accept some of the proposals. We certainly could use a Project Independence, and our goal should be nothing less than complete self reliance by 1980. We can afford to lower thermostats 6 degrees, and drive at 50 mph. Work and school schedules can be shifted, and daylight savings time can surely be re-instated year round. We can, in short, bail ourselves out of this mess; and that is the tragedy of the thing. Once again the people must rescue the country from the inept hands of near sighted leadership.

One of the best suggestions that I have heard is that Nixon shut down his two homes, at Key Biscayne and San Clemente, and spend the winter in Washington. He would be saving jet fuel for one thing, and the heated swimming pools could be drained. And if he went one step further and shipped Bebe Rebozzo to Washington, think of the energy he'd save there. But the rumor that all the electricity will be shut off in Massachusetts just isn't true..yet, anyway. And lest Nixon get the wrong idea, someone should make it perfectly clear to him that the nation's cooperation in this effort has nothing to do with him personally. He gave the impression of actually being a President, Wednesday, but then he blew it with the remarks on "peace" in Vietnam, the economy, unemployment, etc. He was the same old Nixon, trying desperately to believe in himself, while all those around him have long since given up. It won't work. He can pile crisis on top of crisis, but it won't work; he's lost his ability and credibility. I still think he should resign, lights on or off.

And so a nation dims its lights; slows down its cars; and turns down its heat. It sends Johnny off to school in July, and sets back the clock. And it dreams. It dreams of a time when the news from Washington was good. A time when the President was a leader, to be believed. A time when the most prosperous nation on the earth did not sell itself short. A time when people were willing to sacrifice because of faith in their government. A time when it was not necessary for the President to end a speech with the words, "I will not resign". A time when trust was more common than distrust, and confidence was the rule rather than the exception.

Gerry Cataldo is a Collegian Columnist.

Steve Anderson

Conserving Energy

The chance of a fuel shortage has forced the University to take some steps to conserve energy. These steps could have been taken years ago as a part of economy measures but it took a fuel scare to force the administration into action.

At present there are two power plants at UMass one behind the library; the other is in the final stages of construction at Tillson Farm. The plant near the library burns coal although it does have some oil consuming capacities. One of the reasons for building the new plant at Tillson Farm was to pollute less by using oil. The new facility will only use oil when it opens. The power plant generates twenty percent of the University's electricity and all of its steam. The steam is used for heating and cooling buildings. The remaining eighty percent of our electric power comes from Western Massachusetts Electric Company. There is evidence that there may be difficulty finding the fuel necessary to generate power.

The old power plant will remain in operation this winter for three official reasons. First, the new plant is not yet ready to be fired. Second, it is customary to have standby facilities available when a new plant goes into use; just in case some major difficulty develops. Third, Nixon has issued an order prohibiting the conversion of coal burning facilities. I suspect that one other important reason is that there is no guarantee that there will be enough oil to run it. A spokesperson for C. H. Sprague, our oil supplier, said that while it might be difficult to get oil for UMass this winter, he did not anticipate any serious problems. He went on to say that all predictions about fuel were related to the weather and that if this is a very severe winter it might be necessary to close non-essential places like schools. There is enough coal at UMass to last for a couple of months but next week the state will be looking for someone to provide us with fuel for the rest of the winter.

Coal may keep us warm but it will also keep us dirty, it is generally dirtier than oil. Since the United States began its great environmental conversion from coal to oil we have been selling most of our high grade stuff to Japan and Europe. The fuel we receive will be of a lower grade than the Japanese and European supplies; it will have a higher sulfer content. Western Mass Electric is seeking permission to burn coal this winter, too. If they get permission and the coal there should be no problem generating electricity. So, why the crisis if we can burn coal? No one is absolutely sure that they can get it. Suddenly, there is a fantastic demand and some people question if it can be mined and transported fast enough to reach us.

In line with President Nixon's speech two nights ago the University will order all its cars to obey the new fifty mph speed limit. Next, they are embarking on a program to lower the heat to 68. This measure could have been enacted years ago. Dorms (especially the towers in Southwest) are notoriously overheated. People open their windows just to make their rooms livable; this energy loss will be curtailed with the reduction in temperature. Turning down the heat is a major project at this school as there is no central control. Workers must go to each of the six thousand thermostats; it will take 1,000 person hours and cost about $6,500 (this includes more than salaries). In academic buildings thermostats will be closely monitored so that we won't heat empty buildings over the weekends. Janitors will be instructed to turn off the lights in the halls and empty rooms at night. Some attempts will be made to double up on night classes; so that we won't heat a whole building for one class.

Beyond this there is voluntary action that we must take to conserve energy. First, turn off lights that aren't really needed; lights in the bathrooms and halls late at night just waste money and energy. If your room gets too warm don't open the window all the way; instead open the door and let the heat flow to where it can be used. If your room gets cold open the curtains during the day to let the heat of the sun in and close them at night to prevent heat from escaping. We may not need to save fuel this winter; there just might be enough coal at UMass. But if there isn't, and we really don't know, we're going to have to conserve. The monetary savings alone are worth the effort.

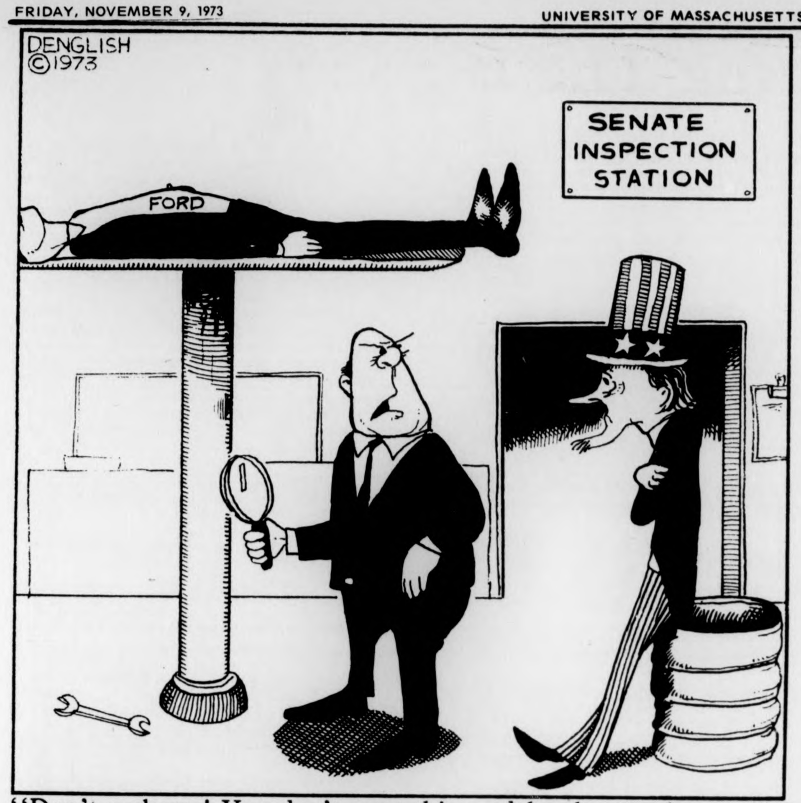
Steve Anderson is a Collegian Columnist.

Letters Policy

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian welcomes all letters to the editor. They must be signed, and include the author's address and phone number. Also, all letters must be typed, double-spaced, at sixty spaces per line, and no more than two pages.

Organizations may submit letters, but they must include a name and phone number for reference purposes.

All letters are subject to editing, for either content or space, according to the judgement of the editors. Due to space limitations, there is no guarantee that all letters received will be printed.



"Don't rush me! You don't want this model to have to be recalled like the last one, do you?

Letters To The Editor

How Faculty Unions Affect Students

(Editor's note: The following letter is in response to recent requests for an explanation of how campus faculty unions will affect students.)

Though faculty and students do not agree on all issues, collective bargaining by the faculty will be advantageous in several important respects to all students, and particularly to graduate students. For example, our faculty has repeatedly expressed strong support for keeping tuition low, for providing generous financial aids, including as many graduate assistantships and fellowships as possible, and for acquiring and keeping an adequate staff of highly qualified and dedicated scholar-teachers.

As faculty agent we will certainly reflect such faculty concerns. In addition we will vigorously oppose the drastic cut-back in numbers of graduate students that has been proposed in the Graduate Program Review initiated by President Wood. This Review calls for reductions in most graduate programs and huge cuts in several: 107 fewer students in History, 254 in English, 660 in Education?

MSP/AAUP worked very closely with representatives of students as well as of other campus groups in opposing and in securing a reduction of a proposed steep rise in parking fees. Our support reflected widespread faculty sentiment, even though faculty members--being better able to pay the higher fees than others concerned--would be given more of an advantage than they had previously had in securing preferable parking privileges.

Unfortunately the faculty cannot exert an effective influence in behalf of student interests in such matters when it has to work under a governance document which gives us only an advisory function. Even our right to advise may be unilaterally denied, as President Wood denied what we thought to be our right to be consulted on the appointment of his chief academic adviser; and, moreover, the governance document is subject at any time to modification or withdrawal by the Board, in part or as a whole.

Whatever agreement we may come to by collective bargaining cannot be set aside by one of the parties, but in cases of disagreement is adjudicable by law. Thus we will be able to work much more effectively toward achieving those goals which faculty and students have in common.

Students will participate in collective bargaining through their representatives on the Board, which is our employer. The lack of true collegiality in our governance is indicated by the faculty's being denied a seat on the Board specifically because of our lowly status as employees. The administration will speak for the Board, including its student representatives, in negotiating with us. Because we share many objectives, we would hope students would play a constructive role in urging the administration to come to an early agreement on a contract.

Many graduate students do serve as teaching assistants and associates, and I personally would like to have them in the bargaining unit. The National Labor Relations Board has ruled, however, that, because of their divided interests, they should have their own organization. The faculty seems certain to want us to represent their interests until they do organize and we hope they may affiliate as a separate entity with MSP/MTA/AAUP, and in this way enable the two groups to work together in close cooperation in building a greater University.

Howard O. Brogan
President, MSP

Clarification

To The Editor:

To clarify a point made in an article in Wednesday's Collegian on the Campus Center Table Policy, the primary reason behind prohibiting the sale of food on the Concourse, besides the fact that it represents competition to the student owned CC Food Services Department, is that to Health Officials, the Campus Center maintains liability for any ill effects caused by food sold in the Complex. Therefore, the Campus Center cannot afford to allow food not prepared in its own kitchens to be sold in the building.

Howard L. Levin,
Chairperson
Services Committee
Campus Center
Board of Governors

3 Minutes

To The Editor:

It's not true, it's not true, I'm telling you...

Once again the film called Zachariah is coming to this campus. Once again I am writing to tell you that the Firesign Theater wrote perhaps three minutes of the film, and that is the total extent of their involvement.

I'm sure that the group presenting this film is not trying to deceive anyone, but rather are acting on the misinformation that is in the film rental catalogue.

Mike Kostek

Appropriate

To The Editor:

At Wednesday night's Student Senate meeting, the chairman of the DVP expressed concern that it might not be "appropriate" for the DVP to bring Moe Howard to UMass. Surely Mr. Howard would be a distinguished visitor.

I am curious where the line would be drawn between the appropriate and the inappropriate. I defy the DVP to draw that line between Mr. Howard and Gahan Wilson, who appeared here two semesters ago, or for that matter between Mr. Howard and the "Houdini" character presented earlier this semester. It can't be done.

I join the thousands of other UMass students in imploring the DVP to bring Moe to campus.

Frits Geurtsen

The Big Lie

To The Editor:

It seems that Rochelle Chandler, for whatever reasons, would like to perpetrate the BIG LIE upon the UMass community. That is, if you repeat the words "Zionist aggressors" enough times, people begin to believe the lie. The central irony is that Rochelle Chandler and her ideological compatriots sit comfortably in Amherst, Mass., and decide that a sovereign state, recognized by the community of nations does not have the right to exist? I propose to answer her charges point by point:

One thru five-attempt to prove that Palestine "belonged" to the Arabs. Here are the facts. On the eve of the establishment of Israel, 8.6 per cent of the land was owned by Jews, 3.3 per cent by Israeli Arabs and 16.5 per cent by Arabs who fled. The land acquired by the Jews was purchased, at an artifically high price by the Jewish people. One very important fact "overlooked" by Ms. Chandler is that more than 70 per cent of Palestine was public land which passed from the Ottoman Empire to the British Mandatory government. The bulk of the territory of Palestine did not belong to individual Arabs at all. It was in the public domain, and passed from government to government.

Six - "Israel immediately occupied 80.48 per cent of total area..." - The facts are as follows. The day after the U.N. decision was announced, the Arabs began their guerrilla warfare. (See Rodinson, Israel and the Arabs, p. 37 and Sykes, Crossroads to Israel, pp. 332ff). On April 16, 1948, Jamal Husseini, spokesman for the Higher Committee of Palestine told the U.N. Security Council, "The representative of the Jewish Agency told us yesterday that they were not the attackers, that the Arabs had begun the fighting. We did not deny this. (my emphasis). We told the whole world that we were going to fight." The Arab states - five of them - invaded Palestine on May 15, 1948. Azzam Pasha, then Secretary-General of the Arab League, announced: "This will be a war of extermination and a momentous massacre which will be spoken of like the Mongolian massacres and the Crusades." The Jews surprised everyone by surviving.

Point seven. It was not before (as Ms. Chandler claims) but AFTER the Arab invasion of May 15, 1948, and the subsequent Israeli victory that purported "territorial expansion" of Israel took place. Not Israel, but the Arab states succeeded in preventing the proposed Arab State of Palestine from coming into being. Much of the land that was to comprise the state was taken by King Abdullah of Jordan (now referred to as the West Bank"), part came under Egyptian administration (the Gaza Strip) and part by Israel. (Transjordan increased its area by approximately 1600 square miles and tripled its population.)

Under the 1949 Armistice agreements, Israel, Egypt and Jordan had identical rights to the territories obtained. Yet it is Israel, precisely because it has been victorious in battle, which is branded as "expansionist" and "aggressive". This superimposition of moral categories on matters which are morally neutral - victory or defeat, for example - is grossly misleading at best. Judgments of good and evil, innocence and guilt, do not have direct relationship to victors and vanquished. The loss of a war may be a catastrophe, but it is not a mark of righteousness. If moral categories are to be applied to the Middle East, it is relevant to accept that no country should be permitted to profit from its own wrongdoings. Yet in 1949 Israel benefited from a war it neither initiated nor desired, which it fought and won to save itself from total annihilation, while Egypt and Jordan benefited from an aggressive war whose announced purpose was not only to destroy an independent state but to massacre its population.

Nine. Ms. Chandler contends that all attempts to "have the (General) Assembly submit the question of 'constitutionality' of its recommendation to the International Court of Justice were rejected or ignored by the Assembly". Why were these attempts ignored? Apparently the I.C.J. recognized the legality of Israel's right to statehood.

Ten. The U.N. General Assembly never nullified or destroyed the "dubious legality" of its own decision. There is absolutely no record that the Assembly experienced "second thoughts" and Ms. Chandler does not make the point merely by creating the fiction.

Eleven. This point is a well-taken one. Ms. Chandler does not say that the Jews forced the Palestinians from their homeland. She speaks of "conditions existing in Israel" causing a majority of Palestinian Arabs to flee and-or be evicted.

Why did the Arabs leave Israel in 1948? The evidence is persuasive that it was not at the en-

(Continued on P. 14)

DVP Should Get Moe

To The Editor:

The performance of the DVP committee at Wednesday nights meeting must be described as less than impressed by the student turnout.

Since last week's Collegian letters about a possible Moe Howard visit to campus, students have rallied in support of such a speaker. Petitions and letters circuited immediately. Along with three other friends I began our own petition. In a little over two hours of soliciting, we collected 800 signatures (not 795 as reported by Bill Ballou) from the Southwest area. The reaction was spontaneous and unusually unified in favor of Moe.

When we submitted the petition to the committee, Roger Lewenberg's (head of the committee) initial reaction was to question the "validity" of the signatures. Obviously a rather immature biased comment. His reaction drew unfavorable comments from those attending. It appears that most committee members do not feel that Moe would qualify to be a good speaker. My personal feeling is that he would be a welcomed change from the usual type speakers, those being political, religious, and other related people. The reason is quite basic.

Student identity with the Three Stooges' routine is phenomenal. There are undoubtedly few who cannot recite one of the famous lines. Moe has spoken on talk shows, for both t.v. and radio. He speaks of his earliest days in Vaudeville and his gradual movement into his famous acts with Curly, Larry and later Shemp. Though considerably older now, a speech by Moe to the UMass community would be a very nostalgic evening. Contrary to preconceived notions, he offers more than just poking eyes out.

One editorial suggested Firesign Theatre. This is a relatively new group. Their roots into the past fall far short of Moe's. We do not advocate Moe's appearance for merely a humorous time. He is one of the very few remaining entertainers of that era. The committee's job is to act in favor of student sentiment. Surely they will vote in favor of Moe's appearance. I hope they will do everything possible to bring him to campus this academic year. So far they claim that it will be hard to locate an available hall to hear him speak. They reported that rights to a hall are often obtained a year in advance. Imagine this campus running out of lecture halls.

Robert S. Berman
(800 signatures)

Perpetrating The Big Lie

(Continued from P. 13)

couragement or insistence of the Israeli government - which, urged them to stay - but rather as a result of the powerful pressures to leave exerted by the Arab states. By radio newspaper and leaflet, by word of mouth and by every means in which rumors are spread in the Arab world, the Arab states made it perfectly plain that those who left Israel would soon return with the conquering Arab army, while any who stayed would be either massacred by the Jews or, should they survive the debacle, be branded as traitors by the victorious Arabs.

Many sources support Arab responsibility for the exodus from Palestine, Al-Urdun, the Jordanian daily newspaper, on April 9, 1953 said, "For the flight and fall of the other villages, it is our leaders who are responsible because of their dissemination of rumors exaggerating Jewish crime and describing them as atrocities in order to inflame the Arabs...By spreading rumors of Jewish atrocities, killings of women and children, etc., they instilled fear and terror in the hearts of the Arabs in Palestine until they fled, leaving their homes and property to the enemy."

Kenneth Bilby in the "New Star in the Near East" (New York, 1950) puts it this way, "The Arab exodus, initially at least, was encouraged by many Arab leaders such as Haj Amin el-Husseini, the exiled pro-Nazi Mufti of Jerusalem, and by the Arab Higher Committee of Palestine."

In the Bulletin of the Research Group for Eruopean Migration Problems, in the January-March 1957 issue (pp. 10-11), it was found that "...As early as the first months of 1948 the Arab League issued orders exhorting the people to seek temporary refuge in the neighboring countries, later to return to their abodes in the wake of the victorious Arab armies and obtain their share of abandoned Jewish property...."

Furthermore, in a U.S. Public Affairs Institute publication, 'Regional Development for Regional Peace', it holds, "The main burden of evidence now available indicates that the evacuation of Palestine was primarily in response to urgings from the military or political leaders of the Arab states themselves."

On the other hand, numerous appeals made by Israeli spokesmen to Arab residents imporing them not to leave Israel and pledging to protect their person and their property.

I do not assert that all the refugees left at the specific direction of Arab leadership. It is natural, and perhaps predictable that during any military upheaval, many civilians will evacuate the area by their own decision. But if this indeed was the case, the choice to quit Israel during the time of difficulty was freely made by the Arabs themselves; it was in no sense an act of expulsion. The fiction that Arabs were impelled to leave under Israeli duress emerges not from the history of that time but from the exertions of Arab propagandists in the years since.

Two final points - Ms. Chandler's attempt to prove that the Arab claim rests on 5000 years on the land is very far from the truth. Only a small part of the population of Palestine consisted of families that had lived on the land since ancient times. Most of Palestine's Arabs are the descendants of immigrants of the 19th and 20th centuries from Syria and other Arab areas. As late as 1920, Arab leaders referred to Palestine as southern Syria. The growth of the Jewish national movement spurred the emergence of Palestinian Arab nationalism.

Finally, to say that "most Jewish people...are not of Semitic origin, but (are) European converts of Polish and Slavic origin," is incomprehensible to anyone with even an elementary knowledge of Jewish history. Jews fought and died to preserve their ethnic identity. The taboo against intermarriage succeeded to a great extent in preserving the Semitic identity of Jews.

The State of Israel is a homeland for the Jewish people and a democratic state with complete freedom for all citizens (Israeli Arabs are citizens). The State is not based on race or religion (there is no established religion) as are many of the Arab states.

I want to close with the following quote from a pamphlet of the British Communist party written by Bert Ramelson. "It is wrong", says Ramelson, "to describe the war for the establishment of Israel as the first war between the Jews and the Arabs... It was a war of liberation waged by the Jewish people in Palestine against British imperialism, which used Arab armies commanded by British officers taking their instructions from Whitehall. Am Yisroel Chai!!! The Jewish people live.

Rabbi Aryeh Meir

ADVERTISE FREE
Western Massachusetts Only
Super Ad List
FAIR EXCHANGE
A New Ad Weekly
Articles For Sale by Private Owners
10 per cent of Advertised Price only IF and WHEN you sell
10,000 ACTIVE Buyers
NO DEALER ADS
SPECIAL 2 WEEK OFFER
No Commission Charge 25 word limit —
Ads must be received before Mon. noon, Nov. 19
FAIR EXCHANGE
F.O. Box J
N. Amherst, Mass. 01059
CALL 256-0236
Clip and Mail

GRAND OPENING
THURSDAY—NOV. 8
AT MR. SLACKS YOU'LL FIND A SELECTION OF OVER 10,000 PAIRS OF SLACKS TO CHOOSE FROM, SIZES 27 TO 60 WAIST UP TO 36" LENGTHS, ALL AT FANTASTIC SAVINGS!!!
STADIUM SLACKS 16.99 *Sizes 30 to 42 *Lined *Real Warm $28.00 VALUE
OPENING SPECIAL RACK 99¢ to 3.99 UP TO $12.00 VALUE
belts *WIDE BELTS *NARROW BELTS *CINCH TYPE BELTS *BRAIDED BELTS *PAINTED BELTS *DRESS BELTS 2.99 to 5.99
DRESS BAGGIES *Sizes 27 to 42 *Fancies, Stripes and Solids from 10.99
SOLID DOUBLE KNITS 11.99 $18.00 VALUE *Sizes 28 to 42
jeans *BLUE JEANS *CORDUROYS 6.99
WE GUARANTEE YOU THE HIGHEST QUALITY SLACKS AT THE LOWEST POSSIBLE PRICES!!!
Not a Pair Over $19.99
MR. SLACKS
MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL
HADLEY
*BRAINTREE South Shore Plaza
*BROCKTON Westgate Mall
*CHELSEA Parkway Plaza
*DEDHAM Mall
*FALL RIVER Shopping Center
*HADLEY Mountain Farms Mall
*HANOVER Mall
*HYANNIS-Cape Cod Mall
*NATICK-Sherwood Plaza
*NORTH DARTMOUTH Mall
*SPRINGFIELD-Baystate West
*WORCESTER Center
*BEDFORD Mall, N.H.
*NASHUA Mall, N.H.

(AP Wirephoto)

..YOUNGEST MAYOR A STUDENT - Stephen Erickson, a 21 year old biology student at the University of Mass., in Amherst stops to receive contrats from fellow student on his way to classes this morning after being elected Mayor of Gardner, Mass., a central Mass. city of some 21,000 people.

Trucking Official Asks For Logan Growth

BOSTON (AP) - A trucking industry executive said Thursday a major expansion at Logan International Airport will be needed by 1980 if the airport is to keep up with the growth of air traffic.

David Porcaro Jr., president of Dave's Motor Transportation, Inc., told a public hearing by the Massachusetts Port Authority "Our air freight terminal facilities are inadequate to handle the present freight volume and I fear Boston will be religated to second class status, only to rely on the spillover air freight crumbs that New York airports can't handle."

"Air freight has been doubling every five years and indications are that the future of air freight is bring and promising despite the energy crisis and the Arabian oil situation," he said.

He said air freight passing through Logan increased from 270 million pounds in 1971 to 310 million pounds last year.

"Through the first six months of this year," he said, "air freight shipments are running about 15 per cent ahead of last year's record volume, and there's every indication that pace is continuing this half."

He said Logan is a major terminal for overseas shipments to the U.S. because "European and Far Eastern markets, which are major suppliers of high value, low density goods like electronic equipment, medical equipment and other commodities, see air freight as the fastest method to get their products to the technology-oriented New England markets."

Opening Soon
GOTEN OF JAPAN
Dining in the Tradition of Japanese Nobility
Rte. 116 Sunderland, Ma.

SHOWCASE CINEMAS 1·2·3·4·5
ROUTE 5 RIVERDALE RD.
WEST SPFLD. 24 HR. TEL. 733-5131
We Honor MASTER CHARGE and BANK AMERICARD
STREISAND & REDFORD TOGETHER! THE WAY WE WERE PG
Mon.-Fri. 2-7:30-9:50
Sat.-Sun. 1-3-5:05-7:20-9:50
WALTER MATTHAU WHEN HE RUNS OUT OF DUMB LUCK, HE ALWAYS HAS GENIUS TO FALL BACK ON! "CHARLEY VARRICK" PG
Wed., Mat. 2:00
Eves. 7:30-9:50
Sat.-Sun. 1:30-3:25 5:20-7:30-10
Malcolm McDowell Lindsay Anderson's O LUCKY MAN R
Wed., Mat. 2:00
Eves. 7:00-9:50
Sat.-Sun. 1:30-4:05-7-9:45
DONALD SUTHERLAND · ELLIOTT GOULD M*A*S*H PG
Wed., Mat. 2:00
Eves. 7:30-9:50
Sat.-Sun. 1:30-3:25-5:25-7:40-10
WE'RE ADDING A NEW CINEMA WATCH FOR GALA OPENING
"FREE! STUDENT DISCOUNT CARDS! SAVE 50¢ FOR YOURSELF AND A GUEST—GET YOUR CARDS NOW AT THE THEATRE!"

LAST DAY FOR S.W.A.P.
APPLICATIONS
SWAP: NOV. 30 - Dec. 1
Get your Applications at:
Local Area Government Offices
Student Activities
Campus Center Information Desk
APPLICATIONS DUE TODAY!
Any questions, please call Ari (546-9978), Mike (546-6645), Sheila 545-2351

Southwest Creates New Funding Methods

By FRAN BROCK

This year, Southwest Residential College has devised a different means of handling budgets.

In previous years, three groups of people controlled the budgeting of monies. The Business Manager appropriated project funds; Southwest Assembly appropriated Student Activities Tax Fund (SATF); Area Director's Office appropriated Cultural Enrichment Funds, funds from the Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs and funds from the Provost.

This year all the money is under one Budget Committee. The Committee is composed of the Area Director, one representative from Central Staff, one representative from each cluster (a cluster being a group of Houses — there are three clusters), the Business Manager, six students (one of which is the treasurer of SW Assembly), and a representative from each of the Centers.

Last year, when the decision was made to change the structure of the Budget Committee, it was decided that there would be one representative for the five Centers. The Centers are the Women's Center, Center for Racial Understanding, Malcolm X Center, Resource Center and the Instructional Center.

At the meeting held this week, the Committee decided that such representation was not enough and changed the rule to one representative from each Center. They also added a representative from the Academic Advisory Board.

Bill Brown, Director of Services and the representative from Central Staff, objected to this change because he feared the representatives might represent their Center first and be concerned with the over-all budget second.

Brown also commented on the philosophy of SW which says that students are the reason for the College. He felt that there is a tendency for more staff representation than student representation and that is "inconsistent with the philosophy."

It is hoped by all the Committee that the Centers will choose carefully when deciding on a representative. As Brown pointed out, if the representative is too concerned with his or her Center, it could cause internal rivalries. Such conflicts of interest could slow down and cause the Budget Committee to be ineffective.

This Committee holds meetings each week to decide how the monies can be spent to the best advantage in relation to the priorities of SW. The priorities are "combating racism and sexism."

SW Assembly receives the SATF money. The money from the Vice-Chancellor for Student Affairs and the Provost goes to salaries, security, and single course fees. The C.E.F. money and the Project fund money are distributed between the Centers, and the Houses.

C.E.F., V.C. Student Affairs and Provost money originates from tuition and state money. Project fund money is from room rent, after mortgages. These monies are distributed among the residential areas, according to population.

The duty of this new Central Budget Committee, according to acting chairperson, Ray Muise, "is to know where the money is going."

"One hand didn't know what the other was doing last year," said Muise. "With one group of people with a knowledge of all the aspects of SW, things will be better coordinated."

Despite the simple facade of having one committee, SW residence still have to know where to get the money they need. For example, Houses get between $200 and $400 of the Project fund, depending on population. There is also $200-$300 set aside from the Cultural Enrichment Fund for each House. And, there is a remainder of $12,000 of Project Fund money for use by the Houses for changes needed or wanted in the House.

The main thing for Houses to remember, when requesting the funds is what funds they can use and when. Before a House can get any money, they must prove they have used up the money from their Project fund. Then they can use the CEF money. However, if the money is to be used for House changes, then one does not use the CEF money, but the remainder of the Project money. If Houses want any of the Project money, they must apply by November 16.

Anyone can also ask the SW Assembly for money. The SW Assembly works out of the SATF money. This semster, they have approximately $7000 left. Their money is to be used for "SW oriented projects."

The Finance Committee of the SW Assembly has also changed its structure. Last year it was a standing committee. This year, new people are chosen each week to serve on the committee. According to Muise, this was done "to break up powers."

The general consensus seems to favor the new structure; Bill Brown feels the "system has potential" but questions whether it will reach that full potential.

He said that emphasis must be made to receive student feedback and the students must be aware of what is going on.

He continued by saying that his budget from Services, "will be presented to SW Budget Committee before it is presented to Rents and Fees." The reason being, he feels that SW students should know what is being done with their money.

Hopefully, with equal representation from all of Southwest on a single Budget Committee, the students will be able to get a clearer and more complete picture of how their money is being put to use.

SIR MORGAN'S COVE

139 Green Street Worcester, Ma. 753-4376

APPEARING NOW THRU SUNDAY

The Ralph Hammer Group

(the band behind Stevie Wonder)

Sunday Matinee at 4 p.m.

COMING NOVEMBER 12-18 advance reservations accepted

Stan Getz

COMING ATTRACTIONS

Celebration
James Cotton
Muddy Waters
Brian Auger
Hound Dog Taylor
Sound Track
Abraham

Students with college I.D. admitted half price Sun. and Mon.
50¢ off with this ad Tues. thru Sat.

Students Who Know Spanish To Teach English In Colombia

Are you a junior or senior, bilingual in Spanish and studying education, with a desire for change from the University atmosphere and an inclination toward warmer weather? If so, the Centro Colombo-Americano in Bucaramanga, Colombia, is offering you a position teaching English as a second language to Colombians of all ages.

Buracamanga is a beautiful and clean city with a perennial spring-like temperature throughout the year. The city is famous for its friendly people, a characteristic that the teachers and students at the Center try to enhance.

Teachers in the Center will work in such classes as those for high school students, for bilingual secretaries, children's classes and the like. The Center tries to maintain classes between 10 and 12 students although the total enrollment at the Center is approximately 500 students. Teachers coming to the Center are committed to a one year, part-time term at twenty to thirty hours per week. The salary is approximately $1.20 and is sufficient for living expenses in a country where an individual can live on $30 a month for food, and where a bus ride costs only 2 1-2 cents.

Aside from the class facilities, Centro Colombo-Americano has a library for its associates, students and the public. The Center also offers various cultural programs of films, conferences, concerts and art expositions. It is expected and mutually profitable for the teachers at the Center to participate in these programs and offer ideas to the general cultural exchange.

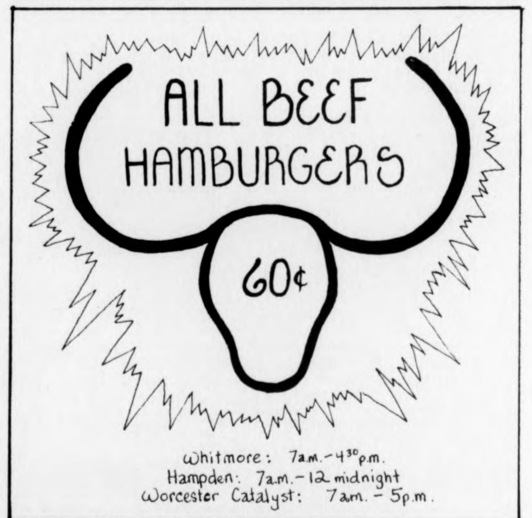
Applicants must be prepared to leave at the end of January, 1974 and remain until the following January. Seniors can leave this January and receive their diplomas in the mail while completing their teaching term. Participants will be expected to provide their own transportation fares and to find their desired living arrangements. However, accommodations for those students who wish to live with a Colombian family can be made through the Center.

Interested candidates see, as soon as possible, Mrs. Barbara Burn, Director International Programs Office in 239 Whitmore for further information on the program and its application procedures.

Hiring Not Deal

BOSTON (AP)-Rep. Francis J. Bevilacqua, D-Haverhill, said Thursday the hiring of his son, Frederick, by Northern Essex Community College was not part of a deal worked out with the legislature's Ways and Means Committee.

"Ways and Means has nothing to do with hiring at the college," Bevilacqua said. "Look, I've got five kids. Aren't they supposed to work?"



ALL BEEF HAMBURGERS
60¢
Whitmore: 7a.m.-4³⁰p.m.
Hampden: 7a.m.-12 midnight
Worcester Catalyst: 7a.m. - 5p.m.

ADULTS ONLY!
SEX FLICK
FRIDAY NITE
All Seats $1.50
"All American Girl"
X RATED Shown at 11:30
Positive I.D.
AMHERST Cinema
AMITY ST., AMHERST
253-5426

The un-dormitories.

Great off-campus living—indoors and out—at either of two modern apartment complexes, only minutes away by car or bike from Amherst College, downtown Amherst or UMass. Now accepting applications for September.

Brittany Manor
AMHERST

- courtesy bus to UMass and town
- 1, 2, 3 bedrm apts.
- heat & air conditioning
- wall-to-wall carpeting
- applianced kitchens
- master TV antenna
- laundry facilities
- parking, cars & bikes
- 2 swimming pools with sundecks
- 2 pro tennis courts
- lawns for softball, football, badminton

RENT: $200/MONTH
(utilities included)
Directions: East Dudly Rd. oppos. Grist Mill off Rte. 116

Mount Sugarloaf
SUNDERLAND

- 2-bedrm apts.
- heat & air conditioning
- roomy closets, storage
- wall-to-wall carpeting
- master TV antenna
- modern kitchens
- self-cleaning ovens
- electric ranges
- stainless-steel sinks
- dishwashers/disposals
- 2-door refrigerators
- laundry facilities
- swimming pool

No Lease Required
RENT: FROM $185
CALL 413-256-8534
Directions: On Route 47.

looking for a straight leg that fits as good as it looks?
DART JEANS by Male
WEAR-HOUSE
201 n. pleasant st. amherst

HOTEL RESTAURANT AND TRAVEL ADMINISTRATION
UNIVERSITY OF MASSAC

(Photo John Woodruff, Hawaii, Visitors Bureau)

Shown at their booth are a few of the several dozen students from UMass who attended the recent annual conference of Discover America travel organizations at Lake Placid. Students are encouraged to participate in the walk-in conversation display booth which appears at a half-dozen different association conferences each year under the joint sponsorship of the department of hotel, restaurant and travel administration and the student club, Innkeepers.

Rewald To Present Lecture At Amherst

Art historian and educator John Rewald will present an illustrated lecture entitled "Visits with European Artists: Maillol to Calder" at 8 p.m. Monday, Nov. 12 in the auditorium of the Mead Art Building, Amherst College. The event is open to the public without charge.

Professor Rewald is currently teaching at the City College of New York (CCNY). Born in Berlin and educated at the Universities of Hamburg, Frankfurt, and Paris, he came to the United States in 1941 and was naturalized in 1947. Since then he has been associated with the Museum of Modern Art in New York City and with the private collection of John Hay Whitney. He also has taught at Princeton University and the University of Chicago.

Notices

AHORA
Reunion 7:30 - 10:00 p.m., Nov. 12, C.C. 165.

BELCHERTOWN VOLUNTEERS
The bus to Belchertown will leave at 12:45 in front of Haigis Mall. New people welcome. For questions, call Mary-Jo 6-6953.

BIKE TRAINING RIDE
25 Mile training ride leaves from front of S.U. at 2 p.m. Sunday. For info call Mark 256-8723.

COLLEGE CHURCH BUS
Ride the bus to College Church--leaves Newman Center at 8:46, Waiting Station at 8:47, Hamlin at 8:48, SW Horseshoe at 8:50.

DANCE FREE
Those interested in creative movement improvisation and free dancing come join us tonite at 8:30. Check C.C. Info Desk for Room number.

DVP APPLICATIONS
Applications for the Distinguished Visitors Program Committee may be picked up in Rm. 416 (Student Activities) and Rm. 426 (DVP) of the S.U.B. Membership is open to Freshmen and Transfer students. Deadline 11-12.

EYEGLASSES
The C.C. Lost and Found has about 30 prs. of glasses just waiting to be claimed. If you've lost yours' since Sept. 1 come down and check if they're here. We don't want them!!

FLIPPER FREAKS!
Anyone interested in participating in the World Pinball Championships in Wash. D.C. 11-23-24, call Tony at 546-4648.

GRAD STUDENTS
Veterans Office needs tutors, particularly those in SBA! Grad students are urged to register as possible tutors for veteran undergrads. Rm. 241, Whitmore. Standard rates paid.

HERE COMES THE JUDGE
Want to be a Judge? Student Senate is now taking applications in Rm. 420 S.U.

HUNGRY?
The needy of Springfield are. Bring can goods and other non-perishables the Newman Center the weekend of Nov. 16.

INDIA NITE 1972 POSTER
Anyone having 1972 "India Nite" posters, pleas contact Hari, 223 Draper, 5-2491. Important--needed for India Assocn. Programming Material will be returned.

JOB OPENING
All SW residents pick up applications for paid reporter in Assembly Office in JQA Lobby. They are due back by Fri. 11-16.

MATH MAJORS
You must have your advisor's signature on your pre-registration form. Find out who your advisor is and his-her office hours in Rm. 218, Arnold.

MELVILLE COFFEEHOUSE
Coffeehouse in Melville Rec. Rm. on Sat. 11-10 starting at 8 p.m. Come listen to many fine performers.

P.C. SOCIAL COMMITTEE
Meeting Sunday Night at 7 in Rm. 801 C.C. Election of new chairman. Please show up.

PLANT & SOIL SCIENCE
We offer a multitude of courses next semester. Talk to upperclasmen 6:30-7:30; the Profs explain courses and answer ques. 7:30-9:00 Monday, French 209. Everyone welcome.

S.A.W. IS OPEN
Tu, W, Th 3-11 p.m., Sat. 9-5, Sun. 10-4.

STAR TREK LIVES!
Informal meeting Mon. 11-12, at 7:30 C.C. 803. Everyone invited.

UNITARIAN SOCIETY
Dr. David Inglis, nuclear physicist and UMass professor, will address the meeting on Sun. 11-11 at 11 a.m. on the topic "The Moral Issue of Energy Conservation". Open forum and coffee hour at 12.

WOMEN'S X-COUNTRY RACE
Come run 3 mile race. Women's regional championships. Sun. 11-11, behind WOPE, 2 p.m. Everyone welcome.

LOST
On Peter Pan bus returning from New York Hotel Show, 1 yellow Parka and Management Book.

A pr. of half galsses lost in Central Area, in a red clasp case. Please return, if you find. Thanks. Sal 417 U.M.S. 546-1421.

1974 UMass ring in C.C. men's room located next to the Lost and Found. Please call 586-2562 after 6 p.m. Ask for Charlie. Reward.

UMass blue coil-bound 5 Subj. notebook. Pufftor address, please call 549-3539.

Round, gold, rimmed glasses in dk. green case, between S.W. and Bartlett. Call 546-7395.

Eyeglasses, tan case, Waltham Optical on outside. Vicinity of C.C. and Crinell Arena. Contact Eleanor H., Dwight House. 545-2304.

ENGAGEMENT
Linda J. Miller, Class '75 of KAT to Joseph F. Barboza, Class '74 of SAE.

PINNING
Debbie Menard, Class '76 of KAT to Tom Swed, Class '75 of EAM.

LAST 2 PERFORMANCES

Fri., Nov. 9, Sat., Nov. 10

"Jacques Brel Is Alive & Well & Living In Paris"

Music by Jacques Brel
Bartlett Auditorium, 8 p.m.
For info & ticket res. call
545-2579, Mon.-Fri., 1-5 p.m.

PhD Candidates & Recipients

All Disciplines

MBA's and PhD Candidates in Business

All advanced graduate students and faculty interested in university teaching positions and/or corporate internships in Latin America are invited to meet with Mr. Oscar Porter of the Latin American Teaching Fellowships on Monday, November 12, 1973, at Room 102, Berkshire House, from 3:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m.

Campus Carousel

Feminism Takes Turn

By TONY GRANITE

LADY LIBBERS take notice...from Connecticut to Florida, coeds are invading the bastions of male chauvanism.

At UConn, according to a recent Connecticut Daily Camus, the freshman football manager is Martha Sibor. She runs errands for the coach, carries equipment and keeps statistics at games. Her reason for wanting the job?

"I want to learn about sports and sports teams, and I can't think of a better way to do it."

Meanwhile, at USoFla, chem major Mary Duncan does her thing as a folunteer firefighter. She has told The Oracle that she "usually gets along well with the (male) firefighters (although) sometimes they find it hard to look at me as another guy."

Both coeds deny they joined the all-male units to promote the Women's Lib movement.

****

MEANEST THIEF story comes out of Central Mich U., where the campus newspaper, CM Life, reports the theft of $25 contributed in a Korean Orphanage Drive.

****

HEADLINE OF THE WEEK appears in the Miami-Dade JC Falcon Times over a story about a new course for male airline stewards: "Coffee, tea or he as men take to air."

CAMPUS INTERVIEWS

SCHOOL OF MANAGEMENT

Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute

Graduate Degree Programs in:

— Private (Industrial) Management
— Public Management
— Management Engineering
— Operations Research and Statistics

Prof. D. W. Karger, Ford Foundation
Professor of Management will be on campus

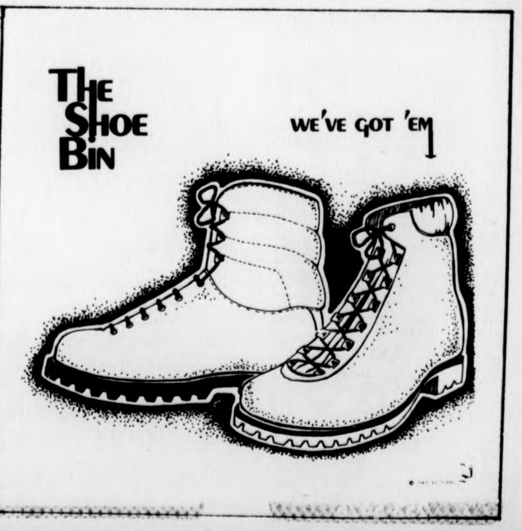
Tuesday, November 13, 1973

Please make appointments at Placement Office

The Guitar Workshop 549-1728

233 No. Pleasant Street Amherst

Large Selection of Scores and Sheet Music for all Instruments and Voices from
C.F. Peters, Kalmus, G. Schirmer, Moeck, Schott, International Eds., Hortus Musicus, Boosey & Hawkes, etc.
Fine Fretted Instruments & Recorders
Instrumental Accessories
Open - Monday - Saturday 9:30 ~ 6:00



THE SHOE BIN
WE'VE GOT 'EM

The Impulse Tour Arrives

Gato Barbieri

THE IMPULSE TOUR
featuring
Gato Barbieri, Keith
Jarret and Sam Rivers is coming to
Amherst College
Sunday, November 11,
at the Alumni Gym at 7:30.

KEITH JARRETT

Sam Rivers

Tickets $3.50 at the door.

On Sale

$3.33

5982 15

CHAPTER ONE: LATIN AMERICA
Gato/AS-9248

also included

SAM RIVERS: Recorded in Performance 9251

Also On Sale

Also On Sale

THE MAGIC CITY
Sun Ra/AS-9243

LIBERATION MUSIC ORCHESTRA
Charlie Haden/AS-9183

BIG FOOT COUNTRY GIRL
Mel Brown/AS-9249

THE LAND OF SPIRIT AND LIGHT
Michael White/AS-9241

THE EAR OF THE BEHEARER
Dewey Redman/AS-9250 discount records

LONG PLAYING RECORDS AT A SAVING!

275 Triangle St. off E. Pleasant, Amherst 549-4433

Store Hours: Mon. - Sat. 10 a.m. - 9 p.m. - Free Parking in Rear impulse!

impulse!
impulse!
GATO
CHAPTER ONE: LATIN AMERICA
KEITH JARRETT FORT YAWUH
Sun Ra
The Magic City
CHARLIE HADEN
LIBERATION MUSIC ORCHESTRA
Mel Brown
Big Foot Country Girl
MICHAEL WHITE
THE LAND OF SPIRIT AND LIGHT
THE EAR OF THE BEHEARER
DEWEY REDMAN
BANKAMERICARD

State College Enrollment Predicted

BOSTON (AP) - Trustees of the 11 state colleges in Massachusetts Thursday approved a report which predicted total enrollment in the schools of 42,000 students by 1980 with a budget of more than $100 million.

The report called for a task force to look for alternatives to the program of granting teachers tenure because , it said, tenure restricts curriculum flexibility.

The first draft of the report contained recommendations for restrictions on tenure, but this was withdrawn because of opposition from faculty members of the planning group wwhich prepared the report.

The planning group said its goal is to provide "all citizens of Massachusetts with the broadest possible access to the educational opportunities within the state college system."

The report called for increased coordination within the state college system, limitations on graduate programs, expansion of off-campus education and a shift away from teacher training.

Fellowships Awarded

WASHINGTON (AP) - Five medical researchers have been awarded fellowships by the Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. Foundation for research in the neurosciences and medical sciences.

The foundation announced that the recipients will receive training and will conduct neurobiological research at their own universities. And they will attend an intensive two-week ethics course created by the Kennedy Foundation, the Kennedy Institute at Georgetown University and the Interfaculty Program at Harvard.

The recipients are Dr. Ellen K. Silbergold of Johns Hopkins University; Dr. Edward A. Berger, Stanford University; Dr. Peter S. Spencer, Albert Einstein College of Medicine; Dr. John J. Hopwood, University of Chicago; and Dr. Roger S. Williams, Harvard University.

Berger will receive $11,000. The other recipients will receive $15,000 each.

4TH ANNUAL
NEW ENGLAND
STUDENT
FILM FESTIVAL

The principal forum for student filmmakers in New England.
Screenings in Academic Bldg. I
8:00 Friday and Saturday evenings
1:30 Saturday afternoon
A special screening of films selected for ACADEMY AWARD nominations and film touring package to colleges and museums throughout the country will be held on Sunday evening at 8:00.

Tickets $1.50 per show

November 9, 10 & 11

Hampshire College

Amherst, Mass.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

When Leo smiles, the room lights up--these natives can make or break a party. The same is basically true of Capricorn, but in a different way. The style of Capricorn is more direct, to the point, slightly "heavy." Capricorn can be dour, somewhat cynical in contrast to the Leo happy-go-lucky way. Gemini can look at Leo and Capricorn and dub them the "odd couple." Gemini has a sense of self-interest. Leo has self-esteem. Capricorn has self-awareness. Capricorn and Leo find Gemini a great audience...and Gemini views Leo and Capricorn as "something else." Get these three together and you have the Sun, Mercury and Saturn and a misture which leaves a lasting taste...for better or worse.

- - -

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You may want too much too soon and for a price that is out of line. Obviously, patience and restraint become twin allies. Without them, you will spend and get nothing of value for plenty of effort and money.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Cycle is high but one in authority refuses to let you have a "cakewalk." Means obstacles, challenges are thrown in your path. You may also have to deal with Aries on a rampage. Be specific, controlled and observant.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Make changes but don't discard proved methods, values. Deal gingerly with Virgo. One who confides in you wants approval. Know it and don't make mistake of offering anything else. You will understand.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Friend who may seem to oppose you is merely going through cycle of temperament. Know it and don't make a big thing of it. Ride with emotional tide. Family member proves staunch ally. Throw aside false pride.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Opportunity is present but it is necessary to be realistic. Don't see through rose-colored haze. Pisces, Virgo persons tend to exaggerate. Prestige is in picture but so is tendency toward self-deception.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): What you do now will have long-range effect. Be ready to organize. Get facts filed and ready for use. Accept challenge, responsibility. Capricorn, Cancer persons are in picture. Communication received from one at a distance is highlighted.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You are able to finish, to put final touches on project. Aries aids. Money affecting co-operative effort is questioned. Fresh creative energy comes to fore--you imprint your style. You are due to emerge a winner.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): What you own is apt to increase in value. Be patient. Don't jump at first offer. Open horizons. Perceive potential. Refuse to be painted into corner. You have more to offer than might be apparent on surface. Know it, act like you are aware of it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): What appears to be a weight, an impossible aspiration, will settle into constructive groove. Cancer, Capricorn persons figure prominently. Maintain balance, steady pace. Improve property. Remodel. Build on base that is solid.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You spread out--your interests multiply. Curiosity is stimulated--Sagittarian could be in picture. Accent is on change and special relationship. Advocate creativity. Young person wants to serve your interests.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Solid results are featured. Those who demanded results are now likely to express satisfaction. Your approach is thorough and you detect flaws. Quality becomes your ally. You will receive meaningful compliment.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Movement, travel and visits could be featured. Gemini, Virgo figure prominently. You are provided with valuable information. Key is to use it wisely. Relative asks you to be discreet. Comply. You are on brink of discovery.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you draw people to you with their problems. Many persons confide in you and accept your counsel. You deal many times with Aries, Libra individuals. Travel indicated for December. You are ambitious, active and fond of faraway places. You perceive future trends and you are an accurate prognosticator. You aid the underdog and are actually better at helping others than when it comes to aiding yourself.

Copyright 1973, Gen. Fea. Corp.

Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS

1 Uppermost part
4 Graceful birds
9 Music: as written
12 Exist
13 Part of jacket
14 Flap
15 Pertaining to the teeth
17 Likeness
19 City in Alaska
20 River in England
21 Having wings
23 Slim
26 Accomplished
27 Evade an obligation
28 Roman gods
29 A month (abbr.)
30 Twirls
31 Outfit
32 College degree (abbr.)
33 Think
34 Food fish
35 Raise
37 Leases
38 Tardy
39 Transaction
40 Long-legged bird
42 Natives of Buckeye State
45 Succor
46 Church official
48 Insect egg
49 Tiny
50 Highways
51 Secret agent

DOWN

1 Youngster
2 Native metal
3 Flag
4 Sticky mud
5 Decrease
6 Simian
7 Compass point
8 Splinters
9 Remain erect
10 Label
11 Man's nickname
16 Carry
18 Religious devotee
20 Place in line
21 Sun-dried brick
22 Restricted
23 Glisten
24 Roman official
25 Ceremonies
27 Malice
30 Splash
31 Asians
33 Egg-shaped
34 Storage bin
36 Omit from pronunciation
37 Filaments
39 Lean-to 40 Carpenter's tool
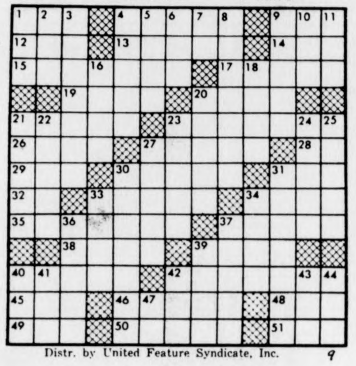
41 Cravat
42 Room in harem
43 Pinch
44 Pigpen
47 Behold!

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

S	T	E	A	M				C	R	A	T	E
M	O	R	R	O	W		B	A	I	L	E	R
E	S		T	O	R	P	E	D	O		T	A
A	S	P		T	A	I	L	S		E	R	S
R	E	A	P		P	E	T		B	R	A	E
	S	N	A	P		R	E	G	A	R	D
		T	R	A	P		D	O	R	A
	S	H	I	N	E	R		A	R	N	A
A	P	E	S		A	I	D		E	D	N	A
L	A	R		T	R	O	O	P		S	T	S
O	R		H	A	L	T	E	R	S		L	S
O	S	C	A	R	S		S	O	I	R	E	E
F	E	E	L	S				S	P	O	R	T

9



1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15
16
17
18 19 20 21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28
29 30 31 32
33 34 35
36 37
38
39 40
41 42
43
44
45
46
47 48
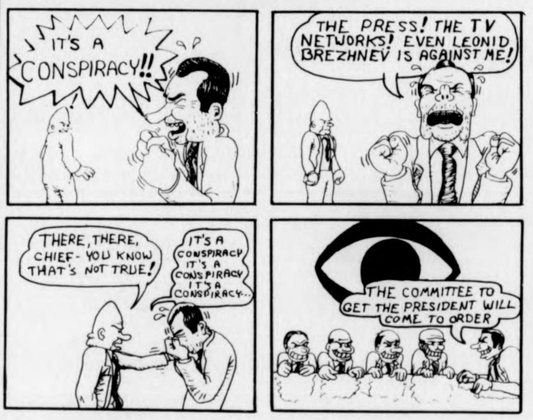
49
50
51

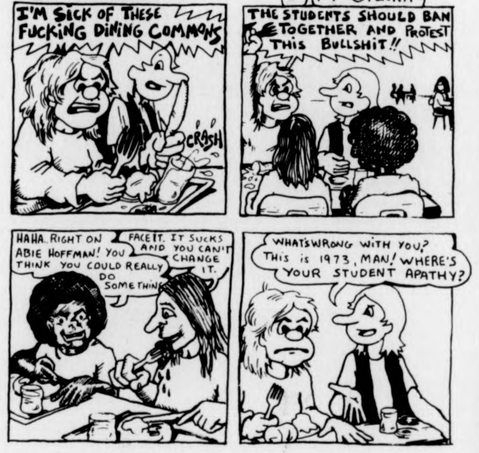
Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 9

Kompus Kopers ~by~ Kris Jackson



IT'S A CONSPIRACY!!
THE PRESS! THE TV NETWORKS! EVEN LEONID BREZHNEV IS AGAINST ME!
THERE, THERE, CHIEF- YOU KNOW THAT'S NOT TRUE!
IT'S A CONSPIRACY IT'S A CONSPIRACY IT'S A CONSPIRACY...
THE COMMITTEE TO GET THE PRESIDENT WILL COME TO ORDER

UMIES by McGILURAY



I'M SICK OF THESE FUCKING DINING COMMONS
CRASH
THE STUDENTS SHOULD BAN TOGETHER AND PROTEST THIS BULLSHIT!!
HAHA..RIGHT ON ABIE HOFFMAN! YOU THINK YOU COULD REALLY DO SOMETHING FACE IT. IT SUCKS AND YOU CAN'T CHANGE IT.
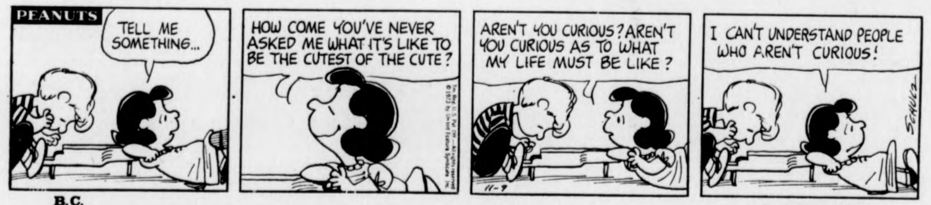
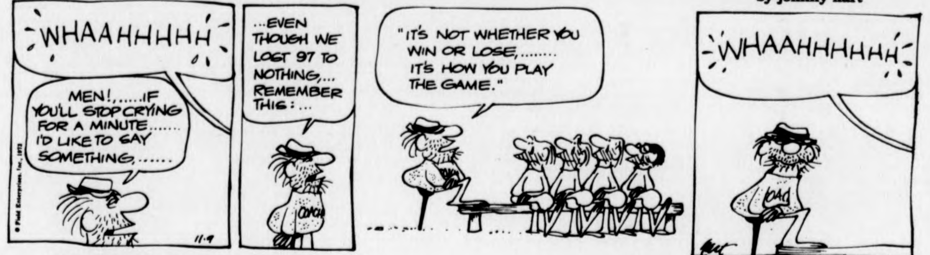
WHAT'S WRONG WITH YOU? THIS is 1973, MAN! WHERE'S YOUR STUDENT APATHY?



PEANUTS
TELL ME SOMETHING...
HOW COME YOU'VE NEVER ASKED ME WHAT IT'S LIKE TO BE THE CUTEST OF THE CUTE?
AREN'T YOU CURIOUS? AREN'T YOU CURIOUS AS TO WHAT MY LIFE MUST BE LIKE?
I CAN'T UNDERSTAND PEOPLE WHO AREN'T CURIOUS!
11-9
SCHULZ

B.C.

by johnny hart



WHAAHHHHH
MEN!,.....IF YOU'LL STOP CRYING FOR A MINUTE...... I'D LIKE TO SAY SOMETHING,......
...EVEN THOUGH WE LOST 97 TO NOTHING,... REMEMBER THIS:...
"IT'S NOT WHETHER YOU WIN OR LOSE,........ IT'S HOW YOU PLAY THE GAME."
WHAAHHHHHH
COACH 11-9 hart

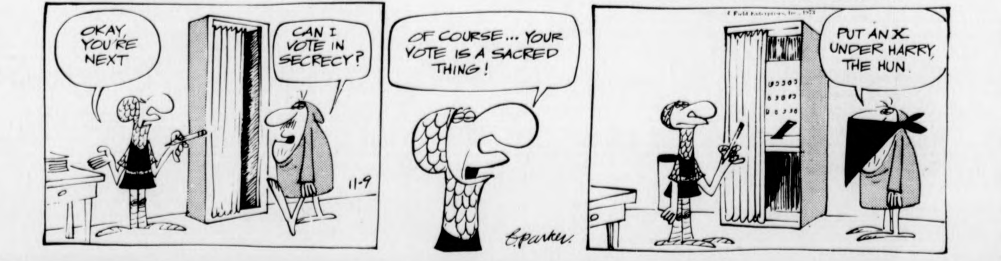
THE WIZARD OF ID

by Brant parker and Johnny hart



OKAY, YOU'RE NEXT
CAN I VOTE IN SECRECY?
OF COURSE... YOUR VOTE IS A SACRED THING!
PUT AN X UNDER HARRY, THE HUN
11-9
B parker

Jazz Festival Features Barbieri

A jazz festival concert featuring Gato Barbieri, Keith Jarret, and Sam Rivers will be held at 7:30 Sunday night in the Amherst College Alumni Gymnasium. Tickets for the performance are $3.50.

Barbieri, who will perform at Amherst with his ten-piece band, is best known as composer of the soundtrack for Bertolucci's "Last Tango in Paris." Though the tenor saxophonist's style is deeply rooted in Latin America and the traditional inspiration that the Argentine tango brings him, he feels that he has achieved the proper balance of this heritage with the essential energy of jazz music.

After a concert at Yale University, the New Haven Registrar had only praise for the talents of Keith Jarrett: "He is a genius. A real, honest-to-goodness genius. He is, without question, one of the most original, exciting, and sensitive pianists I have ever heard." The Keith Jarrett Quartet was awarded a French Grand Prix for the best jazz album of the year.

Gato Barbieri

Though principally known as a tenor saxophonist, Sam Rivers also plays the soprano saxophone, bass clarinet, piano, flute, and viola. His group includes Cecil McBee, one of the most highly regarded bassists in jazz circles. Jazz critic Nat Hentoff has labeled Rivers "a complete tenor man. His technique is remarkable; and the depth and fullness of his tone recall the vibrant amplitude of the older tradition of jazz tenor playing."

The concert, the third in the "Music for a Sunday Evening" series, is presented by the Amherst College Entertainment Committee in cooperation with Impulse! ABC Records, Inc.

Hot Tin Roof To Open Today

WEST SPRINGFIELD (AP) - Playwright Tennessee Williams is scheduled to be among the members of the opening night audience of a new production of "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" here Friday.

The production includes a new third act written by Williams with director John Ulmer, and the playwright is interested in a possible New York revival of the play, according to a spokeswoman at Stage-West, the resident company producing the play.

Williams began work on the new act after learning of the production because he was never happy with changes written into his original version by Elia Kazan in 1955, the spokeswoman said.

Art Extension Service Formed

Interested in People? Interested in the Arts? Interested in what the Arts can do for People? Join the Arts Extension Volunteer Task Force. Elderly care facilities, orphanages, hospitals, prisons, etc. all want our concern and help. Help others help themselves through the Arts. Call Ricki at the Arts Extension Service Now. 545-2013 (2014) desks lamps wall systems chairs rugs

DANCO
FURNITURE SHOWROOM
Route 9 Florence
Phone 586-3620

Mt. Toby Stables

We'll board your horses
549-1677 or 549-6945

Winter Coats
USED OVERCOATS:
★ ARMY SATEEN with DETACHABLE LINERS...5.75
★ ARMY WOOL O.D. ...9.95
★ GENUINE AIR FORCE PARKAS...39.95
★ AIR FORCE BLUE...9.95 ★ PEACOATS...7.95
NEW SNORKEL PARKAS... HEAVY WEIGHT 29.95 44.95
NEW DOWN FILLED PARKAS WITH HOOD 49.95
NOW AT FACES OF EARTH
9:30 - 6:30 FRI TILL 9
159 N. PLEASANT
...NEXT TO THE POST OFFICE!

FAT
in the Hatch
Saturday
9:00PM - 1:00AM

MDC CLASSIFIEDS

FOR SALE

Tires — All brands, Radials, Snows — All types, guaranteed lowest prices. Call 546-8362 after 6.
tf11-12

Hallicrafters SW Radio . .5-30 MHZ, AM, CW, SSB. Mint cond., orig. cost $200. Make me an offer. Call Fred 253-7890. Keep trying.
tf11-9

Stereo Buffs! If you want name brand stereo equip matched and sold to you at wholesale prices, call Dick at 253-2786, after 6.
tf11-9

S & L Camera Imports has new cameras, lenses & other photo equip. at slashed prices. Full warranty, all makes and models. Call Ken, 6-9723.
tf11-30

Panasonic Port. TV. Brand new! $70; Receiver 20 watts Ch. $80. Call 546-5271 or 546-5261.
tf11-12

35mm Pentax Spotmatic camera — 55mm F1.4 lens, Weston light meter, case, top condition, 1½ years old, $160. Stuart, 1-283-9731.
tf11-9

Toyo 8-track recorder-player with 9 push buttons, 2 VU meters, auto-level control, list $139, will sell for $80. 256-6271 evenings.
tf11-9

The Arms Race: A 1 credit Minicourse, Phyics 190D. No prereq. MWF 11:15, HAS 124, Nov. 12 - Dec. 12. Call Prof. Guyer, 545-0933 for details.
tf11-14

Kenwood Receiver KR-77, mint condition 34 watts RMS per channel, excellent tuner section, call Rich 6-8981 after 6:30.
tf11-9

Discount stereo equip. and pocket calculators. Special! 12" 4-way air susp. speaks. Reg. $300 pr. NOW $175 pr. Barry 6-6085 eve.
tf11-12

Olin Mark II skis, brand new never been used, no binding holes, 1973 Model priced reasonably. Call Stan at 256-6902 evenings.
tf11-13

1 BSR 510AX turntable — $50 fully guaranteed. Other stereo equipment at wholesale prices. Call 584-2672 — preferably eves.
tf11-9

Guitar Mossman 6 string; BRA2 Rosewood, Mahogneck, Ebony Board. Used 6 mo., retail $620 sell for $450, incl hardshell case. Call 369-4042.
tf11-14

1 pair, snow tires 8.25-14's, good tread with studs $30. Phone 549-1702.
tf11-9

FOR SALE

Need warmth? Globe Goose Down Parka, M-W large, new condition $35.00. Call Maureen, 6-7350 anytime.
tf11-12

Healthways J-Valve tank, Scubair reg. US diver backpack and Scubapro pressure gauge, $110. Call 546-9691.
tf11-9

Movie Makers — Bolex lite meter w-mntg shoe, direct read dial, calibrated infps. Factory recndd, new condition. $25. 1-736-2356 kp tryg.
tf11-9

THESE ARE TIMES THAT TRY MENS SOULS in these days of darkness and doubt, of crisis and confusion what the world needs is a truly great store PAUL'S OLDTIME FURNITURE is that store. We feature bureaus, desks, pictures, nostalgia, spiritual, guidance, the entire range of human emotion at the lowest prices. Amherst, behind Aubuchon, 253-3511.
tf11-12

A.M. car radio, push button, trans., perfect condition, you can mount it in your dashboard or glove comp., $20. Call 256-0615, keep trying.
tf11-12

Ampex tape deck, 3 heads for sound on sound, hardly used, $300 new, asking $200. 256-0615, keep trying.
tf11-12

Mobile home — 2 bedroom on nice lot, 10 miles, avail. now or 2nd semester, $2,600. Call 323-4428, except weekends.
tf11-13

Snow tires — 2 used 7.35x14, studded, 4 ply nylon, "General winter cleat slp." — best offer over $20. Call 549-3865.
tf11-13

R.C.A. black and white t.v., 17" screen, VHF, good condition, $75. Call anytime, 546-7319.
tf11-9

For sale — alto saxophone, $135; cello, $300, 584-6279, ask for Tom.
tf11-16

Live Christmas trees, select and tag now, any size $6.31. L. Blizniak, 133 Bay Rd., Hadley.
tf12-12

18 foot Tipi for sale — made by Homadic's Tipis. 14 oz. cover, 10 oz. canvas liner, door flap and poles, $150. Call Jon, 253-2413.
tf11-13

Mag wheels — 4-14" mt. chrome wheels for G.M. cars, cost $100, sell for $40. 6-4538.
tf11-15

AUTO FOR SALE

1970 Rebel Machine, 4 speed Hurst 390 engine, excellent running cond. $1600. Call 546-5271 or 546-5261.
tf11-12

1964 VW, good condition, $150. Ask for Tom, 549-1506 after 5 p.m.
tf11-16

1967 Barracuda, smashed front end, 383 4-speed, Mallory distributor, new starter, motor, $225 takes it. Sandy, 584-2019.
tf11-16

1972 Javelin SST, must sell quickly, moving to NYC, V-8 auto., p.s., radio-tape, 4 new tires and snows, $1,500 or best offer. Call 253-9668.
tf11-9

71 Willys Jeep CJ5 w/plow, roll bar, radio, oversize tires, back seat. $2800 or deal on VW keep trying. 782-3808, I need $.
tf11-9

1966 Cutlass Supr. p.s, p.b., very good condition. Call 367-2771.
tf11-16

1964 Ford Galaxie, running condition, needs work, $90. Negotiable, 546-7700, after 4:00 p.m.
tf11-12

1970 Austin - AM. Yellow, nice condition, new battery, tires, muffler. Studded snows. Auto-stick option. Runs well. $850. Call 617-687-3624.
tf11-9

Austin Healey, 3000, 1960, fully restored. Call 665-4182.
tf11-14

INTERESTED IN MAKING EVEN TRADE? I have a 1967, 428 Gran Prix and would like to exchange for a smaller auto. Call 253-7482.
tf11-12

1970 VW sunroof, excellent mechanical condition. Best offer, need to sell, license revoked. Call 549-0648, after five thirty.
tf11-14

Gas sipping wonder, 65 VW Bus 18000 miles on rebuilt eng. 26 mpg. AM-FM, int. insulated, many extras. Call anytime, 546-3986.
tf11-12

1969 Cortina, new shocks, rebuilt trans., needs brake work, $300. 546-4572.
tf11-9

1968 VW Bug, many miles but runs well, asking $400. 549-0102 at dinnertime.
tf11-9

AUTO FOR SALE

For sale — 65 VW Bus reblt. eng., gas heater, new bat., starter ect. Must sell imed. First $325 or best off. 665-2381 aft. 5, p.s. very clean body.
tf11-9

1967 Volvo 1225, good running condition, new tires. Best offer. Call 1-369-4395. Keep trying.
tf11-9

5 to 6 bedroom house in Wendell, 2 kitchens, 2 bathrooms, full cellar with fireplace. 256-8896.
tf11-12

Late 60's Valiant or Dart, pref. 6 cyl., must be in excellent condition, up to $1,000 for right car. 546-4572.
tf11-9

Dodge Coronet, 1966, 273, std. trans., good tires, new battery, starter, generator, exhaust, runs very well, and is dependable. Asking $375. Call 549-3669.
tf11-15

1968 Chevelle Malibu, p.s., p.b., V-8 auto., excel. condition, selling for new car. Call Dan, 256-6863, leave number, keep trying.
tf11-14

1964 Buick Skylark, good condition, $125. Paul Cole, 542-5607, Hampshire College.
tf11-13

1964 Comet, standard, 6 cylinder, needs battery, $100. 323-7372 evenings.
tf11-12

1965 Mustang, good running condition, sticker, best offer. Call 546-1017 or 545-0329, Ashvin.
tf11-13

1970 Plymouth Duster, standard trans., 8 cyl., save gas, 70 series tire spec. wheels, tape deck, new snows, ex. cond., sell mkt., need $1195. 256-0461.
tf11-14

ROOM TO RENT

Room for rent $50/per month. Call 256-0687.
tf11-13

WANTED

Commuter Assembly is now taking applications for its rep. to SU-CC, Gov Bd., see someone in Commuter Lounge. Behind Hatch.
tf11-9

Attractive liberal open-minded female who likes leather, bizarre, etc. for modeling, good pay. K.B., Box 262, Holyoke, Ma. 01040.
tf11-12

Medical technologist or equivalent for part time position. Hours 2:30 p.m. to 11:00 p.m. weekends. Call 413-774-3111, ext. 29 or 38.
tf11-16

APARTMENT FOR RENT

1 bedroom in 4 bedroom apt., spring semester only, no lease required, $80 per month, utilities paid. Call 253-7850. I may even let you use my waterbed!
tf11-13

Available immediately — 2 room furnished apt., for female or couple, near center of Amherst, $130, heat included. Call 256-0303.
tf11-12

2 bedroom apt at Cliffside, all utilities included. $170 per month. Furniture optional, lease upto 6-1-74. Call 665-3584.
tf11-9

ROOMMATE WANTED

2 male Eng. grad students want mature hip m/f to share 3 bedroom apt. in Amherst, old house, $67 plus. 253-5275.
tf11-15

Wanted: Female to apartment hunt with for Jan. 1. Call Linda after 6 p.m. 253-7752.
tf11-16

Room $80 or share apt., Dec. 15, $100. Call 549-6356, 6:30.
tf11-9

Roommate to share spacious 4 rm. apt., quiet, relaxing atmosphere, $60 per mo. Call after 6 p.m., 527-5466.
tf11-9

Roommates needed — three singles, own entrance, interesting neighbors. Call Howie, 256-0643.
tf11-9

Female to share 1 bdrm. Presidential apt, beginning Jan. Semi-furnished, $87.50 - mon., incl. utilities. Call 549-4463.
tf11-16

Neat, responsible female wanted to occupy own room in 4 bdrm apt., starting Jan. 1. $80-mo. incl. utilities. Phone 256-0626 eve.
tf11-9

MOTORCYCLES FOR SALE

1972 CB350 Honda, 3,000 miles, cosmetic flaws, mint mechanical condition. 549-4473, keep trying, $600 firm.
tf11-13

APARTMENT WANTED

3 bdrm apt near bus rte to campus wanted for 2nd semester. Call 6-4146, 6-4147, 6-4148, 6-4149. We need to know soon.
tf11-9

LOST

Organic Chem 3rd Ed. Morrison Boyd. Reward for return, needed desperately. Call 545-0260 or come to 1106 G.R.T. Ask for Mack.
tf11-12

Students Eligible For Spanish Tutoring Credits

Any student who has completed Spanish 140 is eligible to sign up for Spanish 302 -- Tutoring Spanish Speaking Students (formerly Holyoke Tutorial) (3 credits). It is not necessary to be a Spanish major; there are over ten non-majors participating in the program this semester. Students will go to Holyoke Monday and Wednesday mornings to tutor Puerto Rican children in the Holyoke public schools, as well as mothers in the homes. Tutoring sessions are generally conducted on a one-to-one basis, with the content of the tutoring sessions being determined by the specific needs of the tutee involved. In the Spring the bus to Holyoke will leave the campus at 8:30 and return about 11:45 A.M., so that students who wish to participate in the program must have these mornings completely free of classes. Tutors generally meet on Friday mornings to discuss their progress or to hear occasional speakers. Students in the course are asked to keep a running journal of their experiences, which then serves as the basis for a final paper.

Any students who are interested in this course should contact Professor Nina Scott in the Department of Hispanic Languages and Literatures, 421 Herter Hall (5-0613). Enrollment will be limited to 20-25 students.

SKI SPAIN
Earn 2 credits during intersession
Call 5-2801

"WALKING TALL"
"A vicious right wing fable."
— N.Y. Times
Starts Wed.,
Nov. 14
Campus Cinemas

HAPPY HOUR
at
PHI SIGMA KAPPA
510 N. Pleasant St.
Tel. No. — 5-0174 or 256-6863
Rock 'N' Roll, Trivia Contests
Special Drink for Commuters.
1 — ? p.m.
Friday, Nov. 9, 1973

You've heard Advent, Bose,
EPI and Heil. Now,
COME GET YOUR ROCKS OFF!! and listen to Cerwin - Vega
CERWIN-VEGA Model 24 $99.95
We also have the bigger Cerwin - Vega speakers which will very likely blow your pants off LOONEY TUNES — located at 64 East Street Hadley off Route 9

MDC CLASSIFIEDS

HELP WANTED

In your job search, you'll run across all kinds of glossy pages and promises that so-and-so company wants graduates with liberal arts degrees. Last year's seniors who chose either VISTA or Peace Corps ARE AT WORK in hundreds of projects both here and in 59 countries overseas. Teaching English as a foreign language; working in tuberculosis control programs, smallpox, and malaria eradication projects; acting as agricultural extension agents; developing alternative schools; counseling in drug crisis centers and many more. Demand for these assignments is, of course, great. It's extremely important for you to apply before December. To underscore this, VISTA & Peace Corps representatives will be here during this semester only; on Nov. 5-9 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., go to the Placement Office and sign up for an interview.
tf11-9

Collegian is looking for an Asst. Advertising Manager. Job involves supervising ad reps & building advt. revenue. Must be an underclassmen, with car, & a genuine interest in newspaper advt. Experience in marketing & graphics helpful but not essential. Will have to work hard for small pay but the rewards in experience will be invaluable. Person hired will be trained to become the advertising manager for next year. For details and information see Brent Wilkes at the Collegian Office.
tf11-16

VISTA & Peace Corps have hundreds of job openings for seniors. From Agriculture to Zoology. Get experience you can find in no other organization. Reps will be in Placement Office soon. Sign up now in Placement for an interview.
tf11-9

2nd or 3rd year language major male, need $20. 1 hr. work? Call Dave 256-0305.
tf11-10

Student Employmt in Yellowstone & all US Nat'l Parks. Send for booklet $2, Arnold Agency A206 E Main, Rexburg, Idaho, guaranteed.
tf11-9

Poster Stuffers for Hampshire County area. Car is preferable but not necessary. Call Dave. For Friday and Sat. 256-0236.

Waitresses, Doormen apply in person Timothy's Spirits Company, 30 John St., Holyoke, 538-9700.
tf11-13

Full time for Book & Record Store. Apply in person on Nov. 8, 9, 10 at Soundsope Mountain Farms Mall, Hadley Rt 9.
tf11-12

HELP WANTED

SPEED TYPISTS
In Ware at Collegian Printer
8:30 p.m. to 4 a.m.
Call Charlotte
1-413-967-6888

Audio Dept. mgr. know your audio components? See us for Dynamite Position w/growing chain. Soundscope Mountain in Frm Mall, Rt. 9, HA.
tf11-12

Need a job to get you thru school? Time to study while working, we might have what you are looking for. Night Auditor at Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge, Hadley, Mass. Must be accurate with figures. Please apply in person.
tf11-13

3 reliable drivers, must have car. 1-day route delivery, N'Hamp, Amherst, Greenfield. Start Tues., Nov. 20. Good pay also each Wednesday following. Call 256-0236. Fair Exchange.
tf11-9

Projectionist: Wanted for local theatre complex. Must have Mass. Operator's License. Good pay and fringe benefits. Part-time jobs available. Call Jim Merck at 584-9154.
tf11-15

Rock Bands wanted for work immediately. Call 247-5155, Country House.
tf11-9

Bus Drivers wanted, need Class 2 Lic. Part time 10-20 hrs. per wk. Apply Student Senate Bus, Univ Bus Garage, 5-0056 or 5-2086.
tf11-12

Drivers and helpers to deliver posters. Fri. 5:30-9 p.m., Sat. 9-12 noon. Pay plus mileage. Call Dave, 256-0236.
tf11-12

Dependable person to work as full time gas station attendant. Must have car. $2.35 p-h. Call 549-6833 between 5 & 6.
tf11-9

Amherst Ballet Centre seeks temp. piano accompanist, Monday 4:15 to 5:30 and Tues., 3:30 to 6:00, Nov. 12 to Dec. 18. $3.00 per hour. Donohue, 256-8027.
tf11-12

TRAVEL

Going by air? Let us handle your pre-flight, in-flight and post-flight arrangements at no cost to you. Call campus rep., 253-3162 evenings.
tf12-12

PERSONAL

Dear Pie — happy birthday, M.P.
tf11-9

Futre CPA's learn how to prepare for the CPA Exam. Becker CPA Review Course. Call collect 617-536-1440.
tf11-22

Do you spend precious time hitching to a part time job to help support a messy roommate who eats your food, blasts hard rock, interrupts your privacy? If you can be a neat, quiet, conscientious housekeeper & cook in an older home, you can change your environment to a private room with board. 549-0641.
tf11-9

Support your local bus driver.
tf11-12

5 Coll. Canada ski trip — 4 days, 3 nites. Hotel, breakfast, dinner. Transportation Apres ski party, all for $85. Jan. 22-25. B. Baggins Travel, 256-0146.
tf11-15

Unwed mother desires adoption of two children. One male and one female, both tiger angora. Will deliver if necessary. Call 253-9668.
tf11-13

Are there any barbershop enthusiasts at UMass? A lead singer away from his chapter is lonely for the old songs. Dave Varg, 546-8090.
tf11-9

Students pt. time & full time available, apply in person United Paper Box, 528 Water St., Foot of Cabot, Holyoke, Ma.
tf11-12

NARCS yes folks there over 250 narcotic agents on UMass Amherst Campus posing as students, bartenders, kitchen personel and etc. So BEWARE.
tf11-12

Hi Val — Hope your studies are coming along fine. Have a nice weekend. Peter T.
tf11-9

Decent male seeks sensuous female to get together. Write: Tom P.O. Box 144, Amherst.
tf11-13

To Kathy and Casey — happy birthday(s), and best of luck always from all your old 2S Knowlton buddies.
tf11-19

PERSONAL

Find out what coming out is all about, see the play direct from Boston, Nov. 16 and 17, Worcester Dining Commons, 9:00 p.m.
tf11-16

To the masters of the bull mastiff — just how obedient is he!
tf11-9

Find out what coming out is all about. See the play direct from Boston, Nov. 16 & 17, Worcester Dining Commons, 9:00 p.m.
tf11-16

The arms race: A 1 credit minicourse. Physics 190D. No prereq. MWF 11:15, HAS 124, Nov. 12-Dec. 12. Call Prof. Guyer, 545-0933. For details.
tf11-14

SERVICES

Typing: dissertation, theses, term papers etc. Fast, accurate, references, IBM Selectric, low rates. Call Tom 546-1165. Save this ad.
tf11-9

Attention Datsun owners, I perform all phases of major and minor maintenance and repairs on Datsun at less than ½ dealership price. I have over $3000 in equipment, 4 years automotive experience, 2 of which were at a Datsun Dealership, specializing in Datsun. Tele. 253-7456, Russell Baca.
tf11-19

Photos — passports, visas, etc., 48 hour service! Sizes and number negotiable, $3.00 minimum! Call Steve at 546-5443.
tf11-30

Research — thousands of topics, $2.75 per page. Send $1 for mail order catalog. Research assistance, inc. 11941 Wilshire Blvd., Suite 2, L.A., Calif. 90025.
tf12-12

Typing — dissertations, theses, term papers etc. Fast, accurate, references, IBM Selectric, good rates, call Tom 546-1165.
tf11-12

Experienced electronic and electrical repairs. Reasonable rates. Call 545-2308, Mark 415 or Bill 401. Keep trying.
tf11-15

Get a load off your mind, truck for hire. Call Gary or Joyce, 256-6376.
tf11-21

Part or full time clerical or research work for intersession, experienced, references, own transportation. Call Donna, 665-4137.
tf11-13

Room for rent or in exchange for child care five miles from campus. Call Joanne 549-0665.
tf11-9

Apt for one — Avlbl. imm. lg brm, sm kit, full bath, storage, pkg. 220 N. Pleasant, 2 nd fl of lg house. All utl. incl. $145. 549-3736, 253-8742.
tf11-14

Free rent for Nov., if take my place in eff. apt. ctr Amh., rest of sem. $67.50 Dec., two weeks Jan., share w/one woman 256-0561, no deposit.
tf11-9

Garage space, central Amherst. Safe and inexpensive. D.H. Jones 549-3700.
tf11-29

Someone to share 3 bedroom house, female or couple, 527-5171, Easthampton.
tf11-12

2 bedroom, top floor Brittany Manor apt., Jan. 1 to May 31. $230, no summer obligation, some furniture, 256-0405.
tf11-12

WANTED TO RENT

Grad student wants room or apt near campus or on bus route for Jan. Call Sue Peterson 546-9984, Prince House.
tf11-12

RIDE WANTED

Ride needed to Gt. Barrington, Mass. area Nov. 9 around 3 p.m. Call Larry at 546-6007.
tf11-9

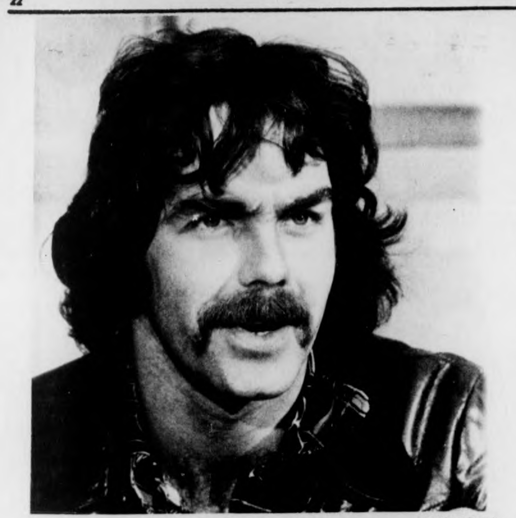
ENTERTAINMENT

Hey groovy guys and gals — I can play your favorite music just the way you like it. Call Steve the D.J. for your party, 467-2842.
tf11-9

2 Male Vocalists, playing acous. & elec. guitars & flute, seek indiv. Ms/Mr with good technique & improv. ability on piano, pref. (not necess) capable of singing high range harmonies, to perform orig. & popular music for all aud. We have def. opportunity for work. If interested call 5-2925 ask for Peter in 217/Sean in 214.
tf11-9

Bring back those great memories, boogie to your favorite golden oldies. I have the records and the PA. Call me at 536-6075.
tf11-12

See a crazy movie this weekend — Zachariah — with the Firesign Theater. Nov. 10, Sat. 7-9-11, Mahar.
tf11-9



(AP Wirephoto)

HOW ARE YOU GONNA KEEP'IM DOWN ON THE FARM?--Derek Sanderson's now on the Braves--but he doesn't plan a long stay.

Glenn Poster

Another Trip For The Turk

In the last couple of years, due to the advent of the World Hockey Association, many more millionaires have burst on the American (and Canadian) scene. When we think of rich magnates, names such as J. Paul Getty, H.L. Hunt, Nelson Rockefeller, Howard Hughes, and Bob Hope come to mind. Add one more name to the list — Derek Sanderson, the richest player in minor league sports history. How did Derek come to acquire this "status?"

In the fall of 1967, the Boston Bruins reported to training camp at Treasure Island Gardens in London, Ontario. The Bruins had been the doormats in the National Hockey League for a number of years. They came out of that camp with a new look and three centers who hadn't been with them during the "dark ages" — Phil Esposito, Fred Stanfield, and Derek Sanderson.

Derek, however, could do other things. He was a penalty killer par excellence. And during his years with the Bruins, he developed into one of the best face-off men in all of professional hockey. He was colorful on and off the ice. He was the first hockey player to wear a mustache in recent times. At one time he toyed with the idea of wearing white skates. He excited the crowd with such things as his one-handed golf shot and other acrobatics. At times, when an opponent would be holding the puck in back of his own net, Derek would put one hand on the crossbar, (moving the goalie aside) hurdle up on the net and take a swipe at the puck. And let's not forget it was the "Turk" who assisted on Bobby Orr's dramatic overtime goal to win the Stanley Cup for the Bruins over the St. Louis Blues in 1970.

In the summer of 1972 a new league was born. Bobby Hull was the first "name" player to jump. Suddenly the NHLers had an option. Because the WHA had a draft to obtain the player's rights — each player belonged to a team in each league. If the player's contract had expired, he naturally could choose the better offer.

Johnny McKenzie, a close friend of the Turk's, went to the Philadelphia Blazers in the multiple role of player-coach-general manager. He also persuaded Blazer management to make Derek an offer he couldn't refuse. Derek jumped. Derek bought a purple Rolls Royce. Derek hurt his back after playing in a few games. Derek was in the hospital. The Blazers lost interest in Derek.

A cash settlement was made between Derek and Blazer management. He was a free man. He had loyalties in Boston and eventually signed on with the Bruins. He appeared in a Boston uniform in February to make his comeback. But the Bruins had a new center in Greg Sheppard who was their candidate for the NHL's Calder Trophy — Rookie of the year (an award Derek had won his first season).

A couple months ago, the Bruins reported to training camp at the Wallace Civic Center at Fitchburg. On the first day of practice an eager Derek Sanderson, who was going all out to win a spot on the team, injured his back.

Derek Sanderson is recuperating now. He will play his way back into shape with the Bruins' top farm team, the Boston Braves. The main purpose of a farm team is to get players ready for the parent club. You can train in the minor leagues, but not in the NHL. Two years ago, Don Awrey and Don Marcotte played for the Braves in a similar capacity.

If they could do it, so can Derek.

Champ Foreman Almost Broke

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) — "It's not anything like I thought it would be," a disillusioned George Foreman lamented Thursday, saying the heavyweight boxing championship had brought him more grief than glory.

"I'm not starving but I don't have any money —I'm about broke. I can't get any of the money I've won. I'm trying to keep up three homes. I'm the champion but I can't get any fights.

"It's a shame, but it's true." Foreman spoke by telephone to The Associated Press from a pay booth in the Houston airport just before catching a plane back to his home base in Hayward, Calif.

The 6-foot-3, 217-pounder who smashed Joe Frazier to the floor six times in the space of 4 minutes, 35 seconds last Jan. 22 in Kingston, Jamaica, said law suits, financial problems and idleness had turned his boyhood dream into a nightmare.

"Before I was champion, I fought four times a month," he said. "I didn't make a lot of money but I kept busy and always had enough to live on. Since I won the championship, I've had one fight and been in the ring two minutes.

"I haven't got paid for that." The reference was to the Tokyo bout with Joe Roman in Toyko Aug. 31, which Foreman won with a first-round knockout.

The champion was supposed to receive $250,000 but the purse was held up because of a pending law suit involving Martin Erlichman and David Miller, general partners in George Foreman Associates of Philadelphia.

Erlichman signed a 10-year contract last year with Foreman under which the Philadelphia group would pay the boxer $500,000 for 50 percent of all future ancillary rights to Foreman's earnings.

Foreman and his manager then, Dick Sadler, later sued to have the contract nullified. In December 1972, a settlement was made giving the Philadelphia group 25 percent of all ancillary rights and the gate.

Foreman later went to court to have this contract also thrown out. The Philadelphia group filed counter action and this constitutes the dispute now before the 1st District Court in San Francisco.

Mrs. Ludene Gilliam of Houston is suing the same court on the contention that Foreman signed a contract with her. Foreman contends no contract was ever signed although his signature is on the document.

"The trouble is I've got all these expenses and no money to pay them with," Foreman said. "A fighter's got to fight to survive."

Foreman, 1968 Olympic champion, fought for virtual peanuts, scoring 37 pro victories, before he finally got a shot at Frazier and the championship in Kingston last January.

His part of the purse was $375,000.

"I didn't get much of that," he said. "My contract with Sadler called for him to get 33½ percent off the top. The Philadelphia people got 25 percent from what I made outside.

"I wound up with about $100,000. But from that I had to pay all my training expenses, my travel and other things. It didn't leave me much. And I've still got to pay my taxes."

Foreman's contract with Sadler expired July 1 of this year and was not renewed. "I still work with Dick same as ever but we just don't have a contract," Foreman said.

Foreman has been married two years and he has a daughter, born just before the Frazier fight.

"My wife, Adrienne, anjdelete

"My wife, Adrienne, and my daughter live in Minneapolis," the heavyweight champion said. "My training quarters are in Hayward and the rest of my family lives in Houston, where I grew up.

"I'm planning on closing up the place in Minneapolis and moving my family back to Houston. Right now it's expensive for me to travel back and forth and I spend a fortune on telephone calls.

"A man has got to keep track of his wife and daughter."

Foreman's financial difficulties cannot be traced to high living, an affliction which has befallen other champions in the past. A family man who is deeply religious, the champ is reputed to be one of sport's most conservative "squares."

"I've got no debts," he said. "But I've got a lot of expenses. "As champion, I have an obligation to go around and say 'hello' to the kids and the fans.

"I don't care about making movies and television commercials. I don't believe in lying about some product just so I can make money. I'm a fighter. I think I ought to make money fighting."

Pats Sign Safety

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — The New England Patriots filled their 47-man roster Thursday by signing safety Greg Boyd of Arizona as a free agent.

The spot was opened by the release of safety Honor Jackson early this week. Boyd was the Miami Dolphins' 14th round draft choice this year. Cut late in preseason practice, he returned to school.

Coach Chuck Fairbanks did not indicate whether Boyd would be placed on the 40-player roster for Sunday's game with the Jets in New York.

The Patriots also announced that their home game with the Green Bay Packers Nov. 18 is a sellout of more than 61,000 and the action will be televised live within a 75-mile radius, including Boston. It marks only the second sellout this year at Schaefer Stadium.

Notices

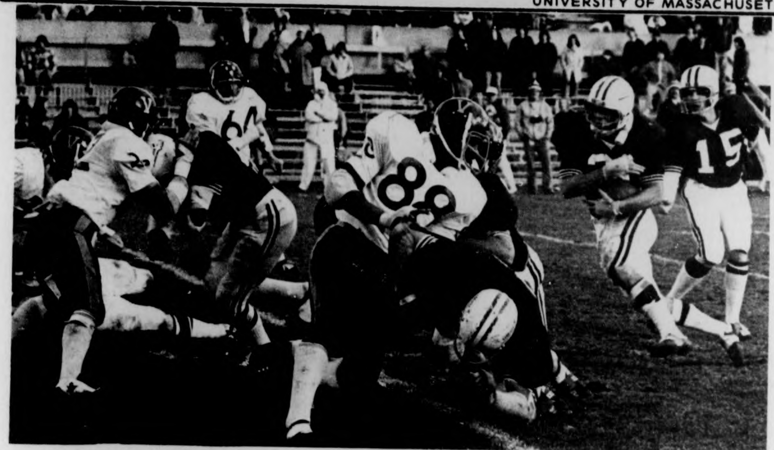
SKI TEAM — There will be a meeting for all candidates for the UMass Ski Team on Thursday November 15 at 7 p.m. in room 305 Holdsworth Hall for the purpose of organizing dry land training.

SWIM MANAGERS — University Women: Interested in a dynamic chance to meet and help some of the hardest working athletes on campus? The UMass men's Varsity Swim Team is looking for two female team managers. If interested, come down to the Boyden Pool any afternoon between 3:30 and 6:00 p.m. Earn a letter. Find out what it's like.

BART AUTO
Paint & Body Specialists
When you make contact — contact us.
*Foreign & domestic collision work
*Windshields replaced
*State license insurance estimates
Rte. 9, Belchertown
256-8712
2 1/2 miles past Rusty Scupper on the left

CLOTHES SALE CLOTHES
From India
50% Reduction
MEN SHIRTS TOPS BLOUSES WOMEN
DATE: Saturday, Nov. 10
TIME: 1:00 p.m. - 5:00 p.m.
PLACE: 576 Main St., Amherst
Robert & Johnetta Cole's House

"REAL TEARS"
in the HATCH
Thurs. & Fri.
9:00 p.m. - 1:00 a.m.



Staff Photo/Gib Fullerton

THE HOLE OPENS — T.J. Edmonds takes a hand-off from quarterback Fred Kelliher and moves toward the hole being made by the UMass offensive line. Edmonds, a freshman, gained 19 yards in 4 carries in his varsity debut.

Letters To The Sports Editor

Commending Ms. Kosofsky

To The Sports Editor:

I'd like to commend Joyce Kosofsky on her idea of noncompetitive sports. Certainly 10,000 people would pay to see basketball players take turns shooting foul shots without the hassle of 'some schmo' possibly stealing it. This would make the game a lot easier for her to follow...not to mention the wear and tear it would save on sneakers!

Football would also be a much simpler game if the opposing players got out of the fullback's way as he charged toward the goal line. Why bother watching the beauty of a good brokenfield runner when another less-talented player can trot unchallenged into the end zone?

Striving for excellence, whether it be in basketball, wrestling or ping-pong, is the real beauty in any sport. How can you tell how far you have progressed if you don't compete against others? Let's face it, that 'stupid' tennis ball would give her a headache even if the game weren't competitive..

Perhaps in line with Ms-Miss Kosofsky's thinking, the NHL will modify some of it's rules for the coming seasons. Instead of shooting the puck with 'stupid' sticks, maybe the players should placidly skate around observing the beauty of their opponent's bodies. Not only would it prevent numerous injuries, but think of the money the NHL would save by not having to hire any referees!

Jerome L. Packard

''Equal Coverage'' Part II

To The Sports Editor:

Regarding your reply to my letter (Nov. 6), I wish to emphasize the fact that two novice reporters were sent to cover the women's championship game. If this game had been the men's championship, I'm sure you would not have sent two new reporters. The point I'm trying to make is that you sent a reporter and photographer with no previous experience, yet you sent an expereienced reporter and photographer to the men's championship. This type of reporting has continued long enough and I feel it's time for it to stop. The women deserve equal coverage and it's up to you to see that it happens.

The Collegian fails to recognize the fact that sports are just as important to the women as they are to the men. Perhaps women's athletics aren't pictured as colorful as the men's, but remember that there are female athletes and sport fans who are just as interested, if not more, in women's athletics than in men's athletics.

Susan Brophy

Women's WP Club Loses Tough One

By CARL ZULICK

The Umass women's water polo club was upset at Wellesley College Wednesday night in a seat squimer, 7-6. Kim Cole, an All-American, led agressive Wellesley to the victory.

UMass dominated the game from the beginning, but a slow third quarter allowed Wellesley to score three successive goals to jump two points into the lead. The fourth quarter marked UMass' finest performance to date, but it was a case of too little, too late as the swimmers failed to overcome the strong Wellesley players.

Kathy McDonald and Betsy East each scored three goals for UMass. Defensively, goalie Patty Heslam and defensive players Judy Day and Jean Abrahamson stopped Wellesley's Kim Cole from scoring, at least until the second quarter, and held the team to only seven goals, low for Wellesley.

Coach Bill McCafferty kept the UMass team together with nifty lineup juggling in the final six minutes. His changed lineup allowed no goals over that period, but the offense failed to make up a two point deficit, although it did score once.

The team will take on the Radcliffe women next Wednesday at Cambridge to close the fall season.

UM Hosts Women's X-Country Tourney

By MDC STAFF

"Last year we didn't have a full team and this year we have our hands full," says senior Charlotte Lettis, leader of the UMass-Sugarloaf women's cross country team, the host of the Women's Regional Championship this Sunday.

Last year there were only 20 women in the open division race in Albany, so the Sugarloaf team decided to host the championship and found themselves inundated with over 100 entries in the open division alone.

"In Albany," Charlotte says, "we finished 1st, 16th and 17th but this year we've gained many new runners and all of us are in better shape. But so is everyone else in the region."

The major competition should come from New York. Nina Kuscsik, running for the Suffolk A.C., won the Boston Marathon two years ago and has run along with two of her teammates and Cathy Shrader of the Electric City Club of Albany in the recent Puerto Rican women's international 10,000 meter roadrace.

Doreen Ennis of the Nutley T.C. and Katie Schilly from the Syracuse Chargers have both run under five minutes for the mile.

Ann McRae of the Suffolk A.C. ran second last year and could be an upset winner. The Suffolk A.C. won the team title last year and is favored to do so again.

The team competition will be very close, however. Since women are improving their running so rapidly there will be many surprises.

Marion Kulick of UMass will run her first cross-country race of the season. She recently ran a five mile roadrace in an impressive 33 minutes.

Sue Gills and Judy Kline will probably provide the backbone of the Sugarloaf team kick with marathoner Merry Cushing and Lynda Laakso.

Linda Radwanski, a fairly recent recruit, is expected to improve on her 11th place finish in the New England Championships.

Phyllis Olrich, a UMass senior will run for her home town club, the Cambridge Sports Union. She recently placed 3rd in the Roadrunner's club National Championships in N.Y.C.

The course was laid out to be as challenging as possible and contains a brook, some mud, and one monster hill. Members of the UMass men's team that won the New Englands said they would never consider running on this course because it is too hilly.

The meet will begin at 2:00 behind the Northeast Phys. Ed. building and is open to any women who would like to run. There will be five races, divided by age. Most of the race will be visable from the orchard area.

B's Top Habs, 2-1

BOSTON (AP)-Rookie Dave Forbes tapped in Bobby Orr's rebound late in the third period Thursday night, lifting the Boston Bruins to a 2-1 victory over the Montreal Canadiens and snapping goalie Wayne Thomas' unbeaten streak at eight games.

Montreal, the National Hockey League's defending Stanley Cup champions, had not lost since Thomas took over in goal from Bunny LaRocque Oct. 20. The Canadiens had six victories and two ties in the streak.

Chuck Lefley gave Montreal a 1-0 lead on a power play goal in the first period, batting in a rebound after Jacques Lemaire had circled the Boston net for a close-up shot on goalie Gilles Gilbert.

Johnny Bucyk tied the score, also on a power play, in the third period. It was the 457th goal of Bucyk's NHL career. He took a pass from Phil Esposito from behind the net and rammed the puck through an opening in Thomas' pads.

Both goalies turned in outstanding performances, Gilbert making two fine saves on Steve Shutts' shot and rebound in the second period and Thomas standing off Bucyk and Fred o'Donnell with only the butt end of a broken stick in the third.

The victory moved the Bruins into first place in the NHL East, a point ahead of Montreal.

Celts Over Knicks

NEW YORK (AP)-John Havlicek lead the balanced Boston attack with 20 points and the Celtics methodically turned back the New York Knicks Thursday night 94-84 in the National Basketball Association.

The Celtics led all the way and boosted their lead in the Atlantic Division to three games over the second-place Knicks.

Don Nelson scored the first six points of the game to begin the Boston rout. Nelson, Jo Jo White and Paul Silas scored and wound up with six points apiece as Boston led 30-16 after the first quarter.

The Celtic lead grew to 20 points at 52-32 on a Havlicek lay-up with 4:11 left in the first half. Boston led 55-44 at intermission.

The Knicks made their only real threat of the evening by running off six straight points at the start of the third period, four of them by Jerry Lucas, to cut the Boston lead to five points. But a pair of fouls shots by Dave Cowens and a lay-up by Silas ended the Knick hopes.

White finished with 19 points, Silas 14 and Cowens 12. Walt Frazier paced the Knicks with 18 points and Phil Jackson added 12.

WUMV To Show Fall Special Sunday

The University of Massachusetts football team has a week off...But WUMV-TV doesn't. The Sunday nite Bluewall show will still go on.

Do you remember All-American J. J. Jennings being stopped six inches from victory by Mike McNiff in New Brunswick? Would you like to relive Peil Pennington's dramatic comeback flury with Tim Berra to nearly turnback Rhode Island? How 'bout Molly McGee's crushing touchdown run in the last minute of play?

Is Julius Erving forgotten on this campus? Marty Kelley provides an interesting 10 minute interview with Dr. J. Prior to the New York Nets-Virginia Squire basketball game played earlier this fall at the Springfield Civic Center. Also WUMV-TV Sports will present exclusive footage from the Nassau County Colesium in Long Island with the Nets and Knicks meeting for the mythical championship of New York City.

Seven frosh football players have been elevated to the varsity. See some of them in action with taped highlights from the Boston College frosh football game. If you didn't see it this fall, you still have another chance - 9:00 p.m. Sunday. The only thing missing will be Bob Estelle.

SKI SPAIN
Earn 2 credits during intersession
Call 5-2801

VILLAGE INN
DRAKE
LOWENBRAU OKTOBERFEST
ON DRAFT
Restaurant Open 'til 2 a.m.

Student Judiciary
Three Student Judges Needed
Any Undergraduate Student May Apply
Apply at Student Senate Office
Rm. 420 Student Union
Applications due Friday Nov. 16th

The Flavor of America
Howard Johnson's
Hadley
Daily Specials $1.99
Monday: Fish Fry
Tuesday: Spaghetti Spree
Wednesday: Deep Sea Dinner
Thursday: Turkey Gobbler
Friday: Clam Fry
Seconds on us

It's UMass-UNH For 3rd Place

Soccer Season Ends Today

By STEVE DeCOSTA

Soccer bows out of the UMass picture tomorrow, and the only thing at stake is third place in the Yankee Conference.

The Minutemen travel to Durham for a 2:00 contest against conference rival New Hampshire. The Wildcats have a 3-2 conference record, the same as UMass.

The high-scoring Wildcats have a 6-4-0 mark overall, but they have outscored their opponents 25-16.

UNH sports the high scorer in the conference in Bob Black. Twice named lineman of the week in the YanCon, Black has collected ten goals and four assists so far this year.

Another offensive threat for the Wildcats is Don Curtis. A native of the Bay State, Curtis has seven goals to his credit, tying him for third in the conference in that category.

Jim Mueller will start in goal for UNH. The leading goalie in the conference last year, Mueller had trouble getting started this season but has since settled down. He has a goals against average of 1.6 goals per game.

The Mintuemen are still recovering from a 4-0 thrashing by Springfield on Wednesday. An almost total reversal of form will be necessary if the booters hope to overcome the Wildcats.

The first problem will be in generating an offense. The booters will have to improve in the shots on goal column as only four in a game is simply not enough. Bill Spyker, one of the few Minutemen who looked good against the Chiefs, will probably start in the middle but coach Al Rufe is still undecided about the other two positions.

The situation in goal is still troublesome. Wednesday's starter Paul Peloquin seems to have recovered after his first half ordeal, but only time will tell whether he will be ready to face the Wildcats. Carl Vercollone did not dress for the Chiefs and again there is no way of knowing if he will be ready by Saturday.

If neither of the two regulars are healed by game time, the task of stopping the Wildcats will fall on Buddy Butler. Having spent most of the year with the JV squad, Butler saw his first varsity action against Springfield and performed admirably.

UMass and UNH have the same conference record and, oddly enough, have the same verdicts against the same teams. They both have beaten BU, Vermont, and URI, and fallen to Maine and Connecticut en route to their 3-2 records.

After their disappointment in Springfield, the booters will need new inspiration against the Wildcats. As it stands, they will be battling only for pride and third place in the conference.

Al Rufe is shooting for that third spot. "It would be nice to be number three in the Yankee Conference. Rufe also stated that "it's better to be 6-3-1 than 5-4-1."

Maybe so, but by now it's only a matter of prestige.

Daily Collegian

SPORTS

Dave Vanderwater Challenging The East

UMASS
5
UMASS
82
RANDY THOMAS AND BILL GILLIN will lead an optimistic group of runners to Van Cortland Park in NYC to challenge the top teams in the East for the IC4A title Monday afternoon..
COACH KEN OBRIEN GRADUATED WITH HONORS THE YEAR HE LED UMASS TO THEIR BEST FINISH, 7TH PLACE IN 1962...
SPOKANE, WASHINGTON
THIS MONDAY THE MINUTEMEN LOOK LIKE SURE BETS TO LOG THEIR BEST FINISH EVER AND PAVE THE WAY FOR A TRIP TO THE NCAA'S A WEEK LATER....
At the very least they would like to finish ahead of Harvard to grab first place in the New England poll....

Ailing Minutemen Take Break

By BILL BALLOU

There will not be a football game tomorrow. Or Sunday, or Monday, or any day for that matter. It's one of those rare open days.

And an open day is something UMass can use.

The Minutemen, with a 5-4 record, were a hurting team after last week's win over Vermont. They had gone into the game suffering badly from injuries, and they came out in even worse condition.

The wounded list included tackle Tom Harris, running back Bob Wolfe, end Bill Wolfe, running back Paul St. Onge, center Kevin Moran, and quarterback Peil Pennington (only temporary).

So, next Saturday UMass travels to Durham, New Hampshire, to play a good University of New Hampshire team. The Wildcats have beaten perennial New England and Ivy League power Dartmouth already this year. UMass will need lots of healthy bodies to beat them.

******

A report in Wednesday's Providence Journal that UMass and Grambling would meet in a black charities game next season in Schaefer Stadium apparently isn't accurate. A spokesman for the Stadium said that the UMass-Grambling matchup was one of several in the works. Others were BC-Texas, which has already been scheduled for Sept. 14 in Massachusetts (somewhere), and a Yankee Conference-Ivy League "bowl" game.

Assistant Athletic Director Robert O'Connell said last night that the UMass schedule, all 11 games of it, had already been set for next year and Grambling wasn't on it. O'Connell didn't rule out a future possibility, but said that nothing was in the works.

******

The idea of the an Ivy-YanCon title game sounds nice. Especially after the way the YanCon has handled itself against the Ivies this season. New Hampshire beat Dartmouth, Connecticut beat Yale, and an unusually strong Brown team had to score in the dying moments of the ball game to tie Rhode Island. UMass ripped by Harvard, but that's about the only black mark in the various rivalries.

******

Dennis Kiernan, last Saturday's Yankee Conference defensive player-of-the-week, has deserved the award for quite a while. Kiernan's tremendous, steady weekly play has already been noted by Dick MacPherson; it just took the award-pickers longer to notice. Kiernan was more visible against Vermont because of the success of the UMass blitz, of which he was the most visible and effective member, and it was virtually impossible to deny him the award.

It would seem that an award for cornerback Bob Parrott should be forthcoming sometime, although the overall weakness of the UMass secondary makes it seem unlikely.

Inside Sports

- Champ Foreman Almost Broke
- Women Runners Host Tourney
- Celts, Bruins Win
- Letters To The Sports Editor

Steve DeCosta

Soccer On The Move

In 1967, two professional soccer leagues were initiated in this country and cries of the next great American sport spread across the land. But, for all the publicity, money, and hard work that were sunk into the project, the boom never did quite materialize.

Soccer is the most popular sport in more than 130 countires, but it has had extreme difficulty in making inroads with the average American sports fan.

The sport has always been relatively popular around the St. Louis area (where St. Louis University has been a college power for many years) and in urban pockets of foreign immigrants who carried the sport with them from their native countries.

There is reason to believe that this pattern is starting to change. The American public is starting to attend games more frequently and display a better knowledge of the sport.

This can be witnessed right here in the New England area, although not on this campus. A UMass home soccer game draws on the average of 100 fans, although, when the weather is good and the competition promises to be tough, the number has exceeded 500.

Compare this to the attendance at Wednesday's game at Springfield College. An estimated crowd of over 1200 persons attended the game, despite the fact that the temperature hovered near the freezing mark and the wind literally whipped across the stands.

Even that number was dwarfed by the attendance at the recent UConn-UMass contest at Storrs. On that Saturday, an estimated 2300 persons came out to watch the intercollegiate rivalry. Granted, it was homecoming on the UConn campus, but 2300 is still almost an unheard of sum to watch a regular season soccer game.

The new shift of popularity is even now spreading into the pro ranks. The North American Soccer League (which came about in 1968 after the merger of the two failing leagues which started in the previous year) has had growing success since its inception.

When the league started, as few as 200 people turned up to view a game. As a result of new enthusiasm in the sport, the league now draws an average of over 400 spectators to its matches.

The key to popularity of the sport in this country is in getting American players on the rosters of the teams. A league rule states that each NASL team must have at least three American or Canadian citizens on its roster.

The growing trend in the league has been to have more and more Americans. The St. Louis entry has a majority of Americans on its roster, while the Philadelphia Atoms won the league's championship in their expansion year with a majority of Americans and the only American coach in the circuit.

The best known American player in the loop is Kyle Rote Jr., son of the former New York Giants football star. Last season, Rote was named the NASL's rookie of the year.

The hope is that eventually the teams will all be made up of a majority of Americans. If this is to be accomplished, then colleges and universities must be used as a proving ground for future pro material.

But the program must go deeper than this if soccer is to succeed in this country. It must spread down through the colleges to the high schools and even down to the grammar school level.

It's easy to laugh at all this. People in this country have been laughing at the world's most popular sport for years. But someday it will hit you. Maybe it won't be until your son asks you for a soccer ball for his birthday instead of the baseball glove you had planned on giving him, but it will hit you. Soccer is on the move.

Poor Richard's
Volume 3 Issue 9 November 9, 1973

Up the Camel's Hump

Photo by John Kapitzky

by Bonnie Asselin

I can smile now. It's over. My first backpacking trip is all over. The days of October 20, 21, and 22 are past and the sight of me crawling up and down mountains in northern Vermont with a 20 to 25 pound pack is only a memory. They were the most exhausting and painful three days of my life, but the ecstasy on Camel's Hump, our destination, 4,083 feet superior to the world, now makes it all seem worthwhile. I did it ... along with nine others of the UMass Outing Club.

Smiling was not always so easy. We each, in turn, had rough times. Al Howcroft, our fearless leader, and Heather MacConell, a super-hiker, roamed steep rocky trails through the night, in seach of six lost. Barry Cummings, the last man to arrive on the 20th, had his pack filled with the remainder of the food, pots and pans. The last man always carries the burden. Ellen Regal and Ruthann Shapiro woke up to discover they were in a puddle (it rained Saturday night). Sylvan Menezes's eight mile sprint fell short just below the summit. Scott Hunter's sliding antics profited with a piece of ice jabbing his hand. Mary Tougher revealed her major problem, "One thing, my body doesn't do what my mind tells it to do." The will to climb does not necessarily mean to actually climb. I had mushy legs, foot blisters, and mysteriously swollen fingers, to mention a few. John Kapitzky never complained, took lots of great pictures and thoroughly enjoyed the ordeal (I think).

This needs some explanation.

We began on Saturday, a dreary drizzly day. Fog pervaded the forest making visibility beyond 30 feet impossible. It was absurd to be so oblivious to the beautiful scenery just beyond. The only clue to our altitude was the degree our muscles ached from climbing. Would a monster emerge from these murky woods? Yes, Al assured me of intrigue.

In spite of the weather, we felt confident and enthusiastic. Our packs felt right,we were clean and had lots of energy. We hadn't anticipated the raw shoulders, the filth and the fatigue. Great fun was downhill acrobats, hurdling over rocks and tree stumps, ducking under limbs, and leaping over rivers of mud. Skid marks of wipe-outs along the way were a warning. "Snickers" made you fall, Al informed me. They were mischievous little creatures who tripped people and then scurried away, snickering. It was all part of mountaineering. We were conquering the wilderness.

It soon grew dark and we stopped two miles short of our original destination, setting us back for the next two days. That was our first mistake. The campsite, on a slope of wet leaves, wasn't very inviting, though a campfire and hot chocolate made it seem better. That night excitement kept me awake. Voices in the dark said, "We're upstream from you ... we're downstream!" In the morning, sleeping bags hung out to dry.

Sunday brought sunny skies and our first glimpses of surrounding Vermont, New Hampshire and New York. Without an alarm clock, we didn't get hiking until 10, forgetting about the two mile setback. That was our second mistake. Agreeing to meet for lunch at Montclair Glen Lodge, eight miles away, we set off at our own speeds, our third mistake. Heather, Scott and Sylvan lead, practically jogging with 25 pound packs. The were soon miles ahead and we never saw then until ... well ... you'll see.

Basically, we traveled along a ridge leading to Camel's Hump. It brought all sorts of obstacles: crevices, boulders and ledges. "Do you feel like a dwarf?" "Yeah, Dumpy." I felt smaller, like an ant that carries a load twice its weight. Montclair Glen Lodge was a mountain top beyond and the first three of our entourage had long disappeared. Noontime passed and hunger followed. So, on the top of Burnt Rock Mt. we ate cheese and crackers, drank lemonade and gazed at snow-capped Mt. Washington and Lake Champlain.

The straggling seven finally made it to the lodge at 4: 30. Heather, Scott, and Sylvan hadn't waited there and pushed on to Gorham Lodge, another two miles on the other side of Camel's Hump. I was a physical wreck. It was masochistic. Every muscle ached. The last two miles had been torture, but Al assured me that I could go on. He had this remarkable idea and was always successful in convincing me. We trucked onward, our fourth mistake. Al went quickly ahead in an effort to get dinner started at Gorham Lodge and then backtrack to relieve one of us of our packs. Two hikers were between Al and four at the end of the line.

I was part of that weary four who never quite made it to Camel's Hump on Sunday. We traveled until sunset knowing we'd kill ourselves if we kept on in the dark. We quickly made a fire and set up the tents even though camping is illegal on that side of the mountain. Would the mounty police discover our crime? "It was an emergency fire, it saved our lives," we hypothetically pleaded. It was a cozy place. We were quite happy though the wind sounded like animals trudging in the darkness and snickers mocked

Please turn to Page 9

Features:

Fiction
Creative UMies have once again showed that there is originality flowing around. See the Fiction section on Page 3 and thus therefore by only if the on....

WHEREAS THE AFORE M OVER THE AR PERPE

The Biggest Mind Drain of them All
Sherm Boyson likes to argue. Sherm Boyson's friends like to argue. Sherm Boyson doesn't argue about his friends' but he does tell us how they do it on Page 4

The Living Presidency
There's another book out on the strangest job in the world. Fred Weiss explains it all on Page 8

Poor Richard's
Volume 3 Issue 9
November 9, 1973

Poor Richards is a weekly magazine of the Daily Collegian.

Contributors
Bill Ballou
Sherm Boyson
Jon Carr
M. B. Criton
Steve Feld
David Freid
John P. Gessimondo
John Kapitsky
Joni Levy
Carol MacBaren
Kevin Mack
Denny Matteau
Armando Morales M.
Roberta McCann
Don McGilvray
Tyla Michelove
Charlie Olchowski
John S. Parker
Steve Ruggles
David Santos
Ed Smith
David Sokol
Daniel Sweeney
Steve Tripoli
Lori Ann Yeslow

Editor
Patrick J. Coffey

Asst. Editor
Joyce Kosofsky

Music
Mike Kostek

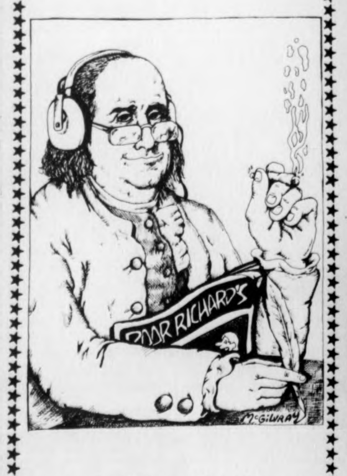
Books
Frederic C. Weiss

Weekend
Bob Nesti

POOR RICHARD'S welcomes unsolicited manuscripts, photographs, and sketches. They must be signed and include the author's address and phone number. Due to space limitations, there is no guarantee that all material will be printed.

All manuscripts must be typed, double-spaced, at sixty spaces per line, and are subject to editing for content or length. Deadline for the Friday edition is Wednesday noon.

Letters to the editor are accepted for perusal and or publication. Sometimes we need a good chuckle.



Pictured here: Our spiritual Mentor and most avid reader, Big Ben.

Women And Exploration

by Denny Matteau

I: A Conversation Between Almost Any Wise-ass Ten-year-old and Her Mother

W.A.T.Y.O.: Ma, I'm going over to the woods behind Jones's house with Billy, ok?

Mother . . .: No.

W.A.T.Y.O.: But, why not? We'll be back in time for supper . . .

Mother . . .: Oh, come on, what do you want to go there for?

W.A.T.Y.O.: . . . Well . . . because. Besides, Billy was there yesterday, and he said it's a really neat place . . .

Mother . . .: You can't go.

W.A.T.Y.O.: But . . . But . . I HAVE to go! Billy said I'm a scaredy cat if I don't . . . just 'cause I'm a girl he said . .

Mother . . .: You know what I told you about taking dares!

W.A.T.Y.O.: Yes'm (silence) . . . well, if I wasn't taking a dare, could I go?

Mother . . .: Now, what's there to see in those old woods?

W.A.T.Y.O: What's there to see?! There's WOODS, that's what! Anyway, you didn't ask Billy what's there to see. He didn't have to see anything, he just had to be back for supper!

Mother . . .: Young lady, you're trying my patience, if your father heard you using that tone of voice to me . . .

W.A.T.Y.O.: You let Billy do whatever he wants! You don't let me do ANYTHING!

Mother . . .: Go to your room.

W.A.T.Y.O.: What . . .

Mother . . .: GO TO YOUR ROOM!
(stomp . . stomp . . stomp . . . SLAM!

II: A Small Matter Regarding Exploration of The Universe

+"National Aeronautics and Space Administration Tests have recently been completed which indicate that women seem as well suited as men for long space flight . . ."

++in 1959, after testing many men, Dr. W. Randolph Lovelace (of the Lovelace Foundation in Albequerque, New Mexico), decided to see if women might also be suitable for spaceflight . .

"Dr. David Winter, deputy director of the Office of Life Sciences, says there's no reason to think there is any inherent problem with women in Space. But he said that doesn't mean NASA is committed to adding any women to the space program . . ."

After thirteen women, out of twenty-five candidates, successfully completed Phase I of the Mercury Astronaut Testing Program, and Jerrie Cobb, a pilot, was specifically recommended for Phases II and III, NASA cancelled all further testing of women in July, 1961 ...

"Twelve Air Force nurses were tested for five weeks to determine the effects of weightlessness and re-entry stress. Scientists sought to determine how well they resisted the tendency of blood to pool in the legs, in space, and to determine their tolerance of re-entry forces and to measure physiological changes."

under M.A.C.T.P. Phase I, the women had been found to be comfortable at temperatures 16 to 26 degrees higher than men, and had required less food, simpler spacesuits, and usually weighed less than men . . and important consideration when realizing that each pound sent into space costs thousands of dollars.

"The nurses agreed that they look forward to the day when a woman is permitted to join the space program..."

+Taken from V.P.I. teletype, Nov. 73

++ Information from MS magazine

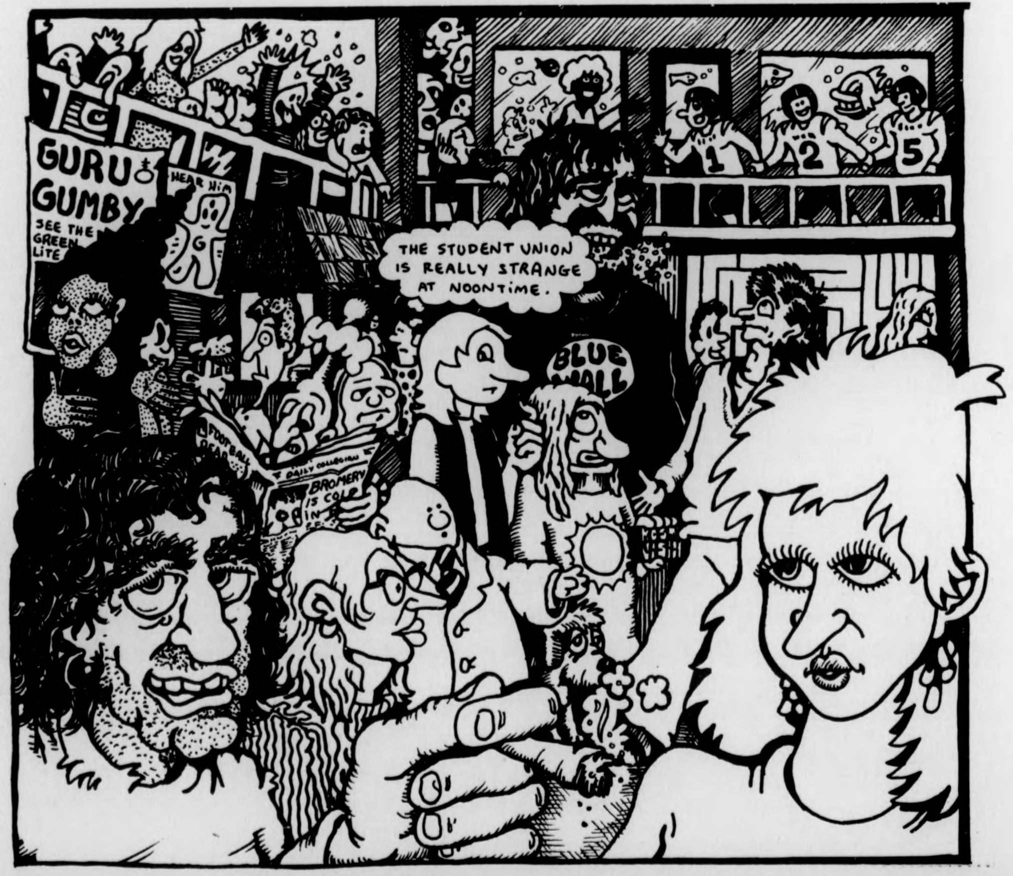
Dear Poor Richards:

How's your music director gonna do it? A jackknife with a double twist from the top of KENNEDY or cyanide? Because the album of the year will not be Quadrophenia by the Who. It will be a thing called RINGO by Ringo Starr and a couple of very, VERY close friends.

Nick Minotti

Ed & Nellie Housafire Reply:

Pardon our nit-picking, but you'll note that we called Quadrophenia the 'rock' album of the year and not simply the album of the year. Let's face it: Ringo is not rock; besides, the year's not over yet. Maybe Bobby Goldsboro is planning a comeback that will wow us all. We've tried to be fair; Lord knows it don't come easy.



fiction

Reality Sings in Lighter Thoughts

"A SONG IN MIDDLE OF THE ABYSM"

To — Janet William
But here, your eyes reek of the hunt,
two eyeballs
that drilled into mine and bolted me there by the ground.

Pablo Neruda

When I open the door of life,
to gather my form
from its palpitation,
I saw the years that are in every woman,
the age in which blood,
boils and bubbles in the veins,
like volcanic lava in eruption.
Because, you are like a wild lily
in perpetual gestation.
The tomb of all pleasures, and the long stagnation of forgetfulness.
And I, I am the petrified fire that cures the wound that does not heal.

The eternal memory of each destiny in confusion.
The substantial ruin of all the silences, dripping plenty
in this obscurity, Then, . . .
Why do you do not melt in your breast
all the distances between us?
Therefore, take my striped space, full it, because only like that,
we will be roots, and avid quintessences of living, today and forever unmaking,
and making between us.

"UN CANTO EN MEDIO DEL ABISMO"

— Para Janet William Pero, ahi estan tus ojos oliendo a caceria dos ojos que entraron a los mios clavandome a la tierra.

Pablo Neruda

Cuando abri la puerta de la vida, para tomar mi forma
en su palpitacion, vi tus anos que en cada mujer es la edad en que la sangre hierbe y bulle en las venas como laba volcanica an erupcion.
Y tu, eres como un lirio silvestre
en perpetua gestacion.
La tumba de todos los placeres
El largo remanso del olvido.
Y yo, soy como el fuego petrificado que cura las heridas que no cicatrizan.

La eterna memoria
de todos los destinos en confusion.
La ruina substancial
de todos los silencios, goteando plenitud en esta oscuridad. Entonces, . . .
Porque no funde en tu pecho todas las distancias entre nosotros? Luego, . . .
toma mi deshojado espacio y llenalo, porque solo asi seremos raices, esencia vital para siempre destruyendose y construyendose entre nosotros

Armando Morales M.
- 'Ahora' Member -

LIGHTER THOUGHTS II

The wind told me a secret as it tossed my hair about. It whispered sweet words through the winter leaves which clung fast to the sleeping trees. The snow that crunched beneath my feet echoed the song of the wind, flowing fast and free, whipping my cheeks with its cold, hard tongue, but it left some of its free spirit with me and I ran.

Tyla L. Michelove

WHEN WE NIGHT AWAKEN

Early morning reveries awaken our senses to the sea that engenders our becoming.
A birth of beginnings that Proust's time understands.
Walking through our selves wrecking walls that separate us from those who once...and once again... and no more can.
Time imposed on us by who and for what human purpose complied?
Ask no more what rules the night. The day will circumscribe what it began and night will take it up again.

Mr. Pound has proposed a toast to prophecy.
Florid usurers know only coin's ethic and measure while mandarins demand a mode more suitable to being.
Right reason a better religion than most and more exacting of its saints.
Find a line that will ennoble us and bound away from greed.

Bound no more...by measure's false responsibility.
A saint that can act and see.

Yeats' twilight gestures slowly feast while cosmic whorls pursue their end.
And dusk will bide its bitter winds asking no more of the night than day's hard clarity.
Clamor for a shaft of sound that will guide us through the ambiguous night. RIDE....
Rhythmic embraces and daring men and the embers of Pater's flame.

Joyce's night voice resonates near our ear and each receptacle for thought and act becomes in his hand, a word anew. A bony hand that dares...
Downtown Nighttown's song his, when dinner has been cleared away and Molly's nod to sleep our Yes to enter our lost bodies
And make the world a self made place.

John S. Parker

It was the music that drew me to the lounge that night. Straining toward the direction of Boogie I entered and sat — close by the piano, without disturbing the player.

He did not look much older than twelve. A puny twelve at that, hunched small over the scuffed cigarbox spinet in the corner. A half-finished Coke vibrated on the bench beside him; a cigarette consumed itself on the music rack. As I watched, he languidly lifted his right hand from the keyboard and took the butt to his mouth. Eyes closed, left hand still beating a strong bass rhythm, he inhaled slowly, expansively. A precocious twelve.

Flipping the cigarette away, he drew both hands up almost to shoulder level. Curled like claws, they arched — then sunk into a blues progression, fortissimo. His fingers scurried across the keys with a clicking sound, as each long and dirty fingernail struck the plastic caps.

I stood silently behind him, smelling the smoke and sweat that clung to his stained woolen sweater. He smelled musty, as if he had lived always in an airless attic, never stepping out into sunlight and air. The back of his neck, exposed from just under the fall of hair, was waxen white and glistening. It seemed a most vulnerable part of him — I imagined it lying taut and still on some butcher's block, a cold steel blade poised right above it.

He pounded a few diminished sevenths and swung into rhythm and blues. Underneath, a small sneakered foot pumped the pedals vigorously — as though he were playing the Mighty Wurlitzer. The flat Coke beside him churned and slapped around in its paper tub and through the soles of my shoes I felt the floor shake. I stared down again at his neck and at the damp, blond strings of hair that now, shaken loose, obscured it. I was so close to him now, surely he could sense my presence, no matter how absorbed in his music.

As if on cue, the chords stopped and the floor beneath me stilled. Slowly and deliberately, he turned around. I looked into his white face and winced at the smirk I saw there.

"You like jazz?" The challenge came in a much lower voice than I had expected. He watched me intently, almost as if he was feeding on my individual features. The spider and the fly. I noticed a redness in his eyes even when I stepped back a bit and admitted yes, I happened to like jazz very much.

"You like it now?" he asked quickly and intensely, his face pinched.

"You know it."

"And you know shit!" and his chapped lips twisted in smile. I forced myself to smile back. I'd heard of the rather limited tact of jazzmen.

"Hey, you got a cigarette?" I produced one. He took it from me soundlessly and struck a match to it. The flame played briefly around the hollows of his face and flickered, reflected, in the eyes that stared ahead. He looked like an empty container, waiting to be tossed aside.

After several deep drags he threw the cigarette down and turned once more to the piano. Honky-tonk. I sat and listened and watched the cigarette slowly burn itself out.

After several bars I heard the door open and, turning, watched a girl in low-slung jeans enter. She too seemed drawn by the music. I looked back. Apparently he had heard nothing for the chords kept coming, loud and staccato. Cynically, I watched her advance, carelessly brushing back a long, blond lock that never really got in her way. Now she halted, took the Coke off the bench and sat down next to him.

He managed to get a few more chords out before stopping. He turned and smiled at her, baring an expanse of crooked, yellowed teeth I hadn't noticed before.

"Hi," he said. Suddenly, I felt embarrassed for him. I squirmed inwardly, wanting to leave, yet fascinated enough to stay.

"Hi," she replied quickly.

"The name's Ken."

"Hi," she repeated. "Keep playing, huh?" He shrugged and tossed off a few quick riffs, then stopped. He smiled again.

"What's your name?"

"Marsha." She said it as if it bored her terribly. "Have you finished playing, or what?"

"Marsha," he repeated dreamily, gently shutting the piano case.

She looked at him then, incredulously. "Christ," she murmured, as she got off the bench and walked out. He stared dumbly after her, his hands quiet upon his thighs. Then they clenched into fists.

"Bitch," he muttered. He seemed to remember then that I was in the room. Blinking furiously, he choked, "Get out! Now, dammit!" Covering his face with his hands, he bent over the shut piano.

I left the room quietly.

— David Freid

The doubts of life
Although the facts of life are true
The doubts are also many too
We live to learn in life it's true
But what we do come far and few.
This is the story of you see.
As we are the ones who live in misery.

We rise each morning to live in peace
But what we do is live to weep.
I'm told that life is sweet to me
Though if it's true I can not see.
I live to work and be with thee
But all you do is toy with me.

We live to give and take it's true
But all like to take and give none to you.
This is how it is to me
A lonely soul with no memory.
I live to love that's all with me
But in this life I find no harmony.

These are the doubts of you see
As they are as real as can be.
I live not to be as rich as thee
But only to live in tranquility.
This is my life it's hard to see
Why I should continue to live and be.

Though many have told how life is serene
I cannot see it to be part of my being.
This is the way of life for me
I faced reality now look what I see.

Although this is not how I want it to be
This is the way it is for me.

I feel like Bonnie and Clyde it's true
But this is life for me and you.
I'm not a poet it's plain to see
But what I feel is real to me.

We all know real Women are far and few
But even those are not really true.
Though it's not easy to see
Just how life should be.
I appeal to you to listen to me
As I have faced reality.

—John P. Gessimondo

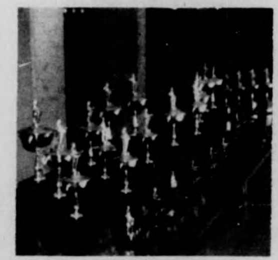
The Biggest Mind Drain Of Them All

by Sherman Boyson

Debate tournaments are mind drainers. When I was a debator I always figured the biggest mind drain was on the debators who had to go through six to ten rounds of debate in two days. When I ran a tournament myself, I learned the drain is even harder on the tournament director. Now that I'm an "educated college person" I have learned the real truth. The biggest drain is on the mind of the idiot who tries to cover a tournament for Poor Richard's.

If you are still reading this article the big question you have is not "why is a debate tournament a mind drain?" but "What the hell is a debate tournament?" Well, if you were one of those stalwarts who stayed on campus last weekend, you might have seen the 13th Annual UMass Debate Tournament, featuring 500 high school kids running around with file boxes, briefcases, and about 1,500 index cards each. The tournament was based around Herter, Mahar, SBA, South College, and Bartlett Hall.



Debate tournaments are comparable to golf tournaments. Anyone who wants to can come. If you win you get big trophies. The big difference is that you debate how America should solve her poverty problem, instead of golfing. UMass has always been a big tourney. The work for it starts early.

May, 1973: The present debate season isn't even over yet, but Tim Hynes, Debate Coach at UMass, is already starting to prepare for the upcoming fall tournament. Things like reserving buildings, arranging with food services for a meal, and setting up proofs for invitations must be done far in advance. The tournament is always the biggest in New England. Its three levels of debate attract about 500 persons from eight states on the eastern seaboard. Not too many college debate teams run tournaments. It is a lot of work, and if you're lucky you just might break even financially. Tim Hynes explains it as a "debate priority. The UMass program is a learning one. This is an educational service we provide for the high schools."

Tuesday, October 30th: Amherst Regional High School is just a few blocks from the campus on Triangle Street. Ms. Marlene Pressman is the debate coach there. Amherst has always been a good school in debating. In 1972 they were the state champions.

Marlene is working with the debators, Ed Ford and Paul Filios, on the case they will use as affirmatives at the UMass tourney. Affirmatives support a change in the present system, while a negative team will have to defend the status quo. Up until the day before Ed was a negative. Now he has to learn affirmative. He doesn't know if he is going to be the first or second affirmative speaker. He asks, but Paul tells him they'll talk about it later. Ms. Pressman reads the case that Paul has written. She laughs out loud and her pencil starts crossing away at the speech. Paul and Ed know that their speech has just been improved by dropping one of the weaker points. "Do you have any evidence for this?" she asks. Shrugs and mumbles indicate no. Ed starts writing down things he has to get. "You know you'll need evidence for this." Ed writes down a little more. "You're going to get creamed if you can't defend this point." Ed writes down a lot more. After an hour and a half the case is stronger, and Ed has a long list. He still doesn't know what speaker he will be. "Don't worry about it." reassures Paul. "We'll work it out later."

Wednesday night, October 31st: Halloween is a night when most kids would rather be out spraying cars with shaving cream, but four Amherst novices are at the high school having a practice debate. Michelle Wolf, an intern at the high school, and myself are judging the debate. They start at seven o'clock and work straight through until nine-thirty. It's a long night of debating, critiquing, and advising. When they leave they are all pretty serious, until they see my car. Some kids still know how to use their father's shaving cream.

Saturday, November 3rd: It's eight-thirty in the morning as I walk from Southwest to Herter. I start noticing the debators as I cross the Whitmore parking lot. Suitcoats. Ties. Dresses. Jackets that match the pants. And even nylons. It looks like trick or treat four days late. Appearance in debate can be important so Sunday dress is in order. It just looks pretty funny to see people dressed up on this campus.

8: 45 — Registration for the tournament is in Herter Hall. Registration for the championship division, the cream of the varsity, is first. Old faces I haven't seen in a long time appear. Barb is a junior from Rhode Island. Last year she was a novice, a beginning debator. This year she is taking the big step up to top varsity. She looks over the list of participating schools and starts haming off the ones she wants to debate against. She looks up and smiles. Each school she's named is known as an easy win. "If you had to mark yourself in nervousness on a scale of one to four hundred, where would you be?" "That's easy" she says, "four hundred."

A few schools just make the registration deadline, including my old school Melrose. It's super nostalgia time for me as I see all my old novices again. I was the novice coach at Melrose for two years. Now one of my old novices, Leo, is the novice coach. He tells me how good his novices are. I'm hit with a divided loyalty. I'm now working with Amherst, but my memories lie with Melrose. Who do I cheer for? It's selfish, but I sort of wish that Melrose would bomb out. Then I could say "See what you are without me." But I also want Leo to be proud of his novices like I was proud of him. I don't know who to cheer for.

The championship division gets through with just a few problems and the registration desk prepares for the next two levels — novice and junior varsity. Then a guy runs up and announces he has just arrived for the championship division and would like to register. He doesn't realize that the teams are already debating.

1: 10 p.m.: The rounds for varsity and novice are supposed to start but there are no ballots in the rooms. One of the tournament workers runs up to a girl waiting outside Herter auditorium. "Jill! Where are the ballots?" "They haven't brought them to me yet." "But you're supposed to get them." "No way, I'm supposed to wait for them." Times like this are normal for in a debate tourney.

1: 30 p.m.: In round one, two of my old novices, Annette and Anita, are debating another school. Annette is questioning the girl from the other team and is taking her apart. Annette looks the other way and the girl looks to her partner with a face of doom. Annette looks back up and the girl starts smiling again. She smiles like the way Fay Wraye did as King Kong's arm came through the window. The old "don't let them know you're worried" look.

The girls talk with a real important sounding vocabulary. Too often debators have been stereotyped as intellectuals and brains. Sure they talk big words and subjects like malnutrition, budget surplusses, non-tax fees, and marginal firms. But debators are people, and definitely not all brains. I was one for four years. That should disprove any theory about brains and debators.

4: 30 p.m.: The tournament is running late and most people haven't eaten yet. With a few bologna sandwiches, some chocolate milk, and a bag of cookies, I suddenly become very popular. A lot of people don't eat on tournaments. The pressure is big and the stomachs are too tense to eat.

5: 15 p.m.: Tabulation is the heart of a debate tournament. This is where all the records are kept, points are totaled, schedules made, and problems solved. Remembering what it was like when I ran a tournament, I figured I could get some good news story here. I figured to see Tim Hynes pulling his hair out and Prof. Matlon swearing his head off. To my surprise everything was peaceful. No swearing, no hair pulling. As tournament director John Adams put it "Hynes and Matlon are just super efficient". That was obvious.

8: 30 p.m.: Day one of the tournament is over for the debators and judges, but not for the tabulation people. One of the workers comes up to the hallway in Herter where just a few people are left. "Has anyone seen the Malden Catholic judge? Not only hasn't that idiot signed the ballot, but he didn't even give a decision. That shithead." and the kid goes off hoping to find him.

11: 00 p.m.: Nights for debators are often a free for all. For kids staying in dorms or motels, the opportunity to do all the things they can't do at home is utopia. Don Witkowski, manager of the Campus Center Hotel reports that "in past years the kids have done some drinking. They get loud, but if you ask them to quiet down, they usually will."

Sunday, November 5th: A lot of the Melrose kids stayed with me and I start waking them up for the second day of debating. We head for the student union where food service is presenting one of their famous brunches. Having been making my own meals for two weeks, I had forgotten why I had gotten out my meal ticket. I remember now. The brunch is where they announce the championship teams that qualify for the elimination rounds. There is a definite tenseness as everyone speculates on how they have done. Results of debates are not released until the whole thing is over.

The people of the UMass debate team who have worked on the tournament are introduced. Special recognition is given to Jill Peltin. "You want to know why?" she asks. "It's because I told someone I was tired of all the shit I've been getting." She smiles. She knows it's a lot of work, but in the end they appreciate her.

A novice from a Catholic school near Boston is on the phone. "Ma? This is Jimmy. I think we're 5 and 0. 5 and 0. If we can win just one more round we'll win the whole tournament."

5: 30 p.m.: The tournament is finally over and the crowds wait for the announcements for who has won.

Prof. Matlon arrives and the announcements start. When the dust clears, Amherst Regional has walked away with everything in sight in the novice division. All four first places and five other awards with them. Kevyn was top speaker over 120 other debators. Ed, the kid who kept writing things down, won a speaker award in the junior varsity division, along with a perfect ballot, which is like a no-hitter in baseball.

One last thing to do. I go to Prof. Matlon to see if I could get out of a ticket I got while illegally parked in front of SBA. "What can I do with it?" I asked. "The same thing I have to do", he says, "pay it."

TONITE
Sat. & Sun.
NRBQ
at the
Rusty Nail Inn
Rte. 47, Sunderland
665-4937

SALE
WATER MATRESSES
(5 year guarantee)
$19.95
NEPTUNE WATERBEDS
BEAN BAG CHAIRS
Avant Garde Furniture
at Future Furnishings
103 N. Pleasant St.
Amherst

TONIGHT
THE FOURTH TOWER OF INVERNESS at midnight
"Only seven people have seen the Fourth Tower of Inverness in the last three hundred years, and all of them have disappeared mysteriously." Join Jack Flanders as he whirls outside of time and space on THE FOURTH TOWER OF INVERNESS! It's every weeknight at midnight, with a complete week's recap Sunday at 9:30 p.m.
SUNDAY
INTERNATIONAL MUSIC at 10:00 p.m.
International Music features popular, folk and aborigine music of Australia with guest Frank Shorm. Your host is Joe C.
BIG MAC IS COMING MONDAY NIGHT AT 11:30!
WMUA
STEREO 91.1 FM
FREE FORM/INFORMATIVE
RADIO

Minor League Hockey

A Strange Cult Indeed

by Steve Tripoli

The cult of the fan in sports is a strange one indeed, but in minor league sports the cult is a whole different thing from what the average major league fan sees, and for my money, at least, it's a hell of a lot more enjoyable. What follows is the story of a team I've been watching for a while, followed by an account of fandom at game, which found me and two friends on the road, rooting against the crowd.

The Providence Rhode Island Reds of the American Hockey League are, in their 48th season, the oldest minor league franchise in professional sports (and only two years younger than the Boston Bruins). The people who are the organization are a story in themselves, and a reason why the minor leagues are good leagues for the fan. Here's a rundown of some of the biggies, and why they're famous, roughly in order of rank.

GEORGE SAGE: Owner of the Reds since the 1969-70 season, known as the "Sage of Providence". One of George's strong points is that you can see him, yes, even debate him, at almost any Reds game. At opening night this year in Boston my roommate, Bill Ballou, and I ran into George, where we debated him on strategy and told him how we feel he should run his team. Try doing that with Weston Adams, Jr. of the Bruins, if you can find him.

GEORGE PATRICK DUFFY: The face is as Irish as the name. George, now Assistant General Manager of the Reds, was for eighteen years prior to this the Dean of AHL broadcasters. Duffy always opened his broadcasts with the famed "Well, hi there, ever'body" and closed with the more famed "Remember, you can keep the sports parade moving by being — a good sport". George is always there, too, and he'll talk to anyone who wants to talk, especially on the road. An all around great guy.

EDDIE "AHH-DEE-AHH" McCONNELL: Ahh-dee-ahh is a goal judge in Providence, and has been since the 1930's. The origin of the "ahh-dee-ahh" is unknow, but everyone in Providence knows that if you see Eddie, point at him, and say "ahh-dee-ahh", Eddie will point back and do the same. It may sound insane here, but it's an institution in Providence.

JACK CLEARY: Controlled the public address system in the Rhode Island Auditorium for 42 years before the Reds moved to the new Providence Civic Center. The reason he controlled it was simple. He owned it. Famous for his drawl of "Onnnnne minute left in the period." Towards the end of his career he'd miss his cue, usually ending up by saying something like "eighttteeeen seconds left in the period." He still goes to games, and is a bona fide member of the Rhode Island Reds Hall of Fame.

B. DRIVER (RAY ROY) : B. is the bus driver on the Reds road trips, and has been for the last four or five years. He works for the Bonanza bus company, owned by Reds owner Sage. Instantly recognizable with his famous "face carved out of granite." Stays completely expressionless during games, but has a lot of hockey knowledge. Was heard to make the astute observation when the Reds were down five goals one night that "There's something definitely wrong tonight."

SWEATHOG: The Reds' biggest fan, weighing in at 250. "A big man for a big job", or so goes the saying. Sweats profusely during games, but is really one hell of a nice guy. Executes the job of being the Reds's number one fan with class, dignity, and a sense of purpose. I've witheld his real name because I feel the nickname's cruel, but the fans who use it do so affectionately.

PROVIDENCE Reds

Photo by Steve Ruggles

Oct. 24 was a good day for most normal people . . . But what about them?

JIMMY: Allegedly a fan since the first days of the Reds. He, along with Sweathog, is a past president of the Rhode Island Reds Booster Club, Inc. His most famous move was the night he called the referee at a Reds game over to his seat, wanting to give him something. When the ref arrived Jimmy placed a pair of binoculars in his hands.

TEX: Another big fan. Used to have a season's ticket in the same section as my roommate. Hands down winner of the Stupidest Fan in the AHL Award year after year after year. Always wears a ten gallon hat to games. Rumor has it that you can look through his ears and see the game going on for lack of grey matter between.

INGRID: An usherette at the Civic Center and a girlfriend of Gerry Teeple, the worst player on the team. Walks around the Civic Center acting beautiful.

Well, that's a rundown of the people. Now on to the business of the fans as a whole.

Wednesday, October 24th, was a normal day for most people, but not for Reds fans. This was the day of their first confrontation of the year with the Springfield Kings, their archrivals ("the hated Queens", to quote my roommate.) The game was in Springfield, for years a place of frustation for the Reds. In fourteen years as a fan, Ballou had only seen them win there twice. And the fans there not only hate the Reds, they hate Reds fans. And that was us.

It was myself, my roommate Ballou, and Poor Richard's staffer and mutual friend Barbara Voorhees who descended on the Springfield Civic Center that Wenesday night. We didn't know at the time that a bus full of "Rooster Boosters", from the booster club was also headed that way, and we didn't see much of them till after the game, so we went it alone most of the way in a hostile crowd.

This year the Reds are supposed to have one of the strongest teams in the league, the Kings one of the weakest. But the curse of Springfield was in our minds, and we weren't at all sure of victory.

We got more than a few looks as we walked into the Civic Center, all wearing Reds pins, and Ballou wearing a straw hat with a Reds bumper sticker plastered across the front, Voorhees carrying Harry, a rubber Rooster, (and presumably a Rhode Island Red Rooster) and myself carrying a Reds pennant. We got to our seats just before the first period, and when the Reds came out on the ice (the visiting team is always first) the three of us stood and cheered, while the other 3,000 fans either remained seated or remained seated and booed. We were marked people from that point on, intruders on the Springfield fans' celebration of the home team.

The first period was a disaster. The Kings scored five unanswered goals, and with each one the fans rose, cheered, and laughed at us. A well dressed guy two rows in front of us leaned over during the worst of it and said loudly to his girlfriend "How's the Providence team doing?" Ballou taking the bait, hollered down, they're in first place." The battle of Springfield had begun. At the end of the period the girls seated in front of me left her seat. Turning around, she told me that, in view of the score, I ought to "fold up my pennant and go home." I was speechless. They had the laugh on us.

Between periods Voorhees and I went down to get a beer at one of the concession stands. Hostility reigned even there, as the man behind the counter, eyeing our Reds pins, called over to his partner "Give the girl a Gansett", which is the chief beer served in Providence. They were exploiting the 5-0 lead for all its ridicule value.

The second period started better, with the Reds hitting for two quick goals in the first four minutes. It was our turn to stand and cheer now, and we picked up new enemies for it. On the second goal I noticed a girl a row in front of me and a few seats to left who cast a withering glare at me as I cheered the second Reds goal. This prompted me to wave my pennant in her face, and after that she kept her head turned and flashed me the finger without looking at me.

Fate intervened once again. The puck hit the clumsy referee as the Reds broke out of their own end. The Kings picked it up and turned it into a goal. It was 6-2, and the glory belonged to the Kings fans again.

It was about this time that Ballou, with nothing better to do, started ridiculing the Kings' yellow uniforms. He hollered out "Hey Queens, when are you going to take your pajamas off?" A new face emerged from this, as an elderly woman about five rows in front of us turned around and told Ballou that if he "took his off there'd probably be a slip underneath." Roars of approval from the rest of the fans on that one.

By the end of the period, the Reds had struck two more times, making the score going into the final period 6-4 Kings. There was a chance.

At the beginning of the third period we cheered as the Reds skated onto the ice. It just so happened that as I stood, our friend from two rows up (How's the Providence team doing?) was coming back to his seat. He smiled snidely and said, "Gee, you didn't have to stand up just for me." I wanted to tell him that I always stood up for Queens, but I blew the line.

As far as the game goes, the rest is history. The Reds scored six unanswered goals in the third period, and the final was Providence 10, Springfield 6 in one of the great comebacks in AHL history.

After the seventh goal, which broke a 6-6 tie, Ballou commented aloud to everyone in general, "Gee, it's awful quiet in here." When he tried the same thing the period before our friend from two rows up had turned around and said "that's because your mother's breath's so bad." He didn't even turn around this time.

As we walked out we heard a few people curse, and one young kid waited for Ballou at the bottom of the steps. "Hey, faggot," he called out. Ballou walked up to him menacingly and said "Tough to lose, isn't it?" The fan knew that we had the last, irreversible laugh; he had to give in. He put his arm around Ballou and said, "Yup, it sure is."

On the way out we met the Booster club, and I'll never forget the last words I heard as I walked out of the Civic Center. I held my Reds banner above my head, and the voice of Sweathog, directed at me, came from behind. "That's it kid, wave it nice and high." The Battle of Springfield was over.

Where can I go out to dinner with my parents this Sunday?
THE CHEQUERS
good food fine entertainment
UNIV. DR. at AMITY ST.

COLOR
CABLE TV
Monday nite football
Bruins Hockey
BRING YOUR OWN!
EVERYONE WELCOME
PAPA'S PIZZA
If Mama doesn't feed you
Papa will
FEARING ST. across from Southwest
Open 5-1 a.m. weekdays 12-3 a.m. weekends

Redemption At Chapin Hall

by M. B. Citron

In Concert:
Jesse Colin Young
Chapin Hall, Mount Holyoke
November 2

Last Friday night's concert at Mt. Holyoke's Chapin Hall was more than an event. It was historic. There can be no doubt that the concert succeeded. But more importantly, it showed that you could have fun at a Mt. Holyoke concert.

I don't mean entertaining, stimulating or refreshing "fun". The people at the concert that night were stamping, raging, roaring, raving — I mean those people came to participate in the joyful nonsense that a good rock concert should be. And Jesse Colin Young (ex-leader of the Youngbloods) with his high-flying band provided the catalysis to affect the change from the stereotyped prep, giggling, debutante ladden Mt. Holyoke concert crowd to the volatile group gathered there that evening.

Sitting downstairs in Chapin Hall's snack bar we talked to Jesse before the concert. It's difficult to imagine the down-home, foot stomping scenes of the concert when I think about the easy, unassuming Jesse Colin Young we spoke to. But maybe that's the point; the unpretentious character of the performer carried through to the audience.

Jesse talked about the music he listens to — Coltrane, Miles Davis. He talked about his family background, which is academic, not musical. He spoke about the tour he's on now; two months on the road and another one yet to come. Then he finished the beer he had been drinking, set it down on the table with finality, excused himself, and walked off to the Winnebago-like home he's using to travel from show to show.

The group Jesse has surrounded himself with now has the advantage of Jim Rothermel playing horns. Rothermel played the saxophone, clarinet, flute and harmonica. His skill was consummate as he stole the show two or three times during the concert. The crowd was stomping in the aisles during his "Jambalaya" sax solo. Rothermel flew in marked comparison to the old Youngbloods who would often bog down on instrumental solos. I suspect Rothermel's training was classical. The tones and execution were expressive and skillful.

Photo by Kevin Mack

Comparison of this group to the Youngbloods was automatic as they opened with 'Euphoria' and played many of the defunct groups standards. Percussion and bass were adequate, but the keyboards sounded like the caliope at Barnum and Bailey's.

The rest of the concert was lifted from Jesse's two solo albums, doing especially well with his new 'Song for Juli'.

Ann Hart, Mt. Holyoke organizer of the concert, said that the sell-out concert that night was the first since Chuck Berry played a few months ago. 'Even the Band didn't sell-out' Hart said.

Vinyl Times

SONG FOR JULI
JESSE COLIN YOUNG
(Warner Brothers)

When I spoke to Jesse Colin Young last week at Mount Holyoke College, I was surprised to hear him tell me that he has been listening to a lot of old Miles Davis and John Coltrane, lately. "They knew how to make a melody fit", Jesse said of them.

Not until I listened to Jesse's new album did I realize what Jesse, the folk singer, meant when he said that he was influenced by those two jazz geniuses. Jesse is preoccupied with making beautiful melodies and on this album, Song for Juli, Jesse has written several very beautiful melodies. Say what you will about Jesse as a guitarist (he is competent and he knows his limitations); as a songwriter he is exceptional.

On this album, Jesse is reaching into new musical regions (for him, anyway). The most noticeable example is his addition of horns and woodwinds. He has added to his band Jim Rothermel, who plays sax, clarinet and flute. Jim's roots are in the field of jazz, so he adds a more vibrant aspect to Jesse's folksy music. Rothermal can produce a purity of tone from a flute usually met only in classical flutists.

Some of the songs, such as the title cut and Country Home are sweet but forgettable. Others, like Evenin and Mornin Sun are in the same quiet, unobtrusive mood as the best of Jesse's older music.

Jesse also tries to sing the blues with T-Bone Walker's T-Bone Shuffle, but his voice just isn't suited for this.

The best song on the album is Ridgetop and it is unlike anything Jesse has done in the past. It begins with an atonal, arythmic piano and saxophone intro, segued into a more structured, funky guitar solo, with Jesse's voice brought in afterwards. His voice shows a sensitivity unheard previously. He wails, rather than whines, coating his sacharrine voice with a layer of harshness. The song ends, as it begins, featuring the sax and the piano, only now they are fading away over Jesse's haunting voice.

— Kevin Mack

MIND GAMES
JOHN LENNON
(Apple SW-3414)

Prior to its release, Yoko described Mind Games as being like Imagine, only bigger and better, and that sums it up well. Imagine's undercurrent of optimism has blossomed in Mind Games and the flowering makes for one of the most convincing musical statements of this, or any, year.

With Mind Games, Lennon dispels all doubts brought about by Some Time In New York City, and reassures us of his ability to mastermind what is on all accounts an exceptionally brilliant record. Moreover, our "intellectual Beatle" has given us an album with not one bad song and this shows, in yet another way, how much of a rarity Mind Games really is.

Thematically, there are three distinct types of songs: first, Yoko-inspired love songs ("Aisumasen", with a touch of Japanese vocabulary; "One Day (At A Time)", which has Lennon in a high falsetto, singing a verse akin to "Love" coupled with a delightfully refreshing chorus; "Out The Blue", another lilting ballad; "I Know (I Know)", with prime Lennonesque harmonies that bear an uncanny resemblance to mid-Beatles; and "You Are Here", liberally seasoned with major-sixth chording as his previous "Sun King" and "Hold On Yoko").

Secondly, there are more "I Found Out"-type lyrics, expressing Lennon's hard-won belief in himself: "Meat City", a multi-syllabic diatribe which is both ebullient and inspired; "Intuition", which as the feel of a Broadway showtune; and "Tight As", which holds the spot "Crippled Inside" did on Imagine and is musically comparable.

And thirdly, there is Lennon's outer hostility which is projected through the usual nebulous politics against Government, perhaps John's biggest enemy at the moment. The word-play title of "Bring On The Lucie (Freda People)" provides for jubilant moments, and "Only People" is a rocking celebration of faith in mankind.

As a singer, John is all over the place and his ready tenor has never been better. On many songs his voice is overdubbed several times over, while others feature female back-ups. His up-tempo rockers have improved immensely; the rough edges being softened by minor chords in between the I-IV-V-VII formula. And John as arranger/producer has never come through with such verve, intensity and sensitivity.

Mind Games is the mellowest Lennon album ever. The emphasis is on melody, and the results are perfect. It's an album that, sooner or later, everyone will want to own.

— Steve Feld

3 PLUS 3
THE ISLEY BROTHERS
(T. Neck K2 32453)

Currently riding the crest of what is possibly their all-time greatest hit "That Lady", The Brothers Isley are also having a good deal of success with their current album. With the same flair which makes "That Lady" so infectious, the other Isley compositions on this album have a driving, mellow quality which should make one wonder what compelled them to alternate their own material with their renditions of big white hits such as "Don't Let Me Be Lonely Tonight", "Summer Breeze" and "Listen to the Music". Not that the Isley's don't stylize and even improve upon the originals, but there's only so much that can be done with a James Taylor song. Dig? Ernie Isley's inspired guitar work shines throughout as do the amazing Isley vocals. Still, the best cuts on 3 PLUS 3 are "If You Were There", "That Lady" and "What It Comes Down To", all Isley originals. This fine electric album will further establish the Isley Brothers as fine cover versionists, but more important as excellent composers and musicians. Non-stop Solid Rock.

— Solid Vodka

GENESIS LIVE
GENESIS (B&C)
Time 47:10

Genesis Live is another of those tasty English imports showing up in American disc shops recently. Like King Crimson's live import, this album probably will not be released here in the States.

Genesis, though not that well known on these shores, are very big back in England. This album shows why. Audience enthusiasm is surprising due to the fact that they're given sizable ovations just for announcing the songs, Material is usually extended just enough for well thought out solos and the like. Lyrically, Genesis is surprisingly strong.

Side One, with an unbelievable twenty-six minutes of music, opens up with the enthralling "Watcher of the Skies". "Watcher" is excellent, and one of the group's standbys. "Get 'em Out By Friday" and "The Return of the Giant Hogweed" round out the side with more of the same good music. The guitar/keyboard patterns are especially good.

The second side is my favorite. "Musical Box" picks off where "Hogweed" left off. A little bit slower than the other material, but just as strong. Closing out the album is "The Knife". This is perhaps one of Genesis' best songs lyrically. Roughly, it is about revolution.

Genesis freaks shouldn't be without this gem. With a little more exposure here in the streets, Genesis could become very big. (A-) (A new studio album should be released in the near future).

— David Santos

PULVER RISING
JUDI PULVER
(MGM SE-4904)

Good thing most of the songs were short because I doubt I could take anything over four minutes of Janis Joplin imitations teamed with music that just wouldn't let up. I'm sorry Judi, but another Janis you could never be.

— Lori Ann Yeslow

We're Entertaining Every Weekend At
THE CHEQUERS
FRI. EVE. — Bob Jeffway Quartet — 9-12:30 a.m.
SAT. EVE. — AL BEAUPRE TRIO with Vickie Phillips — 9-12:30 a.m.
CHEQUERS
University Dr. at Amity St.

Singing Ink

The Finest Album Of The Year (at least)

by Mike Kostek

QUADROPHENIA/ THE WHO (MCA2-10004)
time: 82:14

Personnel:
John Entwistle: Bass, Horns, Vocals
Roger Daltrey: Lead Vocals
Keith Moon: Percussion, Vocals
Pete Townshend: Remainder (guitar, vocals, synthesizer, keyboards, anything else I missed)
Chris Stainton: Piano (on three cuts)

THIS ONE'S guaranteed. But you knew that. You knew that Townshend had been doing something the last two years, and whatever it was, it was bound to be incredible. And is there anything better than having the highest expectations for something and having them exceeded when it finally comes out?

Quadrophenia washes away whatever qualms you've been accumulating about The Who, and their various solo efforts. This one simply blows away anything released so far this year, and might just possibly bring about public realization of what's been apparent since Tommy: when it comes to getting something done, nobody does it as well as The Who.

Quadrophenia's all Townshend in terms of progenetation. He conceived, wrote, pre-produced and produced (along with The Who) this two record 'opera' concerning the puberty rites of an English teenager growing up crazy in London during the middle sixties. Quadrophenia's all Who in terms of performance, though. From the way the album hangs together, it sounds like Pete's been doing nothing for the last two years but arranging every single note and word.

There's never been an album like this. Certainly no rock album has ever been as full or as rich. Quadrophenia is that rarity of rarities, the double album that's worth its weight. It is with no little thought that I label Quadrophenia The Who's finest achievement, and certainly one of the five best rock albums ever released. It is the best album released in the Seventies, and might just be the finest ever. Now how long has it been since you've thought of any new album in those terms?

Growing up in England in the middle Sixties was a unique experience. Suffocation of sorts was almost total for the unleavened soul who couldn't find him/herself in any of the existing norms. Keeping up with one's peers in fashion (the Mods were much fiercer a force than any here, as everyone in England was a Mod or a Rocker), street-fighting, and status sex is always a negative and useless use of energy. Quadrophenia is Pete Townshend looking back on those days, wondering how and why he could have been involved in anything like that. No one lived the Sixties more intensely and more introspectively than Peter Townshend did, and it's all here. He seems amazed at the incredibly powerful forces that pushed him and the rest of English Youth into such narrow and wasteful forms of 'rebellion'.

The main character in the story, Jimmy, is not schizophrenic, as his parents and psychiatrist tell him, he's bleedin' quadrophenic. Each part of Jimmy's character is represented by a theme, and "each character part is reflected by a member of The Who."

Each of the themes swirls round and round as Jimmy runs out of possibilities. He finds accepted "guidance counselors" (doctor, minister, psychiatrist, parents) useless, and runs into life on the streets. The men who do the "Dirty Jobs" let him down when they're afraid to even strike for more pay. They are certainly caught in the system, but who isn't? "In the battle on the streets/You fight computers and receipts/And when a man is trying to change/But only causes further pain/You realize that all along something in us is going wrong/... You stop dancing."

Jimmy rails at his own passions: "I'm finished with the fashions/And acting like I'm tough/I'm bored with hate and passion/I've had enough of trying to love". He realizes his friends offer no shelter, and his dream girl is as shallow as everyone else. His job naturally doesn't work out, and he retires to a world of pills and the sea.

Photo by Charlie Olchowski

Townshend's four themes are these:

"Bell Boy". A droning, nagging, poking call to work that will hang onto the back of your neck like a chain. Here's the perfect embodiment of the young-man-at-work experience. The bloody lunatic will even carry your bags.

"Helpless Dancer". This one's verbalized by "Can you see the real me? Can ya? Can ya?", and is a call to his peers to identify him. He dares them, taunts them into telling him who he is. The thing is, he really doesn't know, and this is certainly the easiest way to 'find out'. He eventually grows tired of being a helpless dancer, putting himself through social motions to establish himself as Someone. Tough Guy. A Personality. Himself. But Jimmy is obviously deeper than GS scooters and zoot suits.

"Is It Me (For A Moment)?" Is Jimmy's emerging self being discovered? The romantic side. 'Was that me?' he wonders desperately. 'Will that be me? Will I be like that? Can I afford to follow into that manner of acting, of existing? Can I even trust my judgment to tell me who I really am?' So it is during his life, he hits on several extremely affecting experiences and can only wonder who he really is.

"Love Reign O'er Me" is what he wants most desperately of all. He wants love to rule him and rain over him and set him in a permanent frieze of love. He longs for love, and the reoccuring water sounds (water, in Freudian terms, is a symbol of love/womanhood), symbolize this. Unfortunately the various girls in his life are trapped also, and, as always, as everywhere, to a far greater extent. Jimmy cannot live in a world as cold and tough as 1960's England. Such was the similar case in America from 1966-1970 when we merely expected to ring down a life of love by invoking the word and waiting for it to happen. We didn't act positively enough to make it work. More than anything else, love takes a conscious effort to make it work. Jimmy's been made into a beggar, a hypocrite, all for love.

Everywhere the music is incredible. Quadrophenia's a ton of power. Townshend's set up the right forms to say what he wants to in no uncertain terms, with a clear-sightedness rare in rock. Entwhistle's bass playing has never been better, with his round-sounding notes giving perfect support to the varied music. Daltrey's vocals are superb; he fills the album on power and skill alone. It is inconceivable to imagine any other singer being able to fit this role. And Moon: yes, at long last we can hear him, all of him on drums, and there are few finer. Keith's vocal parts on "Bell Boy" also deserve some sort of Special Mention.

And Pete Townshend. What can you say about a man who works miracles? He sings and plays on the album with an ease, grace and precision all too deceptive.

No matter how deep you get into the record, there's always more — Quadrophenia is limitless. Townshend has made the album as unbounded as life itself. This, fellow rods and mockers, is more than the album of the year. It's something for us. All of us. From someone WHO knows.

Culture Amid The Mass

In Concert:
Yale String Quartet
Bowker Auditorium
October 29

The Fine Arts Council's Chamber Music Series got off on a high note Monday night with a rare performance by the celebrated Yale String Quartet. The Quartet is comprised of four internationally known soloists, who merged nine years ago, to become one of the finest quartets in the world. Displaying great dynamic control, the Quartet presented a program of complementary stalwarts of the repertoire — the Debussey Quartet in G. minor, Op. 10, Haydn's Quartet in Eb major, Op. 33, No. 2 ("The Joke"), and Schubert's Quartet in D Minor, D. 810 ("Death and the Maiden").

As often as I hear the Debussey, it never fails to move me. This is an early work of Debussey, Op. 10, but already possessed of the flowing colorations of his later works. The playing of the piece began a little tightly, but quickly settled to one of the finer interpretations I have heard. I do not recall hearing the third movement ever played so slowly, or dynamically low. The solo playing here was inspired, expecially of Walter Trampler on viola, giving an introspective mood. The second movement scherzo was light and playful; however, the pizzicato playing could have been a little more sharp.

The Haydn Quartets, Op. 33, offered an entirely new style of music to the world. The relation between principal and accompanying voices was transformed as never before, and the dynamic conceptions were just as monumental. The brilliance of this conception comes from the fact that each successive stage is an echo of a beat and not a beat itself so that the weight of the beat is felt in the silence and reflected in the sound. The Yale Quartet executed this concept brilliantly, as well as providing the sharp, crisp, and singing qualities of the Classical Style.

The highlight of the evening was the Schubert. This is anything but a light-weight work. The mood is sombre, even tragic. It is often abrupt in expression and makes defiant gestures. The first movement play was slightly interrupted as the string on Broadus Erle's violin snapped and had to be replaced. This was not to have its effect, however, as the Quartet finished the movement in cool style. In the slow second movement, the low level of dynamics produced a sombre mood. This is the movement from which the piece gets its name from Schubert's lied' Der tod und das Madchen'. Here the sure-voiced Death assures, and reassures, the maiden of her fate. The playing of The Yale String Quartet here and the effect they produced showed the hands of very mature artists. It was an enjoyable night of music.

Daniel Sweeney

IN CONCERT
impulse! abc
JAZZ ON TOUR
NEW DIMENSIONS
IN CONTEMPORARY MUSIC
KEITH JARRETT
GATO BARBIERI
SAM RIVERS
SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 11 7:30 p.m.
Amherst College Gymnasium, $3.50
TICKETS: Campus Center, UMass · New Record Shop, For the Record, Amherst.

Break Out to...
THE STEAK OUT
Downstairs at
"The Speakeasy Lounge"
Friday & Saturday Night
Live Entertainment
"The Bonnie Floyd Revue"
Band starts at 8:30 p.m.
No Cover — No Minimum
THE STEAK OUT
Rt. 9 and University Drive

books

The Living Presidency

The Living Presidency, by Emmett John Hughes
Coward, McCann, & Geoghagen, Inc.
N.Y. P. 377 $10.50

by Frederic C. Weiss

Emmett Hughes has given us a very timely and thorough study of the American Presidency: its history dating from its vague origins to its growing complexities; and his observations concerning the institution of the Presidency in the present and future judging, from its mysterious past.

This word — mystery, remains prevalent throughout Hughes' study of the Presidency. Hughes writes; "to speak of the office as a mystery moreover, is not to voice awe or give homage: it is only to observe a political fact, that as the dictionary says 'arouses wonder by being difficult to understand or solve.' This does not sound like too romantic or sentimental a description of the place of a President in the American system."

While it is hard to state just what makes up an effective Presidential style, Hughes gives several specific "senses" that are of paramount importance in the performance of the duties of the Presidency, and whose presence or absence "set the tone and decide the forces of all Presidential leadership." They are:

A Sense of Confidence: Any show of hesitation can be deadly; the Kennedy Presidency showed that an abundance of confidence can compensate for mediocre accomplishments in gaining public popularity.

A Sense of Proportion: Not building things up to become heroic crusades (most recently President Nixons gaudy "New American Revolution" — by the way does anyone remember just what it was?). Presidents caught up in what they build up to be personal crusades often end in disaster (i.e. Woodrow Wilson and Lyndon Johnson).

A Sense of Drama: All great Presidents especially F.D.R. had it: Timing, of which Abraham Lincolns holding of the release of the emancipation proclamation until after the victory at Antietam is most notable: and Humanity.

Concerning a sense of Humanity, Hughes writes; "There is an incalculable price to be paid by any Presidency that gives the appearance of comprehending — or caring — not quite enough." The author's greatest example of this is Herbert Hoover, who looked to solutions "abstractly" rather than with the warmth and "sense of humanity" that Lincoln was planning to handle reconstruction with.

Perhaps Hughes' ideas on a Sense of Constancy were most relevent in this age of Watergate. He writes, "With no necessary loss of popular trust, (the President) may vary his methods, but he must not appear to waver. A Washington or a Jefferson, like an Abraham Lincoln or a Franklin Roosevelt knew the critical distinction between changing course and changing conscience."

Hughes pictures the role of the President as an "unparalleled and unending act of reconciliation. For he must find and hold a kind of balance between modes of action that seem contradictory and casts of belief that seem alien."

The author stresses the importance of a "sense of leadership" in Presidents as well as other statesman. They must take up issues head on, and not wait for the issue to fall upon their shoulders.

At a time when people seem to be screaming for a weakening of the Executive, Hughes does not see any instant panacea in transferring more power to the Congress citing that, "..there does not follow...a corrective in anything so simple as a broad reassertion of Congressional power. Out of eight wars that the Republic has known since its creation, the force of opinion within the walls of Congress may be credited as decisive with respect to two: the War of 1812 and the 1898 War with Spain. These were not glorious or rational encounters."

What does Hughes recommend? In the book he is against giving Congress greater power to limit Presidential perrogatives. Even though the book was written before the increasing Nixonite Watergate folly, in a conversation over the phone Emmett Hughes stayed with his original assumption that the Congress was not "all knowing", that there were many benefits to a strong Executive. "There is a great temptation to take away the power of the Presidency because of Watergate," said Hughes "But that would be punishing the office because of the mistakes of one man."

Yet he does feel that improvements can be made to try and put the Presidency back in its proper perspective. Hughes would like to see a more exact definition concerning the doctrine of Executive Privilege. He also feels that the State Department should be in charge of Foreign policy once again; opening the way to Congressional consultation, and putting the power back in the hands of those who might tend more to be concerned with policy than politics.

While Hughes, as a Presidential speech writer (for Eisenhower), journalist, and Professor (at Rutgers) has excellent credentials in the field of Presidential politics, he sees the danger in having one man give his interpretation of the "Presidency". Therefore in his book he has included a section entitled: "The Presidency as I Have Seen It", with brief epistles by twelve associates of various Presidents (Theodore Sorenson, Nelson Rockefeller to name a few) and their concept of the office itself.

Hughes' book is humorous as well as intriguing. Well documented as much as well written. The absence of references to Watergate in this book was perhaps a blessing in disguise, for Hughes retains historical perspective avoiding the immediacy of emotion. He states his theory of Executive power, without having to feel defensive about its abuse in the Nixon Administration.

While that abuse makes people suspicious of the powers of the Presidency, Hughes can point out in his book the accomplishment of F.D.R. during the depression, or Thomas Jefferson making the Louisiana purchase. The book is blatantly partisan towards the Executive Branch; its drama, individuals and growth. The Living Presidency is also excellent — a masterpiece that should be read by anyone interested in government or fond of advocating quick found solutions to contemporary problems.

The Living Presidency is available in The University Bookstore.

books

The National Football Lottery

National Football Lottery —
Larry Merchant
Holt, Rinehart and Winston New York
P.325 $7.50

by Bill Ballou

Before I tell you about Larry Merchant's advice for betting on the National Football Lottery, let me give you some of my own.

Use the money you save by not buying this book to bet on the Patriots in the Super Bowl. It'll be a most worthwhile expenditure, comparatively speaking.

Now, Merchant is supposedly a fine sportswriter. Occasionally you get glimpses of his talent, though they are usually confined to descriptions of weeks when he's winning money. But too often his account of his betting exploits turns into a narrative of his private life, which is none too interesting.

Here's how the book is set up:

Merchant was given a $30,000 advance from the publisher to use as a stake in betting on the week's pro football games. He could use it as he wished, and he didn't have to win to write the book.

He describes, week-by-week up to and including the Super Bowl, how he does. Also included are things like how he places his bet, how the line (like Colts by 3 over the Patriots) is figured, how he goes about picking a bet and the winners.

He goes into the internal mechanics of the national system of setting the line and goes all the way to Las Vegas and interviews the Mr. Big of football betting, along the way stopping to burst the Jimmy the Greek myth.

His discussion of the mechanics of the whole deal is unquestionably the best of the book, and if he had spent more time on that it would have been better reading.

What bugged me most about this trash, though, was the occasional tale of the sex life he throws in for good measure. He has this apparently lovely, and somewhat young, lady named Gail with whom he has an off-and-on affair. Great, I'm happy for him. And he has these occasional flings with other misses (one of whom he calls the rookie quarterback). And I bet that if you read it you'll be as bored as I was.

Merchant eventually turns out a winner. He ends the season betting on the Dolphins in the Super Bowl, though he doesn't risk all his earnings on them. For the year he wins something in the neighborhood of $20,000.

He wins 12 out of 16 weeks in the season, and the better he does at betting, the better he does at writing. And, in the end, that may be the fatal flaw in the book. He is not able to consistently produce an interesting and enjoyable style. He is forced too often, especially in bad weeks to fall back on vulgarity and crass humor to save his "writing"

Larry Merchant could do better by reducing the number of pages in his book by about 60 per cent. He could cut out his day-by-day description of his betting week, and reduce it to the day he bets and the day of the game. .

He could concentrate more on the mechanics of betting and less on the details of his own experience.

And he could give up on Gail.

GOOD CLOTHES, REASONABLY PRICED
OLD WEIRD HAROLD'S

Rt. 9, Hadley

New and Used Clothing — Cheap.

Keep All of yo'self warm, in our —
Snorkel Parkas
— or, do as the animals do in —
USED FUR Jackets & Coats
"What do you mean used?"
★PLUS★ NEW MALE JEANS 5.00 !
LEATHER + SUEDE JACKETS
CORDUROY + DENIM JACKETS, PANTS
USED JEANS, VESTS, FLANNEL, ETC.
Reindeer Sweaters

books

Come Ninevah, Come Tyre

Come Nineveh, Come Tyre
Allen Drury
Doubleday & Company, Inc.
481 pages, $8.95

Come Nineveh, Come Tyre is available at the University Bookstore.

By Jon Carr

With this book Allen Drury concludes his monumental Advise and Consent epic of the highest Washington political and social circles. While of course the characters and events are fictitious, Drury has accurately captured the atmosphere and physical appearance of the capitol city.

The thread of continuity between this book and his previous works has been maintained as the characters from the previous books come back once again to conclude the intricate webs they wove in the first four novels of the series.

The times have not treated some of the characters well. Harley Hudson, the Vice-President of Advise and Consent, is dead, brutally murdered in the midst of the Presidency he attained in Preserve and Protect. Orrin Knox is also dead, assassinated at the Washington Monument while at the height of a bitter Presidential race.

But there are survivors — Bill Abbott, ex-Speaker of the House and ex-President; Edward Jason, the ambitious and opportunist left-wing candidate for President, and Bob Leffingwell, the honest public servant and unconfirmed Secretary of State from Advise and Consent.

Drury wields these characters into a brilliantly imaginative plot. The man's mind weaves a deliciously complex story-line which, while it moves logically from crisis to crisis, at the same time presents options, although unutilized, to escape the predicaments.

The book opens with the double assassination of Presidential nominee Orrin Knox and the wife of Vice-Presidential nominee Edward Jason. Jason, an anti-war liberal supported by the leftist organization NAWAC (the National Anti-War Congress), then becomes the nominee for President and is elected. His campaign for peace, calling for the withdrawal of American forces from the embattled African nation of Gorotoland and from Panama, is marred only by the sometimes ruthless tactics which NAWAC directs against his political opponents.

At the Inauguration, Jason makes a stunning announcement — the immediate withdrawal of American forces not only from Gorotoland and Panama, but from every American outpost — the Mediterranean, the Indian Ocean, and Southeast Asia. His declaration is met with wild enthusiasm by a war-weary American nation.

The joy is short-lived, however, for at midnight of the same day the Russians launch a massive offensive, occupying the deserted American bases, harassing the wirthdrawing American forces, and even going so far as to attack Alaska.

Jason meets these threats not with armed resistance, but with attempts at appeasing the Russians, whose leader, Vasily Tashikov, Jason believes to be peace-loving and a captive of a Russian military cabal.

At the same time as the foreign crisis, the American domestic scene becomes increasingly violent as NAWAC organizes a group of black-shirted thugs who stifle all opposition to the President, as well as intimidating the media into submission.

After a blundering series of further crises, America falls to Russia, betrayed by a weak and misguided President and the fascist tactics of the leftist group NAWAC.

Drury has thus offered us his projection of the trends which he believes could destory America — an increasing permissiveness which allows the use of violent political methods, a shirking of international responsibility in favor of an out-moded isolationism, and the failure of America's nerve in opposing Communism. His position as stated in the book's opening note is that there runs through our times "the argument between those who would use responsible firmness to maintain orderly social progress and oppose Communist imperialism in its drive for world dominion; and those who believe that in a reluctance to be firm, in permissiveness and in the steady erosion of the law lie the surest path to world peace and a stable society."

It is ironic that the tactics which Drury has projected onto the American left have actually been the tactics of Richard M. Nixon as revealed by the Watergate scandal. Intimidation of the press the harassment of political opponents and the formation of a secret police can all be charged to the right wing and conservative Mr. Nixon. But Come Nineveh was completed in February of this year, before the full scope of the Watergate was apparent. Despite this the situation is still very ironic.

Drury has promised us an alternative ending to the Advise and Consent epic, which he will call The Promise of Joy: The Presidency of Orrin Knox, to appear in 1975. So if you are dissatisfied by the conclusion which Come Nineveh, Come Tyre reaches, another and more hopeful choice will soon be out.

Up the Camel's Hump (cont.)

Continued from Page 1

faintly in the distance. Was everyone else okay?

Our pride compelled an early rising at 4 a.m. So we stumbled along in the darkness with a flashlight to find the white blazes. Then, triumphantly at sunrise, we were on Camel's Hump. It was absolutely insance. It was like Mt. Everest. The sign said, "Welcome to Camel's Hump-Artic Climbing conditions." Thanks. Looking out on the distance we had traveled in the past two days, I marveled. We had conquered the wilderness. The cold forced early departure and we began sliding down the icy trail. At 8 a.m. we knocked on Gorham Lodge's door to learn that not everyone was safely there. Two were still missing. They had never come. Al and Heather had searched in vain. "I heard that on Al's trips no one ever gets lost," someone meekly offered.

Well, someone did. Search parties was the answer. Splitting up into smaller groups, we took different trails home, hoping to find them. They couldn't be far. Later, we learned of their fate when they reunited with one of the search parties. They were okay and hadn't met catastrophe. Wandering off the trail in the darkness, they settled down in a ravine. Psychological support was used when one was scared, the other was brave and vice-versa. A relief!

Then, deliverance! At about four we all met and rehashed the events. It sounds cool to say, "I'm going mountain climbing," but when it ends up with pains, search parties, crawling in the dark, stumbling down rocks, two lost overnight on a 4,000 foot mountain, four huddling somewhere below, two nestled in a lodge, and two roaming the trails in the night, you begin to wonder what possessed you from the start.

I wouldn't have missed it for anything.

New Titles
at CRONOPIOS BOOKS
27 N. Pleasant, Amherst

Open Eye, Open Heart
Ferlinghetti

English Sunrise

Fear of Flying
Erica Jong

Vaginal Politics
Frankfort

Subsistence U.S.A.

Wisconsin Death Trip

Healing Ourselves
Muramoto

We're a full service travel agency!

- Airline Tickets
- Steamship Tickets
- Railroad Tickets
- Hotels
- Resorts
- Cruises
- Honeymoons
- Vacations
- Car Rentals

Peter Pan
WORLD TRAVEL INC.

79 SOUTH PLEASANT ST
TEL. 256-6704
AMHERST

Are you tired of campus food?
How about a good home cooked meal?

ST. REGIS RESTAURANT

Mon.-Sat.
6 a.m. - 9 p.m.
Sun.
8 a.m. - 9 p.m.

The place that serves breakfast from 6 a.m. to 9 p.m.
daily except Sunday (8 a.m. to 9 p.m.).

Take a Friend To Dinner:

FRIED CHICKEN and SPAGHETTI	$2.50
BREADED VEAL CUTLET and SPAGHETTI	$2.25
GRILLED PORK CHOPS with choice of 2 vegetables, bread and butter	$2.50
FRIED CLAMS with Tartar Sauce French Fries & cole slaw	$2.45
GRILLED MINUTE STEAK with onion rings choice of 2 vegetables, bread and butter	$3.25

Left at the Intersection of Rt. 9 and Rt. 5 Downtown Northampton.
28 PLEASANT ST. NORTHAMPTON

Use A No. 2

By CAROL MacBAREN

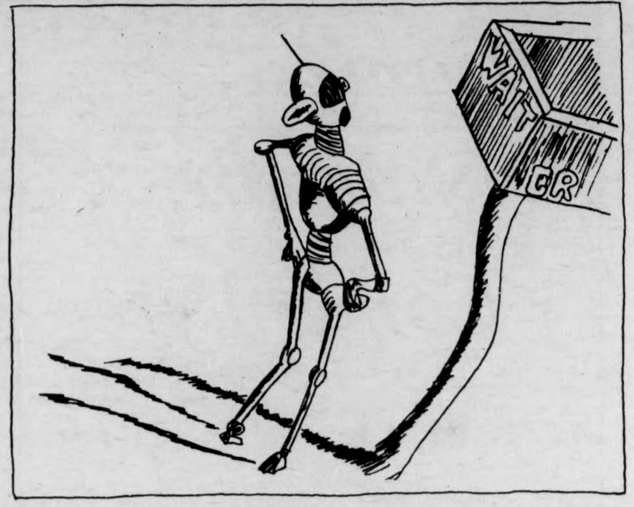
Presently we are in an age of rapidly growing and evolving technology. Hardley a day goes by when we aren't confronted in some way by that epitomy of technology, the computer. From the deluges of propagandist effluent inflicted upon us by the advertising industry, to the silent switching done each time we use the communications network of Ma Bell.

Even here at UMass, we have that infamous beast deep within the bowels of Whitmore, where we dump all the blame for being dropped from courses such as Psych 101 or Food Science 101.

It appears to me, that (whether consciously or not) we are being processed, and not just by a computer in Whitmore. How many of us have fallen into the television rut? That is, how many of us go home, turn on the tube, and watch whatever is on even if we don't care anything at all about the program? Or how many of us do the same thing day in, day out, or get drunk or stoned or both on the weekend just because it is the thing to do?

Let's face it, most of us have allowed ourselves to be like the preregistration forms that we fill out each semester, neatly filled in with a Number 2 pencil and processed. As completely as any piece of data for a computer program, we have been processed by and molded to that which the University and society have come to expect of us. We have allowed ourselves to be put into our own little niche. We find the easiest way out. What gut couse can I take next semester?

But why a niche? Should we allow all the conveniences that have been supplied by our technology cause us to forget exactly who we are and what we are?



Does it make us feel a little more comfortable with life? Is it a life? I suppose it is, but I can't feel quite comfortable with preprocessed, undemanding program that most of us tend. to call life.

I can't accept that definition of life. To quote Zenna Henderson in her tales of The People when they were forced to leave because of the impending destruction of The Home.

---"so if you were Called to the Presence right now and were asked, 'What do you know of My Creation?' all you could say would be, 'I know all that my Befores knew-my immediate Befores that is-I mean, my father-'" David opened his hands and poured out emptiness. "Oh, Mother! What we have forgotten! And how content we have been with so little!"

"But some other way." Chell cried. "This so-so drastic and cruel!"

"All baby birds shiver," said David, clasping her cold hands. "Sprout a pin feather 'Chell!"---

There are so many things that WE have forgotten, and there is so much beauty in the simple things, that it is a shame that we have allowed ourselves to be put into a niche, and miss so much. But you say that it is your life, and you can live it the way you feel. Right? Well in a sense, your right, but not completely. It is OUR lives and OUR world and we should get out and learn and grow. We should go out and feel the earth and air. We must not let ourselves fall into the trap that we have laid for ourselve. Technology is but a tool for us to use, and when we let it rule over us and we become slaves to it, then we are truly lost.

U. MASS. SKI TEAM sponsors

2 Ski Shows Nov. 12th

7:30 & 9:30 S.U. Ballroom

- professional ski racing film with Jean Claude Killey
- demonstration of G.L.M. skiing and X country skiing
- hot new ski fashions
- aerial acrobatics

Admission 50¢

World Renowned Artists At UMass

A trio of the world's most acclaimed performing groups is coming to the UMass Campus during the coming week under the sponsorship of the Fine Arts Council.

The Juilliard String Quartet

The Juilliard String Quartet, the official First Family of Chamber Music in the United States, will offer a program of Mozart, Bartok and Brahams during their concert here on November 15, 1973. This will mark the Quartet's tenth visit to the Amherst campus.

The following evening, Friday, November 16, The Kathakali Dance Theatre of India, this country's greatest theatrical group, will perform Ramayana, the Sacred Dance Drama of Kerala. Because the actors must be masters of dance, mime and gesture, they undergo a rigorous training from childhood, learning to perform the great Hindu epics. In addition to its vigorous acting and hypnotic music, Kathakali is especially noted for its elaborate make-up, colorful costumes and bejewelled headdresses. Since the make up process for some characters can take up to four hours, the Company often must begin preparations for an evening performance as early as 1 p.m. Both of these events will take place in Bowker Auditorium, Stockbridge Hall.

The Leningrad Philharmonic Orchestra, acclaimed during its last U.S. tour as "one of the best in the world" (Time Magazine) will appear under the direction of the Young and brilliant Maris Janssens in Curry Hicks Cage on Monday evening November 19. The concert at the Amherst campus will conclude the celebrated orchestra's tour of the U.S.....it's first in ten years.

Tickets for all of these events are now on sale at the Fine Arts Council Box Office, 125 Herter Hall (545-0202)

Admission price for the Juilliard String Quartet Concert and the Kathakali Dance Theatre will be $1.50 for UMass students with IDs, $3.00 for others. Tickets for the Leningrad Philharmonic concert are priced at $3.00 for UMass students with Ids, $6.00 for others.

All Fine Arts Council events begin at 8 p.m.

Kathakali Dance Co of India

Maestro Janssen of the Leningrad Philharmonic

Now Showing At CAMPUS CINEMAS Rt. 9 Hadley 256-6411

JAMES WILLIAM GUERCIO'S
Electra-glide in Blue
7:15 & 9:15

NOW AT POPULAR PRICES!
"Last Tango in Paris was presented for the first time October 14, 1972; that date should become a landmark in movie history. A film that has made the strongest impression on me in almost twenty years of reviewing." at 7:15 & 9:45
—Pauline Kael, New Yorker

GET YOUR HEAD SET AND SETTLE BACK!
KUNG-FU DOUBLE FEATURE!
"Deep Thrust" & "Shanghai Killers"
Lots of Action — Lots of Laughs!
R
SHOW STARTS 7:15

GODARD: EARLY/LATE
AMHERST COLLEGE, MERRILL SCIENCE

1963 Brigitte Bardot CONTEMPT 7:30 p.m.

1972 Jane Fonda LETTER TO JANE 9:30 p.m.

AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
ACADEMY OF MUSIC
NORTHAMPTON

Only Area Showing
This Film Must End Sunday ...
7:15 & 9:00

a FRANCOIS TRUFFAUT film
starring BERNADETTE LAFONT
Such a Gorgeous Kid Like Me
(Subtitles)
R RESTRICTED

PLEASE NOTE! No Dollar Night On This Program

SATURDAY NIGHT
REAL TEARS
9:30 - 1

SUNDAY
BLUES NIGHT with The
Ed Vadas Big City Blues Band
9 - 12:30

THE PUB

ZACHARIAH
a rock Western satire with Country Joe & the Fish - New York Rock & Roll Ensemble - Elvin Jones - Doug Kershaw - James Gang & the Firesign Theater - plus Roadrunner cartoons

Sat., Nov. 10
7 - 9 - 11 in Mahar

WEEKEND

compiled by Bob Nesti

BANANAS (1971)

Woody Allen's best feature to date is this furtive blend of gags centered on the exploits of a New York bred schmeil who becomes a South American revolutionist. Allen's fantasy world is that of the movies — his dreams evolve about the images and situations exploited by films. He experiences them and the resulting dichotomy is the source of his humor. It works best here: the crazy quilt narrative has the endearing qualities usually associated with great farcists, like the Marx Brothers. With Allen and Louise Lasser. Sage Hall, Smith College, Saturday, 11-10, 7:30 and 9;30.

BONNIE AND CLYDE (1968)

The depression gangster as superstar. An impossible film not to like, due mainly to the extremely likeable presences of Warren Beatty and Faye Dunaway in the title roles and the nifty direction of Arthur Penn. Penn is extremely effective at conveying the word; when the script lacks substance, so usually does the film. Luckily two of the depression's most fascinating criminals are made a couple of crazy, mixed-up kids by two of Hollywood's best young screenwriters Robert Benton and David Newman. All of Penn's expressionistic touches make sense, only the film is a bit too clever and all but evaporates a minute after its viewing. Gene Hadkman and Estelle Parsons are featured, the latter won an Oscar. Mahar, Friday, 11-9, 7,9, and 11.

COME BACK CHARLESTON BLUE (1969)

A funny caper picture involving the misadventures of two Harlem detectives. With Godfrey Cambridge. Student Union Ballroom, Sunday 11-11, 7 and 9.

DAVID COPPERFIELD (1935)

George Cukor's film of Dicken's classic story captures the essential elements of the characters and story without dilluting them in a wealth of Hollywood oversimplifications. Gavin Lambert has written the film is "the truest Dickens film ever made." It is certainly a fine representation of the quality stamp worn by MGM films in the Thirties and of George Cukor's career in the Thirties. Cukor and his collaborators captured the rambling quality of the story in realizing its vitality. W.C. Fields is Micawber in a part which Cukor has said he was born to play, Freddie Bartholemew, the most likeable of child actors in the Thirties, played David. Lrvyutr Toom One, Merrill Science Center, Ahmerst College, Saturday, 11-10, 7:30 and 10.

DEEP THRUST

Is it true the widow of Bruce Lee now resides in Sunderland? Campus Cinemas, Hadley.

DESTRY RIDES AGAIN (1939)

The film which saved Marlene Dietrich's lagging career. It slipped in the mid-Thirties when her films became lavish showcases for her undeniable beauty, in doing so her acting was reduced to a series of poses. In this western — satire effectively satirized her early glarourous image. As Frenchie, the barroom music hall performer, she is in Arthur Knight's words "A sleazy, sexy hussy." It is a comic performance of warmth and charm. The film itself if great fun, probably the best of western satires. With James Stewart as the sheriff who falls in love with her. Hampden Dining Commons, Southwest, Sunday, 11-15, 7:30 and 9:30.

THE DETECTIVE (1968)

Frank Sinatra plays a harried New York police detective in this murder-melodrama of little interest beyond the sensational. Lee Remick plays his nymphomaniac wife, the murder involves homosexuals, take it from there. Lurid. Student Union Ballroom, Wednesday, 11-13, 7, 9, and 11.

ELECTRA GLIDE IN BLUE

The director as self-proclaimed superstar. James William Guercio was the man behind those Foster Grants in all those half-page ads in the New York Times this past summer that announced his directorial debut as if a new Orson Welles was suddenly upon us. That's hardly the case; the film concerns a motorcycle cop in the Southwest who is a victim of sociological circumstances. The picture is something of a mystery, something of a comedy, something of youth message picture, and all a bloody bore. Robert Blake plays the motorcycle cop and the bloom of method acting certainly has wilted. Mr. Guercio should stick with managing Chicago, that commodity is much easier to handle. Campus Cinemas, Hadley.

FAT CITY (1972)

John Huston's best film in recent years is this rough and exuberant drama about boxing on a third-rate circuit. An aging boxer attempts to make a comeback, his young protege is trying to break into the circuit. This is patterned against the waste of too many years of hanging on to dreams. A superb performance by Susan Tyrell; with Stacey Keach. Student Union Ballroom, Thursday, 11-15, 7 and 9.

Smile while you're making it . . .
Even though you're fakin it . . .

A lucky man indeed Malcolm McDowell in "O LUCKY MAN"

HARPER (1965)

Paul Newman as a Bogart — like private eye in this attempt to ressurect those great Warner Brothers melodramas of the Forties. It just doesn't congeal and becomes a bit perverse, as if some sort of dirty joke. The cast includes Julie Harris and Lauren Bacall as a spidery reminder of the past. Gamble Auditorium, Mt. Holyoke College, Saturday, 11-10, 7.

LAST TANGO IN PARIS

Bertolucci's film, with Marlon Brando. Campus Cinemas, Hadley.

A THOUSAND CLOWNS

An extremely likeable study in nonconformity. Herb Gardner adapted his own Broadway play about a social worker attempting to gain custody of a young boy from his father. The father's life philosophy pivots on happiness without responsibility. He is a former Madison Avenue ad man who gave up his wife, job, and family for himself. His hassles with the bureaucrats involves a romantic entanglement with a young social worker. Jason Robards and Barbara Harris star. Amherst Cinema.

THE WAY WE WERE

Barbra Streisand, gawky and unpredictable, Robert Redford, cool and unapproachable, they are opposites who somehow mismatch for a marriage of political intrique and romantic incompatibility. A film of high spirits and loose ends, sustained by the irresistable combination of is stars. It spans decades in the marriage of conservative turned-liberal writer and his radical-turned liberal wife. Showcase Cinemas, West Springfield.

KIND HEARTS AND CORONETS (1949)

At the turn of the century, a young man vows vengance on the d'Ascoyne family, who had spurned his mother when she married a commoner. He murders the eight heirs (all roles played by Alec Guinness) who stand between him and the Dukedom of Chalfont. Without doubt, this is the best British comedy produced at the Ealing Studios under Michael Balcon. The story is told in a series of flashbacks as the hero writes his memoirs. This satire on the British aristocracy is largely based on "nonsense" humor, but is story evolves with a rigorous logic. Each murder produces its own irresistibly funny gag; the explosion in the laboratory, the priest's poisoned port, the suffragette's balloon shot down by an arrow, the stubborness of the admiral who goes down with his ship, the plastic bomb in a pot of caviar, etc. Herter 227, Tuesday, 11-13, 7 and 9:30.

MASCULIN-FEMININ (1966)

Paul comes home from his military service to Paris in December 1965, when presidential elections are being held. He loves Madeleine, who finds him a job with a popular show. She is a singer and makes her first record.

According to Scott Burton: "In Masculin-Feminin, Godard compiles a natural history of this period (adolescence). His film is also a version of Kulturroman, very much about a particular society at a particular time and place, and about how its issues and obsessions touch its young — now intimately, now peripherally......Godard's movie is full of dualities, of ambivalence and opposition. But the terms of its antitheses are as shifting as the loyalties of its characters, who are themselves described as the product of an extraordinary dialectic: they are 'the children of Marx and Coca-Cola'......The form of the film shifts back and forth between inclusive, open improvisation and considered articulated design." With Jean-Pierre Leaud. Thompson 104, Friday, 11-9, see ad for times.

MODERN TIMES (1936)

Charlie is a worker in a big factory, goes to jail, has various other jobs, and becomes unemployed; but he refuses to be defeated.

The theme is automation, the assembly line, unemployment and the world crisis — in brief "modern times" in the early Thirties. The most outstanding scene is that involving the feeding machine for which Charlie is both guinea pig and victim.

Based directly as it was on the world situation in the early Thirties, one might assume that it would later lose some of its forcefulness and sense of actuality. However, when it was re-released in the Fifties, a period of full employment and automation, it had lost none of its freshness. The passing years have only increased its power and affirmed its brilliant structure. Amherst Cinemas, Amherst.

SUCH A GORGEOUS KID LIKE ME

Truffaut's most recent black comedy is a gem. The footloose story involves the murderous misadventures of a young woman who longs to be a pop star. She becomes the subject of a young sociologist's keen mind and he, of course, falls in love with her as he visits her daily. Her story unwinds in flashbacks. Bernadette LaFonte is the heroine. Academy Of Music, Northampton.

Concerts & Local Music

CONCERTS

UMASS

Juilliard String Quartet — Nov. 15, Bowker ($1.50-3.00)
Leningrad Philharmonic — Nov. 19, Curry Hicks Cage ($3-6)
John Mayall-Bruce Springsteen — Nov. 25, Curry Hicks Cage
John Mayall-Maria Muldaur — Nov. 26, Curry Hicks Cage

AMHERST

Sam Rivers-Gato Barbieri-Keith Jarrett — Nov. 11, Amherst College Gym

SPRINGFIELD

George Carlin — Nov. 15, Municipal Auditorium
Poco — Nov. 28, Municipal Auditorium

WILLIAMSTOWN

New Riders of the Purple Sage — Nov. 16, Williams College, 7:30 and 10:30

MIDDLETOWN, CONN.

Mongo Santamaria — Nov. 10, Wesleyan College

BOSTON

Sam Rivers-Gato Barbieri-Keith Jarrett — Nov. 9, Symphony Hall
Strollers — Nov. 9-11, Garage
Powerhouse Band — Nov. 9 & 10, Zircon
Dr. John — Nov. 9, the Cricket, Ashland
Biff Rose-Tom Willets — Nov. 9-11, Passim Coffeeshop
Willie Dixon — Nov. 9-11, Joe's Place
Bloodstone — Nov. 9-11, Sugar Shack
Tracy Nelson & Mother Earth — Nov. 9-11, Paul's Mall
Bobby Hutcherson — Nov. 9-11, Jazz Workshop
Big Screamin' MacGrew — Nov. 9-11, Speakeasy
Taj Mahal-Blue-Chris Rhodes Band — Nov. 11, Tufts Herbie Hancock — Nov. 12-18, Jazz Workshop
Blue Notes — Nov. 12-18, Sugar Shack
Focus-Wishbone Ash — Nov. 13, Orpheum
Billy Preston-Z.Z. Top-Osibisa — Nov. 13, Music Hall
Bette Midler — Nov. 14, Music Hall
John Martyn — Nov. 15-18, Passim Coffeeshop
John Prine — Nov. 16, Jordan Hall
Martin Mull-Pointer Sisters — Nov. 17, Symphony Hall
Roy Buchanan — Nov. 18, Symphony Hall
Hot Tuna-Argent — Nov. 18, Orpheum
Genesis — Nov. 17, Tufts ($1.00)
Neil Young — Nov. 16, Music Hall
Franki Valli & the 4 Seasons — Nov. 21, Symphony Hall
Richard Harris & a 50 Piece Orchestra & J. L. Seagull — Nov. 21, Orpheum
Osmonds-Springfield Revival — Nov. 24, Boston Garden
Loggins & Messina-Jesse Colin Young — Nov. 29, (7 and 10 p.m.) Music Hall
Grateful Dead — Dec. 1 & 2, Music Hall
THE WHO — Dec. 3, Boston Garden

LOCAL MUSIC

NRBQ — Nov. 9-11, Rusty Nail
Seagull — Nov. 10, Deerfield Academy, Deerfield
Fat — Nov. 10, Hatch
Real Tears — Nov. 9, Hatch; Nov. 13, Rusty Nail
Sweet Pie — Nov. 14 & 15, Bluewall
Jonah — Nov. 9 & 10, Bluewall
Big Screamin' MacGrew — Nov. 16 & 17, Bluewall
Topper-Carew — Nov. 15-17, Hatch
Deadly Nightshade — Nov. 10, Pub
Ed Vadas Big City Blues Band — Nov. 11, Pub; Nov. 14 & 15, Rusty Nail
Doc Sullivan — Nov. 9 (3-6), 11 (4-8), 15, 16 (3-6)
D. J. — Nov. 9 (9:30-1), 16 (9:30-1)
John Morgan — Nov. 13, Pub
Billy Whyte — Nov. 14, Pub
Daddy Longlegs — Nov. 12, Rusty Nail

New England's
Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOLUME CI ISSUE 46 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS MONDAY, NOVEMBER 12, 1973

Weather

There's no need to own a roof, the bourbon is a 100 proof...

Recyclable

MDC Photo/John Stewart

Meet Pete the dog. Man has always regarded dogs as his best friend; in Pete's case it is true. Saturday, November 17, Pete will be walking 20 miles in behalf of the Belchertown Adolescent Training Unit of the Belchertown State School. The walk will begin at Sheldon Field, Northampton, at 8 a.m. this Saturday. At the end of the 20 mile track, buses will be waiting for the people (and dogs) who finish the route. If you do not intend to walk, why not call 256-0463 and help Pete the dog help his best friend?

Youth Falls 15 Floors To Death In SW Dorm

By JERRY LAZAR
AND MDC STAFF

A 20-year-old Northeastern University student fell fifteen floors to his death Saturday night after walking into an open elevator shaft in John F. Kennedy dormitory.

William Markussen, of 205 Belmont St., Belmont, was pronounced dead at 10:05 p.m. of "multiple skull fractures" by county medical examiner Dr. Sheldon Clapp.

"All I know is that the elevator door was kicked open," said Clapp, "but by whom I don't know."

"Campus police are investigating the fact that the door mechanism had been interfered with," said UMass spokesman.

Markussen was visiting friends on the fourteenth floor of the dorm this weekend, and was with "ten to fifteen kids from Belmont" in the fourteenth floor lobby immediately prior to the incident, according to an eyewitness who requested to remain unidentified.

The lights in the elevator were broken the night before, said the eyewitness, who described the broken lights as a "standard Southwest thing." There were no lobby lights on, either, he said.

The door was kicked open, added the eyewitness, and Markussen was in back of the crowd, saw the door open, walked up to the elevator, but apparently did not see inside the shaft....

The eyewitness emphasized that the door was "not kicked brutally," but declined to reveal who kicked it.

"A properly placed kick will make the door slide open very easily," he said. "Everyone in the dorm knows how to kick open the door. It's something to show visitors."

Markussen hit the elevator car "about three flights below," according to the eyewitness, and then continued to fall to the basement through the adjacent shaft.

Police were called at 9:14 p.m.

"The door was definitely forced open," said Kennedy Head of Residence Richard St. George, who admitted that the elevator doors can be opened without the car being at the floor. The situation has previously been discussed with dorm residents, according to St. George, who noted that problems of "endangering behavior" were talked about at a floor counselors' meeting last week, at which "the inherent dangers of elevators" was a topic.

All dorm residents received a letter dated September 3, according to St. George, which contained a warning against tampering with the elevators. A sign in the elevator reads: "Students are warned not to lean on elevator doors at any time."

According to St. George, there was an incident earlier in the semester when an elevator door was kicked open, and the car was stuck between floors.

"Whether or not it was done as a prank, I don't know," said St. George. "I think the elevators are like that in all Southwest towers," he added.

St. George confirmed that the elevator lights had been broken the night before, and added that he usually has to replace the elevator lights every weekend. According to his wife, Diane, "You can tell if the elevator is there even if the lights are out."

According to a resident of the fourteenth floor, most of the students on the floor were away for the weekend, and the only people around the elevator at the time of the incident were the victim and his friends from Belmont. When asked if the elevator door ever opens without the elevator car there, several students casually replied, "Sure, it happened just the other night."

Staff Photo/John Stewart

There was no immediate evidence of alcohol or drugs surrounding the incident, according to a UMass spokesman, but tests will be conducted to determine whether alcohol or drugs were a factor.

According to the eyewitness, who had been with Markussen and his friends during the evening, they had been drinking, "but it was too early in the night to be drunk," he said. "I think the University is definitely at fault," he added, citing the malfunctioning door mechanism and the broken lights.

"There's only so much you can do to babysit students," responded St. George. "They have to account for their own actions." St. George noted that "dorm situations promote rowdy behavior on weekends. As far as drinking goes, there's no policy about drinking in the rooms," he said.

A resident on the floor indicated that the victim and his friends "were not very rowdy" at the time of the incident.

Campus police and the district attorney's office are investigating the incident.

Markussen's body was taken to Douglass funeral home in Amherst, and transferred to Stanton funeral home in Watertown for Tuesday burial.

Games Room

Not Just A Place Of Refuge

By DANA IRLBACHER

Winter winds may be playing havoc with your coats and hats, but they are also blowing at least 300 students into the Games Room every day.

"When there's cold weather, everyone jams in here," said Mary Margola, equipment attendent and cashier. The Games Room, chock full of pool tables, ping-pong tables and a new red rug, is located across from the Hatch in the Student Union.

The rug was installed last summer and "adds to the relaxed atmosphere of the room," said Bud Wilkes, retail sales manager for Recreation and Services. He said he hopes the study presently being done by a design firm to renovate the entire Student Union building will bring some new changes for the Games Room within a year.

Richard Davies, manager of recreation and services, pointed out that some paneling, a new paint job, and extra sturdy furniture could lend more warmth to the room.

Davies added that presently he is considering the addition of a new table game called "air hockey". "We could use five more billiard tables," he said. "I wish we had more room."

This will be the Games Room's second full year of operation since its move from the Commuter Lounge in 1972. Despite a 90 cents hourly charge per pool table and long waiting lists, the Room "just broke even" in finances last year, said Davies. During

(Continued on P. 2)

On The Inside:

•Hairstyles page three
•The Ever-Growing Energy Crisis page five •Get A Judgeship page seven

Trying your hand at this Staff Photo/Bob Gamache

(Continued from P. 1)

summer break, with fewer operating hours and less student usage, the Room's income is lower than during fall and spring semesters.

Last year the operation made $1500, a figure slightly under annual upkeeping costs of the room and equipment.

"It's more of a service than anything else," added Davies.

For the number of students using the Games Room, damages are very few, said Margola. She added that the game-players usually take good care of pool sticks and equipment and are careful with their cigarettes.

Margola mentioned that many "regulars" use the Room's facilities. One student-cashier had remarked earlier, "You wonder if they ever go to classes....some come every afternoon and Sunday night."

Most of the student game-players are men, but Wilkes said that more and more women are playing ping-pong. Hopefully, with time and renovations more men and women will frequent the Room more often, he added.

A pocket biliard tournament is presently going on in the Games Room, sponsored by the Campus Center Recreation and Services Department. Out of 55 players, the winner and runner-up will represent UMass in the New England finals next February. They will take place at Central Connecticut State College in New Britain.

..or that MDC Staff Photo

Mortarboard Is An Honor

By CHRIS WALTER

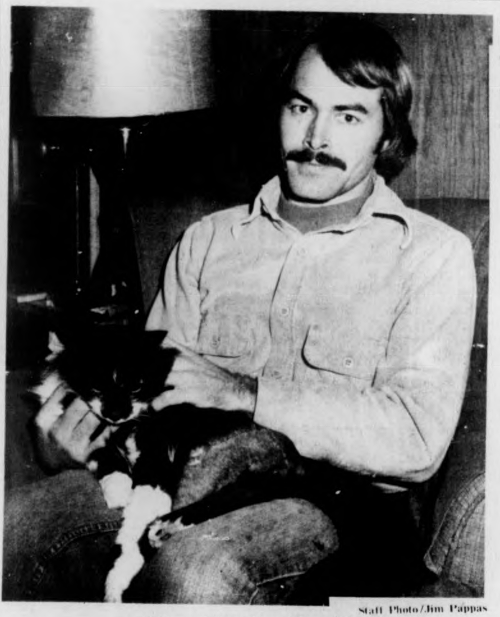
"Leadership, scholarship, and service" are the "ideals" which Mortarboard tries to promote, according to Margaret Kennedy, president of the organization. Mortarboard is an Honor Sorority open to senior women.

Prospective members, who must be in the upper third of their class, are sent applications and invited to apply for membership, Ms. Kennedy said. Applicants are then judged by the present members of the sorority on their scholastic acheivements and their activities and contributions to whatever clubs or service organizations they may have belonged to. The types of people Mortarboard is interested in according to Ms. Kennedy are those "who have contributed most to the organizations to which they belong."

"Mortarboard is the only national honor sorority for senior women in the country," said Ms. Kennedy. "There are about 160 chapters nationwide." Each chapter may have up to 35 members, she added. Mortarboard at UMass presently has 21 members, and has been on campus for 20 years.

Although known primarily as an honor sorority, Mortarboard also performs services by aiding groups and activities in which Mortarboard members are involved in, and by sponsoring one major project per year. This year's project is a "media presentation of different occupational fields for Senior women.

This year's sorority officers are: Margaret Kennedy, President; Edwina Porter, Vice President; Cynthia Collman, Treasurer; and Christine Ricciaidone, Secretary. Applications will be sent out in early spring. According to Ms. Kennedy, "Anyone who feels she is qualified because of the organizations she belongs to may request an application if she is not sent one."



Staff Photo/Jim Pappas

The problems in raising a family.

Blue Cross For Cats?

By MIKE KNEELAND

If there was a Blue Cross for animals, UMass senior Andre LaFlamme would be the first to subscribe. To date, his two pet cats have cost him more than $400 in medical expenses.

Sneakers, his two-year old cat, was the recent victim of a hit and run. Sneakers suffered multiple compound fractures in his upper femur (thighbone).

Dr. John Hilt of the Amherst Medical Clinic operated on Sneakers for 90 minutes. The veterinarian said it will take Sneakers two months to recover. This operation cost LaFlamme $120.

A short while ago, Sneaker's jaw was ripped out in another auto accident. This cost LaFlamme $175 in medical expenses.

Muffet, Andre's other cat was bitten on the ass last week by a neighbor's dog. Muffet survived the shocking experience, but it cost its owner $28.

Although LaFlamme doesn't enjoy paying medical bills, he says it's an "owners responsibility" to care for his animals.

Andre is getting married the 23rd of this month. His pretty wife-to-be says she doesn't mind Andre's devotion to his animals.

If Andre's luck continues as it hasn't been he might end up being married in Dr. Hilt's waiting room.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

The office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN is on the second floor of the Student Union on the campus of the University of Massachusetts, zip code 01002. Telephones: 545-2550 (news); 545-0344 (sports); 545-0731 (business).

Second class postage is paid in Amherst and additional mailing in Ware, Mass. 01082. THE DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes Monday through Friday during the academic year, except during vacation, exam periods or holidays. Accepted for mailing under the authority of an act of March 8, 1879; as amended by an act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $6.00 per semester of $10.00 per year.

R.D. Laing Speaks To Large CC Crowd

By SHERMAN BOYSON

"This man is big stuff. To actually see and hear someone that you've studied about is really something." This Umie's view of Dr. R. D. Laing, noted psychologist, was shared by about 3,000 persons who crammed into the Campus Center Auditorium last night to hear the doctor speak.

The auditorium was 100 percent filled. There wasn't even a trace of floor space for sitting left by eight o'clock. The unexpected size of the crowd forced the sponsors of the lecture to turn to WMUA to broadcast the lecture live to the campus. The waiting crowds were informed that if they were too uncomfortable they could go home and listen to the lecture on the radio.

The lecture was also broadcast throughout the campus center, but this did not discourage the crowd from personally seeing Dr. Laing. Thus, when the doctor arrived he was faced with a very full house of anxious fans.

Seated on the stage, and surrounded by students who could find no other place to sit, the doctor gave a preliminary speech and dealt with audience questions. A native of Glasgow, he first spoke for an hour in a very definite Scottish accent. His preliminary discussion dealt with states of mind, such as paranoia. "It is interesting to note", he said, "that while the term paranoia has been applied to feeling persecuted when one actually isn't; there is no term for not feeling persecuted when one actually is".

He also dealt with the areas of anxiety, and how humans relate to each other in today's world.

After his opening remarks, microhpones in the middle of the aisles allowed the audience to have the chance to directly question the doctor.

The lecture and proceeding discussions were on a high level of psychology. Anyone without a background of the subject was completely lost by the terms and relations discussed. Even the questions brought up by members of the audience dealt with areas too intellectual for the layman to follow.

The inability of the audience to follow the lecture was compounded by the extreme overcrowdedness of the auditorium. Many sitting on the floor found themselves boxed in and unable to move. Before long a general restlessness came over the crowd as cramped legs ached for a chance to move to a new position.

Staff Photo/Kevin Mack

R.D. Laing

During the question period, the speakers had difficulty with the PA system. One microphone didn't work at all — forcing the questioners to shout. The other microphone was constantly filled with static pops, making comprehension of the speaker difficult.

These two factors eventually led to a dimishing crowd, as many left the lecture early.

The lecture was co-sponsored by the Psychology Department and several related campus groups.

BROTHERS of the SACRED HEART a community of professed Christians committed to LOVE and SERVE YOUth in education
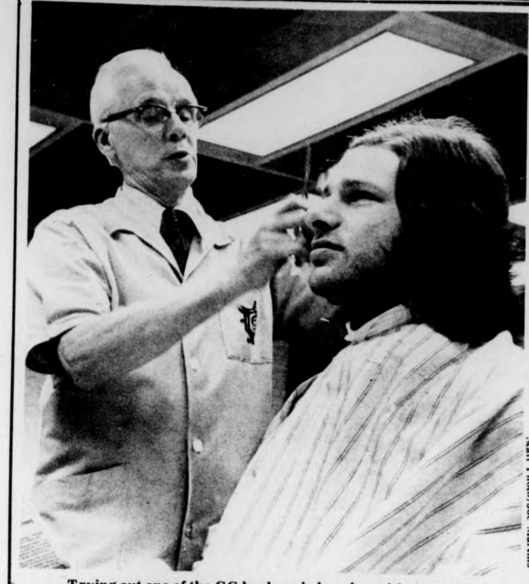
For Information
Write to:
VOCATION CENTER
Cor Jesu Terrace
Pascoag, R. I. 02859



Staff Photo/Joe Martins

Trying out one of the CC barbers in keeping with the fashion.

What's New In Hairstyles

By BONNIE ASSELIN

Change is constant. It can be so swift and indiscriminate that many of its indications go by unnoticed. However, one particular social phenomena will not escape documentation — those ever-changing hairstyles.

The long disheveled hair fashion of the late sixties and early seventies may be on the decline. Either long hair is not the symbol of defiance it once was or people care less to express it through appearance. Men in particular, are wearing their hair shorter and neater.

Current trends in area barber shops justify the theory. Their business is gradually increasing. More and more long-haired customers enter and then leave with short hair. It appears generally, that people are concerned with a neat appearance.

Nelson Major, owner of the Campus Center Barber Shop and a third generation barber, testified to the influx of business. He feels optimistic and estimates a 12% increase of customers over recent months. "It's a lot better than it was a few years ago," he said, referring to the era of campus unrest. "It was very slow then."

He reflected with fondness on the crew cut craze of the fifties and sixties. "It'll never be like in the sixties when business was really good. It was the military posture. People from ROTC got a haircut because they needed one," he recalled.

"Primarily, people with the real long hair are changing to medium length, even with the chin or thereabouts," said Ernest Paulin of the same barber shop, specifying his latest customer demands.

Lester Brigham, owner of The Executive Hair Salon in Northhampton, estimated one or two more customers per day. He attributed the increase to more advertising, the latest styling trend, and stressed "word of mouth" as his greatest advertiser.

"Shorter hair, even with the ear lobe, but full" is in vogue he said. Mr. Brigham specializes in the 'avante' hair cut and styled the hair of Jim Plunkett, the Patriot quarterback, in its fashion. He describes the style as "full, natural and masculine."

The prevailing taste in the College Town Barbershop of Amherst is also in creative style haircuts. Owner John Ritter said the layered look is dominant. "It looks long," he said, "but each hair is short, a few inches long." The afro is popular, also.

Why the change? People are concerned with a neater appearance. "It's back to the neater look," Mr. Ritter affirmed and added, "not necessarily a crew cut, but neater." One person having his hair cut said it was easier to keep. Another is looking for a job and wants to make a good impression. While still another feels the opposite sex is attracted by shorter neater hair.

You, with long hair, you are obsolete! Remember Ovid's immortal words: "We are charmed by neatness of a person, let not thy hair be out of order." Or is he obsolete?

The Selling Of The Pentagon

By MARK VOGLER
SPECIAL TO THE COLLEGIAN

WASHINGTON — Congress sets national policy — the Defense Department merely follows orders and makes sure that the country's combat capability is equal to the task in times of crisis.

Such is the role of DOD as recently explained by two Pentagon officials to a group of University of Massachusetts interns placed here by the Outreach program.

Major General L. Gordon Hill, Chief of Public Information and Dr. John F. Ahearne, Deputy Director (General Purpose Programs) attempted to justify an 85-billion-dollar defense budget while fielding several 'touchy' questions ranging from President Nixon's rationale for the 24-hour alert to DOD's version of the Pentagon Papers.

"One thing that bothers people all over the country is the perception that the cost of defense is enormous and always rising," Hill conceded.

"Compared to 1964 (50-billion), the last peacetime meal, that 85 billion dollars seems exorbitant today — but if we strip out inflation and pay raises it comes down to about $50 billion. The long and the short of it is the budget is the same as it was in '64."

In his brief lecture, Hill prevented a barrage of questions on the defense budget by reciting his repetoire of budget figures to the UMass interns.

"You might think defense takes in most of the tax payers money . . .well HEW (Health, Education and Welfare) has the largest budget. Theirs is $92-to 94 billion a year," he said.

He reasoned that based on the increased cost of living, the defense budget is a "relatively modest one." In 1964 29 cents out of every tax dollar went for defense while the total tax dollar average today is 19 cents, he said.

Hill turned his discussion to the status of the all-volunteer army and pointed out some of the problems encountered in the wake of the draft's termination.

One third of the 18 to 19 year-olds who don't have "a firm plan in life" must be recruited to fill present quotas — "and that's a pretty tall order," he suggested.

"The Amercian people don't want the draft anymore, so what can we do? The Armed Forces problem isn't bugging Congress to pass it. The only way it's going to work in the long run is for society to favor it."

In view of the concern raised by many people in government bureaucracies over the turmoil created by Watergate and the chance that the President might act irrationally, Hill was asked whether 'such a concern was indicated when the Defense Department might act irrationally, Hill was asked whether the concern had increased in the Defense Department and whether 'such a concern was indicated when the President put all defense personnel on a 24-hour alert last Thursday.

He avoided mentioning Watergate in the same manner in which he had evaded an inquiry of the Defense Department's version of the Pentagon Papers and the Daniel Elsberg episode.

Defending the President's rationale, Hill said the decision had been made with "the advice and consent of the National Security Council, the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and the Secretaries of Defense and State."

"A lot of people are involved in that type of decision and are very much concerned when the matter of national security comes before the country."

Hill added that the director of the CIA "had come to the conclusion 11:30 that morning that the U.S. had to do something to prevent the situation."

He said the alert was "no mistake" and reiterated President Nixon's view that it "helped to ease some of the tension in the Middle East."

Thomas Blanchette, a political science major in his senior year at UMass, quizzed Dr. Ahearne on the criteria used for determining whether a weapon system will be built, tested or purchased.

Ahearne explained that when a new weapon system is first devised DOD will present its research to Congress with favorable recommendations.

Blanchette then referred to an instance where $400-million was appropriated to the Cheyenne Tactical Armed Project which was later scrapped.

Ahearne contended that there were many other comparable wastes in other branches of the government.

Geoff Stewart, also a senior majoring in political science, pursued Blanchette's question by asking if DOD or Congree decides what weapons will be developed — and who's to blame for the waste in this area.

Ahearne credited the Department of Defense with decision-making process in weapon development and Congress with the approving power.

As far as money being wasted, he tried to compromise the matter as a joint responsibility. "The Department of Defense ought to decide whether something is necessary before it goes to Congress; and Congree ought to decide whether it's necessary before they fund it," he said.

In response to a grilling by Howard Spier — an intern in Shirley Chisolm's office — as to whether DOD had learned it's lesson from the Vietnam War, Ahearne passed the buck to Congress and the Executive Branch.

"In handling the Mid East crisis, Congress and the Executive have been much more cautious — and in a sense you can actually say they learned a lesson."

Tower Renovation Tops SW Budget Proposals

A major tower renovation proposal in Kennedy Middle and a request to sponsor a project in environmental living in Kennedy Lower will be among the major items considered by the Southwest Budget Committee when they meet next week to allocate $12,000 in SW Project Funds.

Kennedy Middle is asking for Project Funds in order to establish their twelfth floor lounge into a community center. Several twelfth floor walls would be torn down and replaced by folding dividers in order to provide more space at parties. One of the rooms on the floor would be converted into a Black Cultural Center and another into a pool room. It is hoped, stated the proposal submitted by Steven Dropkin, acting residence head of the house, that money will be allocated to purchase furniture, cabinets, and bureaus for these rooms. Allotted money would increase motivation among the residents to fix up the dorm.

Kennedy Lower wishes money to start an experiment in environmental living. Thy are requesting funds for combination locks for floor lounges, new furniture, and paint. It is hoped that floor painting projects can be established throughout the dorm at the start of the semester.

These renovations would hopefully create a new floor environment. If granted the money for the project, Kennedy Lower would study the effects of the changes in regard to academics, social life, and floor stability.

McKimmie House requests money for appliances to improve living conditions in the dorm. Among the materials which would be bought are vacuum cleaners, a sewing machine, and weights for the weight room. McKimmie also requested money for lounge carpeting, to be installed in the basement, the third and fourth floors, and in the amphitheatre.

Patterson House stated that since its lounge is a major meeting place for colloques and other activities, they would like funds to buy lounge equipment, including lights and chairs.

The Southwest Environmental Concerns 392 Course will request approximately $1000 to plant flower bulbs throughout the SW area. They say the bulbs help to offset the "coldness" of the area.

The Southwest Community Resource Center, located in Hampden, concentrated its budget request on security measures. They asked that a security barrier be installed, since many items, including ten bean bag chairs, have been stolen. They also requested money to replace the chairs, and funds for a new bulletin board.

Southwest Project Funds comes from the rents and fees paid by Southwest residents.

SKI SPAIN
Earn 2 credits during intersession
Call 5-2801

NE Editors Lambaste Nixon

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — President Richard Nixon "is totally in control, strong, able to understand the multi-polar world we live in," the chairman of the Republican National Committee said Saturday night.

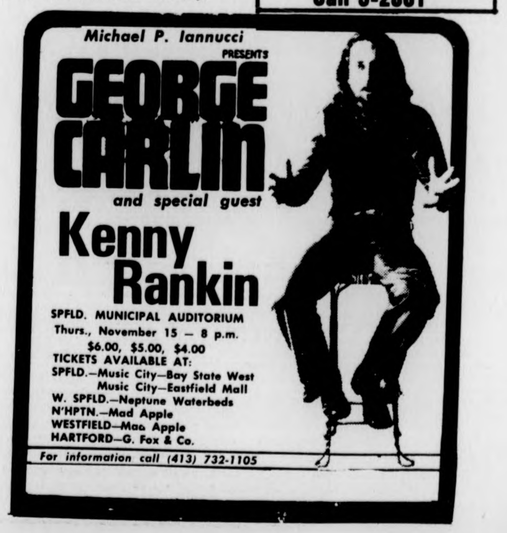
George Bush told delegates to the 19th annual meeting of the New England Society of Newspaper Editors that cries for the President's resignation represent "a copout approach" to problems of government and "are not in order when you have a constitutional system that is working."

Bush discounted speculation that the recent mideast crisis was contrived by the White House to draw attention away from domestic controversy.

It is "not worthy of the decency of the American people to give currency to that kind of rumor when you have a life or death situation and a big power confrontation," he said.

At the conclusion of the meeting, Joseph A. Kelly, a reporter and bureau manager for the Providence Journal, was presented the society's Master Reporter Award.

Mister Donut
never knows
when to quit.
(he's open 24 hrs. per day)
Mt. Farms
Mall
Rt. 9
(Russell St.)
HADLEY
Mister
Donut



Michael P. Iannucci
PRESENTS
GEORGE CARLIN
and special guest
Kenny
Rankin
SPFLD. MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM
Thurs., November 15 — 8 p.m.
$6.00, $5.00, $4.00
TICKETS AVAILABLE AT:
SPFLD.—Music City—Bay State West
Music City—Eastfield Mall
W. SPFLD.—Neptune Waterbeds
N'HPTN.—Mad Apple
WESTFIELD—Mad Apple
HARTFORD—G. Fox & Co.
For information call (413) 732-1105

PROVISIONS CHECK--Three armed Israeli soldeirs help an Egyptian soldier, right, check crates of oranges that will be passed through Israeli lines on the west bank of the Suez Canal near Suez City. The supplies are headed for the Egyptian Third Army encircled on the east bank of the Suez. Crates are inspected to insure that no arms are passed to the Egyptians.

(AP Photo)

Kissinger Woos Chinese Head

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

PEKING (AP) - Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Premier Chou En-lai met again Sunday amid speculation their discussions may lead to Chou's first visit to the United States or some other clear sign of closer U.S.-Chinese ties.

Later the two attended the ballet of "The White-Haired Girl," a tribute to the Chinese Revolution.

No details were disclosed of their 3-1/2 hour session in the Great Hall of the People, the second since Kissinger arrived in Peking Saturday from his whirlwind Middle East peacemaking mission.

Before hand, Kissinger and Chou called in photographers and newsmen to record their smiles and friendly banter. Chou told Kissinger, a non-smoker, he encourages smoking because its good for the Chinese economy.

But the Chinese premier said he doesn't approve of drinking very much. "I drank from 1935 to 1965, for 30 years," he said. "That's quite enough." Kissinger replied: "Mr. Premier, that's going to make quite a headline in America."

Kissinger is known to be eager to step up relations between Peking and Washington, and to come away from his sixth trip to China with solid achievements in this regard.

Kissinger believes that in the case of China, a diplomatic relationship is built more on face-to-face contact than through channels. This is the main reason he has been such a frequent visitor to Peking since his path-clearing secret trip in July.

Also, there is speculation fueled by a comment Kissinger made in a banquet toast Saturday night. "We are determined to do much to complete the process we started two years ago as rapidly as possible," he said, apparently predicting that Peking and Washington might upgrade the liaison offices they have in each other's countries to full-fledged embassies.

U.S. officials traveling with Kissinger said that such a move is highly unlikely before the Secretary of State leaves Peking for Japan on Tuesday morning. But the same officials also advised against expecting spectaculars during Kissinger's peacemaking swing through the Middle East last week - and out of that came a cease-fire agreement between Egypt and Israel and an exchange of ambassadors between Egypt and the United States.

U.S. Inspires

Truce In Mideast

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israeli and Egyptian generals met amid the rubble of war Sunday and in a matter of minutes signed a U.S.-inspired truce aimed at bringing peace to their troubled lands.

The milestone pact marked the first such formal Arab-Israeli accord since the 1949 Rhodes armistice. It strengthened the fragile cease-fire on the Suez Canal and opened the way for an international conference designed to bring permanent peace to the Middle East. Arabs and Israelis have fought four wars since the birth of Israel in 1948.

Maj. Gen. Aharon Yariv, assistant Israeli chief of staff and adviser to Premier Golda Meir, signed for the Jewish state. The signer for Egypt was Maj. Gen. Mahammed Abdul Ghani Gamazy, second-ranking officer in the Egyptian army.

"We have taken the first step on the long and difficult road that leads to a settlement of the conflict with our neighbors, and to peace with them," Yariv declared afterward.

Syria, the other major combatant in the October war, snubbed the new truce deal, put together by the diplomacy of U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger during his tour of five Arab capitals last week.

By the time the signing took place, the fast-traveling Kissinger had moved on to Peking on diplomatic business with the Chinese.

The Egyptian and Israeli representatives put their signatures to the English-language document on a U-shaped table covered with gray cloth at about 3 p.m.-8 a.m. EST. They shook hands but did not exchange salutes.

Looking on inside the United Nations tent was Gen. Ensio Siilasvuo, Finnish commander of U.N. peacekeeping forces.

The accord said Israel and Egypt agree:

-To observe the cease-fire issued by the U.N. Security Council Oct. 22 and renewed Oct. 23.

-To start discussions on the cease-fire lines of Oct. 22 in the framework of agreement on disengagement and separation of forces under U.N. auspices.

-To get daily supplies of food, water and medicine to the town of Suez and evacuate wounded Suez civilians.

-To avoid any impediment to the movement of non-military supplies to the east bank of the Suez Canal, where Israel says the Egyptian 3rd Army is encircled.

-To replace Israeli checkpoints on the Cairo-Suez road by U.N. points, with Israeli officers checking supply movements.

-To exchange all prisoners of war "as soon as the U.N. checkpoints are established."

The pact was accepted by Cairo after Kissinger's talks there with Anwar Sadat last Wednesday. Israel accepted it in principle Friday but held back final approval for an extra day as Mrs. Meir sought additional clarification from Washington on how it would work.

The 75-year-old Israeli premier announced her final okay Saturday night. She apparently got assurances in two meetings with U.S. Ambassador Kenneth B. Keating that the new truce won't force Israel to relinquish its battlefield advantages before the over-all peace talks expected as the next step of the new truce.

Mrs. Meir appealed for backing Sunday from fellow Socialists at a London meeting of the Socialist International. The gathering was arranged at her initiative in an apparent bid for the peace conference. She calls it "the next big step".

The editor of the semi-official Cairo newspaper Al Ahram predicted the peace conference will be held the second week of December in Geneva. Mohammed Hassanein Heikal, a Sadat confidante, wrote that an Arab summit conference must be convened before then to forge a common Arab position against Israel.

But Heikal said tha during a 2-1/2 hour meeting last week with Kissinger, the American secretary told him that six months to a year are needed to bring genuine peace to the Middle East.

"What I am asking for now is patience," Heikal quoted Kissinger as saying. "I am afraid of the Arab romantic. I am apprehensive you believe that the solution will be at the first crossroads."

The new American ambassador to Egypt, Hermann F. Eilts, arrived in Cairo to become the first ambassador-level U.S. envoy to Egypt since Cairo broke diplomatic relations with Washington over the 1967 war.

Another arrival in the Egyptian capital was Palestinian guerrilla leader Yasir Arafat, who conferred with Sadat in what was assumed to be an explanation of the new truce. The Egyptian leader has said the Palestinians should attend the peace conference.

Coronary Bypass

Heart Operation Most Common

By BRIAN SULLIVAN
AP Science Writer

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)-An operation introduced only five years ago and still somewhat controversial has become the most common heart operation in this country.

The technique is called coronary bypass surgery and it has been shown, heart experts said here, to be clearly effective in relieving the painful symptoms of angina pectoris.

Whether the relatively new operation will also prolong life or prevent heart attacks is not yet clear and nationwide studies are being started in hopes of finding out.

The bypass surgery was one of the most intensely discussed subjects at the 1973 scientific sessions of the American Heart Association, which ended Sunday.

Dr. Richard S. Ross of Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore told reporters that 25,000 bypass operations were performed in 1972 and 40,000 are expected for 1973.

muscle does not get enough blood. There may also be pain in the left arm and shoulder.

To step up the flow of blood to the oxygen-starved heart, surgeons are making use of the saphenous vein, a blood vessel in the leg, to contruct a new pipeline around the obstruction.

The surgeons attach one end of the grafted vessel to the aorta, the body's main artery, and the other end to a spot on the coronary artery that is beyond the obstruction.

"The procedure is still controversial, and standards for selecting patients for bypass continue to be argued by medical specialists," the heart association said.

Dr. Gerald Austin of Harvard Medical School and Massachusetts General Hospital said the answer is an "emphatic no" to the question of whether all surgeons should be allowed to do it.

Bypass surgery should be done only in large medical centers which handle a large number of cases and have necessary backup facilities, he said.

MDC
NEWS HOTLINE
5-2550

安城中國飯店
AMHERST
CHINESE FOOD
Authentic Chinese
EAT IN TAKE OUT
62 Main Street, Amherst
253-7835
Hours: M.T.Th.. 12-10 p.m.; Fri. Sat., 12-12 p.m.; Sunday, 4-10 p.m.; Closed Weds.

Congratulations
To Our Brother
STEVE ERICKSON
Mayor Elect of Gardner
The Brothers, Sisters, and Pledges of ΣΑΜ

CAMPUS Cinemas
Rt. 9, HADLEY
256-6411
STARTS WED.!

In the three-year period which followed the murder of President Kennedy and Lee Harvey Oswald, eighteen material witnesses died — six by gunfire, three in motor accidents, two by suicide, one from a cut throat, one from a karate chop to the neck, three from heart attacks, and two from natural causes.

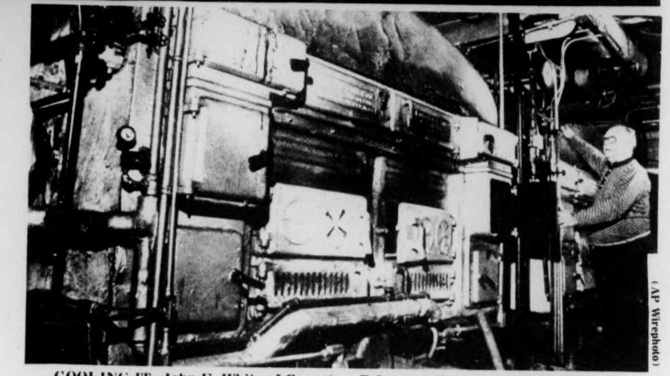
An actuary, engaged by the London Sunday Times concluded that on November 22, 1963, the odds against these witnesses being dead by February, 1967, were one hundred thousand trillion to one.

Burt Lancaster • Robert Ryan • Will Geer
Executive Action
Opened To Rave Reviews In New York
Last Wed. - DON'T MISS IT! PG

The Growing Energy Crisis

(AP Wirephoto)

LAWRENCE, Kan. Nov. 8--FUEL SHORTAGE IDLES DAM CONSTRUCTION--Between 45 and 50 earth movers at the Clinton dam construction site were idled Wednesday by a lack of diesel fuel. The shortage apparently came about when the distributer supplying the construction company reported he was out of fuel.



(AP Wirephoto)

COOLING IT--John F. White of Cranston, R.I., custodian at the National Guard Armory in Providence, adjusts the oil pressure for a lower temperature in the armory after listening to President Nixon's message on conserving energy.

The States Crack Down

By JIM WILLSE
Associated Press Writer

From turning down thermostats in Minnesota to shutting off air conditioning on buses in Hawaii, officials in every state are moving to counter this winter's energy crunch.

Four days after President Nixon outlined a series of steps designed to ease the fuel shortage, an Associated Press survey of officials in each of the 50 states showed most had followed or were about to follow at least some of the President's recommendations.

Among other things, Nixon suggested on Wednesday that speed limits be lowered to 50 miles per hour, that thermostats be lowered 6-10 degrees and that unnecessary outdoor lighting be extinguished.

Several Northern states, accustomed to chilly winters, already had acted along those lines. A great many others have found themselves preparing legislation or forming advisory councils to help them tighten their energy belts.

According to the AP survey, 31 states have directed government employes to drive at reduced speeds, usually 50 m.p.h., and have urged private motorists to follow suit.

Thirty-four states have deliberately cooled down their office buildings, most to 65-68 degrees, and 25 states have ordered cutbacks in office or ornamental lighting.

Seven states have imposed lower speed limits on their roadways, and governors of a number of others say they expect similar action if Congress doesn't act first to make the reduction nationwide.

New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Washington, Rhode Island and Vermont set speed limits of 50 miles an hour. California previously had ordered a 65 m.p.h. limit on roads posted at 70.

In Georgia, Gov. Jimmy Carter forbade state vehicles to exceed 50 m.p.h. and told police to stop motorists who exceed the state's 60 m.p.h., no matter how slightly.

Of the states reducing lighting, some altered nighttime cleanup schedules, some simply removed light bulbs and some shut off floodlights that had illuminated capitol domes and memorials.

In the Washington, D.C., area, the General Services Administration removed 750,000 florescent light bulbs - about 22 per cent - in 87 buildings, a pattern followed at most federal buildings in other cities. The lights at the Washington Monument and Lincoln and Jefferson Memorials are doused after 9 p.m., although the Capitol remains lighted later.

New Hampshire Gov. Meldrim Thomson said he is considering asking state businesses to convert to a four-day week to save on heating bills. Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace created a special Energy Management Board.

In Honolulu, officials estimated that turning off air conditioning on city buses would cut fuel consumption 15-20 per cent.

Congress Looks For Relief

By EDMOND LeBRETON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Congress sets to work this week on legislation dealing with the energy crisis.

Committees scheduled hearings on various proposals by President Nixon to deal with the immediate problem, and quick action is expected.

On a related subject, with long range effect, the House is to vote Monday on the compromise version of legislation to clear the way for the Alaska pipeline. If the House votes to approve, the Senate is expected to follow promptly.

Also still under study in Congress is the nomination of Gerald R. Ford to be vice president. The Senate Rules Committee plans to complete its work on the subject by the end of the week. The House Judiciary Committee will begin hearings Thursday.

Votes on Ford are expected in the Senate before Thanksgiving and in the House by Dec. 6.

The Senate Watergate committee resumes hearings Tuesday.

Legislation to return the nation to Daylight Saving Time will be considered by the Senate Commerce Committee on Monday and by the House Commerce Committee on Tuesday.

An emergency bill will be before the Senate Interior Committee Monday and the House Commerce Committee on Wednesday.

A Senate public works subcommittee turns to a bill Monday to authorize temporary waiver of clean air standards to permit prompt conversion to high sulphur fuels.

The House has set a vote Thursday on a two-step 11 per cent increase in Social Security benefits, with an accompanying increase in the payroll tax base.

Its Judiciary Committee, which heard testimony last week on proposals to establish a Watergate prosecutor's office independent of the executive branch, begins work in subcommittee Monday shaping a bill.

The House Ways and Means Committee, still hoping to complete work before Congress' adjournment on pension reform legislation, returns to that subject Monday.

Two appropriations bills, containing funds for the State, Justice and Commerce departments and for the Labor and Health, Education and Welfare departments, are expected to be enacted in compromise form by the end of the week.

At the end of business Thursday, the House, over the continuing protests of a few of its members, begins a recess until Nov. 26. The Senate is confining its break to the long Thanksgiving weekend.

If all goes well, House leaders told their colleagues at the end of last week, Congress should be able to adjourn by Dec. 15, returning Jan. 21 for its second session.

Oil Tap Closed For Ever?

By HOLGER JENSEN
Associated Press Writer

RIYAH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — King Faisal, having shut the Arab oil tap, may never open it again to the level required by an energy-hungry world.

The Saudi Arabian monarch has linked the flow of oil to a permanent settlement of the Middle East conflict. As the leader of oil policy in the world's biggest reservoir, the Arabian peninsula and the Persian Gulf, he has the power to make it stick.

U.S. diplomats here say it might take years rather than months to satisfy the king's withdrawal from occupied Arab lands and a permanent resolution of the Palestine question, including the status of Jerusalem. Even this year will only insure a return to prewar production levels, the amount of Arab oil reaching the world before the fourth Arab-Israeli war of October.

The Arabs' oil customers will have to come up with some pretty convincing economic arguments to get future production increases they so desperately need. So far they don't have one, and Faisal isn't prepared to listen anyway until Wasnington changes its pro-Israeli stance.

Thus the outlook for the consumer is bleak. Gasoline rationing, and the shortage of heating oil and industrial energy will get worse before it gets better unless an alternative energy source is found.

"We're not talking about one cold winter but many cold winters to come," warned newly appointed U.S. Ambassador James E. Akins, a leading American oil expert who formerly headed the office of fuels and energy in the State Department.

Akins, who has long warned Washington not to underestimate the Arab oil weapon, endured a blistering one-hour diatribe from the king when he presented his credentials last week. It was, he reported later, "not entirely a pleasant experience for me."

Faisal emphasized three points:

—The Arab oil embargo against the United States and production cuts affecting Europe and Japan will continue until Israel withdraws from all occupied Arab lands.

—Future production increases will be discussed only in the "right political atmosphere," after all Arab lands have been recovered, the Palestinian question resolved and an Arab flag flies over the Arab quarter of Jerusalem.

The 69-year-old king, a devout Moslem, told Akins! "I am an old man. Before I die, I want to pray in the Mosque of Omar," in Jerusalem. He has rejected proposals to internationalize the holy city.

Practice What You Preach

WASHINGTON (AP) - Rep. Charles B. Rangel, D-N.Y., says he will ask the General Accounting Office to determine how much fuel is consumed by President Nixon on trips to his homes in Florida and California.

"I think it only fair that the American people, asked by the President to make substantial sacrifices to save fuel, know how much fuel the President consumes when he decides to fly away from the White House for a weekend in Key Biscayne for Camp David or a longer stay in San Clemente," Rangel said in a statement Sunday.

Rangel said the President should show his own willingness to sacrifice.

"WALKING TALL"
"The best American movie so far this year, and a truly extraordinary action film."
— Rolling Stone
Starts Wed.,
Nov. 14
Campus Cinemas

SKI SPAIN
Earn 2 credits during intersession
Call 5-2801

Prof. Robert Hill
Tom Wolfe
Jill Johnston
D.V.P. Wants You!
DEADLINE TODAY
The Distinguished Visitors Program Committee is opening membership to freshman and transfer students. Applications may be picked up in the Student Activities Office, Room 416 and D.V.P. Office, Room 428 in the Student Union (floor above candy counter).
Amnesty?
Believe It or Not Series
Norman Bigelow

MUA Discusses B'town Walk

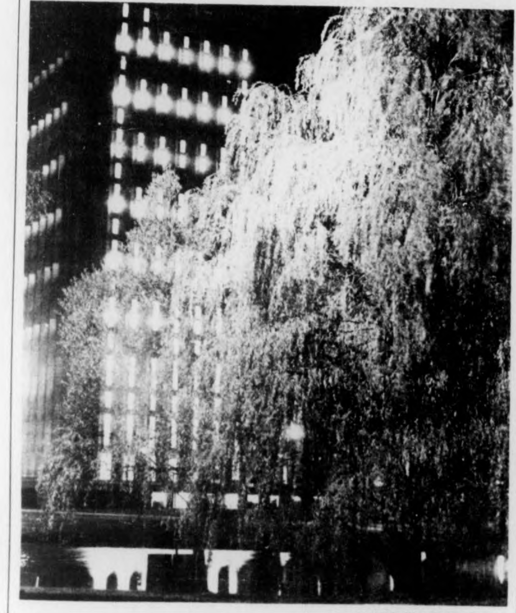
Tonight at 10 P.M., WMUA (UMass radio, 91.1 FM) will broadcast a discussion on preparations for the Belchertown State School benefit walkathon which is scheduled for Saturday, November 17th.

The program is being presented as a special feature of "Focus," WMUA's weekly public affairs series moderated by Kenneth Mosakowski.

Mosakowski's guests for the first half of the live, 60-minute forum will be walkathon publicity coordinators Kenneth Spiegelman and Jay Cleary.

The second half of the program will feature a discussion with an area organizer for the United Farm Workers Union. The Farm Workers are continuing their efforts to boycott western Massachusetts stores which they say are selling non-union lettuce and grapes.

Interested listeners are invited to call in questions during the live broadcast.



(Staff Photo/Jim Pappas

ENERGY CRISIS? Not at UMass.

Congress Watch Security Groups

Ripon Society Sponsors Anti-Secret Police Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Ripon Society has proposed that Congress pass legislation to prevent the White House from using government secrecy "as a tactical, political weapon to prevent legitimate, democratic challenge to its international policies."

The legislation should "establish the principle that the intelligence gathering agencies of the federal government have the responsibility to provide information to the Congress and the public as well as to the executive branch," the society said in an editorial accompanying publication of a report on government secrecy.

The Ripon Society, based in Cambridge, Mass., describes itself as progressive Republican.

"Congress' need to know is defined by its need for information essential to its function of determining and influencing foreign policy. The public's need to know is defined by its need for information to be able to determine the policies its government has pursued," the editorial said.

Government secrecy "is a creature of the executive branch," it concluded.

The legislation proposed by the society would ensure that four Congressional committees concerned with national security "have access to all top secret information-without any access controls imposed by the executive branch-and that these committees, not the executive branch, control access of the remaining members of Congress to top secret information."

The editorial identified the four committees as the armed services and foreign affairs committees of the House and Senate.

Video Tape For Filling Jobs

Stop Action Interviews?

By JEAN BRAUCHER
Associated Press Writer

ORONO, Maine (AP) - In a rapidly expanding job placement program developed at the University of Maine here, poise in front of a camera has been added to such traditional job-hunting skills as being able to type a neat resume and look presentable at an interview.

The video-taped interview has become a regular part of the placement office's services with about 150 tapes of interviews with seniors and graduate students expected to be offered this year to 100 employers in industry, business, education and research work.

The director of Career Planning and Placement says the taped interview program he has developed over the last two years has generated interest from more than 50 other schools which are consulting with him on setting up such programs.

Philip Brockway, a 39-year veteran of placement work at the campus here, says he got into the taping business because "we were disturbed at the way campus interviews dropped off by a half with the recession."

Sending taped interviews to the employers, located from Maine to the West Coast, saves the time and money expenditure of a trip, he said.

Last year, taped interviews played a part in 15 per cent of the university's job placements.

The 15-minute video tape is made in a small studio right in the placement office. Brockway says camera shyness is a minimal problem.

"Of the 60 interviews we've taped so far this year, only one has been a total failure," he said. "In that one, the student got so uptight, so nervous, that he couldn't express himself at all. We gave up by mutual consent."

Since the tapes go to more than one prospective employer, the interview is kept broad, focusing on the student's general interests and plans, the kind of jobs he is interested in, his summer jobs and college activities and "what kind of person he thinks he is."

The interviews are not rehearsed, though occasionally a student will make a second one if the first comes out poorly.

"But the interviews don't get a great deal better with repetition. They lose their freshness and it shows," Brockway said.

"Mostly, the students do very well. I admire them. And they love to see themselves afterwards. Most are rather surprised at how well they do," he said.

The video tape interview is not expected "to clinch an offer," and is supplemented with a resume and sometimes followed up with a personal interview. But it is a valuable "pre-selection tool," Brockway said.

The university received a $25,000 grant for its video taping program from an insurance company that relies heavily on campus interviewing for finding employes and is therefore interested in the more efficient approach of using the tapes, he said.

The grant has made it possible for the placement office to hire an extra person to administer the program, but Brockway said this isn't essential.

Sargent To Make Energy Statement

BOSTON (AP) - Gov. Francis W. Sargent is expected to announce energy conservation measures in a special message to the public Tuesday, state officials said.

A spokesman for the governor indicated Sargent would recommend changing public school children's spring vacation to the winter months so that consumption of heating oil in school buildings would be reduced during the coldest months.

John R. Verani, state secretary of consumer affairs, said other measures the governor is expected to announce include a 50-mile-an-hour speed limit for all Massachusetts roads, sharp cuts in unnecessary lighting including Christmas displays, and reduced use of state cars.

Sargent was scheduled to confer with federal officials Monday on curbs needed to conserve the nation's energy supply.

"Even with an intense conservation effort and with a mile winter, there will be disruption and inconvenience but there will not be any full fledged catastrophe," Verani said.

"But if people don't do their part to save energy, all of New England will be in trouble. The day of cheap, readily available energy is over," he said.

"From now on, people will have to change their life styles to meet the changing conditions."

Staff Photo/Kevin Mack

ANOTHER CASE OF THE DC BLUES—The above entree, which was actually served to a student in the Berkshire commons, consisted of tuna-noodle caserole, spinach, tomato, and one raw hornet. Shown dining is Tatanka, a resident of Mildred Pierpont house, who was reportedly ill all evening after dinner.

ROOM TO MOVE
Campus Drug
Drop-In Center
CALL 5-0400
24 HOURS A DAY
7 DAYS A WEEK

Gentlemen, start our engines.

For the man that has almost everything.
Test drive our 1974 Porsches.
JONES
PORSCHE AUDI INC.
721 WORTHINGTON STREET
SPRINGFIELD, MASS. 01101
TELEPHONE 413-781-1820

UPPER DIVISION PHYSICS COURSES
For Biological & Physical Science Majors
301 Concepts of Modern Physics
319 Electronic Instrumentation
320 Radiation Physics & Nuclear Medicine
386 Special Problems
391 Seminar on Molecular Bio-physics
For details, see course description guide or inquire in Hasbrouck 110.

47
MONTAGUE
MILLERS FALLS
47
HADLEY
SO. HADLEY
116

Staff Photo/George Withers

Get serious about your carburetor. John Law is seen here crouching behind his cruiser and waits for the signal from his radar unit to inform him of an infraction of the Sunderland speed limit.

Judge For Yerself!

For the past few days, the Collegian has run an ad requesting interested undergraduates to submit their names as candidates for Student Judges. The positions available are on a student run court system. This judicial system operates University wide and has jurisdiction over all undergraduates. A wide range of cases may be brought to University Judiciary. They can range from individual offenses such as shoplifting or removing University property from dorms to complaints against RSO groups.

At present there exist three vacancies on this court. These positions are designed to insure minority representation and candidates are to be interviewed and selected by a committee of the Senate. Interested applicants should see James Pappas, Student Attorney General in room 422c in the Student Union.

Our judicial system is at present in the early stages of reorganization and applicants need not have any legal training or experience. An important qualification is however, a genuine interest and willingness to put some work into something with tangible results.

Contact James Pappas, 422c Student Union, at 5-0716 for more information.

Women, Get What You Are Worth

WELLESLEY, Mass. (AP) - About 400,000 American women are entitled to at least $162 million in back pay because they have been illegally paid less than their male counterparts for the same work, feminist author Caroline Bird said Saturday.

Ms. Bird, author of "Everything a Woman Needs to Know to Get Paid What She's Worth," told a symposium on women's issues at Wellesley College that most women will have to go to work after they marry because "Prince Charming often doesn't earn enough money and many families need two paychecks."

She said a study showed 86.2 percent of recently graduated and married college women had joined the work force.

"For good pay, women should first avoid the female job ghetto jobs, such as teaching and secretarial work, and go where the men are," Ms. Bird said.

"We have too many teachers now, and with the declining birth rate, a third less will be needed in a few years.

"Secondly, women should take full advantage of the Equal Pay Act."

Conserve Your $, Don't Speed

BOSTON (AP)-Massachusetts Public Safety Secretary Richard McLaughlin has called for stiffer fines for motorists convicted of speeding in light of the nation's energy crisis.

"I think what might be needed is a stiffer scale of fines, in other words, here we not only have all the highway safety implications of speeding, but we also have the nibbling away at the nation's limited energy resources," McLaughlin said Sunday.

"It becomes a pretty irresponsible person who will speed."

McLaughlin made his remarks on radio station WEEI's "Bay State Forum" program.

HUD Funds NE Housing

BOSTON (AP) - About 6,000 units of subsidized multi-family housing will be built in New England with funds recently released by the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development, James J. Barry, HUD regional administrator, announced Sunday.

Barry said the units will be in addition to project applications that received initial approval prior to the subsidized housing moratorium announced last Jan. 5.

The new units will be designed to meet relocation housing requirements for urban renewal project commitments in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut, Barry said.

PhD Candidates & Recipients
All Disciplines
MBA's and PhD Candidates in Business

All advanced graduate students and faculty interested in university teaching positions and/or corporate internships in Latin America are invited to meet with Mr. Oscar Porter of the Latin American Teaching Fellowships on Monday, November 12, 1973, at Room 102, Berkshire House, from 3:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m.

Look Who's Talkin'

AMHERST, Mass. (AP)-Student newspapers at 84 colleges and universities across the nation have called for the impeachment of President Nixon in a joint editorial to be mailed to members of Congress Monday.

The editorial was drafted by the editors of the Amherst Student of Amherst College here.

"Richard Nixon now rules by fiat and force," the editorial says. "He is no longer a legitimate leader. The President must be impeached. No amount of legal double-talk or political timidity can obscure this fact."

In a letter to Congress accompanying the editorial, the student editors said "the outrage of the late 1960's" has been rekindled on campuses throughout the nation.

"The impeachment of Richard Nixon is a prerequisite to the restoration of confidence in our system of government," the editors wrote.

Student newspaper editors at the following schools endorsed the editorial:

Amherst College, American University, Barrington College, Boston College, Bowdoin College, Brooklyn College, Bucknell University, California Institute of Technology, Carleton College, Carnegie-Mellon University, University of Chicago, City College of New York, Clark University, Colby College, Colorado State University, Columbia University.

Cornell University, Dartmouth College, University of Delaware, Denison University, Dickinson College, Duke University, East Tennessee State University, Fairleigh Dickinson University-Madison, Fairleigh Dickinson University-Teaneck, Fordham University, Georgetown University, George Washington University, Goucher College, Grinnell College, Hamilton College, Hampshire College, Harvard University.

Haverford College, Bryn Mawr College, Holy Cross College, Hunter College, Iowa State University, Kansas State University, Kent State University, University of Kentucky, Loyola University, Marquette University, University of Massachusetts, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, University of Michigan, Middlebury College, University of Montana, University of Minnesota, Montana State University.

State University of New York at Albany, State University of New York at Oswego, North Dakota State University, Northern Illinois University, Notre Dame Univeristy, Oregon State University, University of Pennsylvania, Princeton University, Reed College, University of Rhode Island, University of Rochester, Sarah Lawrence College, Smith College, Southern Methodist University, Southwest Texas State University, Stanford University, Stephen F. Austin State University.

Syracuse University, University of Tennessee, Texas A&I University, Trinity College, Union College, Vanderbilt University, Vassar College, University of Virginia, University of Washington, Washington University, Wesleyan University, Wichita State University, Williams College, University of Wisconsin-Madison, University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh, Xavier University, Yale University.

MDC Classifieds

CONCERT
featuring Chase
Sat., Nov. 17, 1973 8:00 p.m.
Memorial Hall, Athol
Tickets $3.00 in Advance
$4.00 at the Door
For tickets send a stamped self-addressed envelope to Tickets, P.O. Box 435, Athol, Mass. 01331 or pick up at Gribbons Music Store, Main St., Greenfield.
Sponsored by Athol High School Band

PHYSICS FOR MAJORS NON-SCIENCE
100 The World Beyond Our Senses
100A The World Beyond Our Senses (in Spanish)
115 Physics of Music
117 Nuclear Energy & Its Social Challenge
118 Quantum Worlds
122 Concepts of Physics, II
123 Problems in Physics
130 Physics for Elem. Ed Majors
386 Special Problems
For details, see course description guide or inquire in Hasbrouck 110.

Yea! More Buses

Effective 11/13/73: Additional outbound bus runs will be made daily to South Deerfield, leaving Stockbridge Road 10:25 p.m., and to Belchertown Center, leaving Grad Research Center 10:39 p.m.

Effective 11/13/73: "13" Lot Express Bus will be extended to serve the School of Business, Hampshire House, and Boyden Gym (East side of Comm. Ave.) bus stops, in addition to the Campus Center Circle. Service will be continuous from 2:30 until 5:30 p.m. daily at 15 minute intervals.

Hey! Human Dev. Majors

All pre-registration forms must be picked-up in 158 Hills South between 9-4 Monday through Friday. They will not be mailed.

Wives Club Meets Tonight

The 'Round the World Wives' announces an evening meeting on Novemer 12th, at the Amherst Woman's Club, 35 Triangle Street, at 7:30 p.m. Members are asked to bring about five photographic color slides or any other momento that will help to acquaint the other members with their country and their family. Mrs. Gita Srinivasan will sing classical Indian songs during intermission. Mrs. Isabelle Little of the University Women will serve refreshments. Anybody in need of a ride should contact Sally Hafner, Tel. 256-8420.

Union College Reps To Be On Campus

ATTENTION: Union College Institute of Administration and Management, Schenectady, New York, will be on campus to talk to interested students on November 16, 1973. They will be here for general information purposes and are scheduled to arrive around 10:00. If interested contact the Career Planning Office, Berkshire House.

Staff Photo/John Stewart

Anybody know what this is all about?

Dress Rehearsal In SW Open

An open dress rehearsal of Gary Stuart's play Offending the Audience will be held tonight at 8 p.m. in Hampden Student Center in Southwest. The play, put on by the University Theatre Department, is an audience participation project, and admission is free for students.

Fewer Flights At Logan

BOSTON (AP)-The energy crisis will eventually result in about a 10 per cent reduction of the number of flights in and out of Logan International Airport here, Edward King, executive director of the Massachusetts Port Authority, said Sunday.

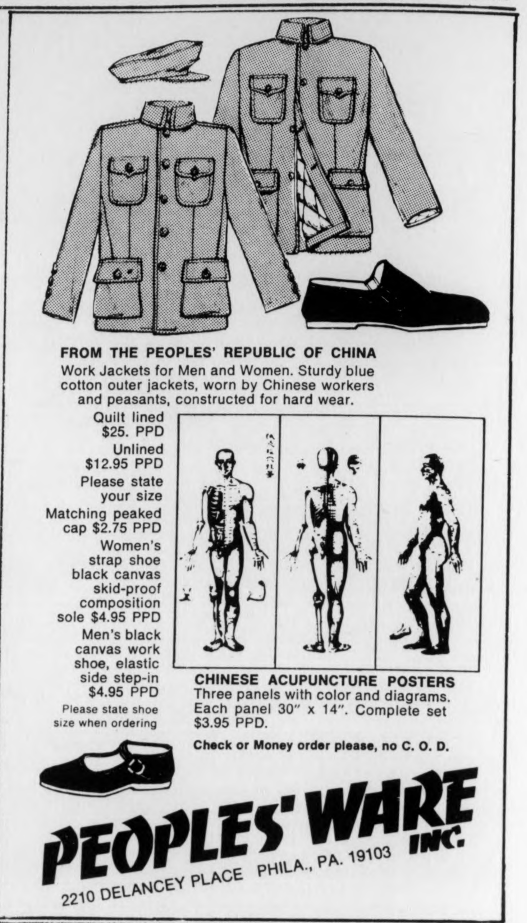
King said there were "some cutbacks in airline service" prior to President Nixon's energy speech to the nation.

"As a result of what the President said, I believe there is going to be a cut in fuel allocations, which will in effect reduce the number of flights by about 10 per cent," King said.

On another topic, King denied speculation that he would run for governor next year against Gov. Francis W. Sargent.

"I'm positively sure as I sit here right now that I have no present intention of running for governor," King said.

His comments were made on WNAC-TV's "Newsmakers" program.



FROM THE PEOPLES' REPUBLIC OF CHINA
Work Jackets for Men and Women. Sturdy blue cotton outer jackets, worn by Chinese workers and peasants, constructed for hard wear.
Quilt lined $25. PPD
Unlined $12.95 PPD
Please state your size
Matching peaked cap $2.75 PPD
Women's strap shoe black canvas skid-proof composition sole $4.95 PPD
Men's black canvas work shoe, elastic side step-in $4.95 PPD
Please state shoe size when ordering
CHINESE ACUPUNCTURE POSTERS
Three panels with color and diagrams. Each panel 30" x 14". Complete set $3.95 PPD.
Check or Money order please, no C. O. D.
PEOPLES' WARE INC.
2210 DELANCEY PLACE PHILA., PA. 19103

were into...
CUFFED BAGGIE JEANS
...high waisted
WEAR-HOUSE
clip coupon for $3.00 OFF on pair of baggie jeans

Fine Arts Council
string quartet
THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 1973
BOWKER AUDITORIUM 8 p.m.
RESERVED TICKETS: $1.50 UM/A students $3.00 all others
THE KERALA KALAMANDALAM COMPANY
kathakali
The Sacred Dance Drama of Kerala
FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1973—8:00 p.m.
BOWKER AUDITORIUM
Tickets $1.50 UM/A Students $3.00 Others
LENINGRAD PHILHARMONIC
CURRY HICKS CAGE
Monday, November 19, 1973 at 8:00 P.M.
Tickets: UM A Students $3.00; Others $6.00
FINE ARTS COUNCIL OFFICE, 125 Herter Hall 545-0202

Pianist Weissenberg To Solo In Springfield

Pianist Alexis Weissenberg will be piano soloist with the Springfield Symphony Orchestra on Tuesday, November 20 at 8 p.m. in the Municipal Auditorium. This marks a return appearance by Mr. Weissenberg who first performed with the SSO in 1971.

Now a French citizien, Weissenberg was born in Sofia, Bulgaria where he began piano studies at an early age and made his professional debut at 14. The young artist continued to concertize in his native land as well as touring in Turkey, Palestine, Egypt and South America. Weissenberg left the concert circuit for several years, then made a dramatic comeback in 1948 when he won the Leventritt Competition. The pianist now concertizes internationally, and is acknowledged as one of the outstanding keyboard giants of our time.

Alexis Weissenberg will be featured in Chopin's Piano Concerto No. 1 in e minor. Balance of the program, under the baton of Robert Gutter, includes Weber's Oberon Overture, Variations for Orchestra by Dallapiccola, and Ravel's LaValse.

Tickets to the November 20th performance are now available by contacting the Symphony Office at 739-4728.

ESP Discussed In CC Lecture

Ethel DeLoach, writer, lecturer and teacher in the field of ESP, and internationally known spiritual healer, will appear at the University of Massachusetts campus Wednesday, Nov. 24, at 8 p.m. in the Campus Center Auditorium.

Founder and executive secretary of the Jersey Society of Parapsychology Inc., she will discuss the act of spiritual healing and explain how she is aided in her work by "spirit doctors." Parapsychology is an alternative approach to investigating mental resources inherent in the human mind.

Tickets are available by mail in advance from the Division of Continuing Education, 920 Campus Center, or at the door. Admission is $2 for the general public and $1 for students.

Sci Fi Contest To Be Held

All university people are invited to enter a Science Fiction/Fantasy Art Contest sponsored by the UMass Science Fiction Society. The first prize winner gets $10. All entries must be in black and white and no larger than 17" by 22". The contest ends Nov. 20. Entry fee is a quarter. We'd like to see what you can do!

For further information visit the club library in the Student Union, Rm. 434.

SKI SPAIN
Earn 2 credits during intersession
Call 5-2801

CAMPUS INTERVIEWS
SCHOOL OF MANAGEMENT
Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute
Graduate Degree Programs in:
— Private (Industrial) Management
— Public Management
— Management Engineering
— Operations Research and Statistics
Prof. D. W. Karger, Ford Foundation Professor of Management will be on campus
Tuesday, November 13, 1973
Please make appointments at Placement Office

ENTERTAINMENT
HATCH
WED. COFFEEHOUSE
THUR., FRI. & SAT. "Topper Carew"
BLUEWALL
MON. Football
TUES. Movie: "Mutiny on the Bounty"
WED. "Sweet Pie"
THUR. "Frisco and the Killers"
FRI. & SAT. "Big Screamin McGrew"
T.O.C.
FRI. & SAT. "Jimmy"
ENTERTAINMENT

Hot Doggin!!!
U. MASS. SKI TEAM sponsors
2 Ski Shows Nov. 12th
7:30 & 9:30 S.U. Ballroom
- professional ski racing film with Jean Claude Killey
- demonstration of G.L.M. skiing and X country skiing
- hot new ski fashions
- aerial acrobatics
Admission 50¢

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF	Stephen G. Tripoli
MANAGING EDITOR	Mary T. Vorderer
BUSINESS MANAGER	Gilbert W. Fullerton
EXECUTIVE EDITOR	Jerald H. Lazar
NEWS EDITOR	Joan Fassnacht
SPORTS EDITOR	Stephen W. Crowe
PHOTO EDITOR	Alan H. Chapman
FINE ARTS EDITOR	Patrick Coffey
ADVERTISING MANAGER	Brent A. Wilkes
ASST. MANAGING EDITOR	Geoffrey L. Kurinsky
ASST. EXECUTIVE EDITOR	Dean P. Tucker
ASST. NEWS EDITOR	Sharon Hughes
ASST. SPORTS EDITOR	Steven DeCosta
ASST. PHOTO EDITOR	Stephen A. Ruggles
ASST. FINE ARTS EDITOR	Joyce Kosofsky

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR	Jim Lavrakas
NIGHT STAFF	Jo Van Lewicke
EDITORIAL	Dean Tucker
SPORTS	Frankie and the Umies
AD LAYOUT	Vicki Newman

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administrators read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons, and letters represent the personal views of the authors.

The Collegian subscribes to the Associated Press and the Liberation News Service. Publication of their material does not constitute endorsement.

Campaign $ Control

By MARK VOGLER

WASHINGTON, D.C.--"Today, at a time when all our institutions are under question over Watergate, the millions of private dollars pouring into election campaigns have given politics the air of dirty business. The abuses breed cynicism among our citizens and dropouts from our democracy."--Sen. Edward M. Kennedy Political skeptics are not kidding when they call American democracy an illusion conjured by big business.

True, the American people have a free choice at the polls to elect who they consider the most capable candidate. Yet, the cost of campaigns--win or lose--is phenominal. Big business contributes a substantial amount of money to foot the bill.

Naturally, the executives of the large corporations do not view their donations as going to a charitable cause. The disheartening thing is that they have uncontestedly negated the spirit of American democracy by buying off a politician. Their campaign contribution will later be obliged with a favor bearing possible influence on government policy.

Consider the abuses campaign finance which characterized the 1972 presidential election. Those who gave modest contributions with no intention of "back scratching" have by now, lost all confidence in that system.

"Those who contribute to election campaigns take it as a matter of faith that the funds they give will be used to further the election of the candidates," says Sen. John V. Tunney (D-Calif.).

"And I believe that those whose contributions allegedly aided the defense in the Watergate case, if they knew the full facts and the purpose to which their funds were put, would be just as outraged as any other American to know that their contributions were used to defend a gang of political burglars."

Tunney has submitted legislation to amend the Federal Election Campaign Act which would impose strong sanctions against candidates and their underlings who commit acts of sabotage in election campaigns.

Unfortunately, Tunney's legislation can do little to halt the other injustices of our present campaign fiance system which occurred in 1972:

--The Republican party collected millions of dollars before the effective date of the Campaign Financing Act of 1971--unreported and unreceipted.

--Huge sums of money in virtually untraceable cash floated around the country and the world, never reaching its intended destination. To track it down now would only unveil further scandals: what contributor would like to think that he financed John Dean's honeymoon?

--In violation of federal law, several corporations did not report their illegal contributions out of corporate funds. What impact will they have on national policy-making decisions?

With the flaws of present campaign finance methods apparent, the United States has no excuse for further Watergates. The only responsible alternative of Congress would be to initiate major reform in this area.

One favorable route being carefully scrutinized is to prohibit private campaign contributions in all Presidential, Senate and House elections--switching entirely to a system of public financing.

Senators Kennedy and Hugh Scott (R-Penn.) have already launched a bi-partisan effort in this direction.

Under the terms of the legislation they have introduced, public funds would be available to candidates of major parties in Presidential, Senate and House elections, based on a general formula allocating 15¢ per voter in Presidential elections.

In Senate elections, 15¢ per voter of $175,000--whichever is greater--would be allowed. For House campaign expenditures, $90,000 or the average expenditure in the two preceeding elections--whichever is greater-- would be available.

While the proposed legislation prohibits private financing by major party candidates, it enables minor party candidates to use private funds to reach the level of spending of major party candidates.

The Kennedy-Scott bill is a wise and a fair one and merits every consideration of both Houses. Its defeat would prolong the demise of American democracy. By eliminating private donations as campaign contributions, the electoral process would be greatly dignified.

Mark Vogler is a Collegian commentator.

Fred Weiss

DVP Suggestions

There has been much talk lately about bringing Moe Howard to UMass to speak; and while I can understand the nostalgic value of the "pie-throwing" genius of the Three Stooges, it made me think of some other speakers that would be worth hearing. Here are some:

*William O. Douglas - Supreme Court Justice. Appointed by F.D.R. over three decades ago, Douglas is an anachronism - as he gets older his views become more tolerant, and more libertarian. While in most cases, the Nixon court has moved to the right these past few years; Douglas' dissents have been eloquent reminders of the powers of the Constitution in the broadest sense. A firm ecologist, as well as a premier libertarian, Douglas has greater natural appeal than most speakers. Despite his advanced years (he is in his 70's), William O. Douglas is still fairly robust. Getting him to speak on campus is something worth looking into.

*Groucho Marx - Out of the three most active Marx brothers, only Groucho is still alive. While there has been some talk that Groucho has deteriorated both mentally and physically these past few years, I feel that such reports are exaggerated. On late night shows his wit is still sharp; and last year in New York, his Carnegie Hall "engagement" was a sellout. Except for some technical problems (they couldn't get the projector working to show one of his films) most everyone there seemed satisfied. Of course if one expects to see the same Groucho Marx that waltzed around in "Duck Soup" they will be a bit disappointed; while it is a sad fact of life, even people like Groucho Marx get older. Yet, listening to him reminisce about his life would be fascinating; and to hear him give side comments about...say "Monkey business", while it is playing on the screen would really be a treat.

In the end Moe Howard probably couldn't even carry Groucho Marx's cigar. This is not a knock on the "Stooges" or Moe (for I too was brought up watching their zany shows); rather it is a tribute to a superior entertainer - Groucho Marx.

* Archibald Cox - Fresh from his experience with the Watergate debacle, Cox could probably add insight and intelligence to the most controversial issue in the nation today. Since he is returning to Harvard, perhaps it will not take that much to get him to come down the road a bit to UMass.

* John Dean - As Nixon botches up the tapes again and again; the words of John Dean last spring seem more and more accurate. Again, like Cox he could add a very interesting angle to the Watergate case.

* Bella Abzug - The gutsy Congresswoman from New York. She is a forceful speaker, who always says what is on her mind. When you think of it, that is quite a lot for a politician to be doing these days.

* Dick Gregory - Once known as a great comedian, he is now known as well for his deep commitments to humanitarian causes, and his fetish for "natural foods" as his funny lines. Gregory is really worth hearing.

This list is obviously incomplete. The names of other interesting speakers come to mind in a constant flow: Mary McGrory, William F. Buckley, Muhammad Ali, J. D. Salinger (if you can get him out of his isolation), Ted Kennedy, Jack Anderson, Pete Hamell, Mrs. Martin Luther King, George McGovern (one year after his disaster - his observations could be very interesting indeed). I could keep going on and on, but perhaps you have to stop somewhere.

No doubt, some people in DVP will be a bit upset; citing the fact that some of the speakers mentioned have appeared in recent years. If so, I congratulate them on their taste. You see, I wasn't here last year, and this list is just a personal one. In this day when Moe Howard is getting so much press, I just felt that a few other names should have been mentioned. I'd like to know some of your favorites as well.

Fred Weiss is a Collegian Columnist.

Charles Camelopard

1994

Every once in a while it does a political commentator good to make predictions about the men he is covering at the present. I had an opportunity to do this over the weekend.

After President Nixon moves out of his suite of cells in Leavenworth he will return to citizenship as the operator of a fast service food chain, McNixons. His company's slogan: "give me a break today." Featured on the menu will be the detente burger served ala Breznev with Kissinger sauce and potatoes Chou En Lai. His daughter Tricia will manage the Public Relations end of the business as she is ideally suited mentally to attract the average twelve-year-old diner, who by 1997 will be a part of the labor force under phase 345 of Nixon's plan to ease inflation.

Speaking of inflation Former Attorney General John Mitchell will be president of the Sing Sing chapter of Fatso's Anonymous, a weight reduction organization. The ex AG will form undercover without telling anyone.

His wife Martha will be, you guessed it, a telephone operator at a major southern distillery.

Ron Ziegler will make a fortune in the toy business by posing for a tackling dummy model. The outfit he will eventually market will include a mask of the face of President Nixon that up and coming child politicians can wear when giving the dummy a hard rear approach shove in the true Nixon style.

Spiro Agnew will emerge the richest of the fallen politicos. Sports equipment will be a big money maker for the former VP. He will design and market the first golf safety helmet to be worn by people who must precede linksmen that duplicate his now famous beanball from the tee. He will also design a similar piece of head gear for tennis players.

The original Watergate six will form a barber shop quartet known as the Six Thieves minus two plus four. Their music will be reminiscient of the famous early 1970's. Among their notorious hits will be "I Didn't Want to Do It," "Dick Dick Dickie Goodbye". John Dean will occasionally solo with the group doing his sensitive rendition of "No More Mr. Nice Guy."

Henry Kissinger is ill-fated. My vision tells me that he will be the victim of a airplane hijacking which will keep him contiuously continent hopping. Mr. Kissinger's hard times will come when he develops chronic nausea from eating frozen caviar that airlines serve. He will develop an ulcer from maintaining himself on Russian Vodka, and lastly he will suffer a nervous breakdown when he finds out that Raquel Welch, who he dated occasionally married Abbie Hoffman in a major Hanoi social event.

Charles Camelopard is the Collegian's Washington, D.C. correspondent.

Newtism

By RUSSEL SETHER

Man is a simple mouse, he leaves his coat on. What I mean is, we are always expecting a situation to present itself, as if we forget that people are situations in themselves. We'll walk into a club or party and look around to find out what scene we should conform to, or not to conform to. Basing our behavioral responses to the existing superficial atmosphere instead of establishing our own actions objectively to the atmosphere..in this way...simply by walking into a dark room and waiting to see how we're "expected" to fit in, opposes and contradicts the unique quality of our human nature. The unique and beautiful characteristic of being able to perceive and determine ourselves as one single entity, seperate and independent upon the momentary situations which surround us.

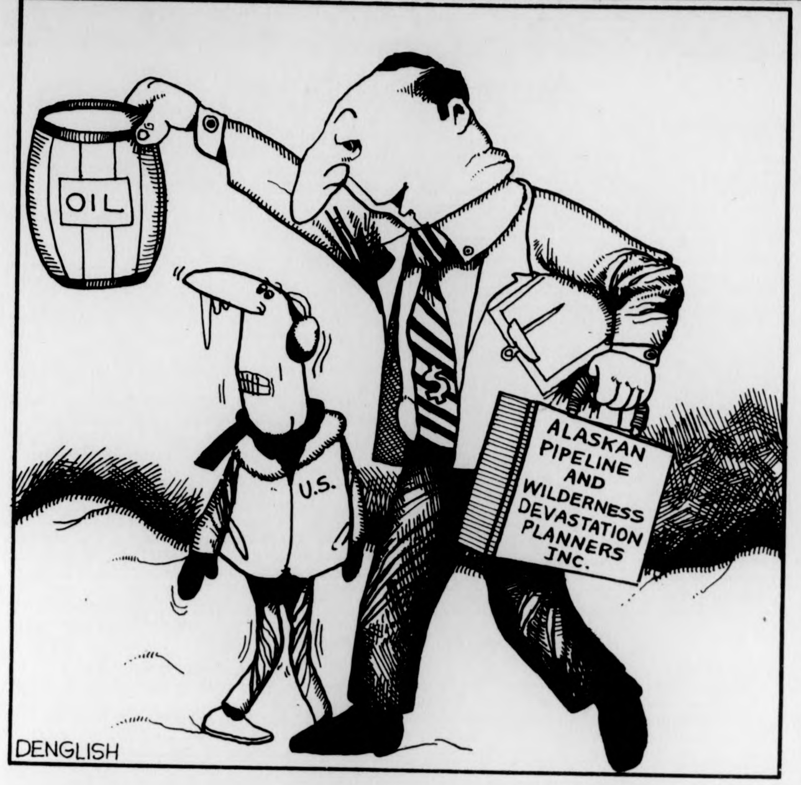
What might be termed conformity is nothing more than subjecting our psyches to a limited and stagnant dictation of extremely stale and uninspiring roles.

Is isolation perhaps the means towards personal intellectual and spiritual objectivity? Isolation implies a seperated existence from the environment, the psychological atmosphere. It implies a close-mindedness. But it does not mean that at all. Isolationism means intellectual meditation. An incorporating and analysis of as many ideas and feelings that exist in the atmosphere, the world and society, and taking none to heart, viewing the world as though looking through the opposite lens of a telescope, and seeing our self-being as a unique entity, rather than a product of the environment.

This objectivity, or isolationism, is the only means available to prevent ourselves from becoming just another molded and packaged product of the environment. Be believing in any one doctorine, whether it be religious, philosophical, intellectual, or material, the individual psyche limits itself and cops out of its special quality of being able to develop its own individualized essence, apart from the material and dogmatic influences of canned society.

So....once in a while, it might be good to walk away from your expectations, your value systems, and your conditioning; denounce everything you have ever believed and accepted, and question yourself not as to "What am I?" or "Who am I?", but as to "WHY AM I?".

Russel Sether is a Collegian commentator.



OIL
U.S.
$
ALASKAN PIPELINE AND WILDERNESS DEVASTATION PLANNERS INC.
DENGLISH

"Care to reconsider, sir?"

Letters To The Editor

Thank You Bromery

Dear Chancellor Bromery:

I wanted to write and thank you for the new parking system. Unlike many others, I have grown to love it. Why, last year when I merely climbed in my VW and drove to old lot 11 from Crown Point Apartments, it was a dull ten minute trip. But you have turned it into a 45 minute adventure. Since the little yellow buses don't come by my house and the commercial buses are so irregular in their trips, I have to undertake this wonderful journey, and believe me, I appreciate and understand the adventure as few others might.

At first, I was angry when I was denied a lot assignment at the edge lots across from Whitmore. I felt especially angry when I continued to see empty spaces in those lots after the parking people had insisted they were over-subscribed. In fact, I was downright suspicious, especially after I had received my parking application nine days after every staff member I knew. I certainly thought there was something "funny" going on over in that clever Mr. Lambert's office. But now I understand. You have always been a proponent of community outreach, and the new parking system is the perfect way to get those elitist faculty members and students out into the community. Why, every day, hundreds of us go to Sunderland, toward Belchertown, from East to South Amherst, just to get a bus. I bet all those people out there didn't even know there were so many of us. That's the way to strengthen community relations for sure. It's a pity all those who got parking spaces won't be out there with the rest of us. I've explained to classes that, when I'm late or unable to carry all their papers to them at once because I can't get a bus or carry heavy bags from car-to-bus-to office, that it's all for the community. And when I'm unable to park up at Northeast living area for an 8 a.m. Academic Affairs meeting because the men in green and their relatives who own the tow truck business will tow me, the students will understand. Believe me, I won't take doing what I'm paid to do for granted anymore. Of course, the University is paying me even for all those hours wasted trying to negotiate the parking system, so I guess you believe it's worth it for all that community outreach. Too, it may seem strange to taxpayers that so many policemen spend all their time enforcing parking regulations, but surely they'll understand when you explain.

One of my colleagues said it would be easier to live in the Bronx and commute to N.Y.U., but that must be just sour grapes. You've brought the city to us in so many ways that we don't need to move to New York at all, and the parking system certainly makes Amherst seem less rural. Actually, I plan to hitchhike down to school from now on--even though I think the multiple vehicle-pedestrian trips would be wonderful and healthful in the winter. I'm having a "take-a-professor-to-school" sign made up for my briefcase, and I'll explain to the various taxpayers who give me rides about the system you've thought up for us.

So don't worry that the buses run irregularly and that bad weather will complicate the flow of traffic for the staff member's cars and the three cars registered just for you in lot 71. Those of us who are fortunate enough to have been denied access to parking love the system and understand it.

In fact, I think those of us who really appreciate the system should hold a park-in soon to show you our support and appreciation. We can thank all those hard-working policemen and tow truck operators too. We could hold it at Whitmore lot and at the Whitmore edge lots. Perhaps those who feel as I do should get in touch with me to see what can be done. If any of you--especially you, Chancellor Bromery--should try to call me, don't worry if I'm not in my office when you call. I'll be there as soon as I can get to school.

Rayna Green
English Dept.

Flea Bags Dine At D.C.

To The Editor:

There is nothing more disgusting than allowing dogs into the dining hall. The poor quality of the food makes eating in these places difficult as it is. There is no reason I can think of to make it any more unbearable.

Perhaps it doesn't bother you to be forcing your food down while having to deal with a mangy mut looking over your arm emitting a squadron of fleas to check out your food. It does bother me.

Maybe you are glad these dogs are around because then this so called food won't have to go to waste, - you could always give it to them.

But I don't care to be constantly pestered with these flea-bags. And I am sure there must be people that feel the same way as I do. As long as we are out here I believe our wishes should be respected and heeded.

I know that a dog is man's best friend - or so they say. And up here in 'the city' one needs all the friends he can get. But if these dogs are your friends don't you think that that is all the more reason to keep the dogs out, preventing them from being subjected to the food we are forced to eat.

Let's keep the dogs out and make the dining halls a bit more bearable than they are now.

Bryan Schultz

We Are One

To The Editor:

The Gay movement has finally moved its way into Western Mass. The Gays are here, marching with six foot banners to Washington and embarrassing the liberals, taking over Mayor Aliotos office, staining the good names of War resistors League and Women's Liberation by refusing to pass for straight anymore. We've got chapters in N.Y., San Francisco, San Jose, Minneapolis, Philadelphia, Wisconsin, and Detroit, to mention a few. I am personally sick of liberals who say that they don't care who sleeps with whom, its what you do outside of bed that counts. This is what homosexuals have been trying to get straights to understand for years. Well, it's too late for liberalism. Because what I do outside my bed may have nothing to do with what I do inside-but my consciousness is branded, is permeated with Homosexuality. For years I have been branded with your label for me. The result is that when I am among gays or in bed with another woman, I am a person, not a Lesbian. When I am observable to the straight world, I become Gay. You are my litmus paper. We want something more now, something more than the tolerance you never gave us. But to understand that you must understand who we are. We are the extursions of your unconscious mind-your worst fears made flesh. From the beautiful boys to the aging queens the taxi-driving dykes, the lesbian fashion model...and the very ordinary very un-lurid gays...we are the sort of people everyone was taught to despise-and now we are shaking off the chains of self-hatred and marching on your citadels of repression. Liberalism isn't good enough for us. And we are just beginning to discover that. Your friendly smile of acceptance-from the safe position of heterosexuality isn't enough. As long as you cherish that secret belief that you are a little bit better because you sleep with the opposite sex, you are still asleep in your cradle and we will be the nightmare that awakens you. Understand this, that the worst part of being a Homosexual is having to keep it a secret. Not the occasional murders by police or teenage queer-beaters, not the loss of jobs or expulsion from schools, or dishonorable discharges, but the daily knowledge that what you are is so awful to the straight world, it cannot be revealed. Most of us are not affected. But the eternal violence of being made to carry-or choosing to carry-the load of your straight society's unconscious guilt, this is what tears us apart, what makes us want to stand up in the offices, in the factories and schools and shout out our true identities. We were rebels from our earliest days, somewhere, maybe just about the time we started to go to school, we rejected straight society, unconsciously. Then, later society rejected us, as we came into full bloom. The homosexuals who hide, who play it straight or pretend that the issue of homosexuality is unimportant, are only hiding the truth from themselves. They are trying to become a part of a society that they rejected instinctively when they were five years old, to pretend that it is the result of heredity, or a bad mother, or anything but a gut reaction of nausea against the roles forced on us. And you straights, look down the street, at the person whose sex is not readily apparent. Are you uneasy? Or are you made more uneasy by the stereotype gay, the flamming faggot or diesel dyke? Or most uneasy by the friend you thought was straight-and isn't? True, some Gays play the same role-games among themselves that straights do. Isn't every minority group fucked over by the values of the majority culture? But the really important thing about being gay is that you are forced to notice how much sex-role differentiation is pure artifice, is nothing but a game. The roles are beginning to wear thin. The make-up is cracking. The roles-breadwinner, little wife, screaming fag, bull dyke, James Bond, are the cardboard characters we are always trying to fit into, as if being human and spontaneous were so horrible that we each have to pick on a character out of a third rate novel, and try to cut ourselves down to size. And you cut off your homosexuality, and we cut off our hetrosexuality. We want you to understand what it is to be our kind of outcast, but to also understand our kind of love, to hunger for your own sex. Because, unless you understand this, you will continue to look at us with uncomprehending eyes fake, liberal smiles; you will be incapable of loving us. We will never go straight, until you go Gay. As long as you divide yourselves, we will be divided from you, separated by a mirror trick of your mind. We will no longer allow you to drop us, or the homosexual in yourselves, into the reject bin; labelled sick, childish or perverted. And because we will not wait, your awakening may be a rude one. It's your choice. You will never be rid of us, because we reproduce ourselves out of your bodies, and out of your minds. We are one with you.

Martha Shelley

New D.C. Hassle

To The Editor:

I have just encountered a new hassle at the D.C. No longer do they hassle about I.D.'s only.

Upon entering the D.C. for lunch today and waiting in a line for about 10-15 minutes I finally reached the front of the line with 2 friends I was going to eat with. The lady that takes the tickets noticed that my ticket had a #45 and not #40 as it ought to have. After taking a closer look at my book she reached the conclusion that a page was missing. So off I'm sent to the office to get a pass for the week (10 meals).

When I had finally got to the office and explained what had happened to the manager she said that this has been happening too often and that it must be a game that the students are playing, so something will have to be done.

After signing my name, student #, and meal ticket # she gave me a 2 day pass (4 meals), and tells me I'll have to come back and see her. She's going to find out what to do and that students may have to start paying.

Seeing how we're not supposed to be able to use any ticket that isn't attached to the book, and that it has been happening so often, and it shouldn't benefit the student any, I wondered what might be the cause.

I could only reach two possible explanations. The first was that one page was stuck to the other and that both pages were being used at once. The other was that, due to some error, a page here and there never got printed, which seems fairly likely.

Therefore if these are the cases, as they most probably are, we the student shouldn't have to pay for these errors.

James W. Leavitt

More Letters To The Editor

Moe We Want Moe's

Editor's Note: The Collegian has received many letters urging the Distinguished Visitors Program to bring Moe Howard to UMass. We will keep count of the number of signatures on letters received and announce the tally daily. To date we have fifty Moe mongers who have written us on 9 letters.

Che La Luna

To The Editor:

For hunnets of years, people have wanted to see a man like Louie Prima on campus. I am one of them. Mr. Howard may be entertaining, but Mr. Prima can provide this campus with a genuinely significant presentation of American and European culture. He would fill the cage, singing his "50 Great Italian Love Hits on Two Long Playing Albums Only $4.95," and of course, my favorite on the two album set, "Che le Luna"."

Karl Piculin

Moe Than Just Moe

To The Editor:

Just one word about Moe. I'm a little bit distressed by the comparisons being made between Moe, Groucho Marx, and the Firesign Theater. These comparisons seem to assume that the humor of these three is basically the same and can actually be put on some kind of scale relative to each other, when in fact this is hardly the case. All three are quite different from each other, in terms of style, content, the social climate they came out of, etc., and they are all three equally worthy of our respect, however much that might be.

Statements like "the humor found in Firesign Theater requires some intelligence to understand" are, aside from being probably not true, pretty snotty and definitely not in the Firesign spirit. (And I'm an avid Firesign freak, don't misunderstand me.) Moe- Groucho- Firesign- let's get them all here.

David Miller

Who's An Ignoramus

To The Editor:

"Hey, onion head, ya see that?" BOOM-CONK! "Ow!" "Nyuck-nyuck" PLINK-SLAP! "Aaoow!" "Ga'wan, get outta my way orI'll moider ya." "WHUP-SLAM!

Last Spring, a movie depicting civilian casualties in North and South Vietnam waa shown in Thompson. Attendance: about 40. At the same time some Stooges flicks were being shown in Mahar. Attendance: overflowing. Ya see anything there Moe?

"Ooooee-ah-ah-ah-ah-ah!" RRRIP-WHAM-PLINK-BONK! "Every time you think, you weaken the nation." SLAP-SLAP-BOOM-ZONK! "Woo-WHOOH-woo-wwob-woob-woob!" "Hey, Porcupine, com'eah" FLAP-FWAP! "Oooo. What'ja do that for?" "That's in case I'm not looking." PLPLINK! "Now get outta heah!"

At the D.V.P. meeting the other night those who were against bringing Moe in were theatened with physical violence. HA-HA, hilarious slap 'em plink 'em beat 'em stooge comedy. Now really.

Just stop and look at the HA-HA violence HA-HA around you always. Moe Howard, really! Who's an IGNORAMUS?

Clem Allen

Step Into The Rain

Those of you who've seen the ads for the "un-dormitories" of Brittany Manor may have been wondering just what you've been missing by not enlisting.

Briefly, you probably have a way to get to campus and back home which is fairly reliable. So, by not living in Brittany Manor, you're missing a great opportunity to sharpen your thumbing expertise. Don't get me wrong. If you've called Brittany Manor for info or, sadly, as I did came to rent somewhere other than pre-fab Puffton, you've probably been told the great news: Brittany Manor has a courtesy bus for the "convenience" of its lucky residents. And, indeed, so it has. This fabulous vehicle is a little yellow van holding no more than 11 passengers and the driver. Now, just to throw in some figures...There are 400 apartments in Brittany Manor, an assortment of 1, 2, & 3 bedroom ones. (basically 2 & 3's) I'd say there'd easily be 800-1000 residents!

One can begin to imagine the service provided by this "convenience". After waiting for the 3:40 run only to meet the lovely "FULL" sign, I kicked the interior of the 5 college waiting station around for 40 mins. or so until the next run. At 4:25 as I struggled through the elbows heading in the direction of the van, I managed to place my body on board, & was informed that there had only been two available seats. I was the third to climb in. As I acquiesced and backed back out into the rain in disappointment and rage, I landed on the toes of those still trying to shove their way onto the bus. Needless to say, I thumbed, arriving home just as the bus left for its 5:00 run.

Another tenant reality at Brittany Manor being missed by some is the novelty of "he who comes last gets first place". Being hard up for rentees, Brittany Manor has begun the policy of "tenancy-at-will"..in other words: no lease, only 60 days notice as to when you're moving out. This little piece of inequality flabergasts me, as I'm saddled with a lease until August 31, (which by the way, after two months, I'm one of the few "fortunates" who have just received a copy of his lease, others are still waiting.)

Although you've missed the opportunity to get a lease like mine, you could still practice your thumbing...All joking aside, however. Brittany Manor has enough students to deserve a UMass bus run, but unless and until this miracle arrives, avoid renting at Brittany Manor if you a) don't have a car b) can't afford the obnoxious parking fees. The Student Senate hasn't yet gifted us with transportation and Hancock Management Co. which owns this place is one some untouchable place high up on Olympus. Just once I'd like to see how a Hancock Management person likes being number 12, and hence, asked to step back into the rain.

Judith Cowley

Suspicion Reflexes

To Govan Lee Glover:

Your letter of Nov. 7 motivates me to respond publicly to an attitude that appears to be spawning and spreading into our minds, threatening to anesthetize our sensitivity to the point of callousness.

I don't mean to react specifically to the issue of rape, although it is one cause of man and woman's defensive suspicion of each other. When a woman accuses a man of raping her, she must undergo extensive questioning by a qualified policewoman in addition to being subject to the often insinuating and incriminatory questions of a defense lawyer,. Hardly a very pleasant experience to undergo, if only for the sick pleasure of "man raping".

Let's ask ourselves however, what causes the reflex suspicion between men and women that is socially glossed over and woven into silk-gloved insults thrown back and forth between the sexes. Is the Don Juan or the femme fatal behavior designed to protect our soft egos from the hurt we experienced from being the "good egg" who got cracked by the careless insult of someone defensive and blind?

We've all experienced hurt and the loss of self worth to some extent by another's numbness. I've often quoted the words of Edgar Allen Poe: "Quote the raven 'Nevermore'." I've set in my lonely room many nights thinking myself content because I didn't let myself be "used" that day. It's an empty satisfaction that can grow into the indifferent defensive actions that propagates and hurts others in turn.

It's easier to call other people names and catagorize them into bitches, bastards, rapists, pigs, queers, etc.; we reduce each individual to the identifying characteristics of a dog, cat, rat, etc. And we get from others what we expect of them.

I feel bad for that woman who insisted she was going to be raped by a gentleman with only honorable intensions. I do not think her remarks were personal; her prejudice caused her to forfeit a ride and a possible friend. Something even more tragic resulted; you are reacting to this emotional slap in the face with the same prejudice and generalizations.

I don't want to preach, but to share my feelings with others, using your letter as an excuse and illustration. Your feelings struck a familiar cord with my feelings.

Until we can react to life's hurts realistically and not blow crosswinds into hurricanes born merely to prevoke us, we will never acquire the strenth to deal with people as unique persons, good and bad, rather than antagonistic groups.

Life is hurting, getting angry, failing, loving, and joy. As long as we fight and keep truckin' we're alive. Pain isn't the worst thing to fear, it's not feeling anything and passing life by with our eyes closed. Let's make every experience the one that sharpens our understanding and makes us open to the joy of healthy involvement.

Phyllis A. Brown

A People's Food Mart

To The Editor:

Throughout the last two months since the lettuce and grape boycott moved into Western Massachusetts the People's Market has consistently sold United Farmworkers lettuce. In September when the Juan de la Cruz Committee first started picketing local grocery stores the People's Market was the only store carrying United Farmworkers produce. This was a big help to our committee and the boycott. The market also consistently helps the labor movement by selling other types of United Farmworkers produce.

The Juan de la Cruz Boycott Committee urges all brothers and sisters supporting Cesar Chavez and the United Farmworkers to buy their food at a true peoples' food store, the People's Market, in the student union.

Juan de la Cruz Boycott Committee

Munchies: Lack Of Respect

To The Editor:

On Thursday, the first of November, I went into the Southwest Munchies to purchase a half gallon of milk. (price 77¢) The prices are high but having worked in such places before I am aware of the high overhead and slim profit margins in an enterprise such as Munchies. Upon returning to my room I noticed the date stamped on the carton was October 27. From 2 years of Stop & Shop experience I know the practice of selling merchandise past its period of expected wholesomeness is illegal.

Upon promptly returning the milk to Munchies for exchange I told the manager about the expired date and I was greeted with almost open hostility.

I am sure the milk was drinkable but the fact that this practice is going on cannot be ignored. It is bad enough that this situation exists but the lack of respect for students for whom Munchies is run is unexcusable and should not be tolerated.

Phillip Surprenant

Throw The Bum Out

To The Editor:

Ever since Nixon's most recent blunder, the cry of impeachment has become a boisterous and echoing one. Everywhere you go you encounter signs reading — "Impeach Nixon" or "Throw the Bum Out". It has become a central theme of conversation. The country has finally come to realize, a year too late, that they made a mistake in their selection of president. Perhaps if Massachusetts had been listened to, we would have a "man" in office now who could be trusted. Perhaps not!!

Why was Nixon able to get this far? What made him think that he could get away with such an audacious move as defying the court system, even going so far as to fire his own prosecutor? Who gave him this inane misconception?

We, the people of the United States, did. Yes, this man alone is not to blame. It is our responsibility to accept the blame as much as it is his.

After all, what would cause him to think we would react now when we never did before. Oh sure, some of us did react to some extent. But the fact of the matter is we allowed him to get this far. We spoke out against some of his policies, but never prevented him from making them. We gave him the power that he now possesses. We were the only ones capable of giving it to him, and thus we have no one to blame but ourselves.

When we knew he was isolating himself from the people we spoke out against it, but did we act? When we saw that he was ignoring Congress we complained, but did we act? When he took more and more power into his domain we complained again, but did we act?

At no time did we act sufficiently to stop him. Either we lost interest before we did any good or we allowed ourselves to be overthrown by his supporters.

We, the people, are now tired of his gross disregard of the people, and law and order. We now want to stop him. We may succeed in doing this. But unless we take back the power that we have allowed to be taken from us, we cannot possibly prevent it's recurrance.

Nixon has been allowed to go too far. Perhaps the only way we can get him to submit to the people is to get ride of him, throw him out of office. I do not believe there is any other way. The means of doing this is impeachment.

For anyone else to acquire the extent of power that Nixon possesses, we cannot allow. The only step presently remaining before Nixon becomes a dictator is for him to proclaim himself one. If we are able to put in in check, we may not be so lucky next time. The old belief that we don't have to watch over our government because they will automatically look out for our best interests has never been true. Now there is living proof of that.

It is not enough to simply impeach Nixon. We must re-establish our old form of givernment — that of, for and by the people.

Bryan Schultz

HANDBALLS
and HANDBALL
GLOVES
A. J. Hastings, Inc.
Newsdealer & Stationer
AMHERST, MASS.

Mister Donut
never knows
when to quit.
(he's open 24 hrs. per day)
Mt. Farms Mall
Rt. 9
(Russell St.)
HADLEY
Mister Donut®

LSAT
Review Course
Extensive 20-hour review for December 15 L.S.A.T.
Taught by attorneys
It Will Help
This course has been in operation since 1967 and is the most effective means of preparation for the L.S.A.T. Ask students at your school who have taken this course their opinions, or call us with your own questions.
Register now — $85.00 tuition (total cost). Classes begin Thursday evening, Nov. 29, 1973, 7-11 p.m., Colonial Hilton, Northampton.
For information call (413) 256-6072, Amherst; (617) 262-9161, Boston.
or write:
L.S.A.T. Review Course
419 Boylston St.
Room 312
Boston, Mass. 02116

Notices

ALPHA PHI OMEGA:
Meeting tonight at 7:30 in Chapter Rm., Memorial Hall. All brothers and pledges invited.

ALPHA ZETA:
Meeting Tues. 11/13, C.C. 163, 6:15 p.m. featuring Dean Denison of Stockbridge speaking on "A Look at the Future of Agriculture". All are welcome.

BOOK AND RECORD SALE:
E.A.M. is going to hold a sale to raise money for the Heart Fund. If anyone has books or records they would be willing to donate, please bring them to EAM on 387 N. Pleasant St. or call 545-0845.

CHRISTIANS:
Come and fellowship with us 7:30 Mon. nights 903 C.C.

ECOLOGY GROUP:
C.E.Q. is sponsoring a slide show by John Green of the Massachusetts Forestry Dept., at 6:30 today in 426 S.U.

FIGURE SKATING:
Everyone enrolled in Figure Skating P.E. G 51 should contact Karen Gordon at 665-4219 to arrange for lesson times. Classes begin 11/12, 10:00 a.m. at Orr Rink, Amherst College.

GRENOBLE:
There will be a reunion of all Grenoble students — from last year and the coming semester, 6th fl, Herter Lounge, 7 p.m., Tues. 11/13. Refreshments will be served.

GSS:
Spaghetti Supper, tonight, 19th floor of JQA at 5:00 p.m. Please bring your own drink. Sisterhood and Pledge meetings will be held after dinner. All members please attend.

FIRE:
Fire marshals, detail assignments now posted outside of Mr. Goetzl's office, 2nd floor, Brooks House. Any questions call BRUCE.

INFORMATION HOTLINE:
Organizational meeting tonite for anyone interested in organizing an academic information hotline for the use of undergraduates. 8th flr, C.C. 7 p.m.

MATH MAJORS:
You must have your advisor's signature on your preregistration form. Find out who your advisor is and her/his office hours in 218 Arnold.

MENTAL RETARDATION COURSE:
Psychology 389A for Spring. Information available at Tobin 511. Check before preregistering.

MINYAN:
Daily Minyan Schedule (daily prayers) Mornings (at Hillel 302 S.U.) M, W, F. 10:00 a.m., T. TH 11:00 a.m. Evenings in Patterson at 6:45 p.m.

OUTINC CLUB:
General meeting tonight, 6:30 162 C.C. Prof. Stidham to talk on safety and First Aid. Adirondack Hike, pretrip meeting 11/13, 8 p.m. in locker; UConn Mirror Lake, Check board. Locker phone 545-3131.

PLANT AND SOIL SCIENCE:
We offer a multitude of courses next semester. Talk to upperclassmen 6:30-7:30; The Profs explain courses and answer questions 7:30-9:00 Monday, French 209. Everyone welcome.

PROGRAM COUNCIL:
Meeting of Program Council tonight in 172. Please attend. We will vote on releasing our funds from the Board and mending our constitution.

SOPHOMORE ART MAJORS MEETING:
On Tuesday 11/13, 7:30-9:00 p.m., Bartlett Hall 61. The first of the informational meetings. Focus will be on aspects of the art program, a 'crash course'' in survival for UMass Art Majors. Faculty from each area will present samples of their work.

(Continued on P. 16)

Environmental Policy Studies Center Established Here

A Center for Environmental Policy Studies that will work closely with state agencies on environmental problems has been established at UMass.

The center is part of the UMass Institute for Man and His Environment and is funded by the state Executive Office of Environmental Affairs. Initial plans call for four main areas of emphasis:

—the review of selected environmental impact reports for the Office of Environmental Affairs in Boston;

—the development of intensive short courses for government personnel employed by the Department of Natural Resources, the Metropolitan District Commission, and the Department of Agriculture;

—in conjunction with the Executive Office of Environmental Affairs, the development and conduct of studies relating to long-term environmental policy alternatives for the Commonwealth;

During its first year of operation, the center will concentrate mainly on the development of a process for the review of the state environmental impact reports. Both faculty and graduate students from a wide variety of disciplines will be involved in this important public service task.

Named as the Director of CEPS is Dr. Hugh C. Davis, who has for the past year and a half served in the joint role of assistant secretary of the state Executive Office of Environmental Affairs and associate director of the UMass Institute for Man and His Environment. He wil continue to hold these appointments. Dr. Davis says: "CEPS is a natural consequence of the University's growing efforts to work more closely with state government as part of its utmost importance that we maintain our academic and intellectual freedom, we should at the same time apply some of our talents to the very real environmental problems of the Commonwealth."

The Fuel Crisis

Here's What The States Are Doing

Here is a breakdown of what energy-saving measures are being taken in each state. The letters correspond to the following:

A — Reduced speed limit on state roads, usually 50 m.p.h.; B — speed limit on state vehicles, usually 50 m.p.h.; C — reduced heating in state buildings; D — reduced lighting in state buildings.

ALABAMA — B, C, D. Gov. George C. Wallace created Energy Management Board which has recommended that the public take buses or organize car pools and urged state employes to substitute telephone calls or letters for trips whenever possible. ALASKA — B, C, D. Gov. William A. Egan asked state workers to voluntarily form car pools and keep driving speeds below 45 m.p.h. He also plans to name a statewide energy commission to handle mandatory allocation should it become necessary.

ARIZONA — B, C, D. Legislation being prepared to allow governor to take action alone "to prevent an electric power system failure." ARKANSAS — C, D. Gov. Dale Bumpers to deliver energy message Sunday night and is expected to urge state employes to form car pools. Study of state's fuel reserves to be conducted, and state capitol buildings operating with reduced heat and light. CALIFORNIA — A. Before President Nixon's address, Gov. Ronald Reagan ordered reduction to 65 m.p.h. on stretches of state road with 70 m.p.h. limits. No 50 m.p.h. taken yet. Los Angeles city employes told to turn down lights and thermostats. COLORADO — B, C, D. Gov. John Vanderhoof directed that all new state cars be subcompacts or compacts, that office cleaning be done during daylight hours and that his Cadillac limousine be traded in for a Plymouth.

CONNECTICUT — B. Gov. Thomas Meskill also urged motorists to stay under 50 m.p.h., but police along the Connecticut Turnpike reported no slowdown during the weekend. DELAWARE — B, C, D. Gov. Sherman Tribbitt also urged citizens to cut back on heat and light and to form car pools.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA — B, C, D. Most speed limits in the capital already 50 m.p.h. Report that administration considering four-day work week for federal employes called "just wishful thinking" by Budget Director Roy L. Ash.

FLORIDA — C, D. Motorists urged to drive at slower speeds. GEORGIA — B, C, D. Gov. Jimmy Carter instructed police to ticket motorists who exceed state 60 m.p.h. speed limit by even one mile an hour and created three-man board to allocate fuel. HAWAII — B, C, D. Air conditioners shut off on city buses in Honolulu, estimated to save 15-20 per cent of fuel consumption. IDAHO — B, C, D. Gov. Cecil D. Andrus asked citizens to follow lead of state employes and drive no faster than 60 m.p.h. As in several other northern states, heat and lighting cutbacks began several months ago. ILLINOIS — B, C, D. The 50 m.p.h. imposed on state police did not appear to carry over to motorists — on Interstate 55 one trooper clocked 35 cars at an average of about 77 m.p.h. The road is posted at 70.

INDIANA — B. Public asked to lower thermostats, but officials say further action awaiting clarification of what nationwide controls will be. State Commerce Department has special unit to handle fuel shortage complaints.

IOWA — B, C, D. Gov. Robert Ray also instructed police to stop motorists traveling more than 50 m.p.h. and give them a "friendly reminder" to slow down and save fuel.

KANSAS — B, C. Governor considering asking legislature for statewide 50 m.p.h. limit.

KENTUCKY — A number of cities, including Ashland and Bowling Green, imposed 50 m.p.h. limits on city-owned vehicles. Gov. Wendell Ford said he expects the action to be taken statewide within 30 days.

LOUISIANA — Gov. Edwin Edwards in considering calling a special session of the legislature to discuss ways of keeping more state-produced natural gas inside the state. No special cutbacks. MAINE — State Turnpike Authority has posted a 50 m.p.h. speed limit "advisory" and is studying way to make it legal limit. Education commissioner has called on schools to extend Christmas vacation by three days, to be made up in April. MARYLAND — B, C, D. House of Delegates considering legislation that would give governor authority to suspend virtually any state law to help ease energy shortage, including imposing 50 m.p.h. limit. MASSACHUSETTS — Gov. Francis Sargent is to announce energy measures Tuesday based on recommendations of special task force, including 50 m.p.h. speed limit, reduced heating in schools and cutbacks in outdoor lighting. Also under consideration is a four-day work week for the state's 72,000 employes.

MICHIGAN — C, D. Among the lighting cutbacks are the state Capitol dome, blacked out for the first time in memory.

MINNESOTA — C, D. Gov. Wendell Anderson says speed limit will not be reduced until there's a national move to do so, but he is expected to announce this week a 50 m.p.h. limit on state cars. MISSISSIPPI — D. Lights turned off at off-hours and on weekends. MISSOURI — C, C. Governor considering asking legislature for statewide 50 m.p.h. limit. MONTANA — B, C, D. Gov. Thomas L. Judge ordered cutback measures six months ago. The state Public Service Commission has ordered utilities to turn down requests for power to illuminate outdoor advertising displays.

NEBRASKA — B, C, D. Gov. J.J. Exon asked public gas companies to shut off ornamental lighting and urged businesses to follow state actions.

NEVADA — B. Gov. Mike O'Callaghan said the state would follow the President's recommendations so long as they are "practical and legal." He ordered use of state cars cut back as much as possible.

NEW HAMPSHIRE — Gov. Meldrim Thomson is considering possibility of converting business and industry on four-day, 40-hour work week. A special one-day legislative session may be called to deal with the shortages. NEW JERSEY — A, B. The reduced speed limit includes the New Jersey Turnpike, the nation's busiest toll road. NEW MEXICO — B, C. Government employes also were urged to form car pools.

NEW YORK — A, B, C, D. Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller ordered the 50 m.p.h. limit Saturday and urged local government officials to follow suit. A similar limit already was in effect in New York City.

NORTH CAROLINA — Gov. Jim Holshouser is expected to announce energy-saving measures Tuesday. NORTH DAKOTA — Gov. Arthur A. Link is studying energy-saving measures but has not specified which ones. OHIO — B, C, D. Ohio Board of Education met Sunday to consider energy-saving measures; in planning are manuals advising schools what to do in case buildings must be closed due to lack of heat.

OKLAHOMA — Gov. David Hall considering proposals for reduced speed limit, lighting and heat in state buildings. Also proposed by Oklahoma Energy Council is tax plan to encourage purchase of smaller cars. OREGON — C, D. Gov. Tom McCall declared energy emergency last August and limited state vehicles to 55 m.p.h. speed limit. No action yet on statwide speed limits. Tough restrictions on outdoor signs, with businesses allowed only one lighted sign to identify name or business and none during day. PENNSYLVANIA — A, B, C, D. Speed limit cut to 50 m.p.h. on the Pennsylvania Turnpike, but Gov. Milton Sharp said Friday study is under way on whether excessive traffic jams will result.

RHODE ISLAND — A, B, C. Gov. Philip Noel issued verbal proclamation lowering speed limit to 50 m.p.h. and said he planned to draw up a contingency plan for gasoline rationing.

SOUTH CAROLINA — B, C. Gov. John C. West told employes to drive state cars 10-15 m.p.h. under the speed limit.

SOUTH DAKOTA — B, C. Gov. Richard Kneip asked governing bodies of all cities, counties and school districts to meet and adopt by Dec. 1 a measure to reduce fuel consumption by 15 per cent.

TENNESSEE — B, C, D. Gov. Winfield Dunn will introduce bill in January to make 50 m.p.h. speed limit official — in meantime has asked motorists to observe it. He's also told state police to cite any state employe exceeding it. TEXAS — B, C, D. State Highway Commission Chairman Reagan Houston says decision on whether to reduce statewide speed limit probably won't come before January. Dallas County commissioners ordered end to all outside lighting on county buildings except for John F. Kennedy Memorial.

UTAH — B, C, D. Gov. Calvin Rampton put a 60 m.p.h. limit on state vehicles several weeks ago but says he won't drop lower unless it becomes nationwide policy. VERMONT — A, B, C. Gov. Thomas P. Salmon also called on the State's congressional delegation to support a year-round daylight-savings plan. VIRGINIA — C. Gov. Linwood Holton requested motorists to keep to 50 m.p.h. voluntarily. WASHINGTON — A, B, C, D. Gov. Dan Evans ordered a steam-electric plant at Centralia to produce 1,200 instead of 1,000 megawatts, even though increase will violate clean air standards. Smaller ferries being used on some runs in Puget Sound by order of state. WEST VIRGINIA — B. Gov. Arch A. Moore said he will propose a plan to save heating fuel but discounted reduced lighting in state buildings. "Our shortages are gasoline, diesel fuel and heating oil, which we do not use to light the Capitol," he said. WISCONSIN — Director of the Wisconsin Office of Emergency Energy Assistance, Stanley York, says reduced speed limits and home and office heating cutbacks under consideration. Gov. Patrick Lucey says he's decided against 50 m.p.h. limit for state cars unless legislature applies the limit at all vehicles.

WYOMING — B, C. Gov. Stan Hathaway restricted state vehicles to 65 m.p.h. on interstate highways and 60 m.p.h. on other roads, saying he could not accept the President recommended 50 m.p.h. limit.

ADVERTISE FREE
Western Massachusetts Only
Super Ad List
FAIR EXCHANGE
A New Ad Weekly
Articles For Sale
by Private Owners
10 per cent of Advertised Price only IF and WHEN you sell 10,000 ACTIVE Buyers
NO DEALER ADS
SPECIAL 2 WEEK OFFER
No Commission Charge 25 word limit —
Ads must be received before Mon. noon, Nov. 19
FAIR EXCHANGE
P.O. Box J
N. Amherst, Mass. 01059
CALL 256-0236
Clip and Mail

"WALKING TALL"
"A vicious right wing fable."
— N.Y. Times
Starts Wed.,
Nov. 14
Campus Cinemas

Reflections of a Concerned Faculty Sympathizer at Oakland University

TO: Howard Brogan, Chairman
MSP-AAUP Joint Executive Board

FROM: Robert R. Dyer
Professor of Classics
University of Massachusetts/Amherst

Dear Professor Brogan:

In Oakland University as a new chairman of a small department, apparently dependent for survival on my Dean's admiration of the Classics, I was strongly opposed to collective bargaining during 1970-71 and voiced many of the same fears, innuendoes and emotional appeals with which the Committee of Concerned Faculty is trying to sway undecided faculty on this campus. However, collective bargaining there proved, in the opinion of almost everyone concerned, a great success. My fears proved largely — not, of course, wholly — groundless, and, had I grasped the positive implications of collective bargaining for academic freedom, I would not have left Oakland. The observation of collective bargaining at Oakland has made me a convinced supporter of it on this campus.

I see the following unquestioned successes of the process at Oakland. The agent (a local chapter of AAUP) achieved an excellent package of fringe benefits (university contributions to retirement, medical and other insurance, etc.) and high guaranteed minimum salaries at each rank. The negotiations which followed establishment of collective bargaining brought to the fore the most respected voices on the faculty — both former supporters and former opponents of collective bargaining — as the spokesmen and leaders of the various bargaining units and support committees, so that the faculty now speaks through men and women it trusts and elects for just that purpose. As for the feared polarization between faculty and administration, it now appears that the deans and chairmen are the chief, and most grateful, beneficiaries of a more intelligible, less Byzantine system of personnel decisions and relationships.

It may be useful if I run through some of the benefits expected on this campus and apply the lessons of Oakland to them:

The Faculty Senate will not be undermined

The agent will surely consider making the Senate the chief voice of faculty in academic and budget matters, and, if it accepts that principle, take as its most inflexible stand that more autonomy in curriculum matters, merit rewards, recommendations for administrative appointments, etc., be lodged with the Senate, and guaranteed in the legal contract drawn up through collective negotiation.

The present advantages secured by faculty in governance and benefits would not be lost

During the period after the faculty votes for collective bargaining and before the contract is signed, the status quo is legally frozen and neither side may alter any practice accepted as of the day of the vote. Although the Administration might, as a bargaining position, attempt to cut back on the academic freedoms and benefits in effect on the day of the vote, the faculty, through its bargaining representatives, would clearly make the maintenance of all those freedoms and benefits the very minimum that it would accept in the legally binding contract.

Academic and professional departments and programs which are not popular with the mass of the faculty would not suffer

By virtue of their electorate, agency officers have no right to discriminate against any program. They must support the goals and academic freedom of every department and every member of the faculty, and protect those interests in contractual bargaining. Politically, support by any two of the three major segments of the university — faculty, students, administration — outweighs the opposition of the third, and programs strongly supported by the administration and students will find their case vigorously made by the administration during collective bargaining.

Deans, heads, and chairmen would not lose their flexibility and become subject to rigid legal principles

This is true only in that contractual agreements remove the opportunity for Byzantine power intrigues. Administrators who enjoy political power plays should oppose collective bargaining, and those who are more interested in evolving a sensible set of legal rules and contracts, to which major decisions on hiring, firing, allotting teaching loads and duties, etc., might be subject, should join the dialogue on devising an acceptable set of contracts as the basis of collective bargaining. Administrators are judged, under collective bargaining on efficiency rather than on their political ability to maintain power, and I believe most would welcome this change.

Collective bargaining will not undermine campus autonomy

Since efficient administration is one of the prime concerns of faculty (and student) welfare, I trust the agent will bargain for greater autonomy for all aspects of campus governance, and for strengthening the role of the campus administration particularly in budget matters and the continued development of a strong graduate school.

The move to collective bargaining is not run by hotheads

The energy to promote something like collective bargaining must come from the frustrated and those who enjoy being fall guys for new ideas, and there is continuing function for such people. However, the faculty, once collective bargaining is approved, must select as its representatives on the bargaining team and responsible committees those it most trusts to speak for its collective will. It is thus usual for strong faculty voices who have opposed unionization to find themselves elected as faculty representatives for collective bargaining. Perhaps the first name I would nominate for a collective bargaining unit, if collective bargaining is approved on November 15, would be that of Robert Wellman, currently its chief critic.

While I still have qualms about faculty's having to engage in collective bargaining, I should have trusted the intelligence of the faculty and administration in pursuing collective bargaining towards ends which were in the best interests of Oakland University. I have confidence that our faculty and administration will do just as well.

Sincerely yours,
Robert R. Dyer
Professor of Classics

Reprinted by the MSP-AAUP

Tutors For Veterans

Veterans, taking a course that's getting you down? Attend every class and some of the material still hasn't sunk in? Required to take Gobbily-Gook 101 and your gobbily background isn't too strong? Aced Intro 101, now taking Advanced Intro and the cum is going down? Think some personalized instruction would help?

If you're an undergraduate student and a veteran presently receiving monthly educational benefits under the provisions of a G.I. Bill, the Office of Veterans Affairs has an offer you shouldn't refuse. It's the Veteran Administration Tutorial Assistance Program. You get extra instruction on a one to one student-teacher relationship and the Veterans Administration picks up the tab. This is in addition to your regular monthly benefits.

There are some requirements, and of course paper work, but these are relatively minor. The Office of Veterans Affairs, Room 241, Whitmore has the form (s) available to obtain tutorial assistance, names of tutors, and will be happy to answer any questions you have concerning this or any veteran program.

For you veteran graduate students, why not stop by and sign up to become a tutor? You'll be able to earn some extra money and help another veteran. More tutors are needed in every subject so stop in today.

Loeb Grounds Nixon

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) - The publisher of the Manchester Union Leader and the New Hampshire Sunday News has called for President Nixon to stop flying to vacation homes in California and Florida because of the energy crisis.

Publisher William Loeb has sent Nixon a telegram pointing out that round-trip fuel consumption between Washington and San Clemente, Calif., is 20,000 gallons and round-trip consumption between Washington and Key Biscayne, Fla., is 7,000 gallons.

"Respectfully request that you set a national example in fuel conservation by cancelling all your trips to San Clemente or Key Biscayne until the energy crisis is over," Loeb's telegram said.

The publisher said he had received inquiries from readers wanting to know why they should reduce their highway driving speed to 50 m.p.h. when the President was consuming large amounts of fuel traveling back and forth to his vacation homes.

TONITE
Penny Nite
with Daddy Long Legs
at the
Rusty Nail Inn
Rte. 47, Sunderland

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

Persons born on the 4th, 13th, 22nd and 31st of any month, but especially under Leo, Aquarius and Scorpio, and frank, fluent, willing to tear down in order to rebuild and, very often, are separated emotionally or psychologically from parents and peers.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You now have greater freedom of thought and action. Roadblock is removed. Journey becomes more plausible. Creative endeavors are likely to succeed. Give of yourself. Your own style, intent is a paramount importance.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Questions about who owns what will be clarified. You get more concise picture of budget, tax problems. You also get rid of burden you have been carrying for no good reason. Aries, Libra persons may be involved.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Lunar cycle is at peak--get started on project. Highlight independence, original approach. Strive for new contacts, outlook. Judgment, intuition will be on target. Trust yourself. Leo plays key role.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Follow through--apply knowledge. Put theory into practice. One who taught you in past could make surprise reapperance. What was a secret can now be openly discussed. Toss aside fears, suspicions. You're on right track.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Accent is on social activity, fulfillment on some desires. You receive flattery, compliments. Maintain balance. Keep perspective in focus. Sagittarius, Gemini persons figure in prominent ways.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Civic project could lend prestige. Co-operate. Assignment will pay dividends. One in authority will press button for green light. Know it and proceed with confidence. You will be dealing from position of greater strength.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You see with clarity. You discern reasons. Your philosophy is reinforced. You plan travel. You want to learn and a language fascinates you. Write to one at a distance. Ask questions. You can obtain valuable information.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Money may be on the line. Purchases, time plans could be featured. Family member makes request. Acquiesce. Peace at home is now more importan than usual. Know it and don't rock domestic boat. Taurus is in picture.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Judgment may be slightly off base. Know it and hold back on definite commitment. Cooperate with partner, mate. Be open to suggestion without being naive. Strive for realistic appraisal. Leave pie-in-sky dreams for others.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan 19): You get to heart of matters--production and costs. In personal matters, you also find where you stand. One born under your sign could play significant role. Pressure is on and you will have to find ways to relax.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Relationship is put to test. Settle differences through frank discussion. Aries individual could have temper tantrum. Don't compound error. Finish tasks. Round out plans. Creative changes are in offing.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Cut through to basic issues. Beating about bush will not provide answers. Direct approach brings results. Leo, Aquarius persons might figure in important ways. New contact leads toward goal. Know it; act accordingly.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have sense of humor and must be aware of diet. You have many admirers and also those who envy you. January and October were significant months. In December, you get chance for new start. Romantic interests will be stimulated. Sagittarius, Gemini persons are drawn to you.

Copyright 1973, Gen. Fea. Corp.

Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS

1 Drinking vessel
6 Part of church (pl.)
11 Suffer internal excitement
12 Wanted
14 Teutonic deity
15 Piece cut to fit mortise
17 Tissue
18 Danish land division
20 Lavishes fondness on
22 Openwork fabric
23 Sailors (colloq.)
25 Lasso
27 Symbol for cerium
28 Breaks suddenly
30 Storage places
32 Clever
34 Satiate
35 Sponsors
38 Europeans
41 Hebrew month
42 Memoranda
44 Irritate
45 Ethiopian title
47 Natives of Latvia
49 Organ of hearing
50 Short jacket
52 Wading birds
54 A state (abbr.)
55 Calm
57 Free from binding
59 Spirited horse
60 Warm

DOWN

1 European
2 French article
3 Unit of Siamese currency
4 Lean-to
5 Spanish title
6 Toughens
7 Hebrew letter
8 Place
9 Paradise
10 Choose
11 Chairs
13 Tropical fruit (pl.)
16 Pertaining to the ear
19 Pamphlet
21 Porticos
24 Reject
26 Showy flower
29 Backless seat
31 Weird
33 Went in 35 Peels
36 Lessens
37 Bristle
39 Sounded loudly
40 European finch
43 Long-legged bird
46 Classify
48 Plumlike fruit
51 Born
53 Soak up
56 Compass point
58 Spanish for "yes"

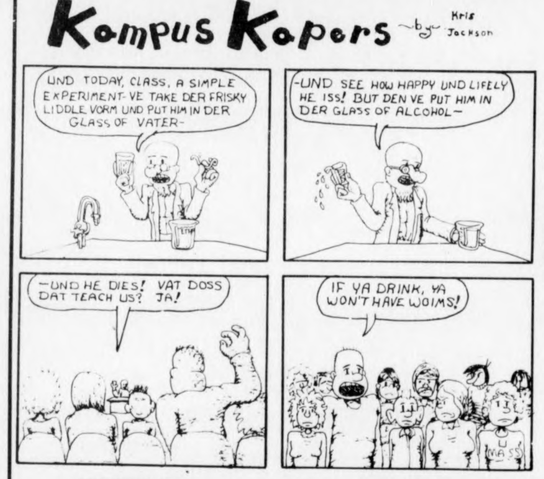
▨	1	2	3	4	5	▨	6	7	8	9	10	▨
11						▨	12					13
14		▨	15			16		▨	17
18		19	▨	20				21	▨	22
23			24	▨	25				26	▨	27
28				29	▨	30				31
▨	▨	32			33	▨	34				▨	▨
35	36					37	▨	38			39	40
41		▨	42				43	▨	44
45		46	▨	47				48	▨	49
50			51	▨	52				53	▨	54
55				56		▨	57			58
▨	59					▨	60					▨

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 12

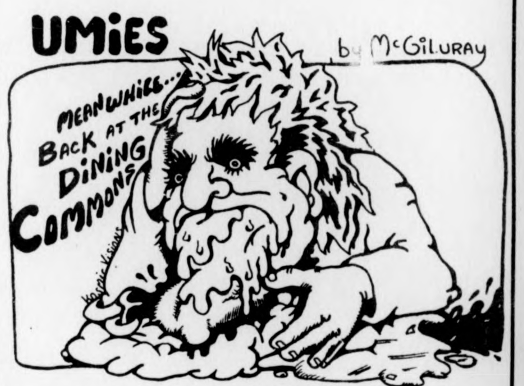
Answer to Saturday's Puzzle

■	T	H	E	S	E	■	S	H	E	E	R	■
P	R	I	M	A	L	■	T	E	L	L	E	R
L	E	■	S	P	E	A	R	E	D	■	T	I
E	N	S	■	S	C	R	O	D	■	N	I	T
A	C	E	R	■	T	A	L	■	B	O	N	E
S	H	R	E	W	S	■	L	L	A	M	A	S
■	■	I	V	A	■	■	■	A	N	I	■	■
A	V	A	U	N	T	■	P	R	A	N	C	E
D	A	L	E	■	O	B	I	■	L	E	A	D
E	R	S	■	T	W	I	N	E	■	E	N	D
L	I	■	W	R	E	S	T	L	E	■	A	A
E	E	R	I	E	R	■	O	I	L	E	R	S
■	S	I	T	E	S	■	S	A	L	A	D	■

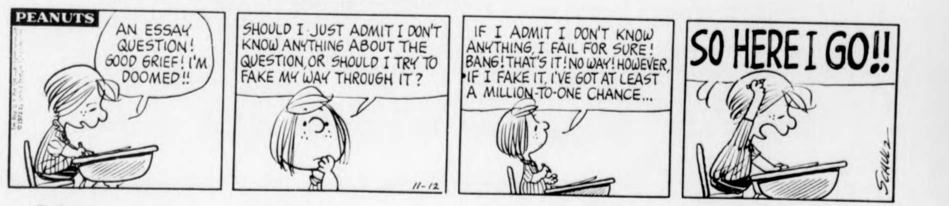
12



Kompus Kopers by Kris Jackson
UND TODAY, CLASS, A SIMPLE EXPERIMENT- VE TAKE DER FRISKY LIDDLE VORM UND PUT HIM IN DER GLASS OF VATER-
-UND SEE HOW HAPPY UND LIFELY HE ISS! BUT DEN VE PUT HIM IN DER GLASS OF ALCOHOL-
-UND HE DIES! VAT DOSS DAT TEACH US? JA!
IF YA DRINK, YA WON'T HAVE WOIMS!
U MASS



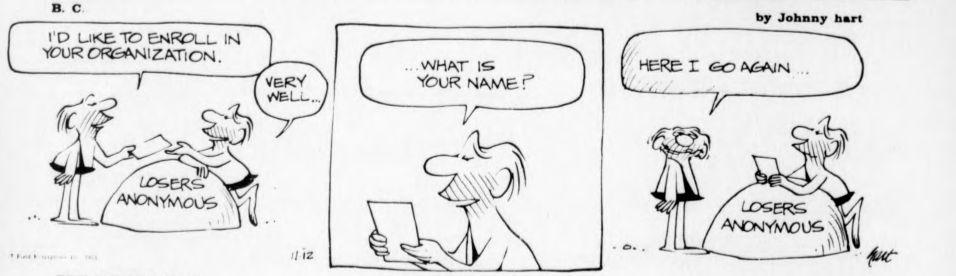
UMiES by McGiLURAY
MEANWHILE... BACK AT THE DINING COMMONS
Kosmic Visions



PEANUTS
AN ESSAY QUESTION! GOOD GRIEF! I'M DOOMED!!
SHOULD I JUST ADMIT I DON'T KNOW ANYTHING ABOUT THE QUESTION, OR SHOULD I TRY TO FAKE MY WAY THROUGH IT?
11-12
IF I ADMIT I DON'T KNOW ANYTHING, I FAIL FOR SURE! BANG! THAT'S IT! NO WAY! HOWEVER, IF I FAKE IT, I'VE GOT AT LEAST A MILLION-TO-ONE CHANCE...
SO HERE I GO!!
SCHULZ

B. C.

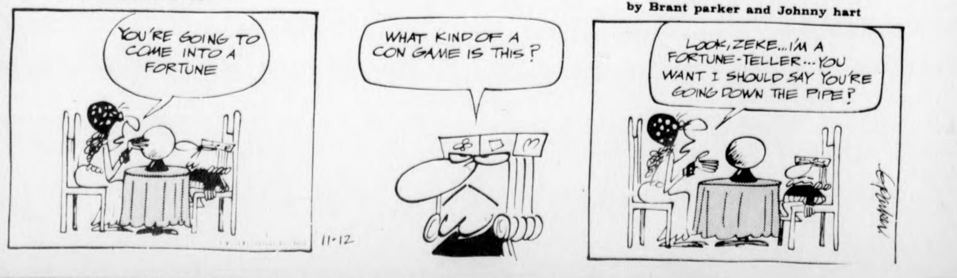
by Johnny hart



I'D LIKE TO ENROLL IN YOUR ORGANIZATION.
VERY WELL...
LOSERS ANONYMOUS
11-12
...WHAT IS YOUR NAME?
HERE I GO AGAIN...
LOSERS ANONYMOUS
hart

THE WIZARD OF ID

by Brant parker and Johnny hart



YOU'RE GOING TO COME INTO A FORTUNE
11-12
WHAT KIND OF A CON GAME IS THIS?
LOOK, ZEKE... I'M A FORTUNE-TELLER... YOU WANT I SHOULD SAY YOU'RE GOING DOWN THE PIPE?
parker

—Notices (cont.)—

(Continued from P. 13)

STAR TREK LIVES!:
Informal meeting tonite! 803 C.C. Everyone invited.

THEATRE PREREGISTRATION:
Nov. 14, 15, 16 for undergraduates. All courses except 115 and 155 must be approved by counselor. 4th floor, Machmer.

UNIVERSITY JUDICIARIES:
Important meeting tomite at 9, in Rm. 811 C.C. All judges and advocates requested to attend. Goals and new trials will be discussed.

UNIVERSITY WOMEN:
Chopping Block demonstration 7:45, 406 N. Pleasant S. Come and bring your friends.

WORLD PLAN WEEK SEMINARS:
Sidney B. Simon, professor at the Sch. of Ed. & pioneer in the humanistic education movement, will be speaking at 7:30 p.m. in Morrill, Lecture #3 at Amherst College on Transcendental Meditation and Humanistic Education.

FOUND:
Male's self winding wrist watch in S.B.A. Aud. Call 6-8583.

LOST:
One red, white, blue knitted mitten. Handmade and great sentimental value. Call 549-6538. Reward.

LOST:
On Peter Pan Bus returning from New York Hotel Show, 1 yellow parka and management book. Need both desperately. 584-8605.

LOST:
Sm. gold ring with 2 diamonds, sapphire in middle. Great sentimental value. Please return, no questions asked. Call 253-7668 weekday evenings.

LOST:
A pair of octagonal wire rim glasses at Clark Hall. Sunday 10/26. I'm desperate. Karen 404 Mary Lyon. 549-2516.

Smith To Hold Bazarre

Smith College celebrates International Students Day this year on Wednesday, November 14, by holding a bazaar. All monies raised that day will go to foreign student scholarships. It is on annual project sponsored by the Service Organizations of Smith which will be held in Scott Gymnasium from 10:00 a.m. to 7:00 p.m.

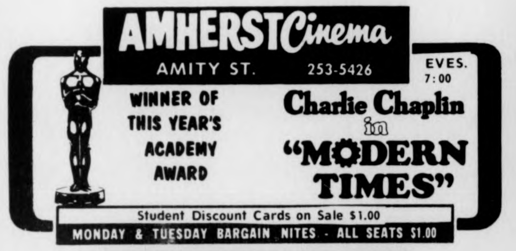
In November of 1939, a Czechoslovakian student protested against the repressive Nazi regime. He was executed and other Czechoslovakian students joined in the struggle for human freedom and were massacred by German troops.

International Sudents Day commemorates the massacre of those Czechoslovakian students who endeavored to keep their people free. International Students Day is celebrated universally to remind us of that sacrifice so that we may also work together to foster peace and unity in the world.

This year's theme is "Festivities Around the World". Fourteen countries will be represented. Each booth will be decorated with merchandise characteristic of the country and the people. Among the articles for sale are: figurines from Africa, woven bedspreads from India, bamboo planters from the Far East, leather pocketbooks from the Middle East, silver-plated jewelry from Greece, Christmas decorations from Scandinavia, mezuzahs from Israel and Christmas tree ornaments from Austria and Germany.

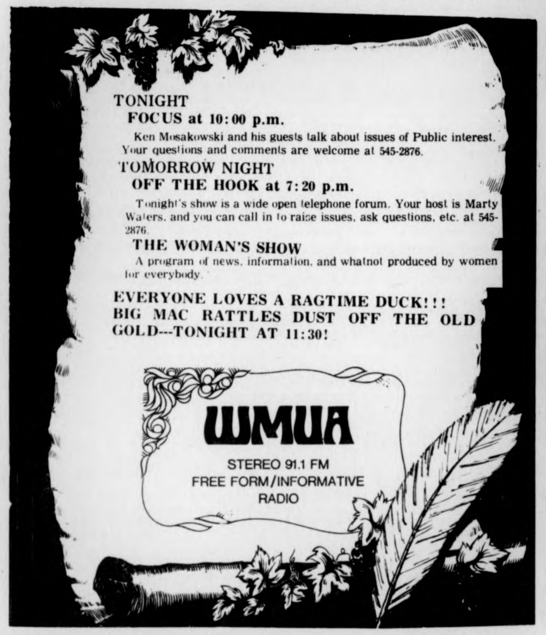
Most of the merchandise is handmade by the people of the country. Food will be served all day and foreign recipes will be featured.

On November 14, let us celebrate together, remembering that there is a reason for an Internatinal Students Day.



AMHERST Cinema
AMITY ST. 253-5426
EVES. 7:00
WINNER OF THIS YEAR'S ACADEMY AWARD
Charlie Chaplin in "MODERN TIMES"
Student Discount Cards on Sale $1.00
MONDAY & TUESDAY BARGAIN NITES - ALL SEATS $1.00

CALVIN Theatre
KING ST., NORTHAMPTON
NOW 584-2310
The funniest love story of the year
A Touch Of Class
George Segal Glenda Jackson
EVES. 7:00 9:00
Students $1.00 All Times with Membership Card
MONDAY & TUESDAY BARGAIN NITES - ALL SEATS $1.00
They had the perfect love affair.
Until they fell in love.



TONIGHT
FOCUS at 10:00 p.m.
Ken Mosakowski and his guests talk about issues of Public interest. Your questions and comments are welcome at 545-2876.
TOMORROW NIGHT
OFF THE HOOK at 7:20 p.m.
Tonight's show is a wide open telephone forum. Your host is Marty Waters, and you can call in to raise issues, ask questions, etc. at 545-2876.
THE WOMAN'S SHOW
A program of news, information, and whatnot produced by women for everybody.
EVERYONE LOVES A RAGTIME DUCK!!!
BIG MAC RATTLES DUST OFF THE OLD GOLD---TONIGHT AT 11:30!
WMUA
STEREO 91.1 FM
FREE FORM/INFORMATIVE RADIO

AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
ACADEMY OF MUSIC
NORTHAMPTON
Monday & Tuesday
Nov. 12 & 13
at 2:00 & 8:00 p.m.
THE AMERICAN FILM THEATRE
Harold Pinter's
THE HOMECOMING
Starring Cyril Cusack, Ian Holm, Michael Jayston, Vivien Merchant, Terence Rigby, Paul Rogers. Directed by Peter Hall.
(IN ALPHABETICAL ORDER) tickets available all performances
Matinee, 2 p.m. $4
Evening, 8 p.m. $5

MDC CLASSIFIEDS

FOR SALE

Tires — All brands, Radials, Snows — All types, guaranteed lowest prices. Call 546-8362 after 6.
tf11-12

S & L Camera Imports has new cameras, lenses & other photo equip. at slashed prices. Full warranty, all makes and models. Call Ken, 6-9723.
tf11-30

Panasonic Port. TV. Brand new! $70: Receiver 20 watts Ch. $80. Call 546-5271 or 546-5261.
tf11-12

Discount stereo equip. and pocket calculators. Special! 12" 4-way air susp. speaks. Reg. $300 pr. NOW $175 pr. Barry 6-6085 eve.
tf11-12

Olin Mark II skis, brand new never been used, no binding holes, 1973 Model priced reasonably. Call Stan at 256-6902 evenings.
tf11-13

Guitar Mossman 6 string: BRA2 Rosewood, Mahogneck, Ebony Board. Used 6 mo., retail $620 sell for $450, incl hardshell case. Call 369-4042.
tf11-14

The Arms Race: A 1 credit Minicourse, Phyics 190D. No prereq. MWF 11:15, HAS 124, Nov. 12 - Dec. 12. Call Prof. Guyer, 545-0933 for details.
tf11-14

Need warmth? Globe Goose Down Parka, M-W large, new condition $35.00. Call Maureen, 6-7350 anytime.
tf11-12

THESE ARE TIMES THAT TRY MENS SOULS in these days of darkness and doubt, of crisis and confusion what the world needs is a truly great store PAUL'S OLDTIME FURNITURE is that store. We feature bureaus, desks, pictures, nostalgia, spiritual, guidance, the entire range of human emotion at the lowest prices. Amherst, behind Aubuchon, 253-3511.
tf11-12

Mobile home — 2 bedroom on nice lot, 10 miles, avail. now or 2nd semester, $2,600. Call 323-4428, except weekends.
tf11-13

Snow tires — 2 used 7.35x14, studded, 4 ply nylon, "General winter cleat slp." — best offer over $20. Call 549-3865.
tf11-13

For sale — alto saxophone, $135; cello, $300. 584-6279, ask for Tom.
tf11-16

Live Christmas trees, select and tag now, any size $6.31. L. Blizniak, 133 Bay Rd., Hadley.
tf12-12

18 foot Tipi for sale — made by Homadic's Tipis. 14 oz. cover, 10 oz. canvas liner, door flap and poles, $150. Call Jon, 253-2413.
tf11-13

Mag wheels — 4-14" mt. chrome wheels for G.M. cars, cost $100, sell for $40. 6-4538.
tf11-15

A.M. car radio, push button, trans., perfect condition, you can mount it in your dashboard or glove comp., $20. Call 256-0615, keep trying.
tf11-12

Ampex tape deck, 3 heads for sound on sound, hardly used, $300 new, asking $200. 256-0615, keep trying.
tf11-12

Nikon FTN body Soligor, 28mm and 200mm lens, $275. Call 665-3902.
tf11-12

Ski equipment — Olympia, like new boots and rack, size 10, clip style carrier and poles. For information call 586-1368.
tf11-14

1970 Rebel Machine, 4 speed Hurst 390 engine, excellent running cond. $1600. Call 546-5271 or 546-5261.
tf11-12

1964 VW, good condition, $150. Ask for Tom, 549-1506 after 5 p.m.
tf11-16

1967 Barracuda, smashed front end, 383 4-speed, Mallory distributor, new starter, motor, $225 takes it. Sandy, 584-2019.
tf11-16

1966 Cutlass Supr. p.s, p.b., very good condition. Call 367-2771.
tf11-16

1961 Ford Galaxie, running condition, needs work, $90. Negotiable. 546-7700, after 1:00 p.m.
tf11-12

AUTO FOR SALE

Austin Healey, 3000, 1960, fully restored. Call 665-4182.
tf11-14

INTERESTED IN MAKING EVEN TRADE? I have a 1967, 428 Gran Prix and would like to exchange for a smaller auto. Call 253-7482.
tf11-12

1970 VW sunroof, excellent mechanical condition. Best offer, need to sell, license revoked. Call 549-0648, after five thirty.
tf11-14

Gas sipping wonder, 65 VW Bus 18000 miles on rebuilt eng. 26 mpg. AM-FM, int. insulated, many extras. Call anytime, 546-3986.
tf11-12

Dodge Coronet, 1966, 273, std. trans., good tires, new battery, starter, generator, exhaust, runs very well, and is dependable. Asking $375. Call 549-3669.
tf11-15

1968 Chevelle Malibu, p.s., p.b., V-8 auto., excel. condition, selling for new car. Call Dan, 256-6863, leave number, keep trying.
tf11-14

1964 Buick Skylark, good condition, $125. Paul Cole, 542-5607, Hampshire College.
tf11-13

1964 Comet, standard, 6 cylinder, needs battery, $100. 323-7372 evenings.
tf11-12

1965 Mustang, good running condition, sticker, best offer. Call 546-1017 or 545-0329, Ashvin.
tf11-13

For sale — 1970 Chevelle, 4 speed 302, Hurst shifter, reasonable. Phone 546-4554.
tf11-14

1962 pickup in good condition, new sticker. Call between 5-7 p.m., 584-5123.
tf11-12

WANTED

Attractive liberal open-minded female who likes leather, bizarre, etc. for modeling, good pay. K.B., Box 262, Holyoke, Ma. 01040.
tf11-12

Medical technologist or equivalent for part time position. Hours 2:30 p.m. to 11:00 p.m. weekends. Call 413-774-3111, ext. 29 or 38.
tf11-16

N.E.S. needs any kind of scrap material (fabric) for kids' collages. Bring your scraps to 426A Student Union before Thurs., Nov. 15.
tf11-14

Garage to store small car for winter months or info about one. Call 549-1263, Ed Cook.
tf11-14

APARTMENT FOR RENT

1 bedroom in 4 bedroom apt., spring semester only, no lease required, $80 per month, utilities paid. Call 253-7850. I may even let you use my waterbed!
tf11-13

Available immediately — 2 room furnished apt., for female or couple, near center of Amherst, $130, heat included. Call 256-0303.
tf11-12

ROOMMATE WANTED

2 male Eng. grad students want mature hip m/f to share 3 bedroom apt. in Amherst, old house, $67 plus. 253-5275.
tf11-15

Need mature female roommate for Dec. 1 or Jan. 1. Own room, Cliffside on bus route, mainly furnished, $185 per mo. includes utilities. 665-4355.
tf11-16

Wanted: Female to apartment hunt with for Jan. 1. Call Linda after 6 p.m. 253-7752.
tf11-16

Female to share 1 bdrm. Presidential apt. beginning Jan. Semi-furnished, $87.50 - mon., incl. utilities. Call 549-4463.
tf11-16

MOTORCYCLES FOR SALE

1972 CB350 Honda, 3,000 miles, cosmetic flaws, mint mechanical condition. 549-4473, keep trying, $600 firm.
tf11-13

750 Honda, 3 inch over tubes, custom paint, many extras, must be seen, $1,500 or best offer. Phone 586-3952 evenings.
tf11-16

LOST

Organic Chem 3rd Ed. Morrison Boyd. Reward for return, needed desperately. Call 545-0260 or come to 1106 G.R.T. Ask for Mack.
tf11-12

I lost my drivers license. Please bring to the Collegian, to Pedro Hernandez.
tf11-15

1974 UMass ring in men's room next to CC Lost and Found. If found, please call Charlie, 586-2562 after 6 p.m. Reward!
tf11-12

Black and white cat in the vicinity of Brittany Manor. Please call 253-5922 if found.
tf11-13

INSTRUCTION

Upper division Physics courses for Biological and Physical Science majors: 301-Concepts of Modern Physics; 319-Electronic Instrumentation; 320-Radiation Physics & Nuclear Medicine; 386-Special Problems; 391-Seminar on Molecular Bio-Physics. For details, see course description guide or inquire in Hasbrouck 110.
tf11-16

Physics for non-science majors: 100-World Beyond Our Senses; 100A-100 In Spanish; 115-Physics of Music; 117-Nuclear Energy & Its Social Challenge; 118-Quantum Worlds; 122-Concepts of Physics, 2; 123-Problems in Physics; 130-Physics for Elem. Ed. Majors; 386-Special Problems. Details — see course description guide or inquire in Hasbrouck 110.
tf11-16

Need $ Aid?

Second semester financial aid applications will be accepted from Monday, November 12, 1973 to Friday, November 23, 1973. Funds are estremely limited and priority consideration will be given to students demonstrating exceptional financial need. Students denied assistance for the first semester who wish reconsideration should fill our a reconsideration form in the Financial Aid Office - 243 Whitmore. New applicants must fill out both a University application and the appropriate financial statement.

"Believe It Or Not" Researcher At DVP

Norbert Pearlroth, main researcher for Robert Ripley's "Believe It Or Not" organization, will speak tonight at 8 in the Campus Center Auditorium. The program is a presentation of the Distinguished Visitors Program and the first of three programs scheduled for DVP's Believe It Or Not series.

Fifty years ago, Robert Ripley complained to a friend that he was having trouble finding usable items for his newspaper feature, particularly because of his ignorance of foreign language. The friend recommended Norbert Pearlroth, a young clerk from Austria who knew 13 languages. Pearlroth has been with the organization ever since.

Ripley illustrated his features while Pearlroth researched up until Ripley's death in 1949, after which Pearlroth carried on the main work of the organization.

SHOWCASE CINEMAS 1·2·3·4·5
ROUTE 5 RIVERDALE RD.
WEST SPFLD. 24 HR. TEL. 733-5131
We Honor MASTER CHARGE
Malcolm McDowell
Lindsay Anderson's
R O LUCKY MAN!
Wed. Mat. - 2:00
Eves. - 7:00-9:50
Sat. & Sun. - 1:30-4:05-7:00-9:45
STREISAND & REDFORD THE WAY WE WERE PG
Mon.-Fri. - 2-7:30-9:50
Sat. & Sun. - 1-3-5:05-7:20-9:50
PG WALTER MATTHAU as "CHARLEY VARRICK"
Wed. Mat. - 2:00
Eves. - 7:30-9:50
Sat. & Sun. - 1:30-3:25-5:20-7:30-10
DONALD SUTHERLAND · ELLIOTT GOULD
PG M·A·S·H
Wed. Mat. - 2:00
Eves. - 7:30-9:50
Sat. & Sun. - 1:30-3:25-5:25-7:40-10
WE'RE ADDING A NEW CINEMA WATCH FOR GALA OPENING

JAMES WILLIAM GUERCIO'S OUTSTANDING FIRST FILM . . . ONE OF THE YEAR'S VERY BEST . .
Electra Glide IN BLUE
PG United Artists
starring ROBERT BLAKE
7:15 & 9:15
GET YOUR HEAD SET AND DIG THIS R-RATED KUNG-FU DOUBLE-FEATURE! LOTS OF ACTION-LOTS OF LAUGHS!
SHOW STARTS 7:15
DEEP THRUST THE HAND OF DEATH
PLUS
UNSTOPPABLE! "THE SHANGHAI KILLERS"
Campus Cinemas 256-6411
AMHERST-HADLEY LINE
DOLLAR NITES MON. & TUES. ADMISSION $1.00
NOW AT POPULAR PRICES! At 7:15 & 9:30
"Last Tango in Paris is not about sex and it is not about inhumanity. It is about the things that a man lives by. There's just nothing to compare with it in recent experience. It is very much worth seeing."
-Judith Crist, 'Today' Show
Marlon Brando Last Tango in Paris
"Last Tango in Paris is a genuine masterpiece of staggering proportions."
—Edward Behr, Newsweek
FOR GROUP SALES OR SPECIAL SHOWINGS
CONTACT MANAGER IN PERSON OR CALL 256-6411.
"Did you know that me and Alan Ladd were exactly the same height?"

Television Tonight

5:00 ENSIGN O'TOOLE (18)
HOGAN'S HEROES "The General Swap." (22)
MISTER ROGERS NEIGHBORHOOD (24) (57)
BEVERLY HILLBILLIES "A Bundle For Britain." (30)
GOMER PYLE "The Secret Life Of Gomer Pyle." (40)
5:30 THE REAL McCOYS "Kate's Competition (18)
THE LUCY SHOW "Lucy and Pat Collins." (22)
THE ELECTRIC COMPANY (24) (57)
HOGAN'S HEROES (30)
NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS (40)
5:55 WHAT'S HAPPENING UPDATE (3)
6:00 NEWS (3) (8) (22)
I SPY "Apollo" (18)
ZOOM! (24) (57)
TO TELL THE TRUTH Garry Moore, host (30)
WILD WILD WEST "Night Of the Deathmaker." (40)
6:30 NEWS (3) (22) (30)
ABC EVENING NEWS (8)
MAKING THINGS WORK (24)
LOUIS LYONS: NEWS AND COMMENT (57)
6:55 NEWSBEAT NEWS (40)
7:00 MOVIE "Flim Flam Man." (3)
TRUTH OR CONSEQUENCES Bob Barker, host (8)
DICK VAN DYKE SHOW "A Word A Day." (18)
NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS (22) (30)
YOUR FUTURE IS NOW (24)
ABC EVENING NEWS (57)
7:30 POLICE SURGEON (8)
GREEN ACRES "Never Look a Gift Tractor in the Mouth." (18)
THE HOLLYWOOD SQUARES Peter Marshall, host (22) (30)
WOMAN "Sudden Infant Death Syndrome." (24)
POLKA With Frank Knight (40)
WALSH'S ANIMALS (57)
8:00 THE ROOKIES "Prayers Unanswered, Prayers Unheard." (8) (40)
NOTRE DAME FOOTBALL (18)
LOTSA LUCK "The New Stan." (22) (30)
WRINKLES, BIRTHDAYS AND OTHER FABLES (24)
SPECIAL OF THE WEEK "The Royal Family." (57)
8:30 DIANA "You Can't Go Back." (22) (30)
9:00 HERE'S LUCY (3)
NFL MONDAY NIGHT FOOTBALL (8) (40)
THE 700 CLUB (18)
MOVIE "Barefoot In the Park." (22) (30)
BORIS KARLOFF PRESENTS THRILLER "Late Date." (27)
9:30 NEW DICK VAN DYKE SHOW (3)
SMALL CITY GARDEN (57)
10:00 MEDICAL CENTER "Child Of Violence." (3)
CHANGING OTHER FABLES (24)
NEWS (27)
MARTIN AGRONSKY: EVENING EDITION (57)
10:30 THE LIVING WORD (18)
BOOK BEAT (24)
MANTRAP (27)
WOMAN (57)
11:00 NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS (3) (18) (22) (27) (30)
11:30 MOVIE "Along Came A Spider." (3)
JOHNNY CARSON SHOW (22) (30)

MDC CLASSIFIEDS

HELP WANTED

Collegian is looking for an Asst. Advertising Manager. Job involves supervising ad reps & building advt. revenue. Must be an underclassmen, with car, & a genuine interest in newspaper advt. Experience in marketing & graphics helpful but not essential. Will have to work hard for small pay but the rewards in experience will be invaluable. Person hired will be trained to become the advertising manager for next year. For details and information see Brent Wilkes at the Collegian Office.
tf11-16

2nd or 3rd year language major male, need $20. 1 hr. work? Call Dave 256-0305.
tf11-10

Poster Stuffers for Hampshire County area. Car is preferable but not necessary. Call Dave. For Friday and Sat. 256-0236.

Waitresses, Doormen apply in person Timothy's Spirits Company, 30 John St., Holyoke, 538-9700.
tf11-13

Full time for Book & Record Store. Apply in person on Nov. 8, 9, 10 at Soundsope Mountain Farms Mall, Hadley Rt 9.
tf11-12

Need a job to get you thru school? Time to study while working, we might have what you are looking for. Night Auditor at Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge, Hadley, Mass. Must be accurate with figures. Please apply in person.
tf11-13

Projectionist: Wanted for local theatre complex. Must have Mass. Operator's License. Good pay and fringe benefits. Part-time jobs available. Call Jim Merck at 584-9154.
tf11-15

SPEED TYPISTS
In Ware at Collegian Printer
8:30 p.m. to 4 a.m.
Call Charlotte
1-413-967-6888

Drivers and helpers to deliver posters. Fri. 5:30-9 p.m., Sat. 9-12 noon. Pay plus mileage. Call Dave, 256-0236.
tf11-12

HELP WANTED

Bus Drivers wanted, need Class 2 Lic. Part time 10-20 hrs. per wk. Apply Student Senate Bus, Univ Bus Garage, 5-0056 or 5-2086.
tf11-12

Amherst Ballet Centre seeks temp. piano accompanist, Monday 4:15 to 5:30 and Tues., 3:30 to 6:00, Nov. 12 to Dec. 18. $3.00 per hour. Donohue, 256-8027.
tf11-12

Audio Dept. mgr. know your audio components? See us for Dynamite Position w/growing chain. Soundscope Mountain in Frm Mall, Rt. 9, HA.
tf11-12

PERSONAL

Support your local bus driver.
tf11-12

5 Coll. Canada ski trip — 4 days, 3 nites. Hotel, breakfast, dinner. Transportation Apres ski party, all for $85. Jan. 22-25. B. Baggins Travel, 256-0146.
tf11-15

Unwed mother desires adoption of two children. One male and one female, both tiger angora. Will deliver if necessary. Call 253-9668.
tf11-13

Futre CPA's learn how to prepare for the CPA Exam. Becker CPA Review Course. Call collect 617-536-1440.
tf11-22

Students pt. time & full time available, apply in person United Paper Box, 528 Water St., Foot of Cabot, Holyoke, Ma.
tf11-12

NARCS yes folks there over 250 narcotic agents on UMass Amherst Campus posing as students, bartenders, kitchen personel and etc. So BEWARE.
tf11-12

Decent male seeks sensuous female to get together. Write: Tom P.O. Box 144, Amherst.
tf11-13

To Kathy and Casey — happy birthday(s), and best of luck always from all your old 28 Knowlton buddies.
tf11-19

PERSONAL

Find out what coming out is all about, see the play direct from Boston, Nov. 16 and 17, Worcester Dining Commons, 9:00 p.m.
tf11-16

The arms race: A 1 credit minicourse, Physics 190D. No prereq. MWF 11:15, HAS 124, Nov. 12-Dec. 12. Call Prof. Guyer, 545-0933. For details.
tf11-14

Friendly couple want to share babysitting load with another. Our kids are 22 and 7 months old. Let's cooperate. Call 584-2574.
tf 11-14

To Bubbie — my favorite alumnus, happy anniversary! Two years isn't enough time to tell you how much I love you. Tiger.
tf11-12

Want to be a judge? Apply in Room 420 Student Union ASAP!
tf11-15

to my lover with the haunting eyes — it has been a most wonderful month. Much love from your star of the morning.
tf11-12

Manny — happy 19th, the award was very appropriate!! "Charlie".
tf11-12

Winter Outdoor Living Skills and Whitewater Canoeing courses offered by JD Nature Lab. I live on campus and have info, 546-6131.
tf11-24

TRAVEL

Going by air? Let us handle your preflight, in-flight and post-flight arrangements at no cost to you. Call campus rep., 253-3162 evenings.
tf12-12

ROOMS FOR RENT

Rooms — by arrangement, free parking, no utilities, next to campus. Call at 253-9938 or see Duncan at 401 N. Pleasant.
tf11-16

SERVICES

Attention Datsun owners, I perform all phases of major and minor maintenance and repairs on Datsun at less than ½ dealership price. I have over $3000 in equipment, 4 years automotive experience, 2 of which were at a Datsun Dealership, specializing in Datsun. Tele. 253-7456, Russell Baca.
tf11-19

Photos — passports, visas, etc., 48 hour service! Sizes and number negotiable, $3.00 minimum! Call Steve at 546-5443.
tf11-30

Research — thousands of topics, $2.75 per page. Send $1 for mail order catalog. Research assistance, inc. 11941 Wilshire Blvd., Suite 2, L.A., Calif. 90025.
tf12-12

Typing — dissertations, theses, term papers etc. Fast, accurate, references, IBM Selectric, good rates, call Tom 546-1165.
tf11-12

Experienced electronic and electrical repairs. Reasonable rates. Call 545-2308, Mark 415 or Bill 401. Keep trying.
tf11-15

Get a load off your mind, truck for hire. Call Gary or Joyce, 256-6376.
tf11-21

Part or full time clerical or research work for intersession, experienced, references, own transportation. Call Donna, 665-4137.
tf11-13

Typing — dissertations, theses, term papers, etc. Fast, accurate, references, IBM Selectric, low rates. Call Tom 546-1165, pref. evenings.
tf11-13

Central Area Counseling Center, B-2 Gorman, 5-0894 wants to help you find direction, self-confidence, etc. Info aplenty., come!! tf11-30

WANTED TO RENT

Grad student wants room or apt near campus or on bus route for Jan. Call Sue Peterson 546-9984, Prince House.
tf11-12

FOR RENT

Apt for one — Avlbl. imm. lg brm, sm kit, full bath, storage, pkg. 220 N. Pleasant, 2 nd fl of lg house. All utl. incl. $145. 549-3736, 253-8742.
tf11-14

Garage space, central Amherst. Safe and inexpensive. D.H. Jones 549-3700.
tf11-29

Someone to share 3 bedroom house, female or couple, 527-5171, Easthampton.
tf11-12

2 bedroom, top floor Brittany Manor apt., Jan. 1 to May 31. $230, no summer obligation, some furniture, 256-0405.
tf11-12

5 to 6 bedroom house in Wendell, 2 kitchens, 2 bathrooms, full cellar with fireplace. 256-8896.
tf11-12

ENTERTAINMENT

Bring back those great memories, boogie to your favorite golden oldies. I have the records and the PA. Call me at 536-6075.
tf11-12

Mark it on your calendar — INDIA NIGHT on Nov. 18, Sunday, 7:30 p.m., C.C. Aud. Enjoy classical, folk dances, music and a lot more, plus authentic Indian snacks after show. Adm. $1. Tickets at C.C. Concourse. For more information call Vijay Arora, Sec. I.A., 5-0612. Don't miss it! You will like it.
tf11-16

Berkshire East Poster Contest. Prizes are: 1st prize - a 10-week season's pass at Berkshire; 2nd prize is a weekend pass; 3rd prize is a day pass. Rules are: size 18"x24", leave 4"x4" space in upper-left corner. Ski related design. Leave lots of room for event, date, place. Bring to Mahar, Nov. 28 at 8 p.m. Will be judged Dec. 1 at C.C. Aud. Snow dance at 9 p.m.
tf11-17

FREE

We have to give away attractive female cat that is pregnant. Very gentle, tricolored, needs warm home and food. Call 549-6394.
tf11-13

A Letter To Yogi

(Ed. Note: The following column appeared in the Greenfield Recorder (Nov. 8). Below is a copy of the reply from the student press which is being sent to the columnist.)

By JOHN HAYWOOD
Greenfield Record's Sports Columnist

Dear Yogi:

Just want to take you away from your busy schedule for a moment to say thanks for your appearance at the University of Massachusetts...

I know it was a thrill for a good many baseball fans here in western Massachusetts to finally see, in person, the man whom they had read and heard about for so many years...

It must have been a real treat for you to watch your son Timmy in action and the Minutemen slamming Vermont, 27-7. Timmy, to be sure, has had better days offensively, but Vermont was double-teaming him, which kind of slowed him down. Still you must have been proud when Tim opened the game with a dazzling 64-yard kickoff return.

I understand you were a little bit upset about all the fuss that was caused by the student newspaper about your appearance at UM. But I'm sure you realize there was no harm intended. The paper's staff just couldn't understand why there should be a Yogi Day and not a day for all the football players' dads. A nice idea, but not very practical.

I'm sure that Ed Hajdusek would be honored if his dad were to be singled out for special honors. But can you imagine a Mr. Hajdusek Day?

Another gripe of some of the kids was that they felt the whole idea was a publicity stunt the administration dreamed up, and I tend to agree. And it worked, too. Someone said there were 12,000 fans on hand for the game.

But when you think about it, UM can use a publicity gimmick because there won't be any Boardwalk Bowl this year to spread UM's name around the country.

Please don't have any hard feelings, Yogi. And don't be too harsh with the students. Remember that they are only kids and have a tendency to type first and think later.

Maybe we should be happy that these youngsters are planning to become journalists rather than police officers.

...Think Again, Haywood

Dear John Haywood:

You forgot to say "Amen" at the end of your column of November 8, 1973.

It was obviously a prayer to the god of your youth, Yogi Berra, asking Him to forgive the kids who work on the student newspaper for making such a fuss about the Salute to Yogi Day at Alumni Stadium last Saturday. "Please don't have any hard feelings, Yogi. And don't be too harsh with the students," you said.

Well, Mr. Haywood, thanks for the prayer but it really wasn't necessary.

In fact, sir, you are guilty of the same act you accused the student press, that we are "only kids and have a tendency to type first and think later." But I think your column showed very little thinking at all.

Seeing that you either did not see a copy of the columns that you were referring to, or if you did, you had trouble reading it, I am going to outline the major points for you:

1.) You said that the "paper's staff just couldn't understand why there should be a Yogi Day and not a day for all the football players' dads'." True, but we did not suggest, as you inferred, that Ed Hajdusek's dad (or anyone else's day) be "singled out" for special honors.

That sir, is just what we did not want. We felt that Yogi is just another father, granted-the number one father because he is so well known.

2.) The main point we were making in our commentary, entitled "This isn't the way to do it," was illustrated in the next to last paragraph:

"It seems more appropriate to us, that this Saturday should have been reserved for the seniors.. Yogi Berra could have helped honor them. And Yogi could have more properly helped honor than be honored."

We felt that Yogi Berra giving out awards to the seniors, rather than being saluted by the University, would have been much more appropriate. He still would have been a feature attraction at the game, but he would not have been the main attraction.

3.) You made the point that we criticized this salute for being a "publicity stunt"...Well, the University insisted that it was not. It was simply intended to be a "fun thing". They admitted, however, that there would be "certain kick-backs" from the whole thing, but this was not the reason they were doing it, they told us.

So, in your column, you are as "wrong" as we were supposed to have been.

Mr. Haywood, maybe you should think a little before you type. Or have you thought about leaving journalism and becoming a policeman?

Steve Crowe
Steve DeCosta
Gerry Brooks

Letters To The Sports Editor

Ms. Brophy's Misinformed Tirade

To The Sports Editor:

The shortage of newsprint is becoming daily more acute, and if Ms. Sue Brophy continues her misinformed tirade against the editorial practices of the UMass Daily Collegian sports department, I feel that the UMass public will soon be reading the news from the back of used Add-Drop cards. So for the sake of the environment, the Daily Collegian readership, and myself, I'd like to arrest this growth in the benign stage.

In reply to Ms. Brophy's paper and time wasting complaints.....

1. The women's IM football finals were covered by an EXPERIENCED and QUALIFIED reporter who happens to be the assistant news editor.

2. The reporter who covered the mens game had NEVER covered a football game in his life, but was simply better prepared and more verbose.

3. "This kind of reporting has continued long enough". What kind are you referring to, Ms Brophy? The women's story received back-page coverage, the rough equivalent of video prime time, and if you look back over the past two semesters, I think you'll find this to be a fairly consistent policy. Would you like this to stop?

4. I sense, Sue, your ignorance of staff assignment policy. Staff assignments are more a result of repotitorial initiative than editorial compulsion. The Men's football finals received the kind of coverage it did, only because the reporter had decided well beforehand to cover the event and write the kind of article he did. Because Collegian writers are unpaid, it is impossible to compel even experienced sports writers to cover events against their will.

5. Finally, picturing the women's events "as colorfully as the men's," depends on the writing style of the individual reporter, not editorial policy. Women's sports have, for the most part, come into prominance only recently, on this campus, and their reporters, mainly women, are working an area without stylistic precedents. As women's sports become more popular and competitive, this situation will improve. So take off your paranoia hat, Sue and face the facts. The "Daily Collegian" is dedicated to serving all members of the UMass community, both male and female. You, and all other members of the Community, are encouraged to work for the Collegian to improve it. Sour grapes make bitter wine, Sue, and if you're not part of the solution you're part of the problem.

W. J. Powers III

More Letters To Joyce Kosofsky

To The Sports Editor:

I cannot find words to express my jubilation over the "Why I Hate Sports" article by Joyce Kosofsky in the Thursday, November 8, issue of the Collegian. Once again the ignorance and utter confusion of today's woman was brought to the surface.

It was amazing how she managed to conclusively discredit sport after sport with logical, factual analyses and proved to millions of fans how wrong they are to enjoy themselves. It is obvious she wrote this article on toilet paper while in the bathroom and undoubtedly she should have flushed it.

An entourage of attacks was made on "competitive sports"; another good point. Just think how exciting a football game with one team on the field or a one player tennis match would be to watch or participate in. At least you would know who to bet on. (I'll wager that she couldn't figure it out, though.)

I suggest that in the future, the Collegian concentrate on printing articles by capable writers with minds. Miss Kosofsky should be put where she belongs and assigned to cover and research such events as the repainting of the Dining Coomons' bathrooms.

Christopher Fuchs

EDITORS NOTE — The "Why I Hate Sports" Column is a regular feature of the COLLEGIAN sports section, submitted each week by a different guest columnist.

To The Miss Joyce Kosofsky:

For 23 years to this day, I have never met anyone with such a STRANGE way of thinking about sports. Being an able bodied JOCK, I totally disagree with your article. I find it strange that even a so-called liberated women could make a comment such as the one you made the other day.

You have the right to think the way you do (?) but think about the other people who love sports, those that enjoy the true beauty of seeing a skillful running back, a no-hitter thrown in a do or die game for the pennant or even Bobby Orr slamming in his winning goal a couple of years ago. Think about how these sports fans felt witnessing these events. To end, forget about being a sports writer and go home and clean the house.

Rodney D. Burkes

Football Scoreboard

COLLEGE	PRO
Boston College 25, West Virginia 13	Jets 33, Patriot 13
UConn 19, Boston University 10	Falcons 44, Eagles 27
Delaware 28, Maine 12	Bengals 16, Bills 13
Harvard 19, Princeton 14	Cowboys 23, Giants 10
Amherst College 40, Trinity 7	Redskins 33, 49'ers 9
Springfield 51, UNH 0	Packers 25, Cards 21
Syracuse 5, Holy Cross 3	Vikings 28, Lions 7
Ohio State 35, Michigan State 0	Browns 23, Oilers 13
Michigan 21, Illinois 6	Steelers 17, Raiders 9
Notre Dame 31, Pitt 10	Dolphins 44, Colts 0
USC 27, Stanford 26	Broncos 30, Chargers 19
UCLA 24, Oregon 7	Rams 29, Saints 7

Mister Donut never knows when to quit.
(he's open 24 hrs. per day)
Mt. Farms Mall
Rt. 9
(Russell St.)
HADLEY
Mister Donut®

If all the Chinese in the world were to march four abreast past a given point, they would never finish passing, though they marched forever and ever!!!
dvp
NORBERT PEARLROTH
main researcher for the Ripley's organization on Ripley's
Believe It Or Not!
TONITE at 8
C.C.A.
Part of dvp Believe It or Not Series.

The un-dormitories.
Great off-campus living—indoors and out—at either of two modern apartment complexes, only minutes away by car or bike from Amherst College, downtown Amherst or UMass. Now accepting applications for September.
- courtesy bus to UMass and town
- 1, 2, 3 bedrm apts.
- heat & air conditioning
- wall-to-wall carpeting
- applianced kitchens
- master TV antenna
- laundry facilities
- parking, cars & bikes
- 2 swimming pools with sundecks
- 2 pro tennis courts
- lawns for softball, football, badminton
RENT: $200/MONTH
(utilities included)
Directions: East Dudly Rd. oppos. Grist Mill off Rte. 116
Mount Sugarloaf
SUNDERLAND
- 2-bedrm apts.
- heat & air conditioning
- roomy closets, storage
- wall-to-wall carpeting
- master TV antenna
- modern kitchens
- self-cleaning ovens
- electric ranges
- stainless-steel sinks
- dishwashers/disposals
- 2-door refrigerators
- laundry facilities
- swimming pool
No Lease Required
RENT: FROM $185
CALL 413-256-8591
Directions: On Route 47.

NFL Wrapup

Vikings Move Step Closer

By ANDY LIPMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Minnesota Vikings thrashed the Detroit Lions 28-7 Sunday to clinch at least a tie for the National Football Conference Central title.

Running backs Bill Brown and Dave Osborn collected 101 and 79 yards respectively, to help the Vikings win their 14 straight game, including 5-0 in pre-season, and 12th in a row over the Lions.

Wally Hilgenberg recovered a blocked punt and walked into the end zone to give Minnesota a 14-7 lead with 1:28 left in the first half.

The Vikings need only one more victory in their remaining five games to clinch the title outright. A loss or tie by Green Bay and Chicago would also give them the title.

Mercury Morris streaked 48 and 53 yards for touchdowns, while cornerback Tim Foley's two scores were too much for Baltimore as the Dolphins won their 17th straight in regular season play at home.

Buffalo lost ground on the Dolphins in the American Conference East race when Horst Muhlmann's field goal with three seconds remaining broke a 13-13 tie. O.J. Simpson picked up 99 yards on 20 carries and until the final seconds it appeared his 32-yard third-quarter touchdown sprint would prevent a Buffalo defeat.

The Browns exploded for 17 points in the first quarter, including a 53-yard touchdown run by rookie Greg Pruitt. The Browns collected 195 yards total offense in that period but the Oilers' defense stiffened and held for 18 net yards in the second quarter and 15 in the third.

Bobby Howfield kicked four field goals and John Riggins and Emerson Boozer each scored one touchdown to boost the Jets to a 3-6 record and keep New England in the AFC East basement along with Baltimore.

Both Bill Kilmer and Sonny Jurgenson, Washington's ailing quarterback duo, came out throwing against San Francisco-Kilmer connecting for two touchdowns and Jurgensen for one. Curt Knight kicked field goals of 42, 32, 24 and 41 yards for the Redskins who are now 6-3 and remain in a first-place tie with Dallas in the NFC East.

The Cowboys had some difficulty keeping their share of the tie, but the Dallas defense forced the Giants to give up the ball eight times. New York suffered its seventh straight defeat.

The Packers built up a 22-7 halftime lead behind the running of John Brockington and rookie Les Goodman and then held off a St. Louis comeback in the fourth quarter led by quarterback Jim Hart, who threw a 23-yard touchdown pass to Ahmad Rashad and then led a 58-yard touchdown march midway through the closing quarter.

The Falcons took advantage of a perfect punt, an intercepted pass and a long punt return to score a pair of fourth-quarter touchdown and battle back from a 20-20 tie with the Eagles.

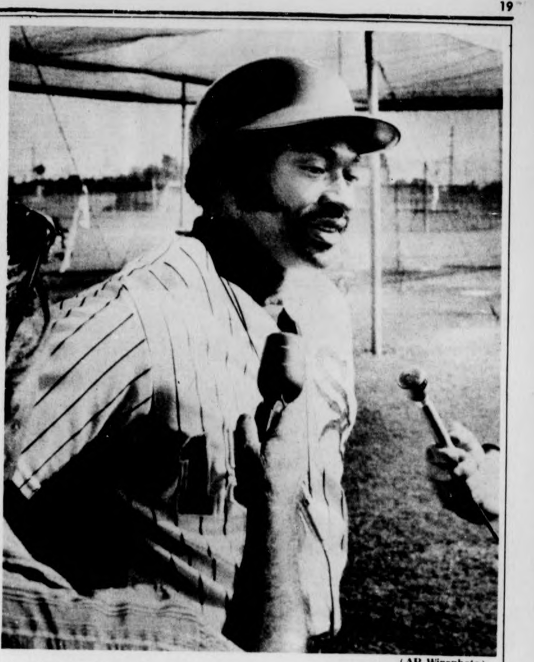
The victory was Atlanta's fifth straight and kept them in the NFC West race with a 6-3 record.

The Rams ruined New Orleans' chances of winning its third straight game as they surged ahead on the running of Lawrence McCutcheon after trailing 7-0 early in the game. McCutcheon scored once and played a key role in four other scores.

Floyd Little ran for two touchdowns and Charley Johnson threw for two more to spoil the debut of San Diego's new coach, Ron Waller.

The Broncos rebounded from a second quarter in which they turned the ball over three times and drove over from the one for the clincher with 46 seconds remaining in the game.

Defensive end Dwight White had two of the Pittsburgh interceptions off Daryle Lamonica, who took over after Raider starter Ken Stabler hurt his right leg early in the second quarter. Safety Mike Wagner recovered a fumble on the Oakland eight to set up the second Steeler touchdown.



(AP Wirephoto)

ALLEN'S BACK — White Sox first baseman Dick Allen talks with newsmen following his first workout since he broke his leg on June 28. Allen was confident about the upcoming season, saying, "I don't even like to watch baseball, the only thing about the game I like is playing."

Bruins Topple Canucks 4-2

BOSTON (AP) — A four-goal second period triggered by Bobby Orr and capped by Phil Esposito carried the Boston Bruins to a 4-2 National Hockey League victory over the Vancouver Canucks Sunday night.

Joc Guevremont put the Canucks ahead with a slap shot from the point late in the first period while Boston had two men in the penalty box and Vancouver one.

Then the Bruins struck back, hiking their record to 10-4-1 and improving their hold on first place in the NHL East.

On the give-and-go, Orr took a return pass from Dave Forbes and tied the score with his eighth goal at 4:30 of the second period. Rookie Andre Savard batted in a rebound to put Boston in front to stay at 7:30.

Darryl Edestrand made it 3-1 when he was credited with a power play goal on a shot which was tipped in by a Vancouver player, and Esposito capped the surge at 13:59 with his 19th goal of the season from the slot while the Bruins were shorthanded.

Esposito has 15 assists to go with his 19 goals in 15 games this season. At the same stage when he shattered all NHL records in the 1970-71 campaign he had 11 goals and 18 assists.

Regionals

(Continued from P. 20)

Mexico on November 24th.

"Charlotte has never really been tested," said husband — Coach Tom Derderian, an ex-UMass track and cross-country stand-out himself, "For two years now, she has beaten everybody on the East Coast. She doesn't know just how good she is. There's no way to tell until she races against the best in the country."

But a trip to the Nationals means money. A few hundred dollars will be needed for air fare, food, and lodging. Right now, the Sugarloaf Mt. Club does not have it. A money drive of some sort will be launched in the near future.

BACK TO THE RACE: O.K., enough for Charlotte Lettis; there were others in the race, too.

The Cambridge Sports Union won the team prize, Suffolk A.C. of New York City finished second and the Sugarloaf Mt. Club (comprised of mostly UMass students and alumni) came in third.

There were five races on the day. The first was a one mile trek for girls 9 yrs. old and under; the high school race was won by Katie Schilly of Syracuse, N.Y.

Fifty-two women ran in the open race; fifty in the high school; and 150 in all the races combined.

Phillys Olrich, a senior at UMass but a member of the Cambridge Sports Union, ran the best of her life and finished fourth.

Other UMass runners were Mary Cushing (20th), Marion Kulick (24), Sue Gill (28), Linda Laakso (29), Judy Kline (30), Linda Radwanski (38), Cynthia Flint (42), Loretta Eiben (48), and Karen Fiske (49).

Top Ten

1. Lettis (UMass-Sugarloaf) 18:03
2. Schrader (Albany) 18:16
3. Ennis (Nutley N.J.)
4. Olrich (Cambridge)
5. Andrade (Suffolk A.C.)
6. Taylor (Cambridge)
7. Peish (Green Mt. A.A.)
8. Scrandurra (Suffolk A.C.)
9. Berman (Cambridge)
10. Court (Connecticut)

Hoopster Dies At Practice

MEADVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Richard Yeckley, a promising sophomore member of the Allegheny College basketball team, collapsed and died after leaving the practice floor during a workout Sunday, a school spokesman said.

Yeckley, a 6-foot-3 forward who led the Allegheny junior varsity team in scoring last season, played basketball and golf at South Hills High School in the Pittsburgh suburb of Mt. Lebanon.

An autopsy was to be performed Sunday night to determine the cause of death.

The school said Yeckley had complained to a teammate of feeling ill just before leaving the practice floor about 2:45 p.m.

His body, still clothed in practice garb, was found sprawled on the locker room floor about 15 minutes later.

MDC
Sports Hotline
5-0344

(Staff Photo/Joe Martins)

DOWN IN THE CITY — Hopefully, the UMass runners will be able to handle the polluted atmosphere in the city this afternoon. If they can't, they might wind up like this guy.

Notice

All candidates for the Women's Basketball Team should report to the Women's Physical Education Building Gym at 4:30 on Monday, Nov. 12 or 4:00, Tuesday, Nov. 13.

TEN PIN BOWLING
at Boyden Gym
50¢ per string
MONDAY - FRIDAY
4:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m.
(except during league play)

SKI SPAIN
Earn 2 credits during intersession
Call 5-2801

Year after year, semester after semester, the CollegeMaster® from Fidelity Union Life has been the most accepted, most popular plan on campuses all over America.
Find out why.
Call the Fidelity Union CollegeMaster® Field Associate in your area:
747 Main St., Amherst
Tel.: 256-8351
CollegeMaster®

Hope To Qualify For Nationals

Runners Race IC4A's Today

By SCOTT HAYES

Spokane, Washington. Today's meet at Van Cortland Park in New York boils down to one thing — a trip to Spokane Washington and a shot at the NCAA title.

The UMass cross country team, which has been improving with every meet, will be running in today's meet in an effort to better last year's tenth place finish. In last year's IC4A's (Intercollegiate Amateur Athletic Association of America), Bill Gillen took 20th while Randy Thomas finished 41st.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

SPORTS

Thomas said about his 1972 IC4A performance, "I had a bad race, I felt tired about this time last year." The UMass co-captain stated that he's ready for the meet this year, and feels that he and his teammates are capable of a second place finish. "We still haven't run our best race yet," explained Thomas.

It seems as though there is going to be quite a battle for the second to fifth spots in the team finishes. Manhattan, defending IC4A champions, has last year's winning team intact, and have to be the favorites in today's meet.

Mike Keough, individual winner of last year's meet, will lead the strong Manhattan team. Four members of Manhattan's cross country squad set a world record for the distance medley relay during last track season.

Other teams to watch are Pennsylvania, which won the Heptagonal meet earlier this year, and Penn State, led by Charlie Maguire. Maguire, the older brother of UMass' Tom Maguire, will be leading a team that captured third in last year's competition. Villanova and Columbia are two more topnotch teams that should be right up front.

The Van Cortland Park course starts off in the open fields, but, after the first mile, narrows down to a bridle path through the woods. According to Coach Ken O'Brien, good position after the first mile is vital.

Randy Thomas hopes to "go out hard and keep up there," and explained that he and Bill Gillen have to run together. Thomas said that the team will be running the race the same way it has run races all year. "There can't be big gaps between the runners," commented Thomas, "we have to stick together."

Although Manhattan should run away with the meet, the battle for the next four places should be something to watch. UMass, hoping for a trip to Washington, will be trying to improve last year's tenth place finish and be the top team from New England to finish.

Cross Country Corner--Phil Broughton and Tom Wilson get their big chance today. Broughton and Wilson replaced Chris Farmer and Paul Doiron on the varsity squad. It's not that Doiron and Farmer were running poorly, but Broughton and Wilson have been working hard all season long, and Coach O'Brien is giving them a chance to prove themselves today.

Charlotte Lettis Wins Women's East Regionals

By STEVE CROWE

Was there ever any doubt?

Charlotte Lettis took the lead after the first turn and, except for a mid-course stumble, was never threatened as she ran away with her second straight Northeast Regional women's cross-country championship here yesterday afternoon. (The Regionals tournament, by the way, is the women's equivalent to the men's IC4A's)

Winning cross-country races is nothing new for Charlotte Lettis. She has been dominating women's cross-country in the East for the past three years now.

The only unusual thing about this race for Lettis was when she tripped and fell going into the woods behind Sylvan Dorms, scraping her thigh and losing the big lead she had built up.

Kathy Schrader, from Albany A.C., closed to within eight yards of her, before Lettis could get back into her original stride. That didn't take too long, however, and she went on to win by 13 seconds and 90 yards.

The only challenge left for Charlotte Lettis is to go to the Nationals in Alburquerque, New

(Continued on P. 19)

Staff Photo/George Withers

NO SWEAT — Charlotte Lettis, completely at ease moments after finishing the Women's Northeast Regionals, shows no sign of fatigue. She won the race with no sweat.

Earle Barroll

A Matter Of Pride

Does Dick MacPherson have to line his field on Saturday mornings? Does Dick Bergquist likewise the basepaths at Lorden Field? Does Jack Leaman have to polish the floors at the Cage?

They don't and they shouldn't. Then why does Ken O'Brien have to line his cross country course from 7-9:30 a.m. on Saturday mornings of home meets? Further, why does he have to take up his time in public relations work when supposedly we have a sports information department in the Boyden Building?

And for that matter why doesn't someone in the athletic department wake up and realize that a first rate program is not getting treated as such. It gets a bit sickening to hear people tell you "what do they bring in monetarily" although it's a basic fact of life in sports.

Somehow it doesn't register right that superior athletes--harriers, gymnasts--who dedicate themselves 365 days of the year find their persuits predicated by what they can add to the purse. But, again, that's life.

In about two hours the UMass cross country team will begin its biggest quest for recognition in the East at the IC4A's in Van Cortland Park, New York City. "We're not going down there to stare at Villanova uniforms and get awed," said one of these superiors, co-captain Bill Gillen.

"We've put in an entire season of running and that's what we should be down there for -- to run a race. I don't expect to go down to New York and say 'Gee, look at that Manahattan uniform' and I don't anticipate going to the nationals and see a Kansas uniform and get choked up because Jim Ryun once ran for them and forgot about the race."

Gillen along with fellow co-captain Randy Thomas are expected to finish in the top ten and the team itself possibly as high as second with the emphasis on at least fifth or better to have leverage in the bargaining for a trip to the nationals next week in Washington.

"When I first came to this place as a freshman," said Thomas who finished third in the New England's, "we started aiming towards being a New England power and now that we've reached this level we should be striving for something outside of the region."

Like the IC's, the nationals and a meet with Penn State to open the season next fall that has been apparently vetoed. The reasoning can be money but it appears to me that two Vans full of harriers to Penn State would cost less than a Peter Pan trip to Boston. And if the reason is you can't let the cross country team compete against Penn State until the football team does --- then dream, dream on.

"It's about time," said Gillen, "that we look beyond the Rhode Island's and New Hampshire's. We should have a schedule that has only five or six dual meets -- but against the likes of Penn State, Pitt, Villanova, Manahattan and the service academies."

These are teams that represent "national". We're talking here of possible top ten in the country for at least two of that group this year. And O'Brien insists that his program is only another Thomas or Gillen or sophomore Tom McGuire away from commensuration with the heavies in the East. "Last year we were only seventy places behind second place Villanova," he said. "If we had another runner as good as Bill or Randy that would have made the difference."

O'Brien was at the state high school meet on Saturday "looking for only number one runners" and it appears that in time -- possibly today -- the barriers between UMass and the biggest will be negated.

In the meantime the harriers will have to exist within their fiscal limitations. "We know the athletic department holds us back," said Gillen. "it makes us try harder. We have a good program without scholarships. For us it's all a matter of pride."

Booters Thrash UNH In Finale

By STEVE DeCOSTA

Putting recent disasters and disappointments aside, the UMass booters came up with their best team effort of the season Saturday as they pounded the Wildcats of New Hampshire 5-1.

The game was never in doubt as the Minutemen put together a pleasing display of individual skills and team unity that completely overwhelmed their opponents.

The UNH field was in atrocious conditions, ranging from frozen to mushy, grass-covered to barren, but even these inconsistencies couldn't stop the Minutemen. The wind was another important factor, but when UMass won the toss and got the advantage the rout began.

Using a 4-2-4 alignment to try to capitalize on the wind and the injuries of UNH goalie Jim Mueller, the Minutemen struck quickly. At the four minute mark, a Wildcat fullback tapped an easy roller to Mueller, who let it slip through his hands. Bill Spyker bolted in from the left and hit the open net.

Tom Coburn collected his first of two scores at 15:45. Jim Vollinger dribbled through the middle to the top of the penalty box, where he set up the high scoring forward with a drop pass to the left. Coburn beat the hobbling Mueller with a bullet to put UMass up 2-0.

At this point, Mueller was replaced by Bruce Feidel, but his luck in shutting off the Minutemen was no better than that of his predecessor.

Reidel's initiation came at 22:20. Spyker lifted a cross pass to the middle that was miskicked by a Wildcat defender. Reidel came away from his post but was beaten to the ball by a hustling Coburn, who dribbled around the netminder to close out the first half scoring.

With the wind at their backs in the second half, UNH put the pressure on early. Their efforts culminated at 6:15 when Carl Vercollone couldn't hang on to a Ken Pasqual shot and Bob Black hit on a bad angle rebound.

Charlie Palano broke the Wildcats back ten minutes later. The senior winger darted in from his outside spot, sliced between two defenders, and put the icing on the cake with a rocket past Reidel.

Bob McChesney completed the afternoon by breaking the Wildcats goalposts. Mike Nugent was given a direct kick following a pushing penalty and he crossed the ball to the front of the UNH goal. McChesney, flying toward the box, headed it home. His momentum carried him into the bet, and the pressure on the twine pulled the crossbar off the upright.

The Minutemen executed every phase of their game with near perfection. The attackmen played both ways, using crunching tackles and intelligent anticipation on defense and fluid passing and bulls-eye shooting on offense.

The UMass fullbacks blanketed the field, kicking away passes and shots in effectively controlling UNH's high-scoring duo of Bob Black and Don Curtis.

But the key to the victory was the play of the halfback line. Mark Tyma, Mike Nugent, and Jim Vollinger dominated play at midfield and the rest of the team parlayed this control into the 5-1, final game victory.

KICKING IT AROUND—Unless the Minutemen are invited to a post-season tourney, which is unlikely, five seniors closed out their UMass soccer careers Saturday. Mark Tyma, Kurt Syer, Bob Merrill, Mike Nugent, and Dan Smith have, at least, the satisfaction of bowing out on a winning note.

Tom Coburn, with his two goals, wrapped up the Yankee Conference goal scoring championship. He edged out Bob Black, whose single tally on Saturday left him one short, 12-11.

The battle for the number one ranking in New England is, or at least should be, over. Springfield College, rated third in the last poll, soundly defeated number one Bridgeport 3-1 Friday night at Springfield. Bridgeport had earlier defeated number two Brown, so Springfield's weekend win should propel the Chiefs to the top of the heap.

Inside Sports

- •Letters To The Sports Editor
- •"A Letter To Yogi"
- •NFL Round-up
- •Bruins Blast Canucks

Physical Plant Superintendent:

'Elevators Safe Unless Tampered With'

By MICHAEL ALLAIN

The Superintendent of the Physical Plant said Monday that "elevator inspectors have indicated that there was forced tampering with safety devices" prior to the death of a 20-year-old Northeastern University student in John F. Kennedy dormitory Saturday night.

William Markussen of Belmont, fell to his death through an open elevator shaft from the fourteenth floor Saturday shortly after 9 p.m.

He was visiting friends in Kennedy when he fell into the shaft, after the sliding elevator doors on the fourteenth floor were allegedly kicked open.

"To open the elevator doors from the lobby when the cab is not there requires a forceful kick," said Physical Plant Superintendent Richard T. Burke.

See Related Editorial, Page 10

"All the elevators in Southwest have electromechanical interlocks which prevent the doors from opening unless the cab is at the landing," he said.

The Physical Plant looked into the problem of elevator doors opening too easily "three or four years ago," said Burke.

Westinghouse Elevator Company was contracted to install the "strongest springs available" on the sliding doors at each entry, he said.

These strong springs insure that the doors do not open accidently, he continued.

"The elevator doors are very safe, unless they are tampered with," he said. "And if we were to put stronger springs on the doors, it would be impossible to open them, even for regular usage."

Paul Lawler, an elevator repair specialist from the Physical Plant, said that the safety devices on the elevator doors are inspected annually by the Department of Public Safety.

In addition to these inspections, he said, the Physical Plant has a man who checks the safety devices "intermittently".

The locks were inspected recently, Lawler added.

Burke said that since the incident, elevator inspectors have asked him for recommendations to improve safety measures in dormitory elevators. But he doubts that Physical Plant authorities can improve present safety devices, he said.

"There won't be any modifications made to the equipment," said Burke. "The equipment we have now has been found to be safe in thousands of installations. But it can be broken with steady abuse."

One resident of Kennedy, questioned yesterday, said that kicking open the elevator doors "is pretty common around here."

"People do it just for kicks, I guess," he said.

The resident, who claimed he was not present at the time of the incident Saturday night, said he was "not surprised" when he learned about the death.

"An accident was bound to happen sooner or later, with all the fooling around that goes on," he said.

On Sunday night, two residents of Kennedy's fourteenth floor were asked if the practice of "kicking open" elevator doors was common in the dorm.

The students, who said they had been instructed "not to talk" about the incident, replied only, "it happened last night."

Yesterday Lawler frequently referred to the futility of efforts by Physical Plant personnel to make students aware of the dangers of the elevators.

Lawler said he has arranged meetings in the past to discuss safety measures in Southwest, but found little interest among residents.

"I've been very concerned with elevator safety," he said. "I've set up meetings, and gone to Southwest, only to find the Head of Residence and one or two students. I've done that three or four times, but nobody shows up. So if they don't care, why should I care?" he asked.

Burke added that the Physical Plant can do no more to guarantee safety in the elevators.

"If we could do something else, we certainly would," Burke said. "But we just don't know what we can do to make the elevators completely tamper-proof."

Burke says he has heard reports of students riding on top of elevator cabs after breaking through the "escape hatches."

Each elevator cab has two of these hatches, one located in the ceiling, the other on a wall inside the cab. A state law which prohibited locking these hatches was recently relaxed, said Burke, permitting Physical Plant personnel to bolt and lock them from outside the cab.

But, Lawler said, these locks are ineffective -- since students have "smashed the hatches open with barbell rods and two-by-fours," enabling them to ride on top of the cab.

Doors are frequently kicked open -- "a recurrent problem", said Lawler, and destruction is very common also.

"We can spend a Monday morning putting in a set of pushbuttons broken over the weekend," said Lawler, "and then have to go back and do the same thing on Tuesday.

"Why? I mean, what is the point of it? I don't understand it," he said.

(Staff Photo-Rich Harding)

To open the elevator doors from the lobby when the cab is not there simply requires a forceful kick.

New England's

Largest

College Daily

The Massachusetts

Daily Collegian

A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOLUME CI, ISSUE 47 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 1973

Weather

"And it's all over now,
Don't you worry no more,
Gonna go west to the sea."

Recyclable

Stoneham's Contract Not To Be Renewed

By SHARON HUGHES AND ROBERTA McCANN

Director of Food Services Joel Stoneham was notified Friday that his contract with the University will not be renewed, the Collegian learned yesterday.

"I communicated to him orally that his contract will not be renewed when it expires September 14, 1974", said his direct superior, Thomas B. Campion, vice-chancellor for Administrative Affairs.

In response to questions about Campion's action, Stoneham replied, "No comment."

A professional employee working on a one year contract, as is Stoneham, is entitled to six months notice before his dismissal or non-renewal of contract, according to a spokesman from the University Personnell Office.

Stoneham has been director of Food Services since 1966.

Campion said he will not publicly state the reasons for his action at this time. "However, I plan to communicate my reasons to him in writing, sometime in the future," he said.

"For the remainder of his tenure, he will be given a job commensurate with his ability in my office", said Campion.

As far as recruiting a new food services director, Campion said that no final decisions have been made. Conceivably, he said, an acting director may be appointed until a search committee is established to find a new director.

But the Senate Rents and Fees Committee last night voted to authorize a student search committee. Acting on a suggestion by Senate President Nick Apostola the committee gave power to find Stoneham's replacement to the Food Services Advisory Board (FSAB). The motion will be brought before the full senate for approval on Wednesday.

The FSAB was established last March as a student voice in making policy decisions for Food Services. Its nine member board consists of one representative from the graduate senate, three from the undergraduate senate, and one from each of the five area governments. Appointments to the FSAB will be complete by next week.

U.MASS
229
WEST
439
W&M
44
U.MASS
243
PROVIDENCE

(Staff Photo-Joe Martins)

Randy Thomas (243 in foreground) and Bill Gillin (229 in the rear finished 15th and 20th in the IC4A's yesterday, leading the UMass cross country team to its best finish ever in that event.

Mike Lund, well-known aerial skier, dazzled a crowd at the ballroom last night by performing jumps as part of a "Building a Better Way to Ski the USA" program. Alleee ...

Washington Interns

Will Nixon Stay?

By MARK VOGLER

WASHINGTON, D.C.----A majority of University of Massachusetts students interning in congressional offices and government agencies say President Nixon will not remain in office to complete his second term.

In a poll taken of 30 students placed here under the University Outreach Program, 47 percent said Nixon would resign while another 10 percent predicted his impeachment.

Only 33 percent of those questioned said they felt the President would remain in office--though most hoped for impeachment or resignation. Ten percent of the interns said they were too confused to speculate Nixon's status.

"Resignation seems to be his only sensible course," said Thomas Blanchette who is interning in the office of the New England Regional Commission.

"Since Nixon announced he would not resign, by necessity, I think you would have to say he has considered resignation...for the time being he has rejected the idea. But I wouldn't say it's impossible. Resignation is a very likely possibility."

Dante Quercio, an intern in the Smithsonian Institute, suggested that Nixon "will resign under pressure."

"He'll definitely resign as opposed to impeachment. I doubt the Republican Party would let him go that far. If he were impeached, the Republicans wouldn't get elected for the next 12 years," Quercio said.

"It's the GOP that's turning against him now. He'll resign after Ford's confirmation."

Steven Lesser, an intern in Sen. Edward Brooke's office, said he did not wish to comment on the status of President Nixon because: "What I hear in my office is privileged information."

Charles Houlihan of Cong. Michael Harrington's office said the House of Representatives "isn't together enough to impeach him," but added the chances of Nixon remaining in office are "slim".

"Once there's a Vice President to buffer the chances of Carl Albert and the Democrats taking over the executive branch, then I think he will resign."

An intern from Cong. Sparky Matsunaga's office, Steven Brush, said that while Nixon "should resign, he'll remain in office." "But I hope he is impeached," he added.

"If impeachment proceedings are initiated in the House, then he probably will resign. But unless enough evidence can be gathered against him, then impeachment proceedings are dead. However, there are some who say there is enough evidence being uncovered by the Senate Judiciary to point to impeachable offenses."

"I don't think Congress has the guts enough to impeach him," declared John McCarthy of Cong. Silvio O. Conte's office.

"...And as far as him resigning, I just don't think it's his way of doing things. He's just not a quitter type person, and that's all there's to it."

Francis Canavan, an intern in Cong. Joseph Moakley's office, said he hoped for impeachment but thought Nixon would remain in office.

"If they didn't impeach him or begin impeachment proceedings the Monday following his firing of Cox, I can see very little chance of impeaching him now."

Mark Halperin, interning in Cong Robert Drinan's office where the initial impeachment resolution was drafted, called resignation a "myth...something too good for Nixon."

"There's just no basis for resignation. Nixon is not that type of person. He's let the nation go down the drain before he'd resign," Halperin said.

"The chances for impeachment seem to be growing every day, and it looks very possible that the House might come through with impeachment--but I don't see it within this session of Congress.

"If they impeach Nixon, they better do it after Ford's confirmation. I don't think this country could stand taking Nixon out and putting in another problem."

Peter Deveau, of the Environmental Protection Agency, said impeachment was probable, "providing Congress acts now."

"The House should act now or forget the issue. If the grounds are there for impeachment, then the House should halt the bolony and get with it," he said.

"Resignation would leave Nixon the alternative to say that he was persecuted by the press--which would be too good for the man."

One intern, who wished to remain anonymous, said that a rumor had been dispelled from one Congressional office that the President might "steep to the deep end", using suicide as an alternative.

.... ooop.

(Staff Photo-Dennis Conlon)

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

The office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN is on the second floor of the Student Union on the campus of the University of Massachusetts, zip code 01002. Telephones: 545-2550 (news); 545-0344 (sports); 545-0731 (business).

Second class postage is paid in Amherst and additional mailing in Ware, Mass. 01082. THE DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes Monday through Friday during the academic year, except during vacation, exam periods or holidays. Accepted for mailing under the authority of an act of March 8, 1879; as amended by an act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $6.00 per semester of $10.00 per year.

Racial Protestors March For Justice

Four hikers stopped in Hanover overnight Friday and addressed the Afro-American Society, in the course of a march from Goddard College in Vermont to Boston, which they called a journey for justice.

The four, who include a former professor, a former counselor, and two suspended students from Goddard, are walking to dramatize what their leader termed, "institutional racist insensitivity" at Goddard. Otis McRae, former counselor of the Non-resident Trimester program, said their reasons for walking are "a very heavy question," including "what appears to be an attempt at decimation" of the Third-world Program by the Goddard administration.

Goddard President Gerald Witherspoon said of the marchers' charges, "I've heard the rhetoric, but it's so wide-ranging and inflammatory in style, it's not the sort of thing one would respond to." He denied the marchers' allegations of racism, saying that he "tried to deal with......(the situation) in a responsible way."

The dissension at Goddard is now culminating in the march, an intended rally in Harvard Yard on November 16, after many months of turmoil, which saw two extended seizures of the President's office, a hunger strike, and 13 students suspended, 5 banned from campus, and 3 alumni censured. The problems seem to stem from the non-renewal of the contracts of former Professor Charles Johnson and McRae, and drastic cutbacks in financial aid and Third-world Program funding. Goddard Director of Information Ben Collins attributed Johnson's and McRae's troubles with the administration to "ineptmess yes, (but) racisism no." He said that although "People have indeed suffered (from the college's casual way of doing things), but not to the degree Otis McRae indicated."

To Johnson there was "no justification on earth" for the suspensions. In response to the seizure of the president's office, Johnson claims Witherspoon "ferreted out the five most articulate and intelligent members of the student body."

After the rally at Cambridge, the hikers plan to go to New York (not on foot) to attend a "Conference on Institutional Racism" at New York University's Loeb Center.

Reprinted from The Dartmouth.

Grad Senate Takes Up Revenue Sharing Plan

By JANINE DEVLIN

The Revenue Sharing Plan was the principal concern of last night's meeting of the Graduate Student Senate.

The debate over the plan as proposed by the Revenue Sharing Committee (composed of seven members of the Senate) began at the Senate's last meeting and was continued throughout this extraordinary long meeting.

Once amended to the general satisfaction of the Senate, the plan was adopted.

The plan details the criteria which degree-granting organizations must fulfill in order to obtain a financial grant from the Graduate Senate.

Two hundred dollars, to be used for office and art supplies implemented by the day care children, was granted to the University Day School with little dissension from the members of the Senate.

GRADUATE SCHOOL IN PSYCHOLOGY ON YOUR MIND?

Let the Graduate Admissions Advisory Program help you and your advisor in the process of selecting the appropriate schools (of the 300+ in North America) to which to apply. This computer-assisted matching program, run by experienced Ph.D. psychologists, costs about the same as an average application fee. If it saves you one misguided application, it will save you money and headaches. Write for free questionnaire and information.

Graduate Admissions
Advisory Program
472 Bay Road
Amherst, Mass. 01002
GAAP

And Would You Believe...?

By KEVIN KITTREDGE

"Ripley's Believe It Or Not!", sometimes the best part of the Sunday funnies, came to campus last night. The main researcher for the last fifty years of "Believe It or Not," Norbert Pearlroth, was the speaker for last night's DVP series and he came equipped with an array of useless, but delightful information.

For Pearlroth, the incredible is commonplace. His astonishingfacts appear in over 320 newspapers and the paperback book is in its 21st printing.

The most obvious question, "What is the most unbelievable 'Believe It or Not!'?" was answered early.

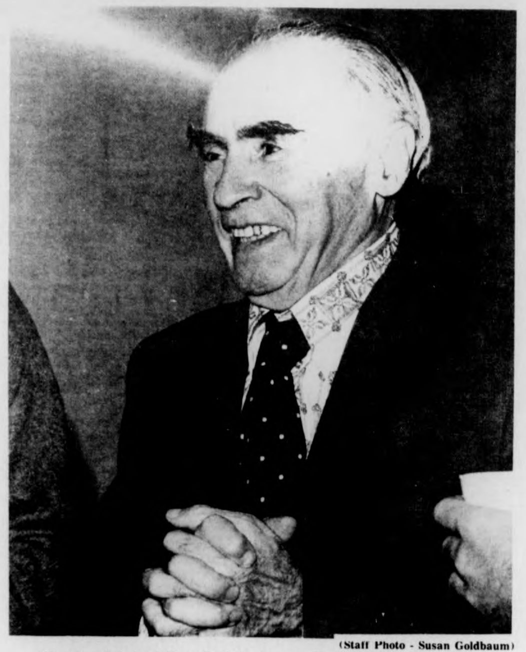
"The strangest "Believe It or Not!" happened on a mountain in Columbia, South America. Some monks, who ran a school for training teachers, were in danger of losing the school because the well was running dry. After seeking help from engineers and other qualified people, they met with no success. Desperate, they contacted Father Alexis Mermet, a famous water witch who lived in Geneva, Switzerland.

"Mermet told the monks that he couldn't travel to South America, but if they sent him a map of the area he would tell them if there was any water there.

"He returned the map, explaining in a letter that where he marked the X they would find water at a depth of 88 feet, 9 inches, and a flow rate of 500 quarts a minute. The monks followed instructions and the water was there at the exact depth and flow rate as predicted."

A big crowd pleaser and one of the most ironic stories concerned the history of DaVinci's "Last Supper". The painter was looking for a model to pose for Christ and he had to have "a bearded, serene face." The painter found his moded and painted his Christ.

Next, DaVinci finished all of the apostles and was now in search of a model for Judas. Ten years had passed since he had first started the painting. He needed a face that was "hateful and vile," and he found his model in a pub one night. Buying the man a drink, he told him of his painting and asked if he would pose. The man replied that he had already posed ten years earlier for the face of Christ.



(Staff Photo - Susan Goldbaum)

"Last night at the C.C.A. I met Pearlroth....Strange things happen in this world." Now, would you believe I can't find my sweater?

By BRIAN COYNE

Norbert Pearlroth has spent most of his life searching for the most obscure, incredible facts in the world.

Pearlroth is the research director of "Ripley's Believe It Or Not!". He is now in his 50th year of service for the newspaper feature, and at the age of 76, is the only researcher on the staff. He is reponsible for producing 24 facts each week, and, by his own account, has never failed to come up with them on time. He estimates he has found over 60,000 items, "all incredible, all true."

"I am a great believer in the law of averages," Pearlroth says, "I know that if I cannot find anything usable for two or three days, I'll make up for it the next day."

Pearlroth is an ideal employee for Ripley's. He speaks 12 languages. In fact, this ability resulted in his joining Ripley's in the first place. Robert Ripley, originator of the column, complained to a friend in 1923 that he could not find many facts from foreign countries because he could not read books in other languages. His friend directed him to Pearlroth, then working as a bank teller. From 1923 until Ripley's death in 1949, they were the backbone of the organization.

Today, Pearlroth heads a staff of six in producing the column, which is syndicated in 330 newspapers in 32 countries. At the height of the column's popularity, Ripley also had a "Believe It Or Not!" radio show and movie shorts.

Pearlroth does all his research in the New York Public Library. Each day he walks into the library, picks a card catalog tray at random, and selects about 30 books which look promising. He spends the rest of the day perusing them for usable oddities.

There have been 21 Ripley's books published. Pearlroth used to write the entire book, but now it is only a collection of the cartoons that have been published. Pearlroth writes the prefaces, which deal with the number of the book in the series. He is currently researching items about the number 22 for the next book.

Pearlroth said that he has only been caught in error one time. He once ran an item about a man named Seaborn, whom he claimed was born at sea. The man soon wrote to him, saying that he was born on a ship, but that it was in harbor at the time, and not at sea.

Pearlroth was also the man responsible for having "The Star Spangled Banner" declared our national anthem. In 1929, he discovered that the song was set to the tune of an old English drinking song, and was never officially declared the national anthem. This resulted in five million letters to Congress within a week and appropriate legislation soon thereafter.

Selectmen Approve New Election Dates

By JOAN FASSNACHT

Amherst selectmen voted last night to tentatively approve revised town election dates for 1974. The new schedule is subject to Governor's approval of bill allowing for such a change to occur.

The major dates in the timetable are:

--Official Publication Notice: Wednesday, December 5
--Last day to file for Certification with Registrars: Tuesday, January 25
--Last day to File with Town Clerk: Friday, February 1
--Caucus Call: Monday, February 4
--Town Caucus: Tuesday, February 12
--Last day to File For Town Meeting Member with Town Clerk: Friday, February 15
--Last Day to Register for Town Election: Wednesday, February 27
--Town Election: Tuesday, March 19
--Annual Town Meeting: Monday, May 6

Election dates were revised due to the number of students in the five-college area who are registered voters and wish to run for office and vote in the elections. Due to vacation periods, when many students are not in Amherst, a new set of election dates had to be drawn so that the greatest number of students and town residents will be in Amherst during the above-mentioned dates.

The Board decided to serve notice of the upcoming elections on December 5 instead of in January, as is customary.

Chairman Michael Sullivan explained, "Although we can give notice in January, it would not be in the best interests of the students to do so, since most are away on January breaks. December 5 gives everyone concerned adequate notice."

Because classes at UMass end May 12, the Selectmen also voted to hold the annual town meeting on May 6 so that students will be able to attend.

The move to tentatively approve the new schedule is subject to revision depending on town residents' reaction.

In other business, the Selectmen moved to allow town manager Alan Torrey to prepare a report for the next meeting and make recommendations concerning a citizens' petition to ban students and faculty from parking on Cosby Avenue near Sunset Ave. The signers of the petition contend that cars parked on both sides of the road create numerous traffic hazards.

The Selectmen also passed a motion to submit a proposal to the Department of Public Works to consider installing a new crosswalk on Kellogg Street to make crossing there and across Pleasant Street safer. The motion was passed after testimony was heard from three elderly citizens concerning the hazardous street crossing conditions. In the interim, police officers will be on duty there to help citizens cross the streets.

NEED HELP
— LISTENING —
CONCERNED PEOPLE

Central Area
Counseling Center

B-2 Gorman 5-0894
Mon., Fri. 1-9 p.m.
Thurs. 10-9 p.m.

The University of Massachusetts Student Government Association is offering the following items for your bid:

(3) Ultrablitz meteor SPGH strobes

(5) Minolta Sr1s 35mm cameras w-55mm fl. 7 lens

(1) Soligor 180mm f3.5 preset lens for Minolta

(1) Pentax H1a 35mm camera w-clip-on meter & 55mm fl.8 lens

(1) Pentax H1a 35mm camera w-clip-on meter & 55 mm f2.0 lens (needs repair)

(1) Omega Printing Densitometer model 7485

The above items may be inspected on Nov. 14 & 16 from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. in room 402 Student Union. Your written sealed bids should be in the RSO office no later than 3 p.m. Nov. 21, 1973.

The Right is reserved to reject any or all bids.

The un-dormitories.

Great off-campus living—indoors and out—at either of two modern apartment complexes, only minutes away by car or bike from Amherst College, downtown Amherst or UMass. Now accepting applications for September.

Brittany Manor
AMHERST
- courtesy bus to UMass and town
- 1, 2, 3 bedrm apts.
- heat & air conditioning
- wall-to-wall carpeting
- applianced kitchens
- master TV antenna
- laundry facilities
- parking, cars & bikes
- 2 swimming pools with sundecks
- 2 pro tennis courts
- lawns for softball, football, badminton

RENT: $200/MONTH
(utilities included)
Directions: East Dudly Rd.
oppos. Grist Mill off Rte. 116

Mount Sugarloaf
SUNDERLAND
- 2-bedrm apts.
- heat & air conditioning
- roomy closets, storage
- wall-to-wall carpeting
- master TV antenna
- modern kitchens
- self-cleaning ovens
- electric ranges
- stainless-steel sinks
- dishwashers/disposals
- 2-door refrigerators
- laundry facilities
- swimming pool

No Lease Required
RENT: FROM $185
CALL 413-256-8534
Directions: On Route 47.

In The Mideast

European Confidence Restored

By ENDRE MARTON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, by its action in the Middle East conflict, has regained the confidence of some European nations, a high European diplomat says.

"By acting quickly and effectively in the Middle East you have regained the confidence of those allies in Europe who had some doubts that you would come to their assistance in an emergency," he said.

The diplomat, who represents one of the countries which annoyed the Nixon administration during the Middle East conflict, insisted on anonymity.

The rift is not permanent and can be healed, American observers of the European scene maintain. It can be done, they say, by writing down a list of general principles to which all allies can subscribe, to be incorporated in the declarations of principles Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger proposed last April.

The United States, he then said, "has global interests and responsibilities, our European allies have regional interests. These are not necessarily in conflict, but in the new era neither are they automatically identical."

Some eyebrows were raised in Europe.

Yet, the ambassador acknowledged, events six months after the speech confirmed that Kissinger was right, that the "interests and the responsibilities" of the allies were not automatically identical.

"It was a painful experience, to stand by helplessly. Let's face it: we are not equal, and that is the problem," the diplomat said.

The answer to this problem, he went on, is the political unification of Europe.

"There was a moment two weeks ago when Western Europe went neutral," one high-ranking American specialist of NATO affairs said. This, he explained, raises the question: "What does collective security mean?"

It certainly should mean more than military preparations for a hypothetical aggression from the East, the official went on. He said the Europeans were mistaken when they thought the primary reason for American annoyance was the "neutral" attitude of the Europeans when the United States made frantic efforts to resupply Israel, several days after the Soviet Union started to do the same for its Arab allies.

But then came the day of the U.S. alert.

"The day of the alert became the day of the ostriches in Western Europe," an American observer noted more in sorrow than in anger.

Legally the allies could remain aloof when the crisis broke out outside Nato's geographical area, but conflict between the United States and the Soviet Union is "a matter affecting every member of the alliance, whether they like it or not," the official said.

The rift, as far as the United States is concerned, is over, officials declare. The Europeans seem to acknowledge that in this nuclear age there is rarely time for advance consultations in case of an emergency.

(AP Photo)

PACT-SIGNING GROUP-Egyptian delegation, right, sits across from Israeli group Sunday inside tent 60 miles east of Cairo on the border of Israeli- occupied Egypt where they signed a cease-fire pact to end their Middle East fighting. Israel's Maj. Gen. Aharon Yariv, left, and Maj. Shmuel Eyal, second from left, met with Egypt's Lt. Gen. Mohammed Gamazy, third from right, under United Nations officials headed by Maj. Gen. Ensio Siilvasvuo, to right of post with hand on chin. Others are unidentified.

UN Sets Up House Near Suez

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

U.N. truce-watchers moved into a bleak Israeli checkpoint on the Cairo-Suez road Monday but were forced out of another as they took the first practical steps toward carrying out the new Suez truce.

The Israeli state radio said Austrian and Swedish troops of the U.N. Emergency Force manned the Israeli barriers at Kilometer 101, where the irregular cease-fire line crosses the highway about 60 miles east of Cairo.

The Israeli military declined comment on the U.N. takeover, a tender political subject in Israel. But U.N. officials in Jerusalem and Cairo confirmed that their troops had assumed control as stipulated in the new cease-fire.

The Tel Aviv command said later, however, that its troops dismantled a second checkpoint on the approaches to Suez city because the blue-bereted U.N. troops had set it up "contrary to Israeli agreement."

There was no report of violence. The Israelis said they took down the U.N. barrier after the peacekeeping troops disregarded a request to take it down themselves.

A U.N. spokesman in New York said Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim had made a "strong protest" to the Israeli mission.

Egyptian and Israeli generals negotiated, meanwhile, in a desert tent supplied by the United Nations, trying to implement the rest of the day-old pact. It is designed to strengthen the cease-fire and open the way for an international Middle East peace conference next month.

The six-point cease-fire provides for a U.N. takeover of the Israeli highway checkpoints as a preliminary step toward supplying the Egyptian 3rd Army in the Sinai and civilians in Suez city.

This in turn is to lead to an exchange of war prisoners, a key Israeli demand in the diplomatic contacts conducted by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in his swift tour of Arab capitals.

Kissinger, having jetted on to other diplomatic business, said in Peking Monday night that the United States is considering a treaty or some other formal guarantee to safeguard Israeli security if the Israelis withdraw from occupied Arab lands.

The U.N. takeover at Kilometer 101 followed the nearby tent meeting between the signatories of Sunday's cease-fire pact, Maj. Gen. Aharon Yariv of Israel and Maj. Gen. Mohammed Abdul Ghani Gamazy of Egypt. They had met first Sunday soon after putting their names to the agreement, the first such formal accord between Israel and the Arabs since 1949.

Kissinger-Mao Parley

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

PEKING (AP) - Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger met for nearly three hours Monday night with Chairman Mao Tse-tung on ways to improve relations between the United States and China.

A State Department spokesman declined to discuss the substance or details of the session at Mao's home. But the indications were that Kissinger's sixth visit to China would produce stronger ties with the United States, perhaps in the form of broader cultural exchanges or a visit to the United States by a Chinese leader, possibly Premier Chou En-lai.

The Secretary of State was whisked to Mao's home at Chung Nan Hai following a three-hour session with Chou. With Kissinger went David K. E. Bruce, head of the U.S. liaison office in Peking, and Winston Lord, director of planning and coordination in the State Department.

With Mao were Chou, Foreign Minister Chi Peng-fei and other assistants. Afterward, Kissinger attended a dinner given by Chou.

The State Department spokesman, Robert J. McCloskey, read an announcement prepared with the Chinese and then declined to elaborate on it. He said Kissinger and Mao discussed "a wide range of subjects in a friendly atmosphere."

China's official Hsinhua News Agency reported that Assistant Foreign Minister Wang Haijung and two others - Tang Wen-sheng and Shen Jo-yun - also took part in the meeting.

Kissinger has met twice before with Mao, last February and in February 1972. On both occasions the meetings were briefer than the one Monday night.

Student Judiciary

Three Student Judges Needed

Any Undergraduate Student May Apply

Apply at Student Senate Office
Rm. 420 Student Union

Applications due Friday Nov. 16th

UPPER DIVISION PHYSICS COURSES

For Biological & Physical Science Majors

301 Concepts of Modern Physics
319 Electronic Instrumentation
320 Radiation Physics & Nuclear Medicine
386 Special Problems
391 Seminar on Molecular Bio-physics

For details, see course description guide or inquire in Hasbrouck 110.

Nixon To Submit Unsubpoenaed Files

Part Of Subpoenaed Tapes Missing

By GAYLORD SHAW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon announced Monday he will give a federal judge unsubpoenaed White House tape recordings and portions of his personal diary file, but said he can't locate one dictation machine belt subpoenaed by Watergate prosecutors.

Meanwhile, the White House agreed in the federal court that it will deliver by Nov. 20 subpoenaed Watergate tape recordings and the other material promised by Nixon. U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica said duplicates of the tapes and other material would be made and originals stored in White House vaults.

The dictation belt is the third piece of subpoenaed Watergate evidence the White House said does not exist. Earlier, it announced that two key conversations went unrecorded by a presidential taping system.

Seeking to "clear up......once and for all" the controversy about the Watergate conversations, Nixon said in a written statement that he will:

—Voluntarily submit recordings of two April 16, 1973, conversations with then-counsel John W. Dean III, saying they "covered much of the same subject matter" as an April 15 meeting with Dean that the White House said went unrecorded.

—Allow the court to listen to other unsubpoenaed reels of tapes to demonstrate that no recordings were made of the subpoenaed April 15 Dean meeting or of a subpoenaed June 20, 1972, telephone conversation with former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell.

—Agree that "court-approved independent experts employing the most advanced technological methods" examine all tapes in question "for any evidence of alterations........"

—Supply portions of his personal dairy file subpoenaed by prosecutors, including dictation belts containing his recollections of the Mitchell telephone call and handwritten notes of his April 15 meeting with Dean.

Nixon said a search of his personal dairy file a week ago failed to turn up a dictation belt of his recollections of the April 15 meeting with Dean. He said he thought he had dictated his recollections after that meeting and White House spokesmen said as recently as Nov. 2 that such a dictation belt existed.

"I have made a diligent search......" Nixon said in a statement. "Other than my contemporaneous notes of that meeting......, I have found no such evidence."

Dean has testified that in the April 15 meeting the President admitted discussing executive clemency as part of the Watergate cover-up and that Nixon said he had only been joking earlier when he said it would be no problem to raise $1 million in hush money.

Two weeks ago, the White House disclosed in court that the April 15 meeting was not recorded because an untended tape recorder ran out of tape. Disclosure about that meeting and the Mitchell one prompted Sirica to begin a hearing on the tape recordings.

Just moments before the White House released Nixon's statement, presidential lawyer J. Fred Buzhardt testified in Sirica's court that the dictation recording of Nixon's April 15 recollections could not be located.

Later in the day, Sirica adjourned the hearing until Friday when a final witness, Alexander P. Butterfield, will be heard. Butterfield first publicly disclosed existence of the White House taping system.

Sirica said both sides also agreed to submit to the court a set of procedures to be followed by experts who may be called "for the purpose of reporting to the court" on any questions concerning the tapes' authenticity.

After distributing the president's statement, White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the President is considering a meeting with Senate Watergate committee members as part of his effort to clear up the Watergate controversy.

A request for such a session "is something we would consider," Ziegler said. The committee already has asked for a meeting with Nixon.

The President discussed his latest moves at a private White House breakfast with 21 members of the Republican Coordinating Committee. He plans six other meetings this week, including two on Tuesday, to present to all 234 Republican members of Congress his side of the Watergate controversy.

In his four-page statement, Nixon acknowledged there are public doubts about what happened to the Dean and Mitchell conversations. He said he wanted to "dispel those doubts and to spell out certain steps ......that will help determine the substance" of nine conversations subpoenaed by Watergate prosecutors.

"There are no missing tapes," the President said.

The Energy Crisis

House Passes Alaska Pipeline Bill 361-14

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House passed the Alaska pipeline bill by an overwhelming margin Monday and sent it to the Senate, which is expected to approve it Tuesday.

Before the final 361-14 vote, the House turned down, 213 to 162, a motion to return the bill to a House-Senate conference committee for removal of sections which broaden the authority of government regulatory agencies.

Roy Ash, director of the Office of Management and Budget, has said that he will recommend the President veto the bill with the disputed features in it.

But Secretary of the Interior Rogers C. B. Morton, who conferred with pipeline backers on the floor of the House just before Monday's action, has said he will recommend the President sign it in any event.

The White House has not commented, although it strongly supports construction of the pipeline. The line would bring oil from Alaska's North Slope to tanker connections at the ice-free port of Valdez on the Gulf of Alaska.

Rep. Don Young, R-Alaska, said the Alyeska Pipeline Service Co., a consortium of oil companies formed to build the pipeline, expects to begin construction in mid-March if the bill is approved promptly.

But he said a delay in passage of the bill could force postponement of the project by a full year because of the short Arctic construction season. Construction is expected to take three years.

The challenged sections of the bill were in the version originally passed by the Senate and were accepted by the conferees, although they had not been in the House version.

Rep. Sam Steiger, R-Ariz., who made the motion to recommit the bill to the conference, said the matter could be cleared up in a day or two.

50's The Limit

By JOHN T. McGOWAN
Associated Press Writer

(AP) - Drivers on the New Jersey Turnpike praised the new 50-mile-per-hour speed limit Monday, but few of them obeyed it strictly. Diesel truck drivers said if they kept to 50 they would use more fuel, and the whole idea of the lower speed limit was to conserve fuel.

On a 10-mile run on the toll road that links New York with Philadelphia and points south, a car going 50 was passed by 15 other vehicles, including 10 trucks and two state police cars.

The car was able, at 50, to pass one other vehicle, a car driven by an elderly woman who was doing 40 and clutching the wheel as if her life depended on it.

The 50-mile limit, down from the turnpike's usual 60, and 65 in some places, has been in force since Thursday after President Nixon recommended lower speeds to save gas. But drivers have been given time to get used to the idea. and state police said they were just starting to enforce the new limit.

Turnpike police reported "excellent compliance," and traffic had slowed noticeably, but not to 50. The 50 seemed to be levelling off at 55 to 60 although police said they were enforcing the limit at 50.

At a turnpike pullout, one motorist who climbed out of an old sedan and stretched, said, "To me it doesn't matter. My car no longer goes any faster than 50."

Senate Committee Approves Emergency Powers Bill

By WILLIAM L. CHAZE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - A bill giving President Nixon emergency powers to deal with the energy crisis was approved by a Senate committee Monday as Congress grappled with the problem of energy shortages.

The emergency powers bill gives Nixon most of the authority he says he needs to handle the energy crisis. written largely by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., the measure provides for the rationing of scarce fuels by priority.

It also would allow Nixon to:

-Restrict fuel from such nonessential uses as outdoor advertising and recreation.

-Limit operating hours of commercial establishments and public services, including schools, to save fuel.

-Reduce speed limits while encouraging the use of public transportation through the use of mass transit fare subsidies and other means.

-Require electric generating plants to cover to coal if possible.

-Adjust the schedules of airlines and railroads and other public carriers.

Jackson expects the bill to reach the Senate floor Wednesday after the Senate votes on the Alaska pipeline bill passed Monday by the House.

The pipeline measure, whose passage was sough by Nixon, allows the Interior Department to grant a right-of-way permit for construction of a pipeline to carry North Slope oil to the port of Valdez on the Gulf of Alaska. The pipeline would be about 800 miles long.

The Senate is expected to pass the bill Tuesday.

In another energy-related move, two House subcommittees approved a bill to regulate the surface mining of coal. The bill now goes to the full Interior Committee, but by agreement it will not be taken up until Jan. 27 at the earliest.

The Senate Commerce Committee, meanwhile, wound up hearings on legislation for year 'Round Daylight Saving Time during the energy crisis. Winter DST was endorsed by representatives of the cities of New York and Los Angeles and the National Rural Electric cooperative Association.

Also in the Senate, a subcommittee was urged by the Nixon administration to approve a bill authorizing temporary suspension of clean air standards for individual power plants and factories. Russell Train, head of the Environmental Protection Agency, said the bill should be approved because the energy crisis may force industry and utilities to burn dirty fuels.

The proposal, introduced by Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, would allow suspension of all clean air standards, including those designed to safeguard public health and safety.

HP-35 * HP-45 HP-46 * HP-80 * HP-81

CALCULATORS

T 12500 * SR-10 * SR-11

With 12 different models we can match nearly everyone's needs and budget. However, they are in limited supply. To assure yourself of one place a deposit with us. They will all be in soon . . . including the

NEW MODELS
*SR-11 * MX100 * HP-46*

University Store

Campus Center

T 12500 * SR-10 * SR-11

MX-20 * MX-40 * MX-50 * MX-70 * MX100

UMASS. SKI CLUB PRESENTS:

BERKSHIRE EAST

POSTER CONTEST

RULES:

1. Size: 18" x 24"
2. Berkshire East emblem must be in upper left hand corner. (Leave 4"x4" space and get the emblem at Ski Club meeting, Nov. 28 at Mahar. 8 p.m.
3. Ski related graphic design.
4. Leave considerable space for other information (Event, Date, Location)

PRIZES:

1st prize is a mid-week seasons pass for Berkshire East.
2nd prize is a weekend pass (worth $16)
3rd prize is a day pass ($8 value)

Judging and prizes will be awarded at Ski Club Snow Dance, Dec. 1st at the Campus Center Auditorium at 9 p.m. Entries due Wed., Nov. 28 at Mahar - 8 p.m.

Princess Anne: She's No Libber

By RONALD THOMSON
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Princess Anne says she has no liking for women's lib and regards herself as just an old-fashioned girl — which is why she will promise to obey Capt. Mark Phillips when they marry Wednesday in Westminster Abbey.

In a nationwide television interview Monday night the young man who will soon have Queen Elizabeth II for a mother-in-law said the world is interested in the royal wedding as a change from scandal and disaster.

"I think people are really rather relieved to read about something that is genuinely happy and good," Phillips said.

The interview with the couple — a confident Anne but an ill-at-ease Mark — was recorded at Buckingham Palace and carried by the two main TV networds to whet appetites for the pomp and pageantry of Britain's first great royal ceremony of the 1970s.

The 23-year-old princess, in a simultaneous interview for British newspapers, insisted her chosen vow of obedience does not mean that the royal bridegroom will become her matrimonial boss.

"I think it means that we are going to be husband and wife," she said.

As the couple's pre-wedding thoughts were broadcast and printed throughout the nation, the queen invited 1,500 guests to a reception at the palace for the bride and her husband-to-be.

It was the last party they would attend before going to the altar Wednesday.

Phillips, a 25-year-old cavalry officer, already has had his stag party in secret with his best man, Capt. Eric Grounds, and a few friends. It was probably held last Saturday, but no one at the court was saying.

The palace did announce, however, that President Nixon's wedding gift to the couple was a crystal bowl and four golden candlesticks. It said the 15-inch Steuben bowl, supported by four gold eagles symbolizing both royalty and the United States, and the candlesticks were sent in the name of the American people.

The Nixon family was not invited to the wedding, which was supposed to be something of a private affair for family and friends. But about 1,500 guests will be in the abbey and the ceremony will be watched on television by an estimated audience of 580 million around the world.

"The priority was really to our friends," the princess said in discussing the wedding guests.

Energy Affects Air Standards

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of the Environmental Protection Agency gave his support today to a proposed authorizing temporary suspension of clean air standards for individual power plants and factories.

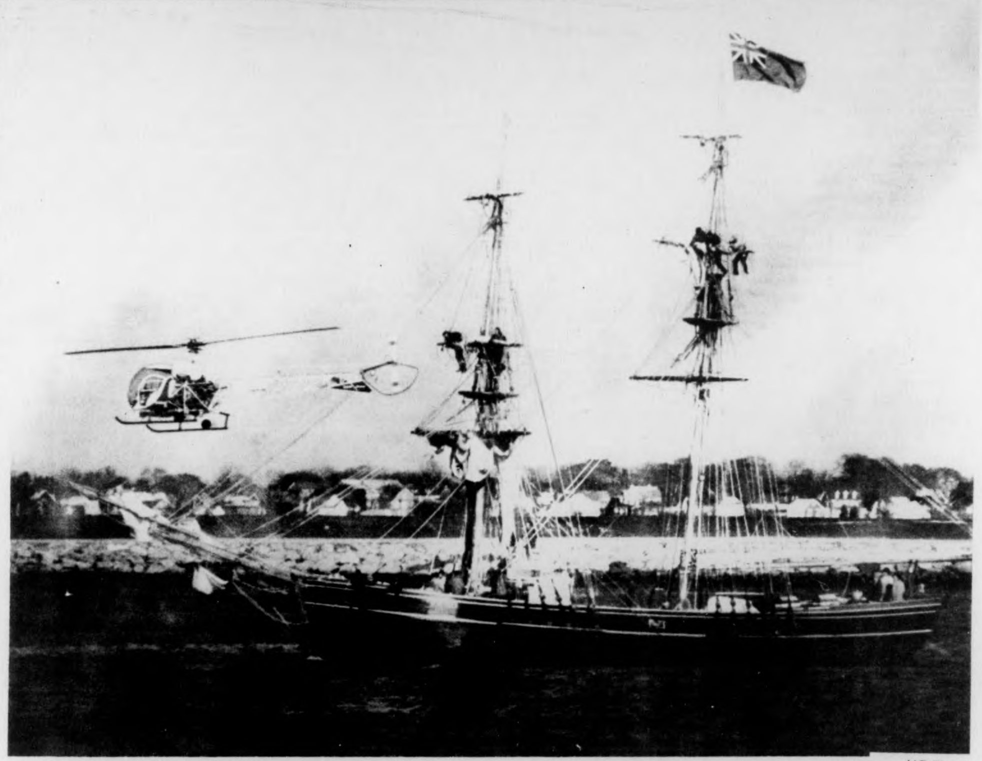
Administrator Russell Train said such an amendment is necessary to cope with specific fuel emergencies.

Testifying on the bill before the Senate Air and Water Pollution subcommittee, Train said variances from the standards should be considered on a case-by-case basis.

The subcommittee was hearing testimony on an amendment introduced last Friday by its chairman, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, who was one of the initiators of the 1970 Clean Air Act.

Opening the hearing, Muskie said his proposed amendment would provide authority for variances for only six months and would allow the administrator of EPA to issue them quickly.

But Train could also extend the timetable for clean air implementation plans until 1977.



(AP Photo)

ARRIVES FOR BICENTENNIAL-Crewmen of the replica of the brig Beaver II furls sails and a helicopter flies nearby, as the vessel arrives in Boston harbor. Replica of one of the English vessels sacked while it lay at Griffin's Wharf on the night of Dec. 16, 1773, it will be used in re-enactment of the Boston Tea Party, the first major happening of the nation's bicentennial.

Couple Are 'Parents' Of 120 Children

BOSTON (AP) - A white-haired Boston couple has powdered, diapered and cuddled 120 newly born illegitimate children while an adoption agency finds them permanent homes.

"We usually get them when they're five days old," Mrs. Walter Desmond said. "They stay an average of three months - just long enough for us to fall in love with them."

For the last 26 years, Walter and Florence Desmond have worked with a foster child program of the Catholic Charitable Bureau.

After they have an infant for a short time, there is the inevitable phone call from the bureau. "They say they'll be by to pick up the baby the next day," Mrs. Desmond said. "We know it's coming, but it still hits us pretty hard."

"We've had black babies and Chinese babies and every other kind," said Desmond, a retired hospital janitor who has made the infants his life's work. "To us, a baby's color is not important - only his life."

"The happiness of the baby is the important thing," Mrs. Desmond said. "You can't be heartbroken when you know someone you love is getting a chance at happiness."

When he was working, Desmond never made as much as $6,000 a year. And now the couple finds the weekly stipend from the bureau is not enough to pay for the toys and other extras they like to shower on the babies. So they've never owned a car or a color television set.

Their five-room apartment in the city's Dorchester section is filled with photographs of the babies they've cared for.

Mrs. Desmond pointed to a framed picture of a mongoloid child and said, "He's the one we loved most, because he was with us for 19 months, and he needed love more than any of the others."

"Four years ago, a naval officer and his wife who had adopted another mongoloid child adopted him, too," she said. "Wasn't that wonderful?"

UMass Police

New Emergency

Number

5-3111

GLENDALE COLLEGE OF LAW

- A Degree Program Qualifying Graduates For Calif. Bar Exam
- 5 Min. From Downtown Los Angeles In A Suburban Community
- Enrollment Now Being Accepted for March Term
- Inquiries Are Invited By The Dean Of Admissions:

GLENDALE COLLEGE OF LAW
220 NO. GLENDALE AVE
GLENDALE, CA. 91206
(213) 247-0770

UMass. Third World Cultural Series Presents

THE KERALA KALAMANDALAM COMPANY

kathakali

The Sacred Dance Drama of Kerala

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1973—8:00 p.m.

BOWKER AUDITORIUM

Tickets $1.50 UM/A Students $3.00 Others

Telephone 545-0202

Sponsored by the Fine Arts Council

NE Caucus Warns Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) - New England congressmen have warned President Nixon that the energy shortage could have its most serious impact on the nation's employment rate, Rep. William S. Cohen, R-Maine, said Monday.

Cohen said that last winter, without the Mideast war, "many New England factories had to close or lay off workers. Reducing energy consumption and demand will automatically affect thousands of jobs, so we must plan to minimize the losses."

Cohen said a letter from the New England congressional caucus urged the President to "set fuel allocation priorities in the future so that comfort and convenience uses to fuel do not take precedence over the maintenance of job opportunities and income for working people."

The letter also asked Nixon to "direct economists in the Treasury, at the Council of Economic Advisers and at the Bureau of Labor Statistics to begin work immediately on an analysis of the job situation.

"Congress should have such a report in hand by Jan. 1 so it may begin work as soon as possible on any legislative support which such a program would demand."

WSM GRAND OLE OPRY

(AP Photo)

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — SLAIN OPRY STAR — Grand Ole Opry and Hee Haw star Stringbean, whose name was really David Akeman, shows off the costume and down-home country humor that made him famous with country music fans around the world. Stringbean and his wife were found shot to death at their home in Goodlettsville, a Nashville suburb, early Sunday. Police said the house had been ransacked.

White Man Burned In Racial Slaying

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)-A gang of black men abducted a white man and his black wife, doused the husband with an inflammable fluid and set him afire, police said Monday.

Brian Barfield, 33, of Fort Lauderdale, was in intensive care at Holy Cross Hospital, suffering from third degree burns to his arm, right leg and back.

"It was obviously racially motivated," a police spokesman said. "The wife was not physically harmed although she was very shaken up."

Police said Barfield and his wife Jeraldine, 26, were driving along a city street Sunday evening when a car carrying six black men pulled alongside and a man pointed a gun at them, forcing them to stop.

Another car, with five blacks inside, pulled up behind the Barfields and the couple was blindfolded before being driven to an apartment, police said.

At the apartment, Mrs. Barfield said, her husband was bound with electrical cord, doused with an unidentified liquid and set ablaze.

She said both she and her husband were threatened by their abductors and she was told to "get out of town."

After Barfield was set afire, Mrs. Barfield said, their attackers released the couple and ordered them to leave.

She said she helped her husband out of the apartment and they found their car outside.

Mrs. Barfield told police she drove her husband to the hospital where he was admitted in serious condition.

Officers said Mrs. Barfield was unable to pinpoint the location of the apartment where she and her husband were held.

Last month, a young white woman died after being attacked and set afire by a gang of black youths in Boston, and a black derelict died in Miami after he was set on fire by three young blacks.

POWs Recover Exceptionally Well

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)-Defense officials say former U.S. war prisoners have recovered "exceptionally well" from the physical and emotional effects of their captivity, with nearly 80 per cent of them back on military duty.

"They came through better than we expected," one official said Monday in discussing recently analyzed results of medical and psychiatric examinations and treatment since release of 566 American POWs from Communist Vietnamese prisons last February and March.

The anxieties and confusions involved in readjusting are now behind the former POWs, the official said.

"So far, they appear to be handling the situation very well," he added. "These men are back in the mainstream."

Officials emphasized that to date, more than half of the returned Navy and Air Force pilots have been recertified for flying.

Last spring Pentagon medical authorities said all 566 freed POWs showed signs during preliminary check-ups that they have suffered "stress reaction," including depression, after coming home.

But now officials said mental and emotional problems have turned out to be "far less than we got ready for."

Only one man has been discharged for a psychosis and two others still are hospitalized for the same reason. However, these two men are described as "coming along very well."

Only about 20 men were diagnosed as having neuroses and "most of these conditions have been resolved by now," officials said.

On the physical side, officials said that former POWs have been purged of various kinds of worms and there should be no further recurrence of malaria. No cases of tuberculosis were found.

Most of the men are said to have regained their normal weight.

There apparently will be lasting physical effects for some, including arthritis developed in prison and damage to knees, elbows and shoulders suffered by air crewmen who ejected from their planes and made bad parachute landings. But few of these will be disabling, officials said.

Where possible, military surgeons are correcting the results of fractures and other injuries, which accounts for many of the 32 former POWs still hospitalized and 23 who are convalescing.

Two men committed suicide several months ago, causing Pentagon officials to wonder whether former POWs of the Vietnam war might experience a high rate of violent death.

Truck Commission Hits Road Blocks

By MARY THORNTON
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — A special commission studying problems of truck over-loading in the state has run into a series of roadblocks and its chairman says they have been put there not only by the trucking industry but also by state officials.

State Rep. Richard McGrath, D-Watertown, said he hoped his Commission on Truck Overloading would lead to improved laws regulating trucks and to improved enforcement, but he discovered "a much bigger mess than we ever expected."

Since the overload laws were adopted 10 years ago setting an absolute maximum of 73,000 pounds for a truck and its load, the laws have been blatantly ignored, he said, and his efforts to study and correct the situation have been opposed.

As evidence, he cites:

-The legislature's failure to fund his commission.

-The failure of the legislature to approve a bill giving immunity to witnesses appearing before his commission.

-The governor's delay in appointing commission members.

-The unavailability of weight records for loads carried by the Massachusetts trucking industry.

TONITE

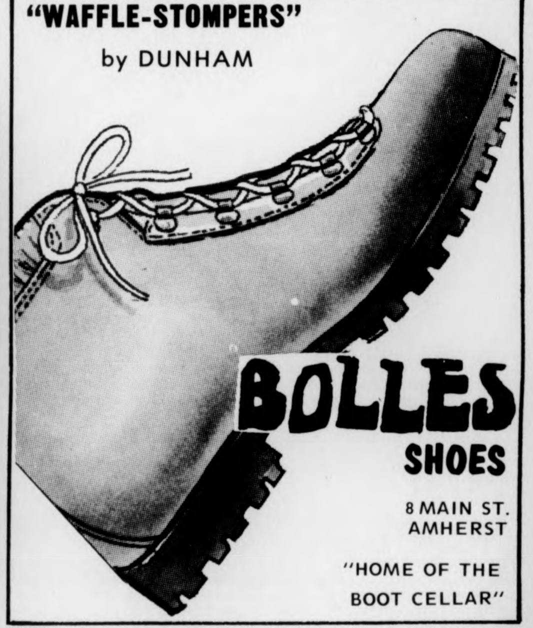
REAL TEARS

at the

Rusty Nail Inn

Rte. 47, Sunderland

665-4937



"WAFFLE-STOMPERS"

by DUNHAM

BOLLES SHOES

8 MAIN ST.
AMHERST

"HOME OF THE BOOT CELLAR"

$199 a week in the sand, sea, and sun paradise of EUROPE for LESS THAN the cost of PUERTO RICO or the BAHAMAS, Jan. 6th to 13th in swinging MASPALOMAS on grand Canary Island (Spain), COMPLETE PACKAGE $199 & $29 taxes & services. Also some Hawaii space still available

Call Leslie Halfond — 546-6861.

PHYSICS FOR NON-SCIENCE MAJORS

100	The World Beyond Our Senses
100A	The World Beyond Our Senses (in Spanish)
115	Physics of Music
117	Nuclear Energy & Its Social Challenge
118	Quantum Worlds
122	Concepts of Physics, II
123	Problems in Physics
130	Physics for Elem. Ed Majors
386	Special Problems

For details, see course description guide or inquire in Hasbrouck 110.

Openings Limited For Study In Britain

Students who plan to study in Great Britain for the academic year 1974-75 should start their planning now to avoid disappointment.

Available opportunities in fully accredited Programs sponsored by American colleges and universities remain limited. Early application is essential to participate in Programs cooperating with British Universities and offering regular degree course enrollment.

Information on accredited study at the Universities of Edinburgh, Lancaster, London, Southampton, Surrey and Wales is now available through the Center for International Programs, Beaver College-Franklin and Marshall College, Glenside, Pa. 19038.

School Of Ed. Registration

The School of Education is holding pre-registration for Spring courses this week - Mon.-Fri. 9 - 4 in the room connecting Hills North and South.

Pol Sci Students To Hold Meeting

Students in the Political Science Department have too long been excluded from making important policy decisions within the department.

On Thursday, Nov. 15, at 7 p.m., in Machmer W-24, there will be a meeting of all concerned political science majors to discuss possible actions to remedy the present situation.

American Workshop Coming Up

The Latin American-North American Cross Cultural Workshop will be held this coming weekend, Nov. 17-18, in the Farley Lodge(across the S.W., behind parking lots 21 & 22) from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day.

One pass-fail credit is offered. There is a fee of $3 for food.

For more information contact: Ms. Susan Thompson, History Department, 545-0991.

Santa: Who Put The Lights Out?

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Santa Claus will have fewer Christmas lights to guide him on his way this year.

Chambers of commerce are cancelling Christmas lighting contests and merchants are cutting back on electric displays in an effort to conserve energy this Yule season, according to an Associated Press survey.

For the first time the National Christmas Tree on the White House Eclipse will be a live tree, a 40-foot Colorado blue spruce. The National Park Service says it will cut back by 80 per cent the 100,000 watts usually used to light the tree, the Pageant of Peace and the trees of the states.

Spiritual Healer To Speak

Ethel DeLoach, writer, lecturer and teacher in the field of ESP, and internationally known spiritual healer, will appear at UMass tomorrow at 8 p.m. in the Campus Center Auditorium.

Founder and executive secretary of the Jersey Society of Parapsychology Inc., she will discuss the act of spiritual healing and explain how she is aided in her work by "spirit doctors." Parapsychology is an alternative approach to investigating mental resources inherent in the human mind.

Tickets are available by mail in advance from the Division of Continuing Education, 920 Campus Center, or at the door. Admission is $2 for the general public and $1 for students.

Images

Images, an exhibition of Photography, Silkscreens, and Photo-silkscreens, is now on display on the corridor wall behind the Student Union lobby. See it.

ROOM TO MOVE

Campus Drug Drop-In Center

CALL 5-0400

24 HOURS A DAY
7 DAYS A WEEK

Van Heusen puts it all together

When Van Heusen puts together a shirt collection, you can bet it's right in touch with your times . . . with the kind of bold styling, super comfort, and great new designs that really turn you on. Stand apart from the rest of the herd, and assert your lifestyle in a Van Heusen . . . the one shirt that puts you altogether in fashion!

VAN HEUSEN® younger by design

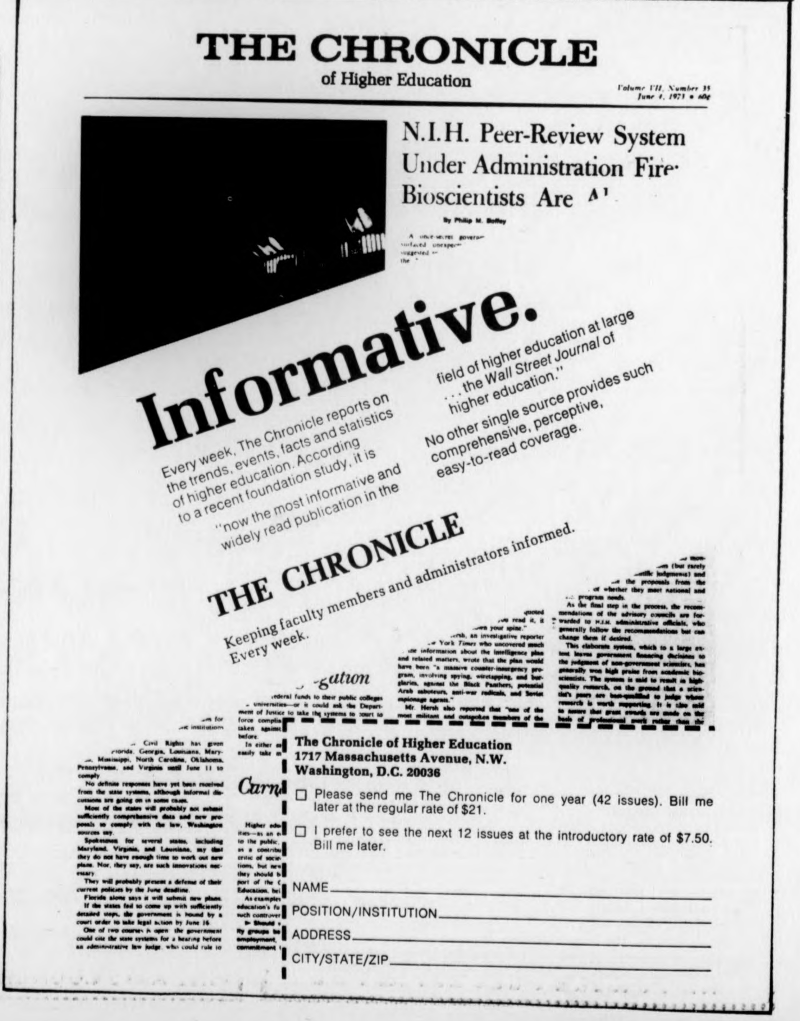
Papa Gino's is NOW OPEN in the Mountain Farms Mall.

Now your appetite for pizza, pasta and sandwiches has a new place to go. It's the new Papa Gino's in the Mountain Farms Mall, Hadley. Come on in and enjoy a delicious Papa Gino's pizza. It all goes great with a frosty mug of draft beer. And Papa's menu also features his famous spaghetti, ravioli, manicotti, burgers, hotdogs, salad, french fries and much more. That's why we say, when you're hungry for something more . . . bring your appetite to the new Papa Gino's Restaurant.

Store Hours: Mon.-Sat. 11 AM to 12 Midnight
Sun. 12 Noon to 12 Midnight

Papa Gino's
PIZZA – PASTA – SANDWICHES

MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL, HADLEY



Informative.

Every week, The Chronicle reports on the trends, events, facts and statistics of higher education. According to a recent foundation study, it is "now the most informative and widely read publication in the field of higher education at large . . . the Wall Street Journal of higher education."

No other single source provides such comprehensive, perceptive, easy-to-read coverage.

THE CHRONICLE

Keeping faculty members and administrators informed. Every week.

The Chronicle of Higher Education
1717 Massachusetts Avenue, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20036

☐ Please send me The Chronicle for one year (42 issues). Bill me later at the regular rate of $21.

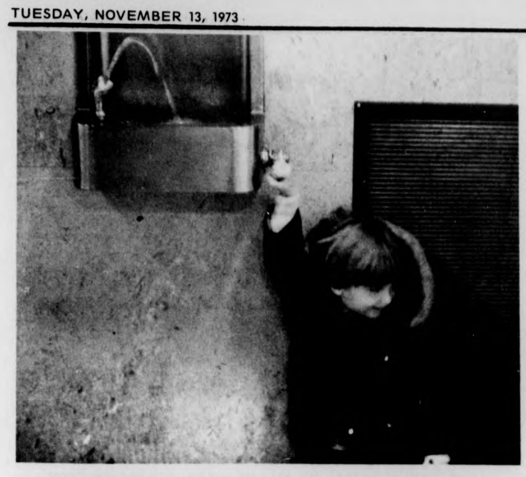
☐ I prefer to see the next 12 issues at the introductory rate of $7.50. Bill me later.

NAME____________________

POSITION/INSTITUTION____________________

ADDRESS____________________

CITY/STATE/ZIP____________________



This freshman, while unable to get a drink himself, was perfectly willing to pass out free water.

(Staff Photo-Dennis Conlon)

He later had second thoughts about being photographed, a problem shared by many important men.

UMASS CELEBRITY SERIES PRESENTS

DIRECT FROM THE SOVIET UNION · THE RETURN OF THE

LENINGRAD PHILHARMONIC

CURRY HICKS CAGE
Monday, November 19, 1973
8:00 P.M.
Presented by Univ. of Mass. Fine Arts Council
Tickets: UM A Students $3.00; Others $6.00
Ticket Office: 125 Herter Hall

Phone 545-0202

ENTERTAINMENT

HATCH
WED.
COFFEEHOUSE
THUR., FRI. & SAT.
"Topper Carew"

BLUEWALL
MON.
Football
TUES.
Movie: "Mutiny on the Bounty"
WED.
"Sweet Pie"
THUR.
"Frisco and the Killers"
FRI. & SAT.
"Big Screamin McGrew"

T.O.C.
FRI. & SAT.
"Jimmy"

ENTERTAINMENT

Fine Arts Council

string quartet

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 1973
BOWKER AUDITORIUM 8 p.m.
RESERVED TICKETS: $1.50 UM/A students $3.00 all others

THE KERALA KALAMANDALAM COMPANY
kathakali
The Sacred Dance Drama of Kerala

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1973—8:00 p.m.
BOWKER AUDITORIUM
Tickets $1.50 UM/A Students $3.00 Others

LENINGRAD PHILHARMONIC

CURRY HICKS CAGE
Monday, November 19, 1973 at 8:00 P.M.
Tickets: UM A Students $3.00; Others $6.00

FINE ARTS COUNCIL OFFICE, 125 Herter Hall 545-0202

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS
EDITOR-IN-CHIEF Stephen G. Tripoli
MANAGING EDITOR Mary T. Vorderer
BUSINESS MANAGER Gilbert W. Fullerton
EXECUTIVE EDITOR Jerald H. Lazar
NEWS EDITOR Joan Fassnacht
SPORTS EDITOR Stephen W. Crowe
PHOTO EDITOR Alan H. Chapman
FINE ARTS EDITOR Patrick Coffey

ADVERTISING MANAGER Brent A. Wilkes
ASST. MANAGING EDITOR Geoffrey L. Kurinsky
ASST. EXECUTIVE EDITOR Dean P. Tucker
ASST. NEWS EDITOR Sharon Hughes
ASST. SPORTS EDITOR Steven DeCosta
ASST. PHOTO EDITOR Stephen A. Ruggles
ASST. FINE ARTS EDITOR Joyce Kosofsky

TODAY'S STAFF
ISSUE EDITOR Karen Lynch
EDITORIAL Jerry Lazar
SPORTS Dave Eibel
DARKROOM Sue Goldbaum, Woei Chin, Dennis Conlon, Richarding.
AD LAYOUT Jane Levin

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administrators read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons, and letters represent the personal views of the authors.

The Collegian subscribes to the Associated Press and the Liberation News Service. Publication of their material does not constitute endorsement.

Zamir Nestelbaum

After Dinner Mints

There has been, in recent weeks, a tremendous controversy raging on this campus. The fact that the campus media, in its usual Eastern effete Kennedy liberal snobbism, has refused to publicize this great issue has not dimmed its importance from the hearts of those concerned. That the truth will always win out, and that the clean homespun silent Americans that comprise the backbone of this great American campus will triumph in the end is not in doubt. And that is why, being an all-American type, I have decided to bring this issue before the broad masses. The Great Issue which has come to be called "The After Dinner Mint Affair," centers around whether the Dining Commons should provide after dinner mints, perhaps an occasional cool after dinner cigar, and other after dinner condiments.

There are many schools of thought regarding "The After Dinner Mint Affair." First I will look at those groups who came out in favor of them. Leading the charge has been the student Senate. I recently talked to Nick Apostola, who assured me that as long as he was SGA President, the Senate would unfailingly pursue this lofty goal. True to his word, Nick and his Senate have just ratified a resolution calling for mints in assorted colors and varieties. The Area Government of UMass, especially Orchard Hill's, (having nothing better to do), also jumped on the bandwagon for mints. Perhaps the main group — Students for After Dinner Mint Society — S.D.S. a radical group willing to pull out all the stops to achieve their aims. Their goal is nothing less than the presence of After Dinner Mints, cigars, cocktails, and scantily clad waitresses about every table used for eating on this campus. I talked to Mark Dudd, the National Leader, and he remarked that nothing less than a total sociological revolution could achieve these aims. He then assured me that SDS will use whatever means necessary: bombs, strikes, rallies, in order to get what the People want — MINTS! Perhaps a more moderate Pro-Mint group has been the campus-wide Mobe For Mints. The Mobe has probably attracted the broadest base, as especially evident (as you are probably so well aware), at the Moratorium for Mints called last Thursday. Thousand of bright-eyed U-Mies boycotted their classes en masse and attended rallies at the Student Union Ballroom and Cage, on this balmy Indian Summer day. However, the Pro-Mintists have by no means been dominated by only Leftist groups. This is a bipartisan, biracial, crossectional movement. Other groups who have joined the clamor for their favorite snack are the Campus Crusade for Mints who have put on another Josh-like advertising campaign, flooding the campus with "I Like Mints" and "Vote Mint" on every classroom blackboard and wall. The more distinguished After Dinner Mint Society of America, comprised of many University faculty, have waged an intensive letter-writing campaign to politicians, administrators, their wives, and anybody that will listen to them. And miracle upon miracles, even the Students for Apathy, a glorious UMass institution, was heard to have been leaning toward mints, although admittedly and understandably reluctantly. And, of course, on the seamy side of the issue, the After Dinner Mint Industry, has been active everywhere, lobbying for more mints, all the while holding back mint production, to create a greater demand and heighten the uproar.

It's hard to imagine how any group or individuals be opposed to this great pro-Mint conflagration. And, yet, Food Services has taken an anti-Mint stand. A source close to me has reported that Joel Stoneham was overheard to have said that "The institution of this new program would cost the Dining Commons a Mint!" Oh!!! The agony of it all. Furthermore, the same people who pushed so hard for fluoridation have taken up the anti-mint cause as if it were a cause celebre. '"MINTS ROT YOUR TEETH" bumper stickers can be seen everywhere. And, as expected, Whitmore has again come out against the Students and, of course, against Mints. The Chancellor was heard to have remarked that "There shall be no After Dinner Mint program as long as I am here. If the Trustees pass it, well then they won't have Randy to kick around anymore."

However, the real reason for the lack of mints on this campus is not a local one, but a national one. No, not a One World Communist Conspiracy to Dominate the World Mint Market as some of us would like to believe, but one involving the already teetering Nixon Administration. You see, I have it from secret sources that someone in Nixon's highest echelons has just completed a Great Mint Deal, similar to the Great Russian Wheat Deal, with the Republic of Bangladesh, strangely enough.

Zamir Nestelbaum is a Collegian columnist.

Bob Estelle

10 Worst TV Shows

A lot of people watch the boob tube. Trite comedy shows, until a few years ago, were the main offering of the networks. Some shows weren't bad, but most stunk, which is why most of them aren't on the air anymore. But let us look back at some nostalgia and recount the worse of these shows.

MY MOTHER THE CAR......lasted for only one year, it was so bad. For those of you who remember, it was about Jerry Van Dyke's mother who died and came back reincarnated as a 1928 Porter. The pair were reunited and enjoyed many zany adventures. Jerry now sells used cars in Baja California.

BATMAN......probably the worst show of all. Starred Adam West and Burt Ward as two dinks who prevented crime despite their idiocy. Adam now acts as a crime prevention advisor to Ronald Regan and Burt plays a stud in X-rated movies.

PETTICOAT JUNCTION......starred three nice looking all-American girls, a sleeze to top all sleezes, and an overly protective mother. It was situated in a hick town and too many strange things happened all the time. The sleeze is now on welfare, the overly protective mother is dead and the three fraulines are all married with three chubby children.

GREEN ACRES......situated in the same place. Starred Eddie Albert as Oliver Wendell Douglas, a lawyer turned farmer, and Eva Gabor as his wife. Was more of the same junk as Petticoat Junction. Oliver Wendell now works for the UFW while Eva is a stand-in for sister Zsa Zsa in the movies.

THAT GIRL......In this one, Marlo Thomas played a young starlet in New York who had a horny boyfriend and an overly protective father who was a spy. The three all had many hang-ups that nobody could take. The boyfriend is Burt Ward's stag partner, the father has been confined to an insane asylum, and Marlo just had plastic surgery to get her father's nose.

MY FAVORITE MARTIAN......this was about a martian who made life miserable for the people surrounding him. He was murdered by the CIA as a spy for Nationalist Mars. They could tell because of his presence in "Damn Yankees."

DOBIE GILLIS......the typical teenager who was a greaser of the fifties. Had too much narration and too little humor that wasn't nonsense, to be polite. Dobie is now Teen Angel in the 7UP commercials.

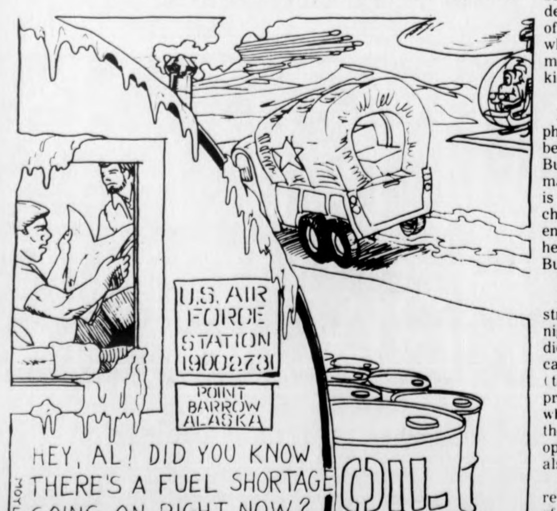
I'M DICKENS, HE'S FENSTER......this was about two struggling carpenters. One tried to be the straight man (John Astin) and the other (Marty Ingles) tried to be a swingin' bachelor humorist. They did not succeed. Ingles now makes TV commercials. Astin went on to......

THE ADDAMS FAMILY ....the tritiest of all trite shows, Astin, Carolyn Jones and Jackie Coogan starred in this one as a bunch of wierdoes trying to subvert normal living. Astin now makes cigar commercials, Jones is a liberationist (for ghouls) and Coogan is trying to make a comeback as a child prodigy.

CAPTAIN NICE......of, by and for dinks who were inept at not only fighting crime but at acting. Captain Nice is now Superman's stand in.

TV, sure as hell, ain't what it used to be.

Bob Estelle is a Collegian columnist.



U.S. AIR FORCE STATION 19002731
POINT BARROW ALASKA
HEY, AL! DID YOU KNOW THERE'S A FUEL SHORTAGE GOING ON RIGHT NOW?
OIL
MOYLE

SW Lifestyle Caused Tragic Death

By BOB RILEY

"Hey, what are all those black marks on the elevator doors?"

"Just prints from the people kicking it open."

"What!!.....Why?"

"Who knows? Why the vandalism? Why the ripoffs? Why anything in Southwest?"

Why did a twenty year old visitor to campus fall to his death Saturday night? Perhaps because he became too quickly accustomed to ways of life in our largest residential area. Perhaps because he wasn't so lucky as many others. Anyway you look at it, the death of William Markussen was an inevitable result of the lifestyle in Southwest. It is upon the students who live there (and the students alone), that blame must rest. Saturday night someone tried to get their kicks one to often.

Don't try to blame the elavators or anyone in the physical plant. They have performed above and beyond the call of duty. A visibly concerned Richard Burke, director of the physical plant, strongly maintains that the elevators on campus are as safe as is structurally possible. They are constantly being checked and repaired. The doors which so many enjoy prying and kicking open are secured with the heaviest springs and latches available, according to Burke.

Indeed, Burke contends that if they were any stronger the doors wouldn't open at all. As of Sunday night, state elevator inspectors said that they just didn't know what could be done to further secure the cars. Director Burke points out that Westinghouse (the producers of the system) has never had any problems with the system installed in Southwest when used normally and not excessively abused. Yet, the vandalism, riding on top of cars, and "kicking open of doors" are daily occurences. Now we may also add a death.

"Its like warfare," says Paul Lawler, an elevator repairman, "attack and counter-attack". Yet in spite of their efforts Richard Burke wonders aloud two days after the accident "How much more can you do?" One really has to wonder.

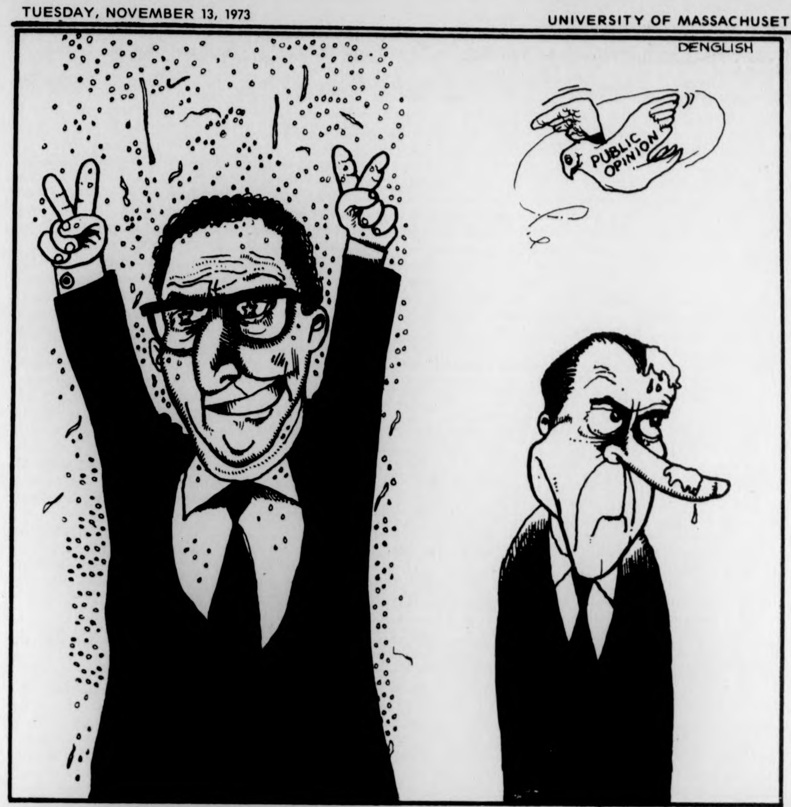
Don't try to blame the heads or residence either. They've tried to bring some semblance of civilization to the dorms. They've warned students, established rules to protect everyone, held meetings, printed information sheets, with little results. They more than anyone else tried to keep the events of Saturday from becoming a reality. All to no avail.

Who is to blame? Maybe afterall it was a freak accident? Such is hardly the case. As I have said before, the death of William Markussen was a result of the type of society which exists in Southwest. He could just as easily been anyone of us. A human being died Saturday because the people who populate our largest residential area maintain an atmosphere which defies all common sense and decency. It's the people who turned Southwest into a zoo. It's the people of Southwest who fail to maintain any degree of orderliness. It's the people of Southwest, who by their apathy tolerate such disgusting behavior in the area which they live. The blame for all that goes on certainly doesn't rest with a small fraction of the population.

See Related Story, Page 1

So a person has violently died. Unless things are changed it will certainly occur again and again. It won't be limited to Southwest, either. The physical plant reports that tampering with elevators and security mechanisms takes place in Sylvan and Orchard Hill in addition to Southwest. The events of Saturday could have easily happened there. William Markussen's death was an incredible shock and tradgedy. Let's learn from it. It's time to practice the very simple rules of logic and safety difficult as it may be for some. Let's assume some degree of responsibility for our own actions and the actions of those about us and let's do so now. Or do we wait for more such headlines in the Collegian?

Bob Riley is a Collegian Commentator.



Letters To The Editor

Sacrifice The Beavers

To The Editor:

The cartoon on page 13 of last Wednesday's Collegian misinterpreted the recent killing of beavers at Hill Reservoir. The cartoon implies that it was wrong for the state to authorize the removal by killing of the beavers. I disagree. I will not argue the question of whether it is morally or ethically correct to kill an animal. That question must be left up the individual and should not be dictated by anyone else.

This recent killing arises from the fact that the beavers were causing the discoloration of the Amherst water supply. Because of aesthetic values and human nature no one enjoys or wants brown water coming out of their faucets. Would you like to take a bath in brown water? I think not. Thus there was a need to remove the beavers from the reservoir area. Live trapping of beavers is quite difficult, time consuming, and costly. And even if the beavers had been live trapped where could the state release them?

The beaver is quite unique in one respect, for it is the only other animal besides man which can change the environment to suit their own needs. But in doing this the beaver is quite destructive and can literally ruin an area of substanial acreage. They cut down trees, especially red maple and birch, and their dams back up streams so that the water may flood desirable land or wash out small back roads. So, because of this fact and the fact that they "pollute" water with a brown coloration, large populations of beavers are usually not welcome on state, county, or local lands being managed for timber production or a small watershed area.

Some might say transplant the beavers up into the wilderness areas of Maine or New Hampshire. This would have required co-operation and co-ordination between two states and a suitable plan would have taken months to work out. Besides such an operation would be prohibitive for economic reasons.

What the question in essence is: "Which do we as a society want to sacrifice, forested land and our aesthetic values of drinking water or a few beavers?" I believe we should sacrifice the beavers at Hill Reservoir since there is already a high beaver population in the state. In fact in 1972, 1358 beavers were legally trapped for their pelts in Massachusetts. It is not as if they were killing an endangered species.

Thus the cartoon took a cheap shot at the Division of Fish and Game and society in general which was not justified.

Glen K. Mahoney

Moe Tally

Editor's note: Yesterday we received seven letters, with a total of 115 signatures, urging the Distinguished Visitors Program to get Moe Howard to speak on campus.

More Letters,
See Page 12

Historical Link

To The Editor:

In response to several letters last week in which the "historical heritage" of Arab-Black African relations was raised, I'd like to bring out some facts which were probably forgotten or intentionally ignored.

It is estimated that 50,000-600,000 Black Africans have been slaughtered in Sudan in the war which the Arab North pursued against the South since Sudan gained independence in 1959. Despite heavy casualties, the Blacks refused to give up their struggle for liberation. As one Black leader said in an interview with Lawrence Fellows, which appeared in the New York Times on April 15, 1968: "With the Arabs we are dead anyway."

Sudan has closed the south to the outside world and has tried to ban reporters. U.N. figures in the Journal de Geneve (Sept. 9, 1967) indicated that 33,000 Sudanese refugees had fled to the Congo, 55,000 to Uganda, and 27,000 to Gambia.

The Times article, however, pointed out that Sudan has had some success in persuading her neighbors to help her clamp down and trap the refugees, leaving them no escape. Sudan's attitude toward Blacks is far from unique in the Arab world. The Arabs, who ran the world's Black slave trade for centuries, continue to indulge in slave trade for regional consumption to this very moment, especially in the Sheikhdoms of the Persian Gulf (which support Arab "guerilla" movements).

The U.N. Economic and Social Council has been concerned with this problem and Britain's Anti-Slavery Society has been instrumental in focusing public attention on it. Incidents of chattel slavery have been cited in Saudi Arabia--which "abolished" it years ago — and in Aden, Kuwait, Yemen, Muscat, Qatar, and the Sudan according to British correspondents and impartial observers.

The existence of cooperation and understanding between nations and ethnic groups is a positive phenomenon. However, to raionalize the linkage between the Arabs and the Third World by "historical heritage" is simply misleading due to the fact that the nature of this heritage and the present reality is negative in its essence.

A good case in point is the "historical link" that developed between Uganda and the Arab world when Libyan money began to flow into that African country. Free oil and money opened the eyes of Idi Amin, Uganda's leader, to the realization of who the real "agressor" in the Middle East conflict actually is.

J. Greener

Emotional Release?

Dear Mr. Gardner:

First, I would like to thank you for your response to my Nov. 6 column regarding what I consider to be the irresponsibility of some of the residents of Orchard Hill. There are a few things however on which we do not seem to agree, some due in part to misinterpretation of my sentiments that I would like to expound on.

You seem to believe that I equate yelling with stupidity. I do not. You use your own courses which you label "tough" (Circuit Analysis, Physics, and Calculus) as a case in point. Am I to conclude on the basis of this information that since yelling supposedly denotes stupidity and stupidity and tough courses are mutually exclusive entities that you in the dual role of yeller and academic masochist therefore disprove my contention? The fact that an individual happens to be enrolled in a particular course does not necessarily denote anything about the basic values and motivations of that person. But while the act of yelling is not symptomatic of an ignorant person, it is symptomatic of an individual lacking in meaningful outlets. And more practically, even if my hypotheses is inaccurate, there is the question of the value of such activity for the individual's well-being. I've been concentrating on yelling but I needn't for there are a host of other equally as puerile acts as well as some very malicious ones. I refer to cases where people have been physically injured as a result of some of the little games that these youngsters engage themselves in.

Mr. Gardner, you say that you find yelling to be "good for you" but pause here to consider how ridiculous an activity it really is. I do not think I'm being particularly thick if I fail to understand what qualitative pleasure can be derived from standing on a balcony on a cold night screaming that Dickinson or another of the dorms suck. Why do we suck? What does the quality of "suckiness" entail? Why not yell during the daylight? Or is there a certain security derived from knowing that no one can see you at night? If you were the only one who wanted to do it, would you continue your verbal epithets? I am not picking on you. I hope that you realize that.

You contend that people denied emotional release turn into "nuts" as you call them. The act of yelling you say is a tension release. I can not find fault with this basically. Within the individual there may be a drive which acts to maintain a state of emotional equilibrium. There is also another need which requires fulfillment, this being the need to sleep. Sleep in no way transgresses the attainment of emotional stability through tension-releasing mechanisms but the opposite is not true for yelling, fire crackers, and excessively loud stereos (the latter two being passive tension-releasing mechanisms) They do inhibit my attempts to sleep. I repeat — sleep. In no part of my column did I mention any attempts made at studying being halted as a result of the afore-mentioned conditions.

You then say, "If Ms. Monaco thinks she has to study every night of the week, I pity her for the boorish vegetable she must be." Pardon my defensiveness but where did you get the impression from my column that I study every night? I think in your assumption as to my studying habits that you are applying an unjustified stereotype. Someone who appreciates a degree of quiescense is automatically labeled a "bookworm". So please, no pity. Honest, I have my own tension-releasing mechanisms and they are effective too. And me, a "boorish vegetable"? First, I am not of Boorish origin. Rather, I am a second generation American-Italian-Irishwoman. And I am not a vegetable. Perhaps you misunderstood someone who knows me. The proper term is "vegetarian". Also, regarding another title which you chose to bestow upon me, namely "stuffed shirt". Mr. Gardner, here again you have erred noticably. There are those of us females who feel no need to stuff our shirts and I assure you that even if I did notice such a need to stuff, I wouldn't. Finally, you tell me that if I wish to "pursue my career as a stuffed shirt there's a nice new red brick building..." But because I am not a stuffed shirt or currently in possession of one as I just pointed out, I don't think I have a use for that either. But thank-you for pointing it out to me. I've noticed it once or twice since the semester began but I figured it was just a figment of my imagination, probably due to anxiety and all. And oh yes, you were right. It is called a library. Isn't that a funny name?

Mr. Gardner, you also contend that "if a sports event isn't a form of emotional release than I'm Spiro Agnew." Well, Mr. Agnew, if you resurrect your old Psych 101 books, you will find that this statement isn't completely true. I direct you especially to material relating to studies done on the social learning theory of aggression, modeling behavior, imitation, etc.

It would be very irresponsible of me to end this without mentioning an alternative or what I see as an alternative. Those of you who feel the need to let loose on a Sat. night or any other nite need not converge upon the woods of Leverett as I sugested in my earlier column this week. Just carry on with some restraint, discontinue at a reasonable hour, and don't harm anything or anyone. And if it happens to be a night before classes, stop a moment and think of me, a poor soul (Get out your violin, Steven) whose schedule at the beginning of the semester was such a mess that I had to sign up for all 8:00's. (Don't put it away yet) Not only do I have five, yes five 8:00's on the other side of campus, I also have a 3-meal ticket. So I guess you aren't the only academic masochist around. (Now you can put it away.)

Karen A. Monaco

Not A Cockroach

To The Editor:

This is unfortunately, a response to the apparent misrepresentation of the Collegian staff by publishing the photograph on the top of the front page of the Friday, Nov. 9 issue.

I say "unfortunately" because, with the large amount of doubt and mistrust which apparently exists in the country today, it is an extra kick in the pants to find my own "free and responsible press" turning out material which is not only untrue but also plagiarized as well.

The insect pictured is a male Rhinocerous beetle, order: Coleoptera, family: Scarabaeidae. It is not in any way, shape or form, other than being an insect, related to the Roaches; order: Orthoptera, suborder: Blattaria.

After reading and rereading the article and photo caption, I did not of course, find anywhere any sentence which stated the animal in the photograph was indeed a roach. But be reasonable — or at least honest! If your looking for sensationalism, then I have less regard for you now than ever. If it was a mistake, correct it.

As for the plagiarism, I can direct anyone to the entrance hall of Fernald Hall to see the actual photograph of the insect. A staff "photographer" went to the Entomology department requesting to see the roaches. He went down, equipment and all, and found the individuals behind two sets of glass cases. Whether or not he attempted this difficult photo is not known to me, but I do know a roach was not in the picture; and that upstairs is a more impressive looking insect photograph, which is easier to capture on film. In fact the creases and wrinkles of the original show up nicely in your reproduction.

All I can say is; get what you can by yourself, if that's too difficult, give credit where it's due. Please stop mininforming your "informed public" — we have enough problems as it is.

Thomas Tyning
member: HOMO SAPIENS

More Letters To The Editor

Life, Not Death

To The Editor:

Your article on the death of a student could have done so many things, could have presented a human portrait, could have shown loving concern for the conditions in SW, could have been oriented to awaken concern in others but no, it came from the journalistic mold that encourages us to see each human event as just another headline.

The Boston Globe reported the woman who was burned to death in Boston in the same manner, while the Phoenix and Real Paper presented a living sense both of her and the people and environment around her in which the awful thing happened. I hope you will take the trouble (trouble??) to do something in that line and thereby put yourselves on the side of life instead of death.

Carolyn Peck
Legal Studies Dept.

Thanks For The Blood

To The Editor:

The entire University community owes its thanks to those who made our just completed Blood Drive a great success with 1,221 pints collected. The success was due to the cooperative effort of many individuals, Red Cross professionals, volunteer nurses and doctors, senior citizens, faculty donors, members of the University Women and most of all the students.

Thanks to the students of Gamma Sigma Sigma and Alpha Phi Omega who worked many hours before and during the drive (most of whom gave their blood also).

Thanks to the student nurses who took pulses and temperatures.

Thanks to the staff of Collegian whose good publicity brought many donors.

Thanks last but by no means least to the more than 1,000 students who gave their blood which will save many lives in the weeks to come.

Those in charge of the drive regret that some would-be donors had to be turned away because of limited time and facility. We hope they will make an appointment with us in the week preceding the drive in early May.

Mrs. Robert Livingston
Blood Drive chairman for Univ. Women

Trees Pay For Concert

To The Editor:

I believe free concerts are good. They allow many students a chance for some entertainment without draining their pocketbooks.

A free concert this Saturday night produced by Sky Productions featuring "Homegrown", sponsored by Sylvan and Northeast, actually is not free. Something is paying for it. The trees on campus. Maybe the people that put up those posters should be reminded that trees are living individuals. Objects driven into living things injure them. Immediately beneath the bark is the phloem tissue through which runs the sap. If the injury is severe the tree may die from girdling. Beneath the phloem is the cambium, the living, growing part of the tree. When this is injured growth may be impaired producing an ugly scarred tree.

These posters probably won't injure the trees very much, but why take the chance? Nails may follow staples. There are plenty of bulletin boards and sign posts on campus that can be used for such announcements. I would like to see the posters removed, and future sponsors of anything refrain from using our renewable resource as a billboard.

Walter Kennedy

Consolidating The Bond

To The Editor:

I am a Jew and I have been to Israel. But, believe it or not Samuel Hassan, I do not necessarily support every action initiated by the Israeli government.

It is no secret that many people in the Christian Western World associate, in the negative, The Jewish People and money. So when pro-Arab writers such as Mr. Hassan (who slyly entitles his article-"Money Talks"), use this scurrilous association to promote their viewpoint, it has naturally enough a backlash affect on the Jewish Community.

There are more than a few American Jews who are apathetic or just confused concerning the muddled Middle Eastern conflict. However, there are no Jews who are ignorant of the potential, immediate and distant, that anti-semitism holds. Consequently, when "enlightened commentators" such as Mr. Hassan, attempt to injure the American-Israeli connection, they only succeed in further consolidating the bond.

Stephen Garbowit

Amherst Towing: F Lot

To The Editor:

I am writing in regards to Glen Manseau's letter of Thurs., Nov. 8, in which he complained of the lack of markings in V lot (11). Though not towed, my car also received a ticket for parking in an access lane. At the same time, my roommate's car was towed for the same infraction. Though I consider myself lucky that there were no towtrucks around when my car was tagged, I think it's time this shit stopped.

We went to Amherst Towing this morning to pick up his car. Their lot looked like F lot. There were more cars there than there is in the campus garage. They seem to own more tow trucks than the City of Boston. How many of you have been out late on a weekend night? One Sun. morning about three a.m. I personally watched the towing of 12 cars from the vicinity of the horseshoe within an hour. Someone is making money and it's the students who are getting ripped off!

I say it's time to put the security guards back on security and and let Amherst Towing get their money from all these "other sources" they so conveniently quote.

John Manning

Gardner Narrow Minded

To The Editor:

R.E. Steve Gardner letter 11-8-73

I believe Mr. Gardner must be a very narrow-minded selfish person. Just because he enjoys yelling he thinks other people enjoy his voice, I might add the comments that are used in the screaming that goes on in Orchard Hill leave a bit to be desired.

May I point out to Mr. Gardner that some people attending UMass also work and they have to study evenings and weekends; and I know I study better in my room where I have most of the information and materials needed right on hand.

As to "a little emotional release being a good thing" is it a good thing that chairs, buckets, mops, hockey sticks and trash of all sorts is thrown from balconies, just for a little release?

It might be acceptable if these instances of mob insanity took place only on weekends, before midnight, but they often occur during the middle of the week, or on Monday mornings at about 1:00 A.M.

As to Ms. Monaco's statement about morons, I must agree on this basis. Anyone who is willing to annoy and disturb others just to satisfy their own whims is a social moron. Anyone who starts a disturbance and then disclaims responsibility for subsequent actions is an intellectual moron.

Keith E. Loescher

Photograph A Cockroach

To The Editor:

This letter is in response to the front page article "Look in all the nooks and crannies" (Nov. 9, 1973). Since the major objective of the article is to point out the abundance of cockroaches in the Mt. Sugarloaf Apts. I should think that with such an abundance of roaches it would be quite easy to obtain a photograph of one. The pictured insect is either an ox beetle or a Unicorn beetle. Roaches are yellow-brown and they are not anything like the picture.

Nick Gambale

People Falsifying History

To The Editor:

It seems at this point that the issue of Arab slave-trading has become secondary to that of intellectual honesty; i.e., the unwillingness to sacrifice the truth of history in order to satisfy the politics of the moment. I believe Woubishet Adisaw was guilty of a lack of intellectual honesty in his reply to my initial letter.

No intellectual acrobatics on his part, no matter how intricate, will obscure the fact that the trade in Black African slaves moved in one direction -- towards Arabia. Although he asserts the universality of slavery. I know of no instances of Arabs being enslaved by Black Africans. And there is no reason to suppose that the institution of slavery as practiced in Arab lands was not "dehumanizing" and "despiritualizing". Surviving legal documents show that the slave was not equal to his master before the law.

All of this has very little to do with the current Mideast crisis, but it does have a great deal to do with the willingness of people to falsify history for the sake of their political goals.

Some examples from letters to the Collegian (paraphrased where memory fails):

"Israel has blown up Moslem mosques." The fact is that Israel has preserved and protected the holy places of all religions. When Jerusalem was under Jordanian rule, however, the desecration of Jewish cemetaries and holy places was a common occurence.

The implication that all of Africa and Asia was against the creation of a Jewish state. The truth is that in the vote to determine the creation of the State of Israel Egypt was the only African state to vote against Israel. Phrasing that fact in any other way does not alter its validity.

The myth of the unity of Arabia and Black Africa. The Black people of the Sudan have been violently suppressed by that country's Arab minority in much the same way that the Portuguese have suppressed the people of Mozambique, yet this fact is never brought to light by Third World groups.

"Most Jews who claim an historical link to Palestine are descendants of Poles who converted to Judaism." This is sheer nonsense. The ancestors of most Jews never set foot in Poland. Those Jews whose families did live in Poland are the descendants of Jews who fled there in the 15th century to escape the anti-Semitic riots in Germany at that time. These people lived apart from their non-Jewish (and often hostile) neighbors, preserving their own unique culture and heritage. In addition, most Israeli Jews are descendants of people who have lived for centuries in the Middle East and North Africa.

"Jews who support Israel are unconcerned with the problems of the Palestinian refugees." Most Jews are very much concerned with the problems of the Palestinians. However, as long as Israel's existence is threatened, and the various Palestinian groups refuse to recognize the right of Jews to live in their own state in the Middle East, Israel's first priority must be her own survival. The strain on Israel's manpower and resources which these continuing conflicts entail permit no other recourse.

To Ms. Rochelle Chandler's statement that "....the legitimacy of Israel is seriously questionable," let me say, as a Jew, that your judgment on the legitimacy or illegitimacy of Israel is irrelevant. The definition of Jewish peoplehood is not one for you to make. As a non-Jew, it lies beyond your grasp.

The People of Israel have survived for thousands of years against impossible odds. They have seen many other nations and many political philosophies appear and disappear. Their survival isn't "logical" nor is it "rational", but then, the forces of history rarely are logical or rational, eluding one most at the moment of their unfolding.

I'm certain, however, of one thing in all this. Israel will live on, as she always has, long after the voices of her enemies have died in the wind.

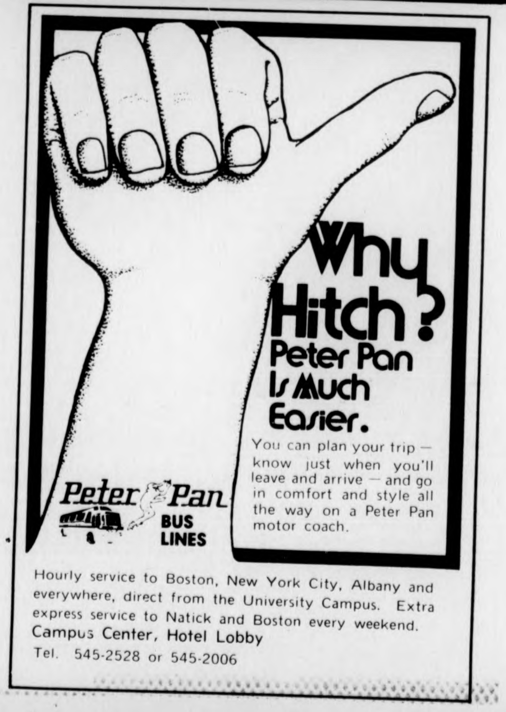
Menachem Rosenberger

APPLICATIONS now being accepted for:

- Student Senate Committees: (Acad. Affairs, Student Matters, Rents & Fees, Women's)
- Public Safety Policy Council
- CC/SU Board of Governors

All interested commuters (Undergrad) — Apply at Commuter Lounge, S.U. (in back of Hatch)

P.S. The Lounge is now open!!



Why Hitch? Peter Pan Is Much Easier.

You can plan your trip — know just when you'll leave and arrive — and go in comfort and style all the way on a Peter Pan motor coach.

Peter Pan BUS LINES

Hourly service to Boston, New York City, Albany and everywhere, direct from the University Campus. Extra express service to Natick and Boston every weekend.
Campus Center, Hotel Lobby
Tel. 545-2528 or 545-2006

OH Women's Center

Pocahontas, Pandora And Princesses

The Orchard Hill Women's Center presents the second event of its Speaker and Film Series tonight. It features Karen Baldwin, who will be speaking on "Pocahontas, Pandora, and Princesses: Women in Folklore" at 8:30 p.m. in the Grayson Main Lounge. Ms. Baldwin is currently an instructor in the UMass English Department, whose field of concentration is Folklore Studies.

The Speaker Series being conducted this semester is an attempt by the women of Orchard Hill to bring to the attention of the Hill and campus communities aspects of the women's movement not usually focused upon by the mass media.

On Wednesday evening the Series will be presenting Ms. Jane Zapka, a health educator from the UMass Health Services staff. Jane will be speaking on birth control and women's health care. The talk, entitled "For Women Only," will begin at 8:00 p.m. in the Grayson Main Lounge.

All University women are cordially invited to attend both of these events.

If you have any questions concerning either of these events or have ideas for future programs, please call the Orchard Hill Women's Center, 5-0707.

A Course...

Sociology 700C -- Sociology of Evaluation

Course Description: Introduction to the principles and techniques of evaluation of social programs and policies. Beginning with a brief review of social planning processes, case studies are used to develop understanding of the concepts and techniques for the following topics: program and evaluation objectives specifications; performance criteria; social context of evaluation; program impact, component and monitoring strategies; and integration of evaluation in the planning process. MWF 9:05.

Professor G. Sutton, Thompson 632, 545-0817.

A Colloq...

David Bluestein, author of the "No-Sweat Study Guide", is offering a colloquia through the Central Area Academic Affairs Office. The title of this 1-credit colloq. is "How to Make the Most of the Little Time You Devote to Your Studies". David, who is a UMass Senior, will testify to that, and offers interested students practical tips for getting higher grades and learning more, yet not dying trying. The first meeting of this colloq. will be at 8:30 p.m. on Wednesday, November 14, in the Chadbourne seminar room. For more information, call David at 546-9397.

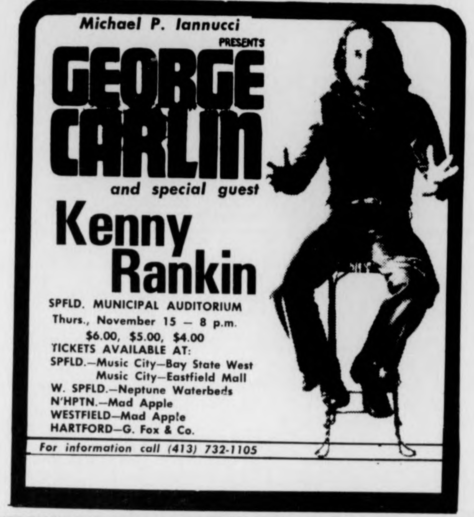
Corrections

Economics 192A, Seminar-For Introductory Students should be Economics 192A, Seminar-Women in the Economy; Economics 203, Section 2 will meet Tu Th 4:00-5:15 in Machmer E35.

G 26 BALLET III SCHEDULE ERROR

G26 Ballet III for Spring "74" Semester will meet Monday, Wednesday, & Friday at 9:05 instead of Monday, Wednesday & Friday at 2:30.

Mister Donut never knows when to quit.
(he's open 24 hrs. per day)
Mt. Farms Mall
Rt. 9
(Russell St.)
HADLEY
Mister Donut



Michael P. Iannucci PRESENTS
GEORGE CARLIN
and special guest
Kenny Rankin
SPFLD. MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM
Thurs., November 15 — 8 p.m.
$6.00, $5.00, $4.00
TICKETS AVAILABLE AT:
SPFLD.—Music City—Bay State West
Music City—Eastfield Mall
W. SPFLD.—Neptune Waterbeds
N'HPTN.—Mad Apple
WESTFIELD—Mad Apple
HARTFORD—G. Fox & Co.
For information call (413) 732-1105

were into... CUFFED BAGGIE JEANS ...high waisted
WEAR-HOUSE
clip coupon for $3.00 OFF on pair of baggie jeans

TONIGHT
JOHN MORGAN
Special Drink
SLOE GIN FIZZ 50¢
at
The English Pub

3 GREAT FILMS
START TOMORROW at
CAMPUS Cinemas
RT. 9 HADLEY 256-6411

The murder of Pres. Kennedy . . .
"A NATIONAL TRAUMA HAS BECOME A THRILLER.
A cool, skillful argument for conspiracy.'
— NEW YORK TIMES
"A sequence of events that seems frighteningly plausable. Sobering proof of American naivete and guillibility."
— NEW YORK DAILY NEWS
"'EXECUTIVE ACTION' will hit you with the impact of a 6.5 mm bullit . . . may shake you, anger you or surprise you, but in every case, the film will make you wonder like crazy!"
— GROUP W NEWS
"EXECUTIVE ACTION"

"Best American movie of the year."
– Rolling Stone
WALKING TALL

"Dazzles you . . . Beautifully done!"
— VILLAGE VOICE
"My favorite movie of the year!"
— PHIL OCHS, L.A. FREE PRESS
"Marvelous . . . Charged with the languid heat of the tropics."
— N.Y. TIMES
"Fresher than Spring Rain."
— PLAYBOY
"Exceptional . . . One of the land-marks of Black Cinema."
— L.A. TIMES
"THE HARDER THEY COME"

juilliard string quartet
THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 1973
BOWKER AUDITORIUM
8 p.m.
RESERVED TICKETS: $1.50 UM/A students $3.00 all others
FINE ARTS COUNCIL OFFICE, 125 Herter Hall 545-0202
Presented by the University of Massachusetts Fine Arts Council

ONLY THE FACULTY CAN PROTECT CAMPUS DECISION-MAKING

The faculty is the only independent body which can protect and expand the decision-making autonomy of the Amherst campus. This is why the MSP-AAUP has petitioned for a local bargaining unit and why it has negotiated election guidelines with the campus administration. The Chancellor and other campus administrators may help to maintain campus autonomy, but as employees of the President and the Trustees, their effectiveness is limited. As it was demonstrated in the cases of Chancellor Tippo and Chancellor Broderick, the good will and personal resolve of local administrators is not sufficient when pitted against the power of the President's office.

Only a strong independent faculty voice will provide effective protection that campus autonomy will not be eroded by the President's office.

MSP-AAUP

YES

☒

Study In Sunny San Juan

During this year's winter term, the Department of Hispanic Languages at UMass will be offering a three-week, three credit course entitled "Field Study in Bilingualism and Biculturalism in Puerto Rico."

Students enrolled in the course will leave from New York for San Juan on January 2, returning on January 24; while in Puerto Rico they will visit many places of cultural and historic interest, not only in San Juan but also on a five-day bus tour to other parts of the island. The group will attend a series of lectures on Puerto Rican history, public health, language, art and politics, and will be officially received by the Mayor of San Juan and the Governor of Puerto Rico.

Arrangements have also been made to tour a number of urban and rural schools, both public and private.

The fee for the program is $325, which includes round-trip air-fare, all accomodations and travel while on the island; it does not include food and personal expenses. Prerequisite for admission: three years of college-level Spanish or permission of the Director. For information and application please contact Mrs. Fresia Bradford, 422 Herter Hall, University of Mass., (telephone: 545-0541). Deadline for admission to the program is December 3.

If You're Walking...

BELCHERTOWN WALKATHON INFORMATION

1. Pre-registration for all walkers will be held at table set up in the Campus Center Concourse between 10:00 and 4:00 on Thursday and Friday, November 15 and 16. Walkers must bring sponsor sheets. Sponsors may be obtained after this time. If you cannot make any of these two dates - pre-register at Sheldon Field on Saturday morning.

2. Buses will leave the Campus Center Bus Circle on Saturday morning, November 17, at 7:30 a.m. to take walkers to Sheldon Field. Transportation will also be provided to take walkers back to UMass after the walk.

3. Walkers should deposit their contributed money at the Hampshire National Bank in Amherst.

4. Questions?? Call Ken - 253-7461 or Jay - 253-5897.

ADVERTISE FREE

Western Massachusetts

Super Ad List

FAIR EXCHANGE

A New Ad Weekly

Articles For Sale by Private Owners

10 per cent of Advertised Price only IF and WHEN you sell 10,000 ACTIVE Buyers

NO DEALER ADS

SPECIAL 2 WEEK OFFER
No Commission Charge 25 word limit —
Ads must be received before Mon. noon, Nov. 19
FAIR EXCHANGE
P.O. Box J
N. Amherst, Mass. 01059
CALL 256-0236
Clip and Mail

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

Personal acknowledgement: My thanks and appreciation to Ruth Buchanan, president of the Sydney Omarr Fan Club, headquarters in Muncie, Indiana. Her publication, "The Venturian," is a gem and especially helpful to beginning students of astrology. For additional information, write to "Venturian," P.O. Box 1282, Muncie, Indiana 47305. You could be opening the door to a fascinating study and creative hobby. That's true, even if you are not a "fan."

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Contractual and other obligations grab spotlight. Climax of efforts is featured. You will handle more responsibility. One who failed to grow with you may drift. Decision is made. Don't feel problems can be swept under proverbial rug.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Relative may be overbearing. Ride with tide. Refuse to upset yourself over trivials. Leo, Aquarius persons may display temperament. Permit your own creative abilities to surface. Balance and humor are now your twin allies. .

GEMINI (May 21-June 22): Financial pressure is indicated. But "relief" comes as you move from under and get on top of situation. Skip the petty. rise to potential. Unorthodox methods will achieve best results. Steer clear of long-range money commitment.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Don't be afraid of test or challenge. You will know the answers. Persons who seem indifferent will turn out to be friendly. Relationship that is explosive is also constructive in that you learn and grow.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Delay may occur due to illness of close associate. Don't panic. Condition is but temporary. Check various details, options. Aquarius, Leo, Scorpio persons could be in picture. Decision is likely to be made behind the scenes.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Older friend may test you, even make demands. Key is to analyze. Find reasons. Someone is trying to tell you something about valuables, money. Be open enough to listen and learn. But be open without being gullible.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your intentions may be fine but you may have to find new procedures. Family considerations move into spotlight. There are obligations which must be met. Know it and start planning accordingly. You are "reawakened."

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Avoid tendency to see only as you wish. Accent maturity, reality. Pisces, Virgo persons could be in picture. You gain insights. You get glimpse of what can be. Key now is to line up program. Do something about what you know.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You get involved. Member of opposite sex could be in picture. What you do, you do all the way. Know it and make no idle promises. Cancer, Capricorn individuals could figure prominently. Money situation untangles.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Involvement with Sagittarian could be on agenda. Accent is on settling up, resolving money question. You finish. You leave an old project and begin taking steps for future adventure. Get going. Momentum is on your side.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Friendly tip could result in profit. Take chance on your judgment. Give full play to creative urge. Leo might play important role. Remember health resolutions. Don't tempt fate. Means get more rest — and be aware of nutritional requirements.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You may be reaching too far, too fast. One you wish to impress needs affection more than flash. Message will be clarified. Trust hunch. You learn and teach. Cancer, Aquarius persons could play prominent roles.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are direct, passionate, impulsive and capable of organizing large groups. This has been one of your most significant months and September should have been a key month. You will be more secure in December. You draw to you persons born under Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio. You are an innovator and do best in business for yourself.

Copyright 1973, Gen. Fea. Corp.

Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS

1 Metal fastener
4 Boxing matches
9 Drink slowly
12 Native metal
13 Beginning
14 Macaw
15 Gossip
17 Golf club
19 Make lace
20 Keener
21 Tiller of boat
23 Concealed
24 Diplomacy
27 Compass point
28 Toll
29 Fond desires
30 Conjunction 31 Cover
32 Emerged victorious
33 Sun god
34 North African capital
36 Baker's product
37 Weight of India
38 Juncture
39 Temporary bed
40 Girl's nickname
41 Indian tent
43 Pale
44 Stopped temporarily
46 Analyzes, as sentence
49 Be mistaken
50 Ranted
52 Antlered animal
53 Command to horse
54 Jogs
55 Period of time

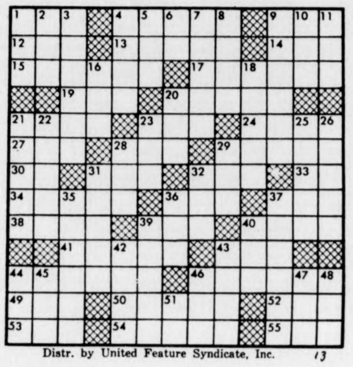
DOWN

1 Vessel
2 Man's name
3 Vex
4 Dart off
5 Number
6 Pronoun
7 Warm
8 Stupefy
9 Petty ruler
10 Anger
11 Equality
16 Scottish cap
18 Mountain range in Wyoming
20 Mend
21 Warms
22 Follow
23 Possessed
25 Goddess of vegetation
26 Former Russian rulers
28 Common contraction
29 Garden tool
31 Citrus fruit (pl.)
32 Intellect
35 Innate character
36 American essayist
37 Perceived through the senses
39 Evergreen tree
40 Tavern
42 Saucy
43 Small lumps
44 Wooden pin
45 Exist
46 Fondle
47 Guido's high note
48 The firmament
51 Proceed

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

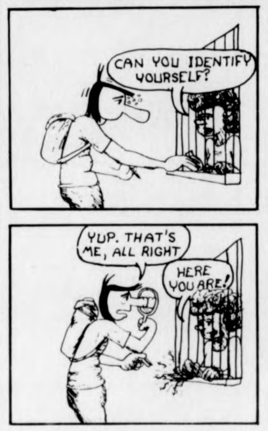
■	G	L	A	S	S	■	A	P	S	E	S	■
S	E	E	T	H	E	■	N	E	E	D	E	D
E	R	■	T	E	N	O	N	■	T	E	L	A
A	M	T	■	D	O	T	E	S	■	N	E	T
T	A	R	S	■	R	I	A	T	A	■	C	E
S	N	A	P	S	■	C	L	O	S	E	T	S
■	■	C	U	T	E	■	S	A	T	E	■	■
P	A	T	R	O	N	S	■	S	E	R	B	S
A	B	■	N	O	T	E	S	■	R	I	L	E
R	A	S	■	L	E	T	T	S	■	E	A	R
E	T	O	N	■	R	A	I	L	S	■	R	I
S	E	R	E	N	E	■	L	O	O	S	E	N
■	S	T	E	E	D	■	T	E	P	I	D	■

13



Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 13

Kompus Kapers ~by~ Kris Jackson



CAN YOU IDENTIFY YOURSELF?
?
CASH CHECKS
YUP. THAT'S ME, ALL RIGHT HERE YOU ARE!
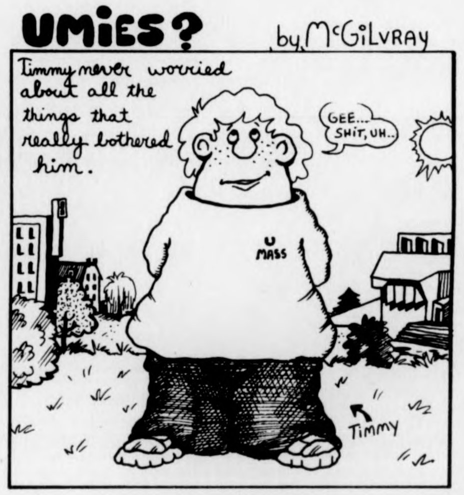
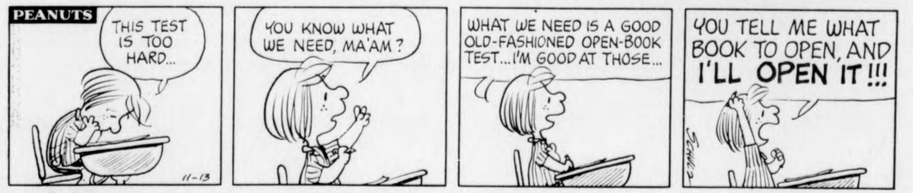
NO ONE WOULD PASS A BAD CHECK WHEN THEY WERE THAT STONED!
11/12

UMIES? by McGilvray

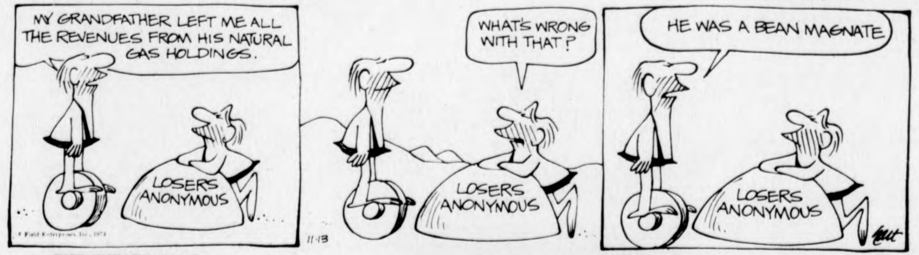


Timmy never worried about all the things that really bothered him.
GEE... SHIT, UH...
U MASS
Timmy



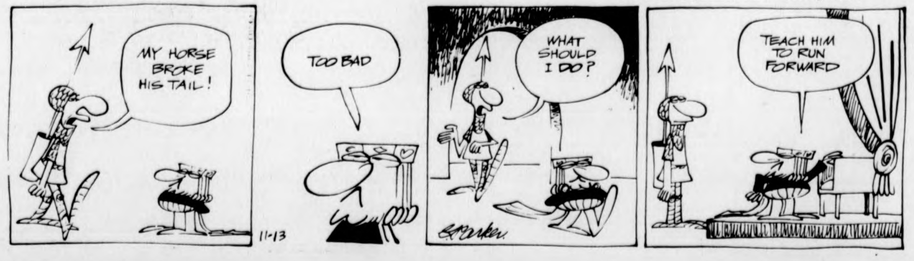
PEANUTS
THIS TEST IS TOO HARD...
11-13
YOU KNOW WHAT WE NEED, MA'AM?
WHAT WE NEED IS A GOOD OLD-FASHIONED OPEN-BOOK TEST... I'M GOOD AT THOSE...
YOU TELL ME WHAT BOOK TO OPEN, AND I'LL OPEN IT!!!

B. C. by Johnny hart



MY GRANDFATHER LEFT ME ALL THE REVENUES FROM HIS NATURAL GAS HOLDINGS.
LOSERS ANONYMOUS
WHAT'S WRONG WITH THAT?
LOSERS ANONYMOUS
HE WAS A BEAN MAGNATE
LOSERS ANONYMOUS
11-13

THE WIZARD OF ID by Brant parker and Johnny hart



MY HORSE BROKE HIS TAIL!
TOO BAD
11-13
WHAT SHOULD I DO?
TEACH HIM TO RUN FORWARD

Notices

AMATEUR RADIO:
Meeting tomorrow night in C.C. 909 at 6:30. Problems with Drane order, bring suggestions for new equipment.

ALL VETS!:
Hearings during next 4 weeks to revise and improve UMass counseling and career planning operations. Suggestions and criticisms must be heard if revisions are to fit your needs. Hearing schedules posted throughout campus.

ANY VETERAN:
Looking for part time work please contact John Petell at VA Office, 241 Whitmore.

ATTENTION ORCHARD HILLERS:
Anyone wishing to have an item placed on the OHAG agenda, the deadline is Wednesday evening.

BRIDGE PLAYERS:
Duplicate Bridge Play, C.C. 174 at 7. Come and let us know about changes.

COLLOQUIUM:
Tomorrow at 11:45. The Dept. of Comparative Literature is sponsoring a colloquium on Aspects of the Grotesque, 6th flr Lounge, Thompson Tower.

FREE:
In concert, Maggi Pierce, traditional Irish singer, tomorrow, 8 p.m. in Public Health Auditorium, Morrill Science Center. Reception and Ceilidh following — in the S.U. Colonial Lounge. All welcome.

HEYMAKERS:
Lessons tonight, C.C. 113, 8-10 p.m.

J.O.E.:
Volunteers, meeting tomorrow, 6:30 in C.C. 173.

N.E.S. TUTORING:
There will be no tutoring tonight at the North End Community Center.

SPECTRUM DEADLINE:
Is 11-17. Bring your fiction, poetry, artwork, non-fiction, and photography up to S.U. 407.

TCEA MAJORS:
Butterick Fashion Rep. needs your help and ideas. Come to meeting in Skinner 317, today at 4.

WMPIRG:
General meeting tonight at 7:30 in the Duke's Room, S.U. All interested students and faculty welcome.

FOUND:
Accidentally took Navy P. Coat from C.C. Thurs. nite. If it is yours call 545-2412 and ask for Steve in 224.

FOUND:
On Friday, 11-9 at Whitmore, a small black and brown puppy, part dachsund. Has collar with rabies vaccine tag no. 0328. Call 6-7464.

FOUND:
Money found between chapel and library Sun., 11-4. To claim and describe call 546-8533.

LOST:
Army Field Jacket in the Bluewall. Wish keys to be returned at Lost and Found or call Dana 549-0899.

LOST:
A tan cap was lost in the C.C. or the S.U. around 9 p.m., Friday. Please call Mark 549-4514.

LOST:
Black wire rimmed glasses (eye drop style) hard black case. Please call 546-6536 early morning or late at night. Thanks.

LOST:
Blue - orange lined snorkel jacket with gloves and glasses in pockets at Worcester, Sat. night. Please return to C.C. Lost and Found. Glasses needed badly.

Alpha Zeta Presents Agricultural Speaker

As a part of its meeting tonight the Fraternity of Alpha Zeta will be presenting Dean Denison of the Stockbridge School of Agriculture. He will be speaking on "A Look at the Future of Agriculture."

Alpha Zeta is the national agricultural honor fraternity of the College of Food and Natural Resources. The goals of the fraternity are service to the community and the promotion of agriculture.

In the future Alpha Zcta is planning to present several career symposiums of interest to majors in the College of Food and Natural Resources.

"Little Big Man"
with
DUSTIN HOFFMAN
Fri., NOV. 16 MAHAR AUD.
6:30 9:00 11:30

"Something for Everyone"
the concert committee
presents
Two nights of Entertainment with
JOHN MAYALL
appearing on Sunday, November 25 with special guest artist Bruce Springsteen appearing on Monday, November 26 with special guest artist Maria Muldaur
Boths shows: 8:00 p.m. At Curry Hicks Cage
Tickets: $3.50 Available at Student Union Lobby Counter
10:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m.

closed back clogs
"for guys & girls"
THE SHOE BIN
187 n. pleasant st. amherst

MDC CLASSIFIEDS

HELP WANTED

Collegian is looking for an Asst. Advertising Manager. Job involves supervising ad reps & building advt. revenue. Must be an underclassmen, with car, & a genuine interest in newspaper advt. Experience in marketing & graphics helpful but not essential. Will have to work hard for small pay but the rewards in experience will be invaluable. Person hired will be trained to become the advertising manager for next year. For details and information see Brent Wilkes at the Collegian Office. tf11-16

Poster Stuffers for Hampshire County area. Car is preferable but not necessary. Call Dave. For Friday and Sat. 256-0236.

Waitresses, Doormen apply in person Timothy's Spirits Company, 30 John St., Holyoke, 538-9700. tf11-13

Full time for Book & Record Store. Apply in person on Nov. 8, 9, 10 at Soundsope Mountain Farms Mall, Hadley Rt 9. tf11-12

Need a job to get you thru school? Time to study while working, we might have what you are looking for. Night Auditor at Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge, Hadley, Mass. Must be accurate with figures. Please apply in person. tf11-13

Projectionist: Wanted for local theatre complex. Must have Mass. Operator's License. Good pay and fringe benefits. Part-time jobs available. Call Jim Merek at 584-9151. tf11-15

SPEED TYPISTS
In Ware at Collegian Printer
8:30 p.m. to 1 a.m.
Call Charlotte
[illegible]

HELP WANTED

Unwed mother desires adoption of two children. One male and one female, both tiger angora. Will deliver if necessary. Call 253-9668. tf11-13

5 Coll. Canada ski trip — 4 days, 3 nites. Hotel, breakfast, dinner. Transportation Apres ski party, all for $85. Jan. 22-25. B. Baggins Travel, 256-0146. tf11-15

Find out what coming out is all about, see the play direct from Boston, Nov. 16 and 17, Worcester Dining Commons, 9:00 p.m. tf11-16

Futre CPA's learn how to prepare for the CPA Exam. Becker CPA Review Course. Call collect 617-536-1140. tf11-22

Decent male seeks sensuous female to get together. Write: Tom P.O. Box 144, Amherst. tf11-13

To Kathy and Casey — happy birthday(s), and best of luck always from all your old 28 Knowlton buddies. tf11-19

The arms race: A 1 credit minicourse. Physics 190D. No prereq. MWF 11:15. HAS 124. Nov. 12-Dec. 12. Call Prof. Guyer, 545-0933. For details. tf11-14

Friendly couple want to share babysitting load with another. Our kids are 22 and 7 months old. Let's cooperate. Call 584-2574. tf11-14

Want to be a judge? Apply in Room 420 Student Union ASAP! tf11-15

Winter Outdoor Living Skills and Whitewater Canoeing courses offered by JD Nature Lab. I live on campus and have info. 546-6131. tf11-24

5 Coll Canada Ski Trip, 4 days, 3 nites, hotel bkfst, din., transpo, apres ski party, all for $85. Jan. 22-25. B. Baggins Travel, 256-0146. tf11-26

PERSONAL

Get a date, meet new people, friends for fun or serious relation. Write Box 161, Hadley MA. 01035. tf11-16

Going home for Intercession? I'll take over your job while you're away and give it back when you return. Ed Major, Julie 617-541-3362. tf11-15

Coffee with 3 sugars — I miss you. Plain Tea. tf11-14

Ellen J. Happy Birthday, Ellen J. Happy Birthday, Ellen J. Happy Birthday, Ellen J. Happy Birthday, Love Alwy Paul. tf11-13

TRAVEL

Going by air? Let us handle your pre-flight, in-flight and post-flight arrangements at no cost to you. Call campus rep., 253-3162 evenings. tf12-12

TO SUBLET

1 bedroom apt. at Brandywine. 1 1/2 mi from UM on bus Rte., large rms. Central A/C. W/W carpeting. Jan. 1 - Aug. 31. Can renu. 549-3946. tf11-21

HELP WANTED

$300 - $500 per mo. Send $10 for your own amazingly profitable part time employment business. Test it with a money back guaranteed during the first 30 days. ACT FIRST: National Resume Service, P.O. Box 1445, Peoria, Illinois 61601. tf11-13

SERVICES

Attention Datsun owners. I perform all phases of major and minor maintenance and repairs on Datsun at less than ½ dealership price. I have over $3000 in equipment, 4 years automotive experience, 2 of which were at a Datsun Dealership, specializing in Datsun. Tele. 253-7456, Russell Baca. tf11-19

Photos — passports, visas, etc., 48 hour service! Sizes and number negotiable, $3.00 minimum! Call Steve at 546-5443. tf11-30

Research — thousands of topics, $2.75 per page. Send $1 for mail order catalog. Research assistance, inc. 11941 Wilshire Blvd., Suite 2, L.A., Calif. 90025. tf12-12

Experienced electronic and electrical repairs. Reasonable rates. Call 545-2308, Mark 115 or Bill 401. Keep trying. tf11-15

Get a load off your mind, truck for hire. Call Gary or Joyce, 256-6376. tf11-21

Part or full time clerical or research work for intersession, experienced, references, own transportation. Call Donna, 665-4137. tf11-13

Typing — dissertations, theses, term papers, etc. Fast, accurate, references, IBM Selectric, low rates. Call Tom 546-1165, pref. evenings. tf11-13

Central Area Counseling Center, B-2 Gorman, 5-0894 wants to help you find direction, self-confidence, etc. Info aplenty., come!! tf11-30

ENTERTAINMENT

Mark it on your calendar — INDIA NIGHT on Nov. 18, Sunday, 7:30 p.m., C.C. Aud. Enjoy classical, folk dances, music and a lot more, plus authentic Indian snacks after show. Adm. $1. Tickets at C.C. Concourse. For more information call Vijay Arora, Sec. I.A., 5-0612. Don't miss it! You will like it. tf11-16

Berkshire East Poster Contest. Prizes are: 1st prize - a 10-week season's pass at Berkshire; 2nd prize is a weekend pass; 3rd prize is a day pass. Rules are: size 18"x24", leave 4"x4" space in upper-left corner. Ski related design. Leave lots of room for event, date, place. Bring to Mahar, Nov. 28 at 8 p.m. Will be judged Dec. 1 at C.C. Aud. Snow dance at 9 p.m. tf11-17

Little Big Man is coming Fri. Nov. 16, Mahar 6:30, 9:00 & 11:30. tf11-14

Solid Gold memories as I spin your favorite disks for your dancing pleasure. Call Boogie Bob at 536-6075 today for info. tf11-15

Your kind of music played the way you like it. I produce record hops that you will truely enjoy. Call Steve the DJ at 467-2842. tf11-20

ROOMS FOR RENT

Rooms — by arrangement, free parking, no utilities, next to campus. Call at 253-9938 or see Duncan at 401 N. Pleasant. tf11-16

UMass-Freiburg: Good Program, Nice View

If during these blustery November days, you miss the bustle of a lively university town, you should look into the possiblility of spending the next academic year in Freiburg, Germany. Or you might spend next summer in the summer Freiburg Program. The Freiburg year program offers to students the opportunity to enroll as regular students of the University of Freiburg.

The fall semester in Freiburg starts about October 15 and ends February 15, while the spring term is somewhat shorter, lasting from mid April to early July. Life in Freiburg is largely clustered around the university, with its contingent of 12,000 students, of whom nearly one thousand are non-German.

The town offers many cultural diversions: frequent concerts, two repretory theaters, several museums and about a dozen cinemas, but it is probably the 'genius loci' that adds most to the charm of Freiburg. The town is nestled against the mountains of the Black Forest and within a few miles of the center, thanks to a cable car, one can be several thousand feet above sea level and enjoy a magnificent Alpine panorama. There is excellent skiing less than an hour's drive away--and rates are remarkably low.

German students are among the friendliest in Europe and there is very little anti-American feeling in this most Americanized of western countries. Living conditions are comfortable, public transportation is excellent and there are close to one hundred restaurants in town offering a wide choice of succulent menus.

Although the Freiburg Program is not restricted to students concentrating in German language and liturature, the University of Freiburg requires all foreign students to pass its language proficiency test. During the current spring semester the German Department will offer a three credit Freiburg Preparatory Course to enable students to gain more proficiency in German. The Freiburg Program begins next September with a several week orientation program which also stresses the German language. Courses offered during the year program include the social sciences, arts and humanities, including comparative liturature, political science, philosophy, history, music, English, economics, and German language and literature.

Scholarships are available to outstanding students, and Fulbright scholarships may be applied to participate in the Freiburg program. University of Massachusetts undergraduate students who receive financial aid may apply it towards their expenses in Freiburg.

The estimated $2,600 cost includes round-trip travel, room and board, tuition and fees. Not included are books, travel within Europe and miscellaneous fees. Applications and additional information are available from Mrs. Jean Shepard, International Programs Office, Whitmore Administration Building. For information on the summer program contact Professor Frank Hugus in the German Department, Herter Hall.

The Lighthouse
Featuring fresh cooked seafood at low prices. Thrill to selecting your own lobster in our pond, or take home fresh seafood.
Fish & Chips 99¢
ALSO TAKE OUT SERVICE
Rte. 116 Sunderland, on the Amherst town line. Tel. 549-6662.

Coin Labs

Students interested in taking COINS 101: PLEASE SIGN UP FOR 1 EVEN AND 1 ODD-NUMBERED LAB SECTION when you register. TWO LAB SECTIONS ARE PART OF THIS COURSE!

Mister Donut never knows when to quit.
(he's open 24 hrs. per day)
Mt. Farms Mall
Rt. 9
(Russell St.)
HADLEY
Mister Donut®

Television Tonight

5:00 ENSIGN O'TOOLE (18)
HOGAN'S HEROES "Information, Please." (22)
MISTERROGERS NEIGHBORHOOD (24) (57)
BEVERLY HILLBILLIES "The Ghost Of Clampett." (30)
GOMER PYLE "You Bet Your Won Ton." (40)
5:30 THE REAL McCOYS "Lost and Found. (18)
THE LUCY SHOW "Lucy and the Monkey." (22)
THE ELECTRIC COMPANY (24) (57)
HOGAN'S HEROES "The Battle Of Stalag 13." (30)
NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS (40)
5:55 WHAT'S HAPPENING UPDATE (3)
6:00 NEWS (3) (8) (22)
I SPY "The Spy Business." (18)
MAKING THINGS WORK (24)
PETTICOAT JUNCTION "Dear Minerva." (27)
TO TELL THE TRUTH Garry Moore, host (30)
WILD WILD WEST "Night Of the Dancing Death." (40)
ZOOM! (57)
6:30 NEWS (3) (22) (30)
ABC EVENING NEWS (8)
CAPTURE (27)
LOUIS LYONS: NEWS AND COMMENT (57)
7:00 UNTAMED WORLD "Bighorn Sheep" (3)
TRUTH OR CONSEQUENCES Bob Barker, host (8)
DICK VAN DYKE SHOW "The Talented Neighborhood." (18)
NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS (22) (30)
YOUR FUTURE IS NOW (24)
MOVIE "War Of the Planets." (27)
ABC EVENING NEWS (40)
THE REPORTERS (57)
7:00 OZZIE'S GIRLS "Harriet Leaves Home." (3)
LET'S MAKE A DEAL Monty Hall, host (30)
GREEN ACRES "Horse? What Horse." (18)
THE FOURTH ESTATE (24)
TREASURE HUNT Geoff Edwards, host (30)
DRAGNET (40)
THE OPEN DOOR (57)
8:00 MAUDE (3)
NEW TEMPERATURES RISING "Gonna Getcha." (8) (40)
CAN YOU TOP THIS? (18)
SNOOPY DIRECTS THE ICE FOLLIES (22) (30)
REDDICK (24) (57)
8:30 HAWAII FIVE—O "A Bullet for El Diablo." (3)
MOVIE "The Cowboys." (8) (40)
TOWARDS THE YEAR 2000 (18)
9:00 THE 700 CLUB (18)
THE BOB HOPE SPECIAL (22) (30)
BORIS KARLOFF PRESENTS THRILLER "Yours Truly, Jack the Ripper." (27)
9:30 HAWKINS "A Life For A Life." (3)

TONIGHT
OFF THE WALL at 7:20 p.m.
Marty Waters talks with Stan Rosenberg of the Arts Extension Office. You can call in questions and comments at 545-2876.
THE WOMAN'S SHOW at 8:00 p.m.
Tonights show features an interview with Dinah Vaprin, formerly of WBCN in Boston.
TOMORROW NIGHT
OFF THE HOOK at 7:20 p.m.
Another wide-open telephone forum hosted by Art Cohen.
GAY BREAK at 8:00 p.m.
Another evening of humor and pathos from your friends at the Student Homophile League. For people of every persuasion!
WMUA
STEREO 91.1 FM
FREE FORM/INFORMATIVE
RADIO

MDC CLASSIFIEDS

FOR SALE

S & L Camera Imports has new cameras, lenses & other photo equip. at slashed prices. Full warranty, all makes and models. Call Ken, 6-9723. tf11-30

Live Christmas trees, select and tag now, any size $6.31. L. Blizniak, 133 Bay Rd., Hadley. tf12-12

18 foot Tipi for sale — made by Homadic's Tipis. 14 oz. cover, 10 oz. canvas liner, door flap and poles, $150. Call Jon, 253-2413. tf11-13

Mag wheels — 4-14" mt. chrome wheels for G.M. cars, cost $100, sell for $40, 6-4538. tf11-15

Olin Mark II skis, brand new never been used, no binding holes, 1973 Model priced reasonably. Call Stan at 256-6902 evenings. tf11-13

Guitar Mossman 6 string: BRA2 Rosewood, Mahogneck, Ebony Board. Used 6 mo., retail $620 sell for $450, incl hardshell case. Call 369-4012. tf11-14

The Arms Race: A-1 credit Minicourse. Phyics 190D. No prereq. MWF 11:15, HAS 124, Nov. 12 - Dec. 12. Call Prof. Guyer, 545-0933 for details. tf11-14

Mobile home — 2 bedroom on nice lot, 10 miles, avail. now or 2nd semester, $2,600. Call 323-4428, except weekends. tf11-13

Snow tires — 2 used 7.35x14, studded, 4 ply nylon, "General winter cleat slp." — best offer over $20. Call 549-3865. tf11-13

For sale — alto saxophone, $135; cello, $300. 584-6279, ask for Tom. tf11-16

Ski equipment — Olympia, like new boots and rack, size 10, clip style carrier and poles. For information call 586-1368. tf11-14

1964 VW, good condition, $150. Ask for Tom, 549-1506 after 5 p.m. tf11-16

1967 Barracuda, smashed front end, 383 4-speed, Mallory distributor, new starter, motor, $225 takes it. Sandy, 584-2019. tf11-16

1966 Cutlass Supr p.s., p.b., very good condition. Call 367-2771. tf11-16

FOR SALE

Bus: 1956 white motor school bus, slightly remodeled, excellent condition, $250. Call 527-5737 aft. 5 p.m. tf11/20

Head skis 6' 8" with marker bindings, Ladomolite S10 boots, Scott poles 3'; need $ make me an offer. Call 253-5920 after 5. tf11-16

For sale — Good 10 speed bicycle. Want $90. Call 256-0368. Ask for Dave. tf11-15

Kenwood Receiver KR-77, mint condition 34 watts RMS per channel excellent tuner section. Call Rich 6-8981. Let it ring, must sell. tf11-14

Great Dane puppies for sale. A.K.C. Reg., males & females, 9 wks. old. Very reasonably priced. Call 584-1625. tf11-14

AUTO FOR SALE

Austin Healey, 3000, 1960, fully restored. Call 665-4182. tf11-14

1970 VW sunroof, excellent mechanical condition. Best offer, need to sell, license revoked. Call 549-0648, after five thirty. tf11-14

Dodge Coronet, 1966, 273, std. trans., good tires, new battery, starter, generator, exhaust, runs very well, and is dependable. Asking $375. Call 549-3669. tf11-15

1968 Chevelle Malibu, p.s., p.b., V-8 auto., excel. condition, selling for new car. Call Dan, 256-6863, leave number, keep trying. tf11-14

1964 Buick Skylark, good condition, $125. Paul Cole, 542-5607, Hampshire College. tf11-13

1965 Mustang, good running condition, sticker, best offer. Call 546-1017 or 545-0329, Ashvin. tf11-13

For sale — 1970 Chevelle, 4 speed 302, Hurst shifter, reasonable. Phone 546-4554. tf11-14

1966 VW Beetle, low mileage, very good condition. Call 549-6943. tf11-14

AUTO FOR SALE

69 Toyota Corona, rebuilt engine, many new pts. Muffler, tires etc. Good running cond. Body is fair to good $750. Call Jon 253-2805. tf11-16

68 Dart conv., 6 cyl. new innards, fine machine, needs love. $450 or 256-0597. tf11-15

1948 Packard, good running condition, straight - 8 with overdrive, interior good outside fair. Good tires, new battery. 546-8688. tf11-15

WANTED

Garage to store small car for winter months or info about one. Call 549-1263, Ed Cook. tf11-14

N.E.S. needs any kind of scrap material (fabric) for kids' collages. Bring your scraps to 426A Student Union before Thurs., Nov. 15. tf11-14

Medical technologist or equivalent for part time position. Hours 2:30 p.m. to 11:00 p.m. weekends. Call 413-774-3111, ext. 29 or 38. tf11-16

LOST

I lost my drivers license. Please bring to the Collegian, to Pedro Hernandez. tf11-15

Black and white cat in the vicinity of Brittany Manor. Please call 253-5922 if found. tf11-13

ROOMMATE WANTED

2 male Eng. grad students want mature hip m/f to share 3 bedroom apt. in Amherst, old house, $67 plus. 253-5275. tf11-15

Need mature female roommate for Dec. 1 or Jan. 1. Own room. Cliffside on bus route, mainly furnished. $85. per mo. includes utilities. 665-4355. tf11-16

Wanted: Female to apartment hunt with for Jan. 1. Call Linda after 6 p.m. 253-7752. tf11-16

Female to share 1 bdrm. Presidential apt. beginning Jan. Semi-furnished, $87.50 - mon., incl. utilities. Call 549-4463. tf11-16

2 b.r. apt. to share Private room, no deposit $100 mo. all util incl. Call 665-2858. Avail Dec. 1 - lease to May. tf11-16

MOTORCYCLES FOR SALE

1972 CB350 Honda, 3,000 miles, cosmetic flaws, mint mechanical condition. 549-4473, keep trying, $600 firm. tf11-13

750 Honda, 3 inch over tubes, custom paint, many extras, must be seen, $1,500 or best offer. Phone 586-3952 evenings. tf11-16

FREE

We have to give away attractive female cat that is pregnant. Very gentle, tri-colored, needs warm home and food. Call 549-6394. tf11-13

Star needs a friend. Give your playful kitten a playmate. Star is a white & orange Persian. 3 mos. old, affectionate. Julie 617-544-3362. tf11/14

INSTRUCTION

Physics for non-science majors: 100-World Beyond Our Senses; 100A-100 In Spanish; 115-Physics of Music; 117-Nuclear Energy & Its Social Challenge; 118-Quantum Worlds; 122-Concepts of Physics, 2; 123-Problems in Physics; 130-Physics for Elem. Ed. Majors; 386-Special Problems. Details — see course description guide or inquire in Hasbrouck 110. tf11-16

Upper division Physics courses for Biological and Physical Science majors: 301-Coacepts of Modern Physics; 319-Electronic Instrumentation; 320-Radiation Physics & Nuclear Medicine; 386-Special Problems; 391-Seminar on Molecular Bio-Physics. For details, see course description guide or inquire in Hasbrouck 110. tf11-16

APARTMENT FOR RENT

1 bedroom in 4 bedroom apt., spring semester only, no lease required, $80 per month, utilities paid. Call 253-7850. I may even let you use my waterbed! tf11-13

FOR RENT

Apt for one — Avlbl. imm. lg brm, sm kit, full bath, storage, pkg. 220 N. Pleasant, 2 nd fl of lg house. All utl. incl. $145. 549-3736, 253-8742. tf11-14

Garage space, central Amherst. Safe and inexpensive. D.H. Jones 549-3700. tf11-29

RIDER WANTED

From Boston (Brighton) to Amherst. Leave every Monday at 7:30 p.m. Call 545-0135 or 617-782-9148. tf11-14

Raiders Accused Of "Dirty Tricks"

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Steelers said Monday they had asked the National Football League office to look into possible "dirty tricks" played on them in Sunday's 17-9 win over the Oakland Raiders.

Steeler Vice President Dan Rooney outlined the following allegations made by his coaches and players:

—That there were unexplained lags in the official clock, including one which helped Oakland kick a field goal on the last play of the first half.

—That Raider offensive linemen had a greasy substance smeared on the tops of their shoulders, making them difficult to grab.

—That a partially deflated ball was handed to Steeler center Ray Mansfield before a field goal attempt, though Mansfield refused to use it.

—That an obscenity was printed in ink on the strings of another ball handed Mansfield.

"I talked this morning with Art McNally, supervisor of officials, and I informed him of the situation," Rooney said.

"We're not saying this as a matter for forfeit, because we won. All we're really doing is trying to improve our game."

Steeler Coach Chuck Noll was particularly miffed by the allegedly slow clock, which was the responsibility of the league timekeeper at the game.

"There were 12 seconds left in the second quarter when Raider quarterback Daryle Lamonica threw a pass to wide receiver Mike Siani and he was tackled in the middle of the field at the 16-yard line," Noll said.

"We thought time had run out, but the clock was stopped on a supposed time-out," he added. "We didn't see anybody on the field call it, and if it was called from the bench it was illegal."

Steeler defensive tackle Joe Greene complained to officials during the game about the alleged greasy jerseys.

CFL Runs Out Of Balls

TORONTO (AP) - When Johnny Rodgers joyously threw the football into the crowd Sunday after scoring a touchdown, he probably didn't think his action would bring a premature end to an Eastern Football Conference semifinal playoff game.

With 13 seconds left in the overtime, Rodgers caught a pass from George Mira in the Toronto Argonauts' end zone, giving the Montreal Alouettes a 32-10 lead.

The clubs lined up for the conversion attempt, but officials discovered there was no ball to kick. The one Rodgers threw into the stands was the last one available.

So the game had to be called.

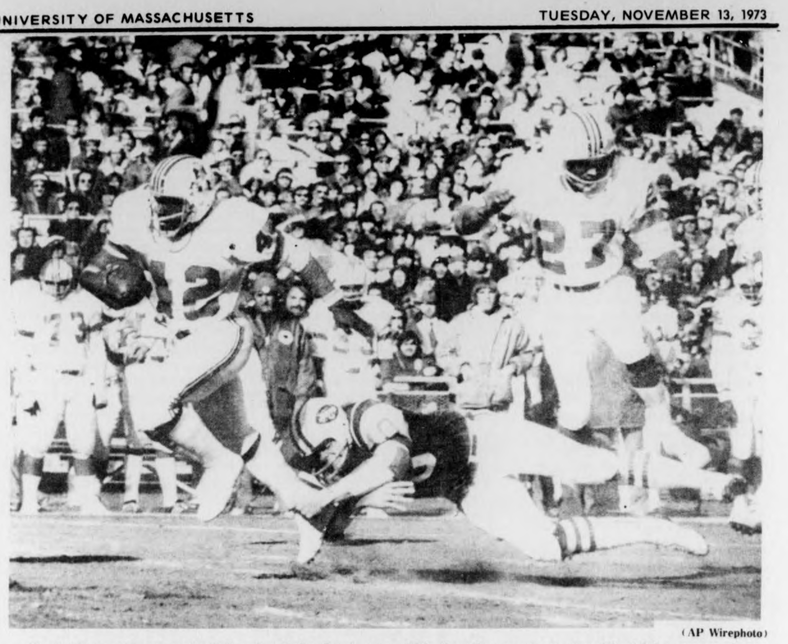
Greg Fulton of the Canadian Football League said six new balls are supplied for each game, and in the Montreal-Toronto game they'd all been used.

Aaron To Wed

ATLANTA (AP) - Baseball star Hank Aaron and his fiancee, Billye Williams, were to be married today in Jamaica in a private ceremony.

Aaron, 39, who needs only one home run to tie the legendary Babe Ruth's career record of 714 homers, flew with Mrs. Williams, 33, an Atlanta television personality, to Jamaica over the weekend.

Aaron, who is divorced, has two sons and two daughters. Mrs. Williams is the widow of the Rev. Samuel Williams, a well-known Atlanta minister and civil rights leader. They have one daughter, 6-year-old Deidre.



(AP Wirephoto)

Mack Herron blurs past a fallen Jet defender in one of his dazzling punt returns. The kick returns of the miniature Patriot back was one of the few bright spots of the day as the Pats were lambasted by their New York foes.

Can't Anybody Here Play This Game?

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Why does Swarthmore College keep playing football?

The team has won only one game in two years - and that was a 2-0 forfeit victory over Haverford, which had dropped the sport. And this year, seven opponents have racked up 313 points to just 39 for Swarthmore.

Swarthmore has only 1,200 students, half of them men. This year it fielded a team with only 30 players, but that was up from 23 last year. There are no scholarships, no special privileges for the players and not much glory in a team that sets records only in fumbles lost.

But Swarthmore plays football for the fun, not the glory, and even in defeat is able to salvage some joy.

There is the problem of practices. Football players are expected to attend all their classes and must sandwich their playing time between the end of classes and dinner.

"It's always close to 5 p.m. by the time we get started practicing and we have to be done by 6:30 because the kids have to get to the cafeteria by 7 before the food line closes," Coach Millard Robinson says.

Turnout at practice is also a major question, according to Robinson. "Last Tuesday we had our best practice. It was the first time all year we have had two left halfbacks at the same practice.

Some of the teams Swarthmore plays-mostly other small colleges-seem to take special delight in heaping humiliation on the team. "We were playing at Johns Hopkins," recalls Robinson, "and they were leading something like 50-7 and with 20 seconds left in the game they took timeout to stop the clock so they could score another touchdown. Then they tried an onside kick with about 10 seconds left."

What is surprising is the support the team receives from the school and many alumni.

"In the middle of the season," the coach says, "we even had two more students come out for the team. "Maybe it sounds corny, but this is what football should be about."

How The Pros Stand

National Football League

Eastern Division

	W	L	T	Pct.
Dallas	6	3	0	.667
Washington	6	3	0	.667
Philadelphia	3	5	1	.389
St. Louis	3	5	1	.389
N.Y. Giants	1	7	1	.167

Central Division

	W	L	T	Pct.
Minnesota	9	0	0	1.000
Green Bay	3	4	2	.444
Detroit	3	5	1	.389
Chicago	3	5	0	.375

Western Division

	W	L	T	Pct.
Los Angeles	7	2	0	.778
Atlanta	6	3	0	.667
New Orleans	4	5	0	.444
San Francisco	3	6	0	.333

AMERICAN CONFERENCE

Eastern Division

	W	L	T	Pct.
Miami	8	1	0	.889
Buffalo	5	4	0	.556
N.Y. Jets	3	6	0	.333
Baltimore	2	7	0	.222
New England	2	7	0	.222

Central Division

	W	L	T	Pct.
Pittsburgh	8	1	0	.889
Cleveland	5	3	1	.611
Cincinnati	5	4	0	.556
Houston	1	8	0	.111

Western Division

	W	L	T	Pct.
Oakland	5	3	1	.611
Kansas City	4	3	1	.563
Denver	4	3	2	.556
San Diego	1	7	1	.167

NBA

EASTERN CONFERENCE

Atlantic Division

	W	L	Pct	GB
BOSTON	10	3	.769	—
New York	8	7	.533	3
Buffalo	6	10	.375	5½
Phila.	4	9	.308	6

Central Division

	W	L	Pct	GB
Atlanta	9	6	.600	—
Capital	7	6	.538	1
Cleveland	4	12	.333	5
Houston	4	11	.267	5

WESTERN CONFERENCE

Midwest Division

	W	L	Pct	GB
Milwaukee	14	1	.933	—
Chicago	12	2	.857	1½
Detroit	9	6	.600	5
KC-Omaha	5	10	.333	9

Pacific Division

	W	L	Pct	GB
Los Ang.	9	6	.600	—
Portland	7	5	.588	½
Golden St.	7	5	.583	½
Seattle	5	11	.313	4½
Phoenix	2	12	.143	6½

NHL

East Division

	W	L	T	Pts	GF	GA
BOSTON	10	4	1	21	68	45
Montreal	8	4	2	18	41	32
Buffalo	8	5	1	17	47	46
Toronto	6	5	4	16	52	38
Rangers	5	6	3	13	45	37
Vancouver	5	6	1	11	32	36
Islanders	2	5	7	11	31	42
Detroit	4	9	1	9	43	63

West Division

	W	L	T	Pts	GF	GA
Phila.	10	5	0	20	46	21
Atlanta	7	3	4	18	40	32
*Chicago	4	4	5	13	33	23
St. Louis	5	5	3	13	34	32
*Los Ang.	5	7	2	12	37	46
Pittsburgh	4	6	3	11	32	54
Minnesota	2	6	6	10	36	47
California	4	9	1	9	34	56

WHA

East Division

	W	L	T	Pts	GF	GA
NEW ENG.	9	6	1	19	61	47
Quebec	9	8	1	19	67	59
Chicago	8	4	1	17	51	41
Cleveland	7	4	2	16	50	44
Toronto	5	10	3	13	58	67
New York	5	10	2	12	38	71

West Division

	W	L	T	Pts	GF	GA
Edmonton	12	1	0	24	64	34
Minnesota	8	5	1	17	54	40
Winnipeg	6	7	2	14	51	52
Houston	6	4	1	13	47	32
Los Angeles	5	11	0	10	42	61
Vancouver	3	13	0	6	41	76

ABA

EASTERN DIVISION

Kentucky	12	2	.857	—
Carolina	12	5	.706	1½
Memphis	5	9	.357	7
Virginia	4	9	.308	7½
New York	4	10	.286	8

WESTERN DIVISION

Utah	8	6	.571	—
Indiana	7	6	.538	½
Denver	7	6	.538	½
San Antonio	8	10	.444	2
San Diego	5	9	.357	3

TEN PIN BOWLING
at Boyden Gym
50° per string
MONDAY - FRIDAY
4:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m.
(except during league play)

FOR LIGHTNING FAST DELIVERY ON ANY OF OUR DELICIOUS PIZZAS OR SUBS CALL THE HUNGRY-U
PIZZA PATROL
256-6350

Ruggers Take Pair From Tough MIT Squads

By WADIE BAHOU

The UMass Rugby team closed out its home season on a winning note this past Saturday as they beat MIT, by scores of 7-0 and 10-4, in what may have been the two roughest games of the year. Both squads played an excellent quality of rugby, relying mostly on their defensive prowess, however UMass displayed a better and more-disciplined offense.

The "A" team, in registering its second consecutive shutout played brilliantly. The backfield, with some fine passes, moved the ball upfield very easily on numerous occasions, while the forwards played their typically aggressive gamewhich also featured some fine running. Fly-half Brian Kane got them going with a penalty kick to give the ruggers a three point lead after a scoreless first half, and All-New England scrum-half Larry Tebo iced the win with a try in the same half.

The "B" team, after surviving a threat by MIT very early in the game, engineered a drive which propelled them into a 3-0 lead, on a peanlty kick by Al Solish. They padded their lead to seven points as scrum-half Paul Micheli scored his first try of the season on a fine ten-yard "Keeper" up the middle. The most impressive part of this 7-0 half-time lead, however, was that UMass was forced to play one man short for the entire half due to an injury to their fly-half. The slack was taken up by the forwards, who played a very fine game, not only moving the ball upfield, but, more importantly, keeping MIT from marching toward the UMass end. Al Solish connected for another penalty kick late in the second half to account for the UMass scoring.

So, the UMass Rugby team, in closing out its home season with two impressive wins, upped its record to 11-8, and winds up its season next Saturday with two games against Boston College. Game time at Boston will be 1 p.m.

(Staff Photo-Steve Ruggles)

Gary Mika is about to be tackled by a Catamount defender in this photo flashback to the Wind Bowl of just over a week ago. The Minutemen close out their Yankee Conference schedule against New Hampshire, this Saturday.

Artificial Turf Decried

By TOM SEPPY
Associated Press Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Brodie of the San Francisco 49ers said Monday artificial turf gets too hot. Brig Owens of the Washington Redskins said it causes too many injuries.

In fact, leaders of the National Football League Players Association say most of the pro players don't like it.

The players' union held a one-day conference Monday in order, according to NFLPA President Bill Curry of the Houston Oilers, to put the focus on the dangers of synthetic turf. The association had apeakers who gave talks on alternatives to artificial grass.

The basic complaint voiced by the players was that the hardness and the heat increases the probability of injury. "It's like playing on a concrete yard," said Keating.

Brodie said Roman Gabriel, when with Los Angeles, fell down without being hit and knocked himself out. Owens said the same thing happened to Leroy Kelly of the Cleveland Browns.

Brodie also said he played in Miami against the Dolphins in the opening game of the season and suffered heat prostration during the first half.

"I put a towel on my head and didn't play the second half," he said. "A coach talked to me in the third quarter. He was doing a dance on the turf because it was so hot and asked me if I could go in for a few plays. I had to laugh."

Brodie said at least six 49ers suffered from heat prostration because the temperature hit 120 degrees on the field.

"They had to have people standing up on the plane because six of us had to lay down on the way home," he said. "I'd hate to see that repeated, because we might lose a couple of guys."

Curry said the conference was not held as a self-serving mechanism for the some 1,300 pro players who are members of the association, but "for the more than a million kids who play on the stuff in colleges and high schools.

"It's not a pleasant thing to go through," he said, pointing to his broken leg. "I certainly wouldn't want a 13-year-old kid to go through what I had to go through."

John Bock

The Shape Of Things To Come

All basketball fans, hockey addicts, and pro sports buffs - stop reading right here because you'll not run across anything relating to the aforementioned categories of sports in this column....or any of my future columns.

This column is going to deal almost exclusively with collegiate athletics that have been relegated to the position of "minor" sports. For the winter season that means wrestling, gymnastics (men's and women's), and swimming. The fact is that all sports were once minor. When Naismith nailed that peach basket to a board there weren't five thousand paying spectators waiting to see who would take the first shot.

There is and has been a lot of commotion about what makes a sport "minor." Generally some kind of direct relationship has been made between income and the importance a sport occupies on a college campus...In New England the sports that pack them in and make money are basketball and hockey. Go south to the Penn State University campus and gymnastics reigns as the number one winter sport, with wrestling a close second, and basketball third. For years they would hold the basketball games after the wrestling matches so they could count on some of the spectators sticking around to cheer basketball.

In the Big 8 the number one winter sport is wrestling while the Big 10 sees swimming a good draw behind basketball and wrestling. That is one thing that I hope to be able to do this winter season - put some of the "minor" sports at UMass into perspective, first, in the East and, second, in the nation....I hope to be able to quantify what makes some kids better wrestlers or gymnasts than others, and why some really good talent goes to waste while some average kids become really good college athletes.

About a week ago Bill Ballou ran a column about how the University intends to sell athletics. He said that Umass basketball and hockey are going to be given the hard sell, not because they have to fill the cage or Orr Rink but because they are the easiest to sell. This is nice, but it isn't fair. If you are going to sell UMass athletics you sell the program as a package - NIT Basketball, New England Wrestling Champs, National Women's Gymnastic Champs, et. al. If you do you are going to find that you will alleviate some of the ignorance that surrounds some of the sports and that might bring attendance up to the point where they could become financial contributors to the UMass Athletic program.

Along with treating the sport like it is part of the program, it would be justifiable to treat the participants like first class athletes and respect the coaches for the job they do and the time they spend doing it. Everyone knows that Jack Leaman was Captain of the Boston University basketball team, but now many people are aware that Homer Barr was three time All American wrestler at Penn State, or that Gymnastics coach Tom Dunn was the NCAA Parallel Bars Champion for Penn State in 1969?

Also the Varsity M Club luncheons feature basketball and hockey several times during the season, but wrestling and gymnastics twice at most and women's gymnastics not at all. Even though Varsity 'M' is not attached to the University Athletic Department they could help establish a move to recognize the minor sports by including them on the program for more than a token appearance.

I would like to hear comments on my column and would be more than appreciative if readers responded with some questions about the sport or schedule. These sports are "big time" on other campuses and at UMass, with their rising success, they could be the shape of things to come.

Last Gasp Awards

By MILLER C. WIAZCOGY

Since the UMass football season ended three weeks ago (let's face it, if you blow the Beanpot there's not much to look forward to), I think it's appropriate that the first annual Last Gasp Awards be presented.

THE DICK CUMMINGS STEEL HELMET. This award is given in honor of the player who most often used his head to advance UMass football. This year it goes to Peil Pennington. Anyone who gets hurt as often as Peil deserves some extra protection.

THE VIC FUSIA LEAD PLAYBOOK. Fusia became a UMass legend during the Landry era for his exciting and innovative playmaking. Fusia always outdid himself against the B.C. Eagles when he repeatedly instructed his team to punt on third and long yardage. This year the award goes to Coach MacPherson who ordered Bob Wolfe to run 30-yards laterally to kill the half-time clock in the Harvard game. Inspite of this inspiring strategy, the UMass team rolled over even more in the second half, giving the Crimson a 24-7 win.

THE PAUL METALLO MERCURY SLIPPERS. Goes to Bob Wolfe, whose 30-yard lateral run with five Harvard linemen close behind was the fastest thing in the UMass backfield.

THE CONNIE COED CHEERLEADER AWARD. Given to the fastest girl in the UMass locker room--the one who keeps morale up. No recipient this year.

THE SILVER SIEVE. This year six sieves are awarded to the entire UMass offensive line which had more leaks than twenty-two winoes.

THE DUCK, CHARLIE, HERE HE COMES AGAIN AWARD. Goes to Earl Brown. Earl's aggressive play in the UMass secondary was a pleasure to watch this year.

THE TWENTY-THREE-SECOND STOP WATCH. Four watches go to the home game officials who constantly penalize UMass for delay of game. What goes on in those huddles, guys?

THE PAT KEENAN RUSTY RAZOR BLADE. Goes to the UMass player who incites the opposition by underhanded tactics. This year's recipient is Andy Dutkanicz, who almost brought 20,000 Cambridge residents onto the field by refusing a helping hand by a Harvard player after his punt was blocked.

THE EDGAR CAYCE NEVER-SAY-DIE CLIP-ON MEDALLION. Awarded annually to the Collegian sports writer who gets lost in his own fantasy world. Marty Kelley is the sole recipient for dreaming of the Boardwalk Bowl after losses to Holy Cross and Harvard.

THE WHICH-WAY-DID-HE-GO WOODEN ROADMAP. Goes to the UMass team that let Molly McGee run 35-yards for a Rhode Island winning touchdown.

THE STEVE SCHUBERT EXTRA STEP AWARD. A concrete step left over from the construction of the Campus Center will be placed on Tim Berra's front lawn. This is something Tim never had on his deep patterns.

Miller Wiazcogy is a Collegian Sports commentator.

New England Soccer Pairings Are Announced

Bridgeport drew the number one seed, and UConn grabbed the second spot in the NCAA New England soccer tournament, in pairings which were announced yesterday by chairman of the selection committee and UConn head coach Joe Morrone.

Bridgeport (10-3-2) will meet Yale (5-3-3) in New Haven on Monday and UConn (11-3-2) will host Brown (7-3-1) on Tuesday in Division One play.

The pairings for the Division Two England championships were announced last week. Top-seeded Springfield plays Westfield State and second seeded Babson will be tested by Hartford College.

Correction

In yesterday's edition of the Collegian it was reported that there were five seniors on the UMass soccer team. Actually, there are seven. The two not acknowledged are Brian McKenney and Charlie Palano, both offensive linemen. The reporter regrets the omission.

Beckert Sent To Padres

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO (AP) — Second baseman Glenn Beckert, whose string of four consecutive All-Star seasons was snapped by injury this year, was traded by the Chicago Cubs Monday to the San Diego Padres for outfielder Jerry Morales.

The swap of Beckert, 33, a nine-season Cub fixture, for Morales, 24, marked the second trade of a long-time Cub star in 17 days.

On Oct. 26, the Cubs dealt star pitcher Ferguson Jenkins, a 20-game winner for six straight seasons until this year, to the Texas Rangers for young fielders Bill Madlock and Vic Harris.

Beckert underwent surgery Oct. 31 for removal of a bone spur on his left heel, which confined him to a pinch-hitting role most of the final two months of the 1973 season, when he batted .255 in 114 games.

Morales, also a right-handed hitter, batted .281 in 122 games with the Padres last season after hitting .239 in 1972, his first full season with San Diego.

Beckert was limited to pinch-hitting the remainder of the season because of chronic trouble with his left heel and ankle.

Beckert's peak season was 1971, when he batted a career high of .342.

Notices

BASKETBALL - All candidates for the women's basketball team should report to the North Physical Education Building gym at 4:00 today.

SKI TEAM — There will be a meeting for all candidates for the UMass ski team on Thursday at 7 p.m. in room 305 Holdsworth for the purpose of organizing dryland training.

SOCCER — There will be a meeting for all varsity soccer players Wednesday at 4:00 for the purpose of electing captains for next year's team. The number of the room where the meeting will be held will be posted on the bulletin board in the locker room of Boyden.

For the who, what, when where & how of
5 College Registration
Call 256-8316
10 - 4 Nov. 12 - 16

Mister Donut never knows when to quit.
(he's open 24 hrs. per day)
Mt. Farms Mall
Rt. 9
(Russell St.)
HADLEY
Mister Donut®

Harriers Finish Third In East

(Staff Photo-Joe Martins)

A wave of close to 200 runners line up at the starting block for the IC4A championship meet. UMass finished third among the best teams in the East. The Minutemen were the first New England runners to finish, beating such Eastern powers as Villanova, Navy, and Penn.

Running in his first IC4A meet, John McGrail was able to stand up to the test, placing 50th and helping UMass toward a shot at the NCAA title as a result of a third place team finish.

Runners Complete Best Showing In UMass History

By SCOTT HAYES

It was 11:00 Sunday morning. An optimistic UMass Cross Country team was preparing to leave for New York and the IC4A meet to be held the following day in Van Cortland Park.

It was 9:00 Monday night. An elated UMass Cross Country team filed into the Curry Hicks cage, having captured the third place in the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America Cross Country Championships, better known as the IC4A's.

In the midst of Yonkers, with all its dented cars and corner delicatessens, was Van Cortlandt Park named after the famous Van Cortlandt family, whose burial plot lies on the hilly part of the course which is known by runners as "Cemetery Hill." "Cemetery Hill" is a testing part of the course, coming right after the four mile mark, forcing the runners to call on all their resources. The runners have to battle both the terrain and the top runners from the East. Against the top schools in the East, UMass came through finishing behind only Manhattan and Penn State. Manhattan, defending IC4A champions, once again ran away with team honors with a meet low of 87 points. Penn State took second with 155 points, then UMass, an "unknown" school among such well knowns as Notre Dame, Penn State, Army, and Villanova captured third. The Minutemen, led by Randy Thomas, nipped Pennsylvania for the third spot, 164-165. Navy wound up fifth with 191 points.

The race itself was simply "beautiful". A field of about 200 runners lined up across a huge field and moved out as a mass of colors at the start of the race. Timers, fans, reporters, and teammates ran off to chosen spots on the course to cheer for their teams. Standing atop of "Cemetery Hill", the immense field of runners in the distance looked like a marching band, running in unison. Hundreds of legs moved the mass toward the place where about a hundred followers had gone, the one mile mark. As the runners went by, the ground actually shook and a feeling of excitement filled the air as screams and shouts went up for the harriers.

As the runners entered the woods, observers started back to the finish line, but many ventured up to or remained on "Cemetery Hill", taking a chance that they might not reach the finish line in time to watch the finish.

What a finish it was, as thousands of screaming fans stood along the last 400 yards of the course. A roar went up when John Hartnett of Villanova was sighted, and continued through the first group of finishers. Hartnett set a new course record, breaking the old course record by 3.4 seconds. Hartnett's 24:00 was good for individual honors. David Merrick of Penn took second, Peter Squires and Matthew Centrowitz, both of Manhattan, took third and fourth. Charlie Maguire of Penn State, captured fifth, Denis Fikes of Penn ran sixth, and Ronald Vander Krats of Princeton finished seventh. Nick Martin of Pitt, Kim Nutter of West Virginia, and David Reinhart of American rounded out the top ten.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian SPORTS

UMass surprised everyone except Coach O'Brien and UMass Cross Country followers. The officials didn't even have UMass listed as a possible top finisher on the unofficial blackboard until one of the team members yelled, "Hey, what about Umass?" Coach O'Brien knew that the team could finish as high as second, and the third place finish was a "pleasant surprise," if any. It was the highest finish ever for a UMass team, the previous best, having been in 1962 when a team with Ken O'Brien as a runner took seventh.

In taking third, UMass' Randy Thomas finished 15th, overcoming two Northeastern runners toward the end of the race. Thomas held 16th at "Cemetery Hill" and picked up one more position in the last mile. Thomas was timed in 24:50.

Bill Gillin finished 20th, the second UMass runner across the finish line. Gillin was able to hold on to 20th from the four mile mark, to finish with a time of 24:57.

Tom Maguire also ran a great race, capturing 27th in 25:08. Maguire, who was 32nd after four miles, passed five runners in the home stretch, picking up five points for UMass.

John McGrail, running in his first IC4A meet, took 50th. Paul Segersten, running in his last IC4A meet captured 59th. McGrail completed the course in 25:31, while Segersten ran it in 25:40. Tom Wilson was the sixth UMass harrier across the line, taking 119th. Wilson was timed in 26:42. Phil Broughton wound up in 172nd, running the race in 27:35.

UMass finished third out of twenty-eight teams, and belted Harvard in being the first New Engalnd team to finish. In fact, Providence also beat Harvard, having a good day with 251 points, while the Ivy Leaguers totaled 345 points.

Marty Kelley

The Pulse Of Sport

Out of Consciousness — We live in a world that will never be at peace, is constantly changing, and which for us will never end. We travel in circles, spirals, patterns, and developed ideologies. A troubled time has no immediate answers, just swift concern. But amidst the chaos and the extreme pestilence of the day, sport continues. It's an unassuming reality......The eternal heartbeat.

Sport will outlive your lifetime and mine. It's a classic. She doesn't have the literary expertise of a Milton, the gall of a Socrates, the excellence of a Picasso. But sport is a viable microcosm of American society. She will continue undaunted against an energy crisis, inflation, any Nixon Administration, an Arab argument, and Charley "O". Sport is a reality all her own in her created world. She has an uncanny ability to blot out the paralleled stage of life which is all to real. We can look out the porthole of sport and forget at times that ugly world...Even at the University of Massachusetts.

It's all too easy to hide in sport. To forget. At 10:05 p.m. Saturday night William Markussen of 205 Belmont St., Belmont was pronounced dead at the bottom of an innocent but suspicious elevator shaft at Kennedy tower. Life here continued. The pulse of sport went on......Markussen's didn't.

Somehow out of the ugliness of that grotesque turn of events we still thought of the IC4A's, a New Hampshire soccer game, another Giants' loss, a harmless Senate football conclave. The pulse of sport went on.

Sport and society are two worlds interlocked in one. Of course at times they clash. They walk the same paths but on different sides of the street. At a UMass football game you can forget your rent, forget about graduation, forget about a job, forget about a death at Kennedy. Sport is entertainment. It will never cure a societal ill. When you really think about it, a Pennington touchdown is pretty meaningless......

I'm not saying that the inevitable sports parade should stop and mourn. I'm saying be aware. Don't cover up in sport. Enjoy sport for what it is Know it has a place in our society. A vast and underterminable one. But look around you. Be aware. There's more to life than beating Rutgers. Got to be......

Maybe incidents such as those at Kennedy Tower should not be connected with sport. But sport is the society is the university. Examine as you will. I stopped and thought.

When Bobby Kennedy was slain, the morning after Howard Cosell could not "Speak of Sports". I sympathize. But the nation didn't. Thousands of hate letters followed. People were not interested with a Kennedy commentary by Cosell. They wanted their ball score. Just what kind of an emotional lock does sport have our society in? Please realize that sport is society. Sport has to be flexible. It has to mourn. I believe this to be true. But that pulse will go on......won't it.

We've set aside identification for ourselves in sport. We're everything from a loyal loser at the track, Rugby fanatics, authors of pompous "Why I hate Sports Columns", or simply joggers. Since most of us read we all come face to a face confrontation with sport at one time. It touches everyone. To some it's an epidemic forcing the afflicted to lapse with real contact. But there's a world outside the 20 yardline......Just gotta' be......

You can find a lot of comfort in sport. I do. But don't bury yourself there. Remember, there's more to your body than simply admiration, more to your mind than X's and O's, more to your total being than Saturday at the Stadia, more to your culture than "Ball Four"......-There's Kennedy tower.

The pulse of sport continues......

Inside Sports

- Ruggers Take Two From MIT
- Last Gasp Awards
- Shape Of Things To Come
- Steelers Charge Fraud

Former Student Dies In Apparent Suicide Jump

By SHERM BOYSON AND JOANN DOMINICK

A former UMass student was killed yesterday in an apparent suicide leap from the 19th floor of George Washington dormitory yesterday afternoon.

Edward T. Waddington, 19, of 94 Harlow Drive, Amherst was pronounced dead at 4:35 p.m. by county medical examiner Dr. R. Sheldon Clapp.

Dedtective Lieutenant George W. Powers of the District Attorney's office termed Waddington's death "a suicide". He said Waddington was found crying on the balcony of the 19th floor lounge Monday night by a Washington head of residence. At that time, the youth was contemplating suicide, but was talked out of it by the head of residence, according to Powers.

Shortly after 4:30 p.m. yesterday, Waddington jumped from the 19th floor balcony to the pavement on the northeast side of the Southwest dorm. Two students walking across the mall checked his pulse and covered him with a jacket.

Campus police arrived in minutes. They drove four cars from the Fearing Street side of Washington into the pass between that tower and Cance dorm. The parked vehicles blocked the street exist and flooded the SW Mall with their headlights.

Police roped off the area around the body while patrolmen and janitors pushed back the crowd of about 500 onlookers. Investigators photographed the area around Washington, the mall and the balcony of the 19th floor.

Accounts from two eyewitnesses led police to determine Waddington leaped from the 19th floor. Only two other floors of the 22-story tower have balconies adjacent to the lounge--the 5th and 12th floors. Witnesses said he jumped from one of the upper middle floors, thus eliminating the 5th and 12th floors as possibilities.

Investigators blocked the entrance to the lounge photographed and fingerprinted the room. They also examined the large locked window leading to the balcony. The window is kept locked on the inside but can be easily opened according to SW residents.

The lounge barricade was removed after 45 minutes and floor residents were questioned about Waddington. They were given a description of him, asked if they had seen him, or had knowledge about his state of mind that afternoon.

Waddington is listed with Student Information as "withdrawn from UMass as of December of 1972", said an operator. He planned to enroll in Greenfield Community College later this year, said Powers.

The body was taken to Douglass Funeral Home in Amherst last night and will be transferred today to Cooley Dickinson Hospital in Northampton for an autopsy.

New England's Largest College Daily

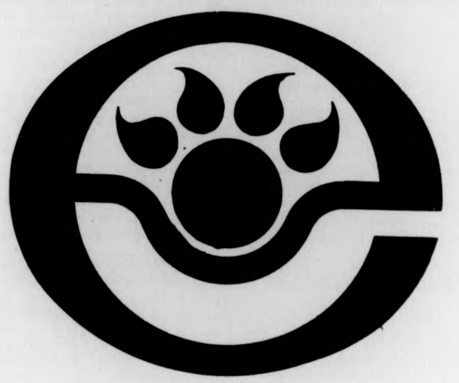
The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Recyclable

VOLUME CI, ISSUE 48 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 14, 1973

Weather

Who will love Alladin Sane?



The New Energy Symbol

Gordon Gillette is a student intern working as a member of The Energy Conservation Committee.

Energy Conservation Comm. Formed On Campus

By KAREN GORDON

"The American energy crisis, unlike most national issues, is not transitory. It is not going to be limited to 'this winter' or 'this year' or even 'this administration'. Instead it clearly is the greatest issue facing the American people during the next decade." -- rogers C. B. Morton, Secretary of the Interior

The energy crisis is everywhere and UMass is no exception. A new committee has been set up to look into the excess use of electricity, steam and water on campus. The Energy Conservation Committee was set up in response to a request by UMass President, Robert Wood. It consists of students, faculty and administrative personnel. The committee is looking into various practical solutions to the energy problem.

Conservation of steam (heat) is a major concern of the committee. All of the 60,000 pounds of steam used by the campus are generated at the physical plant. Although coal is the major fuel used, the physical plant does use an average of 10,968 gallons of oil per day. The daily cost of this oil alone has gone up over $400. Further compounding the problem, is the new Tilson Farms plant which is presently under construction. It is scheduled to be completed sometime in April and will run completely on oil. The increase in cost of this changeover as well as the problem of obtaining the oil could be phenomenal.

On the other hand, the original pollution problem of the present plant still remains serious. With the opening of the new library it could become worse. It is possible, if the wind blows in that direction, for the pollution from the power plant to be drawn in through the library's ventilation system.

Cutting down on electricity is another major problem. The power plant generates only 15 per cent of the electricity required by the University. The rest is purchased from Western Massachusetts Electric Company. Cutting down on electricity would mean dollar savings as well as conservation of our resources. The Committee stresses that dollar saving in electricity in the dorms will eventually be reflected in dorm rents.

Ken Dean, Chairman of the Committee said that, "The greatest potential for energy conservation on campus is with the individual turning off lights and electrical equipment."

Water is another serious problem. The Amherst sewerage treatment plant doesn't completely cleanse the sewerage. From 7:00 to 9:00 in the morning and 4:00 to 6:00 in the afternoon it overflows, dumping raw sewarage in the Hadley Pond, which eventually flows to the Connecticut River.

The Committee has already moved to save steam this winter. The thermostats in the dormitories, classrooms and office buildings are being lowered to 68 degrees, a reduction of 4 or 5 degrees. This is an enormous endeavor, requiring two men working full time for three months to set and calibrate the 7000 thermostats on campus.

Another major problem is open windows. If a window is left open in a room with an open door or a window in a hallway is left open it can cause overheating of an entire floor.

Other plans for steam conservation include reduction of heat in large auditoriums during the early morning hours, shutting down of the fans in the campus center garage during the early morning, and possible closing down of some dorms during the semester break. In addition all state vehicles based on campus have been ordered to stay under a 50 MPH speed limit.

The Committee has found that most of the modern buildings on campus have too many lights. However, because of the way the lights are set up, the only way to reduce this overlighting is to actually remove the lightbulbs. The committee is planning to conduct a lighting survey looking at the necessity and feasability of this plan.

Some of the things that individuals can do to help conserve energy are:

1. Shut off lights when not using a room. Check when leaving dorm that all lights and equipment are turned off especially in bathrooms and lounges.
2. Don't leave windows open near thermostats. DON'T TAMPER WITH THERMOSTATS. This could cause extensive damage and loss of heat.
3. Don't waste water. Cut down especially during the hours of 7:00-9:00 a.m. and 4:00-6:00 p.m. Use cold water instead of hot whenever possible.
4. Ride the bus instead of driving a car. When driving stay below 50 MPH.
5. Think about energy conservation.

The Energy Conservation Committee welcomes any suggestions. They may be sent c-o the Committee to 341B Whitmore Administration Building, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Mass.

United Farm Workers

Task Force, Local Action Announced At Conference

By BILL BROWN

An announcement of the creation of a task force to work for "justice for farm workers", along with a discussion of a pre-holiday step up on community action highlighted yesterday's United Farm Workers' press conference held at the AFL—CIO headquarters in Springfield. Charles March, U.F.W. coordinator for the Holyoke-Springfield area, along with several members of the newly formed task force, outlined their proposals before a sparse turnout of area news people and a few movement supporters.

The task force is made up of many varied individuals from the Western Mass area, including Herman Greenberg, President of the Pioneer Valley AFL-CIO council - Barbara Garvey and Vincent DiMonaco of the Springfield City Council, Frances Crow of the American Friends Service Committee, and Frank Dorman of Clergy and Laity Concerned.

"We feel compelled to continue our boycott of non-union lettuce and grapes. And bring growers to the bargaining table to negotiate directly with the workers." March said. He explained that negotiations with the Teamsters on a U.F.W. return to the California fields, have fallen through and Ceasar Chevez will return to the picket lines.

In Western Mass., according to union estimates, close to 75 per cent of the major chain stores had been committed to some sort of support for the farm workers. However many of these stores are reneging their promise and stocking non-UFW items for pre-holiday sales. The Big Y and Food Mart stores were, up to this week, selling non UFW lettuce, but were stocking grapes. They were joined last week by the First National Stores which have stocked some non UFW lettuce and, in some stores have non UFW grapes.

Listing the local operations to begin Thursday, March said, "We'll be picketing all the stores that have gone back on their committments, and that includes the Big Y, Food Mart, and the Finast stores in the area, for the next six business days. We hope to have those committments renewed by then. Already another chain, the Stop & Shop, has promised to have their non-union grapes out of their stores by today (Tuesday)."

Susan Garvey, press relations director for the UFW local, and a UMass student, was asked about the activities this week in the five-college area. "We already have firm support from four of the area schools, and we're working to get that same sort of backing from Smith College.

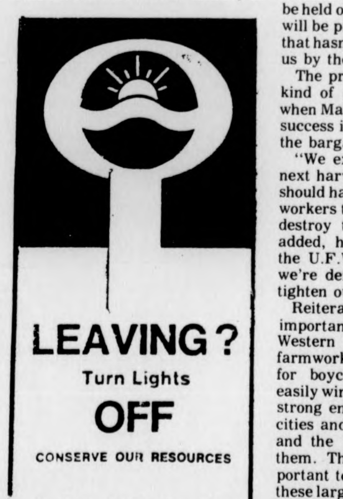
Many volunteers from the colleges will be on the picket lines for the next week, but more can always be used."

"We've planned a farmworkers celebration for next Wednesday, to be held outside one of the stores we will be picketing for the week; one that hasn't made a committment to us by then," she added.

The press conference took on a kind of good news-bad news air when March talked about hopes for success in bringing the growers to the bargaining table.

"We expect sure results by the next harvest season. The growers should have enough respect for the workers to leave off their efforts to destroy the union," he said. He added, however, that "currently the U.F.W. is almost broke, and we're definitely going to have to tighten our belts."

Reiterating his feeling of the importance of the UFW efforts in Western Mass, March said, "The farmworkers depend on the East for boycott support, and could easily win this fight if the boycott is strong enough in just eight major cities and market areas, and this and the Boston area are one of them. That is why it is so important to get firm promises from these large chains now and work to continue to educate the people of the still unrelieved problems of the migrant laborers."



A New Decal For Your Lightswitch.

The BDIC Program

Flexibility In Education

By MICHAEL ALLAIN

The BDIC department, now in its second year as a full-fledged academic major, is showing more and more students how to go through UMass on their own terms.

Stanley Moss, an associate professor of psychology and the new director of the Bachelors Degree with Individual Concentration program, recently discussed BDIC as an academic alternative for students unable to meet their needs in existing programs.

"There is a tremendous amount of flexibility available to students, although many are not aware of it," Moss said in a 90 minute interview last Wednesday. "With BDIC, we hope to make students more aware of the vast potential of the academic environment."

Moss says he is hoping that BDIC will encourage more interaction between departments and also, by necessity, give departments an opportunity to examine themselves.

"Many existing departments tend to be extremely parochial," Moss explained. "I'm hoping that with BDIC we can open the doors and spur cross talk between departments and make them truly interdisciplinary.

"This will also involve self evaluation by the vrious departments. As more students refuse to take the departments as they are, these departments will be forced to look at themselves."

See Related Editorial

On Page 12

BDIC was approved for a two year trial period in May, 1970, and in the spring of 1972 the Board of Trustees gave it a permanent endorsement.

Moss, in his first semester as the program's director, succeeds Arthur Kinney who is presently on sabbatical in California. Also on the five person Supervisory Committee with Moss are Professor Grace Rollason of the Zoology Dept., Professor William Rosenau of Plant and Soil Sciences, Professor Jonathon Quick of the English Dept., and Professor Grace Craig of the Human Development and Education Depts.

"The present committee gives us one of the best cross-sections we can get of the whole university," says Moss.

The BDIC program has been attacked in the past. One student called it a "haven or major dodgers", while an unidentified faculty member once told Moss that all students going to BDIC want to rip-off the system."

Moss denies this. He emphasizes that acceptance into BDIC requires "legitimate" proof from the students that existing programs are not suitable for their academic needs.

"It is true that many students are not running toward BDIC but away from other majors," Moss says. "But we don't want students who are unsure about their programs, and such students aren't accepted into BDIC."

Students are carefully screened to determine the legitimacy of their requests, Moss says.

"We welcome students who have questions about the program, and we have three academic councilors to answer any questions students might have", he said.

If the student is found to be interested in a course of study available in any other department or departments per se, he or she can then draw up a deatailed, specific, and coherent program proposal, with the help of a faculty sponsor and possibly BDIC files, if there are similar programs on record.

This proposal is then subject to approval by members of the Supervisory Committee, following an interview of both the student and faculty sponsor.

"The student really must show a certain integrity to follow a legitimate academic pursuit before we allow him in the program," said Moss, "because if we let down our controls and opened up the floodgates, BDIC would become meaningless.

"We must maintain the quality of the program," he added.

The BDIC major is not free of requirements, either. BDIC students must fulfill all university core requirements, successfully complete 120 class hours, and maintain a 2.0 cumulative average.

In addition to these, the BDIC major must write two reports each semester — one at midterm, and another at the semester's end.

These provide the opportunity for the students to "sit down and evaluate their programs periodically, which I think is critical," says Moss.

"We also require a final summary near the end of the student's final semester in the program," says Moss, "that is a reflection of their experiences in the program. In this summary we find out if we have provided an atmosphere for growth."

Moss says that most BDIC majors, which currently number about 375, "are career oriented rather than graduate school oriented."

Both types of students are accomodated by the program. Most, if not all students seeking careersufter graduation serve internships as part of their curriculum, and those with graduate school ambitions incorporate the necessary required courses into their programs.

An offshoot of the BDIC program has been the birth of new majors. Several popular BDIC majors such as legal studies, women's studies, and computor studies have enough people to exist as independent departments.

"If students and faculty members involved in such programs want to take the initiative to implement them as departments, the university has shown it is responsive," says Moss.

A department of legal studies has already began operating, and it appears that a computor science department will be instituted soon, he said.

Perhaps BDIC's biggest problem is a lack of faculy sponsors, Moss says.

"Presently there are not enough to go around," says the tall, bearded Moss. "We have about 275 to 300 sponsors, but we don't want each faculty member to sponsor more than one or two students, since it's very time consuming", he said.

Moss says he feels that the university's emphasis on research and publication by faculty members is unfortunate for BDIC, since many potential sponsors can't — or don't — find time to sponsor a student.

"It's a shame, too, because many professors find BDIC the most exciting and rewarding experience to be had with undergraduates," Moss said.

Moss said he would like to believe that BDIC is the "wave of the future", but presently he hopes that the program can continue to make students aware of the many alternatives available to them at UMass.

"We are encouraging students to sit down and talk with their teachers, to get a slant on academic options more responsive to their needs," he says.

"I'd like to see students take full advantage of all the programs offered at the university."

3 Mass Colleges Allow Students To Sit In On Faculty Bargaining

How does one involve students in collective bargaining between colleges and their faculties?

That has been a major question raised by the growth of faculty unionism. Many students fear they will be left out of more and more campus decisions if those decisions are made at the bargaining table, where only faculty members and administrators are present, instead of through the usual governance systems, where students won a greatly increased role in the 1960's.

A partial answer to the question may be found at three Massachusetts state colleges, where students have been sitting at the bargaining table with faculty members and administrators for several months. The three colleges—Fitchburg State, Salem State, and North Adams State—are the only institutions in the country where students have participated in collective bargaining.

Students were permitted to sit in on some bargaining sessions at the Brooklyn Center of Long Island University, but only as observers.

The Massachusetts students have been full participants in the negotiations with one big exception: they cannot prevent the other two parties from reaching an agreement.

Students Have 'Swing Vote'

Despite that lack of veto over the contract, the students have exercised considerable power during the negotiations. Both the faculty union and the board of trustees have sought student support for their positions, giving the students an often-powerful "swing vote" at the table.

"Each side would present its views and then look to us for support," says Jim Sheehan, student-body president at Salem State and head of the student bargaining team there. "That was a role we enjoyed."

Their presence at the bargaining table "gives students a chance to act in a judge-like fasion," says Arnold M. Schneider of the Massachusetts Teacher Association, the union that represents the faculties of the three campuses.

'Ultimate Power of Disruption'

Eduardo Robreno of the M.T.A., which is an affiliate of the National Education Association, says students have that power because of their influence on the trustees and their "ultimate power of disruption."

That attitude toward the students is surprising, since the Massachusetts state colleges can hardly be considered major centers of student activism. The Massachusetts experience suggests that students on more activist campuses might have even more bargaining power, since they could realistically threaten protests and strikes.

Both Sides Sought Students

No disruption was required to get the students to the bargaining table in Massachusetts because both the union and the board of trustees wanted them there. Both sides thought a student presence would improve their negotiating positions and the students used that desire to win an independent role at the table.

The student participation began last January at Fitchburg State, where collective-bargaining sessions had been going on for several months.

Students at Fitchburg had petitioned the faculty the preceding spring to join the negotiating sessions, but they were turned down. Then Donald Walters, deputy director of the state-college system and chief bargainer for the trustees, announced that the board was willing to have students at the table.

"The board has historically screwed the students," Mr. Robreno says. "We felt the board was trying to turn that around and use the students against the faculty."

So the teachers' association decided to get the students on their side by asking them to join the faculty bargaining team. The students accepted.

When Mr. Walters walked into the next bargaining session at Fitchburg, he found students sitting around the table, He said he was willing to have them there but not as part of the faculty team. He asked the students to leave so that he and Mr. Robreno, as the chief negotiator for the faculty, could talk about it.

Mr. Robreno replied, no, the students can stay because they're part of the faculty team.

Full Participation Wanted

At that point, Alice Seagull, the Fitchburg student-body president, said, no, the students weren't part of the faculty team. They wanted an independent place at the table.

Mr. Robreno again offered them the right to membership on the faculty bargaining team.

Mr. Walters suggested that the students sit in on the bargaining sessions without participating. After each session, he said, both sides would meet with the students in a kind of seminar where they could get student reaction to what was discussed.

Ms. Seagull rejected both offers. She said the students wanted full, independent participation in the bargaining, including a veto over the contract.

Mr. Walters agreed to that, except for the veto.

"At that point," he says, "Ed was mousetrapped. He'd made so much out of bringing them in that he couldn't very well refuse."

Other Campuses Added

Soon after that, students were also included in the bargaining sessions already under way at Salem State. When bargaining began at North Adams last spring, students were included there, too.

The students have been most concerned about governance and evaluation of faculty members. On other issues that don't concern them as much, such as faculty grievance procedures or fringe benefits, they sit back and whisper among themselves while the other two sides work it out.

The students have won a good deal at the bargaining table. They have gained a voting role in departmental meetings at both after 9 p.m.

(Continued on P. 11)

"MICH NIGHT" TONIGHT

Michelob Goblet 40¢

DON'T MISS

at

DON'T MISS

THE CHEQUERS

"FREE" Juke Box 9 p.m. until 1 a.m.

hot hor d'oeuvres after 11:00 p.m.

SW OK'S Humanity House Funding

With over fifty MacKimmie supporters, Gary Hartley, Steven Ryan and Patty Murphy came armed to combat a hostile Southwest Assembly. their request-$1,700 to cover the costs of two 3-credit courses which would be offered as part of the MacKimmie Humanity House Inter-session Program.

To the surprise of the petitioners, the Assembly passed the motion with very little discussion, and no debate.

MacKimmie held a similar program last January for the four weeks. Five, three-credit courses and five one-credit colloquia were offered.

The subject of these classes, attended by 100 students last year, dealt with the priorities of SW combating racism and sexism. According to MacKimmie, "Each course was encouraged to find ways to do things outside the class together and emphasis was placed on the closeness of the community."

Both Hartley and Ryan said this year's program will be similar to last year's. But finances have been harder to get.

One course is paid for by John Hunt, director of SW with the permission of Dean Woodbury. Another course is funded by the Center for Racial Understanding, and the SW Women's Center and

(Continued on P. 3)

Humanity House Receives Southwest Funding

(Continued from P. 2)

the MacKimmie Academic Committee have indicated support for other courses.

University faculty, either professors or graduate students, will teach these courses. Students enrolling in the program will have to pay a fee, primarily to go towards social functions. Students eligible for the program are any SW resident.

Ray Muise, treasurer and chairperson of the Budget Committee, said he did not anticipate any opposition to the bill. The Budget Committee had approved it 9-0-0.

But, Patty Murphy did anticipate trouble and said, "I wasn't sure where it would come from." She said there were possible personal conflicts between her committee and the Assembly and they might stand in the way. She was glad to see that they did not.

Patterson Dorm also had a motion asking for money for intersession courses that they plan on giving. This was tabled until an ad hoc committee reviewed it. But, according to Larry Sinewitz, both a representative in the Assembly and a resident of Patterson, he "doesn't see how the Assembly can't pass it."

Brought up as special business, Muise presented a motion which would use $2,290 of the money originally allocated to the Broadside (now defunct), to pay the deficit in the Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs account. The remainder of the Broadside money, $580, would go back into the SW Assembly treasury.

It was then requested that $493.06 would be appropriated to the Southwest Arts Center. Both motions were passed.

The final two motions passed involved the appropriation of $112.50 to send 15 residents of SW to the SWAP Conference in December and the changing of committee titles.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

The office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN is on the second floor of the Student Union on the campus of the University of Massachusetts, zip code 01002. Telephones: 545-2550 (news); 545-0344 (sports); 545-0731 (business).

Second class postage is paid in Amherst and additional mailing in Ware, Mass. 01082. THE DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes Monday through Friday during the academic year, except during vacation, exam periods or holidays. Accepted for mailing under the authority of an act of March 8, 1879; as amended by an act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $6.00 per semester of $10.00 per year.

The University of Massachusetts Student Government Association is offering the following items for your bid:

(3) Ultrablitz meteor SPGH strobes

(5) Minolta Sr1s 35mm cameras w-55mm fl. 7 lens

(1) Soligor 180mm f3.5 preset lens for Minolta

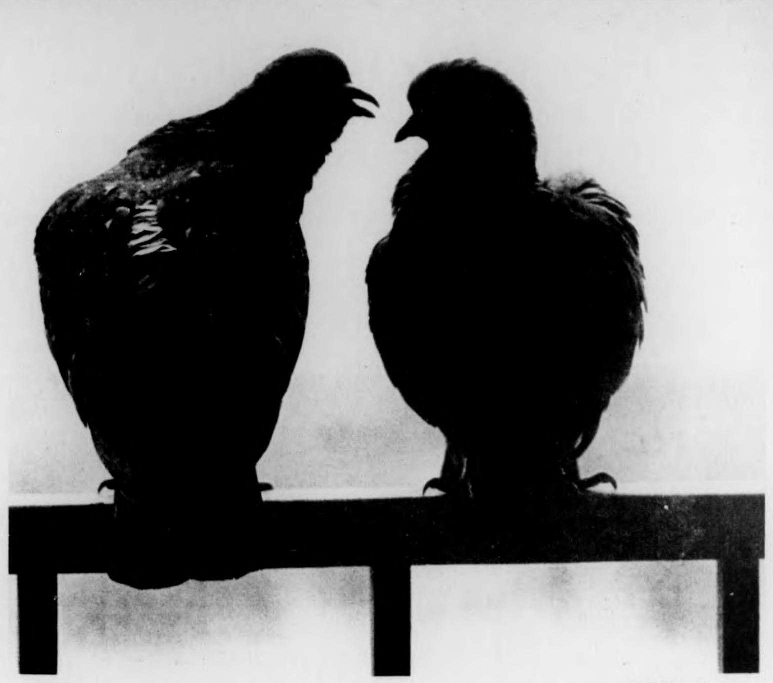
(1) Pentax H1a 35mm camera w-clip-on meter & 55mm fl.8 lens

(1) Pentax H1a 35mm camera w-clip-on meter & 55 mm f2.0 lens (needs repair)

(1) Omega Printing Densitometer model 7485

The above items may be inspected on Nov. 14 & 16 from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. in room 402 Student Union. Your written sealed bids should be in the RSO office no later than 3 p.m. Nov. 21, 1973.

The Right is reserved to reject any or all bids.



Staff Photo-David Less

...and then the first bird turned to the other and asked: "How tall is this library anyway?"

Ski Club Stresses Reorganization

By ROBERTA MARTONE

Reorganization is the key word for the UMass Ski Club this year, according to its president, Harry Charych.

In previous years, Charych said, the Ski Club stressed mostly five day trips, causing the club to become almost a "travel bureau". Currently, the Ski Club is focusing on one-night activities that are less expensive for the members.

Charych said, "The purpose of the Ski Club is, first, to provide an opportunity for people with a common interest to get to know each other, in a large university situation. The club also cuts the cost of skiing and provides free Peter Pan bus transportation for its members."

The club's many activities include day trips to Vermont at major ski areas such as Killington and Pico Peak in Vermont and weekly night skiing at Berkshire East, Charlemont, Mass. Guest speakers, ski movies, dances, and ski races for club members are also sponsored by the club.

A yearly event is the used ski sale sponsored by the club, on Dec. 4 and 5. This year, there will be $150,000 worth of used merchandise, said Charych.

Other activities for the coming season include an eight day trip to Innsbruch, Austria, and possible trips to Canada or Sugarbush. These trips will be sponsored during intersession.

According to Charych, membership in the club runs anywhere from 200 to 600 persons in a given year. "Even though the group is large, we try to run the meetings informally. We are always open to new suggestions," Charych said.

There are weekly Monday night meetings during the ski season, which usually include a ski movie or a guest speaker.

Funds for the club do not come from an outside source. Membership costs $5 per person for the year. The lift rate is reduced to $3 and there is a 15 percent discount on ski equipment at the Ski Inn, Three Rivers, or the Berkshire East Ski Shop.

This semester the Ski Club is offering a one-credit course in ski instruction beginning Nov. 19 and continuing through Dec. 16. It will be taught by Hans Auer, the Ski School Director of Berkshire East, and a graduate of the Austrian Ski Academy. The course will entail three 2 1-2 hour lectures and two full days on the slopes, said Charych. The fee will be $10 for ski club members and $15 for non-members. There is a possibility that those taking the course will be eligible for employment at Berkshire East.

SKI SPAIN

Earn 2 credits during intersession

Call 5-2801

The un-dormitories.

Great off-campus living—indoors and out—at either of two modern apartment complexes, only minutes away by car or bike from Amherst College, downtown Amherst or UMass. Now accepting applications for September.

Brittany Manor
AMHERST

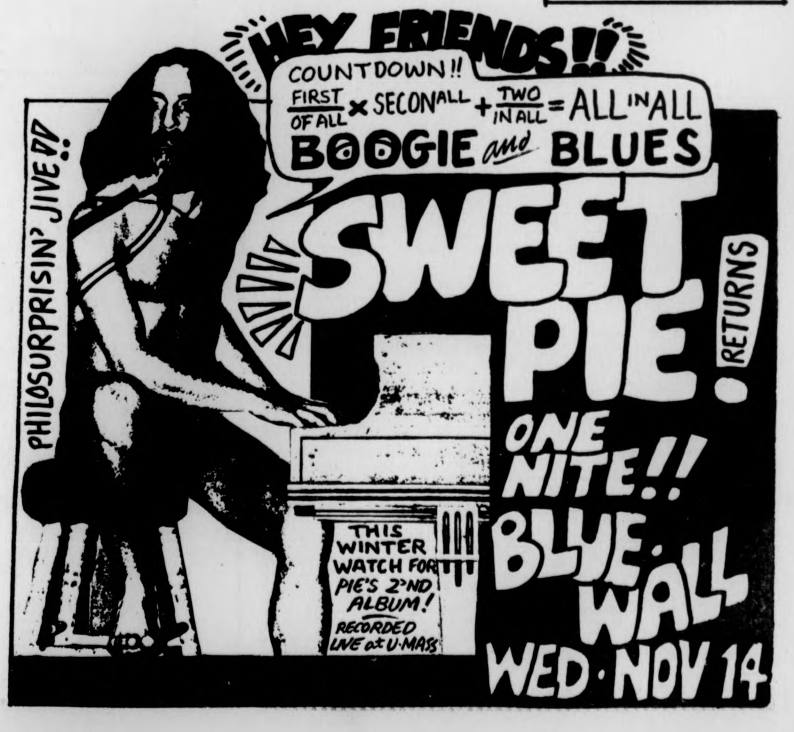
- courtesy bus to UMass and town
- 1, 2, 3 bedrm apts.
- heat & air conditioning
- wall-to-wall carpeting
- applianced kitchens
- master TV antenna
- laundry facilities
- parking, cars & bikes
- 2 swimming pools with sundecks
- 2 pro tennis courts
- lawns for softball, football, badminton

RENT: $200/MONTH
(utilities included)
Directions: East Dudly Rd.
oppos. Grist Mill off Rte. 116

Mount Sugarloaf
SUNDERLAND

- 2-bedrm apts.
- heat & air conditioning
- roomy closets, storage
- wall-to-wall carpeting
- master TV antenna
- modern kitchens
- self-cleaning ovens
- electric ranges
- stainless-steel sinks
- dishwashers/disposals
- 2-door refrigerators
- laundry facilities
- swimming pool

No Lease Required
RENT: FROM $185
CALL 413-256-8534
Directions: On Route 47.



HEY FRIENDS!!
COUNTDOWN!!
FIRST OF ALL × SECONALL + TWO IN ALL = ALL IN ALL
BOOGIE and BLUES
PHILOSURPRISIN' JIVE!!
SWEET PIE!
RETURNS
ONE NITE!!
BLUE WALL
WED · NOV 14
THIS WINTER WATCH FOR PIE'S 2ND ALBUM!
RECORDED LIVE at U·MASS

In The Nation And The World

U.S.-China Meetings; Forever Friendship

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

PEKING (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger assured Chinese leaders Tuesday that friendship with China is permanent American policy no matter what the political tides in Washington.

Kissinger's toast at a dinner for Premier Chou En-lai promised that "the normalization of our relationship will proceed continuously."

The Secretary of State then left with Chou to complete work on a communique to be issued Wednesday after he leaves for Japan. It is expected to call for stronger cultural and other ties between the United States and China in the spirit of the Shanghai communique signed by President Nixon in February 1972.

"No matter what happens in the United States in the future, friendship with the People's Republic of China is one of the constant factors of American foreign policy," he said.

Asked whether Kissinger was referring to the Nixon administration's Watergate scandals, a high-ranking U.S. official told American newsmen that Kissinger was not suggesting to the Chinese that the administration is in trouble at home.

This official, who declined use of his name, said Kissinger only meant to say that the U.S. policy of broader contacts with China has the support of the Democratic and Republican parties.

AP Wirephoto

Chairman Mao Tsetung met Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, United States Secretary of State and Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs, at Chungnanhai.

Israeli, UN Forces Clash

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israel refused to relinquish its checkpoints on the Cairo-Suez highway Tuesday and Premier Golda Meir declared she would not pull Israeli forces back to the Oct. 22 cease-fire lines as demanded by Egypt.

The commander of U.N. peacekeeping forces, Finnish Maj. Gen. Ensio Siilasvuo, flew to Tel Aviv after a visit to a disputed checkpoint on the highway to Suez.

A U.N. spokesman said Israelis had a fist fight Monday with U.N. peacekeepers trying to take over the checkpoint. The U.N. post was later permitted to remain, but an Israeli control point continued in operation nearby.

High Israeli officials said the Israeli checkpoints would be turned over to the United Nations only simultaneously with a prisoner exchange.

Mrs. Meir, in a policy address to parliament, declined to pull Israeli troops back to their positions of Oct. 22, when a cease-fire was first called. Instead she proposed that Israeli and Egyptian troops withdraw to the 1967 Suez Canal lines.

This suggestion had been made before by the Israelis and would mean Egyptian withdrawal from the east bank of the Suez Canal at the same time Israel gives up territory it occupied on the west bank during the October war.

Nixon Meets With Republican Senators

No, He's Not Going To Resign

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Nixon met for more than two hours tonight with 15 Republican senators and, several of them said Nixon told them he had no intention of resigning over Watergate.

It was the third in a series of meetings Nixon is holding with all the Republicans in Congress and some Democrats to take the offensive in overcoming the problems his administration is facing because of Watergate.

Several of the senators told reporters Nixon did not give them assurances he would appear as requested before the Senate Watergate Committee.

Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, a member of the Watergate committee, who was at Tuesday night's meeting, said the discussion did not get into a decision on that.

The Senate Watergate Committee voted earlier Tuesday to request such a meeting with the President.

Sen. Edward Brooke of Massachusetts, who has called for Nixon's resignation, said it was "a good give-and-take" meeting, that suggestions were made to the President and "he was very grateful to us for our suggestions."

Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas said Nixon declined to outline specific steps he would take.

Dole said, "He reaffirmed that he has no intention of resigning."

The President got suggestions from the group as to what he should do about Watergate, Brooke said, but "not by any means a consensus."

Brooke said nothing he heard at the meeting changed his opinion that the President should resign.

Nixon plans to finish the meetings by the end of the week.

Gold-Dual Price Ended

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Arthur F. Burns of the Federal Reserve Board announced Tuesday night the termination of the world's dual price system for gold.

The practical effect of the action may be a sharp drop in the market price of gold, which has been above $100 an ounce for a number of months.

Under the dual price system for gold, there has been an official price set by government central banks and a free market price for trading by private persons.

ROOM TO MOVE
Campus Drug
Drop-In Center
CALL 5-0400
24 HOURS A DAY
7 DAYS A WEEK

Health Takes Command Over Britain's Crisis

By LOUIS NEVIN
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Edward Heath declared a state of emergency Tuesday to meet Britain's menacing fuel crisis and instituted an unprecedented credit squeeze to avert a run on the pound.

Heath's drastic action will give his Conservative government the necessary power to deal with a threat of power shortages and the worst foreign trade deficit in the nation's history.

Home Secretary Robert Carr told the House of Commons the state of emergency was set for midnight. He said the move had been forced by a ban on overtime by the nation's 270,000 coal miners and the 18,000 workers in the state-owned electricity generating industry.

The first move under the emergency powers was a ban beginning Wednesday on display advertising and floodlighting and controls on heating in commercial premises. All government departments and state-owned industries were ordered to reduce their consumption of power and fuel by 10 per cent.

The administration also appealed to the public for economy in the use of gasoline and fuel oil for heating.

The government simultaneously announced the worst deficit in British trading history last month and raised its basic lending rate nearly 2 per cent to 13 per cent, the highest level ever.

The credit squeeze was backed up with an order to all commercial banks to hand over 2 per cent of their deposits to the Bank of England. This will take an estimated $1.38 billion out of the reach of the spending public. The Bank of England is already holding $2.76 billion of such forced deposits.

The government said the sharp increase in the cost of imported oil supplies put into effect by the Arab producers was partly responsible for the October trade deficit of $715.2 million.

UMass. Third World Cultural Series Presents
THE KERALA KALAMANDALAM COMPANY
kathakali
The Sacred Dance Drama of Kerala
FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1973—8:00 p.m.
BOWKER AUDITORIUM
Tickets $1.50 UM/A Students $3.00 Others
Telephone 545-0202
Sponsored by the Fine Arts Council

FRISCO AND THE KILLERS
at the Bluewall
Thursday 9 p.m. - 1 a.m.

Administration Considers Home Heating Rationing

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

Administration officials yesterday indicated they are considering rationing home heating oil as well as gasoline, but one Cabinet official said he strongly opposes gasoline rationing.

Treasury Secretary George P. Schultz said gasoline rationing should be "absolutely the last resort."

Officials said they are working on rationing plans but no decision has been made on the amounts of fuel an individual consumer may receive.

Kenneth Lay, a deputy undersecretary of the interior, said, however, a basic individual ration of 10 to 15 gallons of gasoline per week for motorists "is the most likely range, at this point."

Several administration officials have said gasoline rationing may be needed next spring.

One administration official suggested that heating oil may be rationed through the sales by retail suppliers to their customers based on past sales. This would not require issuing fuel-oil ration coupons.

Legislation requiring President Nixon to impose across-the-board mandatory allocation of fuel was passed by the House and sent to the Senate.

Supporters conceded it would not eliminate the energy crisis, but would insure that all sections of the country share the shortage burden equally.

The Senate is expected to approve the measure today.

Shultz, discussing his opposition to rationing, said he was concerned that many Americans, including some administration officials, were overreacting to the energy problems.

"I have seen what some administration officials have said about gasoline rationing," Shultz told a conference of financial writers in Washington.

"I say to you that rationing should be absolutely the last resort. If we're intelligent about it, we should be able to avoid it."

Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton said over the weekend it may be necessary to impose gasoline rationing within the next two or three months.

Shultz said that to save energy, the government should lower speed limits and "arrest a few people when they go over 50 miles an hour."

In other energy-related developments:

-The Beirut, Lebanon, newspaper Al Anwar reported yesterday that Saudi Arabia has decided to demand immediately a 51 per cent share in the oil companies operating within its borders. The report was based on an interview with King Faisal's son, Prince Saud al Faisal, undersecretary of the Oil Ministry.

-The U.S. Senate approved a bill yesterday for private construction of an oil pipeline across Alaska to carry oil from the Alaskan North Slope oil fields to the port city of Valdez. The measure goes to President Nixon for his signature.

-The House Commerce Committee approved a bill authorizing a return to Daylight Saving Time after being told year-around DST would reduce power consumption by one or two per cent, but might require children to go to school before daylight.

-A House Armed Services subcommittee, bending partly to Nixon's request, said Navy oil should be tapped to help meet the fuel crisis, but only if all other measures fail. If reserves at Elk Hills, Calif., are used, the fuel should go to the military or to industry "engaged in direct support of the military," the subcommittee said.

-Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W. Va., told the American Petroleum Institute in Houston that "unless price regulation in its present form is removed no new coal mine capacity will come about."

-The Department of Transportation announced it is setting up an Office of Energy Policy to oversee and coordinate energy conservation efforts in the nation's transportation system.

-Commerce Secretary Frederick B. Dent said he felt that the energy shortage would force some businesses to close.

Dent said in Boston that most companies can learn to live with the shortages and some may flourish, "while others will fail because of their impact."

He said that private industry uses 70 per cent of the nation's energy and "if there is to be a reduction in the per capita consumption, a substantial portion of it will have to come from the business sector."

Congress Clears Bill ToTap Alaskan Oil

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly six years after America's richest pool of oil was discovered on Alaska's North Slope, a bill authorizing a pipeline to tap it cleared Congress yesterday.

A Senate vote of 80 to 5 sent the measure to President Nixon. Backers predicted he'll sign it, despite administration misgivings over sections giving regulatory agencies greater powers. The House passed the bill Monday.

The $4.5 billion pipeline, long delayed in Congress and the courts by environmentalists who feared damage from oil spills, would be the largest construction job ever undertaken by private enterprise.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., warned environmentalists that if they again tie the project up with lawsuits, he will offer a bill in January to have the federal government build it.

Jackson said work must begin by May on the 789-mile line so that oil can begin flowing to the ice-free port of Valdez and thence by ship to West Coast ports.

Reserves in the Prudhoe Bay area of Alaska, discovered in February 1968, are estimated at 10 billion to 30 billion barrels.

Atlantic Richfield, Exxon, British Petroleum and four firms which hold smaller shares of the oil formed a consortium to build the pipeline.

After prolonged courtroom delays, a federal appeals court blocked the project in Fecruary. The court said it violated limits on the width of rights of way which Congress laid down in 1920.

The bill sent to Nixon revises the right of way limitations, authorizes a construction permit and bans most lawsuits which could delay the project.

Environmentalists have 60 days in which to challenge the constitutionality of the bill's prohibition of lawsuits against the permit.

Elsewhere on the energy front:

—Power company spokesmen and government officials told the House Commerce Committee that year-round Daylight Saving Time could cut power consumption by one or two percent, but might require school children to travel to school in the dark.

—The National Education Association urged the Nixon administration not to disrupt schools to save energy.

Gulf Oil Pleads Guilty To Illegal Campaign Contributions

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Revelations of illegal campaign gifts hit Democrats and Republicans alike yesterday as two corporations pleaded guilty to federal charges and a third was accused in Senate testimony of a cover-up conspiracy.

Gulf Oil Corp., which previously admitted making an illegal $100,000 gift to President Nixon's re-election campaign, pleaded guilty to that violation yesterday and to illegally donating $10,000 to the campaigns of Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington and $15,000 to Rep. Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas.

Spokesmen said Jackson and Mills, both of whom tried unsuccessfully last year for the Democratic presidential nomination, had been unaware the Gulf money was illegal.

Mills offered to return his money and Jackson said he would give his back.

Also yesterday, a subsidiary of Ashland Oil Inc. pleaded guilty in federal court in Kentucky to making an illegal $100,000 gift to Nixon's campaign. The subsidiary, Ashland Petroleum Gabon, had previously admitted the Nixon gift.

Gulf and Ashland both were fined $5,000 and two company officials also were fined an additional $1,000 but escaped jail terms because they had volunteered their cooperation to the special Watergate prosecution force.

In testimony before the Senate Watergate committee, two employes of the American Ship Building Co. of Cleveland, Ohio, said they and six other employes had been given bonuses and ordered to give the after-tax proceeds to political campaigns.

Gulf and its Washington lobbyist, Claude C. Wild Jr., pleaded guilty to separate federal counts in Washington.

SKI SPAIN
Earn 2 credits during intersession
Call 5-2801

Topper Carew
in the Hatch
Thur., Fri. & Sat.
9 p.m. - 1 a.m.

Energy Crisis To Raise Danger Of Recession

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The energy crisis has suddenly chilled the Nixon administration's hopes of bringing the U.S. economy to a "soft landing" next year and increased the danger of a recession.

Government economists, busy trying to assess the impact of the Arab oil cutoff, said they expect temporary job layoffs in some industries and sharply rising prices of products that depend heavily on energy.

The situation could develop into a recession if the administration bungles the job of allocating fuel supplies and the consumer decides to buy much less, said one highly placed economist who asked that his name not be used.

"If it changes the psychology of the consumer, and is badly enough handled, the economy could lose momentum," he said.

The administration had been banking on the economy slowing this year and in 1974 to about a 4 per cent growth rate, a level considered normal. This is the so called "soft landing" from 1973's high growth rates. It was supposed to mean a lower rate of inflation and little or no increase in unemployment.

"How much impact there is on aggregate economic activity depends on how long the oil cutoff is and how deep it is," said Edgar Fielder, assistant secretary in charge of economic policy for the Treasury Department.

Fielder said, however, he does not see a recession developing.

A recession occurs when the Broadest measure of the economy, Gross National Product, declines for two straight quarters. The last recession was in late 1970 after Nixon tried to cool inflation with tight money and a tight budget, causing unemployment to go up to 6 per cent.

The energy crisis also will make it difficult for the administration to shed wage-price controls, as it hoped to do next year, said the unnamed economist.

He said the administration needs to talk calmly about the situation and avoid scaring the people. "I think everything is a little hysterical now," he said, noting government reaction to the crisis.

APPEARING AT THE NEW Country House in Hatfield
Wed. — That New Band In Town
Thurs. — BHANG
Fri. — Night Watch
SPECIAL ATTRACTION
$2 cover charge but all draught beverages 1¢ a glass.
Sat. — Tex Overstreet & The Country Boys
Sun. — Tex Overstreet & The Country Boys.
247-5155 River Rd., Hatfield

Britain Feels Fuel Crisis

By LOUIS NEVIN
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Edward Heath declared a state of emergency today to meet Britain's menacing fuel crisis. He also launched an unprecedented credit squeeze to head off any run on the nation's currency.

The initial reaction was dismay at the depth and extent of the crisis. "Full blast of power and trade crisis hits Britain," said the Evening News.

Prices plunged on the London stock exchange, wiping billions of pounds off market values.

Preparations for the wedding of Princess Anne and Capt. Mark Phillips today went ahead despite the shouts of opposition legislators in the House of Commons to "cancel the wedding."

Royal court informants said there was no possibility of any change in plans for the wedding, which is costing British taxpayers nearly a quarter of a million dollars.

The government decreed a state of emergency for 30 days to meet a ban on overtime by 270,000 coal miners and 18,000 workers in the state-owned electricity generating industry, Home Secretary Robert Carr told the Commons.

The overtime ban was already hitting the nation's stocks of coal, the administration said.

Workers in both industries perform maintenance duties on an overtime basis on weekends. A ban on overtime meant maintenance work had to be done in normal time, thus cutting the amount of coal that could be mined.

The overtime ban also meant that power industry generators had to be shut for repairs and servicing during normal-day working hours instead of weekends and early morning hours when the power demand was minimal.

Carr said the state of emergency would begin at midnight.

The program gives Heath the power to deal with a three-pronged threat of power shortages and the worst foreign trade deficit in the nation's history.

The first move under the emergency powers was a ban beginning today on display advertising and floodlighting and controls on heating in commercial premises. All government departments and state-owned industries were ordered to reduce power and fuel consumption 10 per cent.

State Senate Approves Campaign Financing Bill

BOSTON (AP) -The Massachusetts Senate gave initial approval Monday to a major reform of the state's system of campaign financing. The bill advanced on a unanimous roll call vote of 34-0.

The bill, which received overwhelming approval in the House, makes several important changes in existing law:

-It would lower the maximum individual contribution from $3,000 to $500.

-It would prohibit candidates from accepting cash contributions over $25 and of spending cash amounts of more than $25.

-It would tighten regulations governing contributions at testimonial dinners.

-It would require candidates to report their contributions and expenditures three times a year-eight days before the primary, eight days before the election and the following January 10.

The Senate went through a five-hour debate on the bill, rejecting all but three of a series of 14 proposed amendments.

The adopted amendments, which must still be accepted by the House, would bring the maximum cash contribution and expenditure down to $25 from the House version which allowed cash contributions of up to $100 and cash expenditures of up to $50.

(AP Wirephoto)

--Robert R. Taylor of Winnipeg took this aerial photo as the sun lit up the unique pond built in the shape of a duck in a bird refuge just east of Stonewall, Man. The pond is 400 yards long, 150 yards wide and 18 feet deep. Another pond--also developed by the provincial government and Ducks Unlimited, an international conservation group--was built in the shape of a goose nearby.

Opening Sunday
GOTEN OF JAPAN
Steak House
Dining in the Tradition of Japanese Nobility
Rte. 116 Sunderland, Ma.

Fuel Crisis

Sargent Orders Speed Limit, Outdoor Advertising Reduction

By STEVEN COHEN
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Gov. Francis W. Sargent ordered the speed limit throughout Massachusetts lowered to 50 miles per hour yesterday and announced that he has ordered a reduction in lighted outdoor advertising.

Warning that New England could be faced with a 30 percent fuel shortage this winter, the governor said he has asked the Public Health Council to further ease its strict sulphur standards for small and medium fuel users.

At a news conference called to announce steps he is taking to combat the energy shortage in Massachusetts, Sargent also said he is creating a cabinet level task force to examine the possibility of a four day work week for the state and private industry.

He said he has directed state Education Secretary Joseph Cronin to consider moving the April school vacation to an earlier month, and he has ordered the state superintendent of buildings to reduce Christmas lighting by 95 percent.

The governor, who previously ordered a temperature reduction in state buildings, announced the second phase of his energy conservation program at a press conference attended by U.S. Commerce Secretary Frederick B. Dent.

Sargent said he will seek emergency powers from the legislature to deal with unforseen emergencies which might arise our of the energy crisis.

The governor said he has directed state Public Works Commissioner Bruce Campbell and the Massachusetts Turnpike Authority to reduce the speed limit statewide to 50 miles per hour in order to conserve gasoline.

The action will save 100 million gallons of fuel a year, he said.

Buses, which operate more efficiently at higher speeds, will be subject to a 60 miles per hour limit.

Sargent said state agencies are in the process of changing speed limit signs now, and aides indicated that while the new limit is effective immediately it isn't enforcable until new signs are up.

Sargent told newsmen that he has directed the Outdoor Advertising Board and the state Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission "to take steps immediately to end the use of unnecessary advertising lighting."

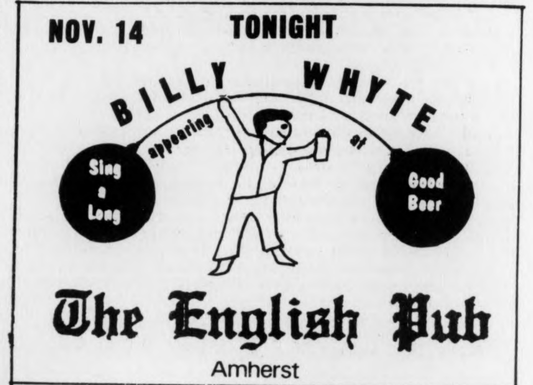
Dent, at the news conference, said there is a possibility of a 7 percent fuel shortage nationwide if the Middle East oil embargo continues. While conceding that the crunch will be worse in New England than in the rest of the nation, he said he hoped the federal allocation program "won't permit a shortage in this region as high as the governor suggested."

Sargent, who met earlier in the day with Dent, said he has asked for the creation of an emergency technical assistance program on the federal level to provide industry the expertise it needs to cut energy without laying off workers.

He said he also asked for an emergency assistance program aimed at helping companies install anti-pollution and energy conservation equipment.

"Only a short time ago we were told that the energy shortage this winter would be 6 percent," he said. "Then we were told that the shortage would be closer to 15 percent. Now I am informed that if the Middle East oil cutoff continues, the shortfall could be as much as 30 percent."

The governor said he is asking Massachusetts residents to survive the short term crisis of this winter."



NOV. 14 TONIGHT
BILLY WHYTE appearing at Sing a Long
Good Beer
The English Pub
Amherst

Careers through Star's Management Development Training Program
*All Majors invited
*Dynamic young industry
One of the nation's leading food chains
STAR MARKETS
One of The Jewel Companies
Excellent starting salary, profit sharing, tuition assistance, and many other benefits
STAR WILL BE ON CAMPUS DECEMBER 4, 1973
If you are unable to see us on campus contact:
Kathy MacKinnon, Personnel Manager
Star Market Co., 625 Mt. Auburn St., Cambridge
Tel. 491-3000

Energy Crisis Worries Maine's Ski Areas

By JERRY HARKAVY
Associated Press Writer

CARRABASSETT, Maine-The energy crisis has supplanted the weather as the No. 1 problem facing Maine's ski areas.

Ski operators throughout the state are more concerned about shortages of gasoline and other fuels than about the perennial question of whether Mother Nature provides enough snow.

The problems created by the energy crunch are most acute at major resort areas like Sugarloaf, the largest in Maine, which attracts most of its business from out-of-state skiers.

"We're really concerned," said public relations director Wendy Frutchy. "Most of our major market is in Boston, and it's 4 1-2 hours in driving time from Boston to Sugarloaf.

"A 50 mile-per-hour speed limit would probably bring it up to six hours, and that's prohibitive to most skiers who take a weekend trip."

As a result, Sugarloaf is working with Boston-area travel agencies and ski shops to arrange charter bus service at $11 a person.

"It's cheaper by the dozen, and you don't use that much fuel," she said.

Sugarloaf is planning a minibus shuttle service between the mountain and local hostelries. The area is also attempting to line up similar service from airports in such Maine cities as Portland, Augusta, Waterville and Bangor.

At Squaw Mountain, spokesman Bruce Taylor said "we're taking a wait-and-see attitude about fuel rationing to see to what extent we're going to be affected.

"There's the possibility that we could be asked to close," he said.

Taylor and spokesmen at other major resorts warned that shutdown would have a disastrous impact on the economies of their areas, which are largely dependent on the winter recreation and forestry industries.

In the Greenville area, the closing of Squaw Mountain would put 20 per cent of the labor force out of work, Taylor said.

"Obviously, the areas that will be hardest hit will be the ones in the rural mountain regions, the ones farthest from the big urban centers," he said.

Squaw, too, has been exploring charter bus service, but Taylor said some bus lines are worried about meeting their existing commitments and are reluctant to take on new business.

At Saddleback, John Christie said he planned a "share-a-ride" information center that would encourage car pooling by those who ski regularly at the Rangeley area.

Like other areas, Saddleback is also emphasizing special bargain package plans for skiers who sign up for extended stays.

The problems are different at the state's smaller ski areas which depend on local skiers for the overwhelming proportion of their clientele.

Some industry sources acknowledged that these smaller areas, such as Auburn's Lost Valley and Pleasant Mountain in Bridgton, stand to gain additional business at the expense of the more prestigious, but more distant, mountains.

SBA Charged With Alleged Corruption

By PEGGY SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The alleged corruption within the Small Business Administration loan practices extends far beyond the Richmond, Va., SBA office and may be nationwide, congressional sources said Tuesday.

"This thing is pervasive throughout the entire nation," said Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, D-Tex., a member of the House Banking subcommittee on small business which reported on the alleged criminal abuses in SBA field offices.

"It goes from top to bottom," said an official close to the congressional investigation.

Gonzalez said that in addition to the probe of the Richmond office, subcommittee investigators and the Justice Depatment are looking into SBA operations in Philadelphia, Baltimore, Detroit, Albuquerque, Chicago, New York, Miami and Los Angeles.

In Alburquerque, the former SBA minority enterprises chief, Moses L. Sanchez, is serving a three-year prison sentence after pleaded no contest to charges of soliciting and accepting bribes. His indictment alleged he received three bribes totaling $10,500 from men who later received SBA loans totaling $81,500.

It was not known if the Sanchez case was under investigation by the House subcommittee.

In Detroit, acting SBA District Director Charles Lockwood said the Detroit office was not involved in the current House probe.

Comments from other cities were not immediately available.

Organized crime influenced loan practices in at least some cities, resulting in millions of dollars of defaulted loans, Gonzalez charged.

He described as conservative one published estimate that bad debts in Richmond SBA office alone may total $11 million.

Gonzales said that apparently the pattern is one of out and out conflict or interest by SBA administrators; of corrupt influences in 'kiting' loans - getting a loan to cover another loan - and a systematic and apparently nationwide abuse of the lease guarantee loan pogram.

In 1969, Gonzalez exposed an attempt by a special assistant to then-SBA Admnistrator Hillary Sandoval to get kickbacks from a San Antonio loan applicant in exchange for guaranteeing the loan.

In that case, the special assistant tried to persuade the San Antonio businessman to apply for a $100,000 loan instead of a $10,000 one and said he would guarantee his getting it - but he wanted a guarantee of 49 per cent of the man's business.

The assistant, Albert Fuentes, was convicted and jailed.

Gonzalez also said there appeared to be a widespread tie-in with other loan programs in the Department of Housing and Urban Development. In those cases, persons used SBA loans to snare further loans from HUD for subsidized construction projects.

Enjoy the DOWN UNDER
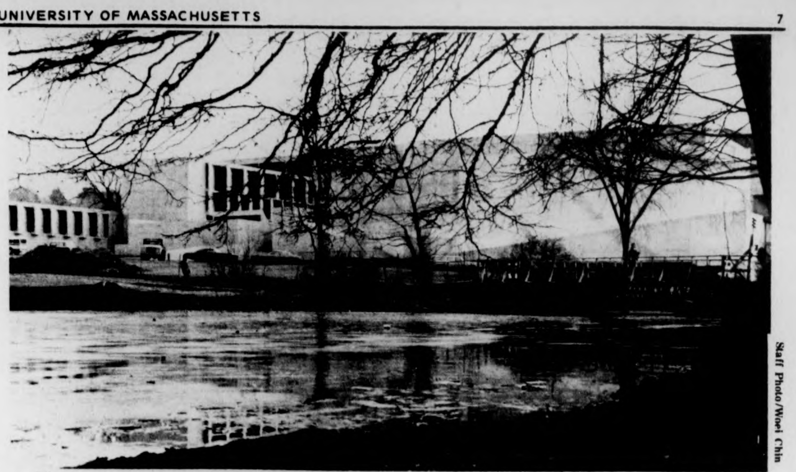
Snack Bar at Greenough
Good Food Reasonable Prices



Staff Photo/Woei Chin

The emptiness of the campus pond will be overcome with people....The accompanied bridge, however, will be taken down. The fence, which separates the Fine Art Center, will go with the bridge. Thus, there leaves the newly born Fine Art Center, which, hopefully, to be completed and opened to public next semester. By spring the ground will be spread with greenish grass.

Skylab 3 Cleared For Friday Lift-Off

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) - The space agency last night cleared the Skylab 3 rocket for launching and set 9:01 a.m. EST Friday as the liftoff time for the three astronauts on a record 85-day space mission.

The decision was announced after experts had met throughout the day to assess the seriousness of cracks found in the Saturn 1B rocket.

They concluded that solid repairs had been completed, and Skylab program director William C. Schneider gave the go-ahead to start the final countdown this morning.

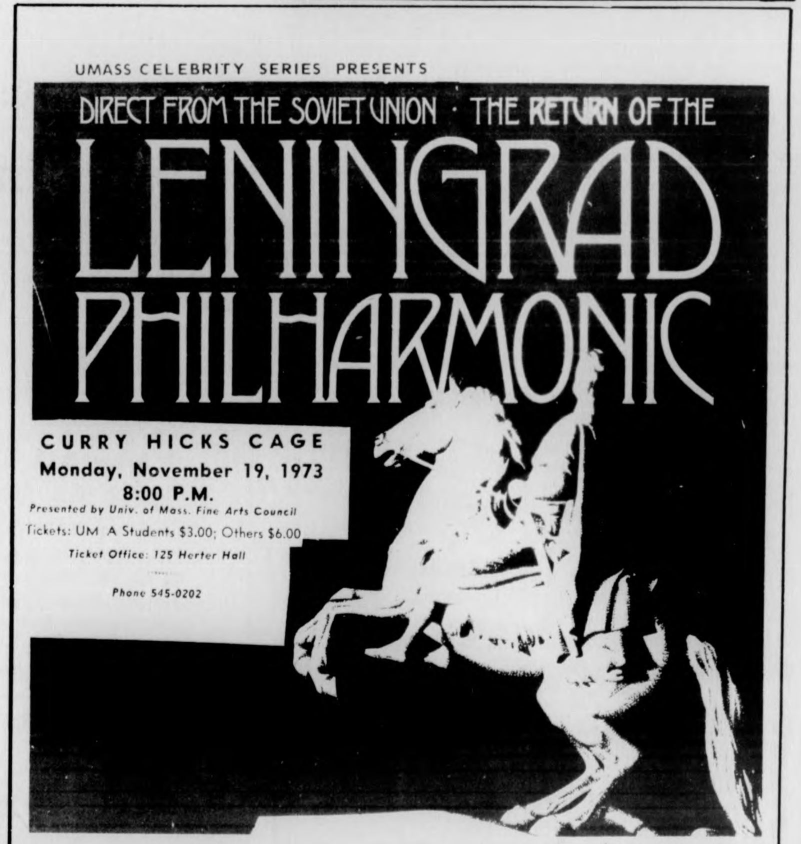
He said the condition of the rocket would be routinely evaluated again today, but officials said they were confident the rocket was in good shape.

Discovery of cracks in two different sections of the rocket had caused two postponements totaling six days. And Schneider earlier said a launch Friday was "iffy."

But Skylab 3 Commander Gerald P. Carr told newsmen earlier he felt sure that he and his crewmates would be launched Friday.

Carr, William R. Pogue and Edward G. Gibson concluded their training at Houston's Johnson Space Center and flew here Tuesday in separate T38 jet planes.

CONCERT
featuring Chase
Sat., Nov. 17, 1973 8:00 p.m.
Memorial Hall, Athol
Tickets $3.00 in Advance
$4.00 at the Door
For tickets send a stamped self-addressed envelope to Tickets, P.O. Box 435, Athol, Mass. 01331 or pick up at Gribbons Music Store, Main St., Greenfield.
Sponsored by Athol High School Band



UMASS CELEBRITY SERIES PRESENTS
DIRECT FROM THE SOVIET UNION · THE RETURN OF THE LENINGRAD PHILHARMONIC
CURRY HICKS CAGE
Monday, November 19, 1973
8:00 P.M.
Presented by Univ. of Mass. Fine Arts Council
Tickets: UM A Students $3.00; Others $6.00
Ticket Office: 125 Herter Hall
Phone 545-0202

Staff Photo/David Less

Moe Howard takes a break from a busy campus-speaking schedule in order to catch up on a few jokes. Larry is shown taking a shot at Moe...when will it be our turn?

Bromery Comments On Energy Crisis

(Statement by UMass-Amherst Chancellor Randolph W. Bromery on energy conservation.)

In accordance with President Nixon's statement, Wednesday, November 7, 1973 concerning the energy crisis, the following action will be taken at UMass:

1. Temperatures in all buildings on campus will be reduced in accordance with the guidelines stated by the President. (Work has already begun on this project, but it will take some time to make all the adjustments. Meanwhile, members of the University community are asked not to make adjustments to individual thermostats.)

2. Vehicles owned by the University of Massachusetts-Amherst are to be driven so as not to exceed a speed limit of 50 miles per hour. Users are directed to confine trips to only the most necessary, and to make every effort to share vehicles with others.

3. Members of the University community are urged to become more aware of open doors and windows, unnecessary lights burning and individual radiators operating at high temperatures, and to take steps so that maximum savings of energy can be achieved.

4. Steps are being taken to extend, if possible, the use of the coal-fired boiler plant and to delay opening of the new oil-fired power plant on the Tillson Farm. The University's objective had been to open the new plant as soon as possible. Now the benefits of opening this plant as an anti-pollution measure will be weighed against the problem of the energy conservation before action is taken.

5. Members of the University community are reminded than an Energy Conservation Committee has been formed and is functioning under the chairmanship of Kenneth Dean, Office of the Vice Chancellor for Administrative Services, Whitmore Administration Building. The committee is composed of members from all segments of the University community. Hits major functions at this time are to conduct an "awareness campaign" on campus and to study every possible way in which the University can conserve energy. Anyone with suggestions on ways to economize is urged to forward this information to the Chairman, Rm. 341, Whitmore.

The energy problem facing this nation is a serious one, and affects all of us both at work and at home. I am sure that by cooperating, we can make a significant contribution toward conserving the nation's resources for the good of all. Thank you for your cooperation.

LSAT
Review Course
Extensive 20-hour review for December 15 L.S.A.T.
Taught by attorneys
It Will Help
This course has been in operation since 1967 and is the most effective means of preparation for the L.S.A.T. Ask students at your school who have taken this course their opinions, or call us with your own questions.
Register now — $85.00 tuition (total cost). Classes begin Thursday evening, Nov. 29, 1973, 7-11 p.m., Colonial Hilton, Northampton.
For information call (413) 256-6072, Amherst; (617) 262-9161, Boston.
or write:
L.S.A.T. Review Course
419 Boylston St.
Room 312
Boston, Mass. 02116

SHOWCASE CINEMAS 1·2·3·4·5
ROUTE 5 RIVERDALE RD.
WEST SPFLD. 24 HR. TEL. 733-5131
We Honor MASTER CHARGE
THE DON IS DEAD
Starts Fri. 7:10-9:30
Ends Thurs. - "O Lucky Man"
Wed., Mat. 2 - Eves. 7-9:45 R
WALTER MATTHAU
WHEN HE RUNS OUT OF DUMB LUCK, HE ALWAYS HAS GENIUS TO FALL BACK ON!
"CHARLEY VARRICK"
Wed. Mat. 2:00
Mon.-Thurs., Eve. 7:30-9:40
PG
STREISAND & REDFORD PG
THE WAY WE WERE
Mon.-Thur. 2:00 7:30-9:50
DONALD SUTHERLAND · ELLIOTT GOULD
PG M*A*S*H
Wed., Mat. 2:00
Mon.-Thurs., Eve. 7:00-9:20
WALKING TALL R
JOE DON BAKER
Wed., Mat. 2:00
Mon.-Thurs., Eve. 7:30-9:50
It's about the first time you fall in love.
Jeremy
Wed., Mat. 2:00
Mon.-Thurs., Eve.
PG 7:30-9:25

MDC
NEWS HOTLINE
5-2550

Mister Donut
never knows
when to quit.
(he's open 24 hrs. per day)
Mt. Farms Mall
Rt. 9
(Russell St.)
HADLEY
Mister Donut

Special Sale
Everything 20% Off
Rani
63 N. Pleasant St. Amherst

Celebrate Thanksgiving
at the
TOP OF THE CAMPUS
featuring reservations 549-6000
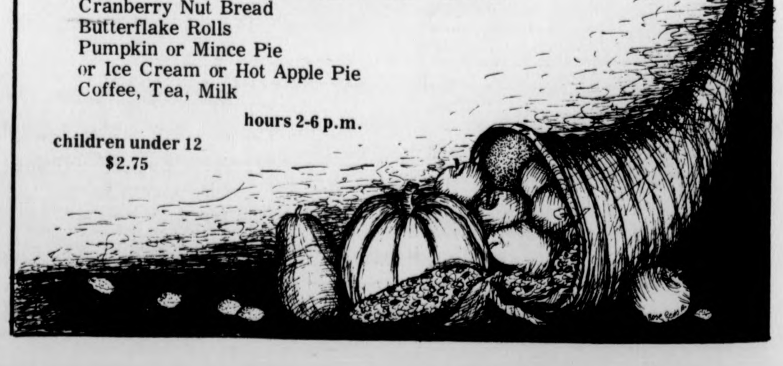
Tomato Juice or Fruit Cup
or Corn Chowder
Whipped Potato
Butternut Squash
Tossed Salad w/choice of dressing
Prime Rib au jus $4.95
Roast Turkey w/Sage Dressing $4.45
Baked Stuffed Shrimp $4.95
Cranberry Nut Bread
Butterflake Rolls
Pumpkin or Mince Pie
or Ice Cream or Hot Apple Pie
Coffee, Tea, Milk
hours 2-6 p.m.
children under 12
$2.75



What's The Story?

The Age Of Majority, Superman And Modern Romance

By DEBBIE BERNSTEIN

With the onset of cold weather it's nice to have as many conviences as possible to home. Most of you probably know the closest place to buy cigarettes, beer, and milk, but how many of you know the closest place to get help or advice with a problem? The Ombudsman Office has Area Representatives in most of the dormitory areas on campus for just this purpose.

The Area Reps serve as a liason to the Ombudsman Office for students in particular areas. However, faculty and staff can also consult with them, too. Some of the problems that Area Reps have dealt with or can deal with are meal ticket exemptions, room priorities, parking tickets, heating problems, advice on room rent refunds, and personal dorm problems that you might not want to talk to your counselor about. If the Area Reps can't help you with your problem they can suggest someone who can, or refer you to the Ombudsman Office.

The Area Reps are: John Bohn — 306 C1 Brown, 546-5693 (Sylvan Area); Marcus Buckley — Head of Residence Apt., 546-4534 (Central Area); Jim Maltz — 103 Dickinson (Tues. night 9-11, 545-2680), 549-4598 (Greek and O.H. Area); Jim Prelack — 421 Crabtree, 545-2302, 545-2303 (Northeast Area)

Question: Since the age of majority is changing, effective January, can the University legally force students to live on-campus?

Answer: Yes. That's the answer from Bruce Cochrane, director of on-campus housing. According to Bruce, the age for moving off-campus is not set at 21 because it is the age of majority, but because it is a convient cut-off date. So changing the age of majority from 21 to 18 has nothing to do with the Housing Office policy. To put it another way, the requirement for students to live on-campus until they are 21 is a Trustee policy.

When students accept their admission to UMass they enter into a contract. This means that the University sets certain regulations which students must abide by. One of these regulations is that students will live on-campus unless they are 21, married, a senior, commute from their home within a 40 mile radius, or receive an exemption to move off-campus. Therefore, the requirement for a student to live in a dorm does not violate the student's freedom of choice because the rule was in effect at the time of admission and the student chose to come to this school and accept the regulations of the contract.

A student can bring this matter to court, however, precedent cases in Indiana, Illinois, and Kansas have ruled in favor of the university. The on-campus housing requirement was proved constitutionally valid because it was necessary to the function and existence of the university. This necessity lies in two areas. It is financially necessary to require students to live on-campus, and it is considered a necessary part of a student's educational process to live on-campus. Bruce said that he cannot foresee the Trustees reviewing the policy.

I then contacted Senator Robert Hall, a recent graduate of UMass, whose office has taken an interest in this matter. Hall's office has spoken with Dr. Gage whose comment was that the matter is still being looked into — but that nothing can be done for January.

In looking into the matter, I think the University has to consider many implications of lowering the required on-campus age from 21. If more students were allowed to move off-campus the dorms would not reach their occupancy quota. This would mean a great financial loss to the University, as well as an increase in the rent for students that did live in the dorms. Higher room rent would act as a deterence for students to move on-campus.

Lowering the age would also have great implications on the town of Amherst as well as surrounding towns. There would not be enough off-campus housing available to accommodate the influx of students. Certain towns have declared a moratorium on building new apartment complexes, while other towns, like Hadley, will not allow any apartment complexes at all. Even this past semester many students who were allowed to move off-campus could not find housing and therefore, tried to get back on campus.

If the age was lowered the existing apartment complexes would be in more demand so that they would probably raise their rents a considerable amount. This would be unfair to students, but even more unfair to couples or families who don't have income from several sources.

Transportation might also be an important problem. UMass is trying to reduce not increase the number of cars on campus. It seems logical that the more people who live off-campus, the more cars there would be coming onto campus. The current transit system, as good as it is, would not be adequate to handle the large number of students who would use the busses if the age was lowered.

I also spoke with Dick Howland, Student Attorney, to find out if he had any further information on this matter. He felt that because the change in the age of majority has not gone into effect yet, the Trustees have not had the time to consider changing the housing policy. At this time he could not offer any advice or information, but felt that the best attitude was a wait and see one.

I agree that the Board of Trustees has to weigh all these considerations before making a decision, but I hope that "We're still looking into the matter", will not be a long term put-off to students who deserve an answer by a definite date. If nothing can be done for January, then some answer, one way or the other, should be reached soon after. This is in all fairness to students who want to plan their living situation for the following semester.

Question: Why doesn't the University Store carry comic books, particulary Marvel and D.C.?

Answer: Two years ago the Campus Center Bookstore did sell comic books, but according to Joe Gilmartin, Trade Book Manager, this product did not work out.

A main problem was theft. Because of the size of comic books, it was easy for people to slip them in their notebooks or other books. When the comic books were grouped in twos or threes and wrapped in cellophane, people sometimes broke the wrapping and slipped more comic books inside before buying them. Also, grouping the comic books together made it difficult for people to see what they were buying.

Another problem was people reading the comic books at the magazine stand and then not buying the books. Because comics are shorter in length, this was a greater problem than with books or other magazines. The paper that comics are printed on is not as sturdy as paper used for other magazines, so if a large number of people leafed through the comics, they often became unsalable. Also a large number of people using the magazine stand as a reading library blocks the way for others to see what's available and blocks the aisle for people walking past that area.

Distribution was another problem. Traditional comics, like Superman and Modern Romance, were not that difficult to order, but underground comics, like Zap, presented a problem. The distribution agency that underground comics had to be ordered from fouled the billing up and in general made ordering the comics difficult. They also required a large quantity of comics to be ordered, so that it was not profitable for the book store to continue dealing with that company.

Joe saw two possible options for selling comics. First was an independent person setting up a table in the selling area. Second was the Campus Center Store setting up some kind of stand at the check-out counter.

"What's the Story?" will be a regular feature in Wednesday's Collegian. I will be looking into various aspects of the University system that may be of interest to or need clarification for the University community. I will also answer any questions or problems people are having within the University. So if you are having a hard time finding the answer to your question, write it down on a piece of paper and drop it in the "What's the Story?" box outside the Campus Center Store, send it through campus mail to box 6, Campus Center, or bring it to the Ombudsman Office, room 919 Campus Center.

Debbie Bernstein is Student Assistant to the Ombudsman.

Your Head

(Continued from P. 10)

It may be that you genuinely "loved" your girl-friend. Certainly, intense feelings of anger are not in themselves incompatible with feelings of love. The tone of your letter, however, suggests that your ego and pride is more the loser than your heart. It may well be that the manner in which the relationship ended tapped longer standing feelings of inadequacy. If thinking about it in this way doesn't help, a consultation with one of our staff would seem a logical next step. Although there appears little danger that you would actually hurt someone it does sound like you may need some help in sorting out your feelings.

Send, bring or call in your questions to 303 Machmer Hall, 545-2337. All inquiries confidential.

Address Books
and
Date Books
A. J. Hastings, Inc.
Newsdealer & Stationer
Amherst, Mass.

UMASS DEPARTMENT OF THEATRE
Offending ———————— THE AUDIENCE
Outraging ———————— THE AUDIENCE
Insulting ———————— THE AUDIENCE
Ridiculing ———————— THE AUDIENCE
Violating ———————— THE AUDIENCE
A Theatre Piece by Peter Handke
TICKETS $1.00 — LIMIT 40 PERSONS
On sale at door 1 hour before show time
STUDIO THEATRE SOUTH COLLEGE
Nov. 15, 8 p.m. Nov. 16 & 17, 7 & 9:30 p.m.

from India
to Faces from 3x5-$2.50 to 8x10-$11.95
Genuine Hand Carved wooden boxes from India ivory & brass inlaid felt lined interiors larger sizes include compartments
FACES OF EARTH
Next to THE Post Office in Amherst • Open: 9:30-6:30; Fri. till 9:00

the
HATCH COFFEEHOUSE brings you fine entertainment every Wednesday this week featuring Tex La Mountain of "Clean Living Fame"
Jim Colleny
Tom Aliff
Allan Doe
And others
with "Henri" as MC
9:00 P.M. ~ 1:00 a.m.
hatch cafeteria
free!

Your Head

The Painful Experience Of Losing Someone

By DRS. ANDREW W. McCASHIN and STEPHEN M. KLEIN

During the last two weeks I have become very worried about myself. My girl-friend broke up with me three weeks ago and told me that it wasn't another guy. Things weren't too good between us and I actually took it all pretty well for the first week. Then I started seeing her around with another guy, the same guy, all the time. Pretty soon I realized that there was someone else and then something snapped. I started wishing that she had died. Then I began to fantasize about killing both of them. I know I would never do anything like that but it scares me that I can feel that kind of hate towards someone I used to love. What can I do to stop feeling this way?

Answer.

Losing someone with whom one has been intimately involved is nearly always a painful experience. This is especially so when one feels, as you seem to, that he-she has been betrayed in the process. The first week appears to have been too easy, perhaps suspiciously so. It could well be that it took some time to realize just how much the loss meant to you. But it is also quite possible that it is not so much that you miss her (you never say anything about missing her) as that you cannot tolerate being abandoned for someone else. You appear convinced that your ex-girl-friend left you for another and lied to you about her intentions. The question is what all of this may suggest about how you think of yourself.

The fantasy of killing her satisfies several needs. Revenge is the obvious but not necessarily most important of these. Had she died things might have been emotionally less complicated for you. It would be easier (in the short run, not necessarily in the long) to blame fate rather than either yourself or you girl-friend. As things now stand you have to deal with feelings of loss, betrayal and inadequacy. It is the feeling of having lost an important competitive struggle which is most likely eased by your fantasies of violence.

(Continued on P. 9)

Plan ahead for your Thanksgiving Feast!

Finast
MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL - Hadley

ALL OUR STORES WILL BE OPEN LATE Mon., Tues., Wed., Nov. 19-20-21

In Store Bake Shop
Pumpkin Pies
Freshly Baked 25 oz pkg 79¢
In Stores With Bake Shops Only

Alcoa Alum. Wrap
Heavy Duty Super Strength 25 ft roll 49¢

Victory Cherries 10 oz jar 39¢
Turkey Brown n' Bags Reynolds pkg 2 49¢
Bordens Mince Meat Condensed 9 oz pkg 37¢

Vlasic Pickles
Sweet Mixed 32 oz btl 49¢

Lindsay Ripe Olives Selected Pitted 6 oz can 51¢
Finast Stuffed Olives Manzanilla 10 oz jar 96¢
La Rosa Rib Lasagne Holiday Treat 16 oz pkg 51¢

Ocean Spray
Cranberry Juice Cocktail 48 oz btl 59¢

Frozen Food Favorites From Finast
Frozen Vegetables
Cut Corn, Sweet Peas, Mixed Veg. 2 Finast 24 oz bags 89¢
Banquet Gravy & Turkey 32 oz pkg 1.59
Sara Lee Pumpkin Pie 32 oz pkg 89¢
Birds Eye Squash 6 12 oz pkgs $1
Finast Melon Balls 2 10 oz pkgs 59¢
Finast Shrimp Peeled & Deveined 16 oz pkg 3.39
Smuckers Mince Pie 39 oz pkg 1.09

Holiday Dairy Favorites!
Orange Juice
Finast 100% Pure half gal ctn 59¢
Befit Yogurt All Flavors 5 8 oz ctns $1
Breakstone Ricotta 16 oz pkg 69¢
Kraft Cream Cheese Whipped 8 oz ctn 49¢

Finast Egg Nog
Non Alcoholic Pasteurized half gallon 1.75 qt ctn 89¢

THANKSGIVING TURKEYS
Finast Prime with famous Finast POP-UP self-timer inside the Breast of Every Turkey
YOUNG TOMS 18 to 22 lbs 75¢ lb
Young Hens 10 to 14 lbs 79¢ lb
US Grade 'A
Tender plump broad breasted select strain bred for exceptional tenderness and flavor plump and meaty young turkeys U.S. Government Grade A the best your money can buy! A fitting centerpiece for your family feast!
YOUNG TOMS 18 to 22 lbs 65¢ lb
Young Hens 10 to 14 lbs 75¢ lb
Swift Butterball Young Hens 10 to 14 lbs 85¢ lb Young Toms 18 to 22 lbs 79¢ lb
Turkey Drumsticks 53¢ lb
Turkey Wings 53¢ lb
Swift's Canned Ham 5 lb can 7.89 3 lb can 5.19
Turkey Breast Swift Premium $1.49 lb
Turkey Roast Swift Premium $1.45 lb
Raths Sausage Meat lb 79¢

Semi-Boneless Chuck California Steak or Roast 89¢ lb
Shoulder Roast Boneless $1.49 lb
Center Cut Chuck Steak or Roast Bone In 69¢ lb
Chuck Steak 1st Cut Bone In 59¢ lb

USDA CHOICE London Broil Boneless Shoulder $1.39 lb
USDA CHOICE Top Chuck Steak Bone In $1.09 lb
USDA CHOICE Porterhouse Steak Loin $1.69 lb
USDA CHOICE Ground Chuck $1.09 lb
USDA CHOICE Club Steak Boneless Rib Eye $2.89 lb
USDA CHOICE Rib Roast 1st 4 Ribs Only Oven Ready $1.49 lb

Pork Chops Quarter Loin Equal Amount of Sirloin Hip and Center Cut Chops $1.09 lb
Pork Chops Center Cut $1.39 lb
Pork Ribs Country Style $1.09 lb

Fresh American Lamb Chop Sale!
Loin Lamb Chops $1.89 lb
Rib Lamb Chops $1.59 lb
Shoulder Lamb Chops $1.29 lb
Lamb Combination Stew & Chops 79¢ lb

Chicken Leg Quarters with Back 49¢ lb
Breast Quarters With Wing 53¢ lb
Fresh Chicken Thighs lb 59¢
Fresh Chicken Drumsticks lb 69¢
Fresh Chicken Breasts lb 79¢
Fresh Chicken Legs lb 59¢

MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL - Hadley
Florida Grapefruit
Large 40 ct Size Zingy Wake-Up Way to Get a Healthy Helping of Florida Sunshine 5 for 69¢
Give Your Holiday Table That Festive Colorful Look with Flowers!
Fresh Mums 6 inch Pots $2.99 ea
Lettuce Fresh Crisp Iceberg 3 hds $1
Florida Oranges Great for Vitamin C 10 for 69¢
Tangerines The Orangey Fruit with the Zipper Skin 12 for 69¢
FIRST O' THE FRESH
Sweet Potatoes 2 lbs 39¢
Yellow Turnip lb 12¢
White Onions lb 29¢
Blend-O-Fruit Cake Mix 1 lb cup 79¢

Prices in this Ad Effective Monday, November 12 thru Saturday, November 17, 1973

Save 78¢ WITH THESE COUPONS

Hills Bros Coffee one 2 lb can $1.49
With This Coupon
VEN 35 FN 19 Valid thru Nov 17 Finast

Finast Butter Quarters One - 1 lb package 79¢
With this Coupon and Purchase of $5 or more Valid thru Nov. 17
FN 14 Finast

Libby's Sweet Corn Cream Style or Whole Kernel 5 16 oz cans $1
Libby's Peas 4 16 oz cans $1

Finast Paper Towels 175 ct roll 32¢
Finast Wax Paper 100 ft roll 23¢
Ocean Spray Cranberry Sauce 16 oz can 28¢

Cranberry Sauce
Finast Jellied 5 16 oz cans $1

Mr. Deli Specials!
(Available at Stores with Mr. Deli Depts only)
Chopped Ham Imported half lb $1.09
Shop Mr. Deli for all your Favorite Imported & Domestic Meats, Cheese & prepared foods!
Swiss Cheese Imported French half lb 79¢
Bologna German Freshly Sliced half lb 79¢
Turkey Roll All White Meat qtr lb 55¢

International Seafood!
Bay Scallops Individually Quick Frozen 12 oz pkg $1.49
Shrimp Jumbo White 5 lb box 13.50 $2.89 lb
Casino Clams Baked Stuffed Large or Small 11 oz pkg 99¢
Fresh Oysters Standard half pt 1.19
Golden Fried Clams lb 1.49
Fish Sticks Taste O Sea Heat n Serve lb 85¢
Fish Cakes Taste O Sea Heat n Serve lb 69¢

Finast Fruit Cakes
Fruit Cake Bar 21 oz pkg $1.29
Fruit Cake Ring 28 oz pkg $1.59
Luxury Fruit Cake 32 oz pkg $2.19

Save Up To $1.32
Save 16¢ Gold Medal Flour one 5 lb bag 85¢ With This Coupon VEN 16 Valid thru Nov 17 Finast
Save 14¢ Mazola Margarine one 16 oz pkg 49¢ With This Coupon VEN 14 Valid thru Nov 17 Finast
Save 25¢ Cheer Detergent one 84 oz pkg 1.24 With This Coupon VEN 25 Valid thru Nov 17 Finast
Save 25¢ Cascade Dishwasher Detergent one 35 oz pkg 54¢ With This Coupon VEN 25 Valid thru Nov 17 Finast
Save 17¢ Toward purchase of 2 22 oz pkgs Betty Crocker Pie Crust Sticks With This Coupon VEN Valid thru Nov 17 Finast
Save 25¢ Toward purchase of 3 pkgs Durkee Spices or Extract With This Coupon VEN Valid thru Nov 17 Finast
Save 10¢ Toward purchase of one 3 lb can Crisco Shortening With This Coupon VEN Valid thru Nov 17 Finast

We Reserve the Right To Limit Quantities

Collective Bargaining

"Students Are The Faculty's Bosses"

(Continued from P. 3)

Fitchburg and Salem and a larger voice in the evaluation of faculty members.

They also have won equal representation on the campus-wide governing councils of both colleges and significant representation on most committees.

It is not clear, however, how much of the campus-wide governance role is due to students' being at the bargaining table. Even before students won a place there, the faculty and the board were writing students into campus governance systems. At Worcester State, for example, where students did not sit at the bargaining table, they were still given equal representation on the all-campus governing council.

Method of Learning

The students also feel they have learned a lot from their participation.

"You learn far more from being at the table than you could learn in any political science course," Ms. Seagull says.

Mr. Sheehan at Salem State agrees: "You begin to learn what education is all about. You become aware of the relationship between the faculty and the board."

But Mr. Sheehan says he's also somewhat disillusioned by the lack of trust he sees in collective bargaining. "I don't like collective bargaining," he says, "but that's the way the world is. Everything has to be written down and spelled out."

In general, both the students and the administrators are pleased with the student presence. "I think they've been a productive part of the negotiations," says Frank L. Keegan, the president of Salem State. "They've brought up a number of good points."

The union isn't so sure about that.

"It takes twice as long to resolve issues with the students there," says Mr. Robreno. "It's hard to schedule meetings. And the students have a turnover problem. There's no continuity."

Mr. Robreno is also unhappy with the power that has accrued to the students as a result of their "swing vote" position. "There we are," he says. "12 grown adults catering to these students."

Often Side with Board

As far as Mr. Robreno is concerned, the only reason to have students at the table is to strengthen the faculty's position. The students haven't always done that in Massachusetts. Even some of the students themselves are surprised at how often they end up siding with Mr. Walters and the board.

At North Adams and Fitchburg, for example, the students have sided with the administration in demanding a higher workload standard than the faculty wants. The faculty argues that the students will get a better-education if professors teach fewer and smaller classes, but the students don't see it that way. They fear that a lower workload standard will mean that some courses simply won't be offered.

"If students are involved where they don't have a preponderance of interest, then they're going to be a tool of the board," says Mr. Schneider of the teachers' association.

Mr. Robreno now feels students should be excluded from bargaining on subjects where they don't have that "preponderance of interest"—such as evaluation of faculty, tenure and promotion, fringe benefits, and workload—and involved only on subjects that do concern them, mainly governance.

The Massachusetts affiliate of the American Federation of Teachers—which, like the M.T.A., represents four of the state colleges—takes an even harder line: it has so far refused to let students come to the bargaining table.

New Bargaining Law Possible

Exacerbating the two unions' concerns is a new collective bargaining law now making its way through the Massachusetts legislature. It would let college faculties and other public employees bargain over wages and salaries, something they cannot do now.

Already concerned about the student impact on such issues as workload, the teachers' unions are not likely to want students involved in bargaining over something even more important to faculty members.

On the management side, Mr. Walters says, "I don't think I'd kick up my heels too much" if students were excluded from bargaining over salaries.

The students know that is a real possibility. "I don't think any faculty member is going to say 'Alice Seagull has a right to judge how much I make,' " Ms. Seagull says. "I think students do have the right. What the faculty keeps forgetting is that students are their bosses."

From THE CHRONICLE OF HIGHER EDUCATION, October 29, 1973

Random Notes

Coming Out!

COMING OUT! consists of scenes about homosexual life, oppression and liberation in this country. The play's vignettes are drawn from newspaper reports, personal accounts, journals, fiction and poetry. Among the writers and historical figures represented are Walt Whitman, Gertrude Stein, Merle Miller, Kate Millett, Allen Ginsberg, Willa Cather and Horatio Alger.

Although based on last spring's highly successful production in Boston, much of the play has been rewritten and new material has been added. Director Nicholas Deutsh has restaged the production and the company — with one exception — is new to the show.

An off-Broadway production of COMING OUT! just finished a 5 month run to enthusiastic, packed audiences. The Boston-based company recently opened to standing-room only crowds at the Charles Street Meeting House. This production performs every Monday night, through December 17, at the Meeting House. On weekends the company performs for interested groups around New England.

For more information, please contact: Bruce McKeon 545-0154.

New French Course

Franco-Americans who wish to re-establish contact with their language and culture can now take a course designed especially for them. French 130C is an intermediate French course which will help them develop their perhaps latent native language skills in a context which addresses itself directly to their own specific needs.

Textbook Notice

After the Thanksgiving recess, the Textbook Annex can no longer guarantee that your textbook will be on our shelves.

If you have put off buying any of your textbooks, please do so now to be assured of its availability.

Thank you.

Auction Coming

Tonight, 8 p.m. in the Farley 4-H House next to Alumni Stadium UMass DAMES CLUB will sponsor an auction with most items donated by area shops, restaurants, theaters, etc. There will be many good buys; for instance, last year there were two fur coats that were sold for under $20.00 each! Restaurants have in the past offered dinners for two and theaters offer tickets for two. New Clothing quite often is sold for only half the retail value. This can be a lot of fun for only a little money and we hope to see you there on Wednesday night. Come and look over the merchandise and we are sure you will see something that strikes your fancy. There is a small admission fee of a quarter but you are sure to get this back on your first purchase. Our auctioneers have been practicing for weeks — give them a challange!

PLACE YOUR BETS ON
SIGMA SIGMA SIGMA
Come to our Casino Night
TONIGHT
Fraternity/Sorority Park — 8:00 p.m.
Call for rides — 253-9066
YOU CAN'T LOSE!

S.S. Round
the ALL NEW T.O.C. SUNDAY BUFFET
The Steamship Round is returning to the Campus Center Sunday Buffet at no extra cost to you.
As a matter of fact, U. Mass. Students with a valid student I.D. will receive a 10% discount on the $4.50 price.
Sunday 4 - 8 p.m.

Join the PEOPLE CORPS

Be a LaSalette Missionary.
The LaSalettes are a religious community of men committed to living God's word through service to HIS PEOPLE.
We search for ever more creative ways to serve the People of God. To bring the Peace and Joy of Christ to His People. To extend the hand of friendship and love to all His People.
We search to find ever newer ways to promote our community life. To strengthen the bonds to pull us together. To forge that unity which is our difference and our strength.
We search, finally, for God, through prayer, through liturgy, through our work and our being we seek Him who gives ultimate meaning to our lives.
If you are thinking of serving those in need in a special way, of being part of a vital community, of reaching out to your God, then perhaps, you are called to join our People Corps, to be a LASALETTE MISSIONARY.
For information write or call: Information Director, 11 Massachusetts Avenue, Worcester, Mass. 01609 (617) 754-7259
Information Director
LaSalette Center for Church Missions and Vocations
11 Massachusetts Avenue
Worcester, Mass. 01609
Yes, I would like to learn more about trying the LaSalette life. Please get in touch with me.
Name____
Address____
City____ State____ Zip____
Phone Number____

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS
EDITOR-IN-CHIEF Stephen G. Tripoli
MANAGING EDITOR Mary T. Vorderer
BUSINESS MANAGER Gilbert W. Fullerton
EXECUTIVE EDITOR Jerald H. Lazar
NEWS EDITOR Joan Fassnacht
SPORTS EDITOR Stephen W. Crowe
PHOTO EDITOR Alan H. Chapman
FINE ARTS EDITOR Patrick Coffey
ADVERTISING MANAGER Brent A. Wilkes
ASST. MANAGING EDITOR Geoffrey L. Kurinsky
ASST. EXECUTIVE EDITOR Dean P. Tucker
ASST. NEWS EDITOR Sharon Hughes
ASST. SPORTS EDITOR Steven DeCosta
ASST. PHOTO EDITOR Stephen A. Ruggles
ASST. FINE ARTS EDITOR Joyce Kosofsky
TODAY'S STAFF
ISSUE EDITOR Steve Feld
EDITORIAL Jerry Lazar
SPORTS Walt Powers
DARKROOM David Less, Larry Stein, Dan Smith
AD LAYOUT Barbara Bick

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administrators read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons, and letters represent the personal views of the authors.

The Collegian subscribes to the Associated Press and the Liberation News Service. Publication of their material does not constitute endorsement.

Students Will Lose

Tomorrow and Friday, one of the most important decisions affecting the future of this University will be made when the faculty vote on whether or not to unionize themselves.

The faculty should vote unionization down. From a student perspective unionization will be tantamount to declaring open war on students and the rest of the University. If the faculty unionizes they will become a power unto themselves, unanswerable to the rest of the community for their actions. The spirit of the Wellman document, which promises students a voice in the governance of this University, will wither and die, as students are pushed away from the bargaining tables and conference rooms to which they have sought entrance for so long.

We also fear the effects of unionization on special programs on this campus such as the BDIC, Outreach, and Orchard Hill programs. If the money which funds these programs must instead be used to pay increased faculty salaries, a logical outgrowth of unionization, then students will lose again.

We realize that not all faculty are for unionization. The Committee of Concerned Faculty exemplifies this. We call faculty members who would vote against unionization to go to the polls, and not allow it to go through, because union organizers will get "their" people to the polls in large enough numbers to carry the vote.

The issue is crucial. The time is now. For the sake of students and everyone else concerned with the future of the University, the faculty should go to the polls Thursday and Friday and VOTE AGAINST UNIONIZATION.

BDIC: A Workable Alternative

By BOB RILEY

Just when this commentator had given up any semblance hope for the bureaucratic attempt at education at massive UMass, a ray of optimism has appeared in the form of the University's growing Bachelors Degree with Individual Concentration (BDIC) program. In this comparatively small but excellent facet of the UMass system, exists a means of attaining education in a highly personalized and exciting form. It is truly what education should (and hopefully will) be, taking place here and now at the University.

The basic philosophy behind BDIC is that "not all individuals can or should conform to the established patterns of higher education." The program thus allows the individual who is looking for more from the University, a chance to originate and develop his own program. Roughly, upon acceptance to the BDIC program a student works in conjunction with a faculty advisor. The faculty member aids the student in formulating a program which will best meet the needs of the individual. Upon completion of the tentative program of studies, it is submitted to the BDIC review board for final approval. The guideline placed upon the student are both rational and minimal. They are there to protect the integrity of the program and in no way inhibit anyone from best fulfilling their needs.

See Related Story,

Page Two

Thus, we have at UMass a major step forward in education, a program which acknowledges that the college student is a rational entity who just might know what he wants out of both an educational system and out of life. It allows the student to be more than just a seven digit number forced into highly structured programs which are applicable to the needs of all but serve the needs of none. It allows an individual to be an individual, in command of his own future. Finally, and perhaps most important the BDIC program allows its members to fully take advantage of the great diversity of programs the University has, but seldom fully offers.

Yet, the real crux of BDIC rests less with the University and most with those students who comprise the program. This is perhaps what makes it so exciting. BDIC requires special people. Not "special" in the sense of high academic standing or possessing any particular talent, but rather special in the sense that this student has definite ideas about his education and future and is willing to work toward turning these ideas into reality. In essence, the success or failure of the Bachelors Degree with Individual Concentration rests upon those in the program. It allows maximum committment. BDIC offers unlimited opportunity for a person to best serve himself and his needs and certainly such opportunities are rare in today's educational system.

BDIC first appeared on this campus in the fall semester of 1970. It has come a long way since then. Is BDIC the new wave of the future in education? In that matter, only time will tell. The structure and needs of BDIC and the typical university both complement and seriously conflict. However, one fact is certain. The BDIC program is providing a workable alternative to students whose needs are presently not being met by the University.

Bob Riley is a Collegian Commentator.

Reid Fishman

Watergate Poem

This is the story of seventy-two, that fateful election year, when all of the Democrats entered the race as primary time grew near.

There were Yorty and Lindsay and Hartke and Coll, Jackson, McCarthy and Mills, and each had a promise to give to us all and a cure for all of our ills.

There was lovable Hubert and someone named Wallace, whose support was growing quite husky.
There was Georgie McGovern, who hadn't a chance, and of course, there was "Honest Ed" Muskie.

On the other side, as everyone knew,
Dick Nixon would get it again.
I wish they had known, back in seventy-two,
what Tricky the Dick would do then.

As into New Hampshire the primaries came,
Ed Muskie was still the top-seater, but all of his efforts went down with his tears on the steps of the Union Leader.

As primary time went further along,
McGovern and Wallace were hot, till one fateful day in a Maryland crowd when Governor Wallace was shot.

But on went McGovern to the big golden state of Hollywood, Berkely, and Watts.
Humphrey and he were still fighting it out as to who would be calling the shots.

It was winner-take-all on the sixth day of June, and George would need this one to win.
When the battle had ceased and the tallies had come, it appeared that McGovern was in.

The convention was hot and the voting was long,
and despite the politicos' fear, the smoke in the rooms had a new kind of smell, and the New Politics was here.

But up on a hill in a gleaming white house sat a man with his counsel and aides.
They were planning a scheme that would ruin a dream, with a series of illegal raids.

The Democrats missed when they sanctioned a man who would run to be Vice President.
And McGovern's mistake was supporting that fake,
with a hearty one thousand per cent.

Now the campaign was hot but McGovern was not and the race took a turn for the worse.
And that colorless whammy that sent George to Miami had now become all but a curse.

If the nation had thought when the burglars were caught, on that frightening Watergate eve, they'd have filled in the holes with a show at the polls that would force Richard Nixon to leave.

But the voters were slow and they couldn't quite know that their president wasn't so great.
So they put him back in to the place where he'd been and forgot all about Watergate.

But the Congress was mad at the bills that they had that were vetoed and vetoed again, and the courts made a ruling that Nixon was fooling around with the wrong bunch of men.

And slowly but surely, they all resigned early as Nixon just couldn't afford to turn back and hide and to let it all slide when there's someone around like McCord.

The Watergate Show was then put on the air, with Ervin and Dean as the stars.
All over America, people were watching from offices, houses and bar.

And just as the hearings were getting quite dull, and nothing important was said,
a mention of tapes sent the world on its ears and we knew that Dick Nixon was dead.

Now most of the people all over the world want President Dick to resign, but there he still sits in his gleaming white house, pretending that everything's fine.

The moral of this is so hard to explain that I just don't know what to suggest.
It's foolish to think that a man can say "no"
while the rest of the nation says "yes".

If Richard M. Nixon decides to resign, the nation may once again breathe.
But if he refuses, it's up to us all to make our dear president leave.

Reid Fishman is a Collegian Columnist (and part-time poet!)

Joyce Kosofsky

The Mad Rush

It's that time of year again. When all thoughts of term papers and vacations are put aside for that one great moment of decision, what to take for courses next semester.

Welcome back, pre-registration.

It's an odd time of year. With the catalogue in your hand, you feel as though you have the whole University at your fingertips. That is, until you realize that you still are deficient in University Core Requirements.

"I need a gut 'E' course." "Anyone know of a good English course?" "I need one course to graduate, and it's not being offered this semester." All common problems, but still they're problems indeed.

It's that time of year when you speak to your advisor. That person who is supposed to help you on your way through this University and eventually into real life. That person who gives you five minutes of departmental requirements and three weeks of total confusion.

It's that time of year when you stock up on your number two pencils. God forbid you should fill out your computor form with a felt pen. The computor could list you as a non-entity.

It's that time of year, where the Registrar's office becomes a bigger hangout than the Campus Center.

It's that time of year you finally find a course that has nothing to do with your major, nothing to do with core requirements, everything to do with just your interest and the only time it's offered is a 8 o'clock in the morning.

It's that time of year when you play Russian Roulette through the catalogue and pray the course you picked isn't advanced electrical engineering.

It's that time of year when the lines to Whitmore start at the back of the Hatch.

It's that time of year when you find out that to take a certain upper level course you need three prerequisites that are open only to departmental majors, of which you aren't.

It's that time of year when you decide if you're going to fulfill your P.E. requirement.

It's that time of year when you seriously think of taking advance placement exams so that you won't have to take certain bullshit courses next semester.

It's that time of year when you realize that you can't take Food Science again, but you sure wish you could.

It's that time of year when you start thinking about what professors will give you independent studies for doing nothing.

It's that time of year when you wish that it wasn't. But it's here. Good luck in choosing your life next semester.

Does anyone know of a gut 'E' I can take?

Joyce Kosofsky is a Collinear Collocutor.

Editorial Staff: Important Meeting
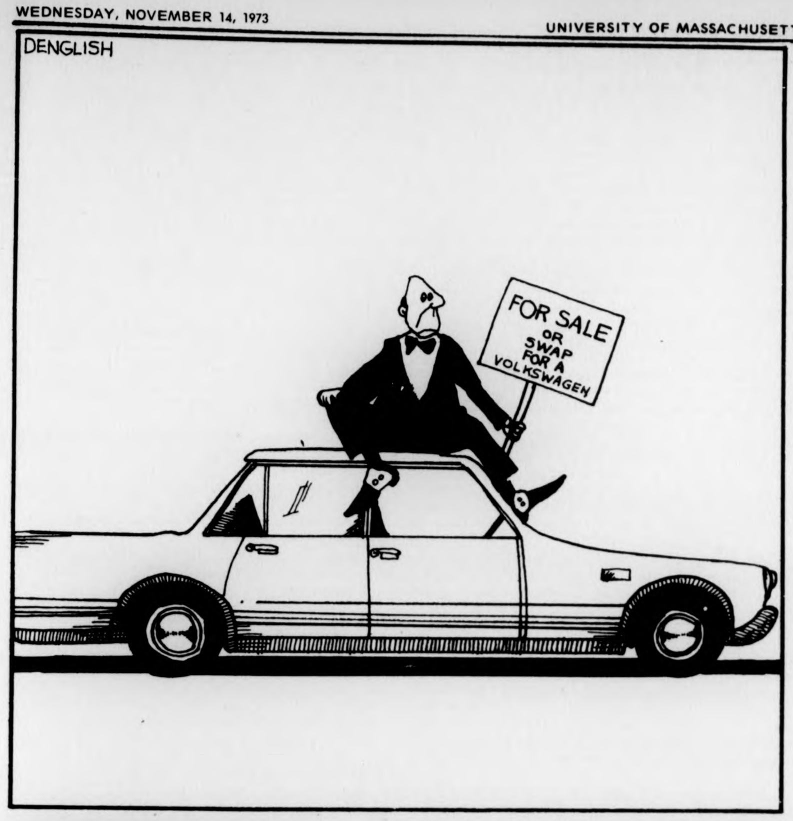
Monday, 7 p.m.



DENGLISH
FOR SALE OR SWAP FOR A VOLKSWAGEN

Letters To The Editor

Spinach Laced With Dead Bugs

To The Editor:

My gripe is a common one, so I'll try to make this letter as short but as to the point as possible.

I'm sick of the Dining Commons. I'm sick of going into Worcester Dining Commons around 10 o'clock and being forced to eat off tables that I wouldn't let a pig eat from. Have you seen them? Plastered with egg yoke, donut crumbs, pancake syrup and all other sorts of garbage, the best that they can be labeled are pig stys. I mean that they are utterly gross.

I'm sick of the dogs, cats and all the other stray animals begging from me while I'm trying to eat my so called, "full and sufficient meal'. Last week, I counted 2 dogs and a cat with one blue eye and one pink eye during one of my dinners. With this and the fact that the place was covered with litter i.e. dirty newspapers and unwashed plates and silverware all over the place, I felt as though I was in Franklin Park Zoo.

Finally, I'm sick of the incompetence and apathy in the Dining Common Staff. For example, when I reported to the supervisor of a Dining Commons that I had found a dead bug in my spinach (no joking, I really did) I was appalled by the fact that he could give a damn. He acted as though it was no big deal, and assured me that there was nothing to worry about. How could he make such a suggestion since the thing was nearly 2 inches long. As I think back upon the situation, I should have made him eat the spinach to see if he still held the same opinion.

What I'm really trying to say is that the Dining Commons have got to change. I think that for the price we pay, we are not getting our money's worth considering the service and quality of food.

Michael T. Rounds

Childish Displays

To The Editor:

I have just come from Berkshire Dining Commons where I witnessed one of the most childish displays I have seen in some time. While trying to enjoy my meal, one self-proclaimed spokesman of the students took it upon himself to show his dislike of the food by dumping his tray on the rug. With a look of apparent satisfaction, he then sauntered out of the commons, without a glance back at the mess on the floor. I cannot understand why scenes like this one must take place in our dining commons. Admittedly, the food could stand improvement, but perhaps if this over-zealous student went about protesting through the proper channels, instead of ruining what scanty pleasure we can get from our neals, something may be accomplished.

Donna Ovian

Worthless Cartoon

To The Editor:

What's the point? Not only was McGilbray's "contribution" (a graphic portrayal of a person in the act of puking) in Monday's paper disgusting, but it said nothing. Everyone knows the Dining Commons food is lousy. The statement has been made many times before, and more effectively at that. Why does McGilvray shatter his own integrity with something as totally worthless as this? If you're not feeling up to it, please spare us.

Michael King

Double Tragedy

To The Editor:

A double tragedy occured in Southwest on Saturday night when that guy plunged 15 stories to his death. The first tragedy has been talked about in the campus papers for several days now. So senseless. Meaningless......

The second tragedy is the anguish and the guilt felt by the person or persons responsible for that door being opened on the 14th floor. No charges need be brought against the people responsible. The debt has been paid, for it is a burden they must carry the rest of their lives. Few of us would want to live out our lives in the knowledge that in a moment of exuberance we had caused a person's end. I pray for you.

Jim Prelack

Luxury Items

To The Editor:

With the energy squeeze getting tighter and tighter, I wonder why some uncalled-for sources of fuel consumption go overlooked. In not one state of the fifty has fuel allocation for recreation vehicles been considered. The noise and pollution factors alone should be enough to limit the use of "mechanized monsters" such as power-boats and, especially, snowmobiles, but now with fuel at a low point I see no other alternative but to totally discontinue recreational use and to look for future banning of their manufacture.

I know things will have to act fast, but we're traveling 50 m.p.h. today where we were going 65 m.p.h. last week, so things such as restrictions can be implemented when the pressure's on. We will, no doubt, hear the excuses of the users for the recreational relaxation the machines provide always being careful to avoid the polluting facets of them. What must be realized by those users now is that snowmobiles, trailbikes, ad nauseam are a luxury item and must be considered as such. As anyone who manages his monies knows, the luxury items go first if something must. This is so true with these machines and we should act accordingly — and act fast to save what little fuel we seen to have left.

Kenneth J. Stuart

It's Oil Gone!

By SAMUEL HASSAN

If not for the President of the United States, then for the American people, I am writing this by candlelight.

I don't know whether to feel sorry for Mr. Nixon or to be my generally angry. After all, he never could've imagined it'd get this cold, dark, and dreary, it being the worldwide political scene, let alone real life.

During the Nixon Administration, and in a different way than with President Johnson, the Pentagon has waged the most inhumane war ever, that being massive air bombardment wasting most of Southeast Asia. Forgetting, as many have, the murderous acts committed by America against the Vietnamese, Cambodians, and Laotians, I would like to focus on the physical aspects of the war.

The complete devastation and poisoning of the land in itself was a murderous act so we can forget that too. What I am most interested in, during this time of the energy crisis, is how it was done. Let us remove the bullet and see just where it came from, observe the crater and see how it got there.

The Army has an electrically powered gun the men call, "Puff the Magic Dragon." It fires 18,000 rounds per minute or 300 bullets per second. The M-16 fires 12 rounds per second from short clips of 20 so as not to melt the gun barrel. Artillery guns, trucks, tanks, and jeeps, rockets, handgrenades, flamethrowers, bazookas, M-1's, M-16's, 357 magnums and 44's to mention a few are all weapons of controlled ground war.

In view of persistent technological advancement in warfare, the weapons mentioned are artifacts. They are produced from what now appear as very limited resources by seemingly boundless human labor in factories and plants throughout America. The exact figures on how many of these weapons have been used seem to have slipped my mind. So has the amound of voltage used to run every machine in the heated, well-lit factory that does defense contracts or sub-contracts. I have no idea how much gasoline, oil, and electricity has been used in collecting and transporting raw materials to mills and refineries, then to factory after factory until the final product is shipped to wherever. How much energy did the executives consume in setting it all up? It's all very mind boggling and simply our American lifestyle. As Mr. Nixon said, there are 6% of the worlds' people in the United States, and we use 30% of the worlds energy.

The war machine can't simply be shut off. When Nixon was elected in 1968 he promised to bring peace to the world. Having no intention of slowing production and finally pulling out of our World War II, Korean, French-Indochina, Vietnam, and now Middle East war economy, the President is merely trying to drag it out.

It is similar to an automobile traveling down a mountain. When Richard Nixon got in the car, which was in an 80mph 4 wheel slide, he hit the gas and pulled out at about 110mph. For five long years we've been sliding around hairpin curves, having accidents, speed-shifting, and going through tunnels that never even existed. And now in a time when we should stop and rebuild the engine, Nixon wants to downshift, having been edged on by big business sitting comfortably in the backseat. He's only doing it so he can powershift later only to either blow the engine or take necessary controls. After all, he is right. We must conserve our energy! Why should about 100,000 lights burn all night at the University?

About the air war:

For many months and at times very illegally, the United States Air Force was flying up to 200 air strikes daily over North Vietnam, parts of South Vietnam, Cambodia, and Laos. An air strike or mission generally consists of about five B-52's flying from Guam or Thailand possibly being accompanied by smaller fighter-bombers coming from air-craft carriers cruising the South China Sea or Pacific Ocean. How the hell much fuel does it take to fly 1000 B-52's a day carrying tons of bombs? In fact we've dropped over 100,000 tons in one month on three different countries amounting to over 2 1/2 million tons of bombs. Heavy!

Considering the laws of cause and effect, and gravity, one must assume it has taken an incredible amount of energy to carry out the Indochina War. Now, we must stop production for destruction, convert our factories, and exert our energy constructively. During the Nixon Administration up to 50% of our annual budget has been allocated for defense spending. This has amounted to tremendous human and environmental waste. "But now we have won peace." (RMN 11-7-73.)

Now during our peacetime (Middle East) economy, the highest official in the land wants us to turn down the thermostat 6 to 8 degrees and not drive over 50mph. He's right, we should, and we will. You can't turn up the heat if there's no oil in the burner!

If it wasn't being used to make war against them, the Arabs would sell their oil. But it looks like we're in for a cold war unlike any we have experienced. With Nixon calling for increased coal usage, we should be seeing a little less, and possibly breathing a bit harder. There should be a devastating overconsumption of firewood this winter, wiping out our remaining forest resources. Be prepared for massive distribution of speeding tickets, and for us in New England, there may be oil dericts off the coast. While Nixon's in office he will do whatever he seems necessary; thus, he must be removed from office, even if it takes 16 months.

In summary, we need a man the American people can trust to take strict measures required to save our economy, our environment, and our government. Richard M. Nixon is not now, and never can be that man. But it looks like we're in for at least 16 more months and probably 3 more years of Nixon. I hope we can make it, and if we act diligently, we can.

Skip the movies Friday night, go out and buy a blanket, some candles, and a Bic Banana. Turn off the thermostat, build a blazing fire, (if you have a fireplace) and write a letter to your congressman. If the mailtruck doesn't run out of gas, he might get it.

Samuel P. Hassan is a Collegian Commentator.

More Commentaries,

Turn To Page 14

What's Third World?

By MICHAEL PATTERSON

It seems as if people have various and conflicting ideas as to what the exact definition of the term, "Third World", is. The First World consists of the United States and the Western European nations that align themselves with the U.S. It is Third World peoples contention that these nations are the main oppressive powers in the World.

The second world consists of Soviet Russia and her sattelites. While these countries are as a rule not as oppressive as first world countries they have yet to prove their sincerity to the oppressed nations of the world.

The Third World consists of those countries and people who have been ground under the heel of imperialism, the oppressed peoples and countries of the world.

The overwhelming majority of these people are people of color. It seems as if the imperialist nations of the world decided that it's okay to oppress people as long as their not white.

The term "Third World," is an attempt by those of us who seek complete liberation of all oppressed peoples to unite and struggle together against a common enemy.

Divide and conquer and conquer is a tactic used extensively by imperialist today. So, instead of classifying ourselves in separate groups, ie., Blacks, Chicanos, Puerto Ricans, American Indians, Africans, etc., we use the term third world.

Asians are very much a part of the Third World although, in this country many seem extremely slow at realizing it. Perhaps they have forgotten that when the U.S. wanted to test out an atom bomb, Japan, an oriental country was the first to know. Or maybe they've forgotten the sorry plight of the peoples of mainland China before Mao took over and ran the U.S., England and other imperialist pigs out of their country. And maybe they've forgotten that the capital of this country is the "White House".

The majority of the Third World community in Amherst is composed of Afro-Americans. It is natural that we should align ourselves with the liberation struggles of African nations. We realize that the nations of the first world will never cease their unwarranted acts of aggression on Third World countries until we have a strong power base.

We of the Third World Community realize that Africa is ideally suited to be that base of power. The rulers of the imperialistic oppressive, nations paricularly the U.S. also realize this fact as do Africans. African Liberation struggle leaders feel that Third World people in the U.S. can help their liberation struggles greatly because we, "Live in the very heart of the beast."

The United States is truly the beast. The U.S. openly supports the racist, inhuman government of South Africa. This country gives aid and sends the Portuguese arms to perpetuate nameless atrocities in the African nations of Angola and Mozambique. The U.S. aids and supports Israel in her war in the Middle East.

All praises are due to the improved methods of transportation and mass communications for making us aware of the treachery of the United States Government. Twenty, even ten years ago it was impossible for the general public to know what events were transpiring in the eastern hemisphere. Perhaps this is why Nixon and other government have recently been criticizing the media. The media has been educating the common people far too much for these inhuman racist dogs to bear.

We of the Third World community in the world, must begin to realize that now is the time for liberation. We must realize that the oppressors time has run out. The world is switching hands. As the U.S. and her allies fall victim to the decadence predicted by Carl Marx and his followers we have to work together to build a new world. A world based on freedom and love of fellow man rather than a world run by racism and aggression.

I would like to ask my fellow students to refrain from criticizing Third World policies without even fully knowing the meaning of "Third World."

Michael Patterson is a Collegian Commentator.

Student Courts

By JAMES PAPPAS

For the past two weeks some thirty people have been involved in the first meetings of a University, wide court system. Acting as judges and advocates these people have put more time and effort into setting up a functioning court system than most people put into classes.

Their efforts haven't gone in vain. Court has met twice in the past few weeks and in each instance both judges and advocates have shown more professionalism and competance than ever before. This didn't just happen. this year's staff of judges was selected very cautiously by each area government, Stockbridge Senate, and the Commuter Assembly. These people are highly qualified and entirely committed to the idea of establishing a Student Court System. In my meetings with these people throughout the training period they've consistently impressed me with an eagerness to hear cases.

Since this system was established by the SGA, the type of litigation that may be brought before this court is restricted to anything dealing with undergraduates. At present the University Store brings any undergraduate charged with shoplifting to the Student Courts System. Any faculty or staff member may bring an undergraduate to court and similarly any undergraduate may bring another undergraduate to court. RSO groups may also be held accountable in court for their actions.

In the past, the court dealt almost solely with shoplifting. This is not the situation this year. Virtually any interpersonal dispute or grievance against a student run group (RSO) may be heard in court. The charges need not be highly legalistic. The benefit of bringing disputes of this nature to court is that you can be assured that you will be treated equally and fairly by this court, and that your interest will be represented by people well trained inthe procedures of this system.

In the past years University Judiciaries have lost crediblity as an effective group simply because judges and advocates lacked sufficient training and direction. Having remedied that situation, our court system has become an excellen forum for resolving personal disputes as well as for holding student organizations accountable for their actions.

James Pappas is Student Attorney General. His office is room 422C in the Student Union.

Reaction To SW Deaths

By SHERMAN BOYSON

I got real pissed when I saw that editorial in this morning's Collegian. It put all the blame for that death in Kennedy on Southwest. I had had it with people calling this place a zoo. I was tired of the blame for everything being put on us. But after watching how my neighbors reacted to tonight's death, I am ready to turn my back on my beloved Southwest and never have a regret.

A kid died last night. What does it take to get that through your heads? Wasn't the body lying under a glare of headlights enough to make you realize it? Didn't the sirens and barricades make you think a tragedy had happened? Why the hell was it nothing more than another spectacle to talk about, and be the first person on your floor to know?

I had to help report this story. Not a desirable assignment; death isn't a fun subject to write about. But I live in Washington. I was there when it happened. I saw what was going on, and I didn't like it one bit.

I've never seen a dead body before. Maybe I'm not used to it, but I can't understand the thrill the crowd got when the police lifted the blanket so they could take pictures of the body. A kid just died, but he didn't die in vain. He gives us all a free show, that is if you can get close enough to see.

Okay, curiosity is natural. I should know, I'm a reporter. But to mob around the body just to get a glimpse of the blood. And then there were the speculations. Everyone had the story figured out long before the police even started. He was spaced out, he was a high school kid, he was pushed, he was inspired by the other death. There sure were a lot of instant experts. Then when the body was taken away the crowd lost its reason to stay. They left, looking for a reporter or camera, hoping they could get in the newspaper.

But worst of all were the jokes I heard. I was in the elevator a few minutes after it happened. "Did you hear a kid jumped off the nineteenth floor?" "He should have jumped from the twenty-second floor. Shit, if you're gonna go, go in style." "Maybe he found he couldn't get into Food Science 101 and couldn't take it." "I would have made sure I could fly before I tried leaping out a window."

What really tears me is that this conversation was going on while the body was still lying under the words "George Washington Tower" outside the building.

Okay, not everyone in Southwest is like this. But I have to try to sleep in this dorm tonight. It's going to be a long time before I can forget seeing that body. And it's going to be a lot longer before I can forget those reactions.

I lost a lot of respect for Southwest tonight. It can't compare to the loss that Ed Waddington suffered tonight. He lost his life. Or had you forgotten that in the excitement?

Sherman Boyson is a Collegian reporter.

Congress Is Playing Chess

By MARK VOGLER

WASHINGTON, D.C.—It may take a Bobby Fischer or a Boris Spatsky to contemplate the course of this country for the next six months. For while President Nixon cautiously considers his next move, Americans have become too confused and frustrated to anticipate the future.

Congress — with power to impeach — can inevitably checkmate Nixon. However, in the past few weeks there's been no such consensus of congressional members even though constituent mail continues to flood the Hill, urging for the President's removal.

At this point in time Congress is obviously playing its own game of chess. Democrats are trying to project the likely impact impeachment would have on the '76 election. To a greater extent, the present advantages are carefully being considered — A Nixon ouster before Ford's confirmation would automatically put a Democrat in the White House. Yet, this could seriously handicap them if a weak Democrat inherits the presidency.

There are also advantages in allowing Nixon to remain if office. A crippled Nixon for three more years would tarnish whatever image remains to the Republican party. This would insure a landslide victory for Democrats in '76.

The GOP leadership in Congress is gauging the crystal ball for partisan purposes too. "Cleaning house" would be the appropriate move at this point.

Since Sen. Brooke advocated Nixon's resignation two weeks ago, more Republicans are inclined to favor resignation over impeachment. Nixon's stepping down voluntarily would greatly lessen the blow on credibility for future years and leave unanswered the serious allegations made against the Nixon administration. But an impeachment is as good as a verdict.

Unfortunately, it seems that Congress is unable to come together on the question of impeachment because they are too busy pondering the party ramifications. In the meantime other issues of national concern are being neglected.

The Nixon game plan is unpredictable — but admirably logical when viewed in the historical context.

He gave Archibald Cox ultimate authority to pursue a rigerous investigation — then fired him when Cox demanded the tapes. The country was outraged.

But Nixon asserted his innocence by surrendering evidence which — at worse — could prove incriminating. Many began to interpret Nixon's act as one done by an innocent man. Nixon surely would not indict himself......or so it seemed.

Then the surprise that the only two important tapes didn't exist further distorted the puzzle. The only impeachable evidence has been destroyed. So what will he do next?

While Nixon says he'll never resign and many doubt but vainly hope for his resignation — it's a very likely out at this point. Nixon may have this in mind. To bow out after the Ford confirmation would be an escape to the demoralization of impeachment and it would close the door of Pandora's Box (White House Horrors) in an honorable manner. You can be sure that a Nixon good-bye would have more class and pomp than Agnew's swan song.

Resignation would be done as a gesture of devout patriotism. Nixon would be very careful to maintain an honorable image in the eyes of the American people and just wouldn't allow his resigning to be viewed as "quitting in the face of catastrophe". Nor would he allow it to be interpreted as an admission of guilt.

But the Nixon mind is as confusing as a maze. Quiting — while having its advantages — would not be consistent with the Nixon way. Nixon has often said that he is crisis oriented. His present status in the wake of Watergate is his biggest crisis. To throw in the towel now ould only blur his accomplishments of ending a war and establishing a rapport with Russian and Communist Chinese leaders.

To welcome the challenge of impeachment and to emerge from such an ordeal vindicated could restore the President's credibility while at the same time lowering the credibility of his adversaries — those wanting his removal.

Being one who has always had delusions of grandeur Nixon may physically turn the country away from Watergate with a explosive political decision. Such strategy has its dangers for the country......especially if we were to be involved in another war. But thinking Nixonomically, a military victory is something to behold — certainly more relishing than the Redskins winning a superbowl.

It is this writer's view that no man — no matter how strong — can maintain his mental stability for an indefinite length of time when pressured as Nixon has been pressured. When the protective insulation is stripped from Richard Nixon, when his demise becomes apparent to him, when he can no longer cope with reality — then he'll resign.

Nixon holds the future in his hands....the country's too.

Mark Vogler is a Collegian Commentator.

Letters Policy

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian welcomes all letters to the editor. They must be signed, and include the author's address and phone number. Also, all letters must be typed, double-spaced, at sixty spaces per line, and no more than two pages.

Organizations may submit letters, but they must include a name and phone number for reference purposes.

All letters are subject to editing, for either content or space, according to the judgement of the editors. Due to space limitations, there is no guarantee that all letters received will be printed.

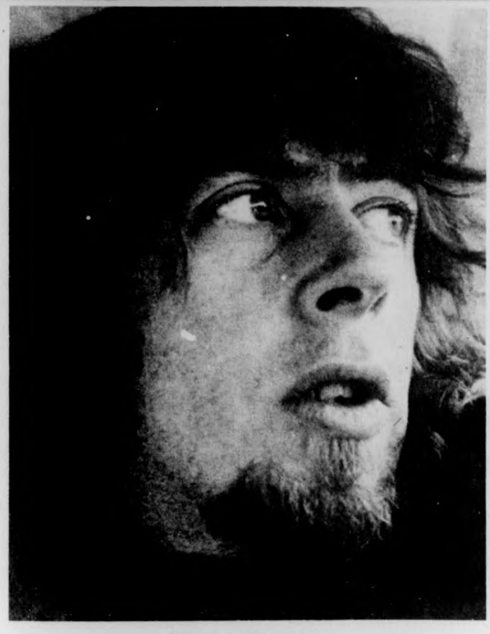
BEHAVIORAL SCIENCE turned productivity right side up. It has done the same for sales. R.E. DeWolf & Co., Inc. introduces the book; Sequential Modular Persuasion. A scientific approach to the sales process. Persuasion has always led destiny. And, created every fortune. Create yours.
Retail price $27.50. Special student price $18.50. Postpaid. Send to: R.E. DeWolf & Co., Inc., Dept. 28-M, P.O. Box 201, Whittier, Calif. 90608.

BELL'S PIZZA HOUSE
HOT OVEN GRINDERS
FREE DELIVERY ON CAMPUS

BELL'S
BELL'S
BELL'S

"People either ask for Bell's or they ask for Pizza!"
65 UNIVERSITY DRIVE
Tel. 256-8011
Tel. 253-9051



John Mayall

Springsteen And Muldaur, Too!

John Mayall Coming To Curry Hicks Cage

On Sunday, November 25 and Monday, November 26 at 8:00 P.M. the legendary blues star, John Mayall will appear in a two night performance at the Curry Hicks Cage. Featured along with Mayall on Sunday night will be Bruce Springsteen and on Monday night, Maria Muldaur.

Mayall's uniqueness lies in the manner in which he fuses American blues and jazz. He is a skilled artist of the harmonica, the electric piano and the guitar. Mayall is accompanied by four talented sidemen. The saxophone honors go to Red Holloway who adds his soulful sounds to compliment Blue Mitchell's trumpet. The rhythm section team of string bassist Victor Gaskin and drummer Keef Hartley will lay down the foundations and front the guitar in the brilliant control of Freddy Robinson. These combined talents behind Mayall's lead should prove to be an exciting concert.

Bruce Springsteen, a newly accomplished artist, will be Sunday night's special guest star. Springsteen should be recognized by the UMass audience as he made an outstanding performance at last year's spring concert. Maria Muldaur, appearing on Monday night is also expected to command a sterling performance. Muldaur presently has the number 1 selling album in Amherst.

The Mayall concert is the second concert in a series of five to be presented by the UMass Concert Committee. Student support is needed if these major concerts are to be continued.

Bruce Springsteen

Maria Muldaur

Of Interest...

Women Voters To Raise Funds

The Equal Rights Amendment passed by Congress reads: Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex. One of the principles of the League of Women Voters is, "No person or group should suffer legal, economic or administrative discrimination."

To help pass the E.R.A. thereby giving action to its principle, the League of Women Voters of Amherst are selling the E.R.A. bracelet. Funds raised will be used for ratification activities in non-ratified states. A total of thirty states have passed the amendment including Massachusetts. Ratification by eight more states is needed before the Amendment can become law.

The bracelet is a band of nickel silver with the letters "E.R.A." pierced into it. It is purposely neutral in design so it can be worn by both men and women. The bracelet can be ordered from Connie Bunker, 549-6159 for $3.09 (tax included).

The fight for the Equal Rights Amendment is forging a new solidarity among women that fosters self-confidence and the courage to use rights already theirs but not claimed because of fears.

Grad School Night Tonight

The Annual Grad School Night, sponsored by the Psychology Dept. and CUSP, The Council of Undergraduate Students in Psychology, will be held tonight from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. in Herter 231.

Representatives from the various areas within the Dept., e.g.-bio-psych, clinical, educational, social, etc., will be on hand to present the general picture of Graduate Study in the various areas of specialization that they represent. Along with this, will be a candid appraisal of the problems of admission to Grad Schools.

All Psych majors who are planning to go on to Graduate School are advised to attend. Though this program is designed primarily for seniors, all students planning to go on to Grad School are invited to attend. Plan ahead, come and find out about Grad School before you reach the point where you are boxed in and have little or no leeway left in choosing a Grad School to apply to.

Don't forget!-Tonight 7:30 to 9:30 in Herter 231. It could be the single most important thing you do that determines the rest of your career.

Everywoman's Center To Celebrate

Everywoman's Center will be celebrating its first birthday and its recent move into larger quarters with an open house tomorrow from 4:30 to 7:00 p.m. The celebration will be held in Rm. 506 of Goodell Hall and is open to the public.

The Center was born a year ago to serve the needs of women in the University community. Today, Everywoman's Center, with a full and part time staff of 32, provides short and long term counselling on personal, vocational and academic problems as well as counselling and referral on employment discrimination, housing, jobs, abortion and birth control.

E.W.C. sponsors a series of one credit workshops called Project Self and efforts are being made to set up a Women's Studies Program that will lead to a Bachelor's Degree. In January, during the five week semester break, the Center runs another series of seminars and workshops directed at faculty and staff women, but open to the University community. This project is called Everywomen's University and will run from January 7 through January 25, 1974. Another child of the Center has been the Poor Women's Task Force which has been helping poor women to gain admission and work towards a degree within the University. The Feminist Arts Center has also been functioning through E.W.C. to provide an outlet for women in the arts.

Mister Donut never knows when to quit.
(he's open 24 hrs. per day)
Mt. Farms Mall
Rt. 9
(Russell St.)
HADLEY
Mister Donut®

For the who, what, when where & how of
5 College Registration
Call 256-8316
10 - 4 Nov. 12 - 16

APPLICATIONS now being accepted for:

- Student Senate Committees: (Acad. Affairs, Student Matters, Rents & Fees, Women's)
- Public Safety Policy Council
- CC/SU Board of Governors

All interested commuters (Undergrad) — Apply at Commuter Lounge, S.U. (in back of Hatch)

P.S. The Lounge is now open!!

TONITE
&
Tommorrow Nite
Ed Vadas
Big City Blues Band
at the
Rusty Nail Inn
Rte. 47, Sunderland
665-4937

SkiRite
Amherst
1 Pray St.
SkiRite
OPENS
Next To The Pub
Tel. 253-9082
Opening with a Giant Sale...The Rite Equipment & Clothing at the Rite Price

FIREBALL — DEEP PURPLE
PROGRAM 1 Fools
PROGRAM 2 Fireball, No No No
PROGRAM 3 No One Came, Strange Kind of Woman
PROGRAM 4 Anyone's Daughter, The Mule
R-258
T-TRACK CARTRIDGE 3¾ IPS.
BREAD
'M A WANT YOU
R-2179
ND FUNK RAILROAD
CLOSER TO HOME
GHT-TRACK CARTRIDGE 3¾ IPS.
OSER TO HOME
D FUNK RAILROAD
THE DOORS
AITING FOR THE SU
EIGHT TRACK CARTRID
ABRAXAS / SANTANA
CARLY SIMON ANTICIPATION
CARLY SIMO
ANTICIPATIO
CAROLE KING
SOME KIND OF WONDERFUL
PROGRAM 1 Tapestry, Carry Your Load, Smackwater Jack
PROGRAM 2 It's Too Late, Growing Away from Me, I Feel the Earth Move PROGRAM 3 Some Kind of Wonderful, Where You Lead, Sweet Seasons
PROGRAM 4 So Far Away, Song of Long Ago, Beautiful EIGHT TRACK CARTRIDGE 3¾ IPS STEREO

Join Now

CCC TAPE SERVICE

Collegiate Consumer Coop — An association to provide members discounts through volume purchasing.

3 8-TRACK $5 Stereo Tapes

plus Free Service Catalog (Your Choice) (POSTAGE AND HANDLING INCLUDED)

- NO OBLIGATION TO BUY MORE
- ALL TAPES BY ORIGINAL ARTISTS Hundreds of selections in Rock, Soul, Country and Western, Blue Grass, Jazz, Easy Listening, Gospel.
- EXCELLENT QUALITY
- MONEY-BACK GUARANTEE
- You may purchase tapes thereafter for $2.95 Each (Limit 5 per month). A total of 8 may be purchased with your first order.

(Your original $5 makes you a lifetime member of the CCC Tape Service)

All recordings have been produced in full compliance with section 101(e), Title 17, U.S. Code (U.S. Copyright Act, amended October, 1971).

ROCK

R-2147	NEIL YOUNG	Harvest
R-2153	THE WHO	Tommy (Pt. 1)
R-108	SANTANA	Abraxas
R-2079	DOORS	Waiting for the Sun
R-304	CAROLE KING	Some Kind of Wonderful
R-2032	JANIS JOPLIN	Cheap Thrills
R-2156	GRAND FUNK	E. Pluribus Funk
R-249	JONI MITCHELL	Blue
R-246	MOODY BLUES	Every Good Boy Deserves a Favor
R-128	STEPPENWOLF	Gold
R-2141	CARLY SIMON	Anticipation
R-2179	BREAD	Baby, I'm a Want You
R-171	CARPENTERS	Rainy Days and Mondays
C-2204	GRAND FUNK RAILROAD	Closer to Home
R-258	DEEP PURPLE	Fireball
R-257	BLACK SABBATH	Master of Reality
R-255	GUESS WHO	So Long Bannatyne
R-2052	DOORS	Soft Parade
R-2026	URIAH HEEP	Look at Yourself
R-221	STEPHEN STILLS	Marianne
R-2018	LED ZIPPELIN IV	Misty Mtn. Hop
R-2127	JETHRO TULL	Benefit
R-2019	NEIL DIAMOND	Stones
R-111	BREWER & SHIPLEY	Tarkio
R-2175	THE WHO	Meaty Beaty Big & Bouncy
S-393	JIMI HENDRIX	Foxey Lady
R-2040	TRAFFIC	Low Spark of High Heeled Boys
R-436	JANIS JOPLIN	Me & Bobby McGee
R-2116	CREAM	Sunshine of Your Love
R-180	SIMON & GARFUNKEL	At the Zoo
R-265	MOTHERS	Mud Shark, Willie the Pimp
R-2163	JOE COCKER	Lawdy Miss Clawdy
R-402	CROSBY, STILLS, NASH & YOUNG	Marrakesh Express
R-107	GORDON LIGHTFOOT	If You Could Read My Mind
R-400	CREEDENCE CLEARWATER	Proud Mary
R-443	LED ZEPPELIN	Immigrant Song
R-302	THE DOORS & THE BAND	MEET HEAD ON
R-125	JAMES TAYLOR	Mud Slide Slim & Blue Horizon
R-2038	CHUCK BERRY	School Days
R-264	JEFFERSON AIRPLANE	Bark
R-2017	EVERLY BROTHERS	Bye Bye Love
R-2082	CAT STEVENS	Cat Stevens & America
R-2120	CROSBY, STILLS & NASH	Sweet Judy Blue Eyes
R-2002	THREE DOG NIGHT	Harmony
R-259	LEE MICHAELS	Lee Michaels 5th
R-347	ELVIS PRESLEY	Love Me Tender
R-2037	BOB DYLAN'S GREATEST	Lay Lady Lay

COUNTRY & WESTERN

C-203	RAY PRICE	For the Good Times
C-2105	MERLE HAGGARD	Son of Hickory Holler's Tramp
C-2011	HANK WILLIAMS	Your Cheatin' Heart
G-2107	MERLE HAGGARD	Merle Haggard & The Strangers
C-408	LORETTA LYNN	The Morning After
C-519	TAMMY WYNETTE	Divorce
C-2104	BUCK OWENS	Bridge Over Troubled Water

SOUL

S-321	ISAAC HAYES	Our Day Will Come
S-323	CURTIS MAYFIELD	People Get Ready
S-213	MARVIN GAYE	What's Going On
S-485	DIANA ROSS & SUPREMES	Then and Now
S-322	SMOKEY ROBINSON & THE MIRACLES	Cecilia, The Tears of a Clown

EASY LISTENING

E-2154	TOM JONES	I Who Have Nothing
E-487	B. J. THOMAS	Hooked on a Feeling
S-242	PERCY SLEDGE	When a Man Loves a Woman
E-2206	PETER NERO & H. MANCINI
E-439	AL HIRT	Java

CCC TAPE SERVICE ORDER FORM

	Catalog No.	Selection
1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8

Name ____________
Address ____________
City ____________ State ________ Zip ________

Please send my selection of tapes immediately. I have ordered 3 tapes for $5 and ______ extra tapes @ $2.95 each. I enclose ☐ check, or ☐ money order for $ ____________.

☐ Please send me information about making extra money as a Collegiate Consumer Coop Representative on my campus.

Send check or money order to:
Collegiate Consumer Coop • P.O. Box 4659 • Boulder, Colorado 80302

Notices

AIKIDO
Meetings Weds. and Fri. 6:30-8:30 p.m., Sun. 2:30 - 4:30 p.m., Boyden Gym, Wrestling Rm. All welcome.

AUCTION
Nov. 14, 8 p.m. in the Farley 4H House next to Alumni Stadium. Sponsored by Dames Club.

BICYCLE CLUB MEETING
Meeting tonight at 7 in C.C. (Rm. No. on Bldg. Schedule). We'll be discussing new laws just passed concerning bicycles on public roads, also bicycle bulk purchase.

BLACK MOVEMENT TODAY
Norman Oliver, Socialist Workers Party candidate for mayor of New York City will discuss the current state of the black liberation movement. Tonight at 8 in 803 C.C. Sponsored by Y.S.A.

BOXING CLUB MEETING
Regular meetings T. and Th. 7 p.m., 19th Washington. New members always welcomed. Beginners try it--you'll like it! We can teach anyone! We visit local boxing programs regularly, if interested call Dana 549-0899.

CENTRAL AREA COUNSELING CENTER
Wonder what you're doing here? Maybe we can help you figure out. Come in and rap. B2 Gorman House, Mon.-Fri., 1-9, Thurs. 10-9. Call 5-0894.

CHESS INSTRUCTIONS
New lecturer on "Middle Game Tactics", C.C. 165-169. Free.

COMMITTEE ON POVERTY
Meeting in c.C. L77. 6 p.m. Weds. concentration on National Welfare Rights Organization.

COMMUTERS
Commuter Assembly will meet today at 5:15. All are welcome. P.S. Lounge is open.

ECONOMICS DEPT
Economics 192A, Seminar-For Introductory Students should be Economics 192A, Seminar-Women in the Economy; Economics 203, Section 2 will meet Tu, Th 4:00-5:15 in Machmer E35.

FINNISH CLUB
Will meet in C.C. 911 on 11-15, 7:30-9:00 p.m. Possibility of outing, will be discussed.

HEALTH ADVISORY BOARD
The board will meet today at 4:30, 911 C.C.

HERE COMES THE JUDGE
Want to be a Judge? Student Senate is now taking applications in Rm. 420 S.U.B.

ICE CREAM PARLOR
Come to a musical ice-cream parlor at Sigma Delta Tau at 7 p.m. tonight at 409 N. Pleasant St. Meet our sisters and pledges! Be sure to call 545-0527 for rides.

INDIA NITE 1972 POSTER
Anyone having 1972 "India Nite" posters, please contact Hari or Kaul (223 or 219 Draper) Important needed for programming. Material will be returned.

IOTA GAMMA UPSILON
All UMass women cordially invited to an informal get-together, 7 p.m., at 406 N. Pleasant St. for rides 546-0082.

ISRAELI DANCING
Tra-La. Everyone is welcome to dance in the Cape Cod Lounge at 8 p.m. tonight.

JAPANESE FILM SERIES
Tonight--Sanjuro, Directed by Akira Kurisawa, Tashiro Mifune's most fabulous samurai film! 7:30, 9:30 Thompson 104. Admission fee at the door.

MOVIE
Come see a great detective flick, with a greater chase scene. Bullitt: 7, 8, 9, 11 C.C.A.

DAVID NYHAN
David Nyhan, Labor Editor at The Boston Globe will speak Thurs. 11-15 in 105 C.C. at 2:30 p.m. His topic is "A Reportorial View of Labor in the 1970's".

POL. SCI. MAJORS MEETING
There will be a meeting of all Political Science Undergraduate Majors interested in forming a Pol. Sci. Under grad. Majors Student Union on Thur. 11-15 at 7 p.m. in Machmer W 24.

PSYCH MAJORS
Annual Grad School Night, tonight, 7:30-9:30 p.m. Herter 231. Reps from various areas of the dept. will be on hand--info., candid appraisal. Re-admissions.

SCUBA CLUB
There will be a meeting tonight to discuss dive for the weekend. Pool from 7:30-10:00 Curry Hicks Rm. 14 at 7 p.m. Everyone invited to attend.

SKI CLUB MOVIE
The Ski Club is showing "Evel Knievel" tonite at 8 and 10 p.m. in Mahar. Along with that is a 10 min. W.C. Field's movie, "The Fatal Glass of Beer".

STRATEGY GAMES CLUB
Avalon Hill players meeting Wed. night 11-14, 6 p.m. in C.C. 103. All newcomers welcome.

ADVERTISE FREE
Western Massachusetts
Super Ad List

FAIR EXCHANGE
A New Ad Weekly
Articles For Sale by Private Owners

10 per cent of Advertised Price only IF and WHEN you sell
10,000 ACTIVE Buyers

NO DEALER ADS

SPECIAL 2 WEEK OFFER
No Commission Charge 25 word limit —
Ads must be received before Mon. noon, Nov. 19
FAIR EXCHANGE
P.O. Box J
N. Amherst, Mass. 01059
CALL 256-0236
Clip and Mail

TEXTBOOK NOTICE
After Thanksgiving, the Textbook Annex can no longer guarantee that your textbook will be on our shelves. If you have put off buying any of your textbooks, please do so now to be assured of its availability.

GEOGRAPHY ASSOCIATION
Meeting on Thur. 11-15, 8 p.m. C.C. 811.

LOST
Female beagle, on Montague Rd., Sunderland. Answers to "Brandy" - 665-3288, Dennis Ryan, Mt. Toby Apt. 15.

Silver wire-rimmed glasses in Bartlett on Wed. 11-7 Reward, please call 665-3483.

Large manila envelope containing poetry, essays, short stories etc... Call Carolyn 6-6857, 6-7100.

At Concert Worc. D.C. Sat., blue-orange snorkel parka, w-key, I.D. All needed desperately. Call Kit 546-5943 or leave in C.C. lost and found.

Left on a campus bus, 1 canvas in a brown paper wrapping plus a folder with a semester's work in it. Please return the folder--it's very much needed. Call 253-9066 or 549-4500, C. Cheever.

Spiral notebook: titled Public Health. Call Sarah 549-4529.

FOUND
Medium sized golden dog, nursing female, Wilmington. Vermont dog tag, collar, found at Puffton Sat. p.m. 549-4503.

Worc. D.C. after Sat. Concert; brown knit cap, blue windbreaker, b-w pin-striped jacket. See C.C. lost and found.

1¢ THANKSGIVING
ONE CENT
SALE
TODAY THRU FRIDAY
BUY ONE PAIR OF PANTS AT OUR REG. PRICES AND GET THE SECOND PAIR FOR ONLY... 1¢
UP TO ½ OFF MOST: TOPS · COATS · PEASANT TOPS · MUCH MUCH MORE
COME TO CLIMAX
DO IT IN THEE ALLEY ~ NORTH OF THE POLICE STATION

Middle East Emergency Aid Fund

The renewed eruption into all-out war of the complex conflicts in the Middle East has already resulted in immeasurable human suffering. When the battles cease, as we hope they soon will, thousands of lives will have been lost and many thousands more will carry scars for years to come. Yet the political conflict will still be there, unresolved in spite of the battles and the destroyed human lives. It will be there until the people involved search together, cooperatively, for solutions that deal with the deep roots of this conflict, and that recognize the basic human needs and rights of all parties.

Meanwhile, there is a vast need for aid to all the civilian victims of this emotion-laden and tragic war, aid designed to ease suffering rather than to provide new resources for the continuation of armed conflict. We, the undersigned, hereby establish the MIDDLE EAST EMERGENCY AID FUND for aid to the civilian victims on all sides of this war. The American Friends Service Committee has consented to receive this fund and will administer it impartially in accordance with need, following the AFSC's long-standing tradition. We call on everyone to join us in contributing generously to this emergency fund and in a search for a just and lasting peace.

CONTRIBUTIONS should be mailed directly to American Friends Service Committee, 160 North 15th Street, Philadelphia, Pa. 19102. Checks should be made out to AFSC-MEEAF.

For more information, please call or write to: David Gil, Heller School, Brandeis University, Waltham, Mass. 02154, telephone 617-647-2927 or 862-6037.

(This statement was written by the founders of the Middle East Emergency Aid Fund, which is sponsored by over 70 concerned Americans. Among the sponsors are biologist George Wald, sociologist David Riesman, Dr. Irene Gendzier, professor of history at Boston University, Dr. Noam Chomsky Professor of Linguistics of MIT and Professor Roger Fisher of Harvard Law School).

juilliard string quartet

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 1973
BOWKER AUDITORIUM
8 p.m.

RESERVED TICKETS: $1.50 UM/A students $3.00 all others
FINE ARTS COUNCIL OFFICE, 125 Herter Hall 545-0202

Presented by the University of Massachusetts Fine Arts Council

THE LEGISLATURE, THE TRUSTEES AND THE ADMINISTRATION ARE WAITING:

Over the past eighteen months the MSP-AAUP has strongly objected to the imposition of quotas on tenure, merit and promotions. THE MSP-AAUP has also voiced strong opposition to curtailment of the Graduate School and other research oriented programs. This collective bargaining election represents a referendum on the issues. The Legislature, the Board of Trustees and the Administration are awaiting the faculty's decision.

A large majority for the MSP-AAUP will mean a faculty mandate against quotas on tenure, merit and promotion. A clear MSP-AAUP faculty victory signifies the faculty's will to participate in the decision-making process which affects the academic and personal lives of each of us.

MSP-AAUP FOR A STRONG, INDEPENDENT FACULTY VOICE

YES

☒

SKI THE ALPS

AUSTRIA • FRANCE

$269 1-week, per person, double, from New York or Nassau. Add $98 from Chicago. Singles add $1..

Features round-trip jet to Luxembourg, RT bus to Kitzbuhel, 2 meals daily, double room in chalet, Dec. 14 and weekly in Jan. Add $10 Feb. and March. Also, 1-week ski tours to Chamonix and 2 weeks to Kitzbuhel or Chamonix. Lowest-cost ski tours to Europe of any scheduled airline.

$250 Car or Rail Tour*

One week, per person, double, features round-trip jet from New York to Luxembourg and car with unlimited mileage—or $260* unlimited rail travel in 13 European countries for singles. Add $98 from Chicago. Offered Nov. thru March.

SEE YOUR TRAVEL AGENT
All prices subject to change.

To: ICELANDIC AIRLINES
(212) 757-8585
630 Fifth Ave., N.Y., N.Y. 10020
Outside N.Y. State: Toll Free
(800) 221-9760

Send folder CN on tours to Europe from N.Y. ☐, from Chicago ☐, from Miami/Nassau ☐.

Name____________
Street____________
City____________
State________ Zip______
My Travel Agent is____________

ICELANDIC
3056 cover-all with LEE OVERALLS sizes for little guys too

WEAR-HOUSE

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

Pisces and Libra persons are said to be indecisive. But, if the truth be known, it is taht natives of these signs often reflect and meditate. Libra seeks balance and is a mediator. Pisces is sensitive and "picks up" trends, moods. Pisces is activated in finances by Libra. Libra finds ways of accomplishing tasks with Pisces. Together, there may be a kind of bogging down but, as a pair, these signs achieve and persist until obstacles fall by the wayside. Here we have Neptune (Pisces) and Venus (Libra) and the combination can be beautiful illusion and a swinging away from the mainstream. Pisces and Libra appreciate each other but there could be a sameness, a pattern which causes each to look elsewhere for at least a temporary change of pace.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Seek what is solid — bypass promises made on spur of moment. Assert your needs. Express yourself. Strike a more independent stance. Check property values. Don't sell product or yourself short. Leo, Aquarius could be involved.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Accent versatility. Experiment. Try new dining place. See and be seen. Come out of shell. Older individual changes tune. You gain co-operation where, in recent past, there were obstacles. Relative plays key role.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Study Taurus message. Money roadblock can be removed. You will have greater freedom of movement. You can try various methods. You feel less restricted. Accept social invitation. Surprise gift may be on agenda.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Vitality makes comeback. Your sense of purpose is reinformed. Individuality shines through — persons become more aware of your style, ability. Timing improves. You get second chance. Be forthright, direct.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Emphasis is on how you function within group, organization. Make suggestions but don't insist on only your own way. Some compromises may be necessary. Important now to be discreet. Play cards close to chest.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Friendship, gift, romantic interlude — these could be highlighted. Be diplomatic, receptive. Remodel. Beautify surroundings. Check tendency to give in to "sweet tooth." You do pay the price and it might be too high.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be selective. One who can pull strings wants to know how realistic you are — act accordingly. Pisces, Virgo persons might play prominent roles. Emphasis is on ambition, goal, ability to get to heart of matters.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Good lunar aspect coincides now with long-range plans, travel, language, higher education. You find out where you are going and why you are here. Some metaphysical contemplation may be involved. Don't fear looking inward.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Concern with the hidden or occult is indicated. You may be held accountable for funds which only pass through your hands. Don't take part in "dirty tricks." Your own image need not be tarnished by one who is childish, churlish and lacks taste.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Take it easy; lie low. Absorb information while playing passive role. Means don't insist, push or show your hand. Permit one close to you to have last say. You get surprise but it is given rather than earned. Know it and be willing to wait. Leo is involved.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Emphasis on how you "digest." Includes information, experience as well as food. Basics are accented. Get machinery in working order. Check those who are supposedly performing basic funtions. One born under your sign could play key role.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Favorable lunar aspect coincides now with creative endeavors and relationships with opposite sex. You express yourself and make some key changes. You come out of rut and come alive. Young person plays significant role.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are creative, restless, fond of travel and you get involved in emotional dilemmas. Very few aspects of your life remain uncomplicated. You usually take cold plunge but end up in hot water. You're capable, however, of extricating yourself from complications. August was very important and December could be a delight.

Copyright 1973, Gen. Fea. Corp.

Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS

1 Melodies
6 Collect
11 Feel indignant at 12 Seasoned
14 Teutonic deity
15 Twist
17 Affection
18 Pose for portrait
20 Goes by water
23 Writing implement
24 Biblical weed
26 Piece of dinnerware
28 Football position (abbr.)
29 Incline
31 Comes into view
33 Mental image
35 Ladle water from 36 Mollifies
39 Jumps
42 Three-toed sloth
43 Playthings
45 Break suddenly
46 Possessive pronoun
48 Laughing
50 Expire
51 Vessel
53 Brought into existence
55 Sun god
56 Weirder
59 Awe
61 Leases
62 Spirited horse

DOWN

1 Continued story
2 Bone
3 Seine
4 African antelopes
5 Strip of leather
6 Conjunction
7 Parent (colloq.)
8 Everyone
9 Cease
10 Strict
11 Remains at ease
13 Depressions
16 River in Africa
19 Spoor
21 Young sheep
22 Take unlawfully
25 Finished
27 Iroquoian Indians
30 Singing voice
32 Secreting organ
34 Husband of Gudrun
36 Lift
37 Conjunction 38 Thick slice 40 Coupled 41 Lance
44 Overwhelms
47 Father
49 Jog
52 Metal fastener
54 Compass point
57 Latin conjunction
58 Rupees (abbr.)
60 Prefix: down

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

PIN BOUTS SIP
ORE ONSET ARA
TATTLE PUTTER
TAT FINER HELM HID TACT
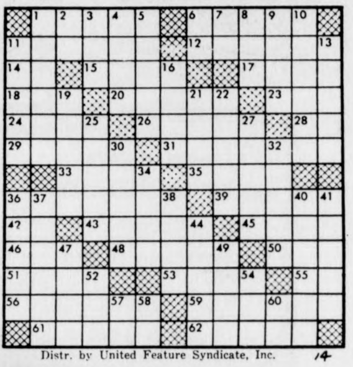
ENE TAX HOPES
AS LID WON RA
TUNIS PIE SER
SEAM COT BESS
TEPEE WAN
PAUSED PARSES
ERR RAGED ELK
GEE TROTS DAY

14



1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15
16
17
18 19 20 21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28
29 30 31 32
33 34 35
36 37
38
39 40
41 42
43
44
45
46
47 48
49
50 51
52
53
54
55
56
57
58 59 60
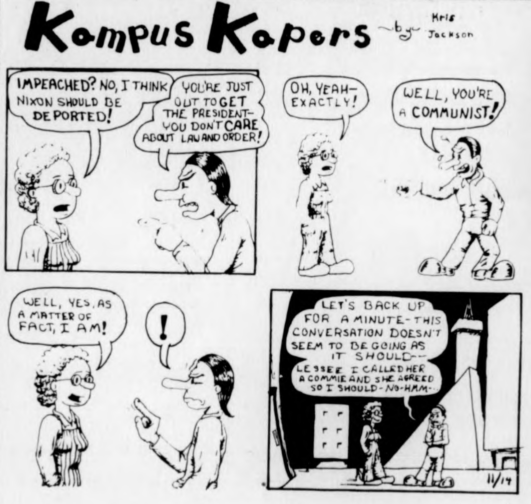
61
62

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 14



Kompus Kapers
by Kris Jackson
IMPEACHED? NO, I THINK NIXON SHOULD BE DEPORTED!
YOU'RE JUST OUT TO GET THE PRESIDENT- YOU DON'T CARE ABOUT LAW AND ORDER!
OH, YEAH- EXACTLY!
WELL, YOU'RE A COMMUNIST!
WELL, YES, AS A MATTER OF FACT, I AM!
!
LET'S BACK UP FOR A MINUTE- THIS CONVERSATION DOESN'T SEEM TO BE GOING AS IT SHOULD-- LESSEE I CALLED HER A COMMIE AND SHE AGREED SO I SHOULD- NO-HMM-
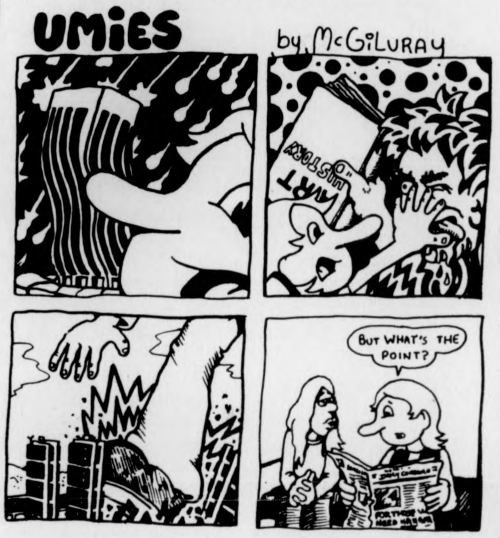
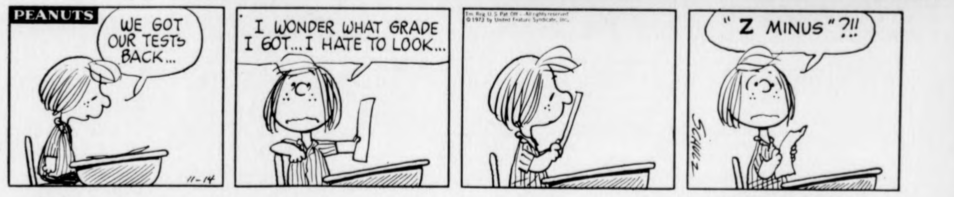
11/14

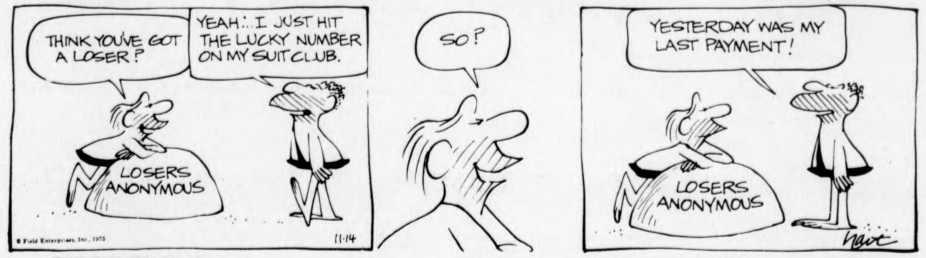


UMIES
by McGiLURAY
ART HISTORY
BUT WHAT'S THE POINT?



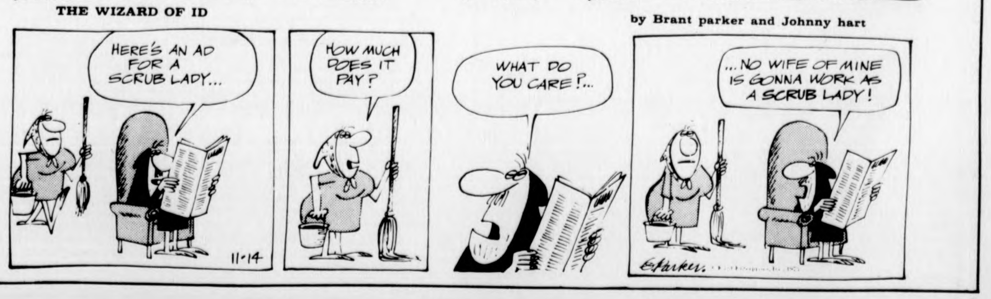
PEANUTS
WE GOT OUR TESTS BACK...
11-14
I WONDER WHAT GRADE I GOT...I HATE TO LOOK...
"Z MINUS"?!!
SCHULZ

B. C. by Johnny hart



THINK YOU'VE GOT A LOSER?
YEAH...I JUST HIT THE LUCKY NUMBER ON MY SUIT CLUB.
LOSERS ANONYMOUS
© Field Enterprises, Inc., 1973
11-14
SO?
YESTERDAY WAS MY LAST PAYMENT!
LOSERS ANONYMOUS
hart

THE WIZARD OF ID by Brant parker and Johnny hart



HERE'S AN AD FOR A SCRUB LADY...
11-14
HOW MUCH DOES IT PAY?
WHAT DO YOU CARE?...
...NO WIFE OF MINE IS GONNA WORK AS A SCRUB LADY!
B Parker

Chile Teach-In To Be Held

Two eyewitnesses to the accomplishments of the socialist government led by Salvador Allende and to the military coup that overthrew it will speak at a teach-in tomorrow, at Hampshire College.

Adam Schesch spent three years in Chile studying the Popular Unity government. When the government was overthrown, Schesch was one of several thousand people imprisoned in the National Sports Arena, which the junta converted into a concentration camp. He was one of the more fortunate ones -- he got out of the Sports Arena and out of Chile, alive and with a great deal to tell about what he saw.

Edward Boorstein, an economist who had previously advised on the Cuban economy and written a book about it (The Economic Transformation of Cuba: A First-Hand Account), worked with the Popular Unity government from the beginning.

Schesch and Boorstein will speak, and a film about a working class/peasant shantytown outside Santiago will be shown, in the Main Lecture Hall, Academic Building I at Hampshire, Thursday at 8:00.

SHOW MOE HOWARD THAT WE WANT HIM!

COME TO THE 3 STOOGES FILM FEST

5 FLICKS WITH THE REAL CURLY

Fri., Nov. 16 C.C. Aud.

Only 50° 7, 9, 11 p.m.

UMass. Ski Club presents:

"EVIL KNIEVEL"

Plus, a 10 min. W.C. Fields Flick,

"The Fatal Glass of Beer"

Tonite, Nov. 14 at Mahar

two showings, 8 and 10 p.m.

50c for Ski Club Members

75c for General Public

TONIGHT

STEVE McQUEEN

BULLITT

WED., NOV. 14 7 + 9 + 11:00

S.U.B. 75¢

— OPENED TO STANDING ROOM ONLY IN NEW YORK —

"A NATIONAL TRAUMA HAS BECOME A THRILLER·

A cool, skillful argument for conspiracy. Those with an affection for suspense can enjoy the build-up of the plotting."
- The New York Times

"WILL HIT YOU WITH THE IMPACT OF a 6.5mm BULLET!"
- Group W Radio

PREMIERE AREA SHOWING

Was President Kennedy's Assasination An . . .

EXECUTIVE ACTION

7:15 & 9:00

HELD OVER

"Last Tango in Paris is a genuine masterpiece of staggering proportions."
—Edward Behr, Newsweek

Marlon Brando Last Tango in Paris

7:15 & 9:45

United Artists

Campus Cinemas 256-6411 AMHERST-HADLEY LINE

DOLLAR NITES! MON. & TUES ADMISSION $1.00

"Best American movie of the year." OR "A vicious right-wing fable." -New York Times

Audiences are standing up and applauding . . . shouldn't you find out why?

? WALKING TALL

7:15 & 9:30

MDC CLASSIFIEDS

FOR SALE

S & L Camera Imports has new cameras, lenses & other photo equip. at slashed prices. Full warranty, all makes and models. Call Ken, 6-9723. tf11-30

Live Christmas trees, select and tag now, any size $6.31. L. Blizniak, 133 Bay Rd., Hadley. tf12-12

Mag wheels — 4-14" mt. chrome wheels for G.M. cars, cost $100, sell for $40. 6-4538. tf11-15

Guitar Mossman 6 string; BRA2 Rosewood, Mahogneck, Ebony Board. Used 6 mo., retail $620 sell for $450, incl hardshell case. Call 369-4042. tf11-14

The Arms Race: A 1 credit Minicourse, Phyics 190D. No prereq. MWF 11:15, HAS 124, Nov. 12 - Dec. 12. Call Prof. Guyer, 545-0933 for details. tf11-14

For sale — alto saxophone, $135; cello, $300. 584-6279, ask for Tom. tf11-16

Ski equipment — Olympia, like new boots and rack, size 10, clip style carrier and poles. For information call 586-1368. tf11-14

1964 VW, good condition, $150. Ask for Tom, 549-1506 after 5 p.m. tf11-16

1967 Barracuda, smashed front end, 383 4-speed, Mallory distributor, new starter, motor, $225 takes it. Sandy, 584-2019. tf11-16

1966 Cutlass Supr p.s. p.b., very good condition. Call 367-2771. tf11-16

Bus: 1956 white motor school bus, slightly remodeled, excellent condition, $250. Call 527-5737 aft. 5 p.m. tf11/20

Head skis 6' 8" with marker bindings, Ladomolite S10 boots, Scott poles 3'; need $ make me an offer. Call 253-5920 after 5. tf11-16

For sale — Good 10 speed bicycle. Want $90. Call 256-0368. Ask for Dave. tf11-15

FOR SALE

Kenwood Receiver KR-77, mint condition 34 watts RMS per channel excellent tuner section. Call Rich 6-8981. Let it ring, must sell. tf11-14

Great Dane puppies for sale. A.K.C. Reg., males & females, 9 wks. old. Very reasonably priced. Call 584-1625. tf11-14

Lange Pro Ski Boots almost new condition, must sell fast $40 or best offer. Call 546-5373, ask for Stu. tf11-16

Photo equip. Prof. darkroom. Bronica S-2a system. Minolta-Srtioi body, dry mounter, all mint condition. 665-3401. tf11-16

Panasonic SE-2030 FM-AM Stereo with stereo automatic turntable also has Quadraplex unit. Best offer 253-2746, ask for Mike. tf11-16

Skiis — cheap, Fischer ALU 205cm, brand new $50. Call Chip, 6-4651. tf11-15

New stereo tape cassette player-recorder with Dolby system, Akai with ADR System, Invertomatic, $200 or best offer. Call 586-2215. tf11-16

Temple P.A., 100 watts, 812 in speakers 2 columns. 1 year old. $350 or best offer. 532-0881. tf11-27

FOR RENT

Apt for one — Avlbl. imm. lg brm. sm kit. full bath. storage. pkg. 220 N. Pleasant. 2 nd fl of ig house. All utl. incl. $145. 549-3736, 253-8742. tf11-14

Garage space, central Amherst. Safe and inexpensive. D.H. Jones 549-3700. tf11-29

RIDER WANTED

From Boston (Brighton) to Amherst. Leave every Monday at 7:30 p.m. Call 545-0135 or 617-782-9148. tf11-14

AUTO FOR SALE

Austin Healey, 3000, 1960, fully restored. Call 665-4182. tf11-14

1970 VW sunroof, excellent mechanical condition. Best offer, need to sell, license revoked. Call 549-0648, after five thirty. tf11-14

Dodge Coronet, 1966, 273, std. trans., good tires, new battery, starter, generator, exhaust, runs very well, and is dependable. Asking $375. Call 549-3669. tf11-15

1968 Chevelle Malibu, p.s., p.b., V-8 auto., excel. condition, selling for new car. Call Dan, 256-6863, leave number, keep trying. tf11-14

For sale — 1970 Chevelle, 4 speed 302, Hurst shifter, reasonable. Phone 546-4554. tf11-14

69 Toyota Corona, rebuilt engine, many new pts. Muffler, tires etc. Good running cond. Body is fair to good $750. Call Jon 253-2805. tf11-16

68 Dart conv., 6 cyl. new innards, fine machine, needs love. $450 or 256-0597. tf11-15

1948 Packard, good running condition, straight - 8 with overdrive, interior good outside fair. Good tires, new battery. 546-8688. tf11-15

'64 Pontiac Catalina white, w-blue top exc. cond. sticker, snow tires, new shocks, just tuned a real buy. $250, call 546-6211. tf11-14

1964 Ford Galaxie dependable, it runs runs, runs. Two snow tires also. $150. Call 5-2304 keep trying. Ask for Ken in 322. tf11-16

AUTO FOR SALE

1966 Oldsmobile Toronado, stylish, automatic, power steering, brake, new front tires, $350. Call 549-6132. tf11-15

70 Ply Duster, stan trans 8 cyl, save gas. 70 series tire, spec wheels, tape deck, new snows exc cond. Sell below mkt, only $1195 - 256-0461. tf11-16

WANTED

Garage to store small car for winter months or info about one. Call 549-1263, Ed Cook. tf11-14

N.E.S. needs any kind of scrap material (fabric) for kids' collages. Bring your scraps to 426A Student Union before Thurs., Nov. 15. tf11-14

Medical technologist or equivalent for part time position. Hours 2:30 p.m. to 11:00 p.m. weekends. Call 413-774-3111, ext. 29 or 38. tf11-16

Wanted ski bindings Marker Simplex DL and Rotomat FD, good money for used bindings. Call Rick 6-5481, keep trying. tf11-16

LOST

$100 reward for any information leading to the recovery of my stolen Bultaco Race Bike. I just want it back. Call 545-2172. tf11-15

I lost my drivers license. Please bring to the Collegian, to Pedro Hernandez. tf11-15

TO SUBLET

1 bedroom apt. at Brandywine. 1 1/2 mi from UM on bus Rte., large rms. Central A/C. W/W carpeting. Jan. 1 - Aug. 31. Can renu. 549-3946. tf11-21

ROOMMATE WANTED

2 male Eng. grad students want mature hip m/f to share 3 bedroom apt. in Amherst, old house, $67 plus. 253-5275. tf11-15

Need mature female roommate for Dec. 1 or Jan. 1. Own room. Cliffside on bus route, mainly furnished. $85. per mo. includes utilities. 665-4355. tf11-16

Wanted: Female to apartment hunt with for Jan. 1. Call Linda after 6 p.m. 253-7752. tf11-16

Female to share 1 bdrm. Presidential apt, beginning Jan. Semi-furnished, $87.50 - mon., incl. utilities. Call 549-4463. tf11-16

2 b.r. apt. to share Private room, no deposit $100 mo. all util incl. Call 665-2858. Avail Dec. 1 - lease to May. tf11-16

Roommate wanted to share completely furnished apartment, available immediately. $100-mo. Call 253-9863, lease runs till May 30. tf11-27

Female Grad Student or faculty. Own room., on bus ro. N Amherst $85 & util. Dec. 1 or Jan. 1, 545-2274 days 549-6155 eve. D. Miller. tf11-16

1 or 2 females wanted to share 2 bedroom Brandywine apt. (N. Amherst) starting Jan. Call 549-0734 evenings. tf11-15

MOTORCYCLES FOR SALE

Dirt - 1973 Bultaco Pursang 125 MX, never raced, 2 hrs on engine must be seen to appr. 256-8391. tf11-15

750 Honda, 3 inch over tubes, custom paint, many extras, must be seen, $1,500 or best offer. Phone 586-3952 evenings. tf11-16

Star needs a friend. Give your playful kitten a playmate. Star is a white & orange Persian. 3 mos. old, affectionate. Julie 617-544-3362. tf11/14

Central Area

Survey Almost Complete

Completed Needs Surveys are now being returned to the Central Area Counseling Center. The vast majority of those being returned indicate the needs and concerns of the people of Central Area are many and diverse.

There is a sense of indirection stemming from lack of clear goals, and a sense of alienation that results from unsatisfying contacts with various aspects of the UMass academic institution in attempts to define those goals. Many seem to feel they really don't know why they're here, or what the role of a student is. From these concerns there follows questions of self-worth and utilization of self-potential.

Many are concerned with their living situations; the conflict between the dormitories as communities and dormitories as hotels is very real. It is the conflict between those who want to communicate in constructive ways with those who don't, complicated by most people not knowing where to start and how. Cut off from the support of others, the problems of finding one's place and meaning in life at school are weighted unnecessarily by the sinking feeling of isolation.

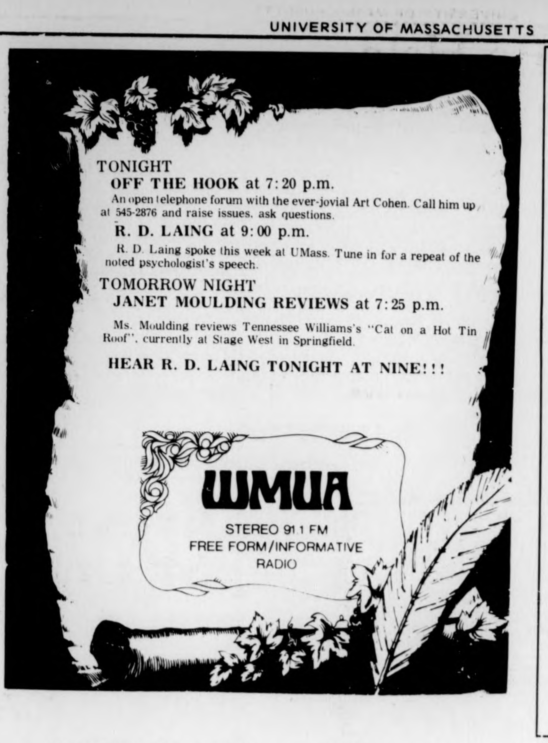
When all the surveys are in, programs from the Center will begin in dormitories dealing with the concerns evidenced by the people in the Area. Some, like a workshop in Communication Skills, are already being planned. If there are any suggestions for programs that people were not able to put on the survey, feel free to call the Center. We're in B2 Gorman, and we're open 1 p.m. to 9 p.m. Mon. through Fri., and 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Thur. Stop by!

UMass Police
New Emergency
Number
5-3111

SKI SPAIN

Earn 2 credits during intersession

Call 5-2801



TONIGHT

OFF THE HOOK at 7:20 p.m.

An open telephone forum with the ever-jovial Art Cohen. Call him up at 545-2876 and raise issues, ask questions.

R. D. LAING at 9:00 p.m.

R. D. Laing spoke this week at UMass. Tune in for a repeat of the noted psychologist's speech.

TOMORROW NIGHT

JANET MOULDING REVIEWS at 7:25 p.m.

Ms. Moulding reviews Tennessee Williams's "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof", currently at Stage West in Springfield.

HEAR R. D. LAING TONIGHT AT NINE!!!

WMUA

STEREO 91.1 FM

FREE FORM/INFORMATIVE RADIO

MDC Classifieds

Film:

They Shoot Horses, Don't They?

Starring Jane Fonda, Gig Young, Susannah York and Michael Sarrazin

Thurs., Nov. 15th 7, 9, 11 p.m.

Mahar Aud.

Television Tonight

5:00 ENSIGN O'TOOLE (18)
HOGAN'S HEROES "Art For Hogan's Sake." (22)
MISTER ROGERS NEIGHBORHOOD (24) (57)
ADVENTURES OF SUPERMAN (27)
BEVERLY HILLBILLIES "Granny Goes To Hooterville." (30)
5:30 THE REAL McCOYS "First Love." (18)
THE LUCY SHOW "Lucy and Phil Silvers." (22)
THE ELECTRIC COMPANY (24) (57)
GOMER PYLE 'The Wild Bull Returns." (27)
HOGAN'S HEROES "The rise and Fall Of Sergeant Schultz." (30)
NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS (40)
5:55 WHAT'S HAPPENING UPDATE (3)
6:00 NEWS (3) (8) (22)
I SPY "Turnabout for Traitors." (18)
ZOOM! (24) (57)
PETTICOAT JUNCTION "The Baffling Raffle." (27)
TO TELL THE TRUTH Garry Moore, host (30)
WILD WILD WEST "Night Of the Red Eyed Madman." (40)
6:30 NEWS (3) (22) (30)
ABC EVENING NEWS (8)
MAKING THINGS GROW (24)
UNTAMED WORLD (27)
LOUIS LYONS: NEWS AND COMMENT (57)
6:55 NEWSBEAT NEWS (40)
7:00 WHAT IN THE WORLD (3)
TRUTH OR CONSEQUENCES Bob Barker, host (8)
DICK VAN DYKE SHOW "Father Of The Week." (18)
NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS (22) (30)
YOUR FUTURE IS NOW (27)
MOVIE "Ten Seconds to Hell." (24)
ABC EVENING NEWS (40)
THE REPORTERS (57)
7:30 THE PRICE IS RIGHT (3)
DEAL WITH THE ISSUES (8)
GREEN ACRES "Culture" (18)
THE HOLLYWOOD SQUARES Peter Marshall, host (22)
THE FRENCH CHEF (24) (57)
ANIMAL WORLD (30)
DRAGNET (40)
8:00 THE SONNY AND CHER COMEDY HOUR (3)
MOVIE "Brian's Song." (8) (40)
THE CHAMPIONS "The Mission." (18)
ADAM—12 "Capture." (22) (30)
BILL MOYER'S JOURNAL (24) (57)
8:30 ELVIS: ALOHA FROM HAWAII (22) (30)
9:00 CANNON "The Limping Man." (3)
THE 700 CLUB (18)
THE MILD BUNCH (24)
BORIS KARLOFF PRESENTS THRILLER "The Devil's Ticket." (27)
THE DIRECTOR (57)
9:30 MOVIE "Trapped." (8) (40)
A CHESTNUT HILL (24)
10:00 KOJAK "Knockover." (3)
THE BLUE KNIGHT (22) (30)
GOVERNOR'S REPORT (24)
NEWS (27)
MARTIN AGRONSKY: EVENING EDITION (57)
10:30 THE LIVING WORD (18)
CPTV PRESIDENT'S REPORT (24)
MANTRAP (27)
BOOKBEAT (57)
11:00 NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS (3) (8) (18) (22) (27) (30) (40)
11:30 CBS NEWS SPECIAL REPORT (3)
WIDE WORLD OF ENTERTAINMENT (8) (40)
JOHNNY CARSON SHOW (22) (30)
12:00 MOVIE "Agent Eight and Three Quarters" (3)
1:00 NEWS (8) (40)
TOMORROW Tom Snyder, host (22) (30)
1:55 NEWS, WEATHER (3) (22) (30)

AMHERST Cinema AMITY ST., AMHERST

The Fall of the Roman Empire 1931-1972

"FELLINI'S ROMA"
R United Artists

An ALBERTO GRIMALDI Production "FELLINI SATYRICON" (English Subtitles) COLOR by DeLuxe® PANAVISION® R United Artists

MON. & TUES. ADMISSION $1.00

MDC CLASSIFIEDS

HELP WANTED

Collegian is looking for an Asst. Advertising Manager. Job involves supervising ad reps & building advt. revenue. Must be an underclassmen, with car, & a genuine interest in newspaper advt. Experience in marketing & graphics helpful but not essential. Will have to work hard for small pay but the rewards in experience will be invaluable. Person hired will be trained to become the advertising manager for next year. For details and information see Brent Wilkes at the Collegian Office. tf11-16

Full or part time help days or evenings, hours arranged Fd; students, excellent working conditions & benefits apply at Burger King Mountain Farms Mall, Hadley, apply 8:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. tf11-21

Projectionist: Wanted for local theatre complex. Must have Mass. Operator's License. Good pay and fringe benefits. Part-time jobs available. Call Jim Merck at 584-9151. tf11-15

SPEED TYPISTS
In Ware at Collegian Printer
8:30 p.m. to 4 a.m.
Call Charlotte
1-413-967-6888

5 Coll. Canada ski trip -- 4 days, 3 nites Hotel, breakfast, dinner, Transportation Apres ski party, all for $85. Jan. 22-25. B. Baggins Travel. 256-0146. tf11-15

Find out what coming out is all about, see the play direct from Boston. Nov. 16 and 17, Worcester Dining Commons, 9:00 p.m. tf11-16

Want to be a judge? Apply in Room 420 Student Union ASAP! tf11-15

HELP WANTED

Friendly couple want to share babysitting load with another. Our kids are 22 and 7 months old. Let's cooperate. Call 584-2574. tf 11-14

Futre CPA's learn how to prepare for the CPA Exam. Becker CPA Review Course. Call collect 617-536-1440. tf11-22

The arms race: A 1 credit minicourse. Physics 190D. No prereq. MWF 11:15, HAS 124. Nov 12-Dec. 12. Call Prof. Guyer, 545-0933. For details. tf11-14

Winter Outdoor Living Skills and Whitewater Canoeing courses offered by JD Nature Lab. I live on campus and have info. 546-6131. tf11-24

5 Coll Canada Ski Trip, 4 days, 3 nites, hotel bkfst, din., transpo, apres ski party, all for $85. Jan. 22-25. B. Baggins Travel, 256-0146. tf11-26

RIDERS WANTED

Ride needed to L.I. or NYC Wed. Nov 21. Will share expenses. Call 256-0618. tf11-21

Anyone commuting from Southbridge area 2nd sem. needing a rider call 256-0316, ask for Mike. tf11-16

TRAVEL

Going by air? Let us handle your pre-flight, in-flight and post-flight arrangements at no cost to you. Call campus rep., 253-3162 evenings. tf12-12

$199: A week in the sand, sea, and sun paradise of EUROPE for LESS THAN the cost of PUERTO RICO or the BAHAMAS, Jan. 6th to 13th in swinging MASPA LOMAS on Grand Canary Island (Spain). COMPLETE PACKAGE $199 & 29 taxes & services. Also some Hawaii space still available on Dec. 29 & Jan. 7. Call Leslie Halfond 546-6861. tf11-28

PERSONAL

Get a date, meet new people, friends for fun or serious relation. Write Box 161, Hadley MA. 01035. tf11-16

Going home for Intercession? I'll take over your job while you're away and give it back when you return. Ed Major, Julie 617-544-3362. tf11-15

To Kathy and Casey — happy birthday(s), and best of luck always from all your old 28 Knowlton buddies. tf11-19

Coffee with 3 sugars — I miss you. Plain Tea. tf11-14

To Linda in Northeast. Good luck in the Midwest from someone in Southwest. I know you can do it. tf11-14

Ski Austria — Jan. 6-18. Flight, hotel, breakfast, dinner, trans., between stops — Only $365. Few spaces left. Call 665-4067 soon. tf11-15

Interested in making a handicapped person's Xmas holiday happy? If you can work Xmas & New Years, call 256-8819 anytime. tf11-21

To The Shadow, may you experience many more but not as happy as this. — Happy 21st. MR. Shadow. tf11-14

Cindy, no joke, everything is OK. tf11-15

To Roland The Roadie — Come live with me and be my Roadie! Happy Anniversary! Gertrude the Groupie! tf11-14

SERVICES

Get a load off your mind, truck for hire. Call Gary or Joyce, 256-6376. tf11-21

Experienced electronic and electrical repairs. Reasonable rates. Call 545-2308, Mark 115 or Bill 401. Keep trying. tf11-15

SERVICES

Attention Datsun owners. I perform all phases of major and minor maintenance and repairs on Datsun at less than ½ dealership price. I have over $3000 in equipment, 4 years automotive experience, 2 of which were at a Datsun Dealership, specializing in Datsun. Tele. 253-7456, Russell Baca. tf11-19

Photos — passports, visas, etc., 48 hour service! Sizes and number negotiable. $3.00 minimum! Call Steve at 546-5143. tf11-30

Research — thousands of topics. $2.75 per page. Send $1 for mail order catalog. Research assistance, inc. 11941 Wilshire Blvd., Suite 2, L.A., Calif. 90025. tf12-12

Central Area Counseling Center, B-2 Gorman, 5-0894 wants to help you find direction, self-confidence, etc. Info aplenty., come!! tf11-30

INSTRUCTION

Physics for non-science majors: 100-World Beyond Our Senses; 100A-100 In Spanish; 115-Physics of Music; 117-Nuclear Energy & Its Social Challenge; 118-Quantum Worlds; 122-Concepts of Physics, 2; 123-Problems in Physics; 130-Physics for Elem. Ed. Majors; 386-Special Problems. Details — see course description guide or inquire in Hasbrouck 110. tf11-16

Upper division Physics courses for Biological and Physical Science majors: 301-Concepts of Modern Physics; 319-Electronic Instrumentation; 320-Radiation Physics & Nuclear Medicine; 386-Special Problems; 391-Seminar on Molecular Bio-Physics. For details, see course description guide or inquire in Hasbrouck 110. tf11-16

ENTERTAINMENT

Mark it on your calendar — INDIA NIGHT on Nov. 18, Sunday, 7:30 p.m., C.C. Aud. Enjoy classical, folk dances, music and a lot more, plus authentic Indian snacks after show. Adm. $1. Tickets at C.C. Concourse. For more information call Vijay Arora, Sec. I.A., 5-0612. Don't miss it! You will like it. tf11-16

Berkshire East Poster Contest. Prizes are: 1st prize - a 10-week season's pass at Berkshire; 2nd prize is a weekend pass; 3rd prize is a day pass. Rules are: size 18"x24", leave 4"x4" space in upper-left corner. Ski related design. Leave lots of room for event, date, place. Bring to Mahar, Nov. 28 at 8 p.m. Will be judged Dec. 1 at C.C. Aud. Snow dance at 9 p.m. tf11-17

Little Big Man is coming Fri. Nov. 16, Mahar 6:30, 9:00 & 11:30. tf11-14

Solid Gold memories as I spin your favorite disks for your dancing pleasure. Call Boogie Bob at 536-6075 today for info. tf11-15

Your kind of music played the way you like it. I produce record hops that you will truely enjoy. Call Steve the DJ at 467-2842. tf11-20

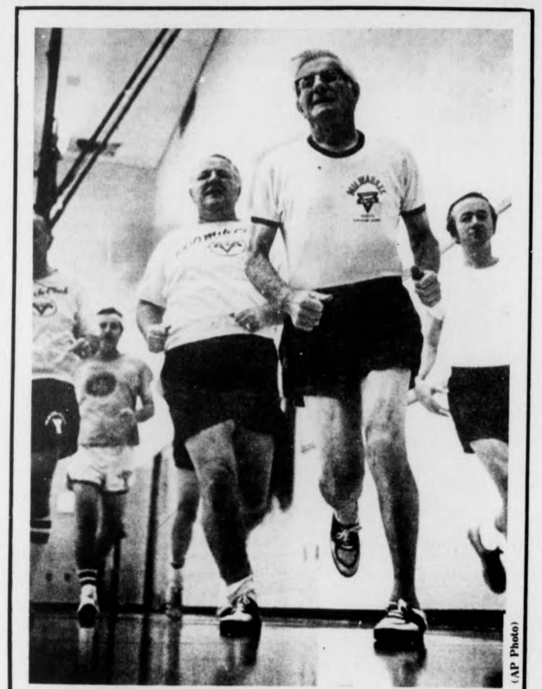
ROOMS FOR RENT

Rooms — by arrangement, free parking, no utilities, next to campus. Call at 253-9938 or see Duncan at 401 N. Pleasant. tf11-16

APARTMENT FOR RENT

1 bedrm apt., U. Pk. apts, bus route, convnt to U. Mass. avalabl next month Dec. '73. $146-mh, include all util. Call 253-2705 or 9461. tf11-16

Jackson Sweeps AL MVP Honors



(AP Photo)

IT'S NEVER TOO LATE - He may never get that long-hoped for shot at the ICA cross-country championship, but that doesn't keep 80-year old Edward P. Dahms from trying. Here the retired gym teacher from Milwaukee runs the mile.

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Power-hitting Reggie Jackson of the Oakland A's was unanimously chosen Tuesday at the 1973 American League's Most Valuable Player by the Baseball Writers Association of America. Jackson, who hit .293 and led the league with 32 home runs and 117 runs batted in, was a clear winner over Jim Palmer of Baltimore, who recently won the Cy Young Award as the league's best pitcher.

Of the 35 players named by a committee of two writers from each league city, Jackson was the only one mentioned on all ballots. His 24 first-place votes were worth 336 points, almost double Palmer's 172.

Kansas City outfielder Amos Otis was third with 112 points. Second baseman Rod Carew of Minnesota, relief pitcher John Hiller of Detroit and third baseman Sal Bando of Oakland were tied for fourth with 83 each.

The National League MVP will be named next Wednesday. Jackson is the sixth American League player to be a unanimous choice in the 42 years the BBWA has given the award. The others were Hank Greenberg of Detroit, 1935; Al Rosen of Cleveland, 1953; Mickey Mantle of New York, 1956; Frank Robinson of Detroit, 1966, and Denny McLain of Detroit, 1968.

"It's a culmination of things that makes this my most exciting moment," Jackson said at a news conference in Oakland. "It's icing on the cake-to win the world championship, to be named the Most Valuable Player in the World Series, then to be named unanimously for this. It's sweet!"

Jackson who now has played on two straight World Series champions, also said he felt he and pitcher Jim "Catfish" Hunter would become Oakland's first $100,000 players next year, hinting that he would like a one-year contract in the neighborhood of $150,000. He and Hunter reportedly each made around $75,000 in 1973.

The best all-around year for the 27-year-old left-handed hitter, a former Arizona State star from Wyncotte, Pa., came in his fifth full major-league season, all of them with Oakland.

Palmer posted a 22-9 record in winning the Cy Young and finishing second in the MVP. Pitchers to win the AL MVP were Lefty Grove of Philadelphia, 1931; Spud Chandler of New York, 1943; Hal Newhouser, Detroit, 1944-45; Bobby Shantz, Philadelphia, 1952; Denny McLain of Detroit, 1968, and Blue.

The voting was done by a committee of 24 writers - two from each league city. A first-place vote was worth 14 points, with nine for a second, eight for a third, etc.

OJ Runs Downhill... Toward NFL Record

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — O.J. Simpson is trying to follow Jim Brown's footsteps into the record books. And he'd like to follow Brown another way, too...mainly out of pro football while he's still at the top.

"My main goal, of course, is to be in the Super Bowl, to win the whole thing," the star running back of the Buffalo Bills said Tuesday before being honored at a luncheon. "But I figure I'd like to play maybe two or three more years. Then I'd like to get out, the way Jim did.

"I don't want to be one of those guys who hangs on, you know, just for the money. It's tough to leave those big contracts, but I don't want to still be playing when I'm going downhill."

Simpson, in the first year of a three-year contract, looks like he's running downhill-like an avalanche-almost every weekend.

The 26-year-old former Heisman Trophy winner from Southern California, last year's National Football League rushing champion with 1,251 yards, has already amassed 1,203 in this season's nine games.

That puts him within striking distance of one of the NFL's greatest records, Brown's 1963 single-season mark of 1,863 yards. If he averages 132 yards in his remaining five games, he'll match it.

"I rarely think of records, I only hope we win," insists the muscular, soft-spoken Simpson, who set one NFL mark in the opening game this year when he stampeded for 250 yards against New England, a team he'll face again Dec. 9.

"What I mean is, records are a very nice thing to have. But I don't think they're all that important."

The rest of the teams have gotten smart to the fact that the Bills don't have anything resembling a passing attack, so they're throwing everything they've got at O.J.

"It's getting to be like running against a stacked deck," he said.

"The last few weeks they've been putting eight men up on the line and the teams haven't been shooting in. They've been sort of sliding off in the direction of the play. One thing, though-it's the linebackers who've been getting to me most of the time, not the guys on the line. When the linemen tackle you, it means your own line isn't doing its job. Our's has."

The next three weeks will probably determine whether Simpson breaks Brown's record. On Sunday the Bills play Miami again. Then, after facing the Baltimore Colts, against whom Simpson rushed for 166 yards earlier this year, Buffalo plays another defensive power in Atlanta before finishing with games against New England and the New York Jets.

Frustration

YANKTON, S.D. (AP) — Many bowlers have been known to kick chairs or break pencils to show their outrage over a poor game, but a Yankton bowler has gone way beyond that.

This week's Yankton County Lanes newsletter has a note addressed to "The owner of the bowling ball found in the rest-room stool."

The note said: "Don't take your game so seriously."

Aaron Ties The Knot

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — Hank Aaron, the second-leading home run hitter in baseball history, was married Monday night to television talk-show hostess Billye Williams at the University of the West Indies Chapel.

The couple flew to Jamaica Monday afternoon from Atlanta for the marriage, as Aaron said he wanted "a quiet wedding, far from the crowds of baseball fans and the press."

Aaron, 39, who broke into the major leagues in 1954, has hit 713 home runs in his illustrious career, just one short of the legendary Babe Ruth's career record.

The couple was married in a short ceremony officiated by the Rev. Horace Russell, a local baptist minister, without the traditional music and hymns.

The marriage is the second for both. Aaron, who was married to Barbara Lucas for 14 years, has four children. His bride was a widow with one child.

The wedding was attended by Gaile, 20, the eldest of Aaron's children, who flew in from college in Nashville, Tenn. Ceci, 6, Mrs. Aaron's daughter, also attended.

Players Of The Week

College

"Captain Crunch and the Wild Dogs" sounds like a kiddie cartoon, but Danny Kepley & Co. were no laughing matter to the Richmond Spiders last Saturday.

Playing despite a fractured breastbone and twisted knee, "Captain Crunch," alias middle linebacker Kepley, paced East Carolina's "Wild Dogs" defensive unit that held Richmond to 89 yards rushing as the Pirates rolled to a 44-14 victory and nailed down their second consecutive Southern Conference football crown.

Kepley made 15 individual tackles, assisted on six others, broke up two key passes and keyed on Barty Smith, Richmond's 235-pound fullback, limiting him to 24 yards in seven carries. For that performance, the 6-foot, 204-pound junior from Goldsboro, N.C., was named National College Lineman of the Week by The Associated Press.

Pro

NEW YORK (AP) - "Age is just a figure and that doesn't tell me a whole hell of a lot," says Bill Brown. "It's how you feel."

Minnesota's 35-year-old running back felt pretty good last Sunday, the best he's felt all year. Until then, he'd carried the ball only five times for a paltry 24 yards, relegated to reserve and special-team status with the emergence of rookie star Chuck Foreman.

But Foreman was on the bench with an injury when the Vikings took on Detroit and Brown was on the field...and all over it.

Minnesota called on him to carry the ball 19 times. He responded by rushing for 101 punishing yards and one touchdown to pave the way to a 28-7 victory, the ninth in a row for the unbeaten Vikes.

Brown was picked Tuesday as The Associated Press Offensive Player of the Week in the National Football League.

Small College

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Abilene Christian, which has been scoring many points on the field, made enough to join The Associated Press' Top Fifteen College Division football teams.

The Texas school, which whipped Sam Houston 46-23 for its eight consecutive victory after a season-opening loss, got one first-place vote and 126 points in nationwide balloting to move into 13th place in the poll, which is topped by Tennessee State.

Abilene Christian has 329 points in nine games. The Wildcats' highest output came in a 58-50 victory over Stephan F. Austin. Their loss was 56-46 to Arkansas State.

There were no changes in the first six places, with Tennessee State, 45-7 winner over Central State of Ohio, getting 26 first-place votes and 777 points.

Hawaii continued second with 669 points and was followed by Western Kentucky, California Poly-San Luis Obispo, Louisiana Tech and Wittenberg.

Grambling moved from eighth place to seventh, switching places with Elon. Nevada-Las Vegas remained ninth and Boise State moved from 11th to 10th, changing places with North Dakota State, which has ended its season.

The last four places went to South Dakota, Abilene Christian, Delaware and McNeese State.

McNeese also was a new member of the Top Fifteen.

Finley Granted Hearing

NEW YORK (AP) - Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn has granted a hearing to Charles O. Finley, controversial owner of the world champion Oakland A's, regarding $6,000 in fines levied on him for his handling of the Mike Andrews' incident during the World Series.

Finley was quoted in Tuesday's San Francisco Chronicle as saying he would get the hearing on the basis of his claim the fine "was unjust." Finley, in Chicago, said an additional fine of $1,000 for other World Series conduct would not be appealed.

After Andrews made two errors in the second game, which the A's lost to the New York Mets 10-7, Finley tried to put the second baseman on the disabled list. Kuhn stopped the action.

SKI SPAIN
Earn 2 credits during intersession
Call 5-2801

TEN PIN BOWLING
at Boyden Gym
50¢ per string
MONDAY - FRIDAY
4:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m.
(except during league play)

GERMAN PARTS
WE'VE GOT A PART FOR YOU!
and if we don't, we'll get it.
AT
ALLIED MOTOR PARTS, INC.
BRITISH JAPANESE
319 MAIN ST., AMHERST
256-8341
256-8342
Chilton's Repair Manuals
PARTS AMERICAN PARTS

Staff Photo/Joe Martins

TAKING THE HARD ROAD*—Paul Segersten, the only senior on the UMass cross-country team, advances on two runners as he churns up cemetery hill in Van Vortlandt Park. He went on to finish 56th in Monday's IC4A's.

Cubs Can Keenan

By BILL BALLOU

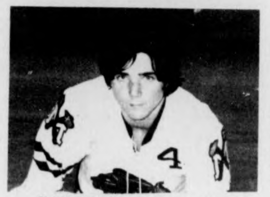
The last UMie left in the pro hockey ranks, Pat Keenan, is left no more.

Keenan was cut recently by the Cape Cod Cubs of the North American Hockey League and is currently home in Ontario looking to hook on with someone else.

"Not tough enough" was the reason coach Bronco Horvath gave Keenan for his release.

Keenan said he found out that he was cut when he came to the arena for a game and his jersey wasn't in his locker. At the time of his release he was the second leading scorer on the Cubs.

Wayne Bell, Cubs' number one goaltender, said "I don't really know why he was cut. He was doing real well with the puck. He didn't check too much, and maybe that was it. You've got to play two ways."



PAT KEENAN — Not tough enough

Anyway, Keenan's hoping to land a spot on another NAHL team, but he'll cost them the $500 waiver price. If he can't make it back to the NAHL he says he'll try the International Hockey League.

"That's two teams now," says Keenan, "that said I wasn't tough enough. Maybe I ought to get the message and put on about 30 pounds."

Sanderson Impressive In AHL Debut

BOSTON (AP) - Derek Sanderson, a high-salaried center sent down by the parent Boston Bruins to play his way into shape, made an impressive debut Tuesday night in leading the Boston Braves to a 4-1 American Hockey League victory over the Rochester Americans.

Sanderson, appearing one week after being dropped by the National Hockey League Bruins for conditioning, scored one goal and assisted on another.

The flamboyant center, who suffered a back ailment in the Bruins' first preseason practice in September, took a regular turn, played on the power play and killed penalties. He must spend two weeks with the Braves before being eligible to return to the Bruins.

Sanderson, a one-time, NHL rookie of the year, jumped the Bruins for a bundle of cash in 1972, but rejoined Boston after working out a settlement with Philadelphia of the world Hockey Association last January.

He helped break a scoreless tie by assisting on a goal by Bobby Gryp late in the second period.

Rochester tied the score on Francis Ouimet's goal in the third period, but Dave Hynes, and J.P. Burgoyne retaliated for the Braves. Then Sanderson added an insurance tally, scoring on a rebound with a 20-foot shot during a power play with 1:22 remaining.

MDC
Sportsline
5-0344

Correction

The runner in one of the cross country photos in yesterday's Collegian was wrongly identified. Number 235 was Tom Maguire, not John McGrail. Maguire placed 27th in the IC4A's.

Notices

Co-Rec Swim meet entry sheets are due on November 19th in I-M Office, Boyden.

Basketball Clinic - All students interested in Intramural officiating, should report to the Boyden Auxiliary Gymnasium November 15th at 7:30.

Billie Jean Against Any Riggs Rematches

NEW YORK (AP) - Billie Jean King said Tuesday she was disappointed that Margaret Court and Rosemary Casals might take up challenges to meet Bobby Riggs on the tennis court.

"So far as I'm concerned, the issue is closed," she said at a luncheon in New York. "I beat him and that's the end."

"It's money and recognition for Margaret and Rosie and they say 'you won $100,000 so who are you to talk,' but I turned him down twice. He forced me into it."

"I also know that Rosie is looking for a lot of attention right now, but I think playing Bobby might be the wrong avenue. Besides that, we'd just be helping him and if one of them lost we'd be right back where we started."

It was reported earlier that Riggs had set up a rematch with Mrs. Court in Australia in February and was negotiating a match with Miss Casals.

Mrs. Court was beaten by Riggs in his first battle of the sexes tennis hustle on Mothers Day.

Miss Casals, a constant critic of the 55-year-old Riggs, gave him a good tongue-lashing as a television color commentator for the Riggs-King match.

St. Louis No. 1

NEW YORK (AP) - St. Louis University regained the No. 1 spot in the Intercollegiate Soccer Football Association of America ratings announced Tuesday by upsetting previously top-rated Southern Illinois-Evansville 1-0 last week.

St. Louis, 9-1-2 on the season, received 16 first place votes for 430 points in the poll. Southern Illinois-Evansville, 10-1-1, received no first place votes but got 397 points.

Speakeasy Lounge
at
THE STEAK OUT
Now Featuring
"The Bonnie Floyd Revue"
WEDNESDAY - SATURDAY
Happy Hour 4:30 - 7:00 Daily
Rt. 9 and Univ. Drive.

Dave Eibel

The Polish Flash

Danny Stracinsky was an unheralded hockey player at the University of Chicago. He was the hardest-hitting left winger in UChie history, harder hitting than the great Polak himself, Bronco Plecziglazy, who stormed up the left side in Chicago Stadium in the rough and tumble thirties. Bronco was a great hockey player, but he had one fatal vice, a lust for distilled Poznan wine, the way Mamma Plecziglazy used to make it. Bronco ended up the first round draft pick, not of the Rangers, or Black Hawks, but the Illinois Pen's "A" team.

Strancinsky, with the muscular build of a Greek god, with muscles that rippled like the wake from a Great Lakes Steamer, looked just like his Polish predecessor in the penitentiary. But he didn't like Poznan wine, or Warsaw Vintage 1939, or any other Polish partition grape juice. He just loved hockey. He'd loved it ever since he jumped off the boat and was used as a puck in a waterfront game between the Pier 42 Killers and the Pier 44 Pacifists.

Dan's parents were, what else, successful Polish pickle producers. They moved into the exclusive suburb of Oak Lawn and built Danny his own little rink to pirouette on like his Polish predecessor. Danny developed into quite a hockey player...and quite a beaver shooter. Nobody ever knew why he was always the first player to get dressed after a high-school hockey tilt. Dan was out getting an education, quite an education. He may have known how to slap a puck, but now he learned finesse, and it wasn't the finesse that people use to deke goaltenders either.

And now Danny made the big jump to the Windy City Co-Eds from S.M. Cox Memorial High. He got into the University of Chicago and established himself as one of the Midwest's steadiest hockey players. In his first game against Northwestern he scored twice and assisted on five others in an 8-3 U. of Chicago win. And wow, how those groupies mobbed the team bus on the way back to the Holiday Inn. And how they mobbed Danny Stracinsky as he tried to get into his room and get a hard-earned bit of sleep. Unfortunately Chicago is so windy, and the wind blew so hard, that Dan Stracinsky had a tough time getting to sleep that night.

No doubt about it, Danny Stracinsky had a weakness for beautiful women, and they had a weakness for him. But groupies weren't his type. Maybe they were alright for the bench-warmers, but not for Big Dan, the team's leading scorer. When half the team sufferred from windburn due to some girl's overzealousness, Dan Stracinsky didn't get involved, because he like his sex in absolute privacy. The swinging scene, and the post-game awards session, just weren't for him.

On Dan's last night in a Chicago uniform he played in front of nine thousand screaming fans in Peoria. He had never scored a hat-trick in his career but in the first thirty minutes of play, he scored twice and came close a number of times to completing his hat-trick. Once he went in on the Indiana goalie, drew him out, and with an open net beckoning, Danny shot it over the net. The same thing happened again later, but his time the Polish flash hit the goal-post. It didn't seem like he'd score that "tour du chapeau", as the French say. As if he didn't have enough incentive, a pouting Peoria peach screamed out from the end blues, "Hey Stracinsky! Get another goal and you'll score after the game."

Danny Stracinsky never got his hat-trick that night. I bet he couldn't score that final, cataclysmic goal.

It was like the dying gasp of a once-dashing Don Juan or the admission of defeat that happens when you least expect it. In the case of Danny Stracinsky when he broke in all alone on the goalie and the Polish Flash after the game with his Peoria peach, it was simple: he couldn't get it up.

Women Swimmers Sponsor Swim-a-thon

Could you swim 200 lengths of the North P.E. pool....in two hours?

Could you swim 5,000 yards....in two hours?

How about three miles...in two hours?

It's all the same distance and this Saturday each member of the Womens Swim Team has two hours to swim up to 200 lengths of the pool. The splashing begins at 8:00 a.m. and will continue until 1:00 p.m. So, what is this watery madness all about? Why would any sane woman attempt to do this? Each swimmer has been collecting pledges from 1/2¢ to several dollars per length that she will swim. The money collected will be used to send swimmers who qualify to the AIAW National Swimming and Diving Championships at Penn State in March.

So, support the Women's Swim Team to Nationals! Pledge a penny a length or whatever you can afford on your favorite woman swimmer and then come on Saturday morning to cheer her on.

"Something for Everyone"
the concert committee
presents
Two nights of Entertainment with
JOHN MAYALL
appearing on Sunday, November 25 with special guest artist Bruce Springsteen appearing on Monday, November 26 with special guest artist Maria Muldaur
Boths shows: 8:00 p.m. At Curry Hicks Cage
Tickets: $3.50 Available at Student Union Lobby Counter
10:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m.

Looking Towards Nationals On Monday

Harriers Ripped Up The Record Book

By SCOTT HAYES

The UMass Cross Country team was able to capture third place in the IC4A championships on Monday, despite wearing "ugly sweatsuits" at the meet.

While the varsity members of the team were jogging to warm up, a few Villanova runners ran by and commented on the "sweats". They told Bill Gillin and his teammates how bad the "sweats" looked. The Villanovans added that they were surprised UMass had even brought spikes to the meet, seeing that the uniforms were so bad.

Gillin, commenting on the sweatsuits said, "Our regular sweats are outdated and too heavy." The maroon-colored sweatsuits were used in 1962 when Coach Ken O'Brien was a runner for UMass. Many of the runners complained that the team "sweats" are too small and uncomfortable to run in.

The team now wears regular gray sweatsuits with a red, hooded windbreaker for warm up purposes at the meets. Good looking or not, the "sweats" serve their purpose, and as Villanova found out, good looks aren't everything.

By the way, UMass finished third in the meet, while "pretty" Villanova placed sixth.

- - -

Going into the IC4A's, the New England Cross Country Poll had Harvard in first place, with a total of 179 votes. Harvard totaled 11 first place votes to 9 for UMass. Northeastern was third with 116 votes. Hopefully for UMass followers, Monday's sparkling performance will win the team top ranking in New England.

The top twenty-five finishers in the IC4A meet qualify for All East IC4A honors. Randy Thomas and Bill Gillin won spots on the team by finishing 15th and 20th respectively in the meet which was held in New York. Thomas' time was the fastest ever run by a UMass harrier. Only one runner finished lower than Thomas, and that was Bob Brouillet in 1963 with an eighth place finish. Gillin also made the All IC4A team last year with a finish of 20th.

The times for the top three UMass runners were the three fastest on the Van Cortland Park course. Thomas and Gillin were time in 24:50 and 24:57. Tom Maguire was clocked in 25:08, tying Bill Gillin's time of 1972. The only other runner in recent years to come close to this year's times was Ron Wayne, who ran a 25:29 in 1970 for a 23rd place. John McGrail ran the course in 25:31, while Paul Segersten's 25:40 was good for 59th place.

Teamwise, the 1973 harriers fared better than all previous UMass cross country teams. In 1962, a team wich Coach O'Brien as a runner, placed seventh in the IC4A's with 240 points. In 1970 and 1972, UMass finished tenth, amassing 288 and 284 points in each of those years.

The team members ran closer Monday than during the regular season. Only 18 seconds separated Thomas and Maguire, the first and third Minutemen to finish.

The squad has improved with every meet, and Coach O'Brien feels that the team can run even better than Monday's performance. O'Brien commented about Harvard's lower than expected finish in the IC4A's, saying that they may not have been "up" for the meet, or that they may have peaked too early in the season. He added that Harvard is much better than the team that scored 345 points in Monday's meet.

- - -

Bill Gillin said that he feels UMass has a chance, if sent to Spokane, to finish among the top ten teams in the NCAA's. Penn State, which finished third in the IC4A's last year, went on to place tenth in the nationals. A few years ago, UConn took fourth in the IC4A's and was able to garner eleventh in the NCAA's.

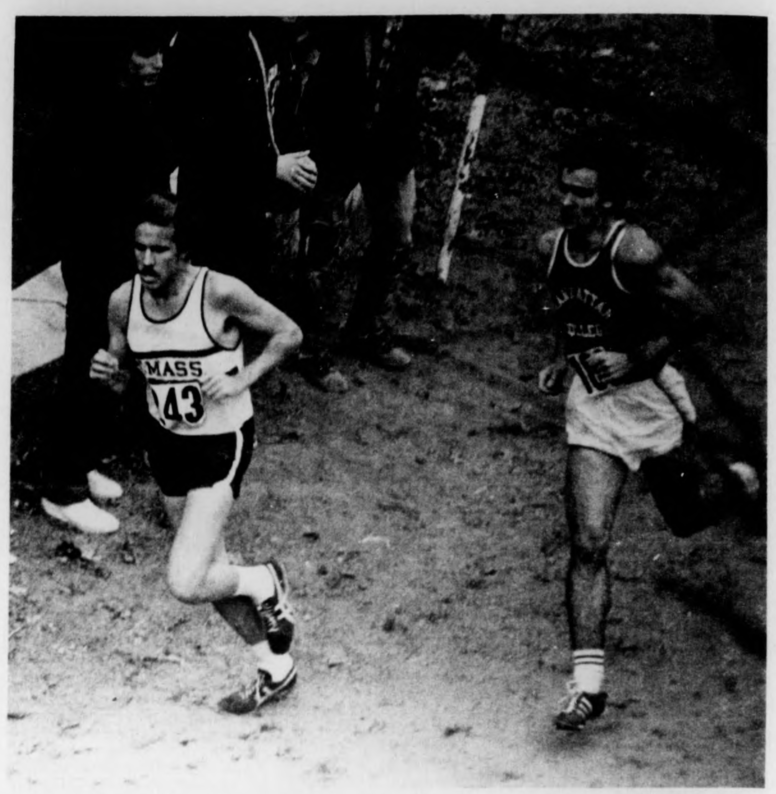
With its best race of this season, the UMass cross country team may finish as high as eighth in the NCAA's. Who knows, maybe they might even take the NCAA title. The only way to tell is to give the team a chance by sending them to Spokane to compete against the best runners in the country.

- - -

An outstanding performance by Chris Farmer won him third spot in the JV race at the IC4A's. The race was a non-championship race, but Farmer ran a 25:46, only seven seconds off the first place finisher. Paul Doiron also had a good day, capturing fifth in 25:58. John Scheer was the only other UMass runner competing in the JV race, and he wound up in 52nd. CROSS COUNTRY CORNER --- The UMass Cross Country team won the mythical "Ricardo Rojas" Trophy, symbolic of the first New England team to finish in the IC4A's, as a result of its third place performance on Monday.

The Rojas trophy was named after the once famous Ricardo "Chico" Rojas, who supposedly ran all the way from the Alamo to Cambridge, non-stop.

UMass won the first annual prize, and was presented with the statuette which shows the moustached harrier running with his gun and ammo belt around him.



Staff Photo/Joe Martins

BATTLE OF CHAMPIONS—Yankee Conference Champion Randy Thomas duels last years IC4A champ Mike Keough, near the end of the IC4A meet. Keough, an Olympian from Ireland, finished just ahead of Thomas in 14th place.

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
Minutemen
SPORTS

Ken Coleman To Speak Tonite

By MDC STAFF

"So you want to be a Sportscaster?"

If you think you would like to become the "voice" of a professional sports organization such as the Providence Reds or the Boston Red Sox or if you're just curious about sports broadcasting, you won't want to miss this lecture. Tonight at 8:15, in room 20 Hasbrouck, you can learn from one of the best sportscasters around what it's really like.

No, we're not talking about a Marty Kelley lecture.

Ken Coleman, voice of the Boston Red Sox for WBZ, will be lecturing on his new book, "So you want to be a sportscaster?"

Coleman came to the Red Sox from Cleveland, where he did the play-by-play for the Indians and the Browns (NFL). This year he is also contracted to NBC, doing regional coverage of NFL football games.

Coleman wrote his book to answer the hundreds of letters he has received over the years asking him about the sportscasting field.

Have you ever wondered how Johnny Pesky ever got a job in radio?... Or what it's like working for Tom Yawkey? Coleman was with the "Impossible Dream" team of '67.... What's happened to the Sox since then?

What kind of life does a sportscaster lead? How much does the job pay? How are interviews arranged, and how are they carried through? And most importantly, what do you have to go through to become the voice of the Boston Red Sox?

Ken Coleman will be on hand tonight to answer all these questions and any others that are presented.

So, if you want to be a sportscaster, or if you're still just thinking about it, don't miss this lecture.

Inside Sports

- Cubs Can Keenan
- Jackson Sweeps MVP
- Simpson Runs For Record
- Eibel Column

Li'l Minutemen Stuff UConn

By MDC STAFF

The Freshman football squad, coming off a tough loss to Boston College came back to edge a rugged UConn freshman squad 14-12 in a game played last Friday afternoon at Storrs.

The little Minutemen fought an uphill battle all the way, in the process improving their record to 2-0.

The frosh have one game remaining on their schedule, they host New Hampshire this Friday afternoon at 1:30.

Bill Ballou

Football Wife

Last Saturday, for the first time since early September, Dick MacPherson didn't have to coach a football game. The Collegian installed a taping device in the MacPherson household to discover how "Mac", his wife Sandra, and their two daughters spend a normal Saturday.

"Good morning, coach. What would you like for breakfast?"

"You can call me Mac, Sandra. I'll have an orange."

"Do you want me to peel it?"

"Peil!!!!! What are you starting on him for? The poor guy gets abused by the press and booed by the fans and now you're on his back. You ought to know better than that. I think he's the best quarterback in the East."

"Now don't get upset, coach, errrr, Mac."

"Upset!!!!! I know we got upset. We got upset by Rhode Island and Connecticut and Harvard. But we upset Rutgers. Why don't you mention that? You sound like Marty Kelley."

"Please, calm down Mac. Why don't you finish your orange. Then you can relax and go outside with the girls."

"Go outside with girls!!!!! I can't even go outside with my halfbacks. How are they gonna do any better? I've changed backs, I've brought up freshmen, I've had Bob Lord put bees in my guards thigh pads and nothing works. Now you want me to risk my own daughters' lives? Haven't I heard enough about the running game?"

"Really, dear, all I'm suggesting is you do something to pass the time."

"Pass all the time!!!!! What do expect me to do. You just said we couldn't run the ball. What can you do besides pass and run--dribble? Why, we've got two top-notch quarterbacks, one of the best receivers in the nation, and a couple of great tight ends. It's the only way we're able to score."

"But coach, Mac, dear, I'm on your side. I'm not trying to make life hard. You're the one doing all the kicking."

"Kicking!!!!! What do you mean I should do all the kicking. Here we've got one of the best feet in New England, Andy Dutkaniwitz, and you're making snide remarks about him. Let me tell you something--if it wasn't for him we might not be where we are today."

"Mac, dear, you don't seem right this morning. I think you should go back to bed without delay."

"Delay!!!!! Don't you think I tell them to speed it up in the huddle? Those Delay of Game penalties have been killing us. I've told the tackles a hundred times that if the guards don't have any "fours" they just have to go fish."

"Dick, you manage to twist around everything I say."

"Will you leave those managers alone!!!!! I can't pick up a paper anymore without reading about Marty Kelley cracking some joke on Mike Brophy. And when Mike Pomerleau predicted at the Varsity M that we'd win our next seven straight--it was the kiss of death."

"Listen, dear, I have a thought. Why don't we go for a nice quiet drive up to Vermont or New Hampshire?"

"Vermont or New Hampshire!!!!! We've been trying to get out of the Yankee Conference for years and now you're trying to force me to spend extra time with them. Vermont hasn't beaten us for 25 years. If they catch me up there they'll turn me into pancake syrup."

"Why don't we just forget football?"

"I'd love to. I just wish you'd let me forget."

"I think I'll go outside with the girls."

New England's
Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Weather

"Oh my grace, I've got no hiding place"

Recyclable

VOLUME CI. ISSUE 49 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 1973

– What's MSP/AAUP All About, Anyway?

By BOB SCHEIER

Tomorrow night at ten, while most UMass students are enjoying the start of the weekend, a group of faculty members, professional union organizers, and reporters will be clustering anxiously on the tenth floor of the Campus Center.

The occasion? The counting of the ballots for the election determining whether the Massachusetts Society of Professors-Association of American University Professors (MSP-AAUP) will represent between 1300 and 1400 faculty members in collective bargaining.

So what?

The counting of the ballots will be the end of a two-year campaign by the affiliated unions to represent UMass-Amherst faculty, with both the outcome of the vote and the effect of a positive vote uncertain.

A yes vote by 51 percent of those voting in the elections, which are held by the State Labor Relations Commission, is required for approval. Some union officials said they were confident of winning, while other observers said the union had a 50-50 chance of winning.

Union supporters disagree on the order of importance, but agree issues leading to the election included faculty fears they are being left out of the governing process in an increasingly complex university, and concerns over alleged tuition, merit pay, and promotion quotas.

Some students fear that if the union passes, it will be bad news for students, with faculty and administration bargaining with no provision for student input.

The union has come out against quotas on tenure, merit, and faculty promotions, and for increased faculty say in university governance.

While the issue has been simmering for over two years, it has come out in the open this week as the union and administration put up posters aound campus — the administration posters urging faculty to vote, the union posters urging a vote for the union.

Earlier this week, the union also bitterly attacked a letter sent to faculty members by Chancellor Randolph W. Bromery, urging faculty to vote against the union.

In his letter, the Chancellor said he "doubted the compatibility" of the present form of faculty governance with faculty unionism, claiming the faculty senate has significant decision making powers under a recently initiated governance system.

He also claimed that under collective bargaining, faculty members would be forced to work through the union to process a grievance, and claimed "scholarly distinction yields to seniority and standardization" under collective bargaining.

He also denied charges that there was a quota on tenure for UMass faculty.

The union, however, claimed a memo from Provost Robert W. Gluckstern directed all departments to adhere to "fixed percentages of faculty within each rank," which the union says are "implicit quotas."

It also claimed the administration, despite the governance document, "......does not listen to the faculty."

What does the outcome of the fight mean for students?

"It will leave students out in the cold," said Student Senate treasurer Paul Hamel. "It will be the faculty union versus the administration, with no provision for concrete student input."

"It excludes students from governance, said Student Government Association president Nick Apostola. "The long range effect will be a stifling one for students."

One union leader — asst. prof. in economics Cadwell Ray — disagreed.

"I see no conflict between faculty and student interests," he said. "We're both interested in quality education."

Ray, who is the president of the AAUP and the secretary-treasurer of the joint board of the MSP and AAUP, said the main issue "......probably comes to how much say-so the faculty has in the decision making process, for whatever issue......"

He said the long range effect of a faculty union would probably be a broader participation by faculty members in university governance.

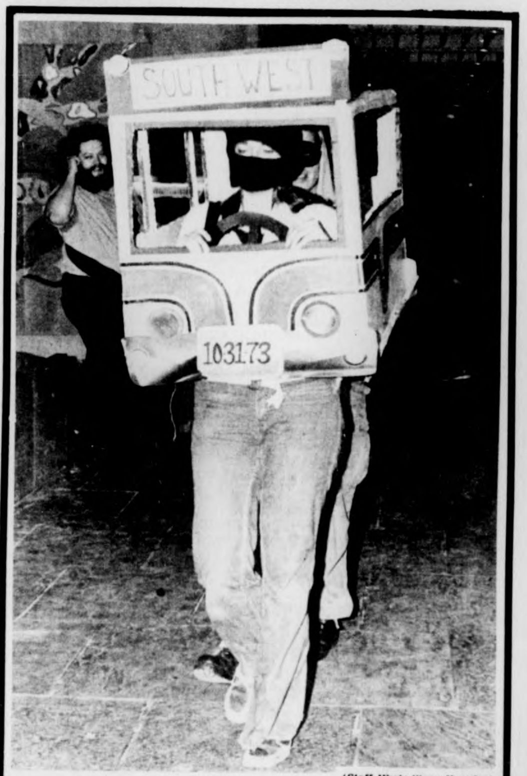
"As a split faculty," he said, "it is at the mercy of outside forces."

The director of the Labor Relations and Research Center — Prof. Harvey L. Friedman — said one issue was decreased communication between various groups on campus.

He said that as the campus gets larger, "the faculty feel they are less likely to be seen and heard."

He said some faculty were also insecure about the value of the governance document mentioned by Bromery, because faculty "don't see it working."

"We have a good faculty here, concerned with quality education," said Friedman. "They don't have the feeling the route is open for them to contribute."



(Staff Photo-Steve Ruggles)

Yes, Mr. Nixon, we at UMass are doing our part to conserve energy. Our buses never go over 50 miles per hour, are clean and pollution free and use a bare minimum of gas. P.S. Do you think we could be federally funded?

SGA Responds To Unionization

(Editors Note: The following is a statement by the Student Senate addressing itself to the question of faculty unionization. The vote over unionization is being held today through Friday afternoon.)

"Mr. Robreno is also unhappy with the power that has accrued to students as a result of their 'swing vote' position. 'There we are,' he says. 'Twelve grown adults catering to these students.'

Chronicle of Higher Education
10-29-73

We in the leadership of the Student Government Association have been quietly watching the development where we finally must speak out. We have held back so that we wouldn't create an emotional atmosphere over such a delicate issue. However, our fears have become so great that we can no longer remain silent. Here are some of the possibilities for unionization of faculty on this campus.

(1) SPECIAL PROGRAMS -- It is possible that the Massachusetts Teacher's Association will be able to negotiate wages with the administration. It is the Union's interest to push for larger salaries. It is the function of the Union. They will be shooting for a large increase. However, there is little reason to believe that the legislature of the commonwealth will appropriate very much money just to pay professors. The legislature has already said that the faculty makes too much money and they aren't going to encourage them to try for more.

Where will the money come from? The University has large slush accounts from which Teaching Assistant and student employee money is taken, temporary staff positions are funded, and all Special Programs are supported. These are the most likely source from which to pay these higher salaries. Therefore, as faculty salaries go up, Special Programs like Bachelor's Degree with Individual Concentration, Orchard Hill, University Without Walls, and Outreach will be systematically wiped out. After many years of trying to get these programs instituted, we would be most unhappy to have them eliminated.

(2) GOVERNANCE -- The Union organizers say that they support the American Association of University Professor's 1970 Statement on Student Participation in College and University Governance. Let us quote a sample paragraph from this document:

> Academic Environment. The scheduling of classes, class size, distribution of night and day classes, calendar arrangements and services affect the ability of students to do academic work. They should share in the formation of policies in these matters.

What about student control?

It is clear to us that this might be appropriate for 1970 somewhere, but it is not appropriate for 1973 at the University of Massachusetts.

Further, several members of the Executive Committee of the union have stated that they will not allow students to sit at the bargaining table when the contract is negotiated. We can only hope that the administration will protect student interests since there is no legal way we can independently sit at the bargaining table as a full partner. Frankly, our hopes for this are not very high. If the administration has a choice between bargaining away teacher evaluation or raises for all faculty salaries, what do you think will go?

3. Independent Study. It is also possible for the faculty to be able to bargain for the hours a faculty member will work. For example, the average number of hours that a professor would work in a classroom would be 6 hours or 2 courses. That's it. No more, no less. The Union has vested interests in seeing that its members don't work more than it says in the contract. If professors decided to devote a large amount of time to independent study students or Project 10 courses, they will be pressured by the union to stop because when the next contract is negotiated the union would be in a much weaker position. As a result, slowly but surely, independent study will be eliminated.

4. Legislature. Unionization opens another way for the legislature to get its hooks into the University Community. The legislation which created the University is considered sacred and is never touched. However, the labor laws aren't. Playing with the labor laws might become a favorite way of manipulating the University in order to lower the University's budget.

5. Degrees. No University of prestige has ever voted for a faculty union. Unionization has happened only at state colleges, community colleges, and universities of lower stature. There is a strong possibility that the national stature, including the intangable prestige of our degrees, will be irrepairably damaged if the faculty unionizes.

Regardless of how the vote goes, we wish to emphasize that the students of this institution adhere to the principles of student participation in governance and diversity of educational options as embodied in programs such as Southwest, Bachelor's Degree with Individual Concentration, Orchard Hill, Project 10, and others. Any bodies, be they unions, administration, the legislature, or others which wish to deprive us of these opportunities can only be thought of as being anti-student.

These are not our only fears related to the process of faculty unionization. God knows what could happen once we've been cut out of the governance processes of the University. Your guess is as good as ours.

On The Inside:

Final Exam Schedule
Pages 9 and 10

FBI Defends Hoover's Image

By MARK VOGLER

WASHINGTON, D.C.-----With Clarence Kelley as its director, the FBI "forsees no real moral problems" which plagued the bureau during the height of the Watergate scandal, says one official.

According to Inspector George T. Quinn, a local agent, "Kelly should put us back on the right track because of the type of experience he has had."

"He's a true professional in every sense and won't be susceptible to the kind of pressures that hindered L. Patrick Gray. Having been chief of the Kansas City Police Department, he knows both sides of law enforcement...he has an understanding of the type of animal we are."

Quinn recently lectured to a group of UMass students placed here on the Outreach program.

He responded to questions concerning L. Patrick Gray, J. Edgar Hoover's dislike for Martin Luther King and his love for peach ice cream, and the Warren Commission's Report on the assassination of President Kennedy.

Pressed by Peter Malone (intern of Cong. Joseph Moakley's office) on the L. Patrick Gray issue, Quinn asked "What are the qualifications of submarine director to be director of the FBI?"

He referred to Gray as a "decent man with good intentions," but added that he was "too susceptible to administrative pressures."

Asked whether bureau members resented the offer of the FBI directorship to Judge W. Matthew Byrne, Jr. who was presiding over the trial of Daniel Ellsberg, Quinn said there was "no such feeling" that he knew of.

"I heard the rumor...but Byrne's name was never mentioned as far as I knew. Clarence Kelly was the choice to be director, I'm sure."

Based on testimony before the Senate Watergate Committee, former chief domestic affairs adviser John Erlichman has already admitted that he made such an offer to Byrne in April.

Quinn noted that "what resentment the bureau had" was based on the publicity of Watergate related events.

"We were accused of leaking information to the press. More than likely the leaks came from someone in the Justice Department," he said.

"The nature of the beast is such that it's kind of strange that we went all these years without a leak. And now it's been alleged that we don't have leaks--but a running faucet."

Quinn was questioned by Brian Barry, an intern in the New England Regional Commission, whether there was any truth to the story that J. Edgar Hoover had labeled Martin Luther King a "hypocrite" because of an arsenal the FBI had discovered in his cellar.

Quinn said he was unfamiliar with the arsenal report, but added Hoover "definitely didn't like King."

"Hoover had a real obsession of the truth. The basis of his dislike for King was a statement King made about the FBI's inability to conduct a straight Civil Rights investigation in Albany, Georgia 'because all the agents were Southerners.'," he said.

"The fact was that most of the FBI agents in Albany, Georgia were New Yorkers. Hoover was pumping Northern Agents into the South as fast as he could. Even if they were Southerners, the allegation was a serious one."

Quinn confirmed Hoover's love for peach ice cream, but denied that special air plane trips were made to deliver it to him.

As far as Hoover lying on the floor of his limosine with a dummy propped on his seat as a decoy to snipers, the inspector claimed he never heard of "that one."

"I heard a story similar to that where Mr. Hoover would place a tall black hat on the head rest of his seat," he said.

Steven Brush, an intern in Cong. Sparky Matsunaga's office, quizzed the agent on the possibilities of conspiracy in the assassination of President Kennedy and the conclusiveness of the Warren Commission's Report.

"We've pursued it almost to infinity and couldn't find any evidence of conspiracy. Despite the assertions that nobody could shoot as fast as Oswald was supposed to have, it was a simple task," Quinn said.

"Oswald only had to cock the gun twice, and it was merely a direct line of 160 feet from the barrel of the gund to the President's head. He was clinically dead on the second hit."

Intern Malone argued that documents and other evidence which would indicate that two different types of bullets were fired were locked up from the public in the National Archives.

"That was a misinterpretation on the part of the press," Quinn countered.

"Autopsy photographs of the President have been locked up in the archives. The story of two different guns being used developed when police identified the original murder weapon by two different names with different actions."

Staff Photo/Steve Ruggles

Ethel Deloach, writer, lecturer and teacher in the field of ESP, and internationally known spiritual healer, spoke to an audience of about 100 people last night in the Campus Center Auditorium.

C.C. Employees Need Responsible Rep

By KATHY FRASER

Candidates for the student employee representative on the Campus Center Board of Governors, the only elected position on the Board of Governors, are being accepted now.

The elected represenitive will have authority on many activities and services in the Campus Center, primarily by acting as mediator between the management and the student employees. The prime responsibilities of the student represenitive will be to handle any complaints from student employees and to make suggestions for change to the management.

To be eligible for the 1974 term, a student must be a full-time graduate or undergraduate and presently be employed at the Campus Center.

Don Sullivan, the present student employee representative, stated, "I feel it is really a responsible position. There is a lot of room to work and learn, and it is as well as a benefit to the students at large." He urged interested students to contact him at 817 Campus Center or call him at 545-0194.

Those interested will then meet in early December to discuss the responsibilities of the position, after which a ballot with a list of the candidates will be given to all student employees who will be asked to vote right on the spot. Sullivan will then work with his successor for two to three weeks before Christmas to review the budget and various projects.

One project Sullivan is presently working on is giving job priority to financially needy students. Any student wishing to apply for a job in the Campus Center would first be required to file a financial aid application. A list of those with the greatest financial need would then be compiled and used as a basis for hiring.

Active on the Food Services Committee, Sullivan also worked to establish the bar in the Hatch.

Sullivan was elected to the Board of Governors while he worked as a bouncer at the Bluewall. The disorganization among the departments of the Campus Center prompted him to run last December, and he said he feels there is now greater cooperation between the workers and the management. He stated, "This is one place where the students really are boss."

Silvio Conte Denounces Oil Companies As Parasitic

By MARK B. CITRON

Congressman Silvio Conte (Rep-Mass) told a crowd of about 100 at Hampshire College Wednesday night that consumers are being overcharged $100 Billion by energy corporations.

Calling it the "energy grab", Conte said that the Justice Department refuses to break the hold of the energy monopolies and predicted umemployment and a business recession for the Northeast because of the energy crisis.

"The President is underestimating the situation," Conte said. He went on to say that he foresaw no end of the crisis for at least five years and that we must "junk the Detroit gas monsters".

Conte cited the local problem of Belchertown residents who have already been notified their only oil supplier will soon be out of supplies.

The question of Presidential impeachment was brought up after the speech, but Conte refused comment pending the report of the House Judiciary Committee. However, Conte did say, "I'm for Jerry Ford. I support him, and I think he will make a good President."

Conte went on to say that Congress has given too much power to the Presidency on setting up oil policy. Conte said he opposed the oil depletion allowance set up under Eisenhower, and the great irony was the allowance "subsidized pumping America dry."

Conte also refused comment on Nuclear generator site being planned for Montague pending a report by the Federal Power Commission. Conte did voice his opposition to President Nixon's energy statement that would repel public hearings on nuclear power plants.

Constitutional Investigation Initiated

Senate Has A Busy Night

By BRIAN COYNE

The Student Senate voted unanimously last night to issue a statement in opposition to faculty unionization.

The vote by the faculty over whether they will unionize starts today and will end Friday afternoon. The statement issued by the Senate expressed fears that programs such as Bachelors Degree in Individualized Concentration (BDIC) and University Without Walls (UWW) would suffer in the event of faculty unionization. Student control of their education process would be dealt a severe setback, the statement says.

See Related Story, P. 1

In other business, the Senate appropriated $2,000 to the Student Senate Transit Service for the continuation of night service for the remainder of the semester. The money will go toward the payment of drivers' salaries. If the money had not been appropriated, night service would have been discontinued as of tonight.

Motions creating a Constitutional Steering Committee to investigate a new student government constitution, and facilitating budgeting procedures for student groups were also passed.

The steering committee will look into various constitutional models for student government, and determine the feasibility of merging the Student Government Association and the Graduate Student Senate.

The composition of the committee will be as follows: 2 Senators not having previously held a Senatorial seat, appointed by the Speaker with the consent of the Senate; 2 Students representing the Third World Community appointed by the various Third World Organizations in a manner of their choosing; 2 Students representing the area governments appointed by the seven area government Presidents; 2 Persons not presently involved in formal governmental agencies appointed by the President with the consent of the Senate; 2 Persons representing the Graduate Student Senate appointed in accordance with their procedures; 1 Senator experienced in student government procedures, appointed by the Speaker with the consent of the Senate.

Cooling Off!

By STEVE TRIPOLI

"Rome wasn't built in a day," and it will take more than a day to implement a campus wide lowering of thermostats, according to John Hoffman of the Physical Plant.

Identifying himself as "the new monster on campus," Hoffman went on to explain how his office has been besieged by telephone calls from irate people on campus wondering when someone is going to lower their thermostats in compliance with energy conservation guidelines laid down by President Nixon and Governor Sargent in the last few days.

According to Hoffman, Physical Plant personnel are going about the business of lowering all campus thermostats (to 68 degrees) methodically. As of last night all of Southwest, Boyden, and Whitmore had been lowered, with Tobin Hall following this morning.

Hoffman's chief problem is personnel, as another team must follow the original temperature adjusters to make sure that the preliminary lowering is suitable for the given environments. A final adjustment will be made by the second team.

So it appears that the byword for now is patience. John Hoffman would sure appreciate a few less phone calls at the Physical Plant tomorrow.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

The office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN is on the second floor of the Student Union on the campus of the University of Massachusetts, zip code 01002. Telephones: 545-2550 (news); 545-0344 (sports); 545-0731 (business).

Second class postage is paid in Amherst and additional mailing in Ware, Mass. 01082. THE DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes Monday through Friday during the academic year, except during vacation, exam periods or holidays. Accepted for mailing under the authority of an act of March 8, 1879; as amended by an act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $6.00 per semester of $10.00 per year.

"LITTLE BIG MAN"
with
DUSTIN HOFFMAN
Fri., Nov. 16 — Mahar Aud.
6:30 9:00 11:30

Eric Walgren Is Alive, Well And Nagging The LESC

By MIKE ALLAIN

Eric Walgren and the town of Amherst may be going to court again.

Walgren currently has a suit pending against the Board of Selectmen over the last town election. After becoming a candidate for a spot on the Board, Walgren filed suit when the town held the elections over January intersession, when most University students were out of town.

Walgren lost the election while the students, assumed to be a large part of his constituency, were away on vacation. Walgren contends that the town acted illegally in staging the election in January.

Now Walgren, a 34 year old practicing but unlicensed lawyer, with a shaggy beard and a mane of hair extending nearly to the small of his back, is disputing another alleged illegality with the town.

Walgren says that he should be appointed to the Law Enforcement Study Committee.

The LESC was formed to study police-community relations in Amherst, a particularly sensitive subject in a community with a large student population, according to a study by John Herder Associates released in July, 1972.

Town meeting passed an article authored by Walgren earlier this year, calling for the formation of a "representative" LESC. One designation specifies that a person with a "diverse life style" be appointed to the committee.

"I've got three categories of qualification," says Walgren. "First, I'm a hippie, second, I'm a political radical, and third, I'm competent and qualified.

"I've got the education (including a Rutgers law degree), the experience, and I'm alienated from the cultural mainstream. It would be hard to find anybody more suitable for the committee than me," he said.

Walgren has been continually frustrated in his efforts for an appointment. And if he is not appointed within the next few weeks, Walgren says he will sue the town on grounds of discrimination due to "cultural life style and political belief."

Walgren has been applying pressure for an appointment since the LESC was born. So much pressure, in fact, that one LESC member, Jay Savereid, the University Ombidsman, resigned in protest to Walgren's "coercive threats" to sue the town if not appointed.

Originally, the LESC was formed as a subcommittee of the Citizen's Review Commission, which is a five person committee that acts "to assure the benefits of equal opportunity......to all", according to a Town Hall brochure prepared by the League of Women Voters.

Walgren disputed the legality of the LESC's existence as a subcommittee. He appeared at a LESC meeting on July 30, 1972, and protested that the committee was not "legitimate".

Town Meeting, Walgren said, had voted to establish a law enforcement study committee and that Selectmen than rejected it "illegally". Instead, he said, the selectmen asked the CRC to create a subcommittee rather than the independent committee specified by Town Meeting.

The CRC later cut ties with the LESC, and the membership remained the same. The nine original members had been appointed by Savereid — "a search committee of one," says Walgren.

The Selectmen made Savereid's earlier CRC subcommittee appointments official on September 8, after the LESC was given status as a standing Town Meeting committee.

Walgren calls this "rubber stamping an illegal act", since the members were not originally appointed by Selectmen.

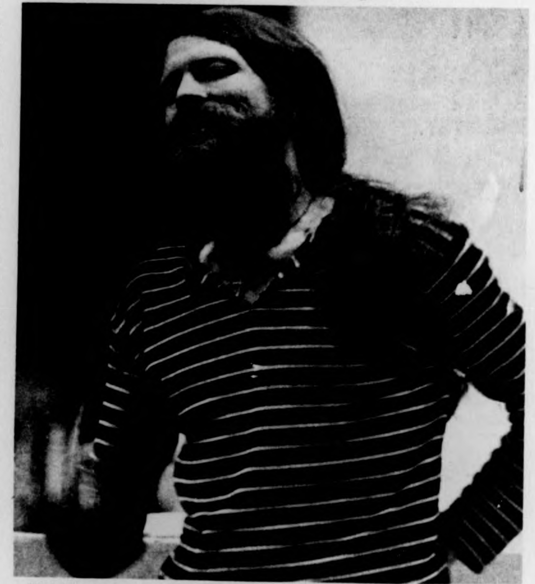
But that's all history. Now Walgren is fighting to be appointed to the LESC.

"I know more about that committee than anyone else on it, and all the members combined," says Walgren, who has been acting as an "informal member", appearing at LESC meetings while trying for an appointment.

The LESC has given vocal support to Walgren. Chairwoman Barbara Miles petitioned the Selectmen, on behalf of the committee, in a letter calling for Walgren's appointment.

Walgren himself has petitioned the Selectmen for his appointment. He appeared at a Selectmen's meeting on October 23 with eight backers, all requesting Walgren's appointment to the LESC. Selectmen met in executive session later that night and appointed John Adams to the LESC position vacated by Savereid's resignation, instead of Walgren.

"The Selectmen don't recognize the hippie category," says Walgren. "They don't think it's a valid social category. But hippies, along with greasers, are the largest category of people with grievances against the police."



Walgren says that Selectwoman Nancy Eddy told him in a telephone conversation that the Selectmen were seeking a "white, middle-class, middle-aged, liberal male," for the LESC appointment.

The LESC membership now includes three black persons, three women, two high school students, and a member with Japanese ancestry, but no "hippies", says Walgren.

Walgren is now seeking an appointment for the opening to be created when Jerry Aldrich, a student at Amherst Regional High School, resgins from the committee. The Board is waiting for Aldrich's letter of resignation.

Walgren plans to petition Selectmen one more time, this time hopefully with the testimony of John Herder, whose company authored the research report. That is one option, although Walgren is almost certain he won't be appointed in this way, he says.

Another option is that the LESC, which officially endorses Walgren's appointment, could expand the size of the committee without the authorization of the Selectmen. Walgren says the LESC has the power to do this, in a "liberal interpretation of Article 44."

In contrast, a "strict reading" of the article, says Walgren, would hold that Selectmen not only make the original appointments to the LESC, but later appointments as well.

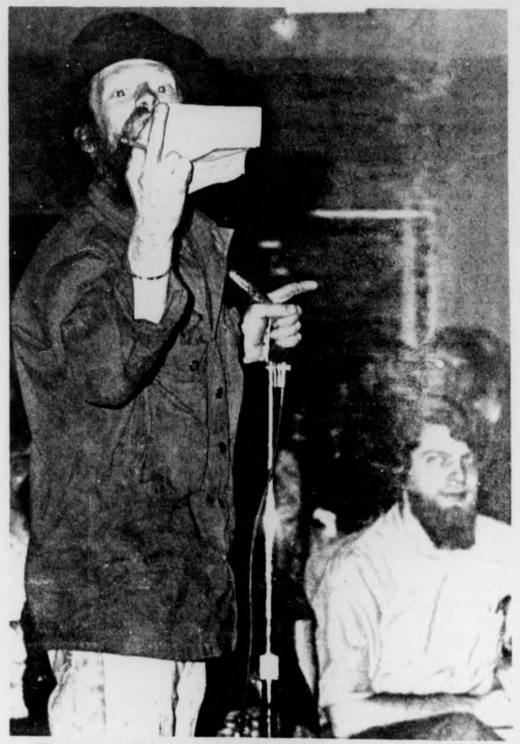
Walgren claims that there are no restrictions in town or state law forbidding the LESC from expanding independantly. The apparent ambiguity of the LESC centers around whether or not a Town Meeting Study Committee can act independantly of the town's highest board — the Selectman.

"The gut feeling of the LESC right now is that it is proper for them to expand," says Walgren. "The committee knows what's right, but it is too mousy to do anything about it."

Walgren advised the LESC on what to do at their last meeting.

"Fuck 'em! Fuck the Selectmen and take the control over your membership that is rightfully due you," Walgren said.

If they don't, the town of Amherst will have to come up with more legal fees on top of the $30,000 already spent or appropriated on the first suit. For Walgren is prepared to go to court — and this time Federal Court — once more.



The Good (side photo) and Bad (above photo) sides of one of Amherst's most famous citizens, namely Eric Walgren, alias Eric the Rat. He's at it again trying to get the Amherst City Government to appoint him to a special committee because he's a representative of the hippies in this area. Who would argue?

Olver Supports New Medical Standards

By DAVE GREENSLIT

Two bills to improve medical service and establish "adequate" safety standards for residents of state institutions for the mentally retarded have been sent to the Governor's desk.

One bill requires graduates of foreign medical schools to pass an exam to insure "sufficient command" of the English language and to insure "that they have the minimum medical knowledge of a graduate of an American medical school," according to a press release from Senator John W. Olver's office.

The release stated that physicians in the Department of Mental Health are presently not required to be fully licensed by the State Board of Registry in Medicine. Senator Olver is co-chairman of the Special Commission on the Belchertown State School and Monson State Hospital.

The second bill rquires health, safety, and care standards at such institutions to meet national standards. If this bill becomes law, facilities such as Belchertown and Monson will be periodically evaluated by the Accreditation Council of the Joint Commission on Accreditation of hospitals. Evaluations will be made public and plans for reforming "deficiencies" will be forwarded to the Department of Mental Health.

"This legislation is necessary," Senator Olver said, "because the Department of Mental Health has never established inspection procedures or minimum health and care standards for Belchertown and similar facilities." Four deaths at Belchertown last year proved this he said.

Senator Olver added, "These two pieces of legislation will end the special status of the Department of Mental Health facilities which has meant second rate care for the retarded."

Governor Sargent is expected to act on the legislation by the middle of next week, according to a spokesman for Senator Olver.

Special Sale
Everything 20% Off
Rani
The Indian Boutique
63 N. Pleasant St. Amherst

Are you tired of campus food? How about a good home cooked meal?
ST. REGIS RESTAURANT
Open Mon.-Sat. 6 a.m. - 9 p.m.
Sun. 8 a.m. - 9 p.m.
The place that serves breakfast from 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily except Sunday (8 a.m. to 9 p.m.).
Take a Friend To Dinner:
FRIED CHICKEN and SPAGHETTI $2.50
BREADED VEAL CUTLET and SPAGHETTI $2.25
GRILLED PORK CHOPS with choice of 2 vegetables, bread and butter $2.50
Also featuring during winter months Old-Fashioned French Canadian MEAT PIE choice of 2 vegetables & bread and butter $2.00
Individual Baked CHICKEN PIE with choice of 2 vegetables, bread and butter $1.65
28 PLEASANT ST. Left at the Intersection of Rt. 9 and Rt. 5 Downtown Northampton. NORTHAMPTON

Nixon Not To Resign

By JANET STAIHAR
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Nixon firmly told Republican congressmen Wednesday that his resignation is not the way out of the Watergate dilemma and he is willing to face impeachment and fight it if necessary.

"If it comes to impeachment, so be it. We'll present our facts," Nixon was quoted by Rep. Mark Andrews of North Dakota as saying.

But congressmen present at a two-hour breakfast meeting at the White House said Nixon made it clear he was not going to resign. Instead, they said, he would "start very soon with full disclosure of the facts."

The President also was quoted as saying he would not go before the full Senate Watergate committee but might agree to some other method of responding to its questions and requests for information.

Rep. Silvio O. Conte of Massachusetts said Nixon "definitely left open the possibility" of talking with committee chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr. D-N.C.. and vice chairman Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn.

Nixon also reportedly turned thumbs down on the suggestion that he make an appearance before Congress as a whole to state his case on the Watergate controversy.

Rep. Marvin L. Esch, R-Mich., "The Democrats would say he's a lying son of a bitch and the Republicans would say, he's probably lying, but he's our son of a bitch."

Nixon also was quoted by Andrews as saying some news stories about his family's personal financial affairs were "damn lies".

The White House announced that 50 to 60 House Democrats will have lunch with Nixon Thursday to discuss Watergate, energy problems and the world situation. Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said the guest list was being compiled by Rep. Joe Waggoner D-La., in collaboration with chief White House lobbyist William Timmons.

"As we move along," Warren said, "there will be other Democrat members of the House and Senate coming."

Tennessee Gov. Winfield Dunn announced that Nixon will meet with the nation's Republican governors at their winter conference in Memphis next Tuesday.

(AP Wirephoto)

BEFORE WATERGATE COMMITTEE--Matthew E. Clark Jr., purchasing director of Gulf Oil's Amship division testifies during Tuesday's session of the Senate Watergate Committee in Washington. He holds his hands in front of his face to show the committee how he visualized himself behind bars as a result of his involvement in campaign contributions toward President Nixon's re-election.

Oil Exeputive Testifies

Pressure Applied In Nixon Campaign Funding

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A senior Gulf Oil Corp. executive told the Senate Watergate committee Wednesday that President Nixon's re-election campaign set a $100,000 minimum quota for donations from the nation's largest corporations.

Claude C. Wild Jr., Gulf's chief Washington lobbyist, and Orin E. Atkins, chairman and chief executive officer of the Ashland Oil Co. testified their corporations each illegally donated $100,000 in cash, which was raised discreetly from corporate sources overseas.

The two men said they felt under considerable pressure to make the contributions to the Nixon campaign but claimed they did not do so in return for any specific government favors.

In both cases, the executive said, great efforts were made by Nixon fund raisers to assure the money was received before the April 6, 1972, expiration date of a campaign-financing law which allowed contributions to be made anonymously.

Both companies were fined $5,000 and both executives received $1,000 fines in separate federal court actions Tuesday.

Wild, who is Gulf's vice president for public relations, said the negotiations which led to Gulf's contribution involved both Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans, soon to become chairman of Nixon's campaign finance committee, and Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, who later became the re-election committee's first director.

"I certainly considered it pressure when two Cabinet officers asked me for funds," Wild said. "It's different than someone collecting for the Boy Scouts......I thought I got a message."

Wild said a $10,000 donation from Gulf was first mentioned in early 1971 by Lee Nunn, a fund raiser for the Nixon re-election committee. Wild said he checked out Nunn's credentials in a face-to-face meeting with Mitchell.

"After thinking the matter over — and hindsight tells me it was a mistake — I gave them $50,000," Wild said.

He said he got the money from the comptroller of Bahamas Exploration LTD., one of Gulf's 400 subsidiary companies.

Energy Planners To Propose National Gas Rationing Plan

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Energy planners may send the President in about one month proposals for rationing gasoline, a key official said Wednesday.

He said the planners intend to submit proposals within two or three weeks for immediate rationing of home-heating oil.

The administration has been developing a gasoline rationing plan using ration coupons managed through some 6,000 local boards.

Gasoline ration levels have not been determined but government officials have been thinking, so far, in terms of about 10 to 15 gallons per week, per motorist, a range which may change drastically once all the calculations are finished.

At a press briefing Wednesday, the White House repeated that President Nixon and Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz view gasoline rationing only as a last resort.

An official who declined to be indentified also said President Nixon "would like us to avoid a rationing system if we could." But he said "most of the senior advisers agree there should be a rationing plan," at least for home-heating oil, which he called "the real problem."

He said an interagency task force hastily activated last week was trying to develop recommendations for the president on these basic energy policy questions:

—Additional gasoline taxes and perhaps surcharges on electricity and natural gas, with recommendations sought "within one week."

—Extension of wholesale fuel allocation to all petroleum products, with recommendations due, as with home-heating oil rationing, within two to three weeks. Home heating oil, diesel and jet fuel and kerosene are already under mandatory wholesale allocation.

—Gasoline rationing, recommendations due within one month.

—And, with no deadline set, the questions of allocating residual oil among power plants; requiring some power plants to switch to coal; reducing airline jet fuel consumption; applying mandatory fuel conservation of businesses, industries and the public; and projecting economic impacts of the energy crisis.

This official said it would not take long to put heating-oil rationing into effect once a decision is reached.

It probably would not require ration coupons as would gasoline rationing, he explained.

Instead, he said, heating oil would be rationed by requiring oil dealers to reduce sales to their customers.

The basic guideline, he said, would probably be heating oil sales in proportion to previous sales to the same customers.

But the official said this would have to be adjusted to allow for geographical differences and the time of year.

Thus, heating oil sales would be limited according to some "sliding formula" rather than a fixed ration.

The official said this approach probably would require that customers be "locked into a single dealer" and be barred from switching dealers during the rationing program.

This, in turn, would require continued price control on home-heating oil to prevent dealers from charging exorbitant prices to captive customers, he added.

The official said major policy decisions on rationing, allocation, taxes and other issues have yet to be made.

The various task force subcommittees, headed by the Office of Management and Budget, would recommend complete programs and alternative options, and the policy decisions would then be made by the White House, he said.

John A. Love, director of the White House Energy Policy Office would review them before submitting them to Nixon.

Skylab 3 Countdown Begins

By ERIC SHARP
Associated Press Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Engineers activated the Saturn 1B rocket Wednesday that is to hurl the Skylab 3 astronauts into space Friday on an 85-day mission.

The countdown clock started when power-producing fuel cells were activated in the Apollo capsule atop the rocket and the first stage of the Saturn booster was filled with 41,500 gallons of fuel for the 9:01 a.m. launch Friday.

William C. Schneider, Skylab program director, gave the go-ahead for the launch Tuesday night after engineers said there appeared to be no danger from cracks found in some aluminum structural parts of the Saturn 1B.

The launch was postponed twice in the last week while metallurgists and technicians ran computer tests to determine if the cracks posed a hazard to the astronauts.

Officials believe the cracks in the eight-year-old rocket resulted as a combination of salt-air corrosion and stresses placed on the rocket during fuel tank pressurization tests.

The Skylab 3 astronauts Gerald P. Carr, William R. Pogue and Edward G. Gibson — attended a briefing Wednesday on experiments they will make to study the sun during their flight.

Their launch will mark the beginning of an 18-month hiatus in manned spacecraft firings at the Kennedy Space Center.

The next scheduled manned launch will be in July 1975, when an American Apollo spacedraft is to dock in space with a Russian Soyuz ship to test docking devices. They would enhance the rescue capabilities for spacemen by allowing craft from both nations to mate and transfer astronauts in space.

As had been true with the two previous Skylab launchings, the Cape Canaveral area exhibited only a shadow of the public interest that surrounded the manned moon launchings.

EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITY to work in a unique summer sleepaway program for emotionally disturbed and mentally retarded children and adolescents. Sponsored by Maimonides Institute, the oldest leading organization under Jewish auspices conducting schools, residential treatment centers, day treatment centers and summer camps for special children. Interviews begin in December for summer 1974. For information and applications contact immediately:

MAIMONIDES SUMMER
RESIDENTIAL PROGRAM
34-01 Mott Ave.
Far Rockaway, N.Y. 11691
212-337-6500 or 212-471-0100

1¢ THANKSGIVING ONE CENT SALE
TODAY THRU FRIDAY
BUY ONE PAIR OF PANTS AT OUR REG. PRICES AND GET THE SECOND PAIR FOR ONLY... 1¢
UP TO ½ OFF MOST - TOPS - COATS - PEASANT TOPS - MUCH MUCH MORE
COME TO CLIMAX
DO IT IN THEE ALLEY ~ NORTH OF THE POLICE STATION

Congressman
ROBERT DRINAN
speaking on
Will Detente Devastate Jews of Russia and Israel?
Bowker Aud. Sunday, Nov. 18
7:30 p.m.
sponsored by Western Mass. Student Struggle for Soviet Jewry and Hillel Foundation

---

Kissinger Completes 4-Day China Talk

By JOHN RODERICK
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (AP) — The United States and China declared Wednesday they would oppose any efforts by one or more nations to dominate the Middle East or any other part of the world.

The pledge, apparently designed to reassure China about Soviet Union in light of its detente with the United States, was part of a communique summing up the four-day talks in Peking between U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Chinese leaders, including Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung and Premier Chou En-lai.

The document also indicated the two former enemies have taken new steps to broaden the basis of their relations, but without setting a timetable for actual diplomatic recognition.

Nearing the end of a globe-circling diplomatic trip, during which he helped put together a Middle East cease-fire agreement, Kissinger met with Japanese leaders for talks centering chiefly on Japan's oil shortages resulting from Middle East cutbacks.

The Japanese, faced with an economic recession because of Arab cutback in oil, want Kissinger's assessment of how long the boycott will last and American understanding of any moves they make to mollify the Arab countries.

(AP Wirephoto)

APPLAUD TOAST--Secretary of State Henry Kissinger joins Premier Chou En-lai of the People's Republic of China in applauding a toast by Chinese foreign minister during dinner in Great Hall of the people in Peking. In a toast at the same dinner Kissinger said .....friendship with the People's Republic of China is one of the constant factors of American foreign policy."

Pomp And Pageantry Highlight Royal Nuptials

By FRED COLEMAN
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — While the world watched on television, Princess Anne and her dashing cavalry captain were married Wednesday in a glittering Westminster Abbey ceremony. Then they feasted on lobster and partridge at Buckingham Palace and slipped off to a secret wedding-night hideway.

Queen Elizabeth's only daughter and Mark Phillips, son of a sausage company executive, planned to fly Thursday to Barbados in the West Indies to begin a 18-day cruising honeymoon in the Caribbean and the Pacific on the plush royal yacht Britannia.

There were no public kisses or tears as the 23-year-old princess became Mrs. Mark Phillips in the historic Abbey on London's biggest royal day in more than a decade.

Trumpets blared, drums rolled and choirs sang in the 900-year-old church before 1,800 invited guests, and the televised solemnity took England's attention briefly away from threatened oil shortages and economic crisis.

In firm voices, the couple exchanged vows. Television cameras, permitted to show no more than Anne's veiled profile, carried the scene around the world.

Anne wore a white silk gown and diamond tiata. Mark wore a red dress uniform, spurs and sword.

The princess, fourth in line to the British throne, looked straight into the eyes of her commoner husband-to-be. Asked if she would love, honor and obey him "so long as ye both shall live," Anne replied: "I will."

Phillips was not given a title, at his request. Anne will now be known as "The Princess Anne, Mrs. Mark Phillips."

After the ceremony the young couple beamed as they walked arm in arm down the blue-carpeted 450 steps from the Abbey. They boarded the glass coach for a ride past 45,000 cheering, flag-waving Britons back to Buckingham Palace and the wedding feast.

Liveried coachmen in powdered wigs, and horsemen in armored breastplate mounted the royal escort with the pomp and pageantry only the British provide these days. It was a rare warm and sunny winter day.

Nine horse-drawn carriages and landaus were in the procession from the Abbey to the palace, taking with them a broadly smiling Queen Elizabeth II — in blue silk coat and dress; her husband Prince Phillip — in admiral of the fleet's uniform; and other members of the royal family.

Some spectators camped out all night and schoolchildren had the day off to watch the wedding.

It was the biggest royal occasion here since the wedding of the queen's sister, Princess Margaret, in 1960. Crowds then were more than twice as large in those days before color television.

Most London streets were deserted as Londoners watched the proceedings on television. The worldwide audience was estimated by the British Broadcasting Corp. at possibly 580 million.

Parliament adjourned for the day and Conservative Prime Minister Edward Heath and former Labor Prime Minister Harold Wilson attended the wedding.

The Latest On

Mideast...

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Egyptian and Israeli negotiators, meeting at a desert outpost on the Middle East cease-fire line, have agreed to start exchanging prisoners of war Thursday, the Red Cross announced.

The agreement announced Wednesday in Tel Aviv ended a stalemate that had threatened to break down the shaky U.S.-sponsored Middle East truce agreement.

The Israeli state radio announced that the prisoner exchange would be accompanied by a transfer of checkpoints on the strategic Cairo-Suez road from Israeli to U.N. control.

The road is the route for supplying the Egyptian city of Suez and the Egyptian 3rd Army, isolated across the Suez Canal in the Sinai Desert. Israel had refused to turn over the highway checkpoints and allow supplies to pass until agreement was reached on a prisoner return.

The Red Cross representative in Israel, Michel Convaire, said the prisoner exchange would be accomplished by direct flights between Egypt and Israel. The Egyptian government previously had barred direct flights to the Jewish state.

Israel says it holds about 7,000 Arab prisoners, of which 6,900 are Egyptians and 100 are Syrians, Moroccans, Iraqis and Jordanians. It figures that Egypt has about 350 Israeli POWs and Syria holds another 100.

Labor...

By JONATHAN WOLMAN
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers will re-negotiate an overtime provision in a contract rejected by skilled trades workers at Ford Motor Co., union president Leonard Woodcock said Wednesday.

A contract covering 185,000 workers has been ratified by an over-all vote of the union's Ford members, and their decision will stand, Woodcock said.

He said that the unprecedented rejection of the pact by 28,000 skilled tradesmen required that some of their part of the pact be rewritten.

A strike will not be needed to resolve the problem, he added.

Woodcock said the union's 26-member International Executive Board met Wednesday and turned down suggestions that the skilled trades' vote invalidated the entire agreement.

He said decision on whether to stick with a Monday strike deadline at General Motors Corp. will be made in consultation with the union's GM Council.

Woodcock said the board directed UAW Vice President Ken Bannon and the national Ford bargaining committee to renegotiate only the provision of the new voluntary overtime agreement that would have allowed Ford to use unskilled workers to fill in for tradesmen who refuse extra work.

Gold...

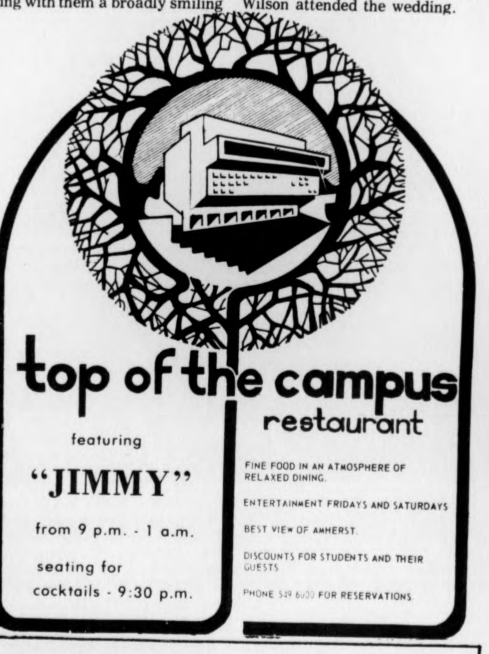
By LOUIS NEVIN
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) -- European gold markets were plunged into confusion and gold prices dropped sharply Wednesday after the American and six European governments took the right to sell gold on the open market.

The announcement of an end to the two-tier marketing system for gold was made in Washington Tuesday night by Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve. He also spoke on behalf of Belguim, Britain, West Germany, Italy, the Netherlands and Switzerland.

Bullion markets in Europe opened in confusion over implications of the surprise move. Since March 1968, trading in gold had been separated into official dealings with a fixed price between governments only and a free market for industrial buyers and speculators.

Should the governments decide to sell their large supplies on the free market, that would swamp the free dealers with sell orders. The presumed result would be a drop in prices. The slumping prices Wednesday reflected selling by dealers who feared such a development.



top of the campus
restaurant
featuring
"JIMMY"
from 9 p.m. - 1 a.m.
seating for
cocktails - 9:30 p.m.
FINE FOOD IN AN ATMOSPHERE OF RELAXED DINING.
ENTERTAINMENT FRIDAYS AND SATURDAYS
BEST VIEW OF AMHERST.
DISCOUNTS FOR STUDENTS AND THEIR GUESTS
PHONE 549 6000 FOR RESERVATIONS.

TEN PIN BOWLING
at Boyden Gym
50° per string
MONDAY - FRIDAY
4:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m.
(except during league play)

Topper Carew
in the Hatch
Thur., Fri. & Sat.
9 p.m. - 1 a.m.
Rose

Winterizing Yourself

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
AP Science Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — With the fuel shortage and predictions of severe cold in the months ahead, here are some scientific tips to winterize yourself for health and comfort.

—Wear loose clothing, creating an insulating layer of air between the skin and clothes. Layers of clothing can be added or removed as necessary.

—For a bit of extra warmth, put your coat over a warm radiator before going outdoors.

This could help not because the coat is warm, but because it is dry. It will soak up moisture from the outdoor air, and gain heat. This is reverse evaporation. The coat won't feel wet because the moisture is taken up inside the fibers of cloth.

A heavy suit and coat, well dried out, will generate as much heat in a short time this way as your body normally produces in an hour or two, by one estimate.

—Keep house temperature under 70. A good deal of research shows the 65 to 70 range is best for a feeling of well-being.

—The recommended bedroom temperature is 50 to 65 degrees. In some tests, volunteers said they felt more refreshed after sleep in that range rather than warmer or colder rooms.

Opening windows wide so the bedroom temperature drops to 30 to 40 degrees doesn't bring any additional benefit. And it takes more fuel to warm up the room during the day.;—Keep relative humidity indoors at about 50 percent. Volunteers said they felt better and functioned better at middle humidity.

And this humidity is tougher on germs riding around on droplets of moisture. The salt concentration of water droplets then becomes more discouraging to bacterial life.

—Food is your fuel for body heat. Protein and fat are turned into heat fairly quickly, so meals containing large amounts of them can be helpful during severe cold spells.

—You also produce heat by physical activity and exercise. But don't overdo it if you're not used to it.

—For skin comfort, you might have to cut down on number of baths. Your skin is drier, and more likely to itch in winter. Oil and sweat glands are less active.

What Do You Think Of It?

By JEFFREY D. ALDERMAN
Associated Press Writer

"There's too many shortages for it to be real. Everything you go to buy they holler there's a shortage. Then they raise the prices and there seems to be an excess of it."

Mrs. Howard M. King of Philadelphia was expressing her doubts about the energy crisis. "I think the oil companies are saying there is a shortage so they can raise prices and make a bigger profit."

But despite her doubts, Mrs. King is not entirely ignoring President Nixon's recent plea for individual Americans to conserve energy. She says her family turns off unneccessary lights and avoids excessive driving. But she stops short of turning down the thermostat to Nixon's recommended 68-degree average. "We've kept that at 72."

A random check a week after Nixon addressed the nation turned up a few doubters like Mrs. King. But most said they believe the energy crisis is real. And most said they are doing what they can to help ease it.

There won't be any Cristmas light display at the St. Louis home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert F. Doehring. Their thermostat is at 68, and they haven't been driving their car as much.

An East Detroit, Mich., family has been brushing their teeth and talking on the phone in the dark for about a year now. Dr. Richard F. Ward, a geology professor at Wayne State University, said it all started after he made a speech on the energy crisis. The Wards decided to see if it was possible to cut consumption of electricity without lowering the family's standard of living." The answer: Yes. Power consumption has been nearly halved. They do it by turning off every light not in use, watching less TV and scheduling use of appliances for maximum efficiency.

Energy Crisis

(AP Wirephoto)

'ENERGY CRISIS MAY FORCE SHUTDOWNS'--Commerce Secretary Frederick B. Dent tells newsmen in Boston the energy crisis may force some businesses to cease operations and that private industry will have to make major sacrifices. At left is Massachusetts Gov. Francis W. Sargent who announced a top speed of 50 miles an hour in the state and is seeking a reduction of outdoor advertising using lights.

Congress Prepares Oil Allocation Act

By DAVID C. MARTIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate sent the White House a sweeping mandatory fuel allocation bill Wednesday and then, in a surprise move, adjourned for the day without considering emergency energy legislation.

"The Republicans weren't ready," Senate Interior chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said in explaining the unexpected postponement of debate on a bill that would give President Nixon most of the powers he needs to deal with the energy crisis.

The move to adjourn came directly after Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., offered an amendment to limit busing of school children in order to conserve energy.

Jackson said he would move to table the amendment, adding that it was "not an act of responsibility."

"Every day we lose, we lose roughly one million barrels of oil," Jackson said, referring to the energy conservation measures contained in the bill.

The allocation bill which the Senate approved by an 83-3 margin would control the distribution of all fuels. It "lays the groundwork" for the rationing and conservation measures called for in the emergency energy bill, said Sen. Paul J. Fannin, R-Ariz., ranking Republican on the Interior committee.

The allocation bill goes far beyond the administration's programs of allocating propane, heating oil, jet fuel and certain other distillates but not crude oil or gasoline.

In a related move, Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., called for passage of a $23-million supplemental appropriation to remedy what he called a "bureaucratic disaster" in the administration's handling of the current allocation programs.

The emergency bill now scheduled for debate Thursday morning would direct the President to draw up plans for cutting the nation's current consumption or roughly 18 million barrels of oil a day by 25 per cent. Such plans would include rationing and other energy-saving steps such as reduced speed limits, lowered thermostats and shorter school and business hours.

The bill authored by Jackson would also seek to increase available fuel supplies by ordering oil-and gas-burning power plants to convert to coal and tapping naval petroleum reserves.

Consumers Bypass Gas-Guzzling Cars

By BOB GREENE
Associated Press Writer

Detroit's high-priced, chrome-laden, gas-guzzling monsters are being bypassed by Maine car buyers, who are looking for transportation that will be easier on the nation's rapidly dwindling fuel supply.

"The sales of the bigger cars have dropped considerably," said Roland Marcotte, owner of Marcotte Chevy in Auburn.

His comment was echoed by dealers and sales managers across the state.

While the full-size Chevrolets, Fords and Plymouths sit in dealer showrooms, Maine buyers are seeking out the compacts and sub-compacts that are stingy on fuel.

"We have felt the public turn toward smaller cars," said John Johnson, sales manager at Northeast Chrysler-Plymouth in Brewer. "We are maintaining fairly good sales, but we are selling mostly compacts in both new and used cars."

The trend, which started in the nation's big cities because of limited parking space, has been accelerated because of the energy crisis.

The shortage of oil and gasoline is "having a definite effect on us on all our lines," said Waterville's Charlie Gaunce, owner of Central Maine Motors, a Cadillac and Pontiac dealer. "Our sales are 50 percent off on standard-size, medium-priced cars."

Sheldon Scott, owner of Caribou Motor Co., a Ford-Mercury dealer in Caribou, said his customers are asking for "mostly small cars and pickups. The market's turned completely over.

"The whole trend has gone to the small cars," Scott said. "I think people have been thinking about buying a smaller car for some time. The fuel shortage just gave them an excuse to do it."

Scott said he's selling 10 to 12 full-sized cars a month now, compared to 25 to 30 a year ago.

Most of the dealers complained that the small car trend was ignored by the car makers, however.

England Dims Streetlights

By LOUIS NEVIN
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Britain dimmed its street-lighting and cut heating in public buildings Wednesday in emergency moves to meet a threatened shortage of energy.

The government's ban on street-and flood-lighting was effective at midnight but many firms simply turned off their advertising signs at closing time. Movies and theaters, however, kept their marquee-lighting on until the deadline.

Piccadilly Circus, the crossroads in the heart of the capital, was dim in the early evening but far from the blackout level of World War II.

The government ordered the ban on lighting and a 10 per cent cut in heating in all public buildings and state-owned industries after declaring a state of national emergency Tuesday.

The action was taken to give the administration necessary powers to deal with a refusal by coal miners and workers in the electricity-generating industry to work overtime. The refusal is part of a protest against wage freezes.

Infringement of the lighting and heating restrictions, a government spokesman said, would mean maximum jail sentences of three months, fines up to $240 or both.

The government apparently held off on the lighting ban until midnight because of the festivities involved with the wedding of Princess Anne, daughter of Queen Elizabeth II, to Capt. Mark Phillips.

The workers are protesting the government's anti-inflation curbs on pay raises.

Peek a boo!

The Chequers
University Drive at Amity Street, Amherst 256-8189
Enjoy a great dinner and a movie
Thursday night at one fantastic price . . .
$6.95 two persons
This Thursday: Lasagna, oven baked garlic bread,
fresh garden salad
Then on to CAMPUS CINEMAS to enjoy the movie of your choice at one of the three luxurious CAMPUS CINEMAS

FENTON'S
ATHLETIC SUPPLIES STICKS
Sher-wood
Louisville
Victoriaville
Koho
Cooper
SKATES
Hyde
CCM
Daoust
Skate Sharpening
377 MAIN ST., AMHERST 253-3973
Mon.-Fri., 10-5:30
Sat., 9-4

Union Given 50/50 Chance

By PHILLIP W. SEMAS
The Chronicle of Higher Education

A collective bargaining election at the University of Massachusetts' main campus here this week will test a much-debated proposition about unionizing professors: that a faculty can be organized in much the same way as an automobile factory.

In an automobile factory, a union will send in organizers to "talk-up" collective bargaining among the workers. The workers, it is hoped, will join the union and eventually vote for collective bargaining.

On a college campus, that approach isn't supposed to work. Professors are considered to be too independent to be organized that way.

Faculty members themselves, the theory goes, must decide on their own that they want a union. Then the union people will come in.

That approach has been used by all three of the national organizations that seek to represent college facilities.

The National Education Association, which lacks a base on most campuses, usually allies itself with an existing local organization, such as the Senate Professional Association in the State University of New York.

The American Federation of Teachers (A.F.L.-C.I.O.) is often more aggressive, but it lacks the resources to do much grassroots organizing.

The smaller but more prestigious American Association of University Professors is even more strapped for resources. The A.A.U.P. is also limited by its philosophy; that collective bargaining is only one of many means of reaching the goals of the professoriate. The local A.A.U.P. chapter decides whether it wants to use collective bargaining or something else. To persuade an uncertain faculty to unionize would be unseemly, in the A.A.U.P.'s view.

Just such an attempt of persuasion, however, has been made here in Amherst by the Massachusetts Teachers Association, the state affiliate of the N.E.A. and representative of most of Massachusetts' school teachers.

Vote Could Go Either Way

The M.T.A. has spent 18 months and an unknown amount of money to organize "UMass." When the M.T.A. effort began, only about a dozen faculty members even knew much about collective bargaining. Now, the odds are about 50-50 that the faculty will vote for collective bargaining this week.

Besides being a test of grass-roots organizing, the election here will also give some indication of the effect that mergers may have on faculty unionization. The group seeking recognition is an amalgamation of the local A.A.U.P. chapter and the Massachusetts Society of Professors, the local creation of the M.T.A.

Leaders of the coalition believe it gives them an advantage, combining the financial power and statewide clout of the M.T.A. with the academic prestige of the A.A.U.P.

The M.T.A. did not, however, simply arrive on campus and stir up happy, contented workers. No union could do that, even in an automobile factory.

Faculty members at UMass are relatively well-paid and have recently been given an increased role in running the institution. Even so, there is a underlying disquiet among them.

Much of that disquiet is the result of the end of the era of growth for the university. During the 1960's, Massachusetts was expanding its public system of higher education, and the Amherst campus, as the "flagship" of the state system, grew most rapidly of all--adding as many as 150 faculty members and 1,500 students a year.

In the 1970's, that changed. The growth of enrollments slowed, and it was decided to stabilize the Amherst campus at 25,000 students.

New Campus at Boston

The university opened a new campus in Boston, the state's population center, and enrollment there began to increase rapidly. The medical school went to Worcester, not Amherst.

The university's new president, Robert Wood -- who had already created a lot of anxiety here by bumping heads repeatedly with then-Chancellor Oswald Tippo--moved his office from Amherst to Boston. He left Randolph W. Bromery, a new and little-known chancellor, in charge here.

The governor's office proposed that the Amherst campus become primarily a regional university for the western part of Massachusetts - instead of the major prestigious public university in New England, as many faculty members would like it to be.

The end of growth also brought a tenure squeeze to Amherst. Faculty members who were hired during the boom days of the 1960's are coming up for tenure now. Many know they won't get it.

President Wood even hinted that the university might impose tenure quotas. The trustees rejected the idea, but tenure remains tight here and the faculty remains uneasy.

Still, it is unlikely that that unease would have been translated into a collective bargaining election this fall if M.T.A. organizers had not come into the campus.

The M.T.A.'s efforts began in the spring of 1972 when the association's leaders heard a rumor--untrue, as it turned out--that the rival American Federation of Teachers was organizing the UMass faculty.

The M.T.A. sent Eduardo Robreno, its top higher education operative, to Amherst to check out the interest in collective bargaining. He estimated that it would take at least three years to organize the UMass faculty.

But he also found out that the local A.A.U.P. chapter, with a minimum of effort, had got 5 per cent of the faculty to mail in cards saying they would like to have a collective bargaining election.

Full-Time Organizer Needed

Mr. Robreno went back to Boston and told the M.T.A. that UMass could be organized, but that it would mean putting someone on the campus full-time. The M.T.A. decided to go ahead.

The man Mr. Robreno sent to UMass was Cyril Solomons, a biochemist from Pennsylvania. Mr. Solomons has a doctorate from Pennsylvania. Mr. Solomons has a doctorate from the University of London, an accent to match, and the ability to make the Massachusetts Society of Professors sound like an organization that has existed for years. He planned to stay eight weeks.

Mr. Solomons started with the names of about 10 UMass faculty members. He began knocking on professors' office doors and chatting about what a union could do for them.

The M.T.A. also sponsored dinners, sending fancy invitations to faculty members believed to have some interest in collective bargaining. It did not always work; at one dinner no one showed up.

By June, 1972, Mr. Solomons had support for collective bargaining from 42 faculty members. He announced the formation of the Massachusetts Society of Professors. Its purpose, he announced, was to explore the possibilities of unionization for the UMass faculty.

A Unified Group Emerged

In reality, the organization was the creation of Mr. Solomons. Many of its members did not know one other. But they met frequently during the summer of 1972 to write a constitution.

The result of those gatherings--in addition to a hopelessly complicated governing document--was that the members of the Massachusetts Society of Professors came together, got to know each other, and emerged as a unified, purposeful group.

That summer the M.T.A. added a second staff member to help Mr. Solomons: Arnold M. Schneider, a research assistant in water resources who wandered into the M.T.A.'s Boston office one day to find out something about collective bargaining. Mr. Robreno ended up hiring him. He had the advantage of knowing a lot of people on the campus.

When classes resumed in September, 1972, things began to coalesce.

The Massachusetts Society of Professors was publishing a series of professional-looking publications, including position papers and a newsletter called MaSProf. The union opened a grievance center where faculty members could get help with complaints about anything from promotion to parking. A membership drive brought 10 per cent of the faculty into the organization.

By October, the rival American Federation of Teachers gave up. Unable to get much help from its regional and national organizations, the A.F.T. local disbanded, and most of its members joined the M.T.A. local, providing it with some much-needed militance, and commitment to unionism.

In December, the leaders of the local A.A.U.P. chapter contacted the M.T.A. staff. They wanted help in organizing the campus.

The M.T.A. leaders were not especially receptive. They felt they could win a collective bargaining election without the A.A.U.P. Their staff finally convinced them that the A.A.U.P. had much to offer, especially its academic respectability.

A Merger Negotiated

The two groups began negotiating a merger. By February, they thought they had an acceptable agreement. Under it, a local faculty member could join either of the local groups and its national affiliate, but all would

(Continued on P. 8)

CLASSIC FLANNEL
ALL SIZES & PATTERNS...WARM!
WEAR-HOUSE

Willowbrook Gardens
Flowers for Thanksgiving
can now be ordered fresh & dried arrangements
Amherst Carriage Shops 549-1493

Barbara Stewart
on THE ENERGY CRISIS:
A SOLUTION

Sixty-five, sixty-eight, seventy ... it's a numbers game, but anyway you add them up, the results will be the same; cooler inside when it's colder outside. So far, we've discussed only Stewart's COLD FIGHTER outerwear, never dreaming that we'd have to find new ways to keep warm indoors as well. Now that we know what's in store for us this Winter, let's get ready.

One of the things I've learned over the years is that you are always warmer wearing several layers of lightweight clothing rather than one or two bulky layers. The reason is that trapped air spaces between the layers are warmed by body heat and act as insulation against the cold. An added benefit, too, is that as you become warmer, you can remove sweaters and/or shirts one at a time until you find just the right combination. With bulky clothing, it's either on or off. There's no in-between.

We at Stewart's have always prided ourselves on having the most appropriate fashions for every occasion. The energy crisis is no exception. We'll help you keep warm when the going gets cool, at . . .

STEWART'S COLLEGE TOWNE
96 Main Street, Northampton

S.S. Round
Rose Rudel

the ALL NEW
T.O.C. SUNDAY
BUFFET
The Steamship Round is returning to the Campus Center Sunday Buffet at no extra cost to you.
As a matter of fact, U. Mass. Students with a valid student I.D. will receive a 10% discount on the $4.50 price.
Sunday 4 - 8 p.m.

A Party For Nancy

NORTH ABINGTON, Mass. (AP)-At New England Deaconess Hospital in Boston they list the condition of Nancy Dombrowski, 30, as "fair," but in North Abington they're planning a "Night Out for Nancy Party" this Friday.

Even if the party has to be postponed, the important thing is that Miss Dombrowski's death also has been postponed.

A victim of juvenile diabetes for 20 years, Miss Dombrowski's kidneys failed, and she no longer responded to treatment such as that given by a dialysis, or artificial kidney, machine.

But, last Sept. 30, the kidney of a 19-year-old youth killed in an automobile accident that day was transplanted into Miss Dombrowski, and now her friends and neighbors can think of having a party for her.

"She was dying. If she hadn't received the kidney when she did, Nancy could not have gone on," said Dr. John Libertino, chief surgeon and director of the team that performed the transplant at the New England Deaconess Hospital with the co-operation of the Lahey Clinic and the Joslin Clinic.

"I'm a fighter, but I had given up," Miss Dombrowski said recently. "When the doctor Dr. Libertino suddenly appeared at my bedside and said, 'Nancy, I have a kidney for you,' I couldn't react. I just heard words.

"I couldn't believe it when I survived the operation. I find it unbelievable that I'm alive today. It has made me believe in miracles-this was one."

"It's like God had said, 'This girl has had enough suffering,' and made available a kidney at a time I most needed it. It's as though He worked things out in a proper, smooth way."

Following the operation, Nancy was home for several days. She returned to the hospital when she developed a blood clot in the lung area. Blood clots are not uncommon in people who have been in bed a long time and have had such drastic surgery.

If she makes it to the party, planned for Friday from 8 p.m. to midnight, it will be her first night out in more than two years. A 33-member committee has been planning the event.

Staff Photo/Judy Boucher

After mid-terms a walk in the woods for peace of mind.

Unionizing

(Continued from P. 7)

join the M.T.A. The pact was rejected by the A.A.U.P.'s national office, which said it couldn't require its members to join another organization.

The M.T.A. then decided to proceed with bargaining on its own. By March, the group had the signatures of 40 per cent of the faculty on cards saying they wanted a collective bargaining election -- well over the 30 per cent required.

That success quickly brought about the merger. It was arranged that a faculty member could join the local organization and the national A.A.U.P. without joining the M.T.A. Even so, the national A.A.U.P. remains unhappy with the arrangement.

By last spring, the Massachusetts Society of Professors had moved out of Mr. Solomon's room at the Windjammer Motel and into an old warehouse. Mr. Solomons-who had stayed about a year instead of the eight weeks he had originally planned--had departed. His public presence as an organizer was no longer needed.

The union is now run by the faculty members themselves, with behind-the-scenes expertise and supporting services from Mr. Schneider and, part of the time, Mr. Robreno. The faculty members, not the staff, are carrying on the debate over collective bargaining.

Debate is Typical

That debate is typical of faculty collective-bargaining elections. The pro-union faculty members argue that a union is needed to protect the faculty from the tenure squeeze and to deal with an increasingly distant administration.

The opponents of bargaining--loosely organized as the Committee of Concerned Faculty--contend that the faculty has a sufficient role in decision-making through the faculty senate, which has been delegated more and more authority by the trustees in recent years.

The union also emphasizes the M.T.A.'s well-known effectiveness with the state legislature. Anti-union professors, however, fear they will be lost amid the 50,000 school teachers in the M.T.A.

The union says the alternative is for the faculty to be represented by the administration. "The issue isn't collective bargaining," Mr. Robreno says. "It's who can represent the faculty best. If you think Bob Wood can represent the faculty, then vote no."

That has been the union's main strategy: to pummel the administration.

So far, however, the administration has not been an easy target. President Wood and Chancellor Bromery have made it clear that they think collective bargaining is a bad idea. But they say it's the faculty's decision and they won't interfere with the election.

So far, they have kept clear of the arguments, although the administration has balked at some of the technical arrangements for the election. Generally, however, the administration has avoided major errors that might give the union an additional issue.

Despite the lack of a dispute with the administration, the faculty may still vote for collective bargaining.

A poll taken last April showed the faculty almost evenly split, and the union believes it has gained support since then.

Reprint from The Chronicle of Higher Education November 12, 1973

Peter Max Lives!

By MALCOLM N. CARTER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - He was Madison Avenue's wunderkind of the early 1960's, who led the advertising industry from snowy toothpaste smiles to the nostalgia of art nouveau and sepia-toned daguerrotypes.

His delicately styled cartoon figures tumbling through rainbow-hued space spurred a popular art form that some called psychedelic and that he terms cosmic.

He is Peter Max, a 36-year-old bearded artist whose latest ventures include the art gallery he is opening Thursday night, decoration of 26 billboards in Times Square and renovation plans for a 17-story building.

"Now I have the artistic freedom to do what I want," Max said the other day as he daubed a streak of shocking pink acrylic paint on the canvas before him.

That freedom came from a string of commercial successes in merchandising, product design and poster art. More than a million neckties bore his designs, and myriad other items were sold in his name.

His eyes glimmering with the recollection of scores of garment workers producing apparel he designed in throbbing colors, Max referred to the period of "mass media art" when he had employed 47 persons.

"Now I'm working with such a small group because I'm not into such hyperactivity," he said. "I'm being very, very selective in what I do. It's got to be fun. The fun causes me to be supercreative."

Bobbing to the rock music that booms in a 16-room aerie overlooking the Hudson River, he frowns at the monocled clown he has created in uncharacteristically broad, sweeping strokes.

"I'm working myself up to paint around the clock," Max is saying. "That would be my biggest thrill - just eat, sleep and paint."

Typical of the "sort of impressionist renaissance I'm going through," the painting is finished in minutes, and he begins another one. Sometimes he works like this for hours, sometimes through the night.

Film:

They Shoot Horses, Don't They?

Starring Jane Fonda, Gig Young, Susannah York and Michael Sarrazin

Thurs., Nov. 15th 7, 9, 11 p.m.

Mahar Aud.

Ann August . . . Open Friday Nights

SPICY HOLIDAY DRESSING for the Partying Season

...and they'll light up you too!

Just arrived—the newest fashion allure—marvelous, radiant you. We've just received a fine collection of the newest styles for the holidays—all ready for your selection at special low prices.

*P.S. . .
For the party circuit — we have a great selection of Cocktail dresses too!

Ann August uptown

FRISCO AND THE KILLERS

at the Bluewall
Thursday 9 p.m. - 1 a.m.

Final Examination Schedule

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS
AMHERST
FINAL EXAMINATION SCHEDULE
DECEMBER 1973

I. The two-hour examination periods are identified by code numbers according to the following chart:

	FRI DEC 14	SAT DEC 15	MON DEC 17	TUE DEC 18	WED DEC 19	THU DEC 20
8:00 a.m.	1	5	9	13	17	21
10:30 a.m.	2	6	10	14	18	22
1:30 p.m.	3	7	11	15	19	23
4:00 p.m.	4	8	12	16	20

COURSE	SECTION	PD
ACCTG 110		12	- implies that all sections of ACCTG 110 will be examined at the same time, MON DEC 17 4:00 p.m.
ACCTG 220	1,2 3,4	3 6	- implies that sections 1 and 2, ACCTG 220, will be examined FRI DEC 14 1:30 p.m., and that sections 3 and 4 will be examined SAT DEC 15 10:30 a.m.
FRENCH 261	2	15	- implies that only section 2 of FRENCH 261 is scheduled to be examined, TUE DEC 18 1:30 p.m. (see NOTE, below).

NOTE: WHEN SECTION NUMBERS WITHIN A COURSE ARE LISTED, ASSUME THAT ANY UNLISTED SECTION IS NOT SCHEDULED FOR A FINAL EXAMINATION.

II. See your instructor for information on the place of examination. He will NOT have this information BEFORE Thanksgiving.

III. The official academic calendar for 1973-1974 provides for examination periods to continue through Saturday, December 22. The schedule on the next pages does not involve formally scheduled examinations beyond period 23, THU DEC 20 1:30 p.m. - Friday and Saturday, December 21 and 22, are available for make-up examinations if other alterantives fail.

IV. CONFLICTS or MORE THAN TWO EXAMINATIONS IN ONE DAY

Students who have conflicts in their examination schedule (as published herein) or who have more than two examinations scheduled for one calendar day may report to the Schedule Office (168 Whitmore) for resolution of these problems.

THE SCHEDULE OFFICE WILL NOT ASSIST IN RESOLVING PROBLEMS UNLESS THEY ARE REPORTED BEFORE SATURDAY, DECEMBER 1.

COURSE	SECTION	PD
A&F EC 110		11
177	1	4
	2	14
	3	17
235		22
261		23
265		11
385B		2
ACCTG 110		12
120	1-3,5-16	3
	4	3
130	1,5,6,7,9	7
	2,3	21
	8	8
210		1
211		14
220	1,2	3
	3,4	6
221	1	4
	2,3	6
230	1,2	22
	3	1
263		19
320		6
340		3
360		13
370	1,2,3	11
	4	21
371		5
AIRSCI 111	1A	22
	2B	13
	3A	2
	4B	16
121	1A	17
	2B	8
231		11
233		18
AN SCI 219		2
321		12

COURSE	SECTION	PD
330		6
353		23
358		21
361		7
387		8
ANTH 102	1A	17
	2B	10
103		20
104	1A	9
	2B	22
	3	19
	4	2
105		11
190B		21
ANTH 252		6
260		11
261		6
267		10
290A		15
340		1
373		19
375		3
ART 115	1	19
	2	20
285		23
291		16
ASIANS 150		20
ASTRON 100	1,2	4
	3,4	2
	5A	6
101		22
190		7
BIOCHM 190		9
220		13
220A		13
223		14
225		16
BOTANY 100	1A	22
	2B	7
101	1A	6

COURSE	SECTION	PD
	3C	18
101A		18
125		8
175	1	18
	2	5
190		1
211		6
221		20
222		3
226		23
240		19
291		15
301		3
311		22
385C		15
C E 101		12
102		13
140		15
141		9
142		7
180		8
210		18
220		14
230		11
232		16
257		22
260		2
C E 270		1
275		19
305		15
331		14
333		21
360		3
375		14
385A		9
CA S 111		20
CH E 125		3
255		8
290		1
358		4

COURSE	SECTION	PD
370		11
380		6
CHEM 101		18
111		1
112		16
113		23
127		12
160		11
162		16
165		1
210		1
213		19
246		12
261A		10
261B		1
261C		20
262		1
272		22
281		22
285	1	4
	2	3
294		21
CHINSE 126		5
190		2
251		22
275		22
326		5
350		16
CLSICS 100		13
228		7
261		8
COINS 101		5
202		10
232		16
COMLIT 101B		11
201		17
202		22
231		17
251		10
290A		9
COMLIT 385D		13
DANISH 126		16
ECE 141		3
142		13
201		11
202		19
204		13
210		10
241		16
257		2
258		6
265		20
266		18
278		5
292		23
294		1
344		10
360		4
368		6
394		4
ECON 100	4	16
	5	18
103	1A	6
	2B	11
	3	4
104		9
121		11
131		16
141	1	13
	2	16
172		22
181		8
203	1	12
	2	19
	3	4
204	1	21
	2	4
205		8
211	1	9
	2	2

COURSE	SECTION	PD
231	1	5
	2	6
232		14
252		18
266		8
271		2
281		12
321		19
347		9
372		7
383		2
ENGIN 100		20
251		17
ENGL 125	2	20
	3	16
	4,6	5
	5	1
126	1	6
131	1	17
	2	19
	3	16
	7	4
141	4,5	3
141H		7
152	1,2,3	4
153	1	17
161		9
201		8
203	1	16
213		16
221	1	7
	2	11
	3	19
	4	12
	5,6	2
	8	23
233		3
236		20
241	1	7
	2	3
251	2	4
253	2	23
253H	1	22
261	1,2	16
	8	14
	9	20

COURSE	SECTION	PD
261H		2
265		16
267	1	21
271	1	21
275	2	18
	3	1
289	1	18
321		22
331		23
363	1	6
	2	7
381A		12
382B		15
383B		6
384C		19
391D		13
ENT 126		10
380		11
ENVDES 243		7
273		1
ENVDES 347		17
EXCSCI 204		16
205		3
259		6
278		9
FD SCI 190		20
275		15
352		1
361		3
366		4
371		2
380		12
384		12
390B		7
FD&A E 281		21
FISH 265		13
FOREST 212		19
223		8
225		5
226		2
235		18
FRENCH 110	1,2	15
	3,4	15
111		17
120	1,2	3
	3	15

COURSE	SECTION	PD
123		12
130		17
132		22
142	1,2	22
	3	17
144	1,7	19
	2	13
	3	12
	4	15
	5	5
	6	14
	8	6
145		12
146		2
147		15
150		11
161	1A	21
	2B	20
	3C	4
171	1	13
	2	15
	3	10
	4	12
172	1	17
	2	14
261	2	15
FRENCH 263	1,2	10
290		20
303		12
314		9
322		9
334		3
340		14
346		9
355		2
GB FIN 201	1	20
	2,4,5	23
	3	5
	6	9
	7	22
	8	17
202		3
204		10
210		13
220		7
230	3	18

COURSE	SECTION	PD
231		18
233		1
GENBUS 240		21
250	2	14
	3,4	8
253		8
255		14
265	3,4	1
270	1	16
	4	23
	5	20
	6,7	8
272		11
273		21
274		4
275		10
GEOG 135		5
155		9
260		7
270		18
386A		8
386B		22
GEOL 100		6
105		8
192		10
220		5
230		23
240		14
250		6
311		21
332		5
351		5
355		21
360		17
GEOL 390		21
GERMAN 110		15
112	1A	12
	2B	8
120		17
122		23
130	1	1
	2	15
	3	10
	4	23

(Continued on P. 10)

Attention

SKIERS

I Sell Brand-New 1974 SKI EQUIPMENT

at 20% Off

LIST PRICE

ALL BRAND NEW
ALL FULLY GUARANTEED
ALMOST ALL BRANDS

You only lose by not calling or contacting:

Chuck Berman
Chi Psi Fraternity
Amherst College
256-0476

SWISSAIR

Beat your friends to the Top.

The Swiss Alps, top of the world for skiers, and Swissair Jets you to the slopes.

SOFA gives you your pick of the peaks. Davos, Klosters, Leysin, Scouls, Verbier, Zermatt. Top mountains. Top conditions. Top lodgings. Spend a week with students from all over the world. Breakfasts and dinners to keep you going day and night. Transfers, taxes and tips, too. A top-flight deal for as low as $313. Stay a second week for as little as $50. Details in The Student Skier.

Rush coupon today.

from $313

SKI Switzerland with SOFA

Ski SOFA: 136 East 57 Street
New York 10022 (212) PL 1-8000
S27

Name__________
Address__________
City/State/Zip__________
Date of Birth__________

UMASS CELEBRITY SERIES PRESENTS

DIRECT FROM THE SOVIET UNION · THE RETURN OF THE

LENINGRAD PHILHARMONIC

CURRY HICKS CAGE
Monday, November 19, 1973
8:00 P.M.
Presented by Univ. of Mass. Fine Arts Council
Tickets: UM A Students $3.00; Others $6.00
Ticket Office: 125 Herter Hall

Phone 545-0202

Final Examination Schedule (cont.)

(Continued from P. 9)

COURSE	SECTION	PD
132	1	4
	2	11
138		15
140	1	11
	2	8
142		7
148		13
201	1	13
	2	16
221		2
231		4
283		23
285		3
301		20
312		13
321		8
334		18
385		22
385A		7
GREEK 110		12
113		22
150		23
210		14
HIST 100	1A	3
	2B	6
	3C	1
110		13
115		13
120	1A	1
	2B	7
120A		11
141		13
150	1A,4C	13
	5D	2
	6E	21
	7F,11	9
	8G	19
151	1A	7
	2B	20
152	1	19
	2	15
185		19
186		9
190		22
HIST 190B		12
200		16
202		20
205		2
209		15
214		5
220		9
228		12
229		8
230		7
290A		17
290C		22
301		11
304		17
307		13
316		11
318		2
319		17
320		8
324		21
325		5
326		4
334		1
339		12
341		13
386		14
390B		1
390G		12
390I		7
HRTA 100		10
102		16
120		1
156		2
200		4
201		20
203		8
204		8
211		14
367	1A	13
HUMDEV 300		8
I E 151		17
261		1
271		4
286		2
354		7
360		22
378		9
379		17
385		10
ITAL 110		12
126		16
161		15
JAPAN 126		11
190		17
290		14
JS 201		3
392		15
LAT AM 392		4
LATIN 110	1,4	8
	2	23
	3	19
	5	14
140	1	12
	2,3	9
142	1	13
	2	14
215		2
LING 101		17
101H		17
LS&S 101		12
111		15
230		19
313		8
320		14
354		3
361		13
M&A E 102		21
144		20
145		4
163		8
167		12
220		11
235		14
246		23
264		1
265		5
282		19
283		9
284		10
285		15
308		12
315		20
390		5
MARSCI 225	1	9
	2	3
	3	1
MATH 100	3	6
	4	22
	6,8	3
110	1,3	9
	2,4,12,14	17
	5,6	5
	11,13	1
	17,18	3
110E	1	16
	2	5
	3	7
110J		10
112	2	17
MATH 115		17
116		16
117	2,4,6	16
	3,5	22
118	1,2,4	16
	3	17
119	1	19
	2	5
127		3
128	1	10
	2	7
	5	2
131	1,12	11
	2	5
	3	22
	4,11	20
	5,16	13
	6	4
	7,10	10
	8	3
	9	19
	13	14
	14	18
	15	21
132		21
135	1,9,16	18
	2	3
	3	20
	4,5,14	16
	6,8	4
	13	5
136		21
143	1	1
	2	7
146		19
151		23
151E		10
165	1,2	19
	3	14
	4	7
	5	5
	6,13	6
	11,12	11
167	1	20
	3	18
	4	9
167A		18
187	1	5
	2,5,6	18
	4	6
211	1	13
	2	23
225	1	11
	3	18
MATH 226		20
241	1	14
	2	5
247	2	19
251		9
255		12
261	1	12
	2	6
311		13
325		6
331	1	15
	2	21
345		10
MEDTEC 101		17
301		11
302		9
303		19
304		5
305		21
307		10
385		2
MFE 211		15
MGT 110		12
201		18
214	1	20
	2	19
	3	6
	4	9
230		13
231	1	10
	2	18
247		8
265		4
341		6
342		21
344	1	3
	2	19
348		9
371		11
390		22
391		18
392		7
MICBIO 140		19
250		6
260		8
280		11
320		7
390		20
MKTG 201	1,2	1
	3,4,12	14
	5,14	13
	6	23
	9,10	2
	11,13	19
	16,17	7
MKTG 210	1,2	10
212		1
216	4	21
222	3	23
237		18
MUSIC 101	1	5
	2	21
113		16
201		23
211	1	3
	2	18
NAREST 100		15
NEAST 100		22
NF 240		21
290		18
312		5
340		17
344		4
385		6
NURSE 290A	1	12
	2	4
	3	7
	4	15
290C	1	1
	2	16
	3	17
	4	8
300	1	7
	2	12
	3	16
301	1	1
	2	17
	3	18
304	1	22
	2	15
P E 200	1	5
	2	6
	3	14
	4	3
201	1,2,5A	18
	3,4	21
202	1	11
	2	15
	3	13
P E	4	10
203		19
206	1	14
	2	12
253		17
263		23
275		23
276	1	20
	2	2
277		19
290B		15
354		21
370	1	8
	2	1
	3	21
PHIL 105	1A	6
	5,6	19
	9	4
110	1	21
	2	9
	3	5
	4	12
	5	10
	7	11
125	1.	5
	2	23
161		21
201		19
230		1
240		6
263		4
290A		1
346		14
350		3
383		11
390A		20
390B		14
391		13
PHYSIC 100		9
100A		11
114		20
116		14
121		23
141		18
161		2
162		10
172		9
181		8
183		2
190		7
190A		15
190B		5
190C		21
190D		6
190E		18
200		20
251		11
255		23
271		23
285		19
290		4
290A		12
PHYSIC 302		3
PK ADM 241		22
263		19
PLPATH 251		23
PLSOIL 110		12
110A		12
115		4
200		15
205		10
225		21
255		4
260		2
265		13
275		7
285		20
385B		17
POLISH 110		23
POLSCI 100	1A	10
	2B	6
150	1A	21
	2	14
	3	20
161	1A,2	10
	3	2
	4	8
201		17
202	1	3
	2	18
203	1	18
	2	7
218		17
219	1	7
	2	22
220		4
222		14
236		17
237		11
243		16
245		9
254	1	13
	2	18
272	1	2
	2	20
277		4
290	1	21
	2	6
291		15
292		10
306		23
320		14
321	1,2	19
322		16
355		4
POLSCI 358		9
359		5
361		7
374		8
385		3
391A		5
391B		18
391D		12
391E		1
PSYCH 101A	2,4,8	14
	5	5
	9	11
101E		20
101F		2
145	1A	17
	2B	1
	3C	22
	4D	2
201		14
210		4
220A	2	18
	4	14
220B		17
230	1	20
250		15
252	1	9
	2	5
260	1	15
	2A	10
	4	14
263		13
265		11
280A	1	6
	2	17
	3	4
301A		22
305		10
311		2
325	3	11
PUB HL 263		3
330A		7
330B		21
340	1	8
	3	22
361		16
390E		3
RHET 175		2
RUSS 110		15
119		18
129		18
130		12
261		1
281		2
291		13
SOCIOL 101	1A,2B,3C	23
	11,13D	4
	4	7
	7	12
	8	10
	9	7
222		6
224		22
233		3
247	1	1
	2	2
251		5
253		1
254		9
255		9
256		3
259		23
261	1	4
	2	19
266		11
270		8
272		22
275	1	13
	2A	21
278	1	23
	2,3	16
280		18
282	1	20
	2	5
286		15
SPAN 110		16
120		3
126		12
130		16
304		8
375		22
SPEECH 121		1
182		2
190		17
203	1	3
	2	21
210		16
225		12
227		10
228		14
232		6

GROUP	SECTION	PD
250		15
283		22
284		12
285		8
286		5
287		10
295
STATIS 121		22
231		3
290		15
315		20
316	2,3	15
316B		16
SWEDSH 126		11
TCEA 240		22
259		12
THEATR 385A		13
385B		21
385C		10
WDTECH 201		21
208		6
211		15
WILDLF 261A		2
261B		2
YIDDSH 110		21
ZOOL 101		8
135		7
137		2
150		19
161		10
176		8
221		8
223		23
240	1,2	9
	3	5
281		20
285A		6
300		5
306		15
337		7
350		4
360		17
360A		22
366		7

Coal Needed

BOSTON (AP) — The New England Electric system announced Wednesday that its subsidiary, New England Power Co., has taken options on coal for approximately 25 per cent of the company's anticipated British Thermal Units BTU needs for next year

A spokesman said the coal under option is the equivalent of approximately five million barrels of residual fuel oil. He said the company expects 60,000 tons of coal will be delivered for analysis and testing next month.

FIVE COLLEGE JANUARY 1974 FLIGHT

Boston-Paris January 5-26, 1974. Round-trip $175, Air France carrier. Contact: International Programs 239 Whitmore, University of Mass. 545-2710, payment deadline Nov. 30.

UMass. Third World Cultural Series Presents

THE KERALA KALAMANDALAM COMPANY

kathakali

The Sacred Dance Drama of Kerala

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1973—8:00 p.m.

BOWKER AUDITORIUM

Tickets $1.50 UM/A Students $3.00 Others

Telephone 545-0202

Sponsored by the Fine Arts Council

TRUCKIN' GEAR

BASS SPORTS

US SKI TEAM

Used by the U.S. Ski Team

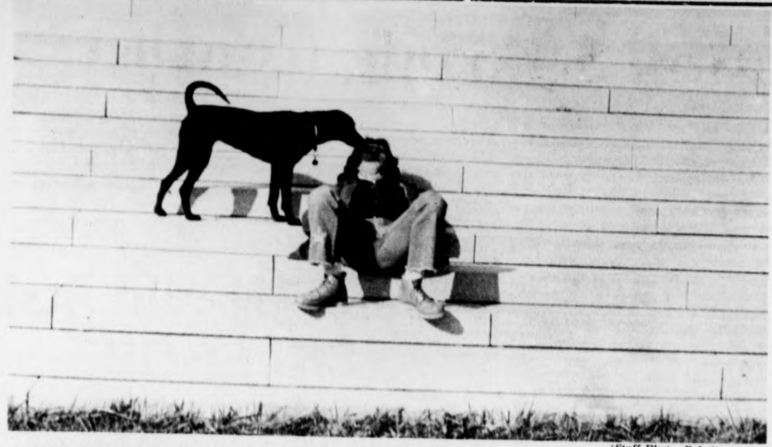
EIGER

trak

FROM THE SKIER'S FRIEND

House of Walsh, Inc.

Amherst, Massachusetts



(Staff Photo- Bob Gamache)

While sleeping in the warm afternoon sun Sleeping Beauty was awakened by a kiss from Princess Charming, only to find the girl of his dreams was a real "dog."

Visiting Classicist Lectures On Reason

Jonathan Barnes, visiting professor of Classical Humanities at UMass, will give three public lectures titled "The Springs of Reason."

The lectures, which will deal with the Greek origins of rational thought about man and his place in the universe, will be in various rooms in the UMass Campus Center at 8 p.m. successive Wednesdays. Nov. 28, in room 917, the topic will be "The Soul;" Dec. 5, room 162, "Knowledge;" and Dec. 12, room 917, "Morality."

Jonathan Barnes is the first UMass Visiting Professor of Classical Humanities, a position shared by the departments of art, Classics, comparative literature, history, and philosophy. He is a philosopher whose regular position is as a fellow of Oriel College and lecturer in philosophy at Oxford. His published articles are on such topics as ancient philosophy, and he is the translator and editor of Aristotle's "Posterior Analytics" for the Clarendon Aristotle Series, and the author of "The Ontological Argument."

Need Information?

Anyone can begin to make the information explosion a personal asset, according to a new report by Unisource-Intersource, an information service organization at 2480 16th Street, Washington, D.C. 20009.

Titled The Best 12 Information Sources in the World, the report is for students, researchers, and businessmen. Price is $6.00, student discounted price $3.00.

Unisource-Intersource is a non-profit organization dedicated to the solution of the information problem. Emphasis is on those systems which provide a customized response to the information needs and wants of individuals at low cost. Useful, relevant information, flowing freely and quickly from sources to users, is becoming a necessity for the solution of pressing world problems.

Unless you hibernate all winter . . .

You'll want

SUNGLASSES

for Winter Glare

from don call

Amherst's First Optician

56 MAIN ST. 253-7002

conserve natural energy!

No need to exert yourself. The bus is going there anyway, so do yourself a favor and hop aboard!

Peter Pan BUS LINES

Hourly service to Boston, New York City, Albany and everywhere, direct from the University Campus. Extra express service to Natick and Boston every weekend.

Lobby Campus Center Hotel

Tel. 545-2528 or 545-2006

On March 2, 1972

Colonel Sanders introduced

"The Student Special"

Well Folks, it's back again at that special price of 99¢

JUST FOR STUDENTS, and here's what you get.

"It's finger lickin' good"
Kentucky Fried Chicken

- 2 pc's of Kentucky Fried Chicken
- Colonel's Hot Bake Beans
- Colonel's Special Cole Slaw
- One Hot Roll
- One Pre-Pack

99c

- Student I.D. Required

Kentucky Fried Chicken®

Route 9 256-8745 Hadley

Life On The 'Inside'

The School of Education offers a series of practicum experiences through the sponsorship of faculty members. Currently one is being offered that centers around a student's involvement at the Berkshire County House of Corrections through the Model Educational Rehabilitation Program. In its simplest form, the practicum experience is a voluntary committment of a student to spend 90 days incarcerated within the jail. The student "inmates" would reside in individual cells and would be subject to all the rights, priviledges and limitations of the rest of the population. As such, the internship will allow the student to experience incarceration firsthand while providing him or her with an in-depth perspective of the overall correctional system.

The internship involves more than just "doing time", for each student will be required to work closely with the Model Educational Rehabilitation Program. Administered by the University of Massachusetts under a grant from the Fund for the Improvement of Post-Secondary Education, the program seeks to transform the jail into an educational center for inmates and guards. A comprehensive and individualized program, it will hopefully serve as a national model for the coordinating and delivery of services to inmate needs.

The internship has already been experimented with on a trial basis. Five UMass students spent their summer in the program and one student is currently residing within the jail. For those persons who are interested in finding out more about the internships, there will be a general meeting on Tuesday, November 20 in room 808 of the Campus Center. Anyone unable to attend the meeting is advised to contact Andy at 6-5460.

Getting Head And Books Together

A gathering will be held by the Center for Integration of Meditative & Academic Disciplines (CIMAD) Friday, at 12 p.m., in Pierpont, room 119.

Paradoxes of trying to measure emotional and spiritual growth in the University context were discussed at the last interdisciplinary faculty-staff colloquium in Thatcher House. Jack Richardson, faculty resident, presented seven stages or categories by which to judge "non-cognitive learning".

These ranged from emotional growing-up as reflected, for example, in outgrowing self-pity, to realization of "non-ordinary reality" and awareness of cosmic frameworks in immediate concrete experience. He assumes that different religious traditions are working with the same psycho-physical stages but impose varying interpretations on them. He stressed the value of indentifying one's own particular psychosomatic type, as a counterforce to competitive one-upmanship tendencies among both academic and spiritual zealots. For example, if you're the gut-dominated type (viscerotonic), don't try to measure yourself against a brain-oriented (cerebrotonic) type.

Peter Park, UMass Sociologist and student of communes, played devil's advocate by inquiring: "Why evaluate? It just reinforces achievement motivation. Do we always have to have some parent to show what we've done? Get people away from evaluation!"

For information call 545-2166.

Thanksgiving
COAT & JACKET Sale
LEATHERS
RAINCOATS
SPORTCOATS
SKI JACKETS
&
All Regular Quality Outerwear
20% to 40%
All sales cash, Bank Americard or Mastercharge.
THOMPSON'S
13 N. Pleasant St., Amherst
OPEN 9-5:30, 8 on Friday

WESTERN VILLAGE SKI SHOP
Downstairs at Western Auto
Now is the time to think about ski equipment.
SKIS: Spaldings
K-2
Northland
Volke
Kastle
SKI BOOTS: Caber Nordica
Lastinger
BINDINGS: Salomon
Marker
Tyrolia
Look
Americana
WESTERN AUTO
MAIN ST. NORTHAMPTON

Who's Best?
1. We deliver hot pizzas! Always!
2. We're open from 4 p.m. 'til the wee hours!
3. We have several delivery vehicles complete with OVENS!
4. Our delivery is ALWAYS FREE!
Try us out.
DOMINO'S PIZZA
FREE DELIVERY 256-8587
Our Superb Cheese Pizza
12 - inch Pizza $1.75
16 - inch Pizza $2.95
Our Deluxe Pizza
Pepperoni, Mushrooms, Ham, Green Pepper, Onion
12 - inch Pizza $3.15
16 - inch Pizza $4.95
ADDITIONAL ITEMS
Mushrooms
Onions
Green Peppers
Pepperoni
Ground Beef
Fresh Sausage
on 12 - inch Pizza 35c
on 16 - inch Pizza 50c
25c Off Any Small PIZZA (ONE COUPON PER PIZZA)
Name
Address
Expires Midnight 11-18
50c Off Any Large PIZZA (ONE COUPON PER PIZZA)
Name
Address
Expires Midnight 11-18

Enjoy A Summer In The Land Of The Basques

UMass is sponsoring a summer program of studies in French at Pau, in southwest France. The 1974 academic program will run from July 7 to August 18. Up to six undergraduate or graduate University of Massachusetts credits in French can be earned for the six-weeks course of studies.

A year of college French or the equivalent is the minimal prerequisite on the undergraduate level, and an undergraduate major in French (with the B.A. or equivalent degree) for the graduate level. Students will be placed according to their background, competence in French, and interest. Courses are offered in language, stylistics, literature, and civilization. The courses are taught by professors from the French University system, particularly from the faculties of Pau, Bordeaux, Toulouse, and Paris. There are, in addition, series of lectures (optional attendance) on, for example, French music, politics, regional culture.

Cost to the student is approximately $700 (the cost may fluctuate somewhat depending on the value of the dollar). Included are tuition and textbooks, medical services during the school period, room and board for the six weeks at Pau, and excursions planned as part of the program. Not included are the costs of international and independent travel and miscellaneous personal expenses. (Advice will be provided on arranging for travel.)

The deadline for submitting completed applications is February 28. Early application is recommended.

Application forms and further information are available from: French Studies at Pau, Department of French and Italian, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Mass. 01002.

Course Schedule Notices

G 99 — Sport Appreciation is offered for two (2) credits instead of one (1).

◆

Clarification of two Comparative Literature Courses listed in the spring course description guide: The Function of Literature in our world, 101-A, Science Fiction in Film and Literature should be distinguished from a course by the same title but with a section number of 290-C. The latter course is limited to 100 students and has a $10 lab fee. 290-C is open to Mass Communications majors, and Film majors who have received a grade of B or better in two previous film courses.

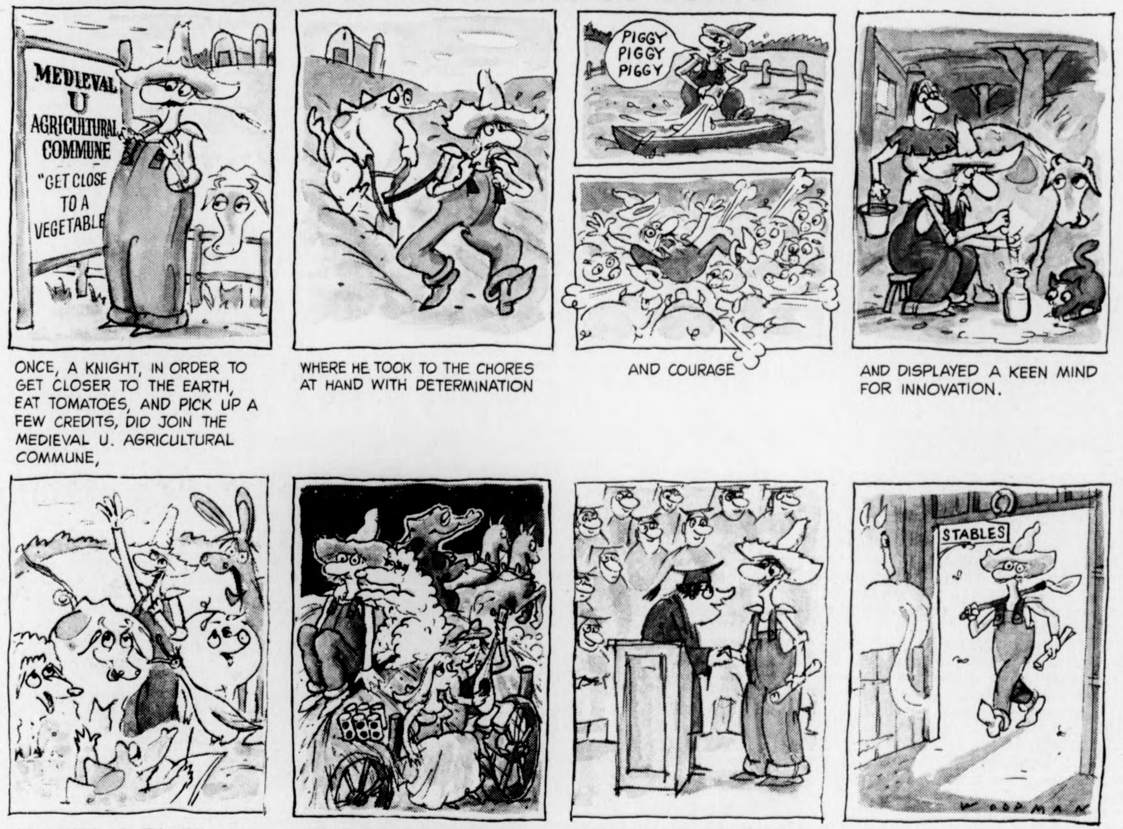
CAB Prepares To Axe Student Fare Privileges

Although the Civil Aeronautics Board will not make a final decision on the future of student/youth fares of international travel in 1974 for several weeks, it appears likely that they will be eliminated. A statement issued by the CAB several weeks ago seems to suggest that "discriminatory" fares, for example those which have offered special advantages to students and young people, should be abolished. Other fares offering concessions for international travel will probably go up, for example, the special 22-45 day rates. Even if student/youth fares are continued for 1974, they are likely to rise. Whereas the student fare to Paris was $263 round-trip in 1973, if student fares are permitted next year the rate to Paris will probably be $296.

Five College students, faculty and staff wanting to travel to Europe in January can still do so at bargain rates by flying on the Five College Charter Boston-Paris. The round-trip fare will be only $175. Dates are January 5-26. Interested persons should contact the International Programs Office, 239 Whitmore (549-2710) as soon as possible. The flight is filling up quickly.

WRITINGS AND DRAWINGS by Bob Dylan
His lyrics, poems, prose, art.
A large, beautiful book of 332 pages, size 8 5/16 x 10 1/4, printed in two colors. $6.95 at all bookstores. Published by Knopf

MORE THAN ONCE UPON A TIME



ONCE, A KNIGHT, IN ORDER TO GET CLOSER TO THE EARTH, EAT TOMATOES, AND PICK UP A FEW CREDITS, DID JOIN THE MEDIEVAL U. AGRICULTURAL COMMUNE, WHERE HE TOOK TO THE CHORES AT HAND WITH DETERMINATION AND COURAGE
AND DISPLAYED A KEEN MIND FOR INNOVATION.
HIS MUSICAL ABILITY WON HIM A PLACE IN THE BARNYARD CHORUS,
AND HE DID JOIN HIS FELLOW STUDENT FARMERS ON AN EVENING'S HAYRIDE (THEIR WAGON STOCKED WITH PLENTY OF FROSTY-COLD SCHAEFER BEER, THE BEER WITH FLAVOR THEY COULD DEPEND ON NOT TO FADE THE WHOLE NIGHT LONG).
AND SOON, HE DID COMPLETE HIS TRAINING AND WAS ASSIGNED TO THE TASKS MOST SUITED TO HIS ABILITIES.
WHEN YOU'RE HAVING MORE THAN ONE
Schaefer BEER
Schaefer Breweries, New York, N.Y., Baltimore, Md., Lehigh Valley, Pa.

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF	Stephen G. Tripoli
MANAGING EDITOR	Mary T. Vorderer
BUSINESS MANAGER	Gilbert W. Fullerton
EXECUTIVE EDITOR	Jerald H. Lazar
NEWS EDITOR	Joan Fassnacht
SPORTS EDITOR	Stephen W. Crowe
PHOTO EDITOR	Alan H. Chapman
FINE ARTS EDITOR	Patrick Coffey
ADVERTISING MANAGER	Brent A. Wilkes
ASST. MANAGING EDITOR	Geoffrey L. Kurinsky
ASST. EXECUTIVE EDITOR	Dean P. Tucker
ASST. NEWS EDITOR	Sharon Hughes
ASST. SPORTS EDITOR	Steven DeCosta
ASST. PHOTO EDITOR	Stephen A. Ruggles
ASST. FINE ARTS EDITOR	Joyce Kosofsky

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR	Jan Alexander
NIGHT STAFF	Marc Bouchard
EDITORIAL	Liz Thompson
SPORTS	Glenn Poster
DARKROOM	Bob Gamache, Janice Cerrone, Judy Boucher
AD LAYOUT	Bob MaCray Jr.

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content, and no faculty member or administrators read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons, and letters represent the personal views of the authors.

The Collegian subscribes to the Associated Press and the Liberation News Service. Publication of their material does not constitute endorsement.

Senseless Deaths

Whenever there are unusual circumstances surrounding a tragic death, it seems to be a natural tendency to want to place blame. Such is the case with two senseless deaths this week, both involving the loss of young lives.

When William Markussen, 19, plummeted fifteen floors down an open elevator shaft Saturday, some said it was the fault of the person that kicked the door open; others blamed it on the elevator mechanism; still others blamed it on the living conditions in Southwest, or the University for permitting Southwest to be designed and built in the first place.

In an unrelated incident, Edward Waddington jumped from the nineteenth floor of Washington tower Tuesday, once again causing most UMass students to pause a few minutes and ask themselves why such things happen, particularly in a university setting.

We are daily bombarded with murders, suicides, fatal traffic accidents and fires, by the media, to the point where it is easy to become callous to disaster. Yet, when it is brought close to home, it has a new meaning and, hence, more of an effect on our lives, whether because of morbid curiosity or true emotional involvement.

It is worthless to place blame for either of these incidents. Neither was the fault of any one person, nor were they direct symptoms of environmental conditions, either in Southwest or the University. Rather, they were both most likely a result of a variety of factors.

Death in any community is always unpleasant, but when it occurs at a university and involves young lives and shudderingly ghastly forms, death takes on a different dimension.

Here at UMass, it is something that every one of us should learn to live with, cope with, and most importantly, deal with. An accident and a suicide. Both could have been prevented. Let's pray it won't happen here again. It's up to you.....

Los Venceremitos

By LUIS MANUEL MEDINA

Last summer, nine North American kids of the Venceremitos Brigade, broke the U.S.A. blockade against Cuba, and participated in the International Children's Camp in that country.

Some of the richest and most diverse experiences that the brigadists had are explained by David Cole in a letter that he wrote to his parents and relatives after his return.

David Cole, 11 years old in 6th grade at Fort River Elementary School in Amherst, made different observations that show that we much change some of our concepts of education.

His observations about the language barrier show that the American Educational system must develop better ways to teach a second language in the elementary schools.

"When I got to Cuba" David said, "I was worried about the language barrier. I am taking French in school and we worked on some Spanish phrases before I went, but I don't really speak any language except English....We had an advantage in having Hector in our delegation. He's Puerto Rican and so he could speak Spanish and help us out in Mexico and in Cuba. I made good friends with a boy from Bulgaria. He's twelve years old and he can speak three languages quite well: Bulgarian, Russian and English."

David also wrote that the sessions of criticism-self criticism gave him an opportunity to encounter new feelings and observations.

Probably this is one strength of Cuba in educating people by starting with the kids, to achieve success by overcoming their underdevelopment, common problems to all the Latin American countries. For example; lack of capital and technicians, maldistribution of wealth, rigid social stratification and to much dependency from United States. Some of the questions that most of us have is knowing what kind of motivation and organization skills the Cuban People have to create a new society and to overcome multiple problems that they were facing but looked practically impossible to overcome.

"All the children in Cuba have free schools and free lunches and free medical care. Of course the children and the adults also work a lot to help make it possible for all of the people to have these things," David said.

The Venceremitos Brigade was exposure to another kind of education system and organization and culture. The emphasis received in the solidarity with other children of different countries could be a good basis to prepare the youth, in this changing society in which the fallacies of the racial superiorities are being descarded, to think in new solutions of the world problems in terms of racial equality. And it's nice to know that the Venceremitos ambassadors while they were breaking the blockade, as well as the adults' brigades, had done, they were conscious that they must re-establish the U.S.A. - Cuba relations.

(David Cole is the son of Robert and Johaneta Cole. Both parents had been in Cuba.)

Luis Manuel Medina is a Collegian commentator.

Steve Anderson

Is SW A Zoo?

Now that Southwest has mellowed for a while, it would be a good idea to look at its reputation and see if it is justified. Southwest has the reputation of a zoo. So does UMass, but SW is supposed to be the "zooest" section of campus with the possible exception of Sylvan.

Things happen in SW that wouldn't happen any other place on campus. I remember a friend telling me that when he visited UMass someone pissed down the stairwell on him in one of the towers. This just doesn't happen in other sections of campus or it happens considerably less. The stairwells of the towers are constantly full of broken beer bottles, garbage and general trash. Early this semester the Heads of Residence in SW sent the heads of security a memo in which they detailed the crimes that had been committed in just three weeks. They listed: two muggings, two money rip-offs, a beating, threats to a security guard, strangers sleeping in lounges, tires being slashed, people trying to tear down the stalls in bathrooms and others. SW is also famous for its shouting matches between Adams and Washington Towers. A few years ago the residents of JQA were subjected to almost nightly bomb scares.

Some of these same things happen in other residential areas. Sylvan's favorite night time phrase is "What color is Shit? Brown!" The Quad also has battles between a few dorms but these sprees are usually confined to the warm weather and are very infrequent. Every section of the campus has noise but in Southwest a very few can disturb very many.

Part of the problem with fun city is its size. With over five thousand people crowded into that small area there are bound to be more rowdies. SW also helps make people rowdier because of the high population concentration. Rip-offs are easier because of the high density. If you wanted to rip-off a stereo you'd look for a place where there are a lot of sets. Next, you'd need access to many rooms in case the first door didn't open. If the area has a strong sense of community (where everyone knows everyone else and cares what happens to common property) chances of a successful rip-off are reduced. Last, after the crime the artist will need to make a quick exit. Sylvan and SW lend themselves to many of these prerequisits. In small dorms everyone knows the residents and the exhibit more concern about community property. In the high rises you just can't know everyone; the size makes it impossible.

SW doesn't make rowdies or force people to vandalize; it creates a situation where it is easier to be a rowdy or a vandal. If you're not a potential rowdy, no situation will make you one, but if you have those leanings, crowded areas will bring them out. Colombia Point in Boston is a prime example of what happens when you force people to live on top of each other in rows and rows of sameness.

Is SW a zoo? Not to many of the people who live there. Its reputation is fostered by visitors who don't live in city environments, or former residences who moved to the suburbs. The physical surroundings lend themselves to craziness, but not any more than other places with a large number of people. The people who move into SW aren't any different than those who move into the Quad. The University doesn't put one type of person in "fun city" and another on Orchard Hill. If you don't like the big city environment, SW is hell; if you appreciate city living, it's a fine place.

Steve Anderson is a Collegian Columnist.

Matt Tackeff

Impeachment? No!

President Nixon should not be impeached. Judging from the most recent pronouncements by key members of the House and Senate (Sorry. Dinan, Abzug, Studds, and Harrington are not listed under this particular category), the chances of the President being impeached at this particular time are rather slim. And judging from the most recent pronouncements by President Nixon himself, he won't resign, either. Pronouncements aside, it should be remembered that most politicians are quite prone to sudden, and seemingly inexplicable policy reversals. So tomorrow the situation may be different.

Regardless of the instability of the state of affairs in Washington, the case for impeachment, at this time, does not amount to very much. This does not mean that there is not a very strong desire on the part of the Democratic Congress to oust Nixon. There most certainly is. But the currently cautious postures of many staunch anti-Nixonites is due not to a lack of intestinal fortitude, but rather to a fear that any impeachment attempt may be foiled by a precipitous, ill-timed assault on the Chief Executive. Whether or not Nixon played an active part with his subordinates in the plotting or the cover-up of the various wrongdoings remains to be substantiated. With a Constitutional Crisis of this magnitude, jumping to conclusions can be fatal not only to Nixon, but to the entire system. The various local activities by students and professors in pursuit of an immediate impeachment do little to substantiate the case against the President, since many of them were for impeachment as soon as Nixon entered office in 1969. The attitudes of the majority of Americans, who re-elected Nixon by a devastating landslide in 1972, are likely to be less disposed towards removing Nixon from office.

Public attitudes on impeachment may have a bearing on the future of congressional attitudes on that particular course of action. But the position of Congress can have little bearing on public opinion with regards to the very credibility of the Chief Executive. Enlisting the support of die-hard Republican loyalists may achieve a very superficial increase in the President's credibility rating. But the primary responsibility for the recovery of public confidence rests with the President himself, and only by his actions can this be accomplished. Fireside chats on Prime-Time television just won't do the trick.

Nixon's personal incompetance has resulted in the compromising of the power of the Chief Executive office, which he has repeatedly proclaimed his dedication towards preserving. Furthermore, he has compromised the greatest mandate ever granted to a Presidential candidate by the electorate. These two consequences of Nixon's ineptitude are perhaps greater travesties than all of the crimes perpetrated by his yes-men in the '72 campaign. Most liberals and former McGovern supporters are probably unable to estimate the amount of anguish that the average "silent majority" member is experiencing at this time. The anguish is not over the fact that Nixon may be impeached, but rather that the vanquished liberals of '72 may use the entire situation to stage a counter-coup. If that happens, it will be the fault of Richard Nixon. But the inevitable backlash that will follow an impeachment of Nixon won't be directed against Republicans, should the liberals stage such a counter-coup of the '72 mandate. If a counter-coup is really the motivation of Nixon's current detractors, they should play it safe and wait for the results of the '74 and '76 national elections. Using impeachment as a counter-coup tactic would be a dirty trick greater than all of the Donald Segretti shenanigans.

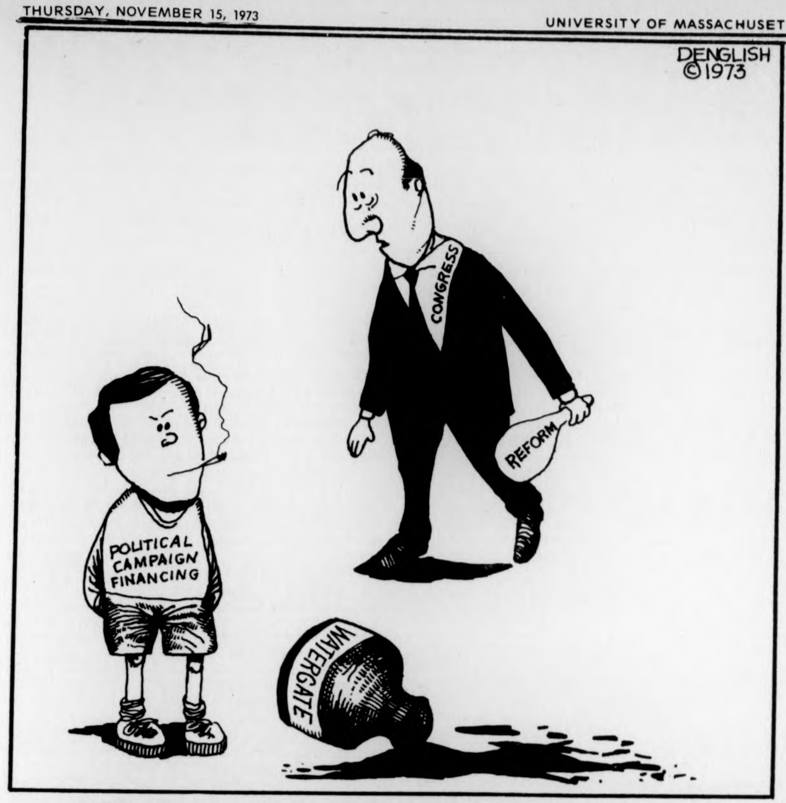
Matt Tackett is a Collegian Columnist.

Letters Policy

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian welcomes all letters to the editor. They must be signed, and include the author's address and phone number. Also, all letters must be typed, double-spaced, at sixty spaces per line, and no more than two pages.

Organizations may submit letters, but they must include a name and phone number for reference purposes.

All letters are subject to editing, for either content or space, according to the judgement of the editors. Due to space limitations, there is no guarantee that all letters received will be printed.



"Oh, this is going to hurt me more than you, kid..."

Letters To The Editor

SW Residents Not To Blame For Deaths

To The Editor:

Tragedy has struck our campus twice in the last few days. And as we are all aware, both have occured in Southwest. It seems that some have chosen this as an opportunity to attack its residents. I speak of Bob Riley and Sherm Boyson. Riley's commentary in Tuesday's Collegian was cruel and shallow. He condemned the area's lifestyle and put the responsibility of a young man's death squarely on our shoulders. I refuse to accept this burden for neither I nor the overwhelming majority of Southwest residents condone vandalism as such and dislike innuendos cast in that destruction is a part of our lives.

I quote from your editorial Mr. Riley, "A human being died Saturday night because the people who populate our largest residential area maintain an atmosphere which defies all common sense and decency...The blame for all that goes on certainly doesn't rest with a small fraction of the population." You self-righteous snob. The blame does rest with a small portion of the population. This seems to be a clear attempt on your part to absolve yourself of any wrongdoing. You are a resident of Southwest, are you not? I do not write for the same purpose. I write because my integrity as well as hundreds of others is threatened as a result of your article. Those responsible need not be reminded of their act for theirs is a pain worse than death itself. Sherm Boyson on the other hand felt genuine sorrow and disgust at the conduct of a few mindless students in the wake of Tuesday's apparent suicide. And rightfully so because I heard the same comments. But really Sherm, these people don't deserve the ink. Like Riley you made a generalization with regards to the conduct of a smaller number of individuals.

Grave misconceptions can be made because of these articles. We are not sick! We do not delight upon a broken body lying before us. We stayed yes, and searched our souls. For what I don't know, because there was nothing there. Good commentary is not realized through generalizations and you have failed. Not only that, you have caused irrepairable damage to the reputations of a good many people. It is unfortunate that I too have used these events to make a point but then that seems to be the only way we learn.

James P. Purcell

Stereotypes

To Mr. Riley:

As were the other residents of Southwest, we too were shocked and grieved over the merciless death of William Markussen. We, however, refuse to take the blame for his death in any stretch of the imagination.

To begin with, consider that "someone" you mentioned who "tried to get their kicks once too often" possibly being the visitors themselves not yet mature enough to handle the new found freedom of the University itself.

We find it difficult if not impossible to define one type of lifestyle for the 7,000 or so men and women living in SW. As with any other large group of people, it takes all kinds, some good, some bad, and some negligent. It must have taken some nerve to publically decide it was in fact not an accidental death, and then assign the blame to such a large population as S.W. And if in fact S.W. is an area defying all "common sense and decency, failing to maintain any degree of orderliness, and in need of civilization" explain to us why we all haven't managed to kill one another off? The group to whom you have referred is that of an isolated few. Therefore, through lack of a better description, I can only conclude that you're either an established stereotyper or a frustrated commentator groping around for words to fill up space.

Forgive our arrogance, but an article such as your's, polluted with thoughtless generalizations is not only injustifiable but deserving of apology to the majority of residents in S.W.

Marilyn Bourque
Larraine Gandolfi

Unfair

To The Editor:

I have just completed reading a grossly unfair article, in this morning's Collegian. One of your reporters, Sherman Boyson, attacked Southwest as a whole for being excitement seekers. According to Mr. Boyson, yesterday's events were nothing more than a spectacle of excitement.

True, he did mention, once, in his letter that not all Southwest residents are like this. But this statement was obscure as a result of his constant reference to 'everyone' being to blame. In my opinion, this is being grossly unfair. To speak of all of us as being crass-being with no true human feelings is to be very close-minded indeed.

Yes, I too was there with approximately 500 others. We watched as the police carried out their necessary, yet dehumanizing, tasks over the body. But to say all we were after was a glimpse of blood is to be very unfair to all of us. This was not the case of anyone who stood near me, as many of us glanced away as they lifted the sheet from the body. We were not vampires. Devastation was ours, rather than thrills from the sight. Each and every one of the people I talked with were seeing this event as what it was - something that could have happened to any of us if we had no one who cared, or at a particularly weak moment. This was a human being who tore himself from life and living. With this, one could sense an eerie feeling of loss and defeat going through the crowd. To have allowed this to happen overtook not only Ed Waddington by defeat, but all of us.

Yes, we too - the residents of Southwest - are human and possess very human feelings.

I would be more inclined to belive that those jokes you overheard weren't meant as being funny. Rather they were metacommunication for saying "I experienced this horror with you, and need to be cheered up before I too go nuts."

Bryan Schultz

Letter To Dr. Gage

Dear Dr. Gage:

This letter is in reference to the current controversy over the Resident Director/Head of Residence problem in Grayson House, Orchard Hill. Looking back over the past few years one can easily see how this house has been impaired in its attempt to function as a living-learning community, as more than just a place to sleep for its residents. The Residence Directorship which has existed in the past few years has resulted in a wave of apathy in the house, due perhaps solely to the non-continuity and unavailability of our Residence Directors. One cannot put the blame on the Directors themselves for they are students, hired on a part-time basis, and whose academic commitments preclude their ability to devote enough time and is paid a salary more commensurate with the work required of the position. Our current loss of Arlene Turner, due to physical exhaustion, supports our contention that a house of this size (300-320 residents) needs more than a Residence Director; it needs a Head of Residence!

Again, reflecting on the past, we cannot ignore the large turnover of Residence Directors in Grayson House since the Head of Residence position was replaced. We have had no fewer than six directors during the past two and one half years and find ourselves in the position of searching for another replacement before this semester is even ended. It is indeed frustrating, if not impossible, to form a sense of community in this house where there has been such a lack of continuity in its directorship.

In addition, the ideals and goals of Orchard Hill Residential College make a Head of Residence position mandatory in order for the entire residence area and its counseling staff to function effectively. At present, Grayson House is experiencing much difficulty in this respect due to the fact tha the Residence Hall Counseling Staff is burdened with many of the tasks normally performed by a Head of Residence, such as: dormitory security, room choosing, counselor selection and evaluation, maintenance, business, emergencies, and other matters. We counselors, being students too, find that counseling and working with our residents on the floors consumes significant amounts of our time. Further, to require or expect the counselors to assume "Head of Residence" responsibilities is unreasonable and unfair to the counseling staff and the residents of the house. The other three houses in this area which have had Head of Residence positions throughout the years have experienced a very tangible living-learning community.

This letter, in addition to being an expression of our definite need for a Head of Residence position in Grayson House, is also a statement of the counselors' willingness to work toward a solution in this matter, and of our interest in the house and the Residential College. We want to work as counselors supporting residence hall programs and activities, and if given your support by assigning to Grayson House a Head of Residence position we will be able to work toward molding this house into an integral part of the Orchard Hill Residential College. We want to express our need for an immediate response from you on this matter, for we feel it deserves your utmost attention and action.

Grayson House Counselors
Orchard Hill Residential College

Taking It Seriously

To The Editor:

In response to Sherman Boyson's article in yesterday's Collegian, I would like to say he did a very good job in expressing his feelings. When I learned of the suicide I was shocked, physically and emotionally shocked. That such a tragic incident could occur in the midst of such a populous place as the university just seemed too unreal, too crazy — almost unbelievable. I was very upset to realize that a person valued his life so little as to end it. No matter how frustrated, troubled or out of it he was, it's absurd to think you can solve your problems by putting an end to your life when everyday changes occur and you never know what's around the corner. The incident disturbed me in such a way that I was unable to eat dinner. As I looked around everyone was laughing and talking and fooling around. You could never tell such a tragedy occured a little more than an hour before. I really don't know what I expected certainly not everyone being distressed or quietly reflective, but I was bothered that such a thing seemed treated so lightly.

I was also disturbed at the crowd of people that had gathered around the body. Such a strong influx of morbid curiosity didn't seem to have a right place in this situation. That people actually wanted to view him as a spectacle was to me really revolting. I realize that you can't ignore such a situation but to gawk at the body-ugh!!!

Being a resident of Washington, in particular in a corner room on the side from which he jumped and just thinking about the incident I was unable to fall asleep very readily. To make matters worse, from one of the lounges on my side of the building there was a group of fellow students who were screaming and pretending they were jumping. I found this was very nerve-wracking, being totally obnoxious, showing no respect for the dead and in general insensitivity to the death of a fellow human being.

Maybe I'm taking his death too seriously. Maybe I should just shrug and forget about it. After all I didn't know him. Maybe other people can, but I can't. I care to much.

Dawn Sheppard

Generalizations

To The Editor:

In reference to the article by Sherman Boyson entitled "Reaction to SW Deaths" I have the following comments and questions: How is it that at the beginning of the article Mr. Boyson can declare, "I was tired of the blame for everything being put on us", an obvious resentment of the generalizations of others, and then follow that comment, at the end of the article, with "I lost a lot of respect for Southwest last night", a statement highly indicative of Mr. Boyson's own generalizations? Why did he lost respect for Southwest as opposed to, say, losing some respect for the few individuals whom he actually encountered?

Was it because a very small group of people in an elevator made some very bad jokes?

Was it because a crowd of people were as naturally curious about the tragedy as are people anywhere else in the world? Was it because a few individuals that Boyson encountered were naturally trying to hypothesize about the nature of the circumstances surrounding the death? Or was it because Mr. Boyson, like so many other half wits, does not see the error of moving from the specific to the general in cases like these and is naturally inclined to blame the good people of Southwest as a whole for everything? In order for any of us to operate in this world some generalizations are inevitable, but a reconsideration of Mr. Boyson's generalizations and those made by other Collegian reporters recently is definitely in order. The people of Southwest may deserve an apology.

G.B. LaFleur former director
THE SOUTHWEST BROADSIDE

More Letters To The Editor

Why I Resigned

To The Editor:

As a member of the Central Area Academic Affairs Committee I promised not to divulge matters of concern of the committee to the public. The heavy-handed manner in which my resignation was forced by two of the faculty members though makes me consider this obligation no longer binding.

I deeply regret that my letter of Wednesday, Nov. 7 was misconstrued as anything but an effort at humor by these committee members. They felt that my letter so impugned the integrity of the committee that I should no longer be accepted as a member.

These faculty members threatened to resign with the possible implication that the Central Area Colloquia Program would lose its accredidation due to the repressive policy of the Faculty Senate, that states the faculty membership of colloquia approval committees must constitute a voting majority.

The faculty members' actions during this meeting are indicative of their preponderance on this committee. Three times the two of them steadfastly refused to return to the business of the committee. For an hour and a half the faculty members ignored the other members' desire to get to the agenda. This is one example of how student input into the colloquia program is minimized from the administrative viewpoint. Colloquia are usually taught by students and staff and seldomly by professors. It is a completely student oriented activity which the faculty has put a choke-hold on by its restrictive and vociferous actions on the Area Academic Affairs Committees. I contend that it is not my resignation that should have been requested but those of the faculty members! A student oriented program should be evaluated by capable and responsible students.

I regret that the faculty members of the CAAAffC felt threatened by a few sentences in the Collegian.

Don Connors

The Walking Dead

To The Editor:

The dead, it seems, are never allowed to rest in peace...allow me to expand on that.

The "Reaction to Southwest Deaths" by Mr. Boyson was very observant, and right on the spot. He might be interested to know that three years ago, a similar "ghoulish feast" was indulged in when, yes, another student decided to take his life by jumping off Washington tower. And yes, YES, the SAME occurences you described happened in Southwest THAT time, Mr. Boyson. Your article was accurate, but it was guilty of the sin of omission..the sin of omission of "defense mechanisms", natural curiosity (of the "Wow--far out!" variety), and the all-too human tendency to make light of the tragedy of the situation. One has to realize that this type of thing is a genuine bomb to the mind and will not be taken to seriously by people if they want to keep on functioning without that thought popping into their heads.

Southwest is a strange place, granted. But not until every angle of Southwest is checked out--the deadening atmosphere, the city block with 5,000 people in it, will continue to give that reaction.

Another, more sobering aspect of this picture will present itself to us if we look below the surface. Think of the assholes on your floor talking about 'flying', etc. When they understand what this society has done to them, what the University has done to them, and what they have done to their humanity, I wonder about one thing:

Will these turkeys, who actually share the curse of the walking dead, be the next ones to jump?

So, let us pray...for ourselves.

Gary Gomes

An Open Letter To Nixon

Dear Mr. Nixon:

Now that you have grossly betrayed the trust of millions who had blessed you with a 49-state mandate; now that your administration has committeed unethical campaign acts incomparable to any other election period; now that you have flaunted the law with your impoundments and unjustified bombings in South East Asia; now that you have successfully tainted every institution of our American political system excluding Congress; and now that you have lowered the image of our country in the eyes of the entire world, please resign.

Three months ago I was bounced from the Blue Wall after bellowing out demands of your impeachment over a microphone. Three weeks ago I was ticketed for honking my horn in front of the White House--a fine I don't intend to pay--unless you resign.

If George Allen's groupies can honk their horns in a victory procession after the Redskins win a biggie, then I have every right to honk my horn. In both instances freedom of expression can be claimed.

It's odd that I'm one who has been classified as "lawbreaker" when you as President have gone to great lengths in claiming executive priviledge in order to avoid answering to the many violations of constitutional law that you are responsible for.

You effectively perverted the American political system while making countless non believers in our democratic form of government.

Your future is at stake just as is the country's. In order to avoid "waddling in Watergate any longer," as you often have suggested, please resign.

Impeachment is too lengthy a process and would just further divert the country from pressing issues. And even if you remained in office, your credibility is so near zero now that you would be incapable of doing the job you were elected to do.

So resign now in an honorable manner before you're forced to do so in great humiliation. You successfully avoided being the first president to lose a war. Avoid being the first president to be removed by impeachment. Resign and I'll pay my fine.

You have made some great accomplishments during your presidency, but fumbled with Watergate. It's apparent that you can no longer quarterback. Don't throw away the season. Go to the side lines and let someone else do the passing.

Mark Vogler

I Still Love Southwest

To The Editor:

Well, Bob Riley has made the big time. The Hampshire Gazette and the Boston Globe saw fit to quote his commentary on how Southwest is to blame for the Saturday night death in Kennedy. He had to step on a few thousand residents of Southwest on his way to the top, but as long as his scrapbook is filled, does it matter?

While the police are still investigating the death, Mr. Riley has already passed judgement on who is to blame. "It's the people of Southwest who fail to maintain any degree of orderliness. It's the people of Southwest who tolerate such behavior". He put us all on a level of murder, or at least second degree manslaughter.

Sure, vandalism and stupidity could very well be the reason that Markussen fell down the elevator shaft. But to blame the majority of the population for the acts of a few, to condemn us all for our misguided neighbors, that is unjust.

You mention that Orchard Hill and Sylvan have similar troubles. But you say that after seven paragraphs of condemning us and a blaring title of "SW Lifestyle Caused Tragic Death". I get the impression that Southwest is the only wrong-doer, and that the majority of the population must bear the burden of shame.

But then, I have been accused of the same thing. I have received two different reactions to my comment on how Southwest reacted to the suicide Tuesday night. Those who like my article seem to get the impression I was trying to convey. Those who didn't like it mention the word "generalism". The people I wrote about are in no way the majority of Southwest. I didn't say they were. I said that I had lost a lot of respect for Southwest. I have. Whether you like to admit it or not, those people are a part of the Southwest culture. And yes I have lost respect for Southwest after meeting them. But this does not say I am losing respect for all. I still love Southwest. I will stay here next semester. But I am not going to be naive and say that bad people don't live here, or that those persons are not a part of Southwest.

It just grieves me to be compared to the thinking of Mr. Riley.

Sherm Boyson

Commendation

To The Editor:

The Attorney General has asked me to commend you for the excellent article on "Legalities of Consumer Protection" by Richard M. Howland which appeared in your November 1st issue. As you are probably aware, Attorney General Quinn has long been a leader in the Consumer Field. His Consumer Protection Division handle's over 15,000 complaints a year. If this office can be of assistance to any of your staff for future article's on Consumer Protection please don't hesitate to give us a call. Our number is 727-4538 or 4539.

Martin A. Burke,
Public Information and Education Division

A Superficial Little Non-Joke?

To The Editor:

To accuse the Collegian of undercutting the students' fight for dignity on this campus in this year of indifference would be somewhat like prosecuting Ronald Reagan for high crimes of fascism against the American people. Certainly neither can be absolved from guilt, but both cases represent extreme narrowness of vision. Nevertheless, when the opportunity arises for a student newspaper to strike a relatively effective and forceful blow against an institution that is infuriatingly detrimental to each and every student's well-being, one would hope that that publication would take advantage of that opportunity. The "insect in the spinach" incident of last Wednesday is evidence of your failure to do so.

On Wednesday, November 7, while eating at Hampshire Dining Commons, a UMass Freshwoman named Marcia McConnell discovered in her spinach a large, intact hornet. Now, I am not foolish enough to hope that even the most widely-spread publicity possible of this incident could begin to produce even the slightest hint of change in our eating conditions. But it would still have said something very powerful about our dining conditions if the Collegian had at least included a small article on the incident, or even a moderately effective photograph. This was not the case. On the contrary, the Collegian made it into nothing more important than a superficial little non-joke, consisting of a photo of a cat eating out of the plate, with the caption, "Another case of the D.C. Blues....Shown eating is Tatanka..., a resident, of Mildred Pierpont house, who was reportedly ill all evening after dinner." I mean, you have taken a situation that is potentially extremely injurious to almost everyone's physical health, (And I'm not talking about only hornets. I'm talking about small portions, indistinguishable alternatives, meatless meat, cheap chemical-filled food substitute, and meals utterly lacking in even a token attempt at protein.) and turned it into an immature, fatuous, narrow-minded joke. Naturally, I'm not blaming the Collegian for the lack of activity against Dining Commons oppression, (Perhaps if this were an activist year like 1970 things would be different, although I'm not even sure about that.) but I think it would help if the most powerful organ of social change on this campus were at least on our side.

Michael Peppe

BIG SCREAMIN' McGREW
fri. + sat.
bluewall
9pm-1Am

juilliard string quartet

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 1973
BOWKER AUDITORIUM
8 p.m.

RESERVED TICKETS: $1.50 UM/A students $3.00 all others
FINE ARTS COUNCIL OFFICE, 125 Herter Hall 545-0202

Presented by the University of Massachusetts Fine Arts Council

---

The Arts At UMass

Travel With UMass Dancers

The University Dancers will be on tour from January 5-27 and are seeking a person who would like to travel with them to either run the sound equipment or to act as stage manager. Any persons wishing to gain experience in dance-theatre performances in either of these capacities should contact Marilyn Patton, 11 North P.e. Building, 454-2413. Credit may be earned through this experience.

Handke Play Presented

On November 15-17 the UMass Department of Theatre will produce Peter Handke's Offending the Audience. Performances will be at 8:00 p.m. on Thursday the 15th and at 7:00 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. on Friday the 16th and Saturday the 17th in the Studio Theatre in South College. Admission $1.00 sold only at studio door. Handke is a young Austrian playwright who has alternately outraged, and converted theatre-goers by his unusual theatre pieces.

Objects &... At Herter

"Objects & ......" an exhibition of the work of eight women realists, will run at the Herter Hall Gallery of UMass from Nov. 18 through Dec. 16.

The show, open to the public without charge, includes paintings, drawings and ceramics focusing on an objective view of our environment from landscapes to interiors.

The New York, Boston and Philadelphia artists include Diane Burko, James Fish, Audrey Flack, Mags Harries, Yvonne Jacquette, Sylvia Mangold, Marina Stern and Dalia Ramanauskas.

Gallery hours are Wednesday through Friday 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Saturday and Sunday 2 to 5 p.m.; and Friday evenings from 7 to 9.

Community Arts Councils

A series of free Tuesday evening workshops for people who want to get involved in the arts in their own communities is being held at UMass beginning Nov. 20.

Sponsored by the Arts Extension Service of the Division of Continuing Education, the three-hour workshops are designed to inspire, support and generally help anyone who wants to establish a vigorous and imaginative arts organization within their own community.

The series begins Nov. 20 with "Community Arts Councils--How and Why" by Winnie Scott, executive director of the Weston-Westport Arts Council in Connecticut. Subsequent workshops will run through January of next year, on a wide range of community arts topics--organization, publicity, arts festivals, arts in schools, arts and community service and others.

After nine workshops, a series of four all-day planning sessions will give arts leaders from communities across the state a chance to meet and exchange ideas and techniques. All sessions will be at the UMass Campus Center.

"The series is designed to provide people who are interested in kindling local creative fires with the basic information they'll need to found their own community arts councils," according to Arts Extension Director Stan Rosenberg. "The only prerequisite for attending is a sincere commitment to the establishment of a community arts council in the participant's home town."

A brochure with full details and a schedule of workshops is available from Arts Extension Service, Division of Continuing Education, 920 Campus Center, UMass Amherst 01002.

Auditions For "A Macbeth"

AUDITIONS: for Charles Marowitz's "A Macbeth", a new adaptation of Shakespeare's tragedy at the Hampshire College Theatre, Academic Building II, Hampshire College, November 29, 6 p.m. - 10 p.m., November 30 9 a.m. - 2 p.m. Rehearsal January 3 - February 3. Performances Feb. 4, 5 6, 7, 8, 9. For further information call 542-4865 or 542-4620.

UMass Sees The Light

Alan Light, whose 18-year career in the arts includes acting, producing and concert management, has been named Fine Arts Council manager at UMass.

The Fine Arts Council brings outstanding professional cultural programs to the Amherst campus for an audience that includes students, the University community and residents of the area. This year the council is presenting a calendar of more than 30 music, dance, theatre, and visual arts events.

As an actor-singer, Alan Light appeared in stock and off-Broadway theatre in the late 1950's, touring Europe with a show in 1956. Beginning in 1960 he spent three years in San Diego, first as producer and one of the founders of the Circle Arts Theatre and then as producer-director of Service Theatre Productions, a professional touring company.

In 1964 he became director of Festival Attractions of Beverly Hills, which produced and staged concert attractions in major California cities. After a year as managing director of the Bakersfield Community Theatre, he went to Arena Stage of Washington, D.C. under a Ford Foundation Fellowship in Administration. After a year at Purdue University as general manager of the professional theatre company, he became concert manager at Mankato State College in Minnesota in 1968, leaving there this year to come to UMass.

He studied theatre at Santa Monica City College, has a B.A. in theatre arts and music from the University of California at Los Angeles and an M.A. from UCLA in theatre arts production and management.

Baird To Open Abortion Center

BOSTON (AP)-Birth control advocate William R. Baird of Hempstead, N.Y., said Wednesday he will open an abortion center in Boston and filed a suit in U.S. District Court to prevent the state from stopping him.

Baird, who operates an abortion center in Hempstead, said in the suit that Massachusetts laws restricting abortion "are presently inflicting grave and irreparable injury."

A spokesman for Baird's office in Boston said the abortion center was scheduled to open this week in a converted apartment building at 673 Boylston Street.

In the suit, Baird said the abortion regulations in Massachusetts are "sexist" in intent and are a "flagrant denial of a patient's freedom of choice and a doctor's freedom to practice medicine."

He added that the regulations are contrary to the abortion ruling of the U.S. Supreme Court.

"In order to have an abortion," he said, "you have to go to a specific kind of hospital or clinic and you have to have sophisticated medical equipment.

Bob Antil, Southwest Social Advisor, announced today that free beer will be offered at a party, to be held Saturday night, November 17, in Hampden Commons.

Admission to the party will be one dollar, and music will be provided by Ed Vada's Big City Blues Band.

ADVERTISE FREE
Western Massachusetts
Super Ad List
FAIR EXCHANGE
A New Ad Weekly
Articles For Sale
by Private Owners
10 per cent of Advertised Price
only IF and WHEN you sell
10,000 ACTIVE Buyers
NO DEALER ADS

SPECIAL 2 WEEK OFFER
No Commission Charge 25 word limit —
Ads must be received before
Mon. noon, Nov. 19
FAIR EXCHANGE
P.O. Box J
N. Amherst, Mass. 01059
CALL 256-0236
Clip and Mail

No Solution Seen For Honolulu Prison Unrest

By ROBERT MURPHY
Associated Press Writer

HONOLULU (AP) - Fifty armed National Guardsmen stood by Wednesday after an inconclusive meeting between prison officials and a representative of rebellious inmates holding the main cellblock.

The Guardmen were called in early Wednesday after an undetermined number of inmates took control of the 200-man block. After a bout with tear gas, the inmates asked for the meeting with prison officials. However, officials said nothing was resolved during the meeting and the situation remained unchanged.

Prison officials said they didn't know if the prisoners had weapons. Six handguns have been found inside the prison in the last month.

The mood within the walls had been one of "extreme tenseness," said Jack Kellner, a spokesman for the prison.

Tuesday afternoon, an inmate in the maximum security section attempted suicide, his third try this month.

Later in the day, two inmates decided to testify in connection with the shooting death of a fellow inmate Sept. 27.

Last week a prisoner convicted of killing underworld boss was shot to death while sitting in his maximum security cell, apparently by another prisoner.

Late Tuesday night some inmates in the main cellblock started burning mattresses and shaking their cell bars, Kellner said.

Sgt. George Pattison, officer in charge of the block, said he decided to abandon the housing area when the prisoners were about to break out of their cells. He said he wanted to avoid a confrontation with the inmates.

The guards escaped foom the cellblock minutes before the prisoners broke out of their cells, he said.

Guards sealed off the area and called Honolulu police to form a perimeter around the prison, Kellner said.

The Lighthouse
Featuring fresh cooked seafood at low prices. Thrill to selecting your own lobster in our pond, or take home fresh seafood.
Fish & Chips 99¢
ALSO TAKE OUT SERVICE
Rte. 116 Sunderland, on the Amherst town line. Tel. 549-6662.

I'm Gonna Climb That Mountain

By JERRY HARKAVY
Associated Press Writer

BAXTER STATE PARK, Maine (AP)-When late autumn snows come flying through the mountains and the ground gets hard with frost, the last of the northbound "end-to-enders" are winding up their 2,025-mile journey to the summit of Katahdin.

This rugged, mile-high mountain in the heart of Maine's North Woods is the northern terminus of the Appalachian Trail, the nation's longest and best-known footpath.

Each year, more men and women are joining the elite of the nation's hiking fraternity-the end-to-enders who complete the entire trail between Georgia's Springer Mountain and Katahdin.

Although this year's final tally isn't in, a record 70 hikers have thus far completed the grueling trek, compared to 34 finishers in 1972 and 21 the year before.

By contrast, there were only 57 through-hikers between the time the trail officially opened in the mid 1920's and 1970.

"There's been more than we like to talk about," says Lester L. Holmes, executive director of the Appalachian Trail Conference, ATC, a private, non-profit organization charged with preserving and maintaining the trail.

"But this year, they're an entirely different breed of cat," he said. "We had four grandmothers, three grandfathers and a lot of younger folks, some of whom are students who are hiking the trail to get credits from their respective colleges."

The end-to-enders, or "2,000-milers" as Holmes prefers to call them, get their names recorded at ATC headquarters, overlooking the confluence of the Potomac and Shenandoah Rivers at Harpers Ferry, W. Va.

Much of the increase can be attributed to the backpacking boom of recent years, sparked in part by the environmental movement and the development of compact, lightweight camping gear.

Holmes, who doesn't encourage through-hikers, says most who attempt the entire trail do so for the challenge and feeling of accomplishment.

"They're searching for something," he says.

His roster of 2,000-milers includes a 72-year-old grandmother, a 9-year-old boy, and an 82-year-old physician who hiked on weekends and vacations, taking 14 years to complete the trek.

Hikers who want to set out in the early spring prefer to head from south to north, arriving at Katahdin in the late summer or early fall. Those who opt for the north-to-south route usually begin in June or July, arriving in Georgia just before winter.

Most average 15 miles a day, finishing the trip in 120 to 130 days.

Until this year, the swiftest time was recorded by an ex-paratrooper who covered the trail in 70 days. But Holmes said the record was eclipsed by a graduate student who wore a miner's lantern helmet that enabled him to hike at night and was resupplied at road junctions by his father, who tagged along in a station wagon.

A different approach was taken by another one of this year's 2,000-milers, who stretched the trip out to eight months "because there was so much to see."

The AT, as the trail is familiarly known, demands that hikers be in sound physical shape. It's also wise to make arrangements ahead of time to pick up caches of food and mail along the route.

Besides a good pair of boots-a minimum of two pairs are generally needed to complete the trip-most through-hikers tote a 30-to 40-pound pack filled with a sleeping bag, a portable stove and a supply of food and clothing.

Although the AT has nearly 240 three-sided wooden shelters, spread about a day's hike apart along the route, it's a good idea to carry a nylon tarp or backpacking tent to use on peak summer weekends when most of the lean-tos are occupied.

The trail, marked with white paint blazes, is as varied as the 14 states through which it passes, from the Great Smokies of Tennessee and North Carolina, the farmlands of New York and New Jersey, and the 4,000-foot peaks that dot New Hampshire and Maine.

A hiker finds extremes of wilderness and civilization, whether strolling past a home or along a highway in New York, or trying to slog through beaver ponds or bushwhack around blown-down trees in the wilds of Maine.

Through-hikers, of course, make up only a tiny percentage of trail users. Each year, thousands of individuals and families take up backpacking and hike the AT for a day, a week or a fortnight to escape urban hassles and get a taste of the wilderness.

Holmes foresees a need for more side trails and loop routes to accommodate increasing numbers of day and weekend hikers.

But, as a result, many hikers have begun to complain about overcrowding and some of the side effects it leaves behind: litter, erosion and encroaching civilization.

Trail clubs and state forestry departments urge hikers to camp only in designated campsites and pack out everything they pack in.

Attorney For Students

Another Frustration: Getting Towed

By RICHARD M. HOWLAND

The chief problem of towing illegally parked cars is that it is so frustrating to the drivers of them. Ever since the new parking program was instituted towing has become a major feature of daily University life. There are several aspects of the towing policy which should be reviewed and understood by drivers and by the University administration.

First, the procedure of responsibility for towing should be clarified. Amherst Towing is nothing more than a lawful and fairly closely regulated business. It has a contract to tow cars whenever called to do so. It does not initiate the towing of any car on University property.

A police officer or other authorized officer tickets cars subject to towing and then calls for the cars to be towed by Amherst Towing. On his log, the officer notes the condition of the car to be towed, particularly dents, marks and scratches, to protect the tow company from false claims. The entire responsibility for the decision to tow cars rests with University employees and never with the tow company.

If the tow truck is called it is not entitled to any payment until a car is hooked up. Once the hook is on the car, the tow company has the legal right to collect the full regulated fee, which is $15. If a driver arrives at the car after it is hooked up, the fee must be paid or the car may be towed and held until it is, including storage charges. Obstructing the tow may lead to an arrest if police are present or called. Try to remember that the tow company does not choose which cars to tow.

If a car is actually damaged by the tow truck, the tow company may be held responsible for the damage. In all fairness, in hundreds of tows that Amherst Towing has performed no damage was done or claimed. In other cases the police officer's log has been used to disprove claims of damage that existed prior to the tow. In still other cases the company has promptly admitted and repaired damage.

Then there are those that are damaged and the tow company denies liability. If you are certain that your claim is just, obtain a reliable estimate of the damage by a mechanic. If the tow company has already denied liability, since it has no prodecure for handling claims, a claim in Small Claims Court should be filed. (Before next year's tow contract is bid, the University should require that the tow company provide a procedure by which claims against it can be promptly settled.)

Another aspect of the problem of towing is the University's policy of towing cars that pose no threat to traffic or emergency vehicles coupled with its refusal to be sued for unlawful towing (which it can get away with presently).

I believe that there is no cogent argument against towing vehicles that are parked in fire lanes or in access roads such that other vehicles are blocked. However, lanes should be clearly marked in all lots and signs should be prominently displayed. It would also help if the signs were accurate. "No parking this side" implies that, in the absence of another sign, it is okay to park on the other side.

During snowstorms it is also a regrettable but undeniably necessary requirement that cars in roads and lots that block plows be towed so that the way can be made clear.

Improperly parked cars which do not impede the flow of traffic or the access of necessary vehicles should not be subject to towing unless they collect a surplus of tickets.

Some cars are towed (and ticketed) when it is clearly an error by the officer. Perhaps this is rare, but in any event, the University refuses to submit to an impartial judge on the issue of whether the expense forced on the driver should be recoverable if the tow was unjustified.

There is a procedure by which such expenses can be recovered through the Parking Appeals Committee. However, there is only $200 in the budget for reimbursement of wrongly towed vehicles. The administration, to date, has apparently not made clear to the Parking Appeals Committee that funds can be added to the account at any time and from time to time should it be warranted. It would seem that the Committee should reimburse the tow charges at any time that it finds that the ticket is unwarranted. If its budget is exhausted it should continue the awards and requisition additional funds to meet them. I do not mean to suggest that the Committee should act improperly. But, if the underlying ticket was unjustified for any reason (officer error, improper signs or lines or whatever) the tow charge would be equally unwarranted and should be reimbursed.

There is much about the parking policy which should be reviewed.

(Continued on P. 19)

Gay Dance

With "LILITH"

Benefit Dance for the

Gay Women's Caucus

Nov. 17 9:00

Dickinson Main Lounge

Orchard Hill

please go away

Let us help you plan your get-away . . . and return. We're a full service travel agency!

☐ airline tickets
☐ steamship tickets
☐ railroad tickets
☐ hotels ☐ resorts ☐ cruises ☐ honeymoons
☐ tours ☐ vacations
☐ car rentals

Peter Pan
WORLD TRAVEL INC.

79 SOUTH PLEASANT STREET
AMHERST • TEL. 256-6704

corduroy
and blue
JEANS

ON SALE NOW

6.99

MR. SLACKS

*BRAINTREE South Shore Plaza
*BROCKTON Westgate Mall
*CHELSEA Parkway Plaza
*DEDHAM Mall
*FALL RIVER Shopping Center
*HADLEY Mountain Farms Mall
*HANOVER Mall

MOUNTAIN FARMS
MALL
In Hadley

*HYANNIS Cape Cod Mall
*NATICK Sherwood Plaza
*NORTH DARTMOUTH Mall
*SPRINGFIELD Baystate West
*WORCESTER Center
*BEDFORD Mall, N.H.
*NASHUA Mall, N.H.

Getting Towed

(Continued from P. 18)

I'm sure that such a review is in progress. It should reflect the need for enforcement of the regulations in a reasonable manner calculated to make the system work. It must also include wise use of towing as an instrument of the policy, but not a club to buldgeon compliance, particularly when the basic plan has not been implemented completely or without error.

Finally, there must be an insistence that the systems employed include sound and workable procedures for the reimbursement of fees for unjustifiably towed vehicles and for damaged vehicles. Neither students, faculty, staff, workers or visitors can long afford the high cost of being towed without right or wrecked in the process.

Whenever or wherever your car is towed, keep in mind that:

1) the tow company didn't do it to you, some authority of state or local government did;

2) the charges are set by state regulation;

3) you must pay cash before you take the car and taking the car without paying may be any of several different crimes (as is hitting a tow truck operator or the truck); and

4) the best advice is to get the car back, paying now before storage charges increase, and then fight about it with the proper authorities.

If the tow company has caused damage to your vehicle or permitted damage to occur while in its custody, and it refuses to effect the repair or pay for such repair, a claim may be filed with its insurance company and with the Department of Public Utilities, Supervising Inspector (Mr. Rolf Caspersen) Division of Motor Vehicles, 100 Cambridge Street, Boston, Massachusetts 02202. The name of the insurer may be obtained by calling 617-727-3559. Refusing to cooperate is considered a violation of Rule 1 of rules and regulations pursuant to Chapter 159B, section 16.

Classical Guitar Society

The first meeting of the Amherst Classical Guitar Society will be held on Sunday, November 17, at 2 p.m. at 88 Woodside, Amherst (located off Route 9 near the center of town).

Tentatively planned are informal meetings every 2 weeks where guitarists (at all levels of ability) may play for each other and hear new music. The aim of these get-togethers is to encourage amateur guitarists.

The first meeting is being held to gather guitarists to meet and discuss future activities. Several people have volunteered to perform and refreshments will be served. (Listeners are as welcome as players.)

To be put on the society mailing list or for further information call Steve Toplitz at The Guitar Workshop, 549-1728.

For the who, what, when where & how of

5 College Registration

Call 256-8316

10 - 4 Nov. 12 - 16

Snowmobile Clinic Offered

A snowmobile clinic will be given at the Massachusetts 4-H Youth Center in Ashland Saturday, Nov. 17, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

For 4-H agents, leaders and others, the clinic will cover such topics as laws, safety, ethics, repairs, maintenance, and operation.

Instructors include Agent Russell Cleary of the Registry of Motor Vehicles Marine and Recreation Vehicle Division, James Toffing of the state Department of Natural Resources, and representatives from the snowmobile industry and associations.

The $4.75 fee includes luncheon. Full information is available from G. Joseph Gribouski at the Massachusetts 4-H Youth Center, 466 Chestnut St., Ashland 01721.

Celebrate Thanksgiving

at the

TOP OF THE CAMPUS

featuring

reservations 549-6000

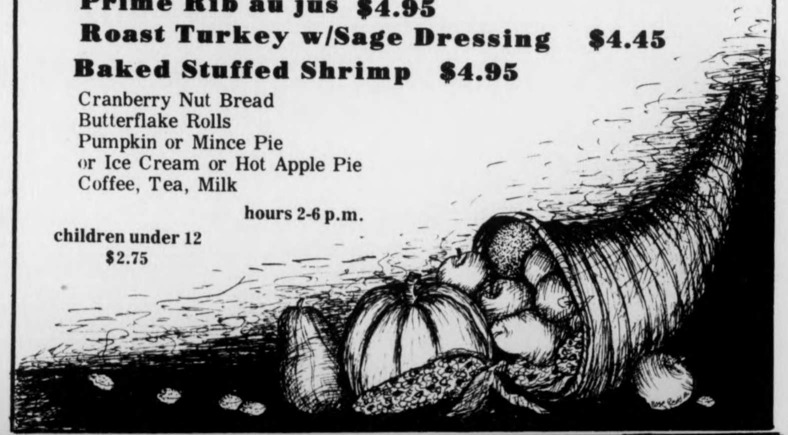
Tomato Juice or Fruit Cup
or Corn Chowder
Whipped Potato
Butternut Squash
Tossed Salad w/choice of dressing

Prime Rib au jus $4.95
Roast Turkey w/Sage Dressing $4.45
Baked Stuffed Shrimp $4.95

Cranberry Nut Bread
Butterflake Rolls
Pumpkin or Mince Pie
or Ice Cream or Hot Apple Pie
Coffee, Tea, Milk

hours 2-6 p.m.

children under 12
$2.75



"Something for Everyone"

the concert committee

presents
Two nights of Entertainment with

JOHN MAYALL

appearing on Sunday, November 25
with special guest artist
Bruce Springsteen

appearing on Monday, November 26
with special guest artist
Maria Muldaur

Boths shows: 8:00 p.m. At Curry Hicks Cage

Tickets: $3.50 Available at Student Union Lobby Counter

10:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m.

School Of Ed. Offers New Learning Experiences

The School of Education is currently operating a curriculum process called Flexible Curriculum where learning experiences do not necessarily conform to the three hour a week long University standard. Below are listed those learning experiences which start the week of Nov. 26-30 and still have space for additional enrollment. For more information contact the School of Education Registration and Advising Offices on the First floor of Hills House South.

3810 — Humanistic Education for Minorities, Nov. 26 Mon. 7:30-10:30, 5 Sessions. 100 mods, Gerald Weinstein/Bailey Jackson Hills 473.

AIM: *Open to Graduate students in the School of Education with experience in conducting Humanistic Relations programs, workshops, or courses with minority groups. The seminars will examine the relevance of Humanistic Education methodology for minority concerns. Specific questions and problems about the relevance of Humanistic Education to minorities will be generated. Conceptual and technological solutions and answers will be developed to address the questions and problems.

3270 — Alternatives & Diversity in Higher Education, Nov. 27, 28, 3:30-5:30 mods, Earl Seidman/Carolyn Peelle/Byrd Jones, TBA. ED. PLAN. & MANAGE.

AIM: To explore the issue of alternatives and diversity in Higher Education. 1. Explore tensions between traditionally conceived purposes of university and societal pressures of 1960's-70's. 2. Examine the role of the university as a gate-keeper and its implications for serving a diverse population. 3. Examine alternatives possible within higher education that support goals of responding to contemporary social pressures. Areas to be examined: 1. Admissions 2. Personnel policy & practice 3. Governance 4. Alternative programs.

Labor Grievances Under Discussion

Management and labor officials from local governments throughout Massachusetts will attend programs in Grievance Procedures and in Contract Negotiations from November through January. The Institute for Governmental Services of the University of Massachusetts is sponsoring the Labor Relations programs.

The programs will be offered in three formats--evening, Saturday, and three-day workshops. A registration fee is involved only with the three-day sessions, to cover cost of meals.

Registration for any of the Labor Relations programs may be made through the Institute for Governmental Services, here at UMass. Funds for all sessions are provided through the federal Intergovernmental Personnel Act of 1970, administered by the Massachusetts Bureau of Personnel and Standardization.

Dates, places, and formats of the sessions:

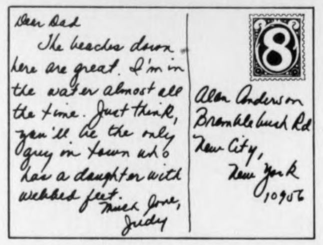
Evening workshops; eight weeks duration; all are "Grievance Workshop Series." Beginning Nov. 14, and continuing each Wednesday, at Brandeis University, Waltham. Beginning Jan. 7, continuing each Monday, Quinsigamond Community College, Worcester. Beginning Jan. 30 and continuing Wednesday evenings, Dean Jr. College, Franklin.

Saturday sessions, two meetings each. Negotiation Workshop, Dec. 1 and 8, Campus Center, UMass-Amherst. Grievance Workshop, Jan. 5 and 12, Middlesex Community College, Bedford.

Three-day meetings. All at the Colonial Hilton Inn, Lynnfield. Negotiation Workshop, Nov. 12-14. Grievance Workshops, Nov. 26-28, and Dec. 3-5.

The University Publicists Project needs students to talk to high school and civic groups about life at UMass. Interested? Come to South College Rm. No. 131 at 7:30 Thursday.

Drop yourself into a mailbox.



Dear Dad
The beaches down here are great. I'm in the water almost all the time. Just think, you'll be the only guy in town who has a daughter with webbed feet.
Much love,
Judy

Alan Anderson
Bramblebush Rd
New City,
New York
10956

With an 8¢ stamp on your back, you can travel almost anyplace in the country. That's if your back also happens to be the back of a Pocket picture. A Pocket picture, by the way comes from a little Kodak pocket Instamatic camera and it just happens to be postcard size. Flip it over, address it, stamp it and off you go.

Six models to choose from.

Kodak pocket Instamatic® cameras. Kodak

TRIPOD CAMERA SHOP INC

219 Main St.
Northampton
584-6040

98 N. Pleasant St.
Amherst
253-3039

SkiRite

Amherst 1 Pray St.

Opening with a Giant Sale . . . The Rite Equipment & Clothing at the Rite Price.

Open Mon.-Fri., 9-9; Sat., 9-5:30

ROSSIGNOL 1973 Roc 550 Reg. $200 148.88

K2 ONES... Reg. $120.00 79.17

HEAD SKIS 73 MODELS Reg. Now GKO3 $120.00 $77.50 HRP $155.00 $99.50

HANSON Internationals '73 Reg. $175.00 109.95

ITALIAN NORDICA Shell Boot Flo $195.00 This Week $98.88

TRAPPEUR Cosmos Ski Boot Foam 1973 Reg. Price $140. NOW 77.00

OLIN Mark 1 Reg. $155.00 99.50

K2 Three Skis Reg. $160.00 99.95

CABER Ski Boots Reg. $60.00 38.88 Comp. $160.00 89.95

KNEISSL Skis Red Stars $185.00 109.95

HART COMPS Reg. $175.00 84.48

MARKER BINDINGS Toe & Fd Heel Now 39.95 Reg. 55.00

Ski Pants and Parkas Values to $75.00 Now Priced At 5.00 UP

ALLSOP Ski Poles Reg. 30.00 9.95

Urban Ecology Topic Of Springfield Symposium

The Ecology of Urban Dogs, Robins in West Newton, Park Mallards and Use of Cemeteries by Wildlife are some of the topics on the agenda at a pioneering Symposium on Wildlife in an Urbanizing Environment in Springfield Nov. 27 through 29.

Sessions at the Baystate West Motor Hotel will attract an audience from many parts of the country — conservationists, wildlife biologists, landscape architects, land use planners and environmentalists.

The purpose is to discuss the role and future of wildlife in areas of increasing urbanization and population densities. Management aspects of wildlife habitat will be discussed as well as the attitudes and constraints the public may have toward management. The program will consist of approximately 30 papers covering a wide range of topics pertaining to wildlife and people.

The keynote address will be given by Dr. Durward L. Allen, department of forestry and conservation, Purdue University. Other internationally known speakers will include Nathaniel P. Reed, assistant secretary, U.S. Department of the Interior; John S. Gottschalk, executive vice-president, International Association of Game, Fish and Conservation Commissions; Dr. Walter Howard, University of California at Davis; Dr. Fred G. Evenden, executive director, The Wildlife Society; Dr. Lynton Caldwell, School of Public and Environmental Affairs, Indiana University; Dr. Anne Innis Dagg, Department of Zoology, University of Guelph, Ontario; Thomas C. Kimball, executive director, The National Wildlife Federation; and Dr. Roland C. Clement, executive vice-president, National Audubon Society.

The event will be sponsored jointly by the Massachusetts Cooperative Extension Service; the U. S. Forest Service; the Massachusetts Audubon Society; the Massachusetts Division of Fisheries and Game; the Department of Forestry and Wildlife at the University of Massachusetts; the Massachusetts Cooperative Wildlife Research Unit (USDI); and The Wildlife Society.

Tutors Needed

The Poor Women's Task Force (PWTF) is looking for experienced tutors to help us without pay. Many PWTF members are welfare mothers who just enrolled in school this semester and have problems with courses. Most are older women who have been out of school for many years.

Courses in which we need help are Intro Spanish, Speech Communication, Zoology, and Botany. If interested, call Teresa Marales, at 545-0883 or stop by her office at Everywomen's Center.

WMUA

Tonight at 6:00 p.m. WMUA will air an hour long program on Campus Security. The program dialogue was produced by Anne Mary DesFosses and Mary Farnell. Guests will include Saul Chafin, assistant director of security on this campus; Mike Grabiec, a patrolman; Tim O'Brien, vice-president of the Central Area Council and Gerry Morrissey, security coordinator for Washington Tower. Moderator for the program will be Anne Mary DesFosses. The general areas to be covered will include — what has been done to make campus security more effective — what hasn't been done but should be — and finally, what are the limitations facing the administration in trying to cope with the security problems.

radio shack

STORE HOURS:
MON.-THURS. 10 A.M. - 5:30 P.M.
FRIDAYS 'TIL 9 P.M.
SATURDAYS 9 A.M. - 5 P.M.

WE SERVICE WHAT WE SELL

STOP by - We're at
318 College St. (Rte. 9)
Amherst - ON THE UMASS BUS ROUTE
256-8368

Your Locally Owned & Operated radio shack
of amherst

Coming OUT!

a documentary play about gay life & liberation in the U.S.A.

by Jonathan Katz with a cast of 5 women & 5 men

November 16 & 17 9:00 p.m.
Worcester Dinin
Commons UMass.

$1.50 Amherst

3rd annual
MADRIGAL DINNER
DECEMBER 5, 6, 7, 8 & 9 1973

Presented by UNIV. of MASS. MADRIGAL SINGERS
and UNIV. of MASS. CAMPUS CENTER
at the
CAMPUS CENTER
AUDITORIUM

Reminiscent of a 16th Century English Feast, the Yorkshire pudding, roast beef and plum pudding compliment the authentic recreation of Renaissance madrigal singing. Jesters and jugglers, the March of the Comestibles and the sparkling wassail bowl comprise this delightful once a year evening.

FOR RESERVATIONS CALL 545-0418
or write CAMPUS CENTER FOOD SERVICES
ROOM 822
CAMPUS CENTER UNIV. OF MASS.
AMHERST, MASS. 01002

$6.95 per person 10% discount to groups of 20 or more

Fayva now open in Hadley

"What other shoe store gets new styles every day? And Fayva has imports from Spain, Italy and Brazil!"

"Fayva shoes are really put together. Quality like this costs a good five dollars more at other stores!"

"Where else can a girl who's wild about shoes try on hundreds of styles in my size? Only at Fayva!"

"Mom used to drag me all over town looking for shoes. Now we just go to Fayva!"

Everything you've been hearing about Fayva is true.
Incredible selection. Savings of two to five dollars or more per pair on the same quality sold elsewhere.
But don't take our word for it. Come see why we're so different.

RTE. 9
WOOLCO
ALMY'S
91
MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL

HADLEY
Mountain Farms Mall
Russell St. (Rte. 9)
(Near Woolco)

fayva®
A DIFFERENT KIND OF SHOE STORE

Also located in Chicopee

Of Interest

New Sociology Course Offered

Sociology 700C -- Sociology of Evaluation

Course Description: Introduction to the principles and techniques of evaluation of social programs and policies. Beginning with a brief review of social planning processes, case studies are used to develop understanding of the concepts and techniques for the following topics: program and evaluation objectives specifications; performance criteria; social context of evaluation; program impact, component and monitoring strategies; and integration of evaluation in the planning process. Some consideration is given to levels of effort and quality of evaluative efforts in federal and state agencies. MWF 9:05 Professor G. Sutton, Thompson 632, 545-0817.

Internships For Women

Internships for undergraduate women are being made available through a Carnegie Foundation Grant, WOMEN AND CAREER OPTIONS. Interns will have an opportunity to develop new skills, to explore and to contribute to fields that need the participation of women, to try a career before they leave school, and to earn from one to 15 credits as well as some financial reward. Full-time or part-time positions will exist during the academic year and/or the summer.

Interested undergraduate women, preferably sophomores or juniors, are urged to attend an information meeting to be held Monday, November 19, at 7:30 p.m. in the School of Business Administration, Room 116. Further information can be obtained thereafter from OUTREACH, Goodell, 5-2021.

Course Correction

Economics 192A, Seminar-For Introductory Students (listed in the Spring Course Description Guide) should be Economics 192A, Seminar-Women in the Economy; Economics 203, Section 2 will meet TuTh 4:00-5:15 in Machmer E35.

Educational Planning

The Division of Educational Planning and Management urgently needs a quorum to elect a chairperson and division director. Deadline is tomorrow, at 4 p.m. Send or bring votes to Pat Gordon, 412 Hills North; ballots can be obtained from her.

BAGGIE SHIRTS
ON TIME.... IN STYLE

WEAR-HOUSE

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You will be given choice of consolidating or expanding. Key is to be sure that what you have is on solid base. Cancer, Capricorn persons could be in picture. What appears to be a disagreement could fall into lovers' quarrel category.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You break loose from restriction. You have more chance to express yourself. Welcome opportunity for social contacts. Give full play to intellectual curiosity. One who seemed out-of-reach will become accessible.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Check details before embarking on any journey. Relatives, neighbors tend to overlook basics. Depending on others now could be an error. Deal with Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio individuals. Special message provides incentive.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Money picture is brighter due to change of procedure. You are able to analyze and come up with answers. Gemini, Virgo persons could figure prominently. One who co-operates with you also could provide finances.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Lunar cycle promises advancement, creative activity and more independence. question of marriage arises. Married or single, you may be concerned with co-operative effort, a unique kind of partnership. Deal with Taurus, Libra persons.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): See clearly, not through haze of self-deception. One who is confined or handicapped makes request. Fulfill it. What you give will be returned, with dividends. Places may be in picture. Restriction, confinement is but temporary.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Accent is on hopes, wishes. You take steps toward fulfillment. Persons you respect pay meaningful compliments. You are granted opportunity to put ideas into action. Accept responsibility. Reward is highlighted.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Finish rather than begin; emphasize accomplishment. Review basics. Take nothing for granted. Round out picture. Broaden horizons. Be aware of potential. Find better ways of distribution. Get product before public.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You have opportunity to be more independent in thought, action. Dynamic individual expresses confidence. Ego gets a boost. News from a distance is constructive. Submit plan, concept, manuscript. Don't limit yourself.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): consolidate. Pull in reins--take second look. Survey money situation. You have more to offer than might be apparent on surface. One who schemes might get "smell" of money--at your expense. Protect self in clinches.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Temporary setback is due to rebound in your favor. Know it and don't despair. Sagittarius, Gemini persons are in picture. Accent is on co-operation, partnership, public relations. Popularity rating will zoom upward!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You receive benefit of doubt. Peers judge you "innocent." One who makes threats does so out of fear, frustration. Stick to principles--and the facts. Don't be swayed by whispered promises. Insist on collateral. Highlight what actually occurred, not fantasy.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have fine voice, a sweet tooth, a pleasant nature and a tendency to be attracted to persons who take advantage of you. You made new start this year and you will be on more solid footing in December. Leo, Aquarius, Taurus and Scorpio persons play major roles in your life. Avoid excess where eating, drinking enter picture. You will understand.

Copyright 1973, Gen. Fea. Corp.

Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS

1 Shade tree
4 Semi-precious stone
9 Article of furniture
12 Brown kiwi
13 Enthusiastic 14 Time gone by 15 Shoots
17 Colorful bird
19 Parcels of land
21 Parent (colloq.)
22 Trash
25 Take unlawfully
27 Batch of cloth
31 Number
32 Satisfactory
34 Cyprinoid fish
35 Uppermost part
36 Large tub
37 Conjunction 38 Florida Indians
41 Danish land division
42 Jog
43 Click beetle
44 Moist earth
45 Indefinite article
47 Festive
49 Prohibited
53 Chance
57 Female sheep
58 Old musical instruments
60 Ventilate
61 Spread for drying
62 Smallest number
63 Number

DOWN

1 Bitter vetch
2 Cut
3 Deface
4 Jason's ship
5 Snail
6 Hebrew month
7 Gratuity
8 Kind of cheese
9 Prohibit
10 The self
11 Speck
16 Kind
18 Clerical collar
20 The sun
22 Beam
23 Beneath
24 Compass point
26 Drinks
28 River in Siberia
29 South American animal
30 Snappish
32 Measure of weight
33 Ethiopian title
35 Powerful person
39 A state (abbr.)
40 Piece of timber
41 Man's nickname
44 Moving part of motor
46 Girl's nickname
48 Final
49 Wager
50 Reverence
51 Man's nickname
52 Change color of 54 Flying mammal
55 Falsehood
56 Sea eagle
59 Sun god

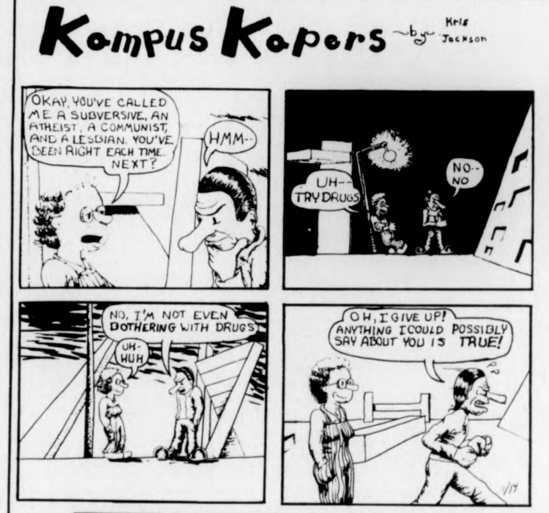
Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

■	S	O	N	G	S	■	A	M	A	S	S	■
R	E	S	E	N	T	■	S	A	L	T	E	D
E	R	■	T	U	R	N	■	■	L	O	V	E
S	I	T	■	S	A	I	L	S	■	P	E	N
T	A	R	E	■	P	L	A	T	E	■	R	T
S	L	A	N	T	■	E	M	E	R	G	E	S
■	■	■	I	D	E	A	■	B	A	I	L	■
R	E	L	E	N	T	S	■	L	E	A	P	S
A	I	■	D	O	L	L	S	■	S	N	A	P
I	T	S	■	R	I	A	N	T	■	D	I	E
S	H	I	P	■	■	B	O	R	N	■	R	A
E	E	R	I	E	R	■	W	O	N	D	E	R
■	R	E	N	T	S	■	S	T	E	E	D	■

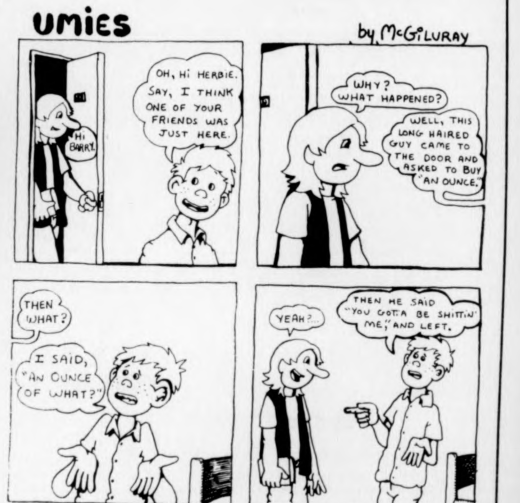
15

1	2	3	■	4	5	6	7	8	■	9	10	11
12			■	13					■	14
15			16			■	17		18
■	■	■	19			20	■	21		■	■	■
22	23	24		■	25		26	■	27	28	29	30
31			■	32				33
34		■	35			■	36			■	37
38		39				40			■	41
42				■	43			■	44
■	■	■	45	46	■	47		48		■	■	■
49	50	51			52	■	53			54	55	56
57			■	58		59			■	60
61			■	62					■	63

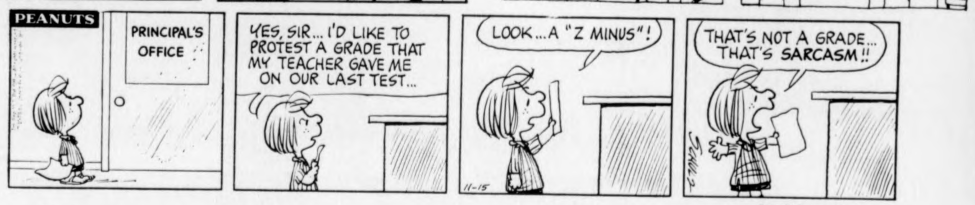
Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 15



Kompus Kopers ~by~ Kris Jackson
OKAY, YOU'VE CALLED ME A SUBVERSIVE, AN ATHEIST, A COMMUNIST, AND A LESBIAN. YOU'VE BEEN RIGHT EACH TIME. NEXT?
HMM--
UH-- TRY DRUGS
NO-- NO
NO, I'M NOT EVEN BOTHERING WITH DRUGS
UH-HUH
OH, I GIVE UP! ANYTHING I COULD POSSIBLY SAY ABOUT YOU IS TRUE!
11/14

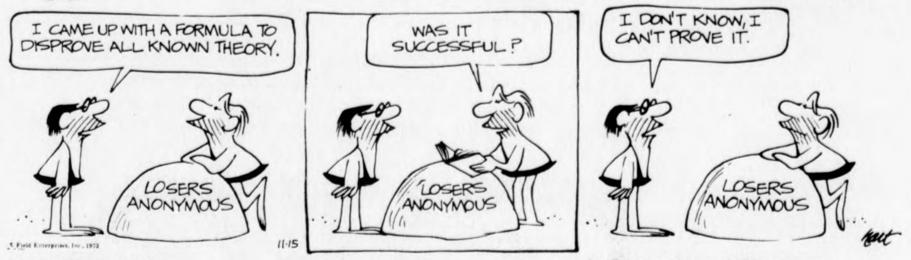


UMIES
by McGILURAY
HI BARRY.
OH, HI HERBIE. SAY, I THINK ONE OF YOUR FRIENDS WAS JUST HERE.
WHY? WHAT HAPPENED?
WELL, THIS LONG HAIRED GUY CAME TO THE DOOR AND ASKED TO BUY "AN OUNCE."
THEN WHAT?
I SAID, "AN OUNCE OF WHAT?"
YEAH?...
THEN HE SAID "YOU GOTTA BE SHITTIN' ME," AND LEFT.



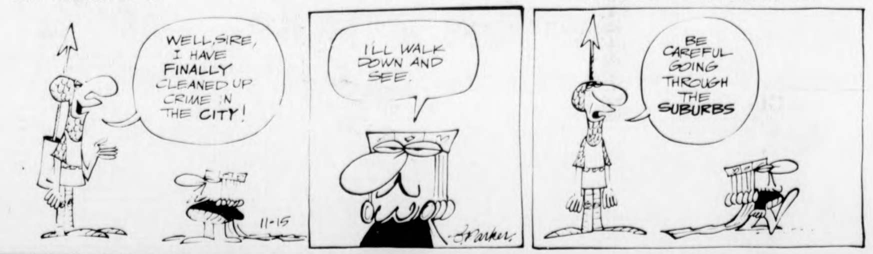
PEANUTS
PRINCIPAL'S OFFICE
YES, SIR... I'D LIKE TO PROTEST A GRADE THAT MY TEACHER GAVE ME ON OUR LAST TEST...
LOOK... A "Z MINUS"!
THAT'S NOT A GRADE... THAT'S SARCASM!!
11-15
SCHULZ

B. C. by Johnny hart



I CAME UP WITH A FORMULA TO DISPROVE ALL KNOWN THEORY.
LOSERS ANONYMOUS
WAS IT SUCCESSFUL?
LOSERS ANONYMOUS
I DON'T KNOW, I CAN'T PROVE IT.
LOSERS ANONYMOUS
© Field Enterprises, Inc., 1973
11-15
hart

THE WIZARD OF ID by Brant parker and Johnny hart



WELL, SIRE, I HAVE FINALLY CLEANED UP CRIME IN THE CITY!
11-15
I'LL WALK DOWN AND SEE.
parker
BE CAREFUL GOING THROUGH THE SUBURBS

Of Interest..

Writers Reading

Three promising young writers will read from their recent works in Colonial Lounge (S.U.) Tuesday at 8 p.m.

The writers, Christopher Howell, Floyce Alexander (both poets), and Robert Abel (a fiction writer) are all veterans of the 1968-1970 Revolution, no strangers to hard luck and trouble, broadly published, and determined to sing in the Monster's teeth.

Howell's poetry has been characterized by an intense lyricism, and a very close observation of nature and natural events. Alexander is a poet of politics and personal relationships and the contemporary scene in general. Abel's prose fiction has been described in workshops here as "derivative," "masturbatory," "slick but empty," and "tricky." Mr. Abel says these charges do not even scratch the surface.

Labor Speaker

For the second of its Student Colloqium Series, the Labor Relations & Research Center will have David Nyhan of the Boston Globe as the Speaker. Nyhan will speak on "A Reportorial View of Labor in the 1970's" at 2:30 p.m. on Thursday, November 15th in Room 105 Campus Center.

"E" Credit

To all students':

Math 101, 102, and 103 (all one credit courses) have NOT yet received E core designation. CASIAC.

History 395

On page 18 of the Pre-Registration Course Listing - recently distributed - there is an error under History 395.

The correct time for the class meeting is 1:00 to 3:30 on Thursday rather than 2:30 to 5:30 on Monday.

Chile Teach-In

Eyewitness reports from Adam Schesch and Edward Boorstein on the accomplishments and overthrow of the Popular Unity government. Thursday, 8:00, Main Lecture Hall, Academic Building I, Hampshire College.

WMPIRG Workshop

The Western Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group (WMPIRG) & E.P.A. will co-sponsor a workshop on the new federal Water Pollution Control Act at 10 a.m., Thursday, November 15, in room 917 of the Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst.

The workshop is designed to encourage citizen participation in eliminating water pollution under the new legislation. Lunch will be provided, and speakers will include Catherine Farrell and Carol Wood from the Environmental Protection Agency, Gloria Fry of Massachusetts Division of Water Pollution Control, and other speakers addressing possibilities for citizen participation are David Zwick, Director of Ralph Nader's Clean Water Action Project and author of Water Wasteland.

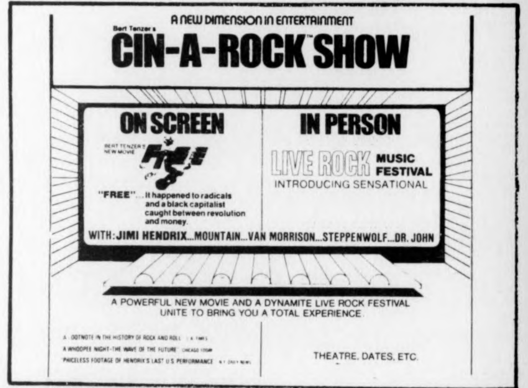
Contact WMPIRG, 256-6434, for more information.

Arabs And Jews

"Learning to Make Peace: Arabs and Jews at U. Mass," is the topic of a noon discussion this Thursday in the Colonial Lounge of the Student Union.

The program will feature speakers from a UMass movement which has received widespread attention from the media. Said Khouri, an Arab from Lebanon and a teaching associate in the Government Department, wrote a Collegian letter calling on Arabs and Jews to stop shooting and start talking about the issues which could be settled to bring peace to the Mideast. Dr. Marcelo Dascal, a professor at Tel Aviv University and U. Mass. Visiting Professor in Linguistics and Philosophy, promptly responded. The resulting Joint Committee for Peace in the Middle East is a demonstration of how peace can be achieved between enemies.

The discussion is sponsored by the United Christian Foundation as one of its regular public issues series, "The First Amendment." The program will begin at 12:15 and end by 1:15. Persons are invited to bring a brown bag lunch, if they wish.



A NEW DIMENSION IN ENTERTAINMENT
Bert Tenzer's
CIN-A-ROCK SHOW
ON SCREEN
Bert Tenzer's new movie
"FREE"... It happened to radicals and a black capitalist caught between revolution and money.
IN PERSON
LIVE ROCK MUSIC FESTIVAL
INTRODUCING SENSATIONAL
WITH: JIMI HENDRIX...MOUNTAIN...VAN MORRISON...STEPPENWOLF...DR. JOHN A POWERFUL NEW MOVIE AND A DYNAMITE LIVE ROCK FESTIVAL UNITE TO BRING YOU A TOTAL EXPERIENCE THEATRE, DATES, ETC.

TONITE
Ed
Vadas
Big City
Blues Band
at the Rusty Nail
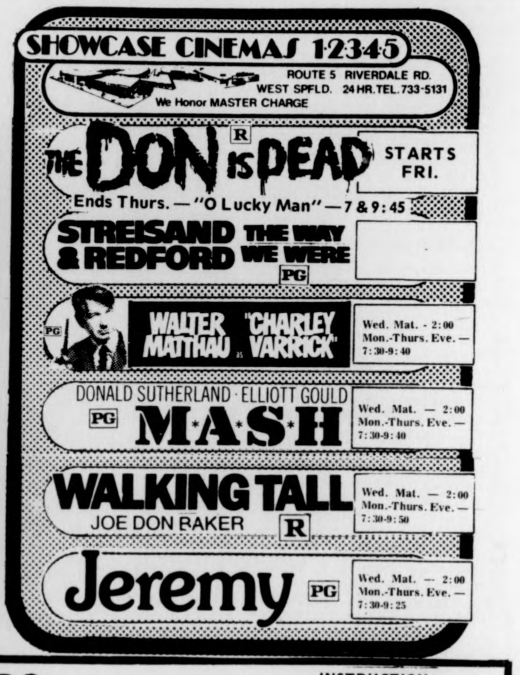
Inn
Rte. 47, Sunderland
665-4937



SHOWCASE CINEMAS 1·2·3·4·5
ROUTE 5 RIVERDALE RD.
WEST SPFLD. 24 HR. TEL. 733-5131
We Honor MASTER CHARGE
THE DON IS DEAD R
STARTS FRI.
Ends Thurs. — "O Lucky Man" — 7 & 9:45
STREISAND & REDFORD THE WAY WE WERE PG
PG WALTER MATTHAU as "CHARLEY VARRICK"
Wed. Mat. - 2:00 Mon.-Thurs. Eve. — 7:30-9:40
DONALD SUTHERLAND · ELLIOTT GOULD
PG M·A·S·H
Wed. Mat. — 2:00 Mon.-Thurs. Eve. — 7:30-9:40
WALKING TALL JOE DON BAKER R
Wed. Mat. — 2:00 Mon.-Thurs. Eve. — 7:30-9:50
Jeremy PG
Wed. Mat. — 2:00 Mon.-Thurs. Eve. — 7:30-9:25

MDC CLASSIFIEDS

HELP WANTED

Collegian is looking for an Asst. Advertising Manager. Job involves supervising ad reps & building advt. revenue. Must be an underclassmen, with car, & a genuine interest in newspaper advt. Experience in marketing & graphics helpful but not essential. Will have to work hard for small pay but the rewards in experience will be invaluable. Person hired will be trained to become the advertising manager for next year. For details and information see Brent Wilkes at the Collegian Office. tf11-16

Full or part time help days or evenings, hours arranged Fdi students, excellent working conditions & benefits apply at Burger King Mountain Farms Mall, Hadley, apply 8:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. tf11-21

Projectionist: Wanted for local theatre complex. Must have Mass. Operator's License. Good pay and fringe benefits. Part-time jobs available. Call Jim Merck at 584-9151. tf11-15

SPEED TYPISTS
In Ware at Collegian Printer
8:30 p.m. to 4 a.m.
Call Charlotte
1-413-967-6888

5 Coll. Canada ski trip — 4 days, 3 nites. Hotel, breakfast, dinner. Transportation Apres ski party, all for $85. Jan. 22-25. B. Baggins Travel, 256-0146. tf11-15

Find out what coming out is all about, see the play direct from Boston, Nov. 16 and 17, Worcester Dining Commons, 9:00 p.m. tf11-16

Want to be a judge? Apply in Room 420 Student Union ASAP! tf11-15

Futre CPA's learn how to prepare for the CPA Exam. Becker CPA Review Course. Call collect 617-536-1440. tf11-22

Winter Outdoor Living Skills and Whitewater Canoeing courses offered by JD Nature Lab. I live on campus and have info. 546-6131. tf11-24

HELP WANTED

Cinematographer wanted to work with B.D.I.C. filmmaker on independent documentary after Jan. 1. Involves travel, write: M. Cramer, Salisbury Rd., Sheffield, MA. tf11-16

The Ed Vadas Big City Blues Band is looking for a M. or F. Bass Player. Good money, steady work. Call 584-6279. tf11-21

RIDERS WANTED

Ride needed to L.I. or NYC Wed. Nov 21. Will share expenses. Call 256-0618. tf11-21

Anyone commuting from Southbridge area 2nd sem. needing a rider call 256-0316, ask for Mike. tf11-16

TRAVEL

Going by air? Let us handle your pre-flight, in-flight and post-flight arrangements at no cost to you. Call campus rep., 253-3162 evenings. tf12-12

$199: A week in the sand, sea, and sun paradise of EUROPE for LESS THAN the cost of PUERTO RICO or the BAHAMAS, Jan. 6th to 13th in swinging MASPA LOMAS on Grand Canary Island (Spain). COMPLETE PACKAGE $199 & 29 taxes & services. Also some Hawaii space still available on Dec. 29 & Jan. 7. Call Leslie Halfond 546-6861. tf11-28

ROOMS FOR RENT

Room, near campus, woman only, $80. Call after 6:00, 549-6356. tf11-19

Upstairs bdrm. available w-bath. Bdrm. unfurnished, rest of apt. is. Stereo, color TV. $90, incl. utilities. Call 549-4581. John. tf11-19

Rooms — by arrangement, free parking, no utilities, next to campus. Call at 253-9938 or see Duncan at 401 N. Pleasant. tf11-16

PERSONAL

Get a date, meet new people, friends for fun or serious relation. Write Box 161, Hadley MA. 01035. tf11-16

Going home for Intercession? I'll take over your job while you're away and give it back when you return. Ed Major, Julie 617-544-3362. tf11-15

To Kathy and Casey — happy birthday(s), and best of luck always from all your old 2S Knowlton buddies. tf11-19

5 Coll Canada Ski Trip, 4 days, 3 nites, hotel bkfst, din., transpo, apres ski party, all for $85. Jan. 22-25. B. Baggins Travel, 256-0146. tf11-26

Ski Austria — Jan. 6-18. Flight, hotel, breakfast, dinner, trans., between stops — Only $365. Few spaces left. Call 665-4067 soon. tf11-15

Interested in making a handicapped person's Xmas holiday happy? If you can work Xmas & New Years, call 256-8819 anytime. tf11-21

Cindy, no joke, everything is OK. tf11-15

Tonite — Farley Lodge, Roulette Blackjack, Chug-A-Luck & more. Try your luck. Be a winner, big prizes, no cover. tf11-15

Leslie R. Happy Birthday, Love Jon. tf11-15

To the person who folded my clothes in the Grayson Laundry Room on Saturday — Thank You. tf11-15

Ski in Colorado — Looking for a female traveling companion to ski the big ones, must be ready to hot dog it. Call Dan at 546-6172. tf11-16

Happy 21st. Birthday Samson. Love always, Delilah. tf11-15

Jan — happy birthday, Knowlton Iota Theta (Chadbourne, Lewis, Squire Village, Westfield). Have a happy 21st! 11-15

SERVICES

Get a load off your mind, truck for hire. Call Gary or Joyce, 256-6376. tf11-21

Experienced electronic and electrical repairs. Reasonable rates. Call 545-2308, Mark 415 or Bill 401. Keep trying. tf11-15

Attention Datsun owners, I perform all phases of major and minor maintenance and repairs on Datsun at less than ½ dealership price. I have over $3000 in equipment, 4 years automotive experience, 2 of which were at a Datsun Dealership, specializing in Datsun. Tele. 253-7456, Russell Baca. tf11-19

Photos — passports, visas, etc., 48 hour service! Sizes and number negotiable, $3.00 minimum! Call Steve at 546-5443. tf11-30

Research — thousands of topics, $2.75 per page. Send $1 for mail order catalog. Research assistance, inc. 11941 Wilshire Blvd., Suite 2, L.A., Calif. 90025. tf12-12

Typing — Fast & accurate — 50c p. Free pickup and delivery. Call Dody 323-4377 after 10 p.m. tf11-21

Central Area Counseling Center, B-2 Gorman, 5-0894 wants to help you find direction, self-confidence, etc. Info aplenty.. come!! tf11-30

MOTORCYCLES FOR SALE

Dirt - 1973 Bultaco Pursang 125 MX, never raced, 2 hrs on engine must be seen to appr. 256-8391. tf11-15

750 Honda, 3 inch over tubes, custom paint, many extras, must be seen, $1,500 or best offer. Phone 586-3952 evenings. tf11-16

TO SUBLET

1 bedroom apt. at Brandywine. 1 1/2 mi from UM on bus Rte., large rms. Central A/C. W/W carpeting. Jan. 1 - Aug. 31. Can renu. 549-3946. tf11-21

INSTRUCTION

Physics for non-science majors: 100-World Beyond Our Senses; 100A-100 In Spanish; 115-Physics of Music; 117-Nuclear Energy & Its Social Challenge; 118-Quantum Worlds; 122-Concepts of Physics, 2; 123-Problems in Physics; 130-Physics for Elem. Ed. Majors; 386-Special Problems. Details — see course description guide or inquire in Hasbrouck 110. tf11-16

Upper division Physics courses for Biological and Physical Science majors: 301-Concepts of Modern Physics; 319-Electronic Instrumentation; 320-Radiation Physics & Nuclear Medicine; 386-Special Problems; 391-Seminar on Molecular Bio-Physics. For details, see course description guide or inquire in Hasbrouck 110. tf11-16

ENTERTAINMENT

Mark it on your calendar — INDIA NIGHT on Nov. 18, Sunday, 7:30 p.m., C.C. Aud. Enjoy classical, folk dances, music and a lot more, plus authentic Indian snacks after show. Adm. $1. Tickets at C.C. Concourse. For more information call Vijay Arora, Sec. I.A., 5-0612. Don't miss it! You will like it. tf11-16

Berkshire East Poster Contest. Prizes are: 1st prize - a 10-week season's pass at Berkshire; 2nd prize is a weekend pass; 3rd prize is a day pass. Rules are: size 18"x24", leave 4"x4" space in upper-left corner. Ski related design. Leave lots of room for event, date, place. Bring to Mahar, Nov. 28 at 8 p.m. Will be judged Dec. 1 at C.C. Aud. Snow dance at 9 p.m. tf11-17

Solid Gold memories as I spin your favorite disks for your dancing pleasure. Call Boogie Bob at 536-6075 today for info. tf11-15

Your kind of music played the way you like it. I produce record hops that you will truely enjoy. Call Steve the DJ at 467-2842. tf11-20

FREE

To give away 1950 Pontiac, bent Flywheel, must tow. 253-9804. tf11-15

Discover The Magic Of India

The India Student Association of the University of Mass. will be presenting "India Night" on Sunday November 18, 1973 at 7:30 p.m. in the Campus Center Auditorium. The program, a traditional event, is sponsored by the university students and the Indian community of Amherst and the surrounding areas. The basic ideology of the program is to present the cultural image of India to the Amherst and nearby communities.

Distinctive performances which reflect the different facets of Indian culture along with classical, folk, and popular dances and instrumental and vocal music, will be depicted. The classical dances, an ancient heritage of India, have always attracted people of the western world. The uniqueness of the dances is reflected in the movements of the different parts of the body which can be appreciated only by seeing a live performance on stage. Folk dances from different regions of India have their own particular charm. These dances reflect the expressions of joy and happiness of the Indian people. An attractive feature is the colorful costumes worn by the dancers.

Admission is $1.00 per person and tickets are available at the Campus Center Concourse. For more information concerning this event, please contact Vijay Arora, Secretary of the India Association, at 5-0612.

State Senator John Olver admires the E.R.A. bracelet presented to him by League of Women Voters President, Kathy Masalski. State Representative James Collins is already wearing his. The League is selling the bracelet to raise funds for ratification activities in non-ratified states. Orders can be placed with Connie Bunker, 549-6159 for $3.09.

Television Tonight

5:00 ENSIGN O'TOOLE (18)
HOGAN'S HEROES "Klink's Rocket." (22)
MISTER ROGERS NEIGHBORHOOD (24) (57)
ADVENTURES OF SUPERMAN (27)
BEVERLY HILLBILLIES "The Italian Cook." (30)
GOMER PYLE "Sue The Pants Off 'Em." (40)
5:30 THE REAL McCOYS "Hassie's European Trip." (18)
THE LUCY SHOW "Lucy's Substitute Secretary." (22)
THE ELECTRIC COMPANY (24) (57)
GOMER PYLE "A Little Chicken Soup Wouldn't Hurt." (27)
HOGAN'S HEROES "Hogan Springs." (30)
NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS (40)
5:55 WHAT'S HAPPENING UPDATE (3)
6:00 NEWS (3) (8) (22)
I SPY "Carmelita Is One Of Us." (18)
MAKING THINGS WORK (24)
PETTICOAT JUNCTION "The Dog Turns Playboy." (27)
TO TELL THE TRUTH Garry Moore, host (30)
WILD WILD WEST "Night Of the Eccentrics." (40)
ZOOM! (57)
6:15 NATIONAL GOVERNMENT (24)
6:30 NEWS (3) (22) (30)
ABC EVENING NEWS (8)
ANIMAL WORLD (27)
LOUIS LYONS: NEWS AND COMMENT (57)
6:55 NEWSBEAT NEWS (40)
7:00 THE STARLOST "Circuit Of Death." (3)
TRUTH OR CONSEQUENCES Bob Barker, host (8)
THE 700 CLUB (18)
NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS (22) (30)
YOUR FUTURE IS NOW (24)
MOVIE "Marco The Magnificent." (27)
ABC EVENING NEWS (40)
THE REPORTERS (57)
7:30 THRILLSEEKERS (8)
HOLLYWOOD AND THE STARS "Sirens, symbols and Glamour Girls." (22)
WAIT TILL YOUR FATHER GETS HOME "Alice's Crush." (30)
DRAGNET (40)
THE OPEN DOOR (57)
8:00 THE WALTONS "The Thanksgiving Story." (3)
TOMA "Frame-Up." (8) (40)
NBA BASKETBALL GAME (18)
THE FLIP WILSON SHOW (22) (30)
THE ADVOCATES "To Solve the Energy Crisis, Should We Strip Mine the Western Prairies?" (24) (57)
9:00 KUNG FU "The Tong." (8) (40)
IRONSIDE "Mind For Murder." (22) (30)
THE MEN WHO MADE THE MOVIES (24)
BORIS KARLOFF PRESENTS THRILLER "Pigeons From Hell." (27)
DEBUT: PHANTOM INDIA (57)
10:00 THE ORANGE BLOSSOM SPECIAL (3)
STREETS OF SAN FRANCISCO (8) (40)
THE BLUE KNIGHT (22) (30)
NEWS (27)
MARTIN AGRONSKY: EVENING EDITION (57)
10:30 THE LIVING WORD (18)
AT CHESTNUT HILL: MICHIO MAMIYA (24)
MANTRAP (27)
CAPTIONED FRENCH CHEF (57)
11:00 NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS (3) (8) (18) (22) (27) (30) (40)
11:30 MOVIE "Mr. and Mrs. Bo Jo Jones." (3)
WIDE WORLD OF ENTERTAINMENT (8) (40)
JOHNNY CARSON SHOW (22) (30)
1:00 NEWS (8) (40)
TOMORROW Tom Snyder, host (22) (30)
1:25 NEWS, WEATHER (3)

AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
ACADEMY OF MUSIC
NORTHAMPTON
NOW ends TUESDAY at 7:00 & 9:00
Electra Glide IN BLUE
PG
Produced and Directed by JAMES WILLIAM GUERCIO soon — "O' Lucky Man"

TONIGHT
DIALOGUE at 6:00 p.m.
Dialogue this week features a discussion on campus security. Guests are spokesmen from central and southwest residential areas and two spokesmen from the campus police.
JANET MOULDING REVIEWS at 7:25 p.m.
Our Divine Ms. M. reviews Tennessee Williams' "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof", currently in production by Stage West of Springfield.
THE FOURTH TOWER OF INVERNESS at Midnight
Wheel and reel through a place that's outside of time and space. Join Jack Flanders as he seeks the FOURTH TOWER OF INVERNESS!
KISS A RAGTIME DUCK TODAY!!!!!!
WMUA
STEREO 91.1 FM
FREE FORM/INFORMATIVE RADIO

MDC CLASSIFIEDS

FOR SALE

S & L Camera Imports has new cameras, lenses & other photo equip. at slashed prices. Full warranty, all makes and models. Call Ken, 6-9723. tf11-30

Live Christmas trees, select and tag now, any size $6.31. L. Blizniak, 133 Bay Rd., Hadley. tf12-12

Mag wheels — 4-14" mt. chrome wheels for G.M. cars, cost $100, sell for $40. 6-4538. tf11-15

1964 VW, good condition, $150. Ask for Tom, 549-1506 after 5 p.m. tf11-16

For sale — alto saxophone, $135; cello, $300. 584-6279, ask for Tom. tf11-16

1967 Barracuda, smashed front end, 383 4-speed, Mallory distributor, new starter, motor, $225 takes it. Sandy, 584-2019. tf11-16

1966 Cutlass Supr. p.s, p.b., very good condition. Call 367-2771. tf11-16

Bus: 1956 white motor school bus, slightly remodeled, excellent condition, $250. Call 527-5737 aft. 5 p.m. tf11/20

Head skis 6' 8" with marker bindings, Ladomolite S10 boots, Scott poles 3'; need $ make me an offer. Call 253-5920 after 5. tf11-16

For sale — Good 10 speed bicycle. Want $90. Call 256-0368. Ask for Dave. tf11-15

Lange Pro Ski Boots almost new condition, must sell fast $40 or best offer. Call 546-5373, ask for Stu. tf11-16

Photo equip. Prof. darkroom. Bronica S-2a system. Minolta-Srtioi body, dry mounter, all mint condition. 665-3401. tf11-16

Panasonic SE-2030 FM-AM Stereo with stereo automatic turntable also has Quadraplex unit. Best offer 253-2746, ask for Mike. tf11-16

Skiis — cheap, Fischer ALU 205cm, brand new $50. Call Chip, 6-4651. tf11-15

New stereo tape cassette player-recorder with Dolby system, Akai with ADR System, Invertomatic, $200 or best offer. Call 586-2215. tf11-16

FOR SALE

Temple P.A., 100 watts, 812 in speakers 2 columns. 1 year old. $350 or best offer. 532-0881. tf11-27

One pair Lange Pro's, mens size 10m, used 1½ seasons, good shape, asking $50. Call David in 311, 545-2412, around lunch time. tf11-16

BSR 8 track tape player $45, Realistic LAB 12-A Record Player $45; Panasonic TV $70. Call 546-5261 or 546-5271. tf11-21

12-String guitar Yamaha, good cond. $85. Albert 253-9804. 2 VW tires, 5.6015, like new, any reasonable offer. 253-9804. tf11-15

Fender Twin Reverb AMP, w jbl's — $375 & Jazzmaster guitar w-case — $175. Call Mark at 584-6183. After 4:15. tf11-19

Peugeot PX10 bicycle, Michelin tires 22" frame, excellent condition, price negotiable. Asking $180. 546-4134 or 546-4129. tf11-19

Keep warm — Mens sz. 44 lg. ¾ leather coat, heavy sheep line, and collar w skin backing. Made in Czech. $300 value, make off. Mike 549-0761. tf11-16

Tires — All brands, RaDIALS, SNOWS — All types guaranteed, lowest prices. Call 546-8362 after 6. tf11-30

4 sale — Panasonic Taperecorder, 4 head, autoreverse - stop. Little use $175. AR turntable, new Shure Cartridge. $75. Jake 549-6420. tf11-16

Ski Boots, Koflach, plastic 5 buckle men's 11, $50; 72 Model Rieker 5 buckle women's 7½ used one season, $30. Call Cliff 6-5448. tf11-20

1969 MGB, fine condition, 60,000 mi. Please call 256-6241, anytime. tf11-16

FOR RENT

Garage space, central Amherst. Safe and inexpensive. D.H. Jones 549-3700. tf11-29

AUTO FOR SALE

69 Toyota Corona, rebuilt engine, many new pts. Muffler, tires etc. Good running cond. Body is fair to good $750. Call Jon 253-2805. tf11-16

68 Dart conv., 6 cyl. new innards, fine machine, needs love. $450 or 256-0597. tf11-15

1948 Packard, good running condition, straight - 8 with overdrive, interior good outside fair. Good tires, new battery. 546-8688. tf11-15

Dodge Coronet, 1966, 273, std. trans., good tires, new battery, starter, generator, exhaust, runs very well, and is dependable. Asking $375. Call 549-3669. tf11-15

1964 Ford Galaxie dependable, it runs runs, runs. Two snow tires also. $150. Call 5-2304 keep trying. Ask for Ken in 322. tf11-16

1966 Oldsmobile Toronado, stylish, automatic, power steering, brake, new front tires, $350. Call 549-6132. tf11-15

70 Ply Duster, stan trans 8 cyl, save gas. 70 series tire, spec wheels, tape deck, new snows exc cond. Sell below mkt, only $1195 - 256-0461. tf11-16

1969 Dodge Dart Swinger 340 ci, 4 speed. Call 549-6671, after 6 p.m. tf11-20

63 Rambler Amer — Low mileage, mechanically excellent body, good snow tires, see to believe. Best offer, call Jude 256-8174. tf11-21

1967 Dodge Polara, excellent running condition. Very dependable. Two new studded snow tires. Call Tom after 6:00, at 549-0866. tf11-20

1967 Chevy Impala 283, V-8, 2 door hardtop, $625, 665-3410. tf11-19

1966 Mercedez, 200 D, new regulator, altenator, injectors, water pump; exc. running cond., $1200. Call 549-3539. tf11-19

1966 Dodge Dart, 6 cyl. R & H, Sticker, standard trans, 2 good snows, very economical. $400. Call Ralph 546-7941. tf11-19

ROOMMATE WANTED

2 male Eng. grad students want mature hip m/f to share 3 bedroom apt. in Amherst, old house, $67 plus. 253-5275. tf11-15

Need mature female roommate for Dec. 1 or Jan. 1. Own room. Cliffside on bus route, mainly furnished. $85. per mo. includes utilities. 665-4355. tf11-16

Wanted: Female to apartment hunt with for Jan. 1. Call Linda after 6 p.m. 253-7752. tf11-16

Female to share 1 bdrm. Presidential apt. beginning Jan. Semi-furnished, $87.50 - mon., incl. utilities. Call 549-4463. tf11-16

2 b.r. apt. to share Private room, no deposit $100 mo. all util incl. Call 665-2858. Avail Dec. 1 - lease to May. tf11-16

Roommate wanted to share completely furnished apartment, available immediately. $100-mo. Call 253-9863, lease runs till May 30. tf11-27

Female Grad Student or faculty. Own room, on bus ro. N Amherst $85 & util. Dec. 1 or Jan. 1, 545-2274 days 549-6155 eve. D. Miller. tf11-16

1 or 2 females wanted to share 2 bedroom Brandywine apt. (N. Amherst) starting Jan. Call 549-0734 evenings. tf11-15

Share apt on N.E. St. Quiet grad student, available Dec. 15 $100. Call 549-6356 after 6:00. tf11-19

Female roommate wanted starting Jan. Big 5 room house edge of campus. Furnished, fireplace, backyard. Call 549-[illegible]. tf11-21

Seeking a couple to share quiet, charming 2-bedr. house in Amherst. Grads preferred. Low rent. Call Ann 256-0481. tf11-16

Roommate wanted in private home near campus, kitchen priv., F. preferred. Tel. 586-2815. tf11-20

Need M-F to share 3 bdrm house near center of Amherst, own bath, lg kitchen & storage space $75 plus util. Quiet neighbrhd, 253-3568. tf11-19

WANTED

Medical technologist or equivalent for part time position. Hours 2:30 p.m. to 11:00 p.m. weekends. Call 413-774-3111, ext. 29 or 38. tf11-16

Wanted ski bindings Marker Simplex DL and Rotomat FD, good money for used bindings. Call Rick 6-5481, keep trying. tf11-16

Couples (without children) needed for Psych study. Chance to learn more about yourself and your relationship. Leave mes. 545-2077. tf11-21

Have '65 Mustang to trade for bike over 300cc of comparable value. Call Jim evenings, 549-0790. tf11-19

LOST

$100 reward for any information leading to the recovery of my stolen Bultaco Race Bike, I just want it back. Call 545-2172. tf11-15

I lost my drivers license. Please bring to the Collegian, to Pedro Hernandez. tf11-15

Red wallet 10-9 at party, 149H Britt. Man., keep $ return rest no. s and add. irreplble. How 'bout "W" pin? Leave at CC L & F, no quests. tf11-16

Blue snorkel jacket, orange lining, at Worcester P.C. Sat. nite. Glasses in pocket, needed desperately! Return to CC Lost & Found. tf11-16

APARTMENT FOR RENT

1 bedrm apt., U. Pk. apts, bus route, convnt to U. Mass. avalabl next month Dec. '73. $146-mh, include all util. Call 253-2705 or 9461. tf11-16

3 bdrm. apt. available for 2nd semester. Puffton Village, rent $250-mo., util. included. Call Mary 549-4580. tf11-19

RIDE WANTED

I need a ride to Springfield or Longmeadow and back to Amherst Mon.-Fri., next semester. Call 546-7961. tf11-16

Letters To The Sports Editor

A Powers-ful Reply

In reply to D.J. Powers letter on Nov. 12, we would just like to comment on a few of Mr. Power's statements.

Pertaining to his statement listed as #1 we would like to make known the fact that the woman who covered the women's IM game was indeed an experienced and qualified reporter, but not in sports. She was inexperienced as a sports reporter, as testified by the sports editor of the Collegian in an issue previous to Ms. Brophy's letter.

In regards to his paragraph listed as #2, it may be true that the reporter for the men's game was lacking in football reporting experience but by reading his report on the game one can see that his knowledge of football compensated for his inexperience in that type of reporting. In the case of covering sports what is more important, knowledge of the game or previous reporting experience?

In paragraph #3 the kind of reporting that Ms. Brophy is refering to is the terrible coverage on women's athletics found in this and many other papers. Does giving the women 28 lines on the back page equal the space (the rest of the page) given to the men? Are women athletes supposed to be satisfied when only half of their games are reported on?

Open a 1973 Index. How many pages did the women's gymnastics team receive? These women were national champions but yet still received only one third the coverage as the men's baseball team. Where are the pages pertaining to the rest of the women's athletics? Why is it that teams with just as creditable seasons as those printed go almost entirely overlooked? Can you actually say that one team deserves more than another? Then why does one receive more than another?

We will agree with you on one point, that this type of reporting has been a fairly consistent policy. In answer to your question to Ms. Brophy, yes we would like it to stop.

Finally, women's athletics have not been a recent happening. Women's intercollegiate sports have been part of UMass for at least 20 years. Mr. Powers, if you have been lucky enough to attend a UMass women's field hockey game or any other sport played by the women then you will find that it is highly competitive and popular to many people. Popularity, competitiveness, "lack of a stylistic precedent" cannot be used as justifiable excuses. The fact remains that the Daily Collegian is dedicated to serve all its members, male and female and it is failing to do so.

Kristin Lehto
Jane Hopkins

Strictly For The Birds

To The Sports Editor:

All season long I've heard our Football team take verbal abuse one kind or another because of the up-and-down season it's been having. But, Miller Wiazcogy's "awards" column the other day is the last straw.

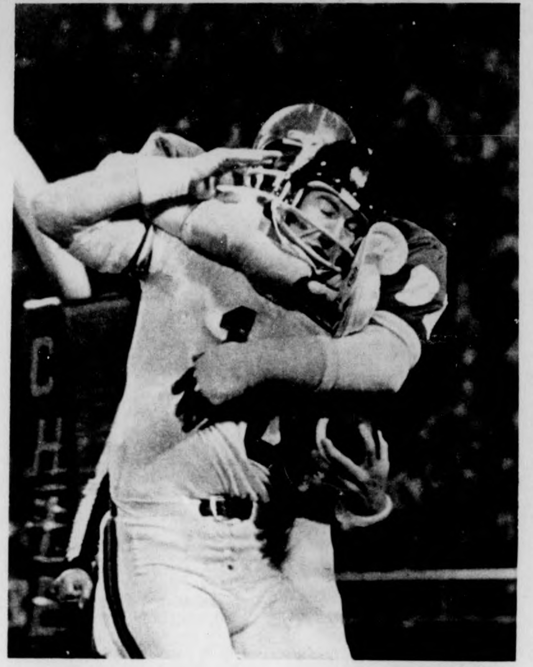
Those awards are strictly for the birds! They represent nothing but a big insult to the entire team. Also, I'm sure they represent the views of quite a few other people around here. Let me enlighten these people on a couple of things: First of all, the team is basically a younger one than last year's, particularly on offense. That line has only two veterans on it; center Kevin Moran and tackle Dave Yushinsky. Both have been hurt at one time or another during the season. The others are inexperienced. They've never played together as a unit before. They haven't learned to cover up for one another when one of them makes a mistake. That only comes with experience.

The running backs are all relatively new. Phil Roland is the only one with any experience. Sometimes it takes a whole season--sometimes even longer to get it. Secondly, Mr. Wiazcogy and these others haven't stopped to think of the effort these guys have been putting out. It's as if they aren't trying at all. One of the players told me not long ago that that attitude has been upsetting to the team. They're hurt that they're getting nothing but verbal abuse for their efforts.

Personally, I appreciate what the Minutemen have tried to do this season. They're doing their best, and that's all that can and should be expected of them.

If the season ended three weeks ago, then I suggest that Mr. Wiazcogy and anyone else who takes this attitude not bother to watch the Minutemen play any more football because they aren't needed. Also, if they think it's easy playing this game, I invite them to go out for the team starting with Spring Practice.

George Geer



(AP Photo)

"Oh Marvin, we can't go on meeting like this," Chicago Bears quarterback Bobby Douglass, whispering sweet nothings in the ears of the Kansas City Chiefs' Marvin Upshaw. However, the Chiefs prevailed on Monday night, 19-7.

Red Sox Name Don Zimmer To Coaching Staff

BOSTON (AP) — Don Zimmer, 42, manager of the San Diego Padres for the last two years, was named coach of the Boston Red Sox Wednesday under new manager Darrell Johnson.

The signing of Zimmer completed Johnson's coaching staff. Johnson, named manager Sept. 30, retained coaches Eddie Popowski and Lee Stange while hiring former assistant at Pawtucket of the International League, Don Bryant.

Zimmer is a veteran of 12 major league seasons as an infielder. He was a teammate of Johnson's briefly with the Cincinnati Reds in 1962.

After managing in the minor leagues, he was a coach with the Montreal Expos in 1971. He went to San Diego in the fall of that year and became manager of the Padres when Preston Gomez was fired April 27, 1972.

Gomez recently was named manager of the Houston Astros.

Archie Active

WASHINGTON (AP) — Archie Clark, out all season, was activated by the Capital Bullets Wednesday and probably will play against the Atlanta Hawks in a National Basketball Association game Saturday night, a club spokesman said.

Notices

Co-Rec Swim meet entry sheets are due on November 19th in I-M Office, Boyden.

Basketball Clinic - All students interested in Intramural officiating, should report to the Boyden Auxiliary Gymnasium November 15th at 7:30.

SHOW MOE HOWARD THAT WE WANT HIM!

COME TO THE 3 STOOGES FILM FEST

5 FLICKS WITH THE REAL CURLY

Fri., Nov. 16 C.C. Aud.
Only 50° 7, 9, 11 p.m.

(Tripod's $424.00 stereo system)

More than you expect for less than you expected.

Stereo systems in the $400 price range, while not unpleasant to listen to, have not as a rule provided that last bit of musical accuracy for those who take their listening very seriously. Our $424.00 Advent Sony BSR ADC stereo system has changed all that, as many of our critical and satisfied customers who own it will testify.

The Smaller Advent loudspeakers are a startling speaker bargain, of which highly-respected Stereo Review Magazine said, "Any preconceived ideas you may have about the limitations of sub-compact speaker systems will, we think, be shattered." The Sony STR 6046A AM/FM stereo receiver provides sufficient power (over 40 RMS watts of it) to handle the most tortuous musical passages in the average living room, and its sensitive tuner will capture your favorite radio stations with clarity. The BSR 510 AXE automatic turntable with a ADC K7E cartridge and diamond stylus will treat your records gently and add no unpleasant sounds of its own.

Together, these remarkable components cost just $424.00 a saving of $72.00 over their usual individual prices. If you've thought that a stereo system in this price range couldn't provide quite enough sonic satisfaction, we invite you to visit Tripod's and learn otherwise.

TRIPOD AUDIO

98 N. Pleasant St.
Amherst, Mass. 01002

219 Main Street
Northampton, Mass. 01060

For Lightning Fast Delivery on any of our Delicious Pizzas or Subs call the Hungry U.

PIZZA PATROL
256-6350

Tyma Soccer MVP

By STEVE DeCOSTA

The UMass soccer team has chosen Mark Tyma as their most most valuable player for the 1973 season.

The booters also chose Gary McKenna as the most improved player and elected Jim Vollinger and Carl Vercollone as co-captains for the '74 season.

Tyma is a senior halfback from Langhorne, Pa. Along with Kurt Syer, he captained the Minutemen to a 6-3-1 record. Of his '73 performance, Tyma is a genuine candidate for the All-Conference and All-New England all star teams.

In selecting Tyma, the team bypassed Tom Coburn, the junior from Chicopee who finished this season as the top goal scorer both on the team and in the Yankee Conference.

McKenna is a sophomore halfback from Northampton who saw limited action on last year's varsity squad as a freshman. Given a chance to start this year, he blossomed into one of the team's stars on defense.

Vollinger and Vercollone both juniors, will lead next year's version of the Minutemen. Vollinger is a halfback from Northampton and was a vital cog in many of the booters' victories this season.

Vercollone hails from Lincoln, Mass. He has been the Minutemen goalie for two seasons. In the latest YanCon statistics, Vercollone is listed as the third best goalie in the loop, with a goals against average of 1.4 per game.

Al Rufe was pleased with the selections, saying "I think we made some wise choices here today."

(Staff Photo - Steve Ruggles)

TIM BERRA - This is an uncommon play for Tim Berra this year. He still leads the Yankee Conference in pass receiving (47 receptions for 621 yards and nine touchdowns) and in scoring with 64 points (10 TD's and 2 extra point catches.) He is actually the leading kick-off returner, too, with 25 attempts, 652 yards and a 26.0 ave.

Joan Fassnacht

"Why I Hate Sports"

By JOAN FASSNACHT

I like sports, I do, I do, I do,...I really, really do, all you jocks out there.

I'm very sports-minded myself. I do my deep-kneee bends as I put on my knee socks every morning (mornings I put on tights are days off); I take deep breaths as I walk around campus (that's deep breaths, not pants); and I exercise my facial muscles by talking non-stop 18 hours a day...

So remember, guys, I'm with you.

HOWEVER.

What I don't like are: (Sorry, Steve, I just can't say hate)

1. rules
2. statistics
3. sports events on t.v. that pre-empt "Medical Center"
4. commercials that show athletes shaving, doing their hair, or showing off their athlete's foot.

HERE's WHY:

1. RULES: Why rules??? All I can say is that rules have driven away one of the world's greatest athletes from the "Wide World of Sports"---me. In high school, I was only one of the greatest, shortest (5'2") center forwards in the basketball business. Rules drove me (a great talent) away. I was unceremoniously kicked off the team after I consistently landed balls in the other team's basket. Of course, the other team lobbied (unsuccessfully) for my reinstatement...The next fall, my gym teacher reluctantly put me on the powderpuff football team, as I was the only woman who could kick the ball further than two feet, and pass it without breaking my bra straps..Just because I ran the wrong way with the ball a few times, is that any reason to crush a great talent? They thought so.

2. STATISTICS: Frankly, Crowe, DeCosta, Ballou, Barroll, and the assembled great athletes of UMass and the world, I happen not to give a damn or lose sleep over whether or not Hank Aaron beats Babe Ruth's record...or how many goals Bobby Orr has made in the last five years...or how many times Joe Namath has ruined his knee...or how many commercials for Dry Control John Havlicek has made....I was never any good at math anyway....

3. SPORTS VS. "MEDICAL CENTER": Now, I ask you, is there really any choice here? Phil Esposito's smashed nose just can't compare with graphic open-heart surgery, in my humble opinion....

4. COMMERCIALS: How crass...as if they didn't make enough money already stealing balls and pucks from each other...now they have to compete for the dough with each other on the tube. What could be more boring than watching Joe Namath shave off his mustache or more embarrassing than watching Yogi Berra spray his feet with Desenex?

Other than this guys, I like sports, I really, really do......

This is the third in a series of "Why I Hate Sports" columns.

The un-dormitories.

Great off-campus living—indoors and out—at either of two modern apartment complexes, only minutes away by car or bike from Amherst College, downtown Amherst or UMass. Now accepting applications for September.

Brittany Manor
AMHERST
- courtesy bus to UMass and town
- 1, 2, 3 bedrm apts.
- heat & air conditioning
- wall-to-wall carpeting
- applianced kitchens
- master TV antenna
- laundry facilities
- parking, cars & bikes
- 2 swimming pools with sundecks
- 2 pro tennis courts
- lawns for softball, football, badminton

RENT: $200/MONTH
(utilities included)
Directions: East Dudly Rd. oppos. Grist Mill off Rte. 116

Mount Sugarloaf
SUNDERLAND
- 2-bedrm apts.
- heat & air conditioning
- roomy closets, storage
- wall-to-wall carpeting
- master TV antenna
- modern kitchens
- self-cleaning ovens
- electric ranges
- stainless-steel sinks
- dishwashers/disposals
- 2-door refrigerators
- laundry facilities
- swimming pool

No Lease Required
RENT: FROM $185
CALL 413-256-8534
Directions: On Route 47.

Rookie & Vet Lead Bruins Over Montreal

MONTREAL (AP) — Third-period goals by rookie Andre Savard and veteran Ken Hodge carried the Boston Bruins to a 4-3 National Hockey League victory over the Montreal Canadiens Wednesday night.

Savard's fourth goal of the season and Hodge's 11th helped the Bruins strengthen their hold on first place in the NHL's East Division.

The Bruins got off quickly, getting first-period scores from Wayne Cashman and Don Marcotte. Yvan Cournoyer halved Boston's lead with a power-play goal at 13:51 of the opening period, his 11th goal of the season.

Frank Mahovlich tied the game in the second period, converting a pass from Serge Savard at 15:17.

After Boston took a 4-2 lead in the third period, Guy Lafleur brought the Canadiens, now five points behind Boston in third place, to within one goal at 14:03.

Sluggish Celts Sink Sonics

BOSTON (AP) — The rebounding pair of Paul Silas and Dave Cowens revived the sluggish Celtics in the fourth period Wednesday night, and led Boston to a 110-104 National Basketball Association victory over Seattle in Supersonics' Coach Bill Russell's homecoming.

With Silas and Cowens clearing the boards at both ends, the Celtics outscored the Supersonics 14-2 over four minutes through the last period to wrap up what had been a duel of cold shooting and turnovers.

Silas and John Havlicek collected four points each in the scoring streak that moved the Celtics from an 83-80 deficit to a 94-85 lead they never relinquished.

HP-35 * HP-45 HP-46 * HP-80 * HP-81

CALCULATORS

T 12500 * SR-10 * SR-11

With 12 different models we can match nearly everyone's needs and budget. However, they are in limited supply. To assure yourself of one place a deposit with us. They will all be in soon . . . including the

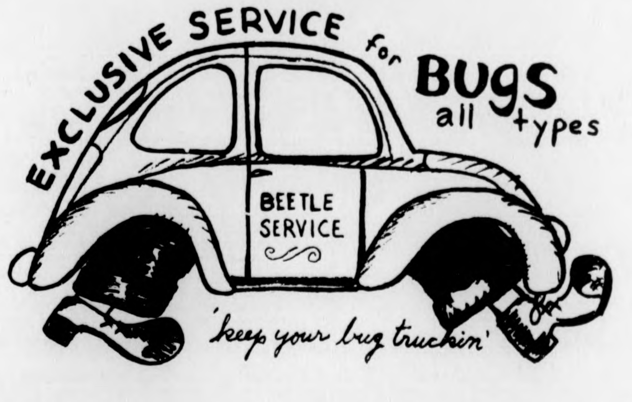
NEW MODELS
*SR-11 * MX100 * HP-46*

University Store
Campus Center

T 12500 * SR-10 * SR-11

MX-20 * MX-40 * MX-50 * MX-70 * MX100

BEETLE SERVICE



BEETLE SERVICE • 2 Hampton Ave., Northampton 584-9758
Next to Peter Pan Bus Terminal
- Expert Service for Good Prices -

Eager Prospects Hear Coleman

By GLENN POSTER

There is no formula for getting a job in this business," Ken Coleman told an attentive audience of a hundred-fifty at Hasbrouck Auditorium last night. "It is a small but very competitive industry," he continued. "But people should try - they owe it to them selves. I started on a small station in Rutland, Vermont doing everything including sweeping floors."

Mr. Coleman, a guest speaker of the Sports Lecture Series, recently finished a book entitled, So You Want To Be A Sportscaster?"

"I wrote it because I found that I was constantly getting letters from people wanting to get into the sportscasting field, so I figured, 'Why not - I'll give it a shot.'" So he wrote the book as a guide for those who are interested in becoming sportscasters.

Mr. Coleman distinguished between broadcasting for radio and for television. "In radio you paint the picture. On T.V., you put captions on those pictures. That's why I think radio is more fun." (You can be more imaginative with the words you use to describe something taking place.)

Ken Coleman is known around these parts as the television voice of the Boston Red Sox. He also does regional telecasts for the NFL each Sunday on NBC. Before coming back to Boston in 1966, Ken, for the previous fourteen years, had been doing play-by-play for the Cleveland Indians and the Cleveland Browns.

Mr. Coleman started out on a light note, telling (what else) a Yogi Berra story.

"Mental illness is something that should not be joked about. Jimmy Piersall, playing for the Red Sox, had a breakdown in 1951 and came back in 1952. One day the Red Sox were playing the Yankees and Piersall was in the starting lineup."

Coleman goes on to say that the first two batters in the inning (one of whom was Jackie Jensen) both had been brushed back by pitches and eventually each popped up. Piersall's batting average was .230.

"As Piersall gets up out of the on deck circle and moves to the plate, Berra says to him, 'How ya doin?' Piersall: 'If I get hit by a pitch, I'm going to hit you over the head with my bat, (thinking Berra was calling these pitches). Then I'm going to plead temporary insanity.' to all this Berra replied, 'That's OK - we don't hit .230 hitters.'"

After his lecture, Mr. Coleman opened the floor for questions from the mostly male-dominated audience.

For openers, Mr. Coleman was asked if he still gets nervous before going on the air: "It's an individual thing. I've been doing so many games for so long. I don't get nervous now - a certain flow of adrenalin comes along."

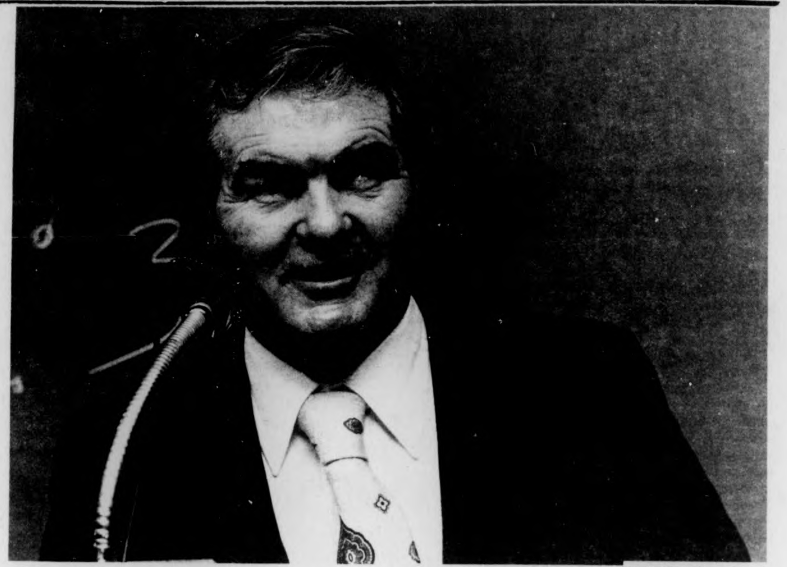
Othe Coleman quips: "I find baseball on TV the most difficult sport to do, filling in between pitches, saying the right thing."

"One of the best courses, the most practical one I took in high school was typing."

"I though Mel Allen and Red Barber were my favorite broadcasters, when growing up." (in response to a question of another sportscaster, WMUA's Don Gorski)

"The job of play-by-play is to report....Howard Cosell is a gimmick - but Howard doesn't know it... I think expansion has definitely hurt sports. I couldn't even name five guys on the San Diego Padres... On the current Red Sox team, Tommy Harper is a fellow I admire as a man.... You're not hired to manage, you're hired to report."

For all the budding sportscasters in Hasbrouck last night, it truly was an informative evening.



Staff Photo/Steve Ruggles

This is not a psychology lecture. It's Ken Coleman of WBZ in Boston, or more commonly known as the telecaster of the Boston Red Sox' games. Mr. Coleman spoke last night about his job, how to get into the broadcasting field, and told some anecdotes from his career in radio and television.

Allen Says: No Drugs

By TOM SEPPY
Associated Press Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Coach George Allen vehemently and angrily denied Wednesday that there is, what he called, a drug problem on his Washington Redskins.

"I'm positive of it," said Allen in a heated comment to newsmen. "I know we don't have a drug problem on the Redskins. I'm sure we don't and I'm not worried about it. My only concern is the Baltimore Colts."

Allen made his comments in reply to questions about a study reported by the Washington Post in which Redskins center Geroge Burman said nearly one-third of the team used amphetamines through last year to charge themselves up before a game.

Burman also said he believed the one-third figure would apply to all the teams in the National Football League.

Earlier in the day a team spokesman said Allen would have no comment on the story, but newsmen questioned the Washington coach about the story on the field after practice.

Allen not only commented but called newsmen together after he showered to make sure they understood his position. He said angrily, however, that questions about the story upset his concentration on preparations for Sunday's game against Baltimore.

Burman, 30, who has been in the league since 1964, said National Football League teams had for years dispensed pills to the players but have stopped now. He said, however, that a significant number of players still obtain amphetamines on their own and use them before ballgames.

In New York, NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle issued a statement through his office in which he said, "George Burman's comments confirm what our investigation has indicated — namely that amphetamines are not being dispensed, either directly or indirectly, by club managements."

Inside Sports

- •Letters To The Sports Editor
- •"Why I Hate Sports" Column
- •Celts Sink Sonics
- •Bruins Pull Away From Montreal

Daily Collegian

SPORTS

Skaters Bow To RPI

By MDC STAFF

The Minutemen pucksters began their "pre-season" last night in Troy, N.Y. as they roughly handled by a faster and stronger RPI squad to the tune of 9-4.

You would have to call the RPI attack a "barrage" on the UMass net, as the Polytechs drilled 69 shots on the three net-minders. The Minutemen countered with a pretty good offensive thrust of their own, unloading 38 shots on RPI's All-American goalie Don Cutts.

Coach Jack Caniff did what he wanted to do (in one sense). He saw just about everyone on his squad (21 players) in actual game conditions.

Coming through with tallies for the losers were John Muse, Billy Harris, Kevin Connors, and Carl Burns.

The Minutemen went with a different goal-tender in every period. John Binkoski began the game guarding the net and was net-minder supreme, giving up only one goal in 24 shots. Jeff McReynolds and Bruce Gledhill (both sophomores) played the second and third periods respectively.

Varsity M
Football Blurbs

By BILL BALLOU

"Super" is the only way to describe the players on this year's freshman football defensive squad. At least that's the only way freshman defensive coach Jim Reed can describe them.

Reed, one of the featured speakers at yesterday's Varsity "M" Club luncheon, gave a rundown on some of his men and at least once, and usually several more times, called each player "super". Head coach Dick MacPherson complimented Reed on his super talk.

Reed's rundown and anecdotes about his frosh defensive unit were the bright spots in a dull luncheon. The only other highlights were a reunion of MacPherson and his brother, Father Norman MacPherson, whom he hadn't seen in a while, a new Yogi Berra story, and a prediction by tight end Gary Mika.

MacPherson related the new addition to the Yogi Berra legend. Seems that Yogi and family wanted to watch Timmy in the North-South game down in Miami. They had an offer to stay with friends, but wanted to make it a family week, so decided to stay with Timmy.

They found out what hotel he was staying in. The name rang a bell with Yogi.

"Wait a minute," he said, "isn't that Stan Musial's place?"

His wife Carmen said yes.

"And doesn't Joe Garagiola own part of it?"

Right again.

"Hey, I think I own part of that place. Do I, Carmen?" He sure did.

"Then I should be able to get in there, shouldn't I?"

Mika said he wouldn't go as far out on a limb as Mike Pomerleau, who said UMass would win seven straight games, but he did guarantee they'd win their next two.

Looks like BC doesn't stand a chance.

Steve Crowe

Energy Crisis Tips

Commissioner of Major League Baseball Bowie Kuhn has announced that night games may be banned this year due to the ever-growing energy crisis. It seems only logical that other sports will follow. But what can colleges do to join the effort to conserve all the energy possible?

Here are a few of my own suggestions for the UMass athletic department to consider:

—Put a clear dome over the Campus Pond so the hockey team won't have to travel all the way to Greenfield or Orr Rink to practice this year. The saving of money on transportation is obvious, but what is not immediately seen is that lighting would not be needed. The library's 26 super-illuminated floors would provide enough. Of course, long games might have to be called on account of darkness when the library lights fade out at fifteen minutes after midnight.

—Take down the lights from the football practice fields. The football team doesn't need them...They've been playing in the dark all season long and artificial lighting is not going to brighten their season that much. Beating Boston College on November 24th would. But chances of that happening are as dim as an F lot street light.

—So far alot of heat energy has been wasted at the UMass basketball games. For anyone who has gone to a jam-packed home game, you know what I'm talking about. Instead of opening the doors at halftime and near the end of the game, the heat should be funnelled into the library to heat that monstrosity. A side advantage: If you can't get the bookworms out of the library to see a basketball game, at least you can bring the atmosphere of the game to them.

—The Collegian Sports staff can also help by taking the first draft of Marty Kelley's column and flushing it directly down the toilet before it goes to print. This would save alot of otherwise wasted print, alot of crucial lighting used to read it, and alot of people the trouble of flushing it down themselves — approximately 10,000 flushes.

—Run Randy Thomas, Bill Gillen and Co. on a conveyer belt connected to a generator. This would make maximum use of all the energy the UMass cross country generates.

—Make the Athletic Department's 500,000 official automobiles travel at a maximum speed of 50 mph.

—Take the springs out of Al Skinner's legs and use them on the official athletic department cars that are used when they travel up north to those backwoods Yankee Conference schools.

—Take all the wind from certain "Letters to the Sports Editor" and "Why I Hate Sports" columns bag it, and fly Charlotte Lettis to New Mexico to the Women's National AAU cross-country meet this month. And if there's any left after that, the athletic department could throw some old "Salute to Yogi Day" releases into the bag and send them scattering UMass' name and fame all over the country..

—Here's something all sports fans can do to save energy: sit in front of your T.V. set on Sunday afternoons, soaking up all the football games and beers...use a straw for maximum conservation. What do you mean, you already do that?

—Finally, don't read sports columns like this — it uses up too much light energy.

New England's Largest College Daily

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOLUME CI, ISSUE 50 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1973

Weather

"Out, Out brief candle life is but a walking shadow a poor player who strets and frets his hour upon the stage and is heard no more."

Recyclable

MSP-AAUP
The Ballots Were Locked Up Last Night

By JUDY FRIEDLAND

The Administration submitted a preliminary objection to the Massachusetts Labor Relations Commission last night over the procedure for safeguarding the ballot boxes being used in the faculty election for collective bargaining.

Alfonzo D'Apuzzo, Executive Secretary of the commission, which is conducting the election, ruled that the two boxes would be sealed and placed overnight in the personal possession of Francis P. Hennessy, an agent of the commission who is conducting the election. Hennessy and the boxes stayed in Room 422 in the Campus Center until this morning, when the election recommenced.

A spokesman for the Administration said that they "objected vigorously" to where the boxes were being kept.

According to the spokesman, there was "a clear, oral understanding" between the Administration and the Massachusetts Society of Professors-American Association of University Professors (MSP-AAUP), the union on the ballot wishing to represent the faculty. The understanding was that the boxes would be kept in the C.C. safe in the hotel lobby on the third floor. He said that the union was responsible for "a breach of agreement."

"If the union had said something before 5:00," the spokesman said, "we would have been happy to make arrangements to use a local bank safe."

The union, however, did not recall agreeing to keep the boxes in the C.C. safe. They denied any previous arrangements with the Administration, either written or oral.

Arnold Schneider, a staff member of the Massachusetts Teachers Association (MTA), and affiliate of MSP-AAUP, said that the union planned to go along with the commission's ruling, "whatever it was."

The union examined the safe and questioned its "suitability." According to Schneider, a suitable place is one that is "neutral and secure."

D'Apuzzo announced his decision to place the boxes in Hennessy's possession after examining the safe, which he said "couldn't accomodate the boxes." He said that he also called the local police station; however, they didn't know of any suitable places.

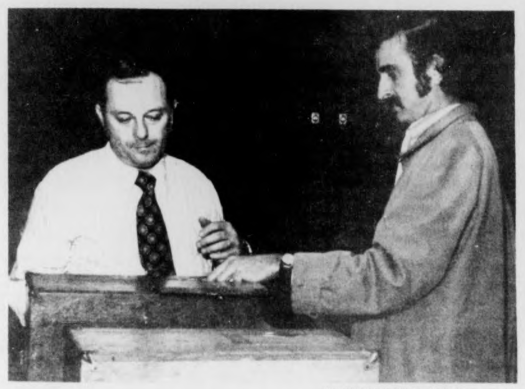
The safe, according to the Administration spokesman, is approximately six feet by five feet. The boxes are each about twelve inches by eighteen inches. D'Apuzzo said that there were shelves in the safe that would have had to have been removed in order to fit the boxes.

Formal objections to the elections can only be made after its completion tonight. The spokesman for the Administration said that "it is reserving its rights to make objections."

At the end of the first day of elections, 900 out of 1400 eligible faculty members voted, approximately 64%.

Four tables are set up in Rooms 168-172 to accomodate the voting. There is a commission agent, and an observer from both the MSP-AAUP and the Administration at each table.

Voting will continue until 7 p.m. tonight.



(Staff Photo-Emmett Schmarsow)

Hopefully, nothing happened to the ballot box overnight, but just to be sure it was locked up in a safe place.

(Staff Photo-Harry Charych)

"Little Mac" brings McDonald's to campus, or does it bring the campus to McDonald's? In either case, it's usually a lonely ride.

Munch To The Golden Arches

By MIKE KNEELAND

Things are going so well for McDonald Hamburgers that employees are circulating a new rumor. They say God is considering changing the "Pearly Gates" to "Golden Arches" to attract more patrons.

There may be a lack of good souls at UMass, but McDonald's in Hadley is still doing its best to increase business. A 72-seat bus, which promises to take you to and from McDonald's, has established a route on campus.

"The bus here ran all summer long at Old Orchard Beach in Maine," said Hadley franchise owner Herman Zucherman. A graduate of McDonald's Hamburger University in Illinois, Zucherman said the bus was used to ferry the vacationers to a nearby McDonald's.

"The vacationers didn't know a McDonald's was in the area. Then they'd see our bus," he said.

When the summer ended and Old Orchard Beach lost its tourist industry, Zucherman suggested to his regional office that the bus be used for the Amherst area.

"I told them of the hazards of students hitchhiking around here," he recalled. Zucherman said the bus arrived in late Sept.

So far, students have not been using the bus as much as Zucherman would like to see. He says he doesn't understand why students would rather drive or "thumb" to McDonald's rather than ride the bus.

"We even tried having a hostess take riders' orders for a while," he said.

The round-trip takes 30-minutes. Zucherman says he doesn't mind if students use the bus to "go to Zayre's" or other businesses in the area.

The bus will soon lose its yellow color. "We don't want it to look like a school bus so we're going to paint it white," he said.

Whatever its color, McDonald's has taken another step towards replacing Miss American Pie and St. Peter might need a bus driver's license.

ROTC
A Quiet Comeback

By DAVE SPARLING

ROTC — remember it? You know, one of the prime objects of "affection" on the part of college students in the late 60's and 1970? Well its alive and kicking here at UMass, continuing to develop officers for the Army and the Air Force.

UMass isn't alone among America's colleges in finding that, following the controversy and tumolt of recent years surrounding the question of having ROTC on campus, ROTC has been making a quiet comeback.

Although nationwide the actual number of "cadets" is down, the number of ROTC units on campus is up.

Here at UMass, the Army ROTC has 70 students enrolled and the Air Force ROTC, approximately 100 (and nearby half of them freshmen).

Col. Baxter M. Bullock (Army), Military Science professor at UMass said earlier this week, "The hostile attitude toward ROTC at UMass in previous years simply doesn't exist anymore.

Col. Bullock said that one of the reasons for this new attitude (ranging from "neutrality to warm support") is "in great part due to the changing mood of the country. We don't have an unpopular war anymore."

Col. Paul H. Fisher, Air Force ROTC professor (specializing in meteorology) echoed Col. Bullock's quiet optomism and mentioned another factor affecting ROTC.

"Now there is a better feel for the true voluntary set up because the draft is deactivated," said Col. Fisher.

In years past, many students joined ROTC because of the draft. As long as they were enrolled in ROTC they could not be drafted. Now there is no draft and students join ROTC because they want to.

Col. Bullock said that the goal for their ROTC program is to provide the Army with "good

(Continued on P. 2)

Claus Adams, rehearsing with the Julliard String Quartet before their performance in front of an appreciative audience in Bowker Auditorium last night.

"Glitter, Go Both Ways"

By DAVID LETTERS

"This was the time for anyone to be 'Queen For A Day."

'The Divine Miss M,' Bette Midler, offered her "glitter, go both ways" rock entertainment to a very partisan crowd at the Music Hall in Boston Wednesday night. The sell-out audience resembled an open house at an uptown New York massage parlor.

The show was both on the stage and in the audience. Glitter clothes, shiny skin, and painted fingernails adorned many. Shoes elevated off the floor gave the concert an extra show as Bette's fans walked, strutted and floated through the Music Hall.

Repeated comments of 'Say D'here' by the Boston police quickly indicated Bostons' finests likes or dislikes.

The "at home" crowd of the Other Side, A Beantown gay bar, led the front row delegations with joyfull yells and yips of 'We Luv You Bette' or 'Say Bette, You-hoo-Oh Bette!'

"I hope you're ready to get your rocks off, 'cause I'm sure gonna get mine---let's go," said Bette and was across the stage, running, jumping, roling on the floor — any movement to accent the sound was "Kool" for the evening.

The Divine Ms. 'M' presented a show of many musical eras. Add a few tables and some wine and she could offer a grand cabaret.

Bette Midler is NOW. Her songs sell. She really cannot hold a note, but she does not have to — her power is herself. She darts across the stage, crawls under the piano, runs to stage front, throws a moon and backs off to shake her bod. The crowd loved it.

Ms. Bette is riding high on the 'glitter-gay' acceptance fad. She informs the audience "The best way to go, is both ways." The audience cheers approval---as she is their girl.

Fast songs segue into another, and the show moves quickly as her very tight band seldom misses a cue. Her band is powerful. Alone they could be a top act.

Bette stops singing only to rap and continue to build her ever so fine -- oh dear-ry audience rapport.

All jokes are current; she has a pulse on the times. Quickies about Dick Nixon and the 'gate, Linda Lovelace and Deep Throat, Gay Happenings, and local dives repeatedly had the audience going crazy.

Top line of the evening was a continuing joke. She said, "You see, like the Watergate tapes, ah Dick Nixon has a copy of Deep Throat. Yea, oh, yes, he has watched it over ten times, and well, ah, well, he wants to learn-Oh yes deary, sooner or later he is gonna get it down pat."

"Ah-ah-Ha-RimAH! — the show moved quickly as she sings songs from her first album and introduced some from her next.

Her trio of three sexy(?) (definitely foxy) girls put fine harmonies and quick dance steps together to compliment Bette on the trip of the evening. She covered music styles of days past and present. A little interprative vocal added to the classic songs. "IN THE MOOD" sounded like a lover ready to get it on.

Bette really can't sing, but she doesn't need to, as she personifies movement and audience raport.

ROTC-Why Did They Join?

(Continued from P. 1)

managers and leaders." There is a great need for qualified officers in the Army, and ROTC, along with West Point and Officer Candidate School are the sources.

"Just like any large corporation," Bullock said, "The Army wants good men with specific skills and talents."

Col. Fisher agrees — "We want to train people for specific Air Force requirements, not just develop a large pool of recruits as in the past."

ROTC units have no hold on the student during their freshman and sophomore year. The junior year is when the obligation begins as well as the benefits.

These benefits come in the form of $100 a month while school is in session, and books are paid for.

When asked whether the money had any effect on the prospective recruit, Col. Bullock said, I don't believe that's had a great inpact, parents exercise alot of influence."

Bullock said that the money is a factor that is considered, though.

According to Bullock, Military Science professors are all "highly qualified". All professors have masters degrees, have "fine military records". He also noted that all faculty and courses have been approved by the administration and the faculty senate.

(Note — the Faculty Senate in 1972 voted to withdraw from ROTC courses university credit. In the spring of 1973 it voted to give ROTC credit. Also last spring the Student Senate, by one vote, defeated a motion calling for the SS to support the Faculty Senate's granting of credit to ROTC.)

The Air Force ROTC offers four basic types of training, according to Col. Fisher.

There are "pilot qualified", "navigator qualified", "technically" and "managerial" qualified programs for the Air Force ROTC. The determining factor in what one the cadet takes can be either personal preference or physical limits, said Col. Fisher. (An Air Force pilot needs 20/20 vision just for starters)

So the ROTC units at UMass are quietly going about their business. Located in Dickenson Hall behind Goodell building (ex library) with their small staffs and service issue furniture they continue, in Col. Bullock's words, "prepare an officer corps truly representative of the nation and the nation's educational system."

5 College Area; Black History

By CHILLY WILLIAMS

(Part 1 of a 3 part series)

Author's Note: (In reviewing the short history of Black Studies at the five-colleges, we, as a Black community should examine our relationship with one another and ask ourselves "Was the struggle in vain"? I will explain the last sentence, after highlighting some of the events that made the W.E.B. Dubois Department of Afro-American Studies and the Five Colleges Black Studies a reality.)

Friday Nov. 8, 1968 — 100 Black UMass Students stage Whitmore Sit-In; request action on 20 demands.

The Students' Afro-American Organization issued a list of 20 demands and an ultimatum to the University Administration. The action stemmed from the alleged beating of a black visitor and his white student companion Thursday night by five unidentified white students. The demands listed were:

1) A public apology from the administration;

2) Police: a minimum of 15 black policemen; take guns away from police and fire Chief Blasko and Officer Shankard; also sensitivity training for all police;

3) Compulsory meeting of all students to explain consequences of any racist behavior;

4) Black curriculum with black teachers;

5) Black doctors in Infirmary and in Mental Health;

6) Recruitment of out-of-state black students disregarding 5 percent rule;

7) Sensitivity training for house officers, I.F.C., fraternity and sorority officers; also compulsory black-white encounters;

8) More money for Student Afro-American Organization;

9) No black student to flunk out this semester. Any black student who misses an exam or class because of participation in march is not to be penalized;

10) Afro-Americans will remain in Mills House with money from University for refurbishing of Mills House;

11) Money from University for black arts festival;

12) More black administrators and staff (counselors, head of residence, food services, student personnel, athletic staff);

13) Sensitivity training for professors;

14) Representative of Afro-Am. to be on interviewing board for any blacks; staff and faculty and reviewing committee for any outline for any black curriculum;

15) Rooms in the Campus Center to be named for black heroes;

16) Any staff person who acts in an offensive manner toward any black student will be brought before a reviewing board. If found guilty, the person will be fired. This board will include representation from black students;

17) Within the area decided on for housing of C.C.E.N.S. students in fall, each student will be required to attend sensitivity training and black-white encounter groups;

18) Black students will be involved in freshman orientation and black freshman will attend a black orientation;

19) Meeting with Board of Trustees and black students;

20) Clear explanation of sanctions to be taken against any dorm or fraternity which shows any form of racist behavior e.g., suspension of open house privileges, cutoff of R.S.O. funds.

The group also demanded the apprehension and immediate expulsion of the five attackers. The group quietly left the ad-

(Continued on P. 3)

The University of Massachusetts Student Government Association is offering the following items for your bid:

(3) Ultrablitz meteor SPGH strobes

(5) Minolta Sr1s 35mm cameras w-55mm fl. 7 lens

(1) Soligor 180mm f3.5 preset lens for Minolta

(1) Pentax H1a 35mm camera w-clip-on meter & 55mm fl.8 lens

(1) Pentax H1a 35mm camera w-clip-on meter & 55 mm f2.0 lens (needs repair)

(1) Omega Printing Densitometer model 7485

The above items may be inspected on Nov. 16 & 19 from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. in room 402 Student Union. Your written sealed bids should be in the RSO office no later than 3 p.m. Nov. 21, 1973.

The Right is reserved to reject any or all bids.

The Guitar Workshop 549-1728
233 No Pleasant Street Amherst
Large Selection of Scores and Sheet Music for all Instruments and Voices from
C.F. Peters, Kalmus, G. Schirmer, Moeck, Schott, International Eds., Hortus Musicus, Boosey & Hawkes, etc.
Fine Fretted Instruments & Recorders
Instrumental Accessories
Open - Monday - Saturday 9:30 ~ 6:00

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

The office of the DAILY COLLEGIAN is on the second floor of the Student Union on the campus of the University of Massachusetts, zip code 01002. Telephones: 545-2550 (news); 545-0344 (sports); 545-0731 (business).

Second class postage is paid in Amherst and additional mailing in Ware, Mass. 01082. THE DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes Monday through Friday during the academic year, except during vacation, exam periods or holidays. Accepted for mailing under the authority of an act of March 8, 1879; as amended by an act of June 11, 1943. Subscription rates are $6.00 per semester of $10.00 per year.

COFFEE HOUSE
at BROOKS
8-12 p.m.
Free Refreshments

continental coiffure / the choppin' block
A Salon for the two of you
Silvio De Palma: Director
26 Main St., Amherst
253-9293
253-9271
Sat., 9 to 5
Mon.-Fri., 9 to 7:30

We've Moved To Goodell And It's Swell

(Staff Photo-Janice Cerrone)

To the first...and many more to come!

By ROBERTA McCANN

Wine, bread and cheese were on hand yesterday afternoon to help Everywoman's Center celebrate its first birthday and recent move to Goodell Hall.

About one hundred people attended the open house. Several people and groups brought presents such as plants or wine. A film of the move of E.W.C. from Munson Hall to Goodell on Oct. 18 was shown.

Last Saturday, in preparation for the party, the E.W.C. staff worked on the finishing touches of setting up the center. The women laid down red rugs, soundproofed the counseling rooms and hung up several art prints donated to the center.

E.W.C. provides counseling, referral, and several programs such as Project Self, The Poor Women's Task Force, and the Feminist Arts Center for all university and community women.

(Staff Photo-Janice Cerrone)

Along with the gifts of the plants and art prints donated to the Everywomen's Center's celebration was plenty of wine, bread and cheese.

Exam Schedule Corrections

GROUP	SECTION	PD
SOCIOL 101	1A,2B,3C 11,13D	23
	4	4
	7	7
	8	12
	9	10
222		7
224		6
233		22
247	1	3
	2	1
251		2
253		5
254		1
255		9
256		9
259		3
261	1	23
	2	4
266		19
270		11
272		8
275	1	22
	2A	13
278	1	21
	2,3	23
280		16
282	1	18
	2	20
286		5
SPAN 110		15
120		16
126		3
130		12
304		16
375		8
SPEECH 121		22
182		1
190		2
203	1	17
	2	3
210		21
225		16
227		12
228		10
232		14
250		6
283		15
284		22
285		12
286		8
287		5
295		10

Black History In The 5-College Area

"The Rush Of Relevancy"

(Continued from P. 2)

ministration building, after leaving the list of demands.

President Lederle said the "dogmatism" of the black students might destroy the climate in which we are trying to work things out...but I think they understand this."

Feb. 18, 1970 — Taken from the text of Black Studies Proposal. The committee on Afro-American Studies, in accordance with tis mandate from the administration made the following recommendation: "That a formal academic department to be known as the W.E.B. Debois Department of Afro-American Studies be established at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

"This department will offer a undergraduate major in Afro-American Studies as well as courses of studies essential to non-majors intending to play a role in the Black community.

It is our view that detailed and specific requirements of the department and the structure of the program should be left to the department after it has been established. This is not all of the proposal that was submitted for a Black Studies Dept., but a short part of the proposal."

The Afro-Am. Studies Committee at that time was:

Michael Thewell, Dept. of English
Roslyn Walker, Art Dept.
Sidney Kaplan, Dept. of English
Williams J. Wilson, Sociology Dept.
Bernard Bell, Dept. of English
Ester Terry, Dept. of English, Black Repertory Theater
Ben Wambari, Linguistics Dept.
Cass Turner, Asst. Director of C.E.E.B.S.
Visiting Lecturers:
Cherif Guellal
Playthell Benjamin
Ivanhoe Donaldson
Students:
Robyn Chandler 72
Stephan Bowden 72
Steve Moore 72
Charlton E. Brown 72
Rockwood Green 72
Nate Sims Doctoral Student

Feb. 19, 1970 — Members of the five-college black community turned Amherst College's Frost Library into Malcolm X Memorial Library as they seized four campus buildings Wednesday: UMass, Amherst, Smith, and Mt. Holyoke. Each of the four colleges were reportedly issued specific demands.

Statement of Issues

1) "To demonstrate to the five-college establishment that the Black Students Community will in the future be acting in a unified manner on all issues affecting any black person in the Five Colleges;

2) To articulate once more the need and grievances of that part of the black community which is located at the University of Massachusetts. We demand immediate acceptance and implementation of the proposal for an Afro-American Studies Department which is pending action by the University. There can be no qualifications for further delay.

"We further demand the immediate establishment of a cultural center to serve the needs of the Black Community. Negotiations on this question have been dragging on since 1968. We will accept Mill's House for this purpose.

We also demand that the University double its commitment to the C.C.E.B.S. Program. We call on the administration and Trustees of the University to double the enrollment of Black Students at the University for the 1971 school year. Even with this action the black student representation at the University will be disproportionately small as a consequence of the history of exclusion of Black's from that institution."

Look for Part II in next Friday's Collegian.

SKI SPAIN
Earn 2 credits during intersession
Call 5-2801

ADVERTISE FREE
Western Massachusetts
Super Ad List
FAIR EXCHANGE
A New Ad Weekly
Articles For Sale by Private Owners
10 per cent of Advertised Price only IF and WHEN you sell
10,000 ACTIVE Buyers
NO DEALER ADS
SPECIAL 2 WEEK OFFER
No Commission Charge 25 word limit —
Ads must be received before Mon. noon, Nov. 19
FAIR EXCHANGE
P.O. Box J
N. Amherst, Mass. 01059
CALL 256-0236
Clip and Mail

were into...
CUFFED BAGGIE JEANS
...high waisted
WEAR HOUSE
good until nov. 16
clip coupon for $3.00 OFF on pair of baggie jeans

NOTICE
CAMERAS
you name it we'll get it
This week's special
CX 126 20 exposures
CX 135 20 exposures
only $1.20
Cut out this ad and bring it to Lang's Photo
460 West St.
253-3148
Amherst

"BIG SCREAMIN' McGREW"
fri. + sat.
bluewall
9pm-1am

House Votes To Increase Social Security Monies

By CARL C. CRAFT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House voted Thursdav to give $2.4 billion more to the 30 million Social Security recipients next year through a two-step, 11 percent benefit boost designed to offset the rise in living costs.

By 391 to 20, the House passed the Social Security and welfare legislation and sent it to the Senate where the Finance Committee already has agreed in principle to similar terms.

Financing would come from expanding the taxable wage base from $10,800 to $13,200. This would mean a worker and his boss who each paid a top $631 in Social Security taxes this year would each pay $772 next year, a 22 percent hike in the maximum levy.

The legislation would provide benefit boosts of 7 percent starting with next April's checks followed by a 4 percent increase beginning in July's checks.

Thereafter, cost-of-living raises in benefits would come automatically each June.

The revisions would mean the average old-age benefit for a single recipient would rise from the present $167 a month to $178 in April and $186 in July, while the benefit for an aged couple would go from $277 at present to $96 in April and $310 in July.

The legislation would replace a 5.9 percent benefit hike, approved last July, which is due to take effect next June. That boost had been planned as advance payment of part of the automatic raise currently set for January 1975.

The measure also provides for a boost in welfare payments to several million poor aged, blind and crippled people under the nation's new so-called Supplemental Security Income program next year.

Present law calls for this new federally administered program to take over most of the responsibility for the former system of federal-state aid for such needy persons. The current law would provide monthly benefits of $130 a person and $195 a couple beginning in January and increasing in July to $140 and $210.

The House-passed legislation would put the benefits at $140 and $210 in January and at $146 and $219 beginning in July.

The Senate Finance Committee, meantime, has agreed in principle on terms close to those approved by the House.

Fuel Cuts Slow Transport

By BOB MONROE
Associated Press Writer

Fuel allocations are beginning to pinch public transportation in several of the nation's cities, and more transit agencies expect cuts in December unless they get additional supplies.

The shortage is forcing some companies to search for alternate sources of fuel supply, often at higher prices, and to develop contingency plans for service cuts.

"The irony of this is if we're going to have gasoline rationing, and public transportation is cut back, what are people going to do," asked Forrest I. Neal, presiding officer of the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority.

The MBTA, which operates buses, subways and trolleys in the Boston area, says it will start cutting service Dec. 1 if it doesn't find new sources of fuel.

In Miami, Flâ., four bus routes will be eliminated starting Saturday and the system is suspending operations between 1 a.m. and 3 a.m.

The city-owned Lincoln Transit System in Nebraska will cut back service 40 per cent Sunday to match a 40 per cent reduction in its diesel fuel allocation.

Two administration officials in Washington gave slightly different views of the fuel prospects for public transportation.

安城中國飯店
AMHERST CHINESE FOOD
62 Main St., Amherst
Tel. 253-7835
EAT IN OR TAKE-OUT
LUNCH SPECIALS 99c & up

SPIRIT
HAUS
Wines & Beers
OPEN 'TIL 11:00 p.m.
360 College St.
Amherst, Mass.
253-5384

In The Nation

Watergate Surges On

Illegal Contributions

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The former head of American Airlines said Thursday he gave $55,000 in corporate funds to President Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign because he was afraid not to.

George A. Spater, who retired as board chairman and chief executive officer of the airline shortly after disclosing the illegal contribution, told the Senate Watergate committee that Herbert W. Kalmbach asked him in late 1971 for $100,000 and said $100,000 contributors "would be considered in a special class."

At the time, Spater noted, Kalmbach was the President's personal attorney and represented United Air Lines, American's chief competitor and strongest opponent of a merger between American and Western Airlines. Such airline mergers must be approved by the President, whose decision is not subject to court review.

"I think I was motivated by a host of fears," Spater said. "You just don't know what's going to happen to you...sometimes the fear of the unknown is greater than the fear of what you know."

Nixon turned down the merger proposal on the recommendation of the Civil Aeronautics Board several months after Spater gave $75,000 in cash to Nixon's re-election committee. Of that total, $55,000 was the illegal money from corporate funds and the remaining $20,000 came from a "friend of mine," Spater said. He did not identify the contributor.

Spater said a 60-year-old law against corporate campaign contributions had never been enforced before this year.

Sen Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., asked him if it wasn't customary for corporate executives to be solicited for large contributions in presidential election years.

The former airline chief replied that the Nixon campaign in 1972 was unique "because of the individual who made the solicitation and the amount involved."

Spater said "it never entered my mind" that Kalmbach was asking for personal funds "because I didn't have that kind of money." But he added the fund raiser never suggested he use corporate funds or do anything illegal.

The airlines, Spater noted, are strictly regulated by the government. The present fun-raising system "places unfair pressures on candidates and corporate executives," he added, because the executives "live in fear of being placed at a competitive disadvantage if they don't contribute."

Nixon Counter-attacks

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Nixon pushed his Watergate counter-attack in public and private Thursday and drew standing cheers from his largest audience in three months when he vowed anew to remain in office.

Before an overflow crowd of several thousand at the National Association of Realtors convention, Nixon accentuated the happy developments of the year, from his standpoint, and soft-pedaled discussion of the Watergate scandals, which he referred to as "the problem of the campaign of 1972."

Nixon described his election victory last year as a mandate to end the Vietnam war, pursue a permanent peace, build a safe and beautiful country and achieve "a new prosperity without war and without unacceptable inflation."

"I am not going to walk away until I get that job done," he said.

The President appeared before the realtors between a marathon series of private huddles with members of Congress, most of them Republicans.

At these week-long sessions, most participants from Congress have emerged to report Nixon is determined to make a full disclosure in meeting headon Watergate-related accusations aimed at him and his administration.

McCloskey, who challenged Nixon for the 1972 GOP presidential nomination as an opponent of the Vietnam war, said the President referred to his decision to make available selected tapes of conversations "as a one-shot thin," and added, "I think the President still does not realize that there's duty on his part to make a full disclosure."

Deputy White House Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren, asked if Nixon planned to place limitations on the materials he will make available to the special Watergate prosecutor, said the President will cooperate to the fullest extent but retains a firmly held conviction that he must defend the principle of presidential confidentiality.

Following Nixon's breakfast meeting Thursday with 78 House Republicans, however, Rep. Paul McClosky of California told reporters: "I don't think any of us learned anything new... It's going to be a continuing battle to get the truth."

The Marx Brothers
in HORSEFEATHERS
Friday, November 16
7:00, 8:15, 9:30
& 10:45
Thompson 104
50¢

VASIL
the only way to say fashion
3 doors from the "PUB"

MOVIE CALENDAR

Sunday, Nov. 18
"PORTNOY'S COMPLAINT"
7 & 9:30 S.U.B. 75¢

Thursday, Nov. 29
"SACCO and VANZETTI"
7 & 9:30 S.U.B. 75¢

Sunday, Dec. 2
"MALCOLM X"
7 & 9:00 S.U.B. 75¢

top of the campus restaurant
featuring
"JIMMY"
from 9 p.m. - 1 a.m.
seating for
cocktails - 9:30 p.m.
FINE FOOD IN AN ATMOSPHERE OF RELAXED DINING ENTERTAINMENT FRIDAYS AND SATURDAYS
BEST VIEW OF AMHERST
DISCOUNTS FOR STUDENTS AND THEIR GUESTS
PHONE [illegible] FOR RESERVATIONS

(AP Photo)

(AP) — U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, left, talks with Japanese Foreign Minister Masayoshi Ohira as he arrives at the Tokyo International Airport from Peking Wednesday.

Kissinger, Tanaka Talk; Next Stop: S. Korea

By JOHN RODERICK
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (AP) — After conferring with Japanese leaders on their country's critical oil problem, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger heads to South Korea Friday on the final stop of his trouble-shooting mission to the Middle East and Asia.

Kissinger was expected to give South Korean President Chung Hee Park renewed assurances of U.S. support for the South Korean position in the U. N. debate on Korea.

The United Nations is debating whether to admit North and South Korea as individual members or as a single federated delegation. Park favors the first motion, the Communists the second.

Kissinger was also expected to promise that the United States would keep the remaining American military division in South Korea despite demands for withdrawal by China and North Korea.

In two days of talks with Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka and other leaders, Kissinger was unable to dispel anxieties over Japan's economic future in the wake of severe Arab cutbacks of oil products.

Tanaka had hoped that Kissinger could give him assurances that a firm Middle East peace, accompanied by an end to the Arab oil squeeze, could be realized before the cold weather of winter.

Kissinger, however, could only offer hope that the oil problem would be resolved as political and military differences in the Middle East are settled, a State Department spokesman said.

Satisfy your basic urges

YOU'LL RAVISH our PIZZAS & SUBS
THE HUNGRY U 103 N. PLEASANT ST.

And The World

In The Middle East

POW's Come Home

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Prisoners of war came home to Israel and Egypt yesterday.

Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan, on hand to welcome returnees to Tel Aviv, declared: "At last we have arranged things by talks, like human beings, instead of by tank fire and exploding grenades."

The first Red Cross planes carried wounded prisoners, some walking and some on stretchers. The International Red Cross said it expected the full exchange to take about a week.

In Cairo informants reported a major shakeup in the Egyptian military high command following Israel's lightning break through Egypt's Suez line in the last 10 days of the October war.

They said the military calamity, which left the Egyptian 3rd Army cut off in the Sinai Desert, had resulted in the firing of at least one army chief and creation of a new field command. Observers foresaw the possibility of court-martial trials in the wake of the failure to follow up an initial Egyptian success.

The wrangling in Cairo, hidden from the public and officially unconfirmed, is an Egyptian counterpart to complaints in Israel that the Israeli armed forces were unprepared for the Oct. 6 attack that opened the war.

As part of the POW exchange Israel agreed to turn over to U. N. forces its control of the highway from Cairo to Suez. This gives Egypt access to the city of Suez and the isolated 3rd Army without going through Israeli controls for the first time since final stages of the October war.

The deal, worked out by Egyptian and Israeli generals under the agreement sponsored by U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, firmed the cease-fire on the Suez front.

SKI SPAIN
Earn 2 credits during intersession
Call 5-2801

Ford Denies Back-Scratch

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President-designate Gerald R. Ford testified Thursday that he and two other congressmen did not offer to help millionaire Louis Wolfson with his legal problems if he would help their effort to impeach Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas.

Ford testified at his House confirmation hearing that a lawyer working for the congressmen, Benton L. Becker, offered on his own to help the financier. But Ford said the congressmen did not.

"We never offered any such action," Ford testified under oath.

The issue was raised by Rep. Jerome R. Waldie, D-Calif., who read a file of letters on the offer.

Waldie told newsmen outside the House Judiciary Committee hearing, "The inference is that Becker offered the influence of the congressmen he represented."

In a letter dated Sept. 3, 1970, Becker told Wolfson's lawyer, William O. Bittman, that Ford and the other two congressmen were looking into Justice Douglas' dealings with Albert Parvin. Becker said it was believed that a conversation with Wolfson "could shed light upon the inner workings of the Parvin Dohrman Co."

Becker concluded the letter by saying, "I am personally sympathetic to your client's present plight and would be anxious to assist him in any way available to me."

Do You Eff Oh?
If you do . . .
dvp presents
Hayden Hewes
Founder of International UFO Bureau Inc., author . . . . and knows a lot about UFO's. speaking on:
UFO's
S.U.B. 8:00 p.m.
Fri. Nov. 16

UMass Police
New Emergency
Number
5-3111

99¢ STUDENT SPECIAL
Kentucky Fried Chicken
Rt. 9 Hadley

TONITE!
"Little Big Man"
with
DUSTIN HOFFMAN
Fri., Nov. 16 Mahar Aud.
6:30 9:00 4:30

Schultz Sees No Crisis

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)-When Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz disclosed strong objections to gasoline rationing, he also exposed some of the administration infighting and power struggles over energy policy.

He said some people were overreacting to the energy crisis. That if Americans acted intelligently, he said, they could avoid gasoline rationing.

Treasury sources said Shultz was concerned that some administration officials were making the shortage seem more serious than it is and were getting carried away with the idea of gasoline rationing, without giving adequate consideration to other alternatives.

But his statement conflicted with those of Interior Secretary Rogers, C.B. Morton, and White House energy adviser John Love, who were saying rationing was almost a certainty by the beginning of 1974.

"This Shultz' statement came as a real surprise," said one Treasury source. "That alone will put rationing back until spring at the earliest if it is needed at all."

There has been considerable struggling within the administration over who is going to run the energy program and how. The principals are Morton, Love, and Deputy Treasury Secretary William E. Simon.

Shultz said Tuesday he favors price increases as the classic solution to controlling demands for gasoline, with rationing to be used only as "an absolute last resort."

Proposals are being developed within the Treasury for a 30-cent increase in the federal tax on gasoline, which would boost prices per gallon to about the 75- to 80-cent level, depending on the grade of gasoline.

Consideration is being given to reducing taxes in other areas, such as for telephone service, so that there will be a trade-off of the tax burden.

There might also be provision for exemptions or tax refunds for persons for whom gasoline is essential in their work, such as taxi drivers.

Treasury economists also are giving study to various rationing proposals, as are analysts from other agencies, but none of these plans has reached the upper echelons of the administration where the decisions will be made.

Shultz said: "I'm one of those who long sought to convince people that we have a major energy problem. It's been hard to wake people up to it."

But now, he complained, people are over-reacting and "scared out of their wits," and strongly indicated he felt the support of other administration spokesmen for gasoline rationing was an example of this.

Chairman Herbert F. Stein of the Council of Economic Advisers followed a day later by saying he thought the administration would opt for tax increases on gasoline, rather than rationing.

Air Travel To Continue

By DAVID BURKE
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Flight cutbacks and a major strike are likely to make air travel more inconvenient this Thanksgiving and Christmas, but major airlines say they expect to get all their customers where they want to go for the holidays.

"The air carriers will be able to accommodate all holiday travellers, but maybe not in the manner they would like," said a spokesman for the Civil Aeronautics Board.

"It's going to be more difficult to get a nonstop flight this year, and people may have to take connecting flights and be flexible about when they want to fly."

Because of the energy squeeze, airlines have been cutting back on flights to stay within their fuel allotments.

Further pressure on the airline system is coming from the flight attendants' strike at Trans World Airlines, which has shut down the nation's second-largest carrier since Nov. 5.

Eastern Airlines is making flight cutbacks in the early part of November, when traffic is light, so there will be enough fuel to accommodate traffic during the peak Thanksgiving period, a spokesman said.

"As of now, we have been able to accommodate everybody who has had a flight canceled in November," an Eastern spokesman said. December cutbacks have not yet been announced, but they may be more drastic, he said.

"Bookings are running heavy for the Thanksgiving period, and we will not be able to add as many special flights this year as in the past for Christmas and Thanksgiving," said a spokesman for Braniff Airways.

Senate Defeats Gas Rationing Move

By DAVID C. MARTIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Thursday defeated a Democratic move to require President Nixon to order gas rationing by Jan. 15 and then adopted an amendment its sponsor said could slow clean air efforts by two years.

The clean air amendment to emergency energy legislation, would allow temporary suspension of emission standards in order to permit the burning of dirtier fuels.

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, the sponsor, said it would "assure minimum disruption of air quality programs," but acknowledged that it could "in some instances delay the achievement of the emission reduction goals of the Clean Air Act by two years." It passed overwhelmingly.

The emission standards suspension is one of several powers Nixon says he needs to meet the energy crisis.

A long list of amendments remain to be considered before action on the emergency energy bill can be completed.

Many of the amendments have been cleared by Interior Committee chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., the floor manager of the bill. But he was vowed to fight other amendments which he said would turn the bill into "a Christmas tree."

The move requiring Nixon to order gas rationing was beated 48-40.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., has offered an anti-busing amendment which he says would result in considerable savings of fuel and Sen. James L. Buckley, Ind.-N.Y., has introduced a measure to abolish wage and price controls.

The Democrats had hoped to push the bill through in one day, but Majority Leader Mike Mansfield now says it will be at least Friday before it comes to a vote. Sen. Paul J. Fannin, R-Ariz., said it would be "ludicrous" for the Senate to rush itself when the House, which must approve similar legislation before it can become law, is scheduled to start a 10-day Thanksgiving recess.

The gasoline rationing amendment offered by Sen. Floyd K. Haskell, D-Colo., was defeated by a combination of 36 Republicans and 12 Democrats who agreed with Fannin that it is too early to be sure that gasoline rationing is inevitable.

As the energy bill now reads, the President retains the ultimate authority to decide whether rationing of any scarce fuel is needed — a step he has said would be taken only as a last resort.

— OPENED TO STANDING ROOM ONLY IN NEW YORK —
"A NATIONAL TRAUMA HAS BECOME A THRILLER
A cool, skillful argument for conspiracy. Those with an affection for suspense can enjoy the build-up of the plotting."
The New York Times
"WILL HIT YOU WITH THE IMPACT OF a 6.5mm BULLET!"
Group W Radio
PREMIERE AREA SHOWING
Was President Kennedy's Assasination An . . .
EXECUTIVE ACTION
7:15 & 9:00

HELD OVER
"Last Tango in Paris is a genuine masterpiece of staggering proportions."
—Edward Behr, Newsweek
Marlon Brando Last Tango in Paris
United Artists
7:15 & 9:45

Campus Cinemas
256-6411
AMHERST-HADLEY LINE
DOLLAR NITES!
MON. & TUES
ADMISSION $1.00

"Best American movie of the year."
OR
"A vicious right-wing fable."
-New York Times
?
Audiences are standing up and applauding . . . shouldn't you find out why?
WALKING TALL
7:15 & 9:30

Celebrate Thanksgiving
at the
TOP OF THE CAMPUS
featuring reservations 549-6000
Tomato Juice or Fruit Cup
or Corn Chowder
Whipped Potato
Butternut Squash
Tossed Salad w/choice of dressing
Prime Rib au jus $4.95
Roast Turkey w/Sage Dressing $4.45
Baked Stuffed Shrimp $4.95
Cranberry Nut Bread
Butterflake Rolls
Pumpkin or Mince Pie
or Ice Cream or Hot Apple Pie
Coffee, Tea, Milk
hours 2-6 p.m.
children under 12
$2.75

The un-dormitories.
Great off-campus living—indoors and out—at either of two modern apartment complexes, only minutes away by car or bike from Amherst College, downtown Amherst or UMass. Now accepting applications for September.

Brittany Manor
AMHERST
- courtesy bus to UMass and town
- 1, 2, 3 bedrm apts.
- heat & air conditioning
- wall-to-wall carpeting
- applianced kitchens
- master TV antenna
- laundry facilities
- parking, cars & bikes
- 2 swimming pools with sundecks
- 2 pro tennis courts
- lawns for softball, football, badminton

RENT: $200/MONTH
(utilities included)
Directions: East Dudly Rd. oppos. Grist Mill off Rte. 116

Mount Sugarloaf
SUNDERLAND
- 2-bedrm apts.
- heat & air conditioning
- roomy closets, storage
- wall-to-wall carpeting
- master TV antenna
- modern kitchens
- self-cleaning ovens
- electric ranges
- stainless-steel sinks
- dishwashers/disposals
- 2-door refrigerators
- laundry facilities
- swimming pool

No Lease Required
RENT: FROM $185
CALL 413-256-8534
Directions: On Route 47.

Proposed-Power Reduction, Gas Rationing

Governors Predict Winter Hardships

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP)-Power reduction, gasoline rationing and billboard blackouts were proposed by New England governors Thursday as ways of cutting the region's energy consumption by 15 per cent.

Even if there is cooperation with voluntary cutbacks, however, the governors predicted hardship this winter. They predicted shortages could be as high as 20 per cent.

"I wouldn't be surprised if schools were closed for long periods of time," said Gov. Kenneth Curtis of Maine. "Some industries may close. We may even have a lot of families living in armories for a short period of time."

The governors, who attended a joint meeting of the New England Council, the New England Regional Commission and the New England Governors Conference, passed a resolution that urged:

-Adoption of daylight savings time.

-Nation-wide adoption of 50 mile an hour speed limits.

-Reduction of voltage by electric utilities by five per cent during the peak hours between 4 and 8 p.m.

-Shutting down elevators and turning off office equipment during peak hours.

-Eliminating all excessive outdoor decorative and advertising lighting.

-Reducing use of home appliances, such as washers and dryers, during the peak period.

-Conversion from oil to coal use.

-If gasoline rationing is necessary, implement it as early as possible to avoid hording.

-Encouraging car pooling and use of public transportation.

The sole dissenter to the resolution was Gov. Meldrim Thomson of New Hampshire, who objected to continued enforcement of environmental controls.

"I did not think the resolution went far enough," Thomson said. "We stress unduly the need of maintaining environmental restrictions we've had in the past. We're in the present situation, because we've gone too far in this area."

However, Gov. Thomas Salmon of Vermont said, "New England is not about to throw in the towel on environmental sanity."

The governors conceded that the conservation won't work unless people are convinced to cooperate voluntarily.

"We've got to develop an Apollo-like understanding among our people that this is a damned serious crisis," said Salmon.

Gov. Francis Sargent said more stringent measure might be considered later.

"Each day that goes by, we're going to learn" he said. "The whole question of a 40-hour, four-day work week should be explored."

Officials of the New England Council were also pessimistic about the energy outlook.

Paul A. London, director of the council's economic research office in Washington, predicted that by next year, unemployment would reach seven per cent nationally and eight per cent in New England.

A smile for the audience is sprewn over the face of this exotic Indian dancer. No doubt, she as well as the audience is enjoying her work.

While Others Talk: Vermont Takes Action

By PATTI LEE
Associated Press Writer

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP) — Vermont has taken emergency steps to reduce its air pollution standards to allow industry to burn oil with a higher sulfur content.

Environmental Conservation Secretary Martin Johnson said the action Thursday was in response to a severe fuel shortage crisis.

"It's even worse than you're being told now," said Johnson.

Vermont has limited fuel oil to a sulfur content of 1.5 per cent. The immediate emergency order would increase the standard limitation to 2.5 per cent sulfur content by weight, with higher percentages reviewed on a special case basis.

Johnson said the 1.5 per cent fuel was the type used for home heating, and it was hoped the order would allow more of that fuel to go for residential uses, rather than industry.

He said those using fuel with the higher sulfur content would be required to notify the agency for monitoring purposes.

Billboard Blackout

BOSTON (AP) - The state Outdoor Advertising Board adopted emergency regulations Thursday banning the illumination of outdoor advertising signs.

The action was in response to Gov. Francis W. Sargent's energy conversation program announced Tuesday.

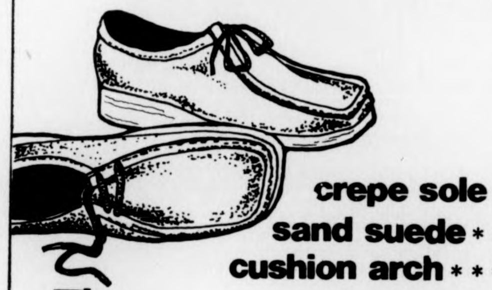
The regulations were effective immediately and will continue in effect until May 15.

They provide that "No sign, including the supporting structure, over which the board has jurisdiction shall be operated or illuminated in any manner which in any way utilizes electric, neon, gas, oil, flourescent or incandescent energy...."

The agency said it will permit the operation of signs which require energy to be seen during daylight hours if good cause can be shown. Signs exempted under this provision will be able to operate between sunrise and sunset.

The regulations apply mainly to billboards. On premise signs do not come under the control of the Outdoor Advertising Board.

IMMEDIATE ATTENTION TO EMERGENCY REPAIRS
CONTACT LENS SUPPLIES ALL KINDS
MATCHLESS SELECTION OF FASHION-RIGHT FRAMES
WE POLISH CONTACTS
Amherst Optical Shoppe
105 North Pleasant St., Amherst
Tel. 256-6403



"THE" comfort shoe
for men and women crepe sole * sand suede * *
cushion arch * * *
THE SHOE BIN
men women
$17.95, $15.95
187 n. pleasant st. amherst
© REFLECTION

Where Willard ended, BEN Begins
CCA Nov. 17th
7, 8:45, 10:15 p.m.
Admission 75¢

Congressman Robert Drinan
Speaking on
Will Detente Devastate Jews of Russia and Israel?
Bowker Aud. Sunday, Nov. 18
7:30 p.m.
Sponsored by Western Mass. Student Struggle
For Soviet Jewry and Hillel Foundation.

Goin down the river on an ole log raft, just the world and I, man o man what a life to live.

Revere Rides Again

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — Paul Revere Life Insurance Co. said today it is forming another company in Delaware because taxes in Massachusetts hinder its growth.

George L. Hogeman, president of the company, says the name of the Delaware company will be Paul Revere Protective Life Insurance Co.

He said the Massachusetts company will remain in Worcester except for a few operations such as its computer center. The company employs about 1,000 persons in the state.

GERMAN PARTS
WE'VE GOT A PART FOR YOU!
and if we don't, we'll get it.
AT
ALLIED MOTOR PARTS, INC.
BRITISH JAPANESE
319 MAIN ST., AMHERST
256-8341
256-8342
Chilton's Repair Manuals
AMERICAN PARTS

Nation's Capital An Unemployeds' Nightmare

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)-The young woman who comes to Washington with a college degree in her pocket and stars in her eyes is often in for a jolt when she hits the job market.

The capital, she finds, is a secretary-oriented city. Those well-paid, glamorous positions that offer an entry into Washington's social scene are scarce, even if she "knows somebody."

And if she goes to a private employment agency to find a non-secretarial position, often she has to pay the agency a fat fee to accept the job.

Take, for example, Kate Healy, a 24-year-old Bostonian who graduated from Hood College as an art major. When she came to the capital almost two years ago, she spent a week pounding the pavement for a job before she went to an employment agency.

The agency, Miss Healy said, found her a receptionist's job with a lobbyist for $6,100. The fee was about $500-more than her first month's salary.

After nine months, she was bored with the job and quit.

"I wasn't so much of a woman's libber until I got the secretary routine in Washington," she said. "There's a lot of male chauvinism here."

Finally, an employment agency found her a $9,500-a-year job as an assistant editor to a small publication. But to pay the $950 fee within three months, as required, she would have had to dip into her savings.

Seven months ago, Miss Healy found a job on her own as an operation planner for a communications company for $9,700-no fee.

Unlike 24 states, the District of Columbia has no law regulating these fees to applicants.

Labor Department reports show states with the strictest fee regulations for clerical jobs paying $499 a month or less are Alaska, Nevada, Massachusetts, New York, Oklahoma, South Dakota and Washington state. The maximum fees range from 20 to 60 per cent of the first month's salary.

Washington, D.C., employment agency managers say 10 per cent of the yearly salary-which often works out to 100 per cent of the first month's salary-is about normal for a clerical position. "I get arguments from my members that they can't operate on 10 per cent," one employment agency spokesman said.

Washington's biggest industry is the federal government. And federal law prohibits the government from hiring through private employment agencies unless there is a written request from the department or agency official.

"I do feel sorry for girls coming to Washington these days," said Myra Lenard, past president of the capital's personnel association. "Almost every girl who walks through that door has a college degree."

She said she can get women jobs in which the fee is paid by an employer. "But it's rare to get a congressman or a senator to pay a fee," she said.

Mrs. Lenard, who is president of the Bob Gray consultants employment agency, said that if a young woman is willing to use clerical skills-typing, shorthand and dictation-she can almost always find a job where the fee is employer-paid.

"Washington is filled with young women," Mrs. Lenard said, "but secretaries are at a premium...-nobody today wants to use secretarial skills. They want a title, to be recognized."

The U.MASS. Rugby Football Club presents
GONE ARE THE DAYS
"A Rollicking Comedy"
Student Union Ballroom
Saturday, November 17,
7:15 p.m. & 9:15 p.m.
ONLY 50¢ ONLY 50¢

THE LEMON TREE
$1.00 off with this AD a new sports-wear bow-tique.... one mile north of UMass (behind Amherst Post Office)
JEANS
INDIAN PRINTS
SWEATERS
ASSORTED TOPS
VELVETS

S.S. Round
Rose Redd

the ALL NEW T.O.C. SUNDAY BUFFET
The Steamship Round is returning to the Campus Center Sunday Buffet at no extra cost to you. As a matter of fact, U. Mass. Students with a valid student I.D. will receive a 10% discount on the $4.50 price.
Sunday 4 - 8 p.m.

Misquotes Spark Furor

AUGUST, Maine (AP) — The chairman of Maine's Board of Environmental Protection BEP gave a verbal whipping Thursday to a Pittston Co. attorney for "misleading remarks intended to erode the credibility of the board."

William R. Adams Jr. rebuked Loyall Sewall because of the Portland lawyer's statements about BEP which appeared in Bill Caldwell's Maine Sunday Telegram column last week.

The stern reprimand came at the resumption of hearings on Pittston's application to build a $350 million oil refinery in Eastport, a Washington County fishing community at the Maine-New Brunswick border.

Sewall claimed that he wasn't talking about Pittston "but in generalities" and that his remarks had been "taken out of context."

Adams admonished Sewall for publically complaining that the board is taking too much time to consider the Pittston proposal. The hearings started last April and aren't expected to be completed until December.

Specifically, he took issue with Sewall's remark that prefiling of testimony should be allowed.

"As things are today, we file 12 volumes; and then witnesses must read it all aloud to the board day after day," the lawyer was quoted as saying.

Adams said in fact the testimony can be pre-filed and he urged the New York-based company to do so.

"That this was, and is, board policy is clearly evidenced in other recent major hearings where the applicants took staff advice and substantially reduced the length of their presentations and the resulting length of the hearings," he said.

Adams noted that approval was given within 49 days of the initial hearing to Scott Paper Co.'s proposal to build a new sawmill-pulp plant comples in Hinckley on the Kennebec River.

By criticizing the board for the length of time involved in the hearings to date, Adams said Sewall "chose to ignore efforts by the board to hasten their completion.

"He seems to have failed to mention that at the conclusion of the last round of hearings, we scheduled 10 hearing dates in November and December," the BEP chairman continued.

"That amount to 10 out of the next 24 working days-scheduled well in advance and long before Mr. Sewall's visit to the newspaper."

Adams pointed out that several months ago, he had to admonish Pittston vice president A. F. Kaulakis for making statements to a reporter that questioned "the motives and integrity of the board." He indicated he wouldn't stand for further efforts of Pittston to influence the board through the news media.

Sewall said he was as surprised as Adams by the column.

"I thought I made it clear to Caldwell that I was not talking about Pittston...and not in any way expected to be quoted," he said.

Canada Requests List Of Priority Oil Users

WASHINGTON (AP) - Canada invited the United States Thursday to point out priority petroleum users, to whom Canada might channel its limited petroleum exports.

The U.S. government has, so far, avoided assigning priorities to specific energy users or categories in its initial energy-administration programs, except for its mandatory allocation of propane gas, a minor segment of total petroleum supply.

The Canadian embassy here, in a note to the U.S. State Department, indicated that Canada cannot grant all the pending applications for petroleum export licenses, especially for heavy fuel oil.

But it indicated Canada would welcome some guidance from the U.S. government, citing priority users who should be given preference by Canada's National Energy Board.

The embassy explained that Canadian exports of crude oil and petroleum products have been under licensing since early this year, well before the Arab oil cut-off, to protect Canada's own energy needs.

Canadian law permits exports of petroleum only if the Energy Board decides they are "surplus" to Canadian needs.

Even so, the embassy noted, Canada's petroleum exports to the United States will be higher than ever in 1973, currently running at about one million barrels a day, almost double the 1970 level.

But demand for exports has been greater than the available "surplus" and the Arab oil embargo against nations considered friendly to Israel has increased the problem, the embassy said.

"As a result," the embassy reported, "the National Energy Board has had to deny a high proportion of recent export applications" for heavy fuel oil, it termed "by far the most important oil product exported from Canada."

The embassy said Canada's National Energy Board "is well aware of the difficulties being experienced in the Detroit area.

"Meetings have been held with several of the parties most affected and the Board expects shortly to be able to license exports to some of them," it added.

It said recent talks between White House energy adviser John A. Love and Donald S. MacDonald, Canadian Minister of Energy, Mines and Resources, led to arrangements for further consultation.

"In such consultations," the embassy said, "the Canadian authorities look forward to receiving the views of the United States authorities as to the priority users to which available export supplies might be allocated."

Opening Saturday
GOTEN OF JAPAN
Steak House
Dining in the Tradition of Japanese Nobility
Rte. 116 Sunderland, Ma.

LOONEY TUNES

LOONEY TUNES is announcing its Christmas giveaway.
Thorens TD 160 C
complete Turntable
Just come in and fill out an entry blank and get a chance to win the incomparable Thorens TD 160 C. Drawing will be held Saturday, Dec. 15, 1973. TD160 C 64 East St., off Rt. 9, Hadley.

SKI SPAIN
Earn 2 credits during intersession
Call 5-2801

the Heavy Weights
FACES of EARTH

6 & 8oz of fill warm winter
SNORKEL PARKAS
$29.95 to $44.95
U S AIR FORCE QUALITY
next to the post office in amherst 9:30-6:30 fri till 9
© REFLECTIONS

HAVE a HAPPY

GET CAUGHT UP IN THE SPIRIT
THE ART SHOP
233 n.pleasant st.
in the carriage shops
HAS CHRISTMAS FIXIN'S
MAKE YOUR OWN X-MAS CARDS
we have ••• blank cards, in colors wood & linoleum blocks •• inks, paints
& pictures to adorn your personal cards
© REFLECTIONS

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF	Stephen G. Tripoli
MANAGING EDITOR	Mary T. Vorderer
BUSINESS MANAGER	Gilbert W. Fullerton
EXECUTIVE EDITOR	Jerald H. Lazar
NEWS EDITOR	Joan Fassnacht
SPORTS EDITOR	Stephen W. Crowe
PHOTO EDITOR	Alan H. Chapman
FINE ARTS EDITOR	Patrick Coffey
ADVERTISING MANAGER	Brent A. Wilkes
ASST. MANAGING EDITOR	Geoffrey L. Kurinsky
ASST. EXECUTIVE EDITOR	Dean P. Tucker
ASST. NEWS EDITOR	Sharon Hughes
ASST. SPORTS EDITOR	Steven DeCosta
ASST. PHOTO EDITOR	Stephen A. Ruggles
ASST. FINE ARTS EDITOR	Joyce Kosofsky

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR	Geoff Kurinsky
NIGHT STAFF	Marc Bouchard, Suzan Waihkonen, JoAnn Dominick
EDITORIAL	Liz Thompson
DARK ROOM	Kevin Mack, Emmett Shmarsow
SPORTS	Joe Martins
	Steve Sareceno
AD LAYOUT	Deena Strauss

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administrators read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons, and letters represent the personal views of the authors.

The Collegian subscribes to the Associated Press and the Liberation News Service. Publication of their material does not constitute endorsement.

Bob Estelle

Soviet Jewry

This is mainly addressed to those who support Russia, especially in terms of Detente.

Everyone knows that the Soviet Union is a communist government. But I really don't think that enough people around here realize that the Soviet Union is still number one in repressing dissent and emigration in their own country. There is an organization on campus that is making people aware of what is going on. This organization is the Western Mass. Student Struggle For Soviet Jewry.

Last week, Larry Cohen, a leader of this group, wrote a Letter to the Editor of the Collegian which protested the concert to be held next Monday night by the Leningrad Philharmonic Orchestra. The reason for this is that the Jewish population of Russia, which involves 3 million people, is being repressed. Mr. Cohen cited examples of this in his letter. He also stated that Russia mixes politics with culture. Those of you who remember the '72 Olympics, I think, would realize this.

The point I'm trying to bring across is that Russia is involved in mass genocide of Jewish people by trying to take away their identity. There are many Jews who want to leave Russia and go to Israel. They are not being permitted to do so. Instead, they end up in a slave labor camp in Siberia or going through a "mind conditioning" indoctrination. In Russia, the Jews can't practice their religion. In short, they are being totally suppressed and are being denied basic human rights.

But let's get back to the Student Struggle for Soviet Jewry. They know where it's at. And they have enough guts to do something about what they don't like. You have to admit that not too many people on campus are resisting the Detente policy our government is showing towards the Kremlin Criminals. These people are. They see that the Jewish population of Russia is being denied basic human rights. They also realize that one cannot appease the Russians into giving Jews (or any other minority group) basic rights. The only thing that their government will understand is force. Therefore, as Mr. Cohen explained to me, they are against Detente until the Soviet government allows the Jews to go to Israel.

Basically, I agree with them. Of course I go further that I don't believe in Detente for any reason. I say get tough with those Russians and stop all aid and trade with the Soviet Union and her allies until they grant minorities in their country the basic human God-given rights any person should not be denied.

On Sunday, November 18, Connressman Robert Drinan will speak in Bowker Auditorium on the topic, "Will Detente Devistate Soviet and Israeli Jewry?" The speech is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. While I do not think much of Drinan, Larry Cohen tells me that the fact that he is a United States Congressman will give them the attention they need. The Western Mass. Student Struggle for Soviet Jewry needs this to accomplish their goal of making the Russians allow the Jews in that coutnry to emigrate to Israel. It is a noble goal. In fact, I feel that it is so noble that I plan to be present outside the Cage next Monday night to join with this group in picketing the Leningrad Philharmonic Concert. Appeasement will not work. Let us go and force our government to force theirs into granting their citizens who may not like them the basic human rights. It's a step in the right direction. See you Monday night.

Bob Estelle is a Collegian Columnist.

Some Things Never Change

By BILL DENSMORE

MADISON, Wis. — This town is over 800 miles from Amherst. 7590 of the 36,000 students who attend the University of Wisconsin campus here come from Wisconsin — many from Milwaukee, 80 miles to the east.

One might reasonably assume that most of them have never been to the East Coast, let alone Massachusetts or Amherst. A majority have never heard of the UMass-Amherst, nor are they aware of the myriad concerns that determine the quality of life on that campus.

How is it then, that some of the same problems affecting Amherst, and reflected by The Collegian over the last year, are being played out on this campus as well?

The cosmic consciousness of all students?

Or do the gripes, mirrored from campus to campus, have an ongoing legitimacy that spurn thousands of miles, traverse the lives of millions of college-age adults and lodge in the very moral fiber of American society?

Far Fetched. Probably. But the petty little concerns of UMass may not seem so petty when held up to their Madison counterparts.

Let's run through some examples:

—The University of Wisconsin administration, in an attempt to streamline minority programs, is trying to close two ethnic centers for blacks and Spanish-speaking students. Citing "institutional racism" and "administrative aims of cultural mediocrity", minority groups have kept up a 24-hour vigil occupation of two buildings since September to stall their closing.

Compare. Twice in the last year and a half minority groups have closed buildings at the UMass School of Education, citing "institutional racism" among other reasons for their action.

—The head of the 97-man Univ. of Wisconsin police force thinks the most pressing problem for his force this fall is what to do about the increasing incidence of rape.

"It's a nightmare for the woman. And when she tries to go through the courts, that can be a nightmare too," says campus security chief Ralph E. Hanson.

What is Hanson's solution? Twofold. First he has detective Karen O'Donahue, one of several women in his department, going around to dorms at UWisconsin conducting presentations on rape and what to do about it.

Second, his department lends some of its cruisers during the evenings to a community-run "Women's Transit Authority", a free taxi service for University women run by women themselves.

Compare. UMass policewoman Diana White, a Simmons College graduate in sociology, and a special assistant to Security head David L. Johnston has been making rounds to UMass dorms for two semesters, giving similar sermons.

And Everywomans' Center at UMass, working with other women's groups got the free bus system in Amherst to begin night runs last spring to save potential rape victims from walking at night.

—University of Wisconsin teaching assistants (TA's) (graduate students who serve as paid instructors in lower level courses) are complaining of being underpaid and denied office space. They also claim there are too few of them.

Compare. A year ago TA's at UMass were concerned over the same problems — no office space, too little pay, lack of a substantive contract with the administration. And recently UMass French Dept. Scheduling officer David O'Connell told The Collegian that his department has to turn away students because "we need more teaching assistants."

—Tenure policies for professors at Madison preceeded and are much like their counterparts at UMass. A recent series of articles in a Milwaukee newspaper examined University of Wisconsin tenure and suggested that while the concept of a guaranteed lifetime job still carries weight among older professors it is being questioned by the younger, non-tenured ones.

Compare. A similar polarization of interest is evident at many private colleges in Massachusetts as they run lean on funds and low on teaching positions. The economics departments at UMass, Amherst and Smith Colleges have been racked by tenure disputes recently and the concept is central to discussions of faculty unionization at UMass.

Other cross-campus similarities seem evident. For instance there are the first murmurings of a move towards faculty collective bargaining at UWisconsin, which has traditionally retained a prestigeous faculty and paid them well. No more.

Students here have an abiding distrust of the administration, (personified by campus Chancellor Edwin Young) which equals and even surpasses the undercurrent of student helplessness and loss of individuality felt by UMies.

What do these similarities signal?

The most tempting analysis for one who has viewed the two campuses chattering over the same issues is a cynical one:

Some things never change.

There's more to it than that. Viewed as isolated developments, collective bargaining, minority awareness or tenure uncertainty may be set aside. Like concern over rape or distaste for the ruling powers they can be considered of no lasting importance.

But, viewed in parallel with similar developments at another campus a thousand miles away they signal fundamental change in the structure of the American university that college goers should assume active responsibility for guiding — if not for themselves then for future students.

Bill Densmore is a former Collegian reporter, now attending University of Wisconsin.

Editorial

Staff Meeting

Monday, 7 p.m.

Smokers Be Damned

By BOB ROSSMAN

There are a lot of inconsiderate people around, but the ones that are probably the worst offenders are cigarette smokers. Their attitude is what adds to the already obvious problem. Here you are in a crowded classroom, the NO SMOKING signs are glaring everyone right in the eyes, and the guy in the seat next to you whips out his trusty pack of Marlboros, and lights up. As the smoke blissfully rises up into your eyes and lungs, so does your aggravation with the entire situation. You don't say anything, but instead try to drop subtle hints that the smoke bothers you. Subtle hints, in this case, are things like coughing and hacking, having streams of tears running down your face, and waving frantically at every wisp of smoke headed in your direction. He finally realizes what's going on and blows the smoke in the other direction. Whew! But fifteen minutes later and out comes the pack for a return visit, and here we go again.

Finally the class is over, and it's off to the Bluewall for an afternoon drink with some friends. You find a nice cozy table with eleven people sitting around it. Unfortunately, four of them are wielding those monsterous little butts you just escaped from. Well, make it a quick drink and head back to the dorm.

Peace at last? You and your roommate are both in a relaxing mood, so you put on a couple of records and crawl into your favorite chair and get into some heavy reading (catching up with the adventures of Doonesbury). The door's open, so in walks Mary. Love talking to Mary. Frank hears voices eminating from your room, so he comes in. A nice friendly little group. The next one to join the group is Bill. Now, Bill don't, oh PLEASE DON'T, AW SHIT! He just lit up a cigarette. Bill sticks around for about three cigarettes worth, then leaves. The room smells like the aftermath of Hiroshima. Now we have to freeze OUR asses off to air out HIS smoke, and walk around wearing clothes that smell as moldy as his.

There is no escape. I have had only one teacher so far with the guts to not allow smoking in her classroom; a situation far less prevalent than one in which the teacher smokes. You go to a movie and always end up sitting next to the person who is out to set the record for the most cigarettes smoked during a movie on campus. You go to the dining commons or the Hatch to eat, and there's always someone who lights up halfway through your meal, enough to kill your appetite for the other half.

I guess I'm a hypocrite. More specifically, I am one of those inconsiderate bastards that this column is all about. I've noticed all these things, but until very recently none of them sunk in. Other things are sinking in, too. Things like hacking all day (especially wheezing for an hour when I get up) or running out of breath quickly in the middle of a mild workout. Or realizing that I'm hooked.

I want to quit smoking, but I'm scared. When I started smoking I weighed 265 pounds. I now weigh 193. I don't want to get fat again. I'm also scared stiff of the thought of losing the crutch I've had for so long. It's going to be tough, but I'm going to try. There are a lot of people in my situation, and a lot more in yours. If we can work together to alleviate this really miserable problem, this will be a much better place for us all to live.

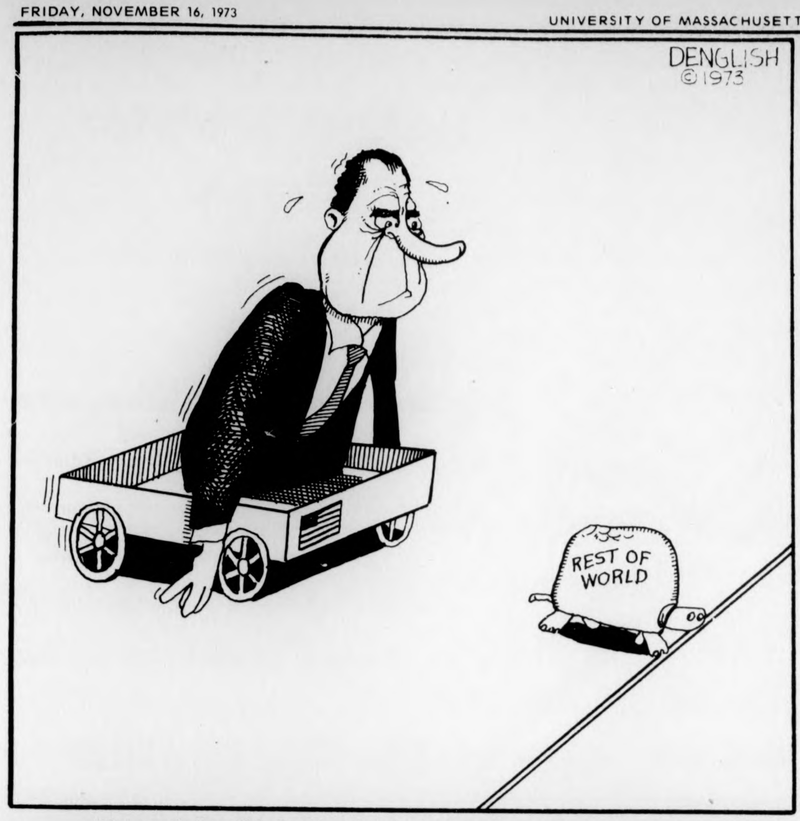
Bob Rossman is a Collegian Commentator.

Letters Policy

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian welcomes all letters to the editor. They must be signed, and include the author's address and phone number. Also, all letters must be typed, double-spaced, at sixty spaces per line, and no more than two pages.

Organizations may submit letters, but they must include a name and phone number for reference purposes.

All letters are subject to editing, for either content or space, according to the judgement of the editors. Due to space limitations, there is no guarantee that all letters received will be printed



"If you cut the legs off the President, America is going to lose." —President Nixon

Letters To The Editor

Reinstate OH Area Rovers

To The Editor:

In response to the recent Residential Area Security cutback, Orchard Hill Area Government has adopted the position that no action short of reinstatement of the Area rovers and allottment of additional 0-3 monies for Orchard Hill student security positions will be acceptable in rectifying this situation.

The apparently misguided priority of placing the enforcement of the new parking policy above student safety is intolerable. We cannot and will not live with this decision.

At a President's Council meeting earlier in the semester David Johnston stated that as Security Guards don't have "police powers" they probably wouldn't do very much in alleviating crime. I vigorously disagree. The "uniform" is in itself a significant psychological deterrent to crime. Furthermore, the very prescence of security guards promotes a sense of well-being and feeling of security among the students across campus.

Our soured perceptions are reinforced when we consider the fact that there are anywhere from two to three nighttime security guards on Whitmore alone, and until the recent addition of guards in Southwest, there were only six across campus for the security of more than 10,000 residents.

The whole situation reeks of improperly ranked priorities and we will not be satisfied until this is corrected. Either the security guards must be taken off ticketing and put back in the residential areas, or additional security guards, both professional and student, should be hired.

Immediate action on this matter should be taken by the Department of Security and the Office of Student Affairs.

Cindy McGrath
President, Orchard Hill Area Government

Jeff Long
Secretary,
Orchard Hill Area Gov't.

Credentials Not Accepted

To The Editor:

Last weekend I had a visitor from out-of-state; Pennsylvania to be exact. She had heard about the Blue Wall from some friends of hers at Emple University. So, we decided to have a drink there Saturday night. But, we could not get in.

I have a T.O.C. card, so I had no trouble getting in. However, the only identification they would accept from her was a birth certificate or a driver's license.

Unfortunately, my friend does not carry around a birth certificate, nor does she drive. She lives in Philadelphia where public transportation is more than adequate, she is scared of the responsibility that goes with a driver's license because she has read about and witnessed too many irresponsible drivers, and now with the energy crisis and rationing of gasoline, she feels that a car just does not make sense.

Of course, we were still faced with the problem of proving her age. But we thought it would not be difficult because she does have a Pennsylvania state issued Voter's Registration card which: a) has her age and birth date, and b) can only be issued if you are 18 or older — it is a federal and state law that one has to be 18 to vote.

The one problem was that the card did not have her picture. But she did have a student ID that, like the UMass ID's, had her picture. What more did we need?

Well, for some reason, beyond our comprehension, the Blue Wall would not accept her credentials. I strongly feel that someone ought to review the rules because my friend could prove her age without a driver's license. In times when cars are not so popular, especially in big cities, and as a result people are not as anxious to get licenses, the T.O.C. should accept other forms of identification. If a state issued voter's registration is not enough, something is wrong, seriously wrong.

Frances Brock

Disregard For Sensitivities

To The Editor:

The tragic incidents of the past few days have touched off extremely morbid, tastless discussions around the campus.

Perhaps there is a need for people to indulge, with glassy eyes and foaming mouths, in verbal horror shows. But I feel nothing but despair for the human race if that is so. A manifestation of horror is probably natural, but the extremes to which college students (I am not familiar with other group reactions) gloat with flushed fascination upon the details of tragedy turns my stomach.

As a future journalist, I am sorry newspapers and the other forms of mass media often callously, unflinchingly present to the public the facts which are "necessary" for the maintenance of a free press and an accurate world picture. People cannot digest many stories with the same objectivity with which they are presented. If it is here, within the media, that the problem lies, I should not be aiming my criticism at its audience.

But, be it for whatever reason, the lack of attention towards and the disregard for very basic sensitivities is shocking.

I do not attempt to offer any solutions, but I feel it would be well for many students of "higher education" to examine some of their values and personal sensitivities before subjecting those who do not wish to be subjected to extended relations of: "The gore I have seen and heard tell of in my life".

Alison C. Simcox

Don't Ban Pleasures

To The Editor:

In reply to Kenneth J. Stuart's letter concerning the ban of recreational vehicles.

What Mr. Stuart's letter seems to imply is that recreational vehicles consume enough gas to cause him an inconvenience. This is a gross misconception. First of all most recreational vehicles get exceptional gas mileage. My trailbike gets over thirty miles to the gallon on the trail and since a full day of riding is rarely over fifty miles, two gallons of gas is sufficient for a day. Second is the number of these recreational vehicles. I would estimate that there is less than twenty-five trailbikes on this campus which is nothing compared to the number of cars on campus. So banning recreational vehicles does not save all that much gas.

Practical aspects aside, there is the social question. Is it justified to eliminate my pleasure just so you can travel fifteen m.p.h. faster? Who in society has the right to ask others to sacrifice their lifestyle in order to preserve yours? I could recommend that we ban skiing since most ski areas require a substantial drive to get to thus using up precious gas. But this would be ridiculous to suggest this since if a person is willing to buy the gas he has the right to do with it what he wants. If it does come down to where they ration gas everyone will have to sacrifice. Recreational vehicle owners, skiiers, and even Mr. Stuart — dread the thought.

Jim Pinsky
Pres. UMass Motorcycle Club

Unrealistic Attitudes

To The Editor:

I'd like to give my opinion on the letter by Jim Prelack and the article by Sherman Boyson printed in yesterday's Collegian.

Mr. Prelack said that "the person or persons responsible for that door being opened on the 14th floor" which contributed to a man's death incurred "a burden they must carry the rest of their lives...I pray for you." It doesn't seem to me that this is either a constructive or a realistic attitude. The person or persons didn't cause the death in the sense in which one man who pulls out a gun and shoots another, causes a death. It certainly doesn't seem to be cause for everlasting "anguish and guilt." The important thing is to be more careful in the future--not to spend your life or lives in saying, "If only..."

I have somewhat the same attitude to Mr. Boyson's article. He criticizes people for gathering to see Mr. Waddington's body, for speculating on the reason for his suicide,and for making jokes about it. Now most people consider death a great misfortune and also can't quite understand it. Aren't these sufficient reasons for wanting to see a person who thought death would be fortunate and for wanting to see the physical reality of that state which no one can really comprehend? I'm inclined of loyalty to life. People stop because they think: "Here is something important. I must stop and think about this self-inflicted death. Why would someone want to die? What is death?" This leads to discussion with their friends, the speculating on the reason for the suicide that Mr. Boyson overheard. As for the jokes, isn't humor a natural human device for detaching oneself from suffering, one's own or someone else's? A human being can't function unless he's able to focus on things other than the troubles of his fellow men or of himself at least part of the time. For you can't make things better unless you figure out how to and then focus on doing so.

I wanted to point these things out because I think perhaps people spend too much time condemning others, instead of working to understand them better. For if you consider a person's actions bad or unwise, the best (perhaps the only) way to get him to change is to show him now he's defeating his own ends. Both Mr. Prelack and Mr. Boyson seemed to want to generate compassion and to prevent future tragedies. I think this can best be done by promoting a realistic, creative attitude, rather than a condemnatory one.

Sincerely,
Laura Vitto

SW Environment

To The Editor:

Mr. Riley in his article entitled "SW Lifestyle Caused Tragic Death" has made some valid observations concerning student behavior and while I agree that many people should begin to grow up and assume responsibility for their actions, perhaps the thing which has been overlooked is the environment presented in Southwest. It seems that who ever planned the area forgot that people were going to live there and that a human atmosphere should be provided. In Southwest 5,500 people are packed into an extremely overcrowded environment, stacked up in towers, put into small rooms and overcrowded on floors which more resemble institutions than a living environment. It is my belief that cinder block and mechanical furniture do not provide a human living environment, but in fact much more is involved. Therefore, while I am not condoning student behavior, I think that a primary part of the problem lies in the environment presented by Southwest. Therefore, I think its time people opened there eyes to the problems and began thinking of ways to rectify them. To some extent I believe this has already begun, however it is obvious that the problems are far from solved.

Steven Dropkin
Assistant Head of Residence
Kennedy Middle

Third World Obscured

To The Editor:

There does exist on the University of Massachusetts Campus a Third World Community, which was very much alive, fibrant and active in the school year of 1972-1973. Upon close inspection of the University of Massachusetts Index Vol. 104, one would think that this Third World Community was only a obscured fixture.

As a student and a subsidizer of this document which will have some historical value in years to come, I would like to make the following observations and recommendations.

From the onset I will state that positive criticism produces progressive results. In the "31" photos in the first 222 pages, there are pictures depicting Third World people. But few are from the indigenous Third World University population.

What I ask for is a more expanded inter and outer reflection of this Third World Community. In my opinion too much space was alloted to vacuous materials such as empty beer bottles, chicken heads and eyeballs. There were a number of events that should have been recorded, such as, Area Government Colloquiums, Black Musician Conference and Students dealing with contemporary issues that effect their very lives. I would like to think that our stay at this Campus is a very serious four years.

In ten or twenty years from now or even a hundred, this is the way I feel the Third World Community should be seen. If for some reason this is not within the scope or philosophy of the Index, I for one would like to know for the future issues of the Index. If there is a need for substantial materials relating to the existence of Third World People in this University Community, I would suggest you contact the necessary organizations before going to press. I would not like to see a recurring issue like 1973 Vol. 104 Index.

Theresa Cooper

Hayden Hewes Speaks On UFO's

Tonight, at 8:00 in the Student Union Ballroom, the Distinguished Visitor's Program, as part of it's 'Ripley's Believe It Or Not' Series, presents Hayden Hewes who will be speaking on UFO's (Unidentified Flying Objects). This is the second lecture in the series with the third, John Wallace Spencer lecturing on "The Bermuda Triangle", on Monday evening.

Mr. Hewes organized the International UFO Bureau Inc. in 1957 to collect information on UFO's. Bureau investigations have been featured by all national networks, including two UFO specials for NBC "monitor" and a documentary UFO film produced by the French Broadcasting System.

At the present time, Mr. Hewes serves as a weekly columnist for the million circulation newspaper Midnight. He is also Midwest Editor for Beyond Reality magazine and U. S. Contributing Editor for the Canadian UFO Report magazine.

Become A Ski Instructor

By HARRY CHARYCH

How do you become a ski instructor? Until now, this has been a very difficult task, and many good skiers never had the opportunity to follow up and get into this field. This year the UMass Ski Club will hold a one credit ski instructors course that will be as complete as the best professional course in the country.

The course will be conducted by Hans Auer, Ski School Director of Berkshire East Ski Area. Hans is considered in professional circles as one of the finest ski technicians in the country and has years of experience in the training of ski instructors. He is certified in the Central and Eastern Division of the United States Ski Association, a member of the Professional Ski Instructors of America, and a graduate of the Austrian Ski Academy.

The course is open to all students and faculty of UMass and the other four colleges in the five college area. All participants must be able to ski parallel. There is a $10 fee ($15, for non-UMass Ski Club members) to cover the cost of instruction and lifts. The structure of the course will consist of three 2½ hour lectures and two full-day sessions on the slopes of Berkshire East. Registration and the first lecture will be on Monday, Nov. 19 at the Ski Club meeting in Mahar Aud. at 8:00 p.m. The next two lectures will be on Nov. 20 and Nov. 27, 7:30-10:00 p.m. (place to be announced). The two slope sessions will be on Saturday, Dec. 8 and Sunday, Dec. 16.

After the completion of this course, employment at the Berkshire East Ski School and acceptance for the Professional Ski Instructors Certification Program is possible.

Sunday Night Will Be "India Night" In CCA

The India Student Association of the University of Mass. will be presenting "India Night" on Sunday November 18, 1973 at 7:30 p.m. in the Campus Center Auditorium. The program, a traditional event, is sponsored by the university students and the Indian community of Amherst and the surrounding areas. The basic ideology of the program is to present the cultural image of India to the Amherst and nearby communities.

Admission is $1.00 per person and tickets are available at the Campus Center Concourse. For more information concerning this event, please contact Vijay Arora, Secretary of the India Association, at 5-0612.

Interested in Theater?

Roister Doister

MEETING

Sat., Nov. 17 2:00 p.m.

126 C.C.

Free Wine and Cheese

Willowbrook Gardens
Flowers for Thanksgiving
can now be ordered fresh & dried arrangements
Amherst Carriage Shops 549-1493

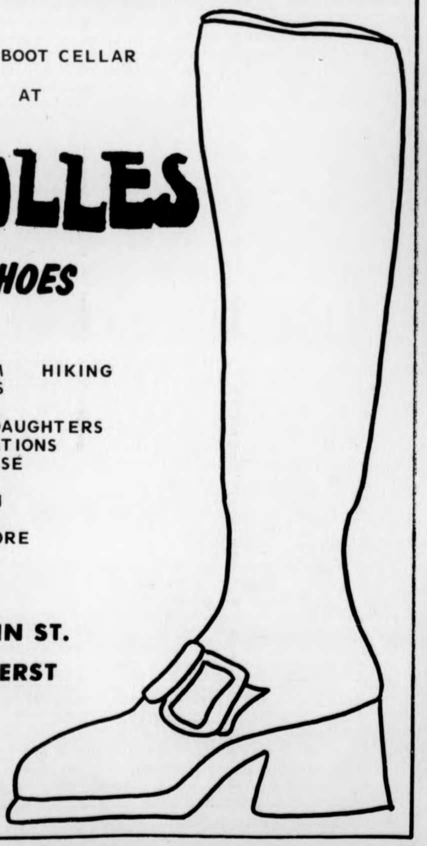
WANT TO BE A

SKI INSTRUCTOR

The U.MASS. Ski Club is offering a course for skiers who want to teach skiing.

— CREDIT — 1 P.E. Credit
— ABILITY — Consistent Parallel Skier
— INSTRUCTOR — Hans Aver, Director of Berkshire East Ski School
— FEE — $10.00 for Ski Club Members, $15.00 for Non-Members
— STRUCTURE — 3 1/2 hour lectures, 2 full day sessions on the slopes of Berkshire East

The first lecture will be held at the Ski Club meeting on Monday, Nov. 19th in Mahar at 8:00 p.m.



BOOTS FOR EITHER SEX

IN THE BOOT CELLAR AT

BOLLES SHOES

DUNHAM HIKING BOOTS
FRYE
OLOF DAUGHTERS
REVELATIONS
CONVERSE RICOLE
FASHION
SPEEN
AND MORE

8 MAIN ST.
AMHERST

UMASS CELEBRITY SERIES PRESENTS

DIRECT FROM THE SOVIET UNION · THE RETURN OF THE

LENINGRAD PHILHARMONIC

CURRY HICKS CAGE
Monday, November 19, 1973
8:00 P.M.
Presented by Univ. of Mass. Fine Arts Council
Tickets: UM A Students $3.00; Others $6.00
Ticket Office: 125 Herter Hall
Phone 545-0202

Campus Carousel

Love And False Teeth

By TONY GRANITE

(Editor's Note: This is the 100th turn of Campus Carousel, since Tony Granite contributed his first weekly column to MDC, September 1970.)

****

FALSE TEETH A DANGER TO LOVING is what the UWis-Milwaukee Post told its readers, recently. The editors featured this intelligence in a regular column headed, "Earth News."

"A leading British surgeon has advised couples to remove their false teeth before making love...says that violent exercise can cause people to swallow false teeth. They then become impacted in the larynx and to be removed require a delicate surgical operation."

Is no one really safe?

****

HEADLINE OF THE WEEK appears in the Clemson U. Tiger, over a story about an escort service formed at the University of Denver to protect women from rape: "Bod Squad to Protect Women."

****

INDEPENDENCE of the Indiana Daily Student means enough to the editors to pay for it. In a recent editorial, campusites were informed that the student newspaper will pay its own way to the events and activities they cover.

"By not accepting freebies, our readers will gain a further understanding of our efforts to cover events in a non-partisan fashion, free from all restraints or constraints."

****

INTERNALLY GRATEFUL is the punch line that was edited out of an item in last week's CC that destroyed the humor of "Kudos for Kops." So, we'll try again to bring the latest in campus graffiti.

In a letter to the editor of the USoFla Oracle, one Sharon L. Levine wrote about locking her keys inside her car and having the local gendarmes come to her rescue.

"Two officers spent at least a good hour trying to get into my car. They finally succeeded and I am internally grateful to them..."

So there.

Gov. Noel Rejects Thanksgiving Essay

Gov. Philip Noel of Rhode Island has rejected the winning essay in his Thanksgiving Day proclamation competition because it does not reflect his own views on the holiday.

A spokesman for the governor said Thursday he plans to write his own proclamation, ending a 25-year tradition in the state.

Michael Stanton, the governor's press secretary said Noel does not agree with a 17-year-old girl's contention that Thanksgiving if "a farce, little more than an outdated tradition no one has yet found the time to discard."

The author of the essay is Mary Moran, described by her high school principal as a "very quiet, Christian" girl who just won a $3,200 college scholarship. "She just wrote from the heart," said Sister Mary Jane, co-principal of Prout Memorial High School.

Stanton said Miss Moran did not want to talk about the governor's action. "She was distrubed in that people could not accept the truth."

The governor does not think Thanksgiving is a farce. "He is not struck by the 'absurdity' of Thanksgiving," Stanton said.

Staff Photo/Joe Martins

And '65 begat '67 and '67 begat '68 and it begat '69 and it begat twins-2 '70'...all in two hours!

Conte Recommends Four-Day Work Week

SOUTH DEERFIELD (AP) - Rep. Silvio O. Conte, R-Mass., recommended a 10-hour work day and a four-day work week Thursday as means of meeting energy shortages.

He urged members of the Franklin County Area Chamber of Commerce to take all steps possible to conserve fuel and told them he would support the construction of six Eastern Seaboard refineries and offshore oil exploration along the New England coast.

Conte's appearance here followed an address to a Hampshire College symposium on Congress and the energy crisis.

Speaking Wednesday night in Amherst, Conte accused President Nixon of withholding $23 million in congressionally authorized money for research into new energy sources.

He said Congress had allowed oil policy to slip into the hands of the executive branch, where four presidents shortsightedly allowed oil companies to receive special favors, including tax advantages and the oil import quota system.

"The result has been one of the greatest ripoffs in American history," Conte charged, accusing oil companies of overcharging the public by $100 billion over the past 15 years.

FIVE COLLEGE JANUARY 1974 FLIGHT

Boston-Paris January 5-26, 1974. Round-trip $175, Air France carrier. Contact: International Programs 239 Whitmore, University of Mass. 545-2710, payment deadline Nov. 30.

SHOWCASE CINEMAS 1·2·3·4·5
ROUTE 5 RIVERDALE RD.
WEST SPFLD. 24 HR. TEL. 733-5131
We Honor MASTER CHARGE

THE DON IS DEAD
Starts Fri. 7:10-9:30
Ends Thurs. - "O Lucky Man"
Wed., Mat. 2 - Eves. 7-9:45 R

WALTER MATTHAU
WHEN HE RUNS OUT OF DUMB LUCK, HE ALWAYS HAS GENIUS TO FALL BACK ON!
"CHARLEY VARRICK"
Wed. Mat. 2:00
Mon.-Thurs., Eve. 7:30-9:40
PG

STREISAND & REDFORD PG
THE WAY WE WERE
Mon.-Thur. 2:00 7:30-9:50

DONALD SUTHERLAND · ELLIOTT GOULD
PG M*A*S*H
Wed., Mat. 2:00
Mon.-Thurs., Eve. 7:00-9:20

WALKING TALL R
JOE DON BAKER
Wed., Mat. 2:00
Mon.-Thurs., Eve. 7:30-9:50

It's about the first time you fall in love.
Jeremy
Wed., Mat. 2:00
Mon.-Thurs., Eve.
PG 7:30-9:25

UMass. Third World Cultural Series Presents

THE KERALA KALAMANDALAM COMPANY

kathakali

The Sacred Dance Drama of Kerala

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1973—8:00 p.m.
BOWKER AUDITORIUM
Tickets $1.50 UM/A Students $3.00 Others
Telephone 545-0202
Sponsored by the Fine Arts Council

Notices

BAHA'I ASSOCIATION:
A meeting will be held in Cashin Lounge Sunday, 11-18 at 6 p.m. No meeting over Thanksgiving Weekend.

BELCHERTOWN WALKATHON:
Buses for walkers will leave from C.C. Bus circle at 7:30 a.m. Sat. 11-17. Buses will drop walkers off at different points on campus on return from Belchertown.

BELCHERTOWN VOLUNTEERS:
Bus to Belchertown will leave for the State School Sat. at 12:45 from Whitmore. Also don't forget Colloquia talk Sunday nite at 7:30 on 162 C.C. Representative from Mass. Assn. Retarded Citizens will speak.

BELCHERTOWN VOLUNTEERS:
Don't forget the Colloq. on Sunday night. 7:30 in 162 C.C. 546-6953.

BICYCLE CLUB:
There will be no meeting next week. Next meeting on Weds. 11-28.

BIKE TRAINING RIDE:
25 mile training ride will leave from front of S.U. 2 p.m. Sun. Call Mark 256-8723.

BOOK AND RECORD SALE:
E.A.M. is having a book sale to raise money for the Heart Fund. If you have any books or records to donate please bring them to E.A.M. 387 N. Pleasant St. or call 545-0845.

CATHOLIC COMMUNITY:
Get informed! Get involved! Come to a general meeting for the entire Catholic Community on Sunday at 8 p.m. in the Newman front lounge.

COMING OUT:
Consists of scenes about homosexual life, oppression, and liberation in this country. Among the writers and historical figures represented are: Walt Whitman, Gertrude Stein, Merle Miller and Kate Nillett.

CHRISTIANS:
You are all invited to family time for fun and fellowship with your brothers and sisters in Christ. Tonight 7 p.m. Colonial Lounge, S.U.

COFFEE HOUSE:
This Friday at Brooks House, from 8-12 p.m. Free refreshments. A great way to begin the weekend.

CONCERT COMM. MARSHALS:
Brief meeting for all Marshals on Mon. 11-19 at 7:00 in 168 C.C. It is important that everyone attend.

DANCE FREE:
Interested in improvisational dance? Come to the C.C. Fri. night at 8:30. Ask at information desk for Rm. no.

DID YOU KNOW THAT:
Economics 192A, Seminar — for Introductory Students should be Economics 192A, Seminar — Women in the Economy; Economics 203, Section 2 will meet TuTh 4:00-5:15 in Machmer E35.

FOOD DRIVE:
Nov. 16-18 for the needy of Springfield. Bring non-perishable items to Newman Center anytime this weekend.

INDIA NIGHT:
A variety show -- classical, folk dances, music and a lot more, plus Indian snacks at the end. Sunday 11-18 at 7:30 p.m. in C.C. Aud.

HATHAWAY SECURITY:
Due to processing problems, security checks won't be in until next Friday. If you really need the money before that see Jill Cochran in Student Activities.

MANAGER NEEDED:
Contact Coach Kidd, Boyden 222, 5-2341. Ice time; exotic trips; hard work.

MOVIE:
The Marx Brothers in "Horsefeathers". Tonight, Thompson 104 at 7:00, 8:15, 9:30 and 10:45. Come and laugh.

P.C. SOCIAL COMMITTEE:
Have a part in putting on some great events. Small concerts, Jazz, Blues, Comedy etc......Meeting on Sun. 11-18 at 7:30 p.m. 805-809 C.C. Old and new members welcome.

PEOPLE' MARKET:
Short meeting Monday night as usual. Volunteers and visitors welcome, in the Market 5:30.

PEOPLE'S MARKET:
Closes Tues., 5:30 for Thanksgiving Recess. No produce or other perishables received after Mon., so please shop early for the holiday.

ROISTER DOISTER:
Meeting Sat. 11-17 2:00 p.m. at 125 C.C. All interested in theater welcome. Free wine and cheese.

SAVE SOVIET JEWRY:
Congressman Robert Drinan to speak on "Will Detente Devastste Jews of Russia and Israel?" Bowker Aud. Sun. 11-18, 7:30 p.m.

S.A.W. IS OPEN:
Tu, W. Th 3-11 p.m., Sat. 9-5, Sun. 10-4.

THREE STOOGES:
Five films with the real Curly in the C.C. Aud. on 11-16 at 7, 9, 11 p.m.

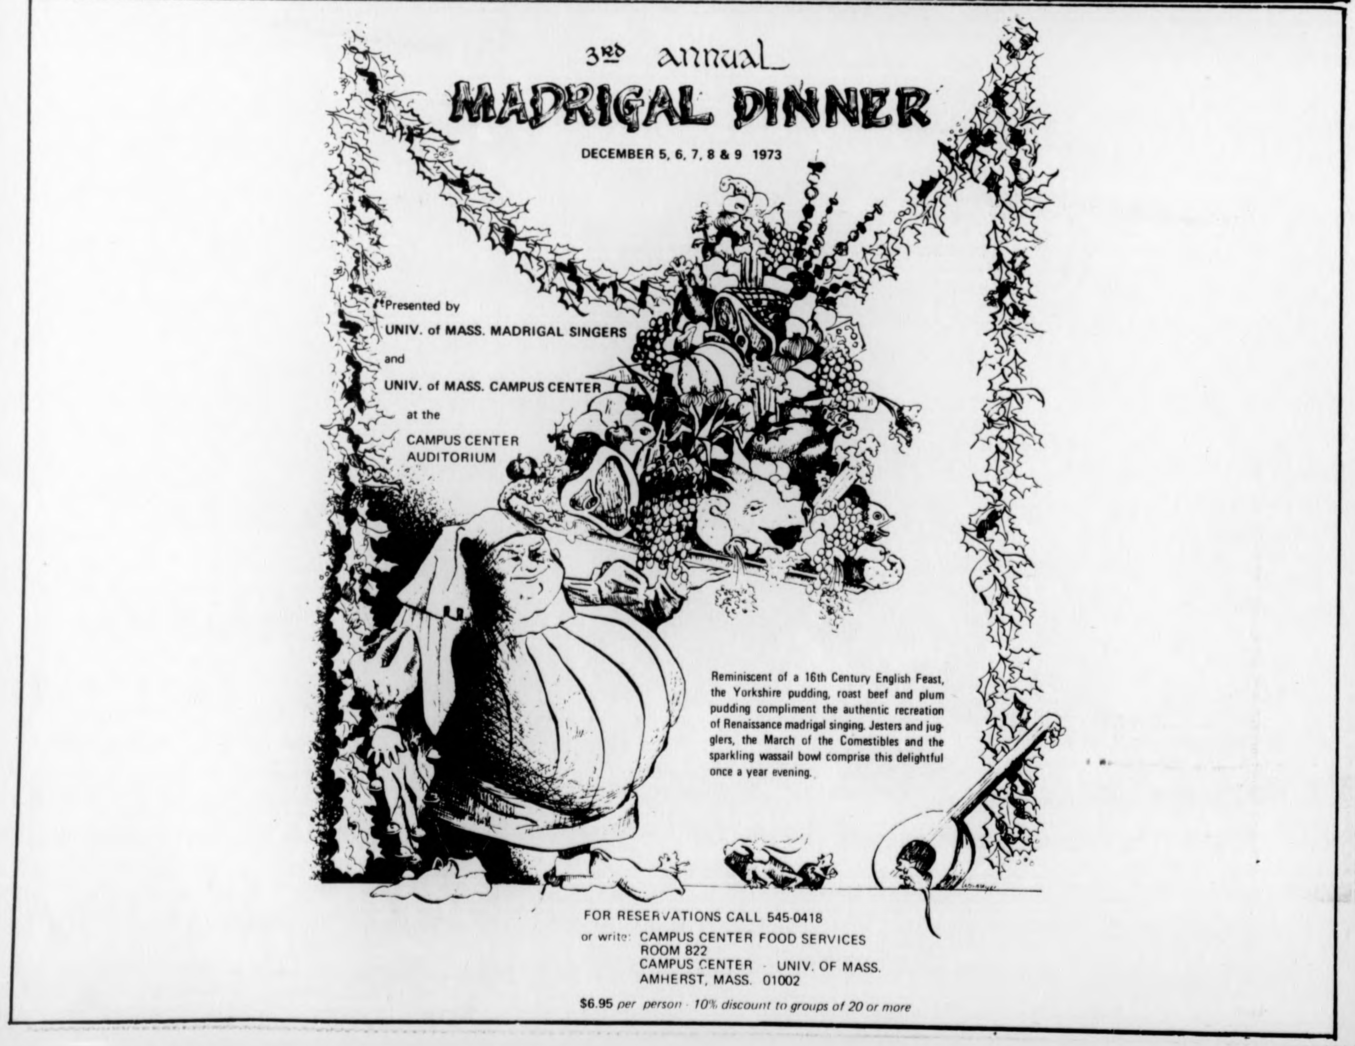
U.F.O. LECTURE:
Fri. 11-16 Hayden Hewes expert on UFO's will speak at 8:00 in S.U.B. All invited, coffee hour following.

UNITARIAN SOCIETY OF AMHERST:
Nov. 18 at 11 a.m. Jeffrey Campbell, minister, will speak on "Unitarian Redemption". All welcome to the coffee hour at 12.

CONG. ROBERT DRINAN
Cong. Drinan will speak on "Will detente devestate jews of Russia and Israel?", Sunday, Nov. 18, Bowker Auditorium, sponsored by Student

(Continued on P. 16)

GOOD CLOTHES, REASONABLY PRICED
OLD WEIRD HAROLD'S
Rt. 9, Hadley
New and Used Clothing — Cheap.
Keep All of yo'self warm, in our—
Snorkel ParKas
—or, do as the animals do in—
USED FUR Jackets & Coats
—"what do you mean used?"—
★PLUS★ NEW MALE JEANS 5.00!
LEATHER + SUEDE JACKETS
CORDUROY + DENIM JACKETS, PANTS
USED JEANS, VESTS, FLANNEL, ETC.
Reindeer Sweaters



3RD annual
MADRIGAL DINNER
DECEMBER 5, 6, 7, 8 & 9 1973

Presented by UNIV. of MASS. MADRIGAL SINGERS
and UNIV. of MASS. CAMPUS CENTER
at the
CAMPUS CENTER AUDITORIUM

Reminiscent of a 16th Century English Feast, the Yorkshire pudding, roast beef and plum pudding compliment the authentic recreation of Renaissance madrigal singing. Jesters and jugglers, the March of the Comestibles and the sparkling wassail bowl comprise this delightful once a year evening.

FOR RESERVATIONS CALL 545-0418
or write: CAMPUS CENTER FOOD SERVICES
ROOM 822
CAMPUS CENTER - UNIV. OF MASS.
AMHERST, MASS. 01002

$6.95 per person - 10% discount to groups of 20 or more

Students To Test For Sickle Cell

TROY,N.Y. (AP) - A group of upstate college students planned to enter Attica prison Friday and prick the fingers of some 400 inmates in a test for sickle cell anemia.

The team of black Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute students has been conducting examinations to uncover the blood disease for nearly two years, school officials said.

The RPI team planned to draw blood samples which would be analyzed in a five-minute examination. Samples with positive results would be subjected to a second test with the findings going to the state health department, a spokesman said.

The students started their testing program under the guidance of RPI's Urban Environmental Studies program.

Elementary and high school students in the Rensselaer County area were the first subjects of the college students' examinations.

The tests were conducted with the cooperation of county and state officials, a spokesman said.

Sickle cell anemia is a blood disease that strikes blacks, leaving its victims with a life expectancy of 25 years, the spokesman explained, noting that the disease traits can be carried by healthy adults.

A large percentage of the subjects testing positive in the Troy area examinations traced their origins to Greeleyville, S.C., with a population of 542, the spokesman said.

The findings have been computerized and turned over to New York State health officials. Later, the RPI program expanded with the cooperation of the state Correctional Services Department to include most of the correctional facilities in the state.

The RPI students have already conducted 1,100 examinations in several state prisons with eight per cent of the tests uncovering sickel cell anemia traits, he said.

Participative Research Day

The Beta Zeta chapter of Sigma Theta Tau will sponsor its first annual Participative Research Day on Saturday, November 17, in the Campus Center.

Registration will be from 9 to 9:45 a.m. on the eighth floor of the C.C. The cost is $2.

Six speakers will present various research projects dealing with professional nursing.

Dr. Shirley Smoyak the keynote speaker, will speak on the "Demystification of Research" during the evening program.

LSAT
Review Course
Extensive 20-hour review for December 15 L.S.A.T.
Taught by attorneys
It Will Help
This course has been in operation since 1967 and is the most effective means of preparation for the L.S.A.T. Ask students at your school who have taken this course their opinions, or call us with your own questions.
Register now — $85.00 tuition (total cost). Classes begin Thursday evening, Nov. 29, 1973, 7-11 p.m., Colonial Hilton, Northampton.
For information call (413) 256-6072, Amherst; (617) 262-9161, Boston.
or write:
L.S.A.T. Review Course
419 Boylston St.
Room 312
Boston, Mass. 02116

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SYDNEY OMARR

"In the Third Reich, we have to forbid astrology. Those who contravene the new regulations must expect to be locked up in a concentration camp until the war is over." - - Heinrich Himmler

- - -

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You will experience greater freedom, creative stimulation. Success is indicated by adhering to your own style. Social contacts multiply. The excitement of discovery is featured. Welcome change of pace.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Stick to facts. Those who offer rumors should be ignored. You succeed now by accepting test, challenge. Some, who claim you are in rut, are merely envious. Know it and maintain balance, humor. Aquarius, Leo persons might be in picture.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Be ready for change, travel, variety. Also, you may be asked probing questions by member of opposite sex. Piece together bits of information--you can come up with complete story. Don't be satisfied with superficial explanations. Explore reasons, examine motives.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Emphasis is on money and getting full value. Household product, luxury item is spotlighted. Family member wants to talk about budget, allowance. Be diplomatic. If you make intelligent concession, you'll be happier.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Go after what you need--personal magnetism aids. You seem able to attract persons who can now do the most for you. Maintain aura of mystery, glamor. Don't tell all. Leave plenty to the imagination. Then you're on the right track!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Study Leo message. Check behind the scenes for result of clandestine arrangement. Capricorn, Cancer persons could figure in important roles. Organize. Make contacts through special clubs, groups, organizations.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You may find that friend opposes plan which you promote. Key now is to know when to draw line. If you invite others to sing blues on your shoulders, they will do it. You may feel noble about it but you should feel foolish. Think!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Go to heart of matters. See person in charge. Be direct and independent without being arrogant. Leo, Aquarius persons figure prominently. Set sights on goal. Reaffirm sense of direction. Accept overtime.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Teach, learn. Investigate special study. You may be fascinated by foreign language. Writing and reading take on added importance. Do some reflecting; heed inner voice. Intuitive intellect is sharply honed.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Mate, partner may be reaching too far, too fast. Tighten rein on budget. Do so with humor, understanding. Sagittarian can aid in getting ideas into working form. Your creative drive needs outlet and you are on brink of discovering where and how--and when.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Slow, pace. Listen, observe and check with one who cares but also is skeptical. Means don't seek out only those who flatter, cajole. Find where weakness lies--then build for strength. Scorpio could figure in important way.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Inquisitive individual could cause you to be analytical. Accent is on how you serve, work and achieve. You find ways of bettering position--and attitude. Diet, health and recreation should be considered.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are spiritual, creative and introspective. You come out of doldrums next month. You express and love and are appreciated. You have carried a heavy burden this year--but you are about to embark on road to greater freedom, fun and health. Many born under Pisces and Virgo are drawn to you.

copyright 1973, Gen. Fea. Corp.

Crossword Puzzle

ACROSS
1 Cut of meat
4 Ornamental knob
8 Performs
12 Macaw
13 Healthy
14 Ireland
15 Weight of India
16 A continent
18 Detested
20 Rip
21 Exclamation
22 Through 23 Direction
27 Edible seed
29 Pronoun
30 Showy flower
31 Latin conjunction 32 Hog
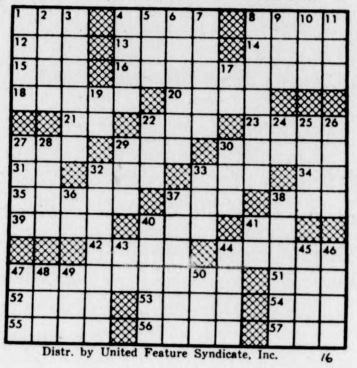
33 Strike
34 Cooled lava
35 Breathe loudly in sleep
37 Drunkard
38 Shade tree
39 Edible root
40 Deposit
41 Indefinite article
42 Fruit
44 Spanish pots
47 Amuse
51 Man's name
52 Walk unsteadily
53 Part of church
54 Transgress
55 The sweetsop
56 Seines
57 Label

DOWN
1 Make a mess of
2 Region
3 Girl's name
4 Edible fish
5 Greek letter
6 County in Ireland
7 Hinder
8 Most beloved
9 Lubricate
10 Silkworm
11 Ocean
17 Sun god
19 Babylonian deity
22 Wooden pin
24 Near
25 Fur-bearing mammal
26 English streetcar
27 Nuisance
28 Sicilian volcano
29 Hasten
30 River island
32 Drives onward
33 Torrid
36 Conjunction
37 Mexican shawl
38 Join
40 Mephistopheles
41 Man's nickname
43 Teutonic deity
44 Units
45 Solo
46 Warbled
47 Period of time
48 Openwork fabric
49 Golf mound
50 Suffix: adherent of

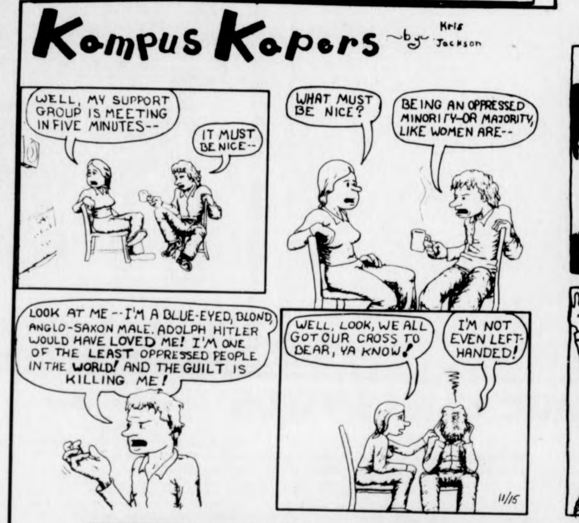
Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

E	L	M	■	A	G	A	T	E	■	B	E	D
R	O	A	■	R	A	B	I	D	■	A	G	O
S	P	R	I	G	S	■	P	A	R	R	O	T
■	■	■	L	O	T	S	■	M	A	■	■	■
J	U	N	K	■	R	O	B	■	B	O	L	T
O	N	E	■	T	O	L	E	R	A	B	L	E
I	D	■	T	O	P	■	V	A	T	■	A	S
S	E	M	I	N	O	L	E	S	■	A	M	T
T	R	O	T	■	D	O	R	■	C	L	A	Y
■	■	■	A	N	■	G	A	L	A	■	■	■
B	A	N	N	E	D	■	G	A	M	B	L	E
E	W	E	■	L	Y	R	E	S	■	A	I	R
T	E	D	■	L	E	A	S	T	■	T	E	N

16



Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 16



Kompus Kopers ~by~ Kris Jackson
WELL, MY SUPPORT GROUP IS MEETING IN FIVE MINUTES-- IT MUST BE NICE--
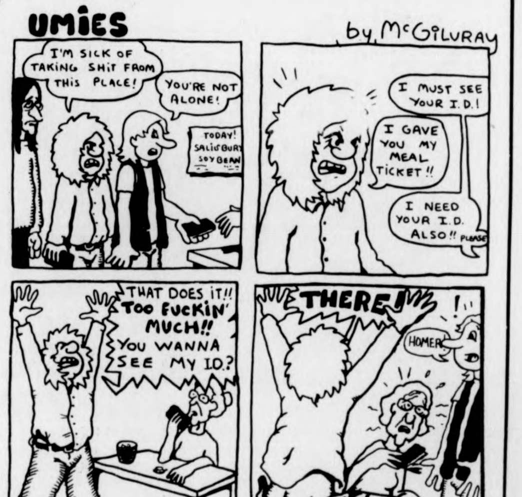
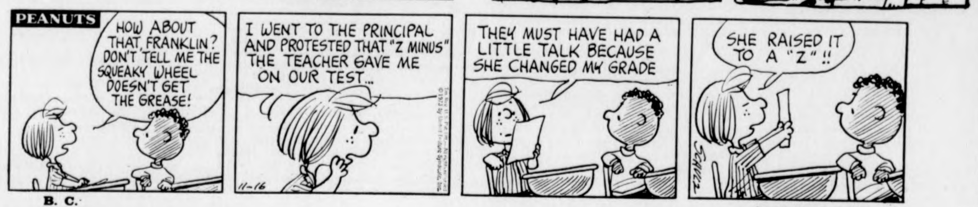
WHAT MUST BE NICE?
BEING AN OPPRESSED MINORITY--OR MAJORITY, LIKE WOMEN ARE--
LOOK AT ME--I'M A BLUE-EYED, BLOND, ANGLO-SAXON MALE. ADOLPH HITLER WOULD HAVE LOVED ME! I'M ONE OF THE LEAST OPPRESSED PEOPLE IN THE WORLD! AND THE GUILT IS KILLING ME!
WELL, LOOK, WE ALL GOT OUR CROSS TO BEAR, YA KNOW!
I'M NOT EVEN LEFT-HANDED!
11/15

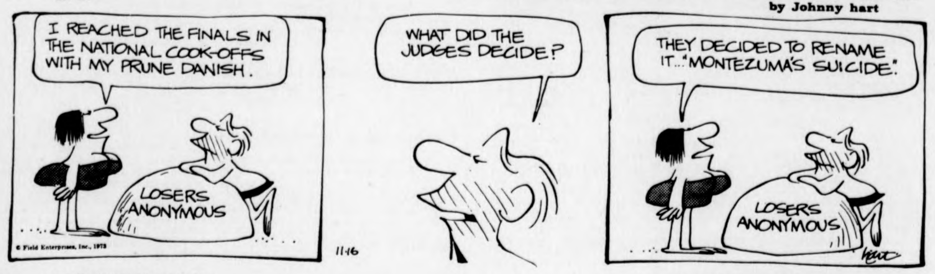


UMIES by McGILURAY
I'M SICK OF TAKING SHIT FROM THIS PLACE!
YOU'RE NOT ALONE!
TODAY! SALISBURY SOYBEAN
I MUST SEE YOUR I.D.!
I GAVE YOU MY MEAL TICKET!!
I NEED YOUR I.D. ALSO!! PLEASE
THAT DOES IT!! TOO FUCKIN' MUCH!! YOU WANNA SEE MY I.D.?
THERE!
HOMER
11/15



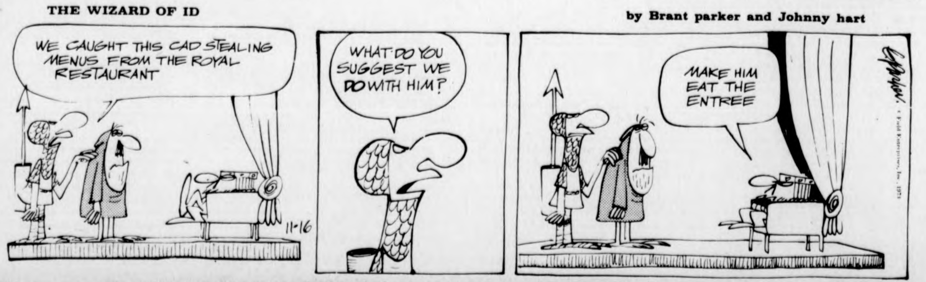
PEANUTS
HOW ABOUT THAT, FRANKLIN? DON'T TELL ME THE SQUEAKY WHEEL DOESN'T GET THE GREASE!
I WENT TO THE PRINCIPAL AND PROTESTED THAT "Z MINUS" THE TEACHER GAVE ME ON OUR TEST...
THEY MUST HAVE HAD A LITTLE TALK BECAUSE SHE CHANGED MY GRADE
SHE RAISED IT TO A "Z"!!
11-16

B. C. by Johnny hart



I REACHED THE FINALS IN THE NATIONAL COOK-OFFS WITH MY PRUNE DANISH.
LOSERS ANONYMOUS
WHAT DID THE JUDGES DECIDE?
THEY DECIDED TO RENAME IT..."MONTEZUMA'S SUICIDE".
LOSERS ANONYMOUS
11-16
© Field Enterprises, Inc., 1973

THE WIZARD OF ID by Brant parker and Johnny hart



WE CAUGHT THIS CAD STEALING MENUS FROM THE ROYAL RESTAURANT
11-16
WHAT DO YOU SUGGEST WE DO WITH HIM?
MAKE HIM EAT THE ENTREE

Notices

(Continued from P. 14)
struggle for Soviet Jewry.

SHABBAT SERVICE AND DINNER:

Regular shabbat services, followed by dinner prepaid. Student Union 302, Friday, Nov. 17.

SATURDAY MORNING SERVICES:

Regular sabbath morning services, torah portion: chaye sarah. Followed at 5:30 p.m. with seduah shlishit and havalah. Conclusion of Sabbath. Student Union 302, Nov. 17.

VISITING PHILOSOPHER:

Russel: Daney of Cornell University will read a paper entitled "On Some of Aristotle's First Thoughts About Substances", Fri. 11-16 at 3:30, 103 C.C.

FOUND:

Puppy 4-6 mos; gold. Outside C.C. on Tues. around 3:30. Call Marilyn Bourque 546-9849.

LOST:

Blue 4 subject notebook, Tuesday by the S.U. check cashing windows. 546-4358.

LOST:

One 14 x 17 sketch pad containing design assignments. Please return all or part or call 549-4583. Very important to me; and no questions asked.

LOST:

Plain gold cross without chain; of great personal value to owner. Please call 549-0483 or return to 78 Puffton Village.

LOST:

Will the persons who "borrowed" the UMass Outing Club Trail sign from the Bulletin Board. Please return it. Thank you.

LOST:

Brown rimmed glasses. Optometrists name on case, Dr. John Elrftherio, Groton Ma. Call 253-5483.

LOST:

Dearly loved crocheted hat of various brown hues. 5 Granny squares. Lost Herter-Tobin-Bartlett vicinity. Call Joanne in 406, 546-2639. Reward.

LOST:

Eyeglasses in tan case, Waltham Optical on outside. Vicinity of C.C. and Grinnel Arena. Please contact Eleanor H., Dwight House 545-2304.

PINNING OR ENGAGEMENT:

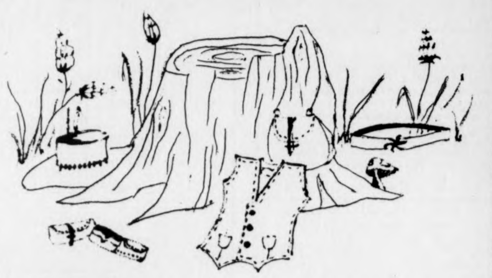
Paula Schwartz, Class of '74 of 407 Brooks to Edward Willins, Class of '75 of 310 Brooks.

Claudia Medeiros, Class of '75 of 293 Van Meter No. to David Seward, Class of '74 of Amherst, Ma.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Bob Antil, Southwest Social Advisor, announced today that free beer will be offered at a party to be held Saturday night, November 17, at Hampden Commons.

Music will be provided by Ed Vadas Big City Blues Band. Admission to the party will be one dollar.



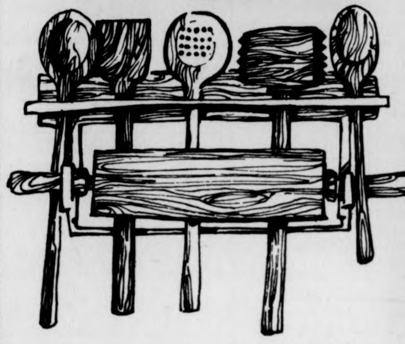
Leather to your Liking

Lothlorien 13 College Street, South Hadley, Mass.

Topper Carew
in the Hatch
Thur., Fri. & Sat.
9 p.m. - 1 a.m.

Special Sale
Everything 20% Off
Rani
63 N. Pleasant St. Amherst

1¢ THANKSGIVING ONE CENT SALE
TODAY THRU FRIDAY
BUY ONE PAIR OF PANTS AT OUR REG. PRICES AND GET THE SECOND PAIR FOR ONLY... 1¢
UP TO 1/2 OFF MOST: TOPS · COATS · PLASANT TOPS · MUCH MUCH MORE
COME TO CLIMAX
DO IT IN THEE ALLEY ~ NORTH OF THE POLICE STATION



WILD WOOD
amherst carriage shops

MDC CLASSIFIEDS

FOR SALE

Rossignol Racer Skis 188cm w Solo Mon 444 Bindings, 1 yr old, excellent cond. $125, 253-5010 after 6 p.m.
tf11-20

Live Christmas trees, select and tag now, any size $6.31. L. Blizniak, 133 Bay Rd., Hadley.
tf12-12

1964 VW, good condition, $150. Ask for Tom, 549-1506 after 5 p.m.
tf11-16

For sale — alto saxophone, $135; cello, $300. 584-6279, ask for Tom.
tf11-16

1967 Barracuda, smashed front end, 383 4-speed, Mallory distributor, new starter, motor, $225 takes it. Sandy, 584-2019.
tf11-16

1966 Cutlass Supr. p.s, p.b., very good condition. Call 367-2771.
tf11-16

S & L Camera Imports has new cameras, lenses & other photo equip. at slashed prices. Full warranty, all makes and models. Call Ken, 6-9723.
tf11-30

Bus: 1956 white motor school bus, slightly remodeled, excellent condition, $250. Call 527-5737 aft. 5 p.m.
tf11/20

Head skis 6' 8" with marker bindings, Ladomolite S10 boots, Scott poles 3'; need $ make me an offer. Call 253-5920 after 5.
tf11-16

Lange Pro Ski Boots almost new condition, must sell fast $40 or best offer. Call 546-5373, ask for Stu.
tf11-16

Photo equip. Prof. darkroom. Bronica S-2a system. Minolta-Srtioi body, dry mounter, all mint condition. 665-3401.
tf11-16

Panasonic SE-2030 FM-AM Stereo with stereo automatic turntable also has Quadraplex unit. Best offer 253-2746, ask for Mike.
tf11-16

New stereo tape cassette player-recorder with Dolby system, Akai with ADR System, Invertomatic, $200 or best offer. Call 586-2215.
tf11-16

FOR SALE

Temple P.A., 100 watts, 812 in speakers 2 columns. 1 year old. $350 or best offer. 532-0881.
tf11-27

One pair Lange Pro's, mens size 10m, used 1½ seasons, good shape, asking $50. Call David in 311, 545-2412, around lunch time.
tf11-16

BSR 8 track tape player $45, Realistic LAB 12-A Record Player $45; Panasonic TV $70. Call 546-5261 or 546-5271.
tf11-21

Fender Twin Reverb AMP, w jbl's — $375 & Jazzmaster guitar w-case — $175. Call Mark at 584-6183. After 4:15.
tf11-19

Peugeot PX10 bicycle, Michelin tires 22" frame, excellent condition, price negotiable. Asking $180. 546-4134 or 546-4129.
tf11-19

Keep warm — Mens sz. 44 lg. ¾ leather coat, heavy sheep line, and collar w skin backing. Made in Czech. $300 value, make off. Mike 549-0761.
tf11-16

Tires — All brands, RaDIALS, SNOWS — All types guaranteed, lowest prices. Call 546-8362 after 6.
tf11-30

4 sale — Panasonic Taperecorder, 4 head, autoreverse - stop. Little use $175. AR turntable, new Shure Cartridge. $75. Jake 549-6420.
tf11-16

Ski Boots, Koflach, plastic 5 buckle men's 11, $50; 72 Model Rieker 5 buckle women's 7½ used one season, $30. Call Cliff 6-5448.
tf11-20

1969 MGB, fine condition, 60,000 mi. Please call 256-6241, anytime.
tf11-16

Hart Javelin Skis, 200cm with Tyrolia 2000 & 3000 bindings, all in good condition. $100. Call Andy at 6-5460.
tf11-16

Dynaco SCA80Q AMP. 40x40 watts RMS. Can synthesize 4 channel sound from 2 channel source. Need some work. Call Steve 546-6390.
tf11-19

66 VW Station wagon. Old, but plausible. New tires, tune-up. $300, Jones 549-6696.
tf11-21

"Major" record player, 2 speakers, good condition. 549-6474, evenings.
tf11-19

Waterproof boots, woman's . . . sz 8M, brown like new. $70. Red wool pullover, woman's sz small, $30. Call Joyce, 256-6251 or 545-0580.
tf11-19

AUTO FOR SALE

69 Toyota Corona, rebuilt engine, many new pts. Muffler, tires etc. Good running cond. Body is fair to good $750. Call Jon 253-2805.
tf11-16

1964 Ford Galaxie dependable, it runs runs, runs. Two snow tires also. $150. Call 5-2304 keep trying. Ask for Ken in 322.
tf11-16

70 Ply Duster, stan trans 8 cyl, save gas. 70 series tire, spec wheels, tape deck, new snows exc cond. Sell below mkt, only $1195 - 256-0461.
tf11-16

1969 Dodge Dart Swinger 340 ci, 4 speed. Call 549-6671, after 6 p.m.
tf11-20

63 Rambler Amer — Low mileage, mechanically excellent body, good snow tires, see to believe. Best offer, call Jude 256-8174.
tf11-21

1967 Dodge Polara, excellent running condition. Very dependable. Two new studded snow tires. Call Tom after 6:00, at 549-0866.
tf11-20

1967 Chevy Impala 283, V-8, 2 door hardtop, $625, 665-3410.
tf11-19

1966 Mercedez, 200 D, new regulator, altenator, injectors, water pump; exc. running cond., $1200. Call 549-3539.
tf11-19

1966 Dodge Dart, 6 cyl. R & H, Sticker, standard trans, 2 good snows, very economical. $400. Call Ralph 546-7941.
tf11-19

AUTO FOR SALE

1969 Renault 10, 33000 miles, excellent condition, $650, can be seen after 9:00 a.m., Nov. 17, 253-5501.
tf11-16

4 wheel drive, 1971 Toyota, Land Cruiser. Low mileage, good cond. Best offer, 617-489-2210.
tf11-21

ROOMMATE WANTED

Need mature female roommate for Dec. 1 or Jan. 1. Own room. Cliffside on bus route, mainly furnished. $85. per mo. includes utilities. 665-4355.
tf11-16

Wanted: Female to apartment hunt with for Jan. 1. Call Linda after 6 p.m. 253-7752.
tf11-16

Female to share 1 bdrm. Presidential apt, beginning Jan. Semi-furnished, $87.50 - mon., incl. utilities. Call 549-4463.
tf11-16

2 b.r. apt. to share Private room, no deposit $100 mo. all util incl. Call 665-2858. Avail Dec. 1 - lease to May.
tf11-16

Roommate wanted to share completely furnished apartment, available immediately. $100-mo. Call 253-9863, lease runs till May 30.
tf11-27

Female Grad Student or faculty. Own room, on bus ro. N Amherst $85 & util. Dec. 1 or Jan. 1, 545-2274 days 549-6155 eve. D. Miller.
tf11-16

Share apt on N.E. St. Quiet grad student, available Dec. 15 $100. Call 549-6356 after 6:00.
tf11-19

Female roommate wanted starting Jan. Big 5 room house edge of campus. Furnished, fireplace, backyard. Call 549-1312.
tf11-21

Seeking a couple to share quiet, charming 2-bedr. house in Amherst. Grads preferred. Low rent. Call Ann 256-0481.
tf11-16

Roommate wanted in private home near campus, kitchen priv., F. preferred. Tel. 586-2815.
tf11-20

ROOMMATE WANTED

Need quiet roommate for Jan. 1, Cliffside apt., on bus route 87. $50 per mo., including utilities. Call 665-4198 ask for Doug.
tf11-20

Prefer male to share house close to UMass with 2 grad F. and 1 M. Own room $75 mo. plus elec., avail. immed. 253-2861 after 6. tf11-21

WANTED

Medical technologist or equivalent for part time position. Hours 2:30 p.m. to 11:00 p.m. weekends. Call 413-774-3111, ext. 29 or 38.
tf11-16

Wanted ski bindings Marker Simplex DL and Rotomat FD, good money for used bindings. Call Rick 6-5481, keep trying.
tf11-16

Couples (without children) needed for Psych study. Chance to learn more about yourself and your relationship. Leave mes. 545-2077.
tf11-21

Have '65 Mustang to trade for bike over 300cc of comparable value. Call Jim evenings, 549-0790.
tf11-19

Small second-hand electric piano in good condition. Call after 5:00 p.m. 323-4848.
tf11-21

APARTMENT FOR RENT

3 bdrm. apt. available for 2nd semester. Puffton Village, rent $250-mo., util. included. Call Mary 549-4580.
tf11-19

1 bedrm apt., U. Pk. apts, bus route, convnt to U. Mass. avalabl next month Dec. '73. $146-mh, include all util. Call 253-2705 or 9461.
tf11-16

More Courses To Choose From

Classics? How About Anthro?

The Department of Classics would like to announce two innovative new Classics courses to be offered during spring semester 1974.

CLASSICS 290A. Greek Archaeology: the Bronze Age. 3 credits. Tu 4:00-6:30 p.m. Dickinson 216.

A survey of terrestrial explorations of Bronze-Age Mycenaean and Cretan civilizations. Attention to the cultures themselves, as well as to the methods with which excavators have reconstructed those cultures. All lectures illustrated with colored slides.

CLASSICS 390B-700B. Underwater Archaelogy. 3 credits. Tu 4:00-6:00 p.m. TBA.

A survey of the development and progress of underwater archaeology. Attention to current explorations, problems, and developments which will affect future underwater studies. All lectures illustrated with colored slides.

Teaching these courses will be Professor Niki P. Stavrolakes, Visiting Associate Professor of the Classical Humanities, and a professional underwater archaeologist. Prof. Stavrolakes has specialized in ancient Greek explorations, participating in or supervising underwater excavations off Cyprus, Gythion (harbor of ancient Sparta) and the island of Kefallinia. She is the Director of the Aegean Institute, located near the island of Poros, Greece, where she regularly teaches underwater archaeology.

General Anthropology: Human adaptation and cultural diversity Anthropology 104, Lecture 3C 074882 TuTh 1:25-2:15 Thompson 102; (meets Core D requirement); Instructor: Dr. Ralph H. Faulkingham.

Anthropology 104, Lecture 3C (together with discussion sections 21C-28C), is a new course, especially designed for the non-major interested in acquiring a general anthropology background. The number indicates that the course is cultural anthropology; in fact, the content will range over the entire spectrum of contemporary anthropological concerns.

The format of the course is based on presentations by various anthropologists of their special areas of competence and interest. These presentations will be organized in a coherent framework by Professor Faulkingham who will provide occasional integrative and interpretative lectures. Such a format permits the student to acquire not only a good foundation in general anthropology, but also a sampling of the kinds of problems anthropologists work with (and of the kinds of teaching styles in the Department of Anthropology).

This course cannot be counted toward credit for a major in Anthropology.

Anthropology 104 Introduction to Cultural Anthropology offerings during Spring 1974 semester:

Lecture 1A 074844 TuTh 10:10 Thompson 102 Dr. Oriol Pi-Sunyer. Majors in anthropology are especially encouraged to take this section of 104.

Lecture 2B 074868 MW 11:15 Thompson 104 Mr. William Kaschak.

Lecture 3C 074882 TuTh 1:25 Thompson 102 Dr. Faulkingham. This is a general anthropology course, especially for non-majors.

Lecture 4 07902 W 7:30-10 p.m. Machmer E-37 (staff).

We Goofed

The Collegian regrets that the Notices section was accidentally deleted from Thursday's issue.

"Something for Everyone"
the concert committee
presents
Two nights of Entertainment with
JOHN MAYALL
appearing on Sunday, November 25 with special guest artist Bruce Springsteen appearing on Monday, November 26 with special guest artist Maria Muldaur
Boths shows: 8:00 p.m. At Curry Hicks Cage
Tickets: $3.50 Available at Student Union Lobby Counter
10:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m.

SKI SPAIN
Earn 2 credits during intersession
Call 5-2801

AMHERST Cinema
AMITY ST., AMHERST
The Fall of the Roman Empire
1931-1972
"FELLINI'S ROMA"
R United Artists
An ALBERTO GRIMALDI Production
"FELLINI SATYRICON"
(English Subtitles)
COLOR by DeLuxe PANAVISION
R United Artists
MON. & TUES. ADMISSION $1.00

Television Tonight

5:00 ENSIGN O'TOOLE (18)
BEVERLY HILLBILLIES "The Great Cook-Off." (30)
GOMER PYLE "To Re-Enlist Or Not To Re-Enlist." (40)
THE LUCY SHOW "Viv Visits Lucy." (22)
THE ELECTRIC COMPANY (24) (57)
HOGAN'S HEROES "A Klink, A Bomb and A Short Fuse." (30)
NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS (40)
5:55 WHAT'S HAPPENING UPDATE (3)
6:00 NEWS (3) (8) (22)
AMERICA "The Promise Fulfilled and the Promise Broken." (18)
ZOOM! (24) (57)
TO TELL THE TRUTH Garry Moore, host (30)
WILD WILD WEST "Night Of the Golden Cobra." (40)
6:30 NEWS (3) (22) (30)
ABC EVENING NEWS (8)
BOOK BEAT (24)
CHALLENGING SEA (27)
LOUIS LYONS: NEWS AND COMMENT (57)
6:55 NEWSBEAT NEWS (40)
7:00 WORLD AT WAR (3)
TRUTH OR CONSEQUENCES Bob Barker, host (8)
NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS (22) (30)
THE CHAN—ESE WAY (24)
ABC EVENING NEWS (40)
THE REPORTERS (57)
7:30 DATING GAME (8)
LET'S MAKE A DEAL Monty Hall, host (22)
WALL STREET WEEK (24)
THE HOLLYWOOD SQUARES Peter Marshall, host (30)
NANNY AND THE PROFESSOR "The Great Broadcast of 1936." (40)
THE OPEN DOOR (57)
8:00 CALCUCCI'S DEPT (3)
THE BRADY BUNCH "Try, Try Again." (8) (40)
SANFORD AND SON (22) (30)
WASHINGTON WEEK IN REVIEW (24) (57)
8:30 ROLL OUT! "Sweet." (3)
THE ODD COUPLE "The Pig Who Came to Dinner." (8) (40)
GENERAL ELECTRIC PRESENTS SAMMY DAVIS JR. (22) (30)
THE SESSION (24)
WALL STREET WEEK (57)
9:00 MOVIE "Escape From the Planet of the Apes." (3)
ROOM 222 "Pi in the Sky." (8) (40)
WEST VIRGINIA STATE FOLIE FESTIVAL (24)
MASTERPIECE THEATRE "The Man Who Was Hunting Himself." (57)
9:30 ADAM'S RIB "Murder!" (8) (40)
BRIAN KEITH SHOW "The Big Build-Up." (22) (30)
10:00 LOVE, AMERICAN STYLE "Love and the Big Top." (8) (40)
THE BLUE KNIGHT (22) (30)
FREE FOR ALL (24)
THE MEN WHO MADE THE MOVIES (57)
10:30 THE LIVING WORD (18)
THE MILD BUNCH (24)
MANTRAP (27)
11:00 NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS (3) (8) (18) (22) (27) (30) (40)
11:30 MOVIE "Harper." (3)
DON KIRSHINERS ROCK CONCERT (8)
JOHNNY CARSON SHOW (22) (30)
WIDE WORLD OF ENTERTAINMENT (40)
1:00 NEWS (8) (40)
THE MIDNIGHT SPECIAL (22) (30)
1:45 MOVIE "Brief Encounter." (3)
2:30 NEWS (22) (30)
3:25 NEWS, WEATHER (3)

MDC CLASSIFIEDS

HELP WANTED

Collegian is looking for an Asst. Advertising Manager. Job involves supervising ad reps & building advt. revenue. Must be an underclassmen, with car, & a genuine interest in newspaper advt. Experience in marketing & graphics helpful but not essential. Will have to work hard for small pay but the rewards in experience will be invaluable. Person hired will be trained to become the advertising manager for next year. For details and information see Brent Wilkes at the Collegian Office.
tf11-16

Full or part time help days or evenings, hours arranged Fd; students, excellent working conditions & benefits apply at Burger King Mountain Farms Mall, Hadley, apply 8:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.
tf11-21

SPEED TYPISTS
In Ware at Collegian Printer
8:30 p.m. to 4 a.m.
Call Charlotte
1-413-967-6888

Find out what coming out is all about, see the play direct from Boston, Nov. 16 and 17, Worcester Dining Commons, 9:00 p.m.
tf11-16

Futre CPA's learn how to prepare for the CPA Exam. Becker CPA Review Course. Call collect 617-536-1440.
tf11-22

Winter Outdoor Living Skills and Whitewater Canoeing courses offered by JD Nature Lab. I live on campus and have info, 546-6131.
tf11-24

Cinematographer wanted to work with B.D.I.C. filmmaker on independent documentary after Jan. 1. Involves travel, write: M. Cramer, Salisbury Rd., Sheffield, MA.
tf11-16

The Ed Vadas Big City Blues Band is looking for a M. or F. Bass Player. Good money, steady work. Call 584-6279.
tf11-21

RIDE WANTED

I need a ride to Springfield or Longmeadow and back to Amherst Mon.-Fri., next semester. Call 546-7961. tf11-16

LOST

Blue snorkel jacket, orange lining, at Worcester P.C. Sat. nite. Glasses in pocket, needed desperately! Return to CC Lost & Found.
tf11-16

Red wallet 10-9 at party, 149H Britt. Man., keep $ return rest no. s and add. irreplble. How 'bout "W" pin? Leave at CC L & F, no quests.
tf11-16

FOR RENT

Garage space, central Amherst. Safe and inexpensive. D.H. Jones 549-3700.
tf11-29

RIDERS WANTED

Ride needed to L.I. or NYC Wed. Nov 21. Will share expenses. Call 256-0618.
tf11-21

Anyone commuting from Southbridge area 2nd sem. needing a rider call 256-0316, ask for Mike.
tf11-16

TRAVEL

Going by air? Let us handle your pre-flight, in-flight and post-flight arrangements at no cost to you. Call campus rep., 253-3162 evenings.
tf12-12

$199: A week in the sand, sea, and sun paradise of EUROPE for LESS THAN the cost of PUERTO RICO or the BAHAMAS, Jan. 6th to 13th in swinging MASPA LOMAS on Grand Canary Island (Spain). COMPLETE PACKAGE $199 & 29 taxes & services. Also some Hawaii space still available on Dec. 29 & Jan. 7. Call Leslie Halfond 546-6861.
tf11-28

ROOMS FOR RENT

Room, near campus, woman only, $80. Call after 6:00, 549-6356.
tf11-19

Upstairs bdrm. available w-bath. Bdrm. unfurnished, rest of apt. is. Stereo, color TV. $90, incl. utilities. Call 549-4581. John.
tf11-19

Rooms — by arrangement, free parking, no utilities, next to campus. Call at 253-9938 or see Duncan at 401 N. Pleasant.
tf11-16

PERSONAL

Get a date, meet new people, friends for fun or serious relation. Write Box 161, Hadley MA. 01035.
tf11-16

To Kathy and Casey — happy birthday(s), and best of luck always from all your old 2S Knowlton buddies.
tf11-19

Interested in making a handicapped person's Xmas holiday happy? If you can work Xmas & New Years, call 256-8819 anytime.
tf11-21

5 Coll Canada Ski Trip, 4 days, 3 nites, hotel bkfst, din., transpo, apres ski party, all for $85. Jan. 22-25. B. Baggins Travel. 256-0146.
tf11-26

Ski in Colorado — Looking for a female traveling companion to ski the big ones, must be ready to hot dog it. Call Dan at 546-6172.
tf11-16

Amy — May all your dreams come true. Hope your life as a sheepdog is as fulfilling as your last was, Happy Birthday. Love, us.
tf11-16

For Sandra — Just a thought — Love, Joj.
tf11-16

Happy Birthday Nurdk — From Kath, Warren and the Cuban.
tf11-16

Base & Keyboard Players wanted for Band. Call Kevin at 323-7249 or Alan at 549-6275.
tf12-5

APARTMENT FOR RENT

2 bdrm. apt. 1½ baths, w-w carpeting, dishwasher, disposal & air conditioning. Minutes from UMass on bus line, 549-3993.
tf11-26

PIANO TUNING

Pianos tuned and put in order at the shortest notice. Call 268-7880.
tf12-3

REWARD

For 1 lost knitted mitten. Red, white, blue. Please call 549-6538. tf11-20

SERVICES

Get a load off your mind, truck for hire. Call Gary or Joyce, 256-6376.
tf11-21

24 hr. service — Passports, Lang's Photo Studio, 460 West St., South Amherst, 253-3148.
tf12-12

Attention Datsun owners, I perform all phases of major and minor maintenance and repairs on Datsun at less than ½ dealership price. I have over $3000 in equipment, 4 years automotive experience, 2 of which were at a Datsun Dealership, specializing in Datsun. Tele. 253-7456, Russell Baca.
tf11-19

Photos — passports, visas, etc., 48 hour service! Sizes and number negotiable, $3.00 minimum! Call Steve at 546-5443.
tf11-30

Research — thousands of topics, $2.75 per page. Send $1 for mail order catalog. Research assistance, inc. 11941 Wilshire Blvd., Suite 2, L.A., Calif. 90025.
tf12-12

Typing — Fast & accurate — 50c p. Free pickup and delivery. Call Dody 323-4377 after 10 p.m.
tf11-21

Central Area Counseling Center, B-2 Gorman, 5-0894 wants to help you find direction, self-confidence, etc. Info aplenty., come!!
tf11-30

Going home for Intercession? I'll take over your job while you're away and give it back when you return. Ed. Major. Julie, 617-544-3362.
tf11-16

MOTORCYCLES FOR SALE

750 Honda, 3 inch over tubes, custom paint, many extras, must be seen, $1,500 or best offer. Phone 586-3952 evenings.
tf11-16

TO SUBLET

1 bedroom apt. at Brandywine. 1 1/2 mi from UM on bus Rte., large rms. Central A/C. W/W carpeting. Jan. 1 - Aug. 31. Can renu. 549-3946.
tf11-21

INSTRUCTION

Physics for non-science majors: 100-World Beyond Our Senses; 100A-100 In Spanish; 115-Physics of Music; 117-Nuclear Energy & Its Social Challenge; 118-Quantum Worlds; 122-Concepts of Physics, 2; 123-Problems in Physics; 130-Physics for Elem. Ed. Majors; 386-Special Problems. Details — see course description guide or inquire in Hasbrouck 110.
tf11-16

Upper division Physics courses for Biological and Physical Science majors: 301-Concepts of Modern Physics; 319-Electronic Instrumentation; 320-Radiation Physics & Nuclear Medicine; 386-Special Problems; 391-Seminar on Molecular Bio-Physics. For details, see course description guide or inquire in Hasbrouck 110.
tf11-16

ENTERTAINMENT

Mark it on your calendar — INDIA NIGHT on Nov. 18, Sunday, 7:30 p.m., C.C. Aud. Enjoy classical, folk dances, music and a lot more, plus authentic Indian snacks after show. Adm. $1. Tickets at C.C. Concourse. For more information call Vijay Arora, Sec. I.A., 5-0612. Don't miss it! You will like it.
tf11-16

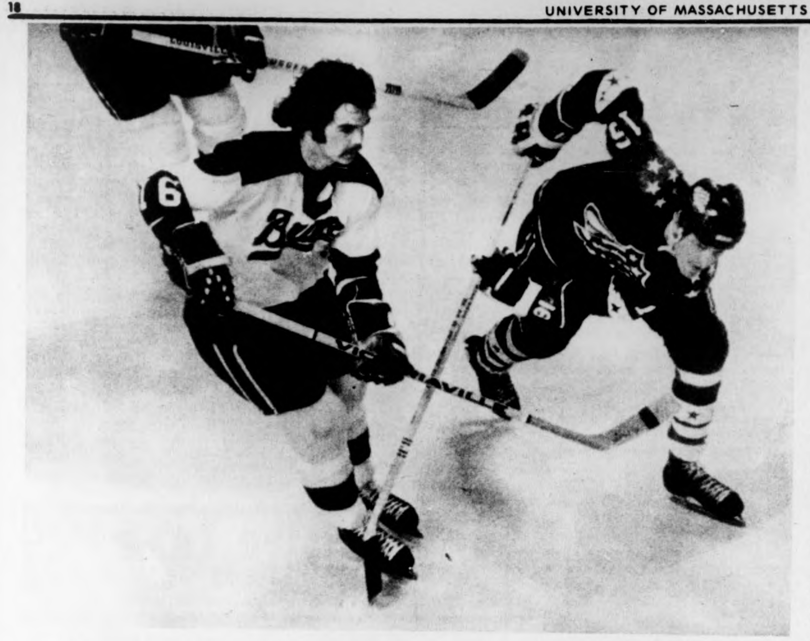
Berkshire East Poster Contest. Prizes are: 1st prize - a 10-week season's pass at Berkshire; 2nd prize is a weekend pass; 3rd prize is a day pass. Rules are: size 18"x24", leave 4"x4" space in upper-left corner. Ski related design. Leave lots of room for event, date, place. Bring to Mahar, Nov. 28 at 8 p.m. Will be judged Dec. 1 at C.C. Aud. Snow dance at 9 p.m.
tf11-17

Solid Gold memories as I spin your favorite disks for your dancing pleasure. Call Boogie Bob at 536-6075 today for info.
tf11-15

Your kind of music played the way you like it. I produce record hops that you will truely enjoy. Call Steve the DJ at 467-2842.
tf11-20

Tonite Fri., Nov. 16, "Night Watch" at The Country House, River Rd., Hatfield, 247-5155. All the beer you you want for $2.
tf11-16

Sat., Nov. 17th dance to Ed Vadas Big City Blues Band at Hampden Commons in Southwest, free beer, admission $1.00. 9:00-1:00 p.m. tf11-16



(AP Photo)

Derek Sanderson has gotten off to a winning start with this new team, the Boston Braves. In his first game since being demoted to the AHL, Sanderson garnered a goal and an assist in leading the Braves to a 4-1 victory over Rochester.

Retreads Revamp Ram Defense

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - He's 29 and they call Charlie Stukes the "old man" of the Los Angeles Rams defensive backfield, the quarter that was suspect when the 1973 season began.

Last Sunday after beating New Orleans 29-7, the Rams voted the game ball to Stukes, who had been traded by Baltimore to Minnesota for a draft choice last July.

The Rams paid the same price to get him to Los Angeles and he's proved a bargain.

"He's made some great plays for us and his tackles forced two fumbles," said Merlin Olsen, tackle and defensive captain of the club. "Overall, he's played some inspirational football for us."

The defensive secondary proved a major probiem for the new coach, Chuck Knox. Back from 1972 was Dave Elmendorf, the strong safety. The Rams No. 1 draft choice was Cullen Bryant from Colorado, expected to be a starter as a rookie. He wasn't.

On the fourth round, Los Angeles drafted Eddie McMillan from Florida State and he proved a major surprise by earning a starting job as the right cornerback. The Rams then picked up Stukes and Steve Preece, both former college quarterbacks. Preece had been cut by three clubs but now starts at free safety.

"The basic thing about playing defense is working together as a unit," said Stukes, who has intercepted two passes this season to run his career total to 22.

"I think we have worked together well but I also feel we have a lot to learn, because professional football is a learning process all the way," he added. "There is no room for anyone to be complacent."

Stukes admits the defenders were bothered by fans who wondered about their competence at the start of the season.

"I think it would bother any athlete," he declared. "But that's part of football. People have the right to say what they desire. It just made us work harder."

Poll Shows Fans Satisfied

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Football fans are happy with the lifting of pro football's television blackout-but if it starts to hurt home attendance, they would be willing to see the blackout reinstated. And they're happy with the amount of football being televised now.

The lifting of the blackout on sold-out home games is in the first year of a three-year experiment, the result of congressional legislation. NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle contends it will hurt the game by cutting sharply into attendance.

A copyrighted Chicago Tribune story Thursday, reporting on the results of a Louis Harris poll, said the early reports on "no-shows" — fans who purchase tickets but fail to attend games — are spotty and that the real test will come when winter's cold and snow grips the National Football League's northern cities.

In the nationwide poll, a cross-section of 1,761 fans was asked, in part: "Do you favor or oppose the lifting of the blackout on home pro football games in the areas where the games are being played?"

Sixty-eight per cent of the fans said they favored lifting the blackout, 23 per cent said they opposed it and the remaining 9 per cent said they were not sure.

Then they were asked: "Suppose the recently lifted blackout on pro football telecasts does result in a substantial decrease in attendance at the actual games. Would you favor or oppose reinstating the blackout on home pro football games in the areas where the games are played?"

To this, 45 per cent said they would favor restoring the blackout, 35 per cent they would oppose a return to the pre-1973 blackout policy and 20 per cent had no opinion.

The fans were also asked: "Do you feel there is too much, too little, or about the right amount of exposure of pro-football on television right now?"

Fifty percent said there was about the right amount, 28 per cent said there was too much, 11 per cent said there wasn't enough and 2 per cent said they weren't sure.

LOOKING FOR A SCIENCE CORE ELECTIVE?

M.A.E. 101
ENERGY AND MAN (E)

— Learn about the energy crisis —
— Hear experts discuss energy situation —
— Emphasis on energy conservation —

Ernie's "D" Target Of Opposing Teams

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - The whispers all around the National Basketball Association say that the "D" in Ernie DiGregorio doesn't exactly stand for defense.

The word is that opposing guards look forward to matchups that pit them against Buffalo's high-priced rookie backcourtman.

DiGregorio smiles when you mention the criticism.

"There's no question in my mind," says DiGregorio, "that I have what it takes to be one of the very best guards in this league."

What it takes is playmaking, the ability to score points, and defense.

Ernie has had no trouble in the first department. He's leading the league in playmaking with close to eight assists a game and set a Buffalo club record with 14 in his first game with the team.

His scoring has been adequate with an average of better than 17 points per game.

That leaves defense...a problem for DiGregorio so far.

"Sure I've heard the talk about my defense," he says. "Anytime anybody says something about it, it offends you. But look, we've only played 17 games. I'm still going around the league for the first time. There's a lot to learn. I'll be a lot better the second time around."

DiGregorio is a mere mortal-sized 6-footer which is all right walking down the street but can be a problem living in the giant world of the NBA. He tries to overlook his relative shrimp size.

"You play on your talents and the things you do best," he says. "If you're good enough, that'll carry you."

DeGregorio signed for a bundle of Buffalo bucks and often hears about that large-sized contract.

"I'm a marked man because of the publicity," he says.

"When you're making a lot of money, they seem to give that little extra effort against you. I've been bumped around a little bit. But it doesn't really bug me. I expect people to say things."

His statistics haven't been bad, but Ernie isn't satisfied. "I can play better," he says, "much better."

AL Heads Weigh New Designated Runner Rule

BOSTON (AP) - American League owners are considering adoption of a designated runner rule for the 1974 season that would be similar to this year's designated hitter rule.

"I know it was discussed at Tuesday's meeting in Chicago," Thomas S. Monahan, a league spokesman, said Thursday. "I don't know of any concrete move on it yet. It will come up at the December meeting in Houston."

Earlier, the Cleveland Plain Dealer reported that the owners had secretly approved the rule.

It was proposed by Charles O. Finley, owner of the Oakland A's, the newspaper said, and approved by owners of the Cleveland Indians, New York Yankees, Kansas City Royals, Minnesota Twins, Milwaukee Brewers and Texas Rangers.

Opposed were the Baltimore Orioles, Detroit Tigers, Boston Red Sox, California Angels and Chicago White Sox.

Expansion

NEW YORK (AP) - The Board of Governors of the National Basketball Association Thursday directed Commissioner Walter Kennedy to make a detailed study for possible expansion of the league.

No cities were mentioned but the governors indicated they were prepared to add one team for the 1974-75 season. Kennedy will report to the governors at their All-Star Game meeting in Seattle in January.

SHOW MOE HOWARD THAT WE WANT HIM!

COME TO THE 3 STOOGES FILM FEST

5 FLICKS WITH THE REAL CURLY

Fri., Nov. 16 C.C. Aud.
Only 50¢ 7, 9, 11 p.m.

Get into the spirit of what's happening

The New World Gospel Chorus will definitely take you there this Sunday, Nov. 18, 1973, 3:00 p.m. at Wesleyan Methodist Church, North Pleasant St., Amherst, Mass. U.M. students, $1.00; others $1.50.

cover-all with LEE OVERALLS sizes for little guys too

WEAR-HOUSE

Volleyball Ends For Women On Victorious Note

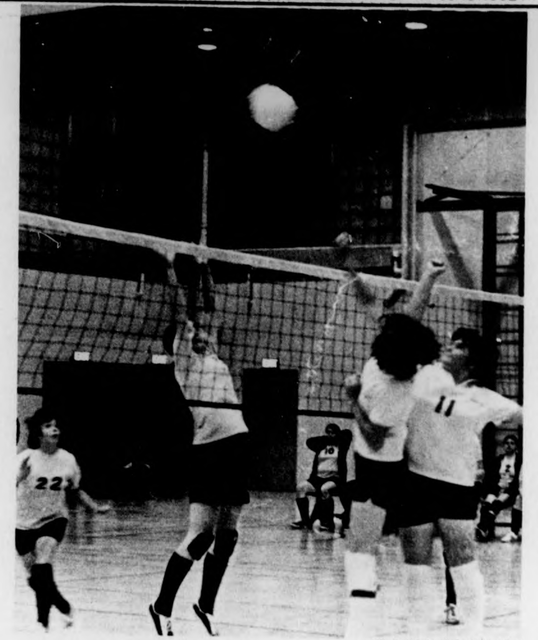
By LINDA WACKLER

The women's volleyball season ended Tuesday night with a convincing victory and a right hope for next year. Both the varsity and junior varsity teams defeated American International College by scores of 15-9; 15-10 and 15-2; 16-14 respectively.

In an outstanding effort, the team effectively used all three of their major defensive and offensive weapons - the bump, the set, and the spike. For the first time, each player reached her maximum potential in the same game. Nancy Caruso found her timing on her spikes, as they skimmed the top of the net and drove into the opposing court. The players responded well to each other. Their game was consistent and they supported each other's plays. The 6-2 defense worked beautifully, as did the new defense they acquired for blockers and spikers.

The junior varsity team had to work a bit harder for their victory. They did not seem to adapt to the new defense as well as the varsity team, but their serving was excellent. Nancy Eismann served ten consecutive points.

Coach Jody Jensen and the players were jubilant over their victory. It was a final assessment of what the team had been working towards all season. As a first year team, inexperienced in competitive ball, they faced many obstacles. They had to come together as a team - one unit instead of six separate players. They steadily improved as the season progressed. The players coordinated the timing and rhythm of their defense and offense. This last game was a proof of the harmony of the team. They could feel how well they played and are ready and anxiously looking forward to next year.



(Staff Photo-Bob Gamache)

The ball hangs lazily above the net, while both sides await a possible spike. This is UMass volleyball in the premier season of the sport.

Going Big Time

By MDC STAFF

Is Vermont going big time basketball???

When you look down their 1973-74 schedule and the names North Carolina, N.C. State, Vanderbilt, and Georgia jump out at you, you have to stop and wonder.

On December 7th and 8th, they go to North Carolina on their first southern swing and then return on December 29 and 31st to play the other two teams again down south.

UMass basketball coach Jack Leaman sees this move as an attempt by Vermont to bring some money into their program. This is one of the ways to do it, he said.

But why would North Carolina State want to bring Vermont (the perennial cellar-dwellars of the Yankee Conference) into their arenas?

"State doesn't mind playing a team like Vermont," said Leaman, "and let's face it, they're going to sell out that place no matter who they play."

North Carolina State plays U.C.L.A. one week later, on December 15th in St. Louis on national T.V. (in living color). And it looks like scheduling "tough" Vermont the week before may have been a great strategic move on the part of N.C. State to get the team ready for this big game.

NEED HELP
— LISTENING —
CONCERNED PEOPLE

Central Area
Counseling Center

B-2 Gorman 5-0894
Mon., Fri. 1-9 p.m.
Thurs. 10-9 p.m.

Women Swimmers 2nd

Wednesday night the women's swim team traveled to South Hadley to swim against Mt. Holyoke College and Smith College in the team's first meet of the year. The Mt. Holyoke team showed surprising strength and depth in amassing 111 points to dominate the meet, while UMass outscored Smith 55-50.

Outstanding UMass performances were turned in by junior Laurie Seluk in winning the 200 yard freestyle in a time of 1:04.1 and Sophomore Mary Ellen Dash who won the 100 yard individual medley in 1:08.4, the 100 yard butterfly in 1:07.1, and set a pool record in the 400 yard freestyle with a time of 4:51.5.

The next meet for the women swimmers will be November 28 at the Wellesley College Relays. Coach Pat Griffin commented after the meet, "The meet was a good start for the season, we needed the competition to find out what we need to work on. Now we know, starts and turns."

WUMV

It might be dull. It might lack a few necessary variables for excitement. But it will be an event. And WUMV-TV will be there.

For all the action from Durham, New Hampshire, be at the Bluewall this Sunday night at 9 p.m. for a Yankee Conference replay between UMass and the doormats, the host Wildcats from New Hampshire.

WMUA

Time heals wounded pride and wounded bodies. The Minutemen have had plenty of time to heal both, so they should be ready to take on the Wildcats of New Hampshire this Saturday at Durham. Both of these teams have had their problems, but one thing's for sure: WMUA will be there to bring you all the action live. Game time is 1:30; air time 1:20, so join the team that is consistent: Don Gorski and Larry Convoy. That's WMUA.........91.1 FM.

Orr's 7 Pts. Pace Bruins

BOSTON (AP) — Bobby Orr fired three power play goals and had four assists as the Boston Bruins walloped the New York Rangers 10-2 Thursday to widen their lead in the National Hockey League East to five points.

The Bruins struck for three goals in the first period, including Gregg Sheppard's first of the season, and the Rangers never got back in the game.

Don Marcotte popped in an Orr rebound for the Bruins' first goal, Orr converted a pass from Phil Esposito for the second, and Orr fed Sheppard on a break-away to give Boston a 3-0 lead after the first period.

Steve Vickers, the 1973 rookie of the year, got one back for New York in the opening minutes of the second period, but Wayne Cashman canned a rebound and Ken Hodge scored on a power play to give Boston a 5-1 lead at the end of two.

Orr got his second goal unassisted in the opening minutes of the third period, and his third midway through the session, both while New York was short-handed.

BART AUTO
Paint & Body Specialists

When you make contact — contact us.

*Foreign & domestic collision work
*Windshields replaced
*State license insurance estimates

Rte. 9, Belchertown

256-8712

2 1/2 miles past Rusty Scupper on the left

Glenn Poster

Less "Foot" In Football

The problem with watching the NFL on television on weekends is that the games have become too dull, too stereotyped, too boring. You can predict just about every play. You now know each team's game plan. You are no longer what has been referred to as the "armchair quarterback." You are now an armchair coach. The exciting plays have gone by the wayside. Because of the popularity of the zone defense, it is a rare occurrence when the quarterback drops back in the pocket to throw the bomb. And the number one thing that usually decides the final scores in games these days is the field goal.

The placekickers in today's modern game come in all shapes and sizes. As a matter of fact, during the off-season coaches make expeditions to places that you only heard about from seeing dirty pictures of in National Geographic when you were a kid. A coach thinks, "So what if the guy's from Antartica and has no idea of what American pro football is like. So long as he can split those uprights from fifty-nine yards out."

Jan Stenerud was the first of the new breed. Now, all you Chief fans, I'm not trying to take anything away from Jan's ability because he certainly is one of the best. Jan came to the Chiefs from Norway. His favorite pastime then was sking. He had no idea then (and still might not) of the strategies of NFL football. The football game is sixty minutes long. Out of those sixty minutes, Jan must spend at most, a minute and a half, maybe two minutes of playing time actually out on the field. I don't see why he even needs to take a shower after the game.

I liked the old style placekicker who could do double duty for his team by playing at another position. Take George Blanda. Although he isn't used there much anymore, he still can play quarterback. And Jim O'Brien of Detroit is also a wide receiver. But these new sideways placekickers (called soccer style) can't do anything else like passing the football. Garo Yepremian has already proved that.

This breed of placekickers also has some colorful names. Who could ever forget such immortals as: Bobby Howfield, Boris Schlapak, (played briefly for the Colts last year) Horst Mulhmann, Dennis Wersching, Mirro Roder, and Nick Mike-Mayer?

Then we come to Jeff White, the best reason why the NFL should return to the option of going for the two-point conversion.

But, the two-point conversion could change the results of ballgames. For example, if a team is down 21-14 and has the ball with little time left in the game, they don't go for a field goal, they go for a touchdown. But what good does that do them? In most cases they say the point after is automatic (I said most cases, thus taking into account the Patriots) So the team that was trailing in the score only comes out of the game with a tie despite all their heroic efforts of trying to get a quick, sustained drive down the field. If they had the two-point conversion, that team would have a chance to win. It is more of a challenge trying to run or throw from the three-yard line than to have one guy stand by himself and kick the ball from ten.

There were some exciting games back in the good old days of the old AFL. The reason is simple — the game didn't revolve around the field goal in determining the outcome. They had use of the two-point conversion.

MDC
Sports Hotline
5-0344

SKI SPAIN
Earn 2 credits during intersession
Call 5-2801

TEN PIN BOWLING
at Boyden Gym
50¢ per string
MONDAY - FRIDAY
4:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m.
(except during league play)

Cutting ....
Shaping ....
Styling ....
That's our business ...

The Cellar
189 No. Pleasant St.
Amherst, Mass.
253-9233

UMass Finishes Yan Con Slate Against Wildcats

By BILL BALLOU

Somewhere between a 10-9 upset win over Dartmouth and a 51-0 fiasco loss to Springfield lies the real University of new Hampshire football team.

The problem for UMass is finding out where.

The Minutemen head up to the forest primeval (Durham, N.H.) tomorrow to play the Wildcats in, statistically at least, a "so what" Yankee Conference game.

New Hampshire started out the year with a bang, keeping the good people of Durham up past ten celebrating the win over Dartmouth. It was the second game of the year for the Cats and good things portended. Unfortunately, things never developed much beyond that and UNH stands at 4-4 on the season with this their last game.

Springfield embarrassed them last week and Rhode Island scored 40 points against them the week before so lately they've been poor.

But aside from those two games, the Wildcats have boasted a strong defense and have Dick Macpherson concerned.

"I have the highest regard for Bill Bowes, their coach. He knows how to get the best performance out of his athletes and I'm sure they'll be prepared for us."

The Cats have been weak passing throughout the season, so it appears if they're going to make any kind of offensive hay with UMass it'll have to be against the Minuteman defensive strength -- the run.

UMass is finally healthy (more or less), after a two week span that had the Infirmary posting "No Vacancy" signs.

Key returnees are fullback Paul St. Onge and center Kevin Moran. The loss of Moran was deadly at Connecticut and with St. Onge back Peil Pennington may once again experience the pleasures of pocket passing.

Defensive tackle Tom Bradshaw is still hobbled by a shoulder injury, and while he won't be right again this season, will play.

The two-week layoff, while possibly taking some of the edge off the UMass game, was badly needed because of the injury situation. It also changed the Minutemen practice routine around. Practices were shortened and MacPherson gave his men the week-end off.

UMass stands, for the moment, at 5-4 overall and 3-2 in the conference. New Hampshire is 4-4 overall and 2-2 in the conference.

The big action, conference-wise, is taking place in Kingston, Rhode Island, where URI and Connecticut will be fighting for the Beanpot.

Connecticut is 5-0 in the Yan Con; Rhode Island 4-1.

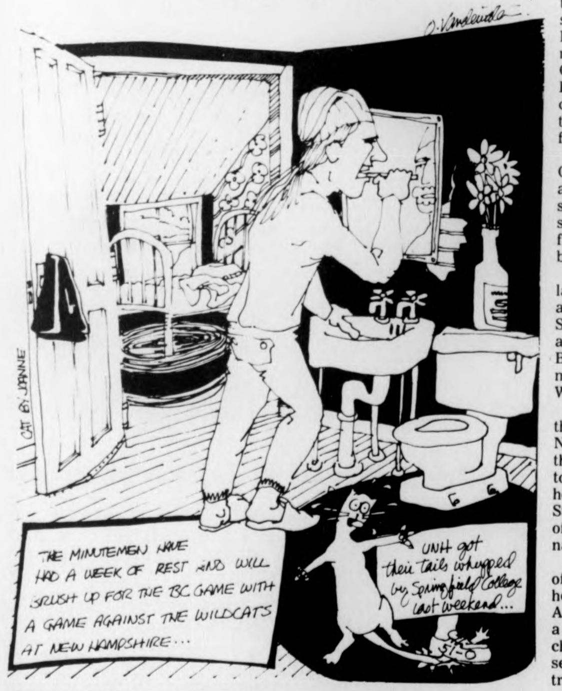
A UConn win or tie gives them undisputed possession of the title, while a Rhode Island victory makes it a shared championship.

Daily Collegian

SPORTS

Hopefully, Bob Verolini will elude as many tacklers against New Hampshire as he did here last week vs. Vermont. Brad Calnan (73) watches in the background.

Brushing Up



D. Vandewalle
CAT BY JOANNE
THE MINUTEMEN HAVE HAD A WEEK OF REST AND WILL BRUSH UP FOR THE BC GAME WITH A GAME AGAINST THE WILDCATS AT NEW HAMPSHIRE...
UNH got their tails whipped by Springfield College last weekend...
51-0

Inside Sports

- Ernie's "D" NBA Target
- Less "Foot" In Football
- Bruins Top Rangers
- Women's Volleyball Team Wins

Harriers Go To Spokane For Nationals

By SCOTT HAYES

"Like a dream." Those were Tom Maguire's words describing his feelings about the UMass Cross Country team's upcoming trip to Spokane, Washington to compete in the NCAA meet.

Yesterday, the Athletic Department allocated enough money to send six team members to Spokane, Washington for Monday's NCAA championships. It will be the first time that a UMass Cross Country team has gone to the nationals. In the past, only outstanding individuals were sent to the NCAA's.

UMass will be up against the best teams in the country. Tennessee, national champions of a year ago, should be among the top contenders. East Tennessee State, sometimes known as the "Irish Brigade" because of its five Irish runners, placed second last year. Oregon and Washington State, two Pacific Eight teams, may also be considered favorites, based on their third and fourth place finishes in 1972.

Representing the Mid-American Conference will be Bowling Green and Miami of Ohio. Only one point separated these two teams last season, with Miami of Ohio placing fifth and Bowling Green right behind.

Indiana, a ninth place finisher last season should be up there again this year. Representing the South will be Duke, and William and Mary. Oklahoma State and Brigham Young look to be two more strong teams from the Mid-West.

Penn State, which took third in the 1972 IC4A's and twelfth in the NCAA's can be used for a gauge for this year's UMass team, who also took third in the IC4A's. The team hopes to finish lower than Penn State did in 1972, and prove worthy of the honor of being sent to the nationals.

Individually, Steve Prefontaine of Oregon is the favorite. "Pre", as he was known to thousands of Americans in the 1972 Olympics, is a two-time NCAA Cross Country champion. Prefontaine took last season off, because of his Olympic training.

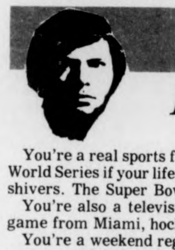
Doug Brown, an Olympian in the 5,000 meter steeplechase, and Neil Cusack, last year's NCAA champ, may challenge Prefontaine for top honors in the nation. Brown is the American record holder in the 5,000 meter steeplechase.

Other prospects include Edward Leddy of East Tennessee State, Dan Murphy of Washington State and Mike Keough of Manhattan. Murphy placed fifth in 1972, while Keough took seventh place.

Dick Reed of Brigham Young, Nick Rowes of Western Kentucky, and Tony Waldrop of North Carolina will also be trying for recognition on the Hangman's Valley Golf Course. Reed, Rowes and Waldrop finished eighth, ninth and tenth respectively. Overall, 16 of last season's top 20 runners in the nation return for another shot this year.

Coach Ken O'Brien expressed his thanks to the Athletic Department for having faith in the cross country team. "We're extremely appreciative that they (the Athletic Department) feel we can represent the University in the nationals," said the mentor. O'Brien stated that this year's team may be one of the best teams ever to come out of New England.

As standout Tom Maguire put it, "The meet will tell us how good we really are, but we'll have to prove ourselves." The chance to run in the NCAA championships, which may have been just a dream at the start of the season, is now reality for the UMass Cross Country team.



Steve DeCosta

Hoop Is Best Bet

You're a real sports freak. You wouldn't miss the seventh game of the World Series if your life depended on it. The Stanley Cup playoffs give you shivers. The Super Bowl puts you in another world.

You're also a television addict. How else could you watch a football game from Miami, hockey from Vancouver, or baseball from Oakland?

You're a weekend regular. You sit in front of the tube from Saturday noon to midnight on Monday, soaking up college and pro football, NHL hockey, NBA basketball, Wide World of Sports, and maybe even some horse racing, bowling, or tennis. And don't forget all those weekly wrap-up shows that let you catch a second glimpse of something you have already seen three times.

Times used to be easy for you. You turned on the TV and switched channels until you found the only sporting event on at the time, sat in your favorite chair, and absorbed everything that flowed from the screen.

But now things have changed. Run-over is what it's called. For two weeks in October you could have watched baseball, football, hockey, basketball, Riggs-King, plus all those other little fillers that flood the airwaves.

So now you have to be selective. You change channels and every station has something you would like to see. Suddenly you have to make a choice. And you start to think about just what it is that has enthralled you for all this time.

After being such a faithful fan for so long, you finally have to step back to take a critical look at what the medium of television is bombarding you with.

You realize that baseball is too slow and tedious. Football has its moments of excitement but it lacks continuity of action. Hockey has its relative merits but the size and speed of the puck make it difficult to follow.

More than any other major sport, basketball can become real on a television set. The compact playing area allows the camera to catch nearly everything that transpires. The continuity of play provides for fast-paced, constant excitement. The size and skill of the players provide for a graceful and smooth game which is colored with body contact and rugged competition.

But even basketball has its faults. At times, in certain locales, high school games, mostly state tournaments and the like, have received television coverage. At that level the game has a tendency to turn into a one or two man show, lacking many of the fine points that make the sport intrinsically watchable.

The pro version of the game also has its flaws. All the pros ever seem to do is run and gun, scoot and shoot. Someone once said the only real competition in a pro game comes in the last five minutes. The criticism even went so far as to suggest that each team be spotted 100 points and then play a five minute game.

But basketball on the college level is something nearly everyone can enjoy. The teams are generally composed of at least competent players, although there are usually one or two stars that control the game but seldom steal the whole show. The pride and motivation that drives teams to great accomplishments is readily apparent. The college game allows for more strategy than the pro version, where zone defenses and stalling are prohibited.

Through some apparent scheduling fluke, UMass will not appear on television this season. Though the ECAC presents a game every Saturday, they have excluded one of the top teams in the East in the Minutemen. So while you can't see them on the tube, the Cage is only a short walk away and college basketball is still your best bet for the upcoming winter season.

POOR RICHARD'S

Volume 3, Issue 10

November 16, 1973

Anna Kelso: Does she look like a revolutionary?

The Walking Revolution

by Joyce Kosofsky

I have never stood up straight in my life. My back hurts constantly. Yoga and other forms of exercise have helped somewhat, but I still walk like a camel. Twenty years of hearing that I walk funny has only made me more self-conscious of my bad posture.

And then I stepped into a pair of Earth Shoes. Those clutzy looking shoes that have no heels. The most comfortable pair of shoes I've had since the puppy chewed up my rubber ones.

Did you ever walk barefoot in the sand and notice that your heel sank lower than any other part of your foot? Anna Kelso did. The discovery led her to develop the Earth Shoe. Those clutzy looking shoes with the wide square toes.

Ms. Kelso visited the Amherst Area recently. She is here from Denmark, touring her 30 Earth Shoe stores all over the country. I spoke with Ms. Kelso Tuesday about her shoes, her work, and her interests. She's a small, vibrant woman with an enormous abundance of energy. Yet, to look at her, you'd never notice that she has started a revolution.

But she has. Her pre-occupation with proper respiratory habits found that if you flex your foot upward, your pelvis straightens accordingly. By lowering your heel, she discovered, you can achieve the same skeletal stability that is obtained in the Yoga Lotus Position. When the pelvis is in its proper position, respiration is enhanced. And proper breathing is essential to proper living, not only for its physical benefits, but its emotional benefits as well.

"Women tell me that they feel less depressed when they wear my shoes," Ms. Kelso said. "The shoes are designed so that after bending and reaching the pelvis is always returned to its most natural position. Circulation is better. Respiration is better. Balance is better. Work seems to go easier for them."

I demonstrated this theory for myself. With a pair of Earth Shoes on, I touched the floor with my hands, reached as high as I could. I felt no strain on my back. In fact, it felt good. And I was standing up straighter than I have ever been able to before. All because of her clutzy looking shoes.

She's a woman of many interests, yet they all seem to coincide with her Earth Shoes.

"I invented the shoes during the Age of Pisces," she said. (Pisces, according to the world of Astrology, is a foot oriented sign) "But they are more important during this Age of Aquarius (the ankle orientated sign). Sure, they're good for the feet, but their main importance lies on the ankle. They're an ankle support."

"I stopped practicing Yoga ten years ago. The flexibility that I once attained in Yoga exercise has been maintained because of my shoes. My shoes are exercise. They keep me fit." To show this, Ms. Kelso went into a full headstand.

I asked Ms. Kelso, a vegetarian, why her shoes were made out of leather. She said that this did bother her, but unfortunately leather is the only practical material for her design. The hard rubber soles made it impossible for the shoes to be made out of anything softer. However, plans are being worked out for a softer yet durable rubber sole so that the shoes can be made out of canvass.

The shoes are designed with the heel lower than the rest of the foot. Ms. Kelso explained that's because that's the most natural way to walk. High heeled shoes throw the body out of line, causing strain on the back and the foot arches. The toe of the Earth Shoe is wide because when standing or walking, the toes should be allowed to spread, to insure good circulation. When walking with Earth Shoes, the heel of the foot comes in contact with the ground first, then do the toes. The effect is a sense of rolling forward as you walk, instead of hitting the ground all at once. It's quite invigorating. Her design has been guided and tested by doctors. Now, the Earth Shoe is recommended by physicians and orthopedic clinics.

The response for her work has been tremendous. Letters to Ms. Kelso are full of praise. She is modest when you tell her that the shoes feel good. She just smiles at you, and says thank you, the way a mother would when someone compliments her child.

"I want to make people happy. When the body is happy, the mind is happy. My shoes can help people."

Kelso Earth Shoes might be a walking revolution. If only they weren't so clutzy looking...

(There's an Earth Shoe Store right here in Amherst. It's at 264 N. Pleasant St. where Elliot, Randy, Nina, et all. will give you the lowdown on the different way to walk.)

Features:

McGilvray
Who is that blond haired wonder in UMies? No, he couldn't be... But he is! And he is revealed to us by Pat Coffey on Page 3

AFTRA
AMERICAN FEDERATION OF TELEVISION & RADIO ARTISTS ON STRIKE AGAINST ABC
AMERICAN BROADCASTING INC

Cosell by Cosell by Kelley
What happens when the face with the big mouth reads a book by the big mouth with the face? Read Marty Kelley's review of Howard Cosell's autobiography on Page 5

Executive Action
They say the assassination of JFK couldn't have been done by one man. And someone made quite a startling movie to prove it. Marion Prokop reviews the film on Page 11

Poor Richard's
Volume 3, Issue 10
November 16, 1973

Poor Richards is a weekly magazine of the Daily Collegian.

Contributors
Robert Abel
Scott Bacherman
Ken Blanchard
Sherm Boyson
Alan Chapman
David DeFacto
Steve Feld
UMAN Gomes
Pat Grundy
Marty Kelly
Chris Leighton
Joni Levi
Carol MacBaren
Don McGilvray
Bruce McKeon
Tyla Michelove
Marion Prokop
Steve Ruggles
David Santos
Tyrone Shoes
David Sokol
Nancy Spencer
Dave Wiley
Zombey Woof
Lori Ann Yeslow

Editor
Patrick J. Coffey

Asst. Editor
Joyce Kosofsky

Music
Mike Kostek

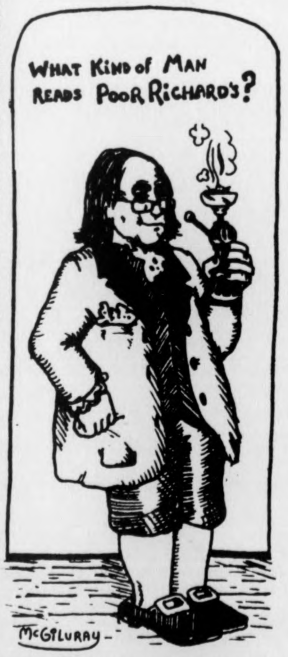
Weekend
Bob Nesti

Books
Frederic C. Weiss

POOR RICHARD'S welcomes unsolicited manuscripts, photographs, and sketches. They must be signed and include the author's address and phone number. Due to space limitations, there is no guarantee that all material will be printed.

All manuscripts must be typed, double-spaced, at sixty spaces per line, and are subject to editing for content or length. Deadline for the Friday edition is Wednesday noon.

Letters to the editor are accepted for perusal and or publication. Sometimes we need a good chuckle.



WHAT KIND of MAN READS POOR RICHARD'S?
McGILURAY

Coke: The Real Stuff

by Sherman Boyson

The following story is all lies. The names have been used to confound the innocent.

Debbie is an addict.

You wouldn't know it. She's five feet five inches of beauty. Long brown hair. A face out of a Camay soap commercial. Two beautiful brown eyes reaching out with warmth. But behind those eyes is a constant craving to escape the harsh realities of life at UMass. Her soft hands reach for the crutch to get her through another day. She wanders around the campus in a daze, not really aware of what goes on around her. Spaced out most of the time, she lives from day to day holding on to her chains of addiction. Debbie is addicted to cola.

Debbie was born at an early age into a life of pleasure. Scituate is a community where all the people spend their summers lying in the sun on their private beaches. As Debbie put it, "I was raised on country sunshine, I was happy with the simple things." But winter leaves a mass feeling of boredom over the cold and then deserted resort town. Some turn to alcohol. Others try narcotics. Debbie turned to cola. it was all very innocent in the beginning. Here a sip, there a sip, everywhere a sip-sip. But now it has turned into addiction.

She tries to hide it, but it is obvious. Her room is filled with empty cola cans. "I'm gonna melt them down and build an aircraft carrier" she tries to explain, but her floor knows the truth. What she can't explain is the things that happen when she gets off on cola.

16 Oz. Size
Coke
Trade-mark ®

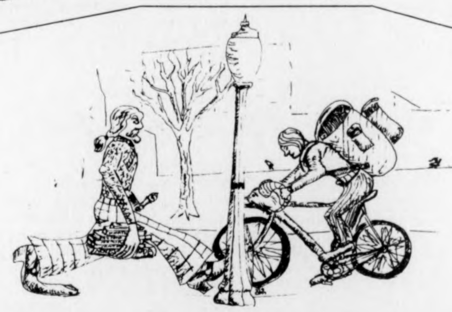
Like the last time. The pressure of exams was too much and she o.d.'d on Pepsi. We caught her just in time. She was at Logan Airport buying a ticket to Miami. She was planning on assasinating Anita Bryant by spiking her orange juice. The time before that she tried to take over Houston Control to convince the Apollo mission to give up Tang in favor of Coco-Cola. Before that she tried to substitute the grass at a dairy farm with astro turf.

Each day she has to renew her system with the vile liquid she so desperately needs. On a campus like UMass a supplier isn't hard to find. In fact, her meal ticket gives her access to an unlimited source. And when the Dining Commons are closed, cola is openly sold in the lobby of her dormitory. I considered it slightly illegal when the Campus Center provides rolling papers. My Catholicism tells me it is immoral to openly sell contraceptives. The college experience has enabled me to accept these things. But I have nothing but disgust for a campus that openly supplies a fallen girl with the substance her habit requires. This provides an irresistable temptation which makes the breaking of her habit impossible.

Who is to blame? Was it permissive parents that should have forced her to drink nutritious Ovaltine in the morning instead of coke? Was it hero worship as she saw Linus, Snoopy and the rest of the gang endorsing the stuff on television? Was it friends who applied too much peer pressure to explore the wonders of cola? Was she afraid that if she didn't join the Pepsi generation she wouldn't be able to think young?

The answers are irrelevant now. What is important is to save Debbie and others like her. What happens when cola isn't enough? What about when she realizes that coke isn't the real thing? Now that her resistance is down, can she avoid the temptation to try Tab or Diet-Pepsi? I have enough grey hairs without worrying about the big crisis. What will she do when someone comes up to her and says "Want to try some Moxie?" Then we lose her forever. Another soul lost to the curse of carbonation.

Masculinity and Femininity



by Carol MacBaren

Look sometime at the way we UMies carry our books around. Apart from using a knapsack, we have invariably chosen one of two methods: one is to sling them in one hand, down at the side, the other is to cradle them in front in one or both arms. Most of the men have chosen the first method, and no one but the women seems to use the second.

The central theme of the women's movement is that the desirable human qualities are found in equal abundance on both sides of the sex line. From this the conclusion follows that there is no inherent justification for making distinctions based on sex.

If such virtues as courage, ingenuity, and aggressiveness are virtues in men, then not only are they virtues in women, but they occur in equal proportion.

Femininity, if such a thing exists, must be what women are, not what they used to be, and not what anyone wants them to be. For a long time, "femininity" meant knowing that women had a place and staying there. It meant acknowledging that non-feminine traits had to be suppressed, no matter how much simpler it made things. Bobbie Jean Sox used to wonder whether it wouldn't be easier to call up her boyfriend D.A. and ask about a date, so she could go knitting with her friends after school. "No", suggested the learned opinion of the times. Such behavior could only be interpreted as forward, and forwardness is simply unfeminine.

It was necessary in those days to be constantly aware of one's social duty to be masculine or feminine. These qualities had to be lived constantly to be maintained, and any task became an opportunity to prove masculinity or femininity. In Billie Jean's case, one false move, one forward action, one "unladylike" indiscretion, could shatter the fragile edifice which was her only guarantee of a married future. School provided ample opportunity for displaying the range of a person's talents. Laughing and giggling at a table in the corner of the cafeteria was an occasion of pure feminine excitement. Carrying her books down the hall, she could give them just that slight movement to accompany the coy glance she saved for D.A. when he smiled at her. And so D.A., would spend hours in the washroom getting his black hair to have just the right amount of shine. Everyone thought his black jacket was so tough, and his Bel Air was the loudest when it revved up after school. With such an image, downfall would be all the more complete if for so much as an instant he were to cradle his books in front.

We the little kids could sense the meaning of the position of the books. When we were old enough to have homework, we carried them the way we had seen our elders do it, adding subtle nuances of our own. As our attention was drawn to other things, choice became habit. In the Old World, there seems to be little need for the expression of self through book-carrying. All the satchels have a similar look, and the work is considerable, and there are plenty of other ways, including the social structure itself to prove oneself.

In modern-day UMass, we continue, the tradition handed down from one generation of scholars to the next. But in the past few years there has come another way which is perhaps more efficient in a mechanical sense, and which recognizes a common ground for both sexes. Knapsacks are used by thousands for the most prosaic reasons. They allow freedom for the arms to hold a newspaper, to steer a bicycle, or to thumb a ride. If such an innovation had come in the days of Bobbie Jean Sox, it is doubtful that both she and D.A. would have had one. The men might have considered it too much like a pocketbook, while if the guys had used them first anyway, no girl would have so forward as to use a boy's symbol.

